V. 13. I will ascend] a description of the King of Babylons bold enterprise against Gods people and Temple, whereby he had (as it were) waged warre against God himselfe, and attempted to put him out of his throne, Dan 8. 10, 11. The Stars] that is to say, above the elect, who shine in the Firmament of the Church, as Starres doe in the heavenly Firmament. Dan. 8. 10. or the Kings and Princes of the holy Nation. The mount] upon which the Temple is built, where the people doe assemble themselves for to serve God, see Psal. 75. 2. In the sides] namely, in Mount Moriah, which was on the North side of Jerusalem, right over against the hill of Sion, which was on the South side, see Psa. 48. 2.

V. 16. They that] a continuation of the infernall prosopopeia; namely, a representation of the dead, at the comming of the King of Babylon into hell.

V. 17. That opened not, &c.] the Italian, that did not let his prisoners loose; he seems to mean the transporting of subdued Nations into farre Countries, without any hope of returne, which was used by Conquerours to the end to make their conquest sure, as 2 Kin. 16. 9. Isa. 36. 17.

V. 18. All the Kings] that is to say, Kings for the most part when they die, are buried in their royall Cities, with great pompe, and solemne preparation.

V. 19. But thou art] he meanes the last King of Babylon, which was as some thinke Belshazzar: or according to ancient Histories his successor, who had his Kingdome taken away from him, and died a great way from Babylon, see Dan. 5. 31. Abominable branch] as who should say, a bastard plant, unworthy the participation of those honours which are due to other Kings. And peradventure this is spoken, because that Darius the last King of Babylon, Dan. 5. 31. was not of the Royall line. As the raiment] thy person hath not any way beene spared in the ruine of thine Empire: even as in warres the raiment and armour of such as were slaine, being all bloudy and soyled, are cast into the pit together with the dead carkasses, over which they did according to the ancient custome, raise great heapes of stones, see Jos. 8. 29. 2 Sam. 18. 17.

V. 21. For his children] namely, for the people of Babylon, or great ones, and Princes. Nor fill] that they may not re-establish, and strengthen their Kingdome, by building of new Cities, and making new plantations, as their Ancestors did, Gen. 10. 10, 11.

V. 23. The Bittern] the Italian, the Owle; which bird useth to shelter it selfe in old and ruinous houses, see Zeph. 2. 14. Others translate it Hedge hogs, others Bitterns, which is a kind of Water-fowle, that maketh a great noise.

V. 24. Surely as I have] now the Prophet returnes to the foretelling of the Assyrians next discomfiture by the Angell, which he had spoken of, Chap. 10.

V. 26. Upon the whole earth] namely, upon this great Empire, which cals it selfe universall, as Isa. 13. 5.

V. 28. This burden] namely, this prophecy of threatnings and calamities, see Isa. 13. 1.

V. 29. The rod] namely, because King Uzziah is dead, who made cruell warre against thee, and conquered quered thee, see 2 Chr. 26. 6. The Serpents root] namely, Vzziah who was the lesser enemy. A cockatrice] namely, Hezekiah, who warred more cruelly against the Philistins, and did destroy them, 2 King. 18. 8. A fiery] a figurative terme taken from the Serpent in the desert, Numb. 21. 6. to signifie a mortall, and unavoydable destruction.

V. 30. The first-borne] namely, the most wretched and afflicted people of the Jewes shall flourish again in a most happy estate under Hezekiah. I will kill] I will take away from thee all meanes of subsisting, and will cause thee to perish altogether even like a tree whose root dieth for want of nourishment. And he shall] namely Hezekiah.

V. 31. Art dissolved] namely, in teares, or thou art dismayed, and affrighted. From the North] namely, from Judea, which was partly Northward from the Land of the Philistins. A smoake] a beginning of combustion, of warre, which shall consume thee. None shall be] all the Jewish Nation shall be most willing to follow Ezekiah at the appointed time, in this enterprise.

V. 32. Of the Nation] the Italian, Of the Nations; which shall send to be informed of the wondrous workes of the Lord towards his people, as 2 King. 20. 12.

CHAP. XV.

Vers. 1. AR] one of the chiefe Cities of Moab, Num. 21. 28. Deut. 2. 9. a prophecie of things to come, as if they were come already. Kir] it is the same City Kir-hareseth or Kir-hareth, Isai. 16. 7, 11.

V. 2. He is gone up] that is to say, the Moabites are gone to the Temple of their Idoll Kemosh, to seeke for ayd. Dibon] namely, the people of that City. The high places] namely, their Temples, Chippels, and other places of Idolatry, and false devotion. Over Nebo] namely, for the desolation of these Cities, which was already come, or was ready to come upon them. On all their heads] according to the custome of those times, and places, which was to shave themselves, in times of great sorrow and mourning, Lev. 19. 27. & 21. 5. Deut. 14. Isa. 3. 24. Jer. 48. 37. Ezek. 7. 18.

V. 3. On the tops of] which were made after the fashion of open terraces. See concerning this manner of publique mourning, as it were to require help from Heaven, Isa. 22. 1. Jer. 48. 38.

V. 4. Heshbon] names of certaine Cities of Moab, Jahaz, a City in the confines of Moab. Num. 21. 23.

V. 4. My heart] that is to say, the desolation of the Moabites shall be so cruell and dolefull, that I tremble at it, and am moved to compassion every time I thinke of it, Isai. 16. 11. & 21. 3. Jer. 48. 36.

V. 6. The waters] that is to say, these places which are now rich pastures, and well watered, shall grow wild and desert, see Isa 29. 5. 17.

V. 7. The abundance] namely, their Treasures, and provisions, shall be carried away into remote, and secret places, by the Arabian robbers, which shall fetch away this prey.

V. 9. Of Dimon] this is thought to be the same City as was before named Dibon, and that the Prophet hath so altered the name of it, by reason of the great effusion of blood, which was to be in it for Dimon may signifie a bloody place. Lions] that is it to say, wild beasts, shall live in the Country made void of inhabitants.

CHAP. XVI.

Vers. 1. SEnd ye] the Moabites were subdued and made tributaries by David, 2 Sam. 8. 2. and paid their tribute in Sheep and Lambs, 2 King. 3. 4. and the Kings of Israel had gotten it away from the Kings of Judah, after the separation of the ten Tribes. Whereupon Isaiah, under the termes of wishing them to returne to the King of Judah their ancient Lord, doth exhort them to doe homage, and convert themselves to the true God, who was knowne and served in Judea, and not among the ten Tribes. To the Ruler] which your vassall King paid to the King of Israel, his Lord and Master, 2 King. 3. 4. Sela] a place scituate in the utmost confines of Moab, whereof there is no mention elsewhere.

V. 2. It shall be] if ye persevere in your rebellion, you shall both be subdued, and driven out of your Country. Arnon] a River upon the frontiers of Moab, Num. 21. 13.

V. 3, Execute judgement] the Italian, Make a decree] besides this duty towards God, doe thou use charity also, and humanity: decreeing by a publike Law, that my people may have secure refuge in thy Countrey, when they flie before the Assyrians, see Obad. 14.

V. 4. For the] that is to say, the time of my peoples visitation shall not last for ever, but I will settle them again in peace and prosperity. And therefore you Moabites, make your selves worthy of obtaining grace and favour at their hands, and doe not any way give them cause of offence.

V. 5. In mercy] or in piety; that is to say, those vertues of King Hezekiahs shall establish his Kingdome, and make him mighty, wherefore thinke in time upon submitting your selves unto him. The Throne] namely, the Throne of the Kingdome of Iudah. He shall sit] namely, Hezekiah a most vertuous and happy King, and a figure of Christ, in whom all this is perfectly and spiritually fulfilled, Dan. 7. 14. 27. Mic. 4. 7.

V. 6.

V.6. The pride] through which he will refuse these my exhortations and good councels. His lies] namely, his vaine counsels and false confidences, his dissimulations, and cunning devices.

V.7. For the Foundations] namely, for the ruine, and subversion of this City from the very Foundations.

V.8. Languish] that is to say, they lie waste and desert. The Lords] namely, the great Potentates have with their Armies spoiled all the Country. Even unto] the Italian, which reached unto; hereby is shewed the great extent of those Vineyards scattered up and downe all the convenient places of the Land of Moab, even till beyond the Sea, namely, the lake of Sodom, *Ier.*48.32. Iazer] a City in the confines of Moab.

V.9. For the shouting] they were certaine shouts and songs, whereby they encouraged one another, with mirth in the Fields while they were at worke.

V.11. Is weary] with praying, complaining, and sacrificing to his Idoll. On the high place] namely, the Temple of Kemosh. And thereby may also be meant a City of Moab called Bamoth-Baal that is to say, the high places of Baal, *Jos.*13.17. See *Jer.*48.13.

V. 13. Since that time] the Italian, in the ancient times] that is to say, which he had set downe in his everlasting counsell.

V.14. Within three yeeres] namely, at the end of these yeeres, the ruine of Moab shall begin by the Assyrians, and a long time after that, shall be accomplished by the Chaldeans. Wherefore the same things are also foretold by Jeremiah, ch. 48. many yeeres after Isaiah. As the yeeres] the Jewes doe hold that the longest time for which one may hire a servant, is three yeeres; and the shortest for one yeere; which they gather from this place and from *Deut.*15.18. and from *Isa.*21.16.

CHAP. XVII.

Vers.1. BEhold Damascus] this hath a relation to the taking and sacking of Damascus, and to the captivity of the people thereof by Tiglath-pilezer, 2 King. 16.9. Amos 1.5. and afterwards it was re-edified and inhabited by a new people.

V.2. The Cities] which were in the Tribe of Gad or Reuben, Num. 32.34. Jos. 13.16,25. and are here joyned with Damascus: because that Tiglath-pilezer that tooke Damascus, did also carry the Gadites, and the Reubanites into captivity, 1 *Chron.*5.26. for the ten Tribes were in league with the King of Syria, *Isai.*7.1,2.

V.3. From Ephraim] that is to say, from the ten Tribes, named by the name of this which was the chiefest of them. The Kingdome] because that after this conquest of the Assyrians, and the death of Rezin, Syria became a Province to Assyria, and being come againe into a prosperous state, was againe taken and pillaged by the Chaldeans, *Jer.*49.23. They shall be] that is to say, the Syrians shall endure the same subversion of state, as the ten Tribes doe, *Isa.*7.16, & 8.4.

V.4. The glory of] namely, the power and Kingdome of the ten Tribes, which was first lessned by Tiglath-pilezer, and then afterwards quite overthrowne by Salmanezer, 2 King. 17.6. The fatnesse] that is to say, his estate shall be much impoverished, and many of his commodities shall be taken away from him.

V.5. And it shall be] that is to say, they shall be all carried away into a strange Countrey like Corn that is reaped and carried away out of the field in time of harvest. In the valley] which was neere to Jerusalem, and very much abounding in Corne.

V.6. Grapes] that is to say, some small remnant of people shall remaine in the Countrey.

V.7. At that day] when these calamities have happned, that small remnant shall be converted to me, and to my true service: which came to passe in part under Iosias, 2 Chr 34.33. and was perfectly accomplished under Jesus Christ.

V.8. That which] namely, the Idols, the Groves which were consecrated by the Idolaters, *Isai.*1.29. Or the images] see Lev 26.30.

V.9. A forsaken Bough] namely, after all the fruit is shaken of.

V.10. Of the Rock] see *Deut.*32.4. Shalt thou plant] thou shalt take much paines, and use much industry in tilling of ground: but the fruit thereof shall be carried away by thine enemies. Strange slips] rare and excellent slips which were brought a great way either through curiosity, or for the rarenesse of them.

V.11. The day of griefe] namely of the last desolation of the Assyrians Country.

V.12. Woe to] a new prophecie of the discomfiture of the Assyrians Army by the Angel, 2 King. 19.35. Of many people] or many sorts of divers Nations, whereof the Assyrians Army was composed.

V.14. Trouble] a horrible tumult, by reason of such a sudden slaughter.

CHAP. XVIII.

Vers.1. SHadowing] which raiseth and sendeth forth such mighty Armies, that they seeme to be thicke Clouds of Locusts which shadow the Earth, which is ordinary in Ethiopia, Joel 2.10. see concerning these innumerable Armies of Ethiopians, 2 Chron. 14.9. So Armies are called wings, Isa. 8.8. This prophecie seems to have relation to the conquest, which Nebuchadnezzar made of Ethiopia, Ethiopia, together with Egypt. Beyond] or along by the Rivers.

V. 2. Ambassadours] Ethiopia is divided into the Easterne, which was a part of Arabia, and the Westerne, and the Red-Sea in the middle, Gen. 2. 13. Numb. 12. 1. and it seems that the seat of the Kingdome, as in the Easterne part, so that they were faine to send messengers into the Westerne parts for to have levies of men made. By the Sea] namely, the red Sea, or Arabicke gulfe. Of Bulrushes] according to the ancient custome of those Countries, which in some places lasteth to this day, to make the easier way against the streame, by rockes, flats, and fals of Rivers. Scattered] the Italian hath it, Of a long stature] Heb. a Nation of long extent: which is a thing, namely, their tallnesse that hath beene obserued at all times in the Ethiopians. Peeled] without haire, or smooth, having no haire upon their bodies, which is also a property of those Country bodies by reason of the excessive heat. A terrible people] namely, the most savage and rude amongst them, which are those that dwell in the innermost parts of Ethiopia, farre from the Sea, looking more blacke and horrid, and being more barbarous then the others. Troden] namely, a vile and abject Nation, kept in extreame slavery, a thing proper to the Moores and Ethiopians, both in their owne Country, and abroad. The Rivers] this is also one of the properties of Ethiopia, namely, that the Rivers Nilus and Niger, overflowing by reason of the great raines in Winter, doe wash away all the fatnesse of the Land: whereupon Egypt was by the ancients called the gift of Nilus.

V. 3. All ye] that is to say, I doe bring the world tidings, of the Chaldeans generall over-running the Country. Wherefore so soon as ye shall perceive it once to begin, you must expect the continuance of it, untill such time as all that be accomplished, which I prophecie unto you:

V. 4. I will] that is to say, I will give the Chaldeans leave to goe on with this their great enterprise, and will no way hinder them, onely I will have the eye of my providence open, and fixed upon my Church, to comfort, conduct, and defend her amidst all these tempests, as I did at her comming forth of Egypt, and in the wildernesse, by the fiery, and cloudy pillar. Isa. 4. 5.

V. 5. For] that is to say, the effect of my sufferance shall be this, that the King of the Chaldeans shall conquer and destroy the great states of the world before they be growne old and weake with age, even as if one should cut and dresse a Vine where it is budded, and ready to beare fruit.

V. 6. Left] that is to say, they shall be left for a prey, to their Conquerours and new Lords; or to theeves and robbers on the high way, as it often falleth out in new conquered Countries.

V. 7. In that time] namely, after all these ruines and calamities, the Ethiopians shall be converted to God under the Gospell, and shall embrace the Christian faith, which indeed hath been so, and is so to this day, see Acts 8. 27, 37. Shall the] a figurative description of that peoples spirituall subjection to Christs Kingdome, with termes taken from tributes and presents which are brought to earthly Kings and Princes, as Psa. 68. 31. & 72. 10. Isa. 16. 1.

CHAP. XIX.

Vers. 1. Rideth] a propheticall description of Gods sudden and unlooked for judgements, executed by the Chaldeans upon Egypt, as Psa. 18. 9. & 104. 3. The Idols] all the divels endevours, who is served in those idols, and thereby seduceth men, making a shew of defending those that worship him, shall be quite overthrowne; see Exod. 12. 12. and the beliefe which men had in them shall vanish away, and the images themselves shall be beaten down and destroyed, Jer. 43. 12. or carried away into captivity according to the custome of the heathen, Isa. 46. 1.

V. 2. Set the] raising warres and civill factions amongst themselves. Kingdome] namely, a province or rectories, for Egypt was divided into rectories.

V. 3. The Spirit] namely, their strength, valour, and heart shall faile them at their need, familiar spirits, see Lev. 19. 31.

V. 4. Cruell Lord] namely, Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, Jer. 46. 26.

V. 5. The waters] a figurative description of an extream desolation of Egypt which had all its pleasure, profit, ritches and security comming in by Sea, the chiefest meanes of their great traffique and by means of the River Nilus, which is the cause of the Countries great fruitfulnesse.

V. 6. Turne the Rivers farre away] the Italian, the Rivers shall goe backe] namely, by reason of the falling of the waters. Of defence] Egypt is often times thus called, by reason of the Hebrew names signification. The Countrey being much strengthned by meanes of the waters. Others construe it as though he meant great bankes raised up upon the sides of the Rivers.

V. 7. By the Brookes] being sowne and growing upon grounds all wet and dirty by reason of the overflowing of the River Nilus. Driven away] they shall be all spoiled, through the rage & desolation of war, which shal be like the overflowing of a River.

V. 9. In fine Flax] which was one of the singular and choicest rarities of Egypt, see 1 King. 10. 28. Prov. 7. 16.

V. 11. Zoan] a most ancient City of Egypt, Num. 13. 22. called Tanes by some authors. Say ye] that is to say, you make your boasts to him, and make him in a manner beleeve that wisedome is proper and hereditary to you from father to sonne.

V. 12. Thy wise men] which professed they could foresee things to come, see Gen. 44. 15. Let them tell thee] that is to say, let them tell thee how whilst I Isaiah am speaking, that thou mayst in time provide therefore: Or that then thy mind may be certainly informed, that such things will happen.

V. 13. Noph] a City which by some Authors is called Memphis. Deceived] by the false judgement of their discourse, giving the King ill grounded counsels. Or by false predictions. Of the Tribes] namely of their communities or rectores.

V. 14. Hath mingled] hath taken away their understanding, and hath troubled them as if they had dranke some amazing or sleeping drinke. In his vomit] namely, whilest he is yet overcome with drink. Or, reeling amongst his ordures.

V. 15. Which the head] that is to say, which either great or small shall doe.

V. 16. Of the shaking] he alludes to Exo. 14. 26.

V. 17. The Land] the Egyptians shall be dismayed and terrified by the newes of the conquest and desolation of Judea, as well by reason of the neighbourhood, as also because Judea stood as a wall before Egypt. And because there was the same cause of warre between the Chaldeans and Egypt, as was betweene Judea and the Chaldeans, Jer. 37. 5. and especially because God having not spared his own people, would much lesse spare the Egyptians. Against it] namely, Egypt.

V. 18. In that day] after these and other evils are fallen upon Egypt, I will communnicate my knowledge and grace, to a great part of them, in the time of the Messias. Speake the] namely, they shall serve one God: Figurative termes, taken from that, God having chosen to himselfe one onely people would be called upon in one onely language which was by him sanctified, see Nehem. 13. 24. And sweare] the word oath being often taken for a summary professing of the true God. Ps. 63. 11. Isa. 45. 23. The City] called by some authors Heliopolis, Jer. 43. 13. where the most solemne idolatry was used. The meaning is, that the greatest Idolaters should be converted, and turne to the true God.

V. 19. An Altar] a figure taken from the ancient custome of setting up Pillars and Monuments in manner of Altars consecrated to God, for a memoriall that they did professe the true religion, see Gen. 28. 18. Exod. 24. 4. Jos. 22. 10, 29. At the border] upon the confines of the Land of Israel. He hath a relation to that which was done, Jos. 22. 10. for a testimonial and bond of their communion in Gods true service.

V. 20. For a signe] for a proofe of their voluntary binding themselves to God, and his service. He shall send them] he shal make them partakers of everlasting salvation acquired by Jesus Christ, soveraigne King of his Church.

V. 21. And shall doe] according to the stile of the Prophets, he describeth the spirituall service, with words signifying the old ceremoniall service.

V. 22. And heale it] he shall restore and re-establish it, especially in a spirituall way.

V. 23. A high way] instead of great and bloudy warres, which these Nations have had one with another, they shall be reconciled, and re-united in Christ, in the peace of the Spirit.

V. 24. Shall Israel be] that is to say, it shall have as much right and shure as the Gentiles which are called by the Gospell. Which is spoken as well in regard of those Jewes which God enlightened at the beginning of the Gospell, as of their full conversion and calling, which shall be at the appointed time, see Rom. 11. 12, 26. Eph. 2. 14.

V. 25. The worke of] not onely because of their first creation, but also by reason of their spirituall regeneration in Christ, Psa. 100. 3. Eph. 2. 10.

CHAP. XX.

Vers. 1. Tartan] there is no mention made any where else of this siege: there is indeed mention made of one Tarsan, amongst Sennacheribs Capraines, 2 Kin. 18. 17. which is thought to be the same man, and Sargon Sennacherib.

V. 2. The Sackcloth] he seems to meane that thick rough garment which Prophets did use to weare, 2 King. 1. 8. Zech. 13. 4. Math. 3. 4. Others are of opinion, that the Prophet in these dolefull times, did publiquely weare a mourning kind of habit. Naked] in his shirt or in a short under-garment, without his outward vesture, which covered all his body. See 1 Sam. 19. 24. Mi. 1, 8. for to be habited like unto slaves or prisoners.

V. 3. Three yeers] for a signe of what should happen to Egypt in the space of three yeeres, for so long were the Chaldeans in conquering of Egypt and Ethiopia.

V. 4. The King] the Scripture makes no mention of any other destruction of Egypt, but onely that when Nebuchadnezzar the King of Chaldea destroyed it, and therefore we must here take Assyria for Chaldea, according to the Prophets frequent custome: For the Chaldeans subdued Assyria, and united it to their Empire. Their Buttocks] an ignominious manner of dealing with such as were taken prisoners in the warres, Isa. 47. 2. see 2 Sam. 10. 4. To the shame] Or the Egytians shame, see Jer 13. 22, 26.

V. 5. And they shall] namely, private persons, seeing the Country overthrowne and conquered.

V. 6. This Isle] the Italian, this desolate Country; namely, Judea, which was set upon and destroyed before Egypt or Ethiopia. Now the Prophet meanes to speake of that poore remainder of Jewes which fled into Egypt, after the destruction of their owne Country

Country, Jer. 43.7. Whether] namely, to Egypt. We flee] at all times for refuge, and for a defence against the Chaldeans: these two Empires having for a long time stood in an equall ballance.

CHAP. XXI.

Vers. 1. OF the desert] Babylon is so called, because it is likely that it was to be destroyed, and turned into pooles of water, Isa. 14.23. Jer. 51.42. It commeth] the Italian, he commeth; namely, Cyrus, who tooke Babylon, who came out of Persia, a place which is desert in many places, hilly, and rugged, especially towards Chaldea.

V. 2. The treacherous] that is to say, the Chaldeans Empire, which was founded and governed, by frauds, and oppressions, and hath been used after the same manner by the Persians. Elam] a part of Persia. The sighing] of the Nations which were oppressed by Babylons tyranny, and chiefly my people. Have I made] Gods words.

V. 3. Therefore] the Prophets words being terrified by what was revealed unto him in a vision concerning the ruine of Babylon.

V. 4. The night] he seems to have a relation to what was shewed in the vision, namely, that Babylon should be taken on the night of a festivall day, and of publique rejoycing, Jer. 51.39.

V. 5. Arise] a description of the sudden assault. Anoint] as who should say, make clean your Armes. And the Prophet seemes to set forth, the Chaldeans secureneſſe, and negligence in standing to their Armes.

V. 6. Goe set] all this was done in a vision as it were drawing out in a table, the approaching of the enemies campe and the taking of Babylon.

V. 8. I stand] the Prophet tels the Lord how he is grieved, because that having kept him so long in a vision, and in the contemplation of the preparation made for Babylons ruine he had not yet shewed him the full execution of it. Whereunto God answers, declaring it to him by way of an irrevocable decree.

V. 9. Charet of men] namely, Charets of warre, opposite to Charets to carry baggage, see Isa. 22.6. And he] namely, God.

V. 10. Of my floore] that is to say, the Kingdome which I purpose to thresh and beate down, like straw on the floore. Have I declared] the Prophets words to the Church.

V. 11. Dumah] this was the Country which belonged to Ismaels posterity, Gen. 25.14. and by this, or with this, seeme to be meant and understood the Edomites, a neighbouring Nation. He calleth] a representation of the anguish the Edomites were in, during these dangers, as if they had desired to be certified by the Prophet of some certaine newes. Watchman] that is to say, O thou Prophet, whose office it is to see and foretell things to come, (as after night is past they use to set watches upon high places, especially in time of warre) tell us, if thou hast any good advice or councell to give us.

V. 12. The Watchman] that is to say, I can say nothing to you from God, but that your calamities will surely come to passe; and they shall be accomplished like to an entire day, consisting of day and night. If ye will] all your cares and foresights, cannot prevent your evils, which are unavoidable, see Jer. 49.7. Ezek. 35.2. Obad. 5.

V. 13. Shall ye lodge] all the Countrey being full of Souldiers, you cannot now securely travaile in great companies, according to the Custome of the Country, Ge. 37.25. Job 6.19. Of Dedanim] people of Arabia, descended from Abraham by Keturah, Ge. 25.3

V. 14. Brought water] a propheticall description of the flight and affrightment of the Arabians, at the Chaldeans comming.

V. 16. Within a yeere] the Arabians being overcome by the Chaldeans, Jer. 49.28. Long after this prophecy. This must not be understood of the time that was between the prophecy and the fulfilling of it; but of the time that this warre lasted against Arabia, as Isa. 20.3. According to the] see upon Isa. 16.14.

CHAP. XXII.

Vers. 1. OF the valley] he doth obscurely speak of Jerusalem, which was encompassed with hils, Psal. 125.2. and cals it, the valley of vision, by allusion to the name of Ierusalem, for Salem signifieth a place where God sees and provides, see Gen. 22.14. What aileth thee] a propheticall representation of the siege, and sacking of Ierusalem. Gone up] the house topps were made like unto great open terraces, and they went up to them in time of publique mourning and calamities, as it were to present themselves openly to God, and to aske and begge relieſe at his hands, see Isa. 50.3. Ier. 48.38.

V. 2. The slaine men] he hath a relation to Zedekiah and his men of warre, who were taken after they fled out of the City, whereof the chiefe were slaine, Ier. 39.4.

V. 4. Said I] the prophets hearty sorrow for the miseries which were to come upon his Nation. Of the daughter] that is to say, of the City or Communalty.

V. 6. Elam] a people of Persia and Media who served the King of Babylon in this warre. Of men] see upon Isai. 21.9. Kir] an Easterly Nation in Persia or Media, 2 Kin. 16.9. Uncovered] that is to say, have taken their Armes, for in time of peace they wrapped up their Armes for feare of rusting.

V. 8. The covering] namely, the Rampire and defence, that is to say, Gods protection, see Exod. 32.25.

Num. 14. 9. Mic. 1. 11. Thou didst looke] O people you have looked after and trusted in humane meanes for to defend you. The house] he meanes the royall Palace, which was called the house of the wood of Lebanon, 1 King. 7. 2. which was also the armorie for the Kings guard, 1 Kings 10. 16, 17. 2 Chron. 12. 10.

V. 9. Ye gathered] you Jews will imitate by reason in your fear, Hezechiah by prevailing against the Assyrians in cutting off the waters from them, and bringing them into the Citie by pipes under ground, 2 Chron. 32. 4. 30. but not in his faith, having a recourse to God by prayers & humiliation.

V. 10. Numbred] to know the certain number of the inhabitants, and the people which were for defence, for to give every one their charge, and to distribute the provision of victuall.

V. 11. Between the two] this was a place on the north-side of Jerusalem, where the gathering of waters was, between the wall of the City and another compasse of wall within side, which was called Bezeta, see 2 King. 25. 4. Jer. 39. 4. For the water] a great pond, into which were gathered and kept the waters which came from the upper poole, Isa. 7. 3. which was formerly made by Solomon, Nehem. 12. 14. and therefore is called The old pool, or fish-pond, opposite to that which Hezekiah made, 2 Kings 20. 20. and is here called, The lower poole, vers. 9. Looked] by faith, conversion, and prayer. Unto the maker] namely, to God who is the author of these judgements and visitations, see Isa. 37. 26. Others, to him that made it, that is to say, That built and established Jerusalem and his Church. Long agoe] he hath a relation to this vision, which was long before it came to passe.

V. 12. Call] that is to say, hath given you great cause of griefe for to bring you to repentance. To baldnesse] the Italian, to tearing of hair; as Ezr. 9. 3. Mich. 1. 16.

V. 13. Let us eat] a representation of the peoples prophane and desperate thoughts in their calamities.

V. 14. And it was] or, and the Lord of hosts hath revealed himselfe to mine ears; that is to say, to me, speaking as followeth.

V. 15. Treasurer] it should seeme that he was the chiefe, both for the state and for the treasure. Shebna] it may be the same man, as is mentioned, 2 King. 18. 18. where he is named Secretary. There is not any mention made elsewhere of the evill carriages, nor of the end of this man. Others by conjecture onely do beleeve that he was deposed from his government and made secretary onely, and that, that was the beginning of his fall, which was here foretold by Isaiah.

V. 16. What hast thou] that is to say, thou art unworthy of this high degree, and oughtest to be deposed, and therefore shalt not enjoy these honours till thine houre of death, upon which hope notwithstanding thou buildest thy selfe this stately Sepulchre. And whom hast] he seems to have a relation to Shebnas base and forraigne parentage: his meaning is, thou art as it were a new man, and therefore oughtest not to build thy selfe a Sepulchre in thy life time, after the manner of great ones, who have burying places common for all their posterity from father to sonne. And if thou imaginest to give a beginning of this pomp in thine own person; know, that being condemned by God to an ignominious end, thy buriall cannot be honourable.

V. 17. Cover thee] the Italian, quite cover thy face; as they used to doe to criminall, condemned men, whose faces they covered, as being persons unworthy to see the sunne any more, and persons fraught with ignominie, see Est. 7. 8 Job 9. 24.

V. 18. There shalt thou] namely, in that base estate which thou shalt be brought into from all thy forepassed power and glorie, during which thou didst pompously ride on horsback, and in thy charet.

V. 21. With thy girdle] a signe of power and of command, Job 12. 18, 21. Isa. 11. 5. and 45. 1. 5.

V. 22. And the key] which is a badge of the generall superintendency of the Palace, so Eliakim was a figure of Christ, Rev. 3. 7. He shall open] what soever he shall do in the managing of his place shall be firme and unvariable, there shall be neither let, nor opposition.

V. 23. Fasten him] that is to say, I will establish him in his state, and he shall be a sure stay to all his kindred, yea, to all the tribe of Judah, which shall be honoured and exalted through his dignity.

V. 24. Shall hang upon him] all other inferiour Offices, which are but as branches of the generall superintendencie, shall depend upon him, and hee shall order them in very good sort. All vessels] he seems to meane all persons in inferiour places and offices, as the officers belonging to the cellar, to shew that through his vertue and care, the Kings house should be well governed, even in the meanest and most abject places.

V. 25. The naile] namely, Shebnah, who seemed to be so firmly established. And the burden] those that were in his favour and depended upon him, and did wholly rest upon him.

CHAP. XXIII.

Vers. 1. Howle] for the losse of your voyages and commerce. Tarshish] namely, of the great Sea. It is] namely, Tyre. Is laid waste] that is to say, it shall be destroyed first by Nebuchadnezzar, Ezech. 26. and afterwards utterly by Alexander the great. Now Isaiah joyneth together in one one theſe two calamities, as the beginning and the ending of one and the ſame deſolation. Of Chittim] namely, from the Macedonians, ſee Gen. 10 4. Numb. 24.24. Dan. 11.30. It is revealed] that is to ſay, It is come upon them ſuddenly.

V. 2. Be ſtill] the Italian, be ſilent; through horrour and confuſion. Of the Iſle] namely, of Tyre, which ſtands in a little Iland encompaſſed round about with the ſea.

V. 3. Her revenue] that is to ſay, Tyre had all her proviſion of victuals out of Egypt, where the river Nilus, with its overflowing, did cauſe great plenty in the Countrey.

V. 4. Zidon] a great Citie neer to Tyre, and joyned with it as it were one ſtate, ſee Ezech. 28.21. The Sea] that is to ſay, There ſhall no more Colonies be ſent into other Ilands and places from Tyre and Zidon, Queenes of the Mediterranean Sea, as there hath been heretofore by reaſon of the number and wealth of that people, to the great increaſe of their power and glory. The ſtrength] that is to ſay, Tyre, a very ſtrong City, as well by reaſon of her ſtrong walls, as by reaſon of her being encompaſſed with the Sea.

V. 5. Sorely pained] fearing to be in the ſame manner aſſaulted by the Chaldeans, whereunto the taking of Tyre gave an occaſion, and made the way eaſie, ſee Ezek. 29. 18.

V. 6. Paſſe ye over] that is to ſay, O ye Tyrians and Zidonians, goe your wayes wandring by Sea into ſtrange Countries, flying from your enemies, or being carried captives into far Countries.

V. 8. The crowning] the Italian, the crowned; namely, the royall City, which hath the title of a Kingdom, Ezek. 21. 2, 12.

V. 10. Paſſe] that is to ſay, O you Tyrians, that are as children of the Sea, goe your wayes into captivity. As a river] whoſe water never ſtay: which ſeems contrary to the Sea, which doth not run into any other place, as their former eſtate was, namely, firme and conſtant. Strength] the Italian, girdle; that is to ſay, thou art no more begirt with walls and rampires, Ezek. 26, 4. Or figuratively, thy ſtrength, power, and dominion is gone.

V. 11. Over the ſea] over the Ilands and Provinces upon the Sea coaſts. Againſt the merchant city] the Italian, againſt the Canaaneans; from whence the Tyrians and Zidonians had their originall, Gen. 10. 15, 19.

V. 12. Virgin] that is to ſay, ye people of Tyre, that were never ſubdued, and whoſe ſtate hath remained ſtill untouched under the government of your own naturall Lords. Daughter] ſome do underſtand this particularly of Tyre, which was founded by the Zidonians.

V. 13. Behold] if any one judge this fall of Tyre to be impoſſible and incredible, let him conſider what hath hapned to more ancient and mightier States, as the Chaldeans, who were formerly ſubdued and ſwallowed up by the Aſſyrians, Gen. 10. 11. and ſhall hereafter be deſtroyed by the Perſians, for an example of that which ſhall be done to the Tyrians by the Macedonians, ſee Amos 6. 2. This people] namely, the Tyrians had not yet any forme of State or Common wealth. The Aſſyrian] namely, Aſſur the ſonne of Sem, who certainly did not found the Babylonian nor Chaldean Empire, but the Aſſyrian, of which Nineveh was the head, Gen. 10. 11. but becauſe that in the enſuing times Babylon encreaſed greatly by the conqueſt of Aſſyria; the foundation of all Chaldea is attributed to Aſſur. For them] namely, to bring thoſe people that were diſperſed after the ruines of the flood into Cities and Communalties, ſee Job 3. 14 and 15. 28. The towers thereof] or the Forts, that is to ſay, The Cities fitting to inhabit and to be places of defence.

V. 15. In that day] namely, at that time as the Chaldeans ſhall bring theſe things to paſſe. Be forgotten] be deſolate and forſaken by God and men. Seventy] namely, from the time that Tyre was taken by Nebuchadnezzar, untill the ruine of the Babylonian Empire by the Perſians, under whom Tyre did riſe againe into her former ſtate untill the dayes of Alexander the great. According to] namely, ſo long as the Empire of Babylon ſhall laſt. Shall Tyre, &c.] the Italian, Tyre ſhall have in her mouth as the ſong of an harlot; that is to ſay, ſhe ſhall fall to her old traffick, whereby ſhe ſhall draw ſtrange nations unto her.

V. 16. Take an harp] he alludes to the great delight the Tyrians tooke in the art of Muſicke, to which they were addicted, Ezech. 26.13. and 28.13.

V. 17. To her hire] the Italian, to her gain; the Hebrew word properly ſignifieth the infamous gain of a whore. Shall commit fornication] the Scripture uſeth this terme onely to ſhew the concourſe and mixture of ſtrange Nations; upon occaſion onely of prophane commerce, and of gain obtained by cunning and deceit, ſee Ezek. 16. 17. Revel. 17. 2. and 18. 3. Upon the] namely, with great pride and oſtentation.

V. 18. And her] the Italian, but in the end her; that is to ſay, God by the Goſpell ſhall call the Tyrians alſo unto him, Pſal. 87 4. Acts 21. 3. and then their trading, which before was defiled with avarice, ſhall be ſanctified by charitie towards thoſe which are of the houſhold of faith, ſee Zech. 14. 20.

CHAP. XXIIII.

Verſ. 1. THe earth] the Italian, the countrey; namely, Judea.

V. 2. The prieſt] that is to ſay, as well the politick as the Ecclesiasticall order, in which consists the order of the state shall be overthrown: or all shall be dealt with alike, great and little.

V. 5. Is defiled] with blood, murthers, rapes, and other cruelties and outrages of war, and hath not beene kept with that respect as is due to a Country consecrated to God.

V. 6. The curse] namely, the curse of God, or the punishment of their perjurie, for violating the oath which they had made to God, see Deut. 29. 20. Are burned] are consumed by the combustion of warre: or dried up like a river through an extream drought.

V. 11. For wine] the Italian, for want of wine; because all occasions and meanes of mirth have been taken away. The mirth] since the peoples captivity, all manner of mirth and pleasure hath ceased in the countrey.

V. 13. When thus] that is to say, that small remnant of people that shall escape the wars, shall be all gathered together and carried away captive to Babylon, or shall voluntarily exile it selfe into Egypt, and so the land shall remain empty.

V. 14. They shall sing] at the time of their deliverance. For the majestie] the Italian, for the height; namely, for his glorious power shewed for their deliverance. From the sea] namely, from those far Countries whither they were carried.

V. 16. Heve we heard] a description of the confession of their sins which the Jews should make in Babylon, and of Gods Justice in visiting them, see Dan. 9. 5. I said] namely, I Isaiah even at this time doe lament their grievous transgressions before the punishment fall upon them, as they themselves shall afterwards confesse.

V. 18. He who fleeth] that is to say, Hee that escapeth from one danger shall fall into a greater, Amos 5. 19. The windows] that is to say, Gods Judgements shall come pouring downe upon the earth like a deluge, Gen. 7. 11. Psal. 42. 7. and therefore there will be no way to avoid them.

V. 20. The transgression] it shall be so overburthened with grievous punishments for our sinnes, that the Lord shall even overthrow it. Not rise] it shall not be able to stay the ruine, nor know how to get out of it, as it did in the former calamities, though at last it shall please God to restore it with his almighty hand.

V. 21. The host] namely, the Church likened to the Stars of the firmament for the dignity of her heavenly vocation, Dan. 8. 10. see Isa. 34. 4, 5. Lam. 2. 1. The Kings] namely, of the world, and all their might.

V. 22. Bee visited] with Gods grace by Christs comming upon the earth, who shall be the Sunne of righteousnesse, and the day spring from above, who with his soveraigne divine brightnesse shall darken all other inferiour and worldly lights, as a great light dims a lesser, see Luke 1. 78.

V. 23. Shall reign] in the person of his Sonne, manifested to the world and raised up in glory. Before his ancients gloriously] the Italian, there shall be glory before his ancients; that is to say, God in the glorious power of his Spirit shall bee present in his Church, signified by the ancients, or heads of the ancient people, see Exodus 24. 9, 10. Revelation 4. 4.

CHAP. XXV.

Vers. 2. A Citie] namely, of the enemies of thy Church: A palace] the Italian, Castles; into strong places kept by forraign souldiers.

V. 3. Therefore] in the time of the Messias thou shalt make these ruines of States and Nations serve for their conversion when they shall see thy Church, though poore and weake, subsist in the world against all oppositions.

V. 5. The noise] namely, the furious commotions and enterprises of thine enemies. As the heat] even as the greatest heat in the driest desert is abated by some cloud that shadoweth the air, or is resolved into rain.

V. 6. Make unto all] he shall distribute unto all Nations gathered together in his Church his spirituall gifts and graces, see Psal. 22. 26, 29. Pro. 9. 2. Matth. 22. 2. Wines on the lees] the Italian, excellent wines; the Hebrew word properly signifieth Wine that hath not been racked, but is yet upon the lees, see Jer. 48. 11.

V. 7. The face of the] namely, the vail of blindnesse and want of knowledge of God and of his mysteries, which naturally is in all men, 2 Cor. 3. 15.

V. 8. Swallow up] or destroy, that is to say, Christ the true everlasting God shall by his death destroy the prince of death, and death it selfe, especially in the blessed resurrection, so that it shall never more have any power over his members, 1 Cor. 15. 26, 54. 2 Tim. 1. 10. Heb. 2. 14. Rev. 20. 14. and 21. 4.

V. 10. The hand] that is to say, his power shall be for ever present and effectuall in his Church. Moab] by the name of this Nation is meant all other Nations that are deadly enemies to the Church, by reason of the extream fiercenesse of that Nation, see Isa. 16. 6.

V. 11. Shall spread forth] hee shall execute and worke his will at his owne pleasure, without any opposition.

CHAP.

CHAP. XXVI.

Verſ. 1. IN the land] namely, in the true Church under the Goſpel. We have] that is to ſay, the Church wherein we are, is ſafe againſt all dangers; for the eternall ſalvation which God hath given us through Chriſt, is the cauſe and ground of our deliverance from all our enemies, and from all evils.

V. 2. Open ye] let all beleevers, who are juſtified and ſanctified by God, have free entrance and abode therein, indifferently without any diſtinction of Nations.

V. 5. Them that dwell] namely, all the powerfull enemies of the Church, 2 Cor. 10. 5.

V. 6. The foot] that is to ſay, the beleevers, though poor and weake according to the world, ſhall tread upon all contrary powers which are overthrown by the power of God, Rom. 16. 20. Rom. 2. 26.

V. 7. The way] thou guideſt and directeſt him happily in all his affairs, ſee Pſal. 143. 10. Prov. 21. 8.

V. 8. Have we] namely, we beleevers have alwayes had our hope and confidence in thee, even then when thou haſt wrought againſt us in the rigour of thy puniſhments. To the remembrance of thee] namely, to all the ſignes, gages, and teſtimonials which thou haſt given us of thy grace, by thy Word, Sacraments, and Works.

V. 9. In the night] amidſt the horrideſt darkneſſe of affliction; words of every beleever, who is taught by the Lords puniſhments to turne to him, and have a perfect confidence in him, Pſal. 119. 67, 71. whereas the wicked take an occaſion, through Gods patience, to grow worſe.

V. 10. In the land] namely, in the Church where juſtice and holineſſe of life ought to reign, and where the right way to God is, Pſal. 143. 10.

V. 11. Thy hand] thou doeſt wondrous workes in the defence of thy children, but the prophane and the hypocrites take no notice thereof, nor are not touched therewith no more then with a thing unknown. But they ſhall ſee] they ſhall feele the effects of thy ſoveraigne Majeſtie in thy juſt puniſhments. Their envy at the people] the Italian, thy jealouſie for thy people] that is to ſay, They ſhall periſh through thy juſt indignation againſt all thoſe amongſt thy people that are diſloyall unto thee, and by the rigour wherewith thou perſecuteſt thine enemies.

V. 13. Will we make mention] out of thy pure grace and goodneſſe haſt thou given us occaſion to remember thee for ever in praiſe and thankſgiving.

V. 14. They are dead] namely, thoſe Tyrants of thy Church. Therefore haſt thou] namely, for the perſecuting of thy Church.

V. 15. Glorified] thou haſt maintained thy glory by puniſhing even thine owne people who had violated it, ſee Levit. 10. 3.

V. 16. A prayer] the Italian, a ſecret lamentation; as well for the grievouſneſſe of their ſins, as for the confuſion of their conſciences and mindes.

V. 18. We have been] we have uſed great endeavours, and conceived great hopes, that we ſhould be able to free our ſelves from our evils, but it was all in vain. Neither have] that is to ſay, we have not been able to overcome our enemies.

V. 19. Thy dead] that is to ſay, O God, thy Church and thine Elect, which ſeem to have beene deſtroyed by thee beyond hope of recovery, ſhall be miraculouſly re-eſtabliſhed, as it were by a kinde of reſurrection, ſee Rom. 11. 15. which is oppoſite to that he had ſaid of the enemies irrevocable death, verſ. 14. My dead bodie] words of each particular beleever, who by faith applieth unto himſelfe Gods generall promiſes, ſee Job 19. 27. As the dew] which cauſed the herbs of the earth to live and grow green when they were dry and withered. Thy dew] namely, thy grace and power, and eſpecially thy ſpirituall grace in Chriſt, Pſal. 72. 6.

V. 20. Come my] Gods exhortation to his Elect, to beare all his viſitations ſilently and patiently, which ſhall be but ſhort, in regard of the eternity of heavenly bleſſings, which he hath promiſed.

V. 21. Commeth out] he ſhall take open vengeance from Heaven of his enemies for the death of his elect. Shall diſcloſe] as deſiring vengeance in open judgement, that is to ſay, God ſhall require accompt in Heaven of what ſhall ſeem hidden on earth under the vaile of his patience.

CHAP. XXVII.

Verſ. 1. SHall puniſh] ſhall deſtroy the devill and his kingdom, and all his inſtruments. With his] with the ſpirituall and invincible power of his word, Iſa 66. 16. Rev. 1. 16. and 19. 15, 21. Leviathan] a generall name for all great fiſhes and ſea monſters, Job 41. 1. by which here is meant the devill, as hee is elſewhere called Serpent, and the great dragon, Revel. 12. 9. and 20. 2. The Dragon] the Italian, the Whale whereby may alſo bee meant the great Potentates of the world, which are the Churches enemies; as the King of Egypt, who was her firſt perſecuter, is called, Pſal. 74. 13. Iſa. 51. 9. Ezek. 29. 3. and 32. 2.

V. 2. Sing ye] that is to ſay, all beleevers have great cauſe to celebrate the Churches happineſſe to the glory of God, whoſe Vineyard ſhe is, Ia. 5. 1. Of red wine] of excellent and rich wine.

V. 4. Fury is not] I will then ſhew my ſelfe to be quite at peace with my Church. Who would ſet] who ſhall that bee amongſt men, that are but as thornes thornes and bushes before me who am a devouring fire, that shall, will, or dare to assault my Church any more, it being under my protection.

V. 5. Let him take hold] the Italian, Can any one take hold? who will be so rash, as to imagine that he can overcome me? He may make peace]let every one of mine enemies humble himselfe, and flie to my grace, which is the onely way to overcome me, or else he must necessarily be destroyed, see Job 22.21.

V.7. Hath he]God hath moderated those punishments which he inflicts upon his Church,and doth not use extreame rigor with them as he doth with the wicked whom he meanes to ruine, but doth at the last happily restore them. Others translate it, Hath he smitten them, with the strokes of them that smote him? hath he been slaine with the slaughter of them which were slaine by him? that is to say, God hath not imitated the unappeasable and unsatiable cruelty of those men that are enemies to his Church, see 2 *Sam.*24.14. Or hath he smitten him as he smites those that persecute him? namely, with a bar of Iron, to send them into utter perdition.

V.8. In measure] not comming to a rigorous account with her, nor equalling the punishments, to the greatnesse of her iniquities, but tempering them so that they may but correct her, being no greater then she may be able to beare, 1 *Cor.*10.13. Debate with it] namely, with thy Church, which is as thy wife,driven by her misdeeds out of the Land of Israel,which is as thy house, *Isa.*50.1.

V.9. By this] by these punishments I will satisfie a fathers just severity, for the misdeeds of his children. The fruit]namely, of these my corrections and visitations. To take away] that being converted from their idolatries, which is the wel-spring of other sinnes, I may make them feele the pardon of their sins, and the effects of my grace. Altar] dedicated to idols. Groves]employed in idolatrous uses Lev 26.30. *Isa.*1.29.

V.10. Yet the] the Italian, therefore the] he gives a reason for what he had said, that the sinnes of the people should be purged, that is to say, they should be punished to the utmost with a just correction, when they were come to the height of excesse.

V.11. When the boughes] a continuation of the figure of an utter destruction, as if a tree when it is green should be eaten and fed upon by Cattell, or be burned when it is drie. Will not have] namely, to spare them, so farre as the discipline of fatherly rigour will extend, which is no way contrary to that which is spoken, vers 7,8. for there he speaketh of the punishment of damning and accursing, and Gods judgements upon his children doe never reach so far.

V. 12. In that day] namely, at the time of those punishments. Shall beat off] a terme taken from Trees, when the fruit is gathered, *Isai.*17.6. & 24: 13. From the channell] namely, from Euphrates unto the little Rivet called Sihor, which were the two uttermost bounds of the Land of Israel in length. Ye shall be]none shall escape.

V.13. In that day] after the execution of these my judgements, I will bring my people together againe, which were scattered up and downe in captivity. Which must chiefly be understood of the spirituall bringing together of the Saints by the Gospell.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Vers.1. To the Crowne] namely, to the Kingdome of the ten Tribes, the chiefe Tribe whereof was Ephraim, for his number and power more glorious then Judah; and much given to all manner of dissoluteneſse, *Hos.*5.5. & 7.5,10. & 13.1. Amos 6.6. On the head] for the Country of the ten Tribes was more high and hilly then Judahs Country, which was lower towards the Wilderneſse. Others in the best, and the flower of the Countrey.

V.2. Hath] that is to say, he hath the King of Assyria ready at his command, for to execute his judgements upon the ten Tribes.

V. 5. In that day] after the ten Tribes have been destroyed. He shall cause Judah to be glorified by his grace and miraculous protection, against his enemies, and by an excellent re-establishment of the state and Church under Hezekiah, Isa 32.1.

V.6. And for a Spirit] that is to say,I will inspire righteousneſse and justice, in the King and Princes of Judah,and valour in his men of warre for to beat backe their enemies. A description of a happy state, governed justly at home, and able abroad to resist any endeavour of their enemies.

V.7. They also] namely, they of Judah also, have imitated, and shall imitate the foresaid sins of Ephraim, notwithstanding the good order which Hezekiah re-established. Have erred through Wine] the Italian, have fallen in love with Wine; the Hebrew word signifieth, a violent passion which troubles the understanding, and causeth it to goe astray out of the right way of reason, see *Pro.*20.1. *Hos.*4. 11. In vision] in faithfully relating what they have received from God, in propheticke revelation. This hath a relation to Prophets. In judgement] this is spoken of the Priests, who were interpreters of the Law,and decided causes in judgement,see *Deut.*17. 9. 2 *Chro.*19.8. *Mal.*2.7.

V. 9. Whom shall] these desolations doe dim and dull their understandings, that they are not able to receive instruction nor correction by the word of God, *Isa.*29.10.

V. 10.

V. 10. For precept must be] they are become so stupid that one must propose Gods Word unto them, as in the first rudiments to children, in a rough manner, whereas they should have been solid and perfect in it. Heb. 5.12. & 6.1.

V. 11. For with] this people understand not the word of their God, though plaine and intelligible, no more then if he did speake in an obscure and confused way, and in an unknowne Language.

V. 12. This is] in the observation of my Law consists your peace and security. Cause the weary] doe so that your poore Country which hath been so much afflicted, may now be a little eased of the scourges which she is threatned with.

V. 13. The word] I will punish their wilfull rebellion with a greater blindnesse and astonishment, so that being no way guided by my word nor spirit, they may fall into finall ruine.

V. 15. We have] we are, or at least hold our selves to be safe from any dangers. Scourge] whereof is spoken, vers. 2. We have made] that is to say, we have provided for our safeties with fraudes and deceipts.

V. 16. Therefore] because that your sinnes being grown to their height, my justice requireth to have you punisht; therefore I will first provide for the comfort of mine elect, to confirme their soules by faith in the promised Redeemer, which is the onely foundation and prop of the staggering Church, and afterwards I will come to the rigorous execution of my judgement. I lay] the Italian, That have laid; I have not onely appointed that my sonne should be the foundation of the Church, but have also planted faith in him in the hearts of mine elect, that leaning upon him they may stand to any manner of proofe or triall. Shall not make haste] the Italian, shall not goe astray; Heb. shall not make haste, because that folks which are out of their way, do run up and downe at randome to finde it againe without any judgement.

V. 17. Judgement also] but as for you wicked ones, I will deale with you in my justice, And will make your punishments equall with your faults. The haile] whereof, see vers. 2. The refuge] whereof see vers. 15.

V. 19. By morning] beginning still againe without any rest. Shall be] the cry of the enemies comming shall yeeld no remedy for it, it shall serve but onely to put you in greater terror and confusion.

V. 20. The bed] figurative and proverbiall terms, the meaning is, that all meanes and devices they can use, will no way defend them.

V. 21. His strange] namely, wonderfull and terrible, or which seemes not to agree with the mildenesse of a father toward his children, but rather with the fury of an enemy against a stranger, see Lam. 3.33.

V. 22. Lest your bands] lest Gods judgements, which already keepe you bound like prisoners, doe grow stronger upon you.

V. 24. The plowman] even as the plowman doth not alwaies plow; but after he hath prepared and made ready the Land, he soweth it: so God, after he hath a long time spoken and threatned comes to execution, with a distinction of persons, and punishments befitting his Justice and providence.

V. 25. Principall Wheat] the Italian, Wheat by a certaine measure; according to the bignesse of the field which he meanes to sow. The appointed Barley] the Italian, Barley at certaine markes; he meanes certaine markes which husbandmen did use to set up in the fields, for to sort out their seeds according to the diversity of the soiles, and for to avoyd confusion, and keep an equality in their sowing.

V. 27. Are not threshed] as after harvest all kind of seed is not threshed out after the same manner; but Corne is threshed out with Cartwheeles, or beasts hoofes, according to the custome of those Countries; other smaller seeds are threshed out with flails or rods; So Gods visitations are dispensed according to the diuers qualities of the persons.

V. 29. This also] this diversity in the dispersing of Gods judgements, proceeds from Gods wise providence, who, as he is the authour of reason in men, and in the guiding of their actions, so doth he also observe supreame wisdome in his owne.

CHAP. XXIX.

Vers. 1. TO Ariel] by Ezek. 43.15,16. appeares that this was a name of the Altar of burnt offerings, or of the upper part of it; it signifie, the Lyon of God: either because there might be some Lyons shapes upon the Altar: or, because God shewed himselfe terrible in his Temple, and roared by his word against his enemies, Joel 3.16. Amos 1.2. Or because that Gods peace, whereof the Altar was a signe and instrument, is all the defence of the Church. For Ariel sometimes signifieth, the Champions, and valiant defenders of a Country, 2 Sam. 23.20. Now here he foretels the ruine of the Temple, as Jer. 7.14. Ezek. 9.6. The City] as by Ariel is meant the whole Temple, and consequently that part of the City where it stood, namely, Mount Moriah. So by this other part is meant that other hill, namely, the hill of Sion, where the City of David stood. To signifie the whole City of Jerusalem; or severally, the State, and the Church, vers. 2. Adde ye] that is to say, feed your selves on with these vaine hopes, that yeeres shal run on alwaies in the same manner. An ironicall kinde of speech against prophane men, as Ezek. 12. 22. Amos 6.3. 2 Pet. 3.4. Let them kill] continue on your outward service, which is but hypocrisie, upon which notwithſtanding you rely againſt all my threatnings, ſee *Jer.*7.21.

V.2. I will diſtreſſe] I will cauſe my Temple to be beſieged as well as the City, making no difference between the one which is my holy habitation, and the other which is the common dwelling place of the people.

V.3. I will campe] as Captaine Generall of the Chaldeans that ſhall beſiege thee.

V.4. And ſhalt ſpeake] thy pride ſhall be humbled, and thy bravery caſt down, thou ſhalt yeed to thine enemies, and petition to them with a great deale of baſeneſſe, ſee *Jer.*46.22. A familiar ſpirit] which anſwered with an obſcure ſound, and low kind of murmuring, out of ſuch perſons as he poſſeſſed, ſee *Iſa.*8.19.

V.5. Of thy ſtrangers] thy men of warre which thou ſhalt hire, or ſhall be ſent thee from abroad, ſhall all be diſperſed, and ſhall not be able to relieve thee. It ſhall be] all this reliefe which ſhall come from Egypt, and other places, ſhall not be able to withſtand the Chaldeans, and ſhall yeeld thee no comfort, but a very ſhort and tranſitory one, ſee *Jer.*37.5,7.

V.6. Thou ſhalt] namely, Jeruſalem. With thunder] a figurative deſcription to ſay, Heaven and Earth ſhall concur to their ruine.

V.7. As a dreame] in regard of thee, to whom this ſiege and ruine ſhall happen beyond all thought, judgement, and expectation. And alſo in reſpect of the Chaldeans themſelves who will never be ſatisfied with tormenting thee; and the more proſperous ſucceſſe they ſhall have, the more eager they will be againſt thee.

V.9. Stay your ſelves] let every one attentively and with admiration conſider theſe calamities of my people, and the cauſes of them. Drunken] they are aſleepe, luſled in their vices, troubled and darkned in their underſtanding, that they cannot give heed to theſe threatnings, and ſo be converted and ſaved, *Iſa.*28.7,8.

V.10. Hath powred] that is to ſay, he hath puniſhed their voluntary blindneſſe with a greater aſtoniſhment, depriving them quite of the light of his Spirit, againſt which they have rebelled: giving them over to the Spirit of darkneſſe. Your Rulers] the Italian, Your heads; for the falſe Prophets did intrude into the publique government, while Jeruſalem was beſieged, *Jer.*26.8. ſee *Iſa.*3.2. The Seers] namely, Prophets, 2 *Sam.*9.9.

V.11. The viſion] you ſhall apprehend nothing by my word which ſhall be preached to you by my Prophets, whereby you may be lively touched, inſtructed, and ſo converted; which ſhall happen as well through your malicious ignorance, as through my juſt judgement. Is ſealed] ſee Iſa 8.16. *Rev.*5.1,5.

V.13. And their fore] none of their ſeeming piety comes from the heart, but is drawn from them by the abſolute command of ſome good King as Hezekiah, Joſiah, &c. Or it is nothing but an obſervation of humane traditions.

V.14. Shall be hid] ſhall be confounded, and ſhall not dare to make any more vaine oſtentations. Or, it ſhall vaniſh away, and come to nothing.

V.15. To hide] that deſigne their enterprifes ſecretly within themſelves, and never informe themſelves of the will of God, nor doe not communicate their ſaid deſignes to him in their prayers, deſiring therein his aide and bleſſing. Or, who in their ſins and ſecret malices doe thinke they can hide themſelves from Gods knowledge.

V.16. Your turning] doe you thinke to be maſters and abſolute rulers, of what you intend and turne up and down in your minds, as the potter is of his clay, which he hath upon his wheele, to doe therewith what he will? Shall the worke] can you thinke you can withdraw your ſelves from Gods knowledge and government, who hath you and all your actions under the conduct of his Soveraigne providence, as the potter hath his clay?

V.17. And Lebanon ſhall] it appeares by *Iſa.*32.15. that this is an Evangelicall promiſe, the meaning whereof is. Under the Meſſias his Kingdom, which will ſhortly be made manifeſt, all thoſe vices which my people have at this preſent, ſhall be corrected, and their calamities reſtored. For the men which are like wild Trees of the Wood, ſuch as Lebanon brings forth, ſhall by my grace and Spirit be regenerate, and become faire fruitfull Trees, ſuch as grow upon Mount Carmel, and ſhal be multiplied in number like unto a thick wood.

V.18. Shall the deafe] men that are naturally uncapable of the myſteries of faith, ſhall be enlightned, and inſtructed in the true knowledge of Gods word. Of the Booke] he hath a relation to what he had ſaid, *v.*11. & 12.

V.19. The meeke] an ordinary title of beleevers.

V.20. Is conſumed] that is to ſay, there ſhall be none of them in the true myſticall Church, ſee *Iſa.*28.14.

V.21. That make] namely, that ſuborne falſe Prophets, or induce true Prophets to falſifie Gods words *Iſa.*30.10. For him] namely, for Gods true ſervants, which reprove them for their ſins in places of publique aſſemblies where the Prophets uſed to come, *Jer.*17.19. & 19.2. & Amos 5.10.

V.22. Jacob] namely, the old Patriarch, who is brought in, rejoycing at the converſion of his poſterity, in ſtead of the ſhame which he had ſuffered for their former evill life. Shall not now] namely, after I have purged and re-eſtabliſhed my Church.

V.23. The worke of] namely, thoſe that through my grace and Spirit have been regenerated to newneſſe neſſe of life, Pſal. 110. 3. Epheſ. 2. 10. Shall ſanctifie] namely, ſhall honour, and doe reverence to it, as being moſt holy.

V. 24. That murmured] namely, againſt God and his Prophets rebelling againſt them and contradicting them. A terme taken from the peoples frequent acts in the wilderneſſe.

CHAP. XXX.

Verſ. 1. The rebellious children] namely, my people. Councell] lothly and reproved councell, namely, to truſt upon Egypts aſſiſtance againſt the Babylonians, without thinking upon the onely means of deliverance, by turning to God and calling upon his Name, ſee Jer. 37. 7. Ezek. 17. 15.

V. 2. And have not] by the prieſts oracle, or by ſome Prophet, Num. 27. 21. Joſh. 9. 14. 1 Kin. 22. 7. Jer. 21. 2. and 42. 2, 20.

V. 3. Your ſhame] proving vain and unprofitable to you, Jer. 37. 5. 7.

V. 4. His Princes] namely, of Zedekiah King of Judah. Zoan, Hanes] chiefe cities of Egypt, called by the Authors, Tanis and Daphne.

V. 6. The burthen] a propheſie of threatnings and curſes, againſt this ſending of Ambaſſadours and Preſents into Egypt, which lieth South of Judea, to deſire aid, Hoſh. 14. 3. Of trouble] the Italian, Diſtreſſe; he alludes to the Hebrew name of Egypt, which ſignifieth ſtraitneſſe or diſtreſſe, to put the people in remembrance of their ancient oppreſſion in Egypt, and to admoniſh them that this aid in this preſent neceſſity would ſerve for nothing, but to incenſe the King of Babylon ſo much the more, and provoke him to their utter deſtruction. From whence] namely, the people of Africa ſubject or confederate with Egypt, whoſe Countrey brought forth thoſe harmfull beaſts; ſhewing figuratively, that Egypt never brought nothing but hurt and damage to Gods people. Serpent] ſee Numb. 21. 6. Deut. 8. 15.

V. 7. Have I] namely, I Iſaiah in Gods name. Their ſtrength] the Italian, the true Rahab] this is an ordinary name in the holy Language for Egypt, and ſignifieth height and ſtrength: the meaning is, it were better then any glory or ſtrength, whereof Egypt hath but a name to reſt in faith and grace upon Gods aſſiſtance. To ſit ſtill] he ſeems to have a relation to that which Moſes ſaid to the people, Exod. 14. 14.

V. 8. Write] namely, the foreſaid motto or ſentence, with ſome addition of explication, as Iſaiah 8. 1. for theſe Propheſies were not ſet downe at large in theſe books.

V. 9. The Law] particularly in this point, never to return into Egypt, Deut. 17. 16.

V. 10. Whiliſts] that have forbidden my Prophets to relate truly unto them what I declared and commanded them in viſion: or have commanded them to propheſie according to their minds and wils.

V. 11. Get you out] that is to ſay, apply your ſelves unto us, doe not perform your charge with ſo much ſtrictneſſe and uprightneſſe. Cauſe the] doe not ſpeak ſo much to us in his name.

V. 12. This word] namely, the word of my Prophets.

V. 14. Break it] namely, theſe iniquities and falſe means whereon you truſt, verſ. 12. Or all your deſignes that you have built upon.

V. 15. And reſt] quietly holding your ſelves to Gods commandments, and reſting upon his promiſes.

V. 16. We will flee] he hath a relation to Hezekiahs flight, Jer. 39. 4. or to the remnant of the people of Jeruſalem, their retreat into Egypt, Jer. 43.

V. 17. As a beacon] the Italian, as a ſhip maſt; that is to ſay, in very ſmall number, having no means nor wealth left you; as ſignes of Gods Juſtice upon the whole body of the Nation, and of his mercy upon the reſidue, ſuch ſignes and markes being ordinarily ſet up in high places.

V. 18. And therefore] namely, to the end that his threatnings may be fully executed, he ſhall ſtay the return of his grace, which he ſhall afterwards glorioully ſet forth when he ſhall be pacified again. Of judgement] in chaſtizing his children, and afterwards puniſhing of his enemies for their unreaſonable and unmeaſurable perſecutions.

V. 19. Shall dwell] that is to ſay, they ſhall be delivered out of the captivitie of Babylon, to enjoy peace and libertie again in their own countrey. Under this figure is comprehended the ſpirituall reſtauration of the Church by Jeſus Chriſt.

V. 20. Though the Lord] that is to ſay, notwithſtanding theſe favours and graces God ſhall hold you in a ſtrait diſcipline of afflictions, but you ſhall be comforted by Gods Word and by his Spirit, to be guided in all your wayes, whether they be of affliction or of proſperity, which are the right and left hand of this life, ſee Iſa. 59. 21.

V. 22. Defile] that is to ſay, You ſhall heartily renounce all manner of idolatrie, you ſhall abhor it, and hold it in abomination; which was verified in the Jewiſh Church after their returne from Babylon. The covering] by this may be underſtood the leafe ſilver wherewith their idols were ſilvered over, being under that of ſome other baſer mettall or ſtuffe.

V. 23. Shall he give] a figurative deſcription of Gods ſuperabundant bleſſing, namely, the ſpirituall bleſſing.

V. 25. In the day] namely, after the Lord ſhall have diſcomfited his enemies, and beaten downe their haughtineſſe, Iſa. 2. 15.

V. 26. The light] that is to ſay, under the Goſpel, the light of knowledge, faith, and glory ſhall be very great and infinitely increaſed, in regard of what it was under the old Teſtament.

V. 27. Behold] a new propheſie of the Aſſyrians overthrow by the Angel. The name] namely God, of whom there is neither image nor repreſentation, did make himſelfe known by his name: or the glorious and renowned God. Commeth] he appeareth ſuddenly after his enemies have judged him to be abſent and a great way off. The burthen] namely, the puniſhment which he layeth upon them with whom he is angry.

V. 28. His breath] namely, his wrath armed with divine ſtrength. Cauſing them] that is to ſay, it overthrowes and confounds all their deſignes, and turneth them in deſpight of them for to do contrarie to their intentions.

V. 29. Ye ſhall have] that is to ſay, You beleeving Jews, ſeeing the miraculous ſlaughter of the Aſſyrians, ſhall have a joyfull ſubject to magnifie the Lord. As in the night] hee hath a relation to the night which was before the day of the Paſſe-over, in which the people rejoyced and feaſted in remembrance of their deliverance out of Egypt, ſee Exod. 12. 42. As when one] for upon ſolemne feaſt dayes they did uſe to come to the Temple a far way with ſongs and muſick, Pſal. 42. 4.

V. 32. Every place] the Italian, every paſſing; he hath a relation to the ſong of triumph, which was ſung by the Iſraelites in the ſame place as they paſſed the Red ſea, after Moſes had divided it with his rod, Exod. 15. 20. Pſal. 66. 6. that is to ſay, the very place of this miraculous overthrow ſhall bee frequented with publique joy and feaſting. The grounded] this word ſeemeth to be added, for to make a diſtinction betweene the rod of correction which doth not remain for ever upon the lot of the righteous, Pſal. 125. 3. from the rod of iron, which is irrevocable and deſtroyeth for ever. Of ſhaking] the Italian, of an heaved up hand; that is to ſay, with open force, diſplaying his divine ſtrength, as Iſa. 19. 16. With it] the Italian, againſt them; or with it, namely, the rod.

V. 33. Tophet] it was a place neer Jeruſalem, where the Idolaters did uſe to burne their children to Moloch; whereupon, by a ſimilitude, it is often taken for hell fire, as in this place, ſee Iſa. 14. 9. Ezech. 32. 18. For the King] namely, Sennacherib.

CHAP. XXXI.

Verſ. 1. Horſes] wherein Egypt abounded, Deuter. 17. 16. 1 King 10. 28. Ezekiel 17. 15.

V. 2. Is wiſe] this wiſdome of God is oppoſite to fleſhly and politique wiſdome to get reliefe out of Egypt, Iſa. 30. 2. or to the report of worldly wiſdome, for which Egypt was renowned, Iſaiah 19. 11, 12. Will bring] the Italian, hath brought; as they doe imagine to play the wiſe men, in ſeeking to avoid the calamities which God ſends them, ſo God will ſhew himſelfe to bee wiſe in deed in maintaining the decree of his judgements. The houſe] namely, the Jews. The helpe] namely, againſt the Egyptians who come to helpe and aid the wicked Jews.

V. 4. For thus] the Italian, but thus; a promiſe of Gods perpetuall protection of his Church and his Elect, notwithſtanding his viſitations and puniſhments. Others tranſlate it, for thus, as if it were a continuation of threatnings, and in the end of the verſe, in ſtead of, for the hill, they tranſlate, againſt the hill; and make the promiſe begin in the verſe following.

V. 5. Flying] or hovering over. Paſſing over] as he did with the deſtroying angel, paſſing thorow the midſt of Egypt, Exod. 12. 12. ſo ſhall hee ſuddenly ſmite the hoſt of the Aſſyrians, Iſai. 37. 36.

V. 6. Deeply] that is to ſay, extreamly and even from the bottoms of their hearts.

V. 7. For in] becauſe that when you are aſſaulted by the Aſſyrians, you ſhall effectually finde out the vanitie and falſhood of your idols; I doe even now exhort you to be converted and turn to God. For a ſin] namely, for an object and occaſion of the greateſt ſin, which is idolatry.

V. 8. Not of] but of an Angel, Iſa. 10. 34.

V. 9. Shall paſſe over] that is to ſay, Sennacherib ſhall retire into his owne Countrey, into ſtrong holds. Of the enſigne] that is to ſay, of the war which God ſhall denounce againſt the Aſſyrians. Whoſe fire] that is to ſay, his divine power in deſtroying of his enemies ſhall ſhew it ſelfe out of Jeruſalem, the place of his abode, ſee Iſa. 10. 17. as anciently fire did come forth from Gods preſence, Levit. 10. 2. Num. 16. 35.

CHAP. XXXII.

Verſ. 1. A King] namely, Hezekiah, under whom the Kingdom flouriſhed in piety and juſtice, and who is the figure of Chriſt.

V. 2. Shall be] that is to ſay, he ſhall be a defence, protection, eaſe, and ſafeguard to all his people.

V. 3. The eyes] that is to ſay, my people to whom I have given the light of my knowledge by my word, ſhall no more be wilfully deafe and blinde, that is to ſay, inconſiderate, rebellious, and incorrigible, ſee Iſa. 42. 19. Ezek. 12. 2.

V. 4. The tongue] that is to ſay, thoſe that beleeve in me, being revived by a new Spirit, ſhall make make a free confeſſion of my name, and ſhall openly and cleerly praiſe & celebrate it, ſee Iſa 35.6.

V. 5. The vile perſon] the Italian, the fooles or the man of naught, that is to ſay, vicious and unworthy men ſhall be no more advanced to publike honours, ſee Pſal. 12. 8. Prov. 28. 12, 28. and 29. 2. Liberall] the Italian, prince; Hebrew, liberall: according to the manner of the Hebrewes, who call Nobles and Princes liberall men and benefactors, Luke 22. 25. for this vertue doth very well become great men, whoſe duty and glory it is to communicate and give part to others, they being as it were the ſprings & ſtore-houſes for particular neceſſities.

V. 6. To utter] giving unjuſt ſentences in judgemen, deviating from right and reaſon againſt the Law of God. To make empty] to take away the goods and ſubſtance of poor men.

V. 7. The inſtruments] that is to ſay, Tyrants officers are ordinarily like to the maſter, Pro. 22. 12. Lying words] namely, with falſe allegations and witneſſes, or by deceits and cunning practices. Speaketh] defending his right with ſincerity and integritie.

V. 8. The liberall] the Italian, the prince; who is indeed truly ſo, of a noble and generous heart, Eccleſ. 10. 17. Shall he ſtand] the Italian, He ariſeth to doe things worthy of a prince; that is to ſay, Hee uſeth his power and authority in worthily executing his office, and not in tyrannizing.

V. 9. Te women] of my people.

V. 10. Many, &c.] the Italian, one yeere after another; that is to ſay, for many yeers. He ſeemes to have a relation to the ſeventy yeeres captivity. Shall fail] your countrey ſhall be deſolate, void of inhabitants, and untilled, ſee Levit. 26. 34. Lam. 1. 7.

V. 11. Strip ye] in token of ſorrow, or like unto poor priſoners, as you ſhall be.

V. 12. They ſhall lament] the Italian, you ſhall beat your; or you ſhall lament for your teats, for your pleaſant fields, &c. that is to ſay, all the people ſhall lament for want of food for their little children, wherein he hath a ſpeciall relation to the ſiege of Jeruſalem, Lam. 2. 11. and 4. 34.

V. 14. For ever] unceſſantly, untill the appointed time:

V. 15. The Spirit] which I ſhall ſend from Heaven, as a new Spirit, to cauſe every thing to live and flouriſh again, ſee Pſal. 104. 30. Ezek. 37. 9.

V. 16. Judgement] that is to ſay, Righteouſneſſe and Juſtice ſhall bee re-eſtabliſhed in the Church, which had beene like a wilderneſſe by reaſon of her deſolations, but now ſhall be like a Carmel through the Lords abundant bleſſings.

V. 19. Shall haile] that is to ſay, When God ſhall have reſtored peace to his Church, hee ſhall then turn his wrath againſt the world, which is compared to a tall and thick wood, and ſhall beat downe all the might and power of it, Iſai. 10. 34. The city] that is, to ſtay the great States of the world, which remained in their flower and glory, contrary to the cottages and ruines of the poore Church, ſee Iſa. 26. 5.

V. 20. Bleſſed] how happy ſhall the condition of Chriſts ſervants be under his Kingdom, being they ſhall no more ſowe the ſeed of Gods Word upon barren and dry ground, but in the hearts of beleevers well prepared through Gods grace, which ſhall be like unto the overflowing of the river Nilus, which fatteneth the land of Egypt, to which the Prophet manifeſtly hath a relation, ſee Iſa. 19. 7. and 23. 3. Send forth] to till the ground. Of the ox and] which are labouring beaſts.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Verſ. 1. Woe to thee] a propheſie againſt the Aſſyrians, Caldeans, and other enemies of the Church, ſee Rev. 13. 10. When thou] when God ſhall fully have executed his judgements by thy means, and thou ſhalt have heaped up thy meaſure.

V. 2. O Lord] the Churches prayer. Their arme] that is to ſay, the ſtrength and upholder of thy poor children, which the Church as a mother preſents to the father. Every morning] that is to ſay, continually.

V. 3. The people] a deſcription of the overthrow which God would give his enemies. At the liſting up] becauſe thou haſt ſhewed thine high and glorious maieſtie.

V. 4. The caterpillar] as theſe inſects in the winter do gather up themſelves, and lay their egges in little holes, whereby they may be eaſily taken up altogether to be deſtroyed and burned.

V. 5. He hath filled] the Italian, he ſhall fill; that is to ſay, having deſtroyed his enemies he ſhall ſet his Church in holy order and happy eſtate, Iſa. 32. 16. an Evangelicall propheſie.

V. 6. The ſtabilitie] that is to ſay, this happineſſe which conſiſts in ſpirituall ſtrength and abundance, ſhall be made ſtable and firme for the Churches ſafeguard, by means of her faith and piety towards God.

V. 7. Their valiant ones] the Italian, their Heraulds; a deſcription of Sennacheribs invaſion, and threatnings of his Ambaſſadors, 2 Kings 18. 17, 28. Ambaſſadors] which Hezekiah ſent to confirme the Treatie made with Sennacherib, 2 King. 18. 14, 37. and 19. 1, 2.

V. 8. Lie waſte] all the countrey being taken and over-run with Souldiers, travelling and commerce will be interrupted, ſee Judg. 5. 6. The covenant] which Sennacherib made with Hezekiah. 2 King. 18. 14. He hath deſpiſed] he hath not cared to preserve them for himselfe, but hath destroyed every thing. No man] namely, to keepe his faith to them, nor to make spare of them, as being subjects, out of whom he might have had service and profit.

V. 9. Lebanon] that is to say, all the most fertile and rich Countries shall be spoiled and laid waste.

V. 10. Now] at the time prefixed by my providence, after the enemies shall have vented all their fury and rage.

V. 11. He shall] that is to say, all your designes and counsels shall be void and overthrown. Your breath] the Italian, your wrath; Heb. your Spirit, that is to say, your rage against me and my people shall be the cause of your perdition, 2 King. 19.28.

V. 14. The sinners] these horrible calamities shall make those that are wicked amongst the people to tremble, finding and feeling the presence of Gods judgements. With the] that is to say, with God when he is moved, Deut. 4. 24. and 9. 3. Heb. 12.19.

V. 15. And shutteth] that is to say, he takes no delight at all in evill, but turns from it in thought and deed.

V. 16. Shall dwell] hee shall bee secure under Gods guard and providence, like to a man that dwels in an unpregnable rocke, well provided to hold out a siege.

V. 17. Thine eyes] that is to say, O thou true beleever, after the deliverance from this dangerous assault, thou shalt see Hezekiah flourish again in power and glory, 2 Chron. 32. 22, 23. a figure to describe the sight of Christ in his heavenly Kingdom. The land] the Kingdom of that extent, and so enlarged: which also agreeth with Christ, lifted up in his celestiall glory. The meaning may also be, thou mayest securely goe out of Jerusalem, and travell into far countries without any danger.

V. 18. Thine heart] yet will I suffer thee to be troubled with terrour, upon the consideration of thy defect and want of meanes to reject so powerfull an adversarie. Where is] words of men that are out of the way and dismayed. As who should say, there is neither order nor provision for the defence of the city, there are no souldiers to muster, no money to pay them, nor strong hold to lodge them in.

V. 19. Thou shalt not] that is to say, the Assyrians, which are a people of barbarous language and manners shall not enter into Jerusalem, nor come neer unto it. A fierce] Hebr. a strong: some take the Hebrew word for impudent and shamelesse, as Deut. 28. 50.

20 Look upon] that is to say, O you beleevers, consider by the example of this miraculous deliverance, the stabilitie and sweetnesse of the Church in her spirituall estate. Of our] namely, in which God is served, the summary and greatest solemnity of which service was in the solemn feasts, where all the people did meet. The stakes] to the heads of which the ropes were made fast, which held up the tents.

V. 21. A place of] She shall be inaccessible and impregnable for any humane strength, like unto a place encompassed with broad and deepe waters.

V. 23. Thy tacklings] that is to say, O thou Assyrian, all the preparation thou makest for to assault the Church shall be weake and vain: these are seamens tearms. Then is] all, even the weakest, shall run to have share of the Assyrians spoils.

V. 24. The inhabitants] the weakest shall take heart. Figurative tearms, to shew that no naturall weaknesse shall be able to hinder beleevers from having part in Christs spirituall victories and combates, see Joel 3. 10. Or all manner of lamentations and griefs shall cease when God is appeased towards his people.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Vers. 2. ALL nations] that are enemies to the Church. Delivered them] by way of a curse, Levit 27. 28.

V. 4. All the host] hyperbolicall tearms, to describe the horror of Gods particular judgements by a representation of the dissolving of the frame of the world, which shall happen at the last judgement, see Psal. 102. 26. Ezech. 32. 7. Joel 2. 31. and 3. 15. Matth. 24. 29. 2 Pet. 3. 10. Revel 6. 12, 13. Shall be rolled] shewing its stars nor its brightnesse no more, and being as it were a roll rolled up together, as your ancient books were, that one cannot see what is written within side.

V. 5. In heaven] where God resideth, and from whence he executeth his judgements upon the world, Rom. 1. 18. Upon Idumea] namely, upon all the Churches deadly enemies, such as the Idumeans were to the Jews, see Isa. 63. 1.

V. 6. Of lambs] by these small beasts are meant the inferiour people, as by the Unicornes and Bulls, &c. vers. 7. are meant the Princes and great ones. A sacrifice] that is to say, a great slaughter for to appease his wrath. Bozrah] one of the principall cities of Idumea.

V. 7. With them] namely, with those lambs and other small beasts, vers. 6.

V. 9. Thereof] namely, of Bozrah, or of Idumea. Now he describes the destruction of the Churches enemies, by the example of Sodom and Gomorrahs destruction, see Revel. 19. 20. and 20, 10.

V. 11. The cormorant] the Italian, the pelican; a figufigurative and poeticall deſcription of an extream deſolation, as Iſa. 14. 23. Zeph. 2. 14. Stretch out] that is to ſay he ſhall demoliſh, and deſtroy it quite, ſee 2 King. 21. 13. Lam. 2. 8.

V. 12. Shall call, &c. the Italian, The Kingdome ſhall call the Nobles thereof, and there ſhall, &c. it ſhall call upon them, for to have ſome conduct or defence from them.

V. 13. An habitation] ſee Iſa. 13. 21.

V. 14. The Satyre] the Italian, A divell] ſee Iſa. 13. 21. For Owles] a kind of night-fowle which hath a hideous kind of cry.

V. 16. Seeke ye out] a kind of exaggeration of this deſolation, as if one ſhould ſay, all theſe ominous fowles ſhall be as it were muſtered up there.

CHAP. XXXV.

Verſ. 1. THe Wilderneſſe] namely, the poore Church, which before was laid waſte by her perſecuters, ſhall be reſtored into a happy and flouriſhing ſtate, after her enemies have been thus deſtroyed.

V. 3. Strengthen] comfort your ſelves, O you faithfull, and take courage in faith, and ſtrengthen one another with theſe great experiences.

V. 4. Your God] namely, Chriſt Jeſus, true eternall God, who at all times, and from time to time had revealed himſelfe to his people Iſrael, and by them was acknowledged to be their God.

V. 5. The eyes] God ſhall make his Church capeable of acknowledging, and feeling his graces with joy and thankſgiving.

V. 6. Shall waters] Gods grace ſhall be abundantly communicated to his Church, whereof the water which miraculouſly guſhed out of the rocke that Moſes ſmote in the deſert, was a figure.

V. 7. In the habitation] in that place which before was deſert, and horrid, ſee Iſa. 34. 13.

V. 8. Shall be there] that is to ſay in the Church all the faithfull ſhall be directly and ſecurely guided into the Kingdom of Heaven, by the way of ſanctification. For thoſe] namely, for the faithfull that are regenerate, verſ. 5. 6. The way fairing men] that is to ſay, all men, whereof ſome are ignorant, as way-fairing men in a ſtrange Countrey, to whom the way is unknowne; other ſome are mad, that is to ſay, through the vaineneſſe of their underſtanding, and blindneſſe of their carnall affections, they forſake the right way.

V. 9. No Lyon ſhall] his high way ſhall be ſafe from all danger, of the divell (who is the roaring Lyon) in the world, &c. termes taken from the peoples ancient voyage in the wilderneſſe.

V. 10. Shall returne] that is to ſay, ſhall be converted to God, from whom all men have gone aſtray through ſinne, and ſhall joyne themſelves to the Church.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Verſ. 1. IT came to paſſe] ſee this Hiſtory contained in theſe two following Chapters, 2 King. 18. & 19.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Verſ. 10. OF the reſidue] of the time that I might yet live according to the courſe of nature.

V. 11. I ſhall not] according to the underſtanding of the fleſh, which being deprived of the corporall light of the world, ſeeth nothing in death but darkneſſe, ſee Job 10. 21. 22. In the Land] that is to ſay, in the world, ſee Pſa. 27. 13. & 116. 9.

V. 12. Mine age] the ordinary time of my courſe of life hath been ſhortned by this violent ſickneſſe. Like a Weaver] who having made an end of his cloth, cuts it off from the loome. Will cut me off] God taketh away my life, in the middle of my courſe, in the flower of mine age, as a Weaver would doe, that ſhould cut off his Cloth before it were made an end of, whileſt it was yet in the webbe.

V. 14. Did I chatter] I did poure out my complaints and prayers before God, with a low, hoarſe, and interrupted voyce, through the grievouſneſſe of mine evill, and through feare of preſent death. I am oppreſſed] I am like a poore debter, called upon to pay my debt ſpeedily, death being natures debt, Lord doe thou deliver me out of this danger, as a ſurety.

V. 15. What ſhall I ſay] how ſhould I give thee ſufficient thanks? I am wholly raviſhed with this thine incomprehenſible goodnes. I ſhall goe] I ſhall in peace of Spirit finiſh the courſe of this life, digeſting the bitterneſſe of it, and the doleſull remembrance of death, with this triall, and pledge of my Gods gracious favour.

V. 16. Men live] the meaning ſeems to be this. True it is that many other men live beyond the time for which thou haſt prolonged my life: but I have this advantage, that my life being a miraculous worke of thine, I ſhall continue healthfull and vigorous to the end. The Italian tranſlation is in this ſence.

V. 17. For peace] the Italian, In time of peace] namely, when I was in full proſperity, and all things went well with me. To my ſoule] that is to ſay, my perſon in regard of the body. Thou haſt caſt] that is to ſay, thou haſt forgiven all my ſinnes, and haſt not ſet them before the eye of thy ſevere juſtice, for to be induced to puniſh them.

CHAP

CHAP. XXXIX.

Vers.1. Merodach] who is the same, as is called Berodach in the History of the Kings.

CHAP. XL.

Vers.1. Saith] the Italian, shall say, namely, to the Preachers of his Gospell, in the Messias his time.

V.2. Speake ye, &c.] the Italian, Speake to the heart of; an Hebrew phrase, which signifieth as much as comfort and ease the mind of, &c. Gen 34.3. Her warfare] the Italian, her appointed time; namely, the time set down by the Lord for the Churches punishments; and for the straight discipline to which she hath been tied under the Law, before she came to the fruition of Christs spirituall Kingdome. Is pardoned] that is to say, it hath been sufficiently chastised, according to the just measure of Gods fatherly severity, for her correction: for he speakes not here of the true and perfect satisfaction for sins, which is only the blood of Christ. Double] that is to say, in a large measure, and abundantly.

V.3. Of him] namely, John Baptist, whose ministery, in preparing the hearts of men to entertaine Christ Comming into the world, is here described by figures, and termes taken from a custome observed at the comming in of Princes and Kings, see Psal. 68.4. In the Wildernesse] hereby is meant the world, voyd of Gods grace, barren in all vertue, having no pleasing abode, nor sure direction of any good way in it, being full of horror, and accursed.

V.4. Every valley] he seems to referre and bring the foresaid preparation to these three heads, namely, to have all depth of despaire, and baseness of worldly thoughts raised up, all fleshly pride humbled, and all obliquity of fraud, and hypocrisie amended.

V.5. The glory] that is to say, Jesus Christ the King of glory shall appeare in the flesh, to make knowne, and effectually to shew Gods Soveraigne power and glory in the Gospel, see John 1.14.

V.6. The voyce] the Italian, There is a voyce] namely, Christ shall command, and inspire his servants to set before mens eyes their naturall corruption, their death in sinne, and their inability to doe any good, here described and set down under the similitude of withered and scorched Hay. All flesh] namely, every man, in his own naturall being, excluded from the grace and regeneration of the Holy Ghost. All the goodlinesse] Heb. all his goodnesse. Or according to others, his grace; that is to say, all that seems in him worth any estimation or praise.

V.7. Because the] the Italian, When the] namely, when God entreth into judgement with man, all this seeming beauty is presently brought to nothing, like unto grasse that is withered by a scorching winde, Psal 39.11. & 103.15. The people] even Gods people of their owne nature have no advantage, more then other men, but all proceeds from Gods grace, Rom 3.9.

V.8. But the word] the Gospel only, received with a lively faith, regenerates the beleever, in a spirituall, incorruptible, and immortall life.

V.9. O Zion] namely, O thou Jewish Nation, to whom the preaching of the Gospell shall be committed by Christ, to carry it to all other Nations, perform thou thy duty therein with all manner of freedom, and confidence.

V.10. The Lord] the Sonne of God shall come into the World, to fight with the divell and all his Kingdome, and to gaine, and communicate to his Church the fruits of his victory, see Matth. 12.29.

V.12. Who hath] prouerbiall examples of things altogether impossible to man, as Prov. 30.4. to shew that as these effects, are quite beyond mans power, so likewise in the worke of grace, and mystery of the Gospell, man of himselfe can contribute nothing.

V.15. Are as a drop] as a thing of no account, or vertue, even as a drop in a Bucket makes it neither the fuller nor the emptier; nor a small dust in a ballance addes no weight unto it.

V.16. Lebanon] namely, if men would undertake to appease God with a Sacrifice befitting his greatnesse and Majesty. Figurative termes to shew the infinite inequality that is between God and man, in regard of any means to satisfie his justice, which is the subject of the Gospell.

V.18. To whom] as all mens knowledge, is uncapable of my secrets, and counsels, and all their power unable to contribute any thing to my worke of grace: so is their invention insufficient to represent my essence. He seemes thus covertly to shew the power of the Gospell, in redarguing and annihilating idolatry.

V.19. The workman] Idols have nothing in them but their stuffe, wrought according to mens fancies, by their art; for that Godhead which idolaters doe attribute unto them, is but a meere fiction, and vaine imagination. Chaines] he seems to mean the riches, grates, chappels, and railes which are made about idols.

V.20. He that] as much as to say, all have not meanes to make their idols of precious stuffe. The common sort of people are content to make them of wood. All this is spoken in contempt and scorne of idolatry.

V.21. Have ye not] that is to say, O thou my people which at all times hast been instructed concerning the nature and true service of God, and concerning the vanity and abomination of Idols, how canst thou so easily runne astray? From the] namely, that God alone is the Creator of all things, and that worship is due to him onely.

V. 22. That sitteth] as supreame Lord, and Governour of the world.

V. 24. Yea, they shall not] the Italian, As if they were not; though Princes seeme to be great Trees, grown to a perfect height, and deeply rooted; yet God destroyeth them, as if they had never been.

V. 26. These things] namely, the heavens, and all that is seen therein. Bringeth out] like a Captaine that bringeth forth his Souldiers, which he hath set down in his muster rolles.

V. 27. Why saiest thou] that is to say, O Church, doe not enter into any mistrust of God, as if thy state were unknowne to him, or hidden from him, or as if he did not take care of it, or would not right thee, for the injuries, which thine enemies doe thee.

V. 28. Fainteth not] not onely in respect of his strength, which never decreaseth, but also in respect of his will, which never alters towards his children.

V. 31. Mount up] that is to say, Gods Spirit, by a power which never faileth, carrieth them, as it were flying up to Heaven, to the marke of the supernall vocation. Others understand it, that their wings grow like unto Eagles wings, they grow young, and renew in spirituall vigor, Psa. 103. 5.

CHAP. XLI.

Vers. 1 O Ilands] that is to say, you farre Countries, which are beyond the Sea, as Europe was to Judea, Gen. 10. 5. God is here brought in, calling upon all the idolatrous Nations, for to debate with them, as it were in open judgement, and to convince them by proving that worship belongeth onely to his Sonne. Renew] let them strengthen themselves with proofes and reasons to maintaine their idolatry if they can.

V. 2. Who] who amongst all the Gods hath caused the new day of Gods grace to shine in the world, through a perfect satisfaction to his justice, and true holinesse created in all beleevers by his Spirit? Was it not my Sonne alone? Dan. 9. 24. Called] hath it alwaies by him, Psal. 85. 13. & 89. 14. His meaning is, that he alwaies doth communicate and impart righteousnesse, when he presents himselfe to beleevers, by his Gospell. Gave the Nations] that is to say who hath gotten to himselfe an universall and everlasting Kingdome, overthrowing all contrary power and opposition?

V. 3. He pursued] a description of Christs victories. Safely] the Italian, In peace] no resistance, being able to stay him, or cause him to turn backe. By the way] not returning upon his own foot-steps, like unto those that flie, or are driven backe, but following his victorie to the end. Or by new waies by which he had not gone before.

V. 4. Calling the] the Italian, he that called; namely, I the everlasting Sonne of God, who have created all temporall things, and have appointed their being, and their lasting, and set downe all chances that shall befall them from time to time. The first] the true and onely eternall, without beginning or ending, that was before all things, and shall subsist after all things have an end, Psal. 102. 26, 27. and am the author and first cause, and shall be the last end of all things, Rom. 11. 36.

V. 5. The Isles] a representation of the idolaters confusion, striving through obstinacy to maintaine their ancient error against the light of the Gospell. Drew neere] as it were to justifie their idolatries before the Lord.

V. 6. Every one] namely, of these idolaters.

V. 9. From the ends] he speakes of the Christian Church, gathered out of all Nations, and Kindomes of the world.

V. 10. With the right hand] namely, with mine omnipotency, which I have employed in righting thee of thine enemies.

V. 11. That were] or that withstand thee and fight against thee.

V. 14. Thou worme] namely, thou my Church, abject, weake, and wretched of thy selfe, see Psalm. 22. 6.

V. 15. I will make thee] in thy behalfe I wil weaken and overthrow the greatnesse and power of the world, 2 Cor. 10. 4, 5.

V. 17. The poore] namely, my poore Church, thirsting after Gods grace, which is no where to be found but in Christ and in his Gospell.

V. 18. I will open] I will powre out my Spirit, and my grace upon mine elect, who of their owne nature have none.

V. 19. I will plant] that is to say, I will make the world populous, which before was like a barren wilderneſſe, and plant mine elect in it. Shittah tree] see Exod. 25. 5. The Box tree] that groweth of it selfe in wild places. To signifie that the Church wil alwaies have worldly wild plants mixed, and growing in it. Yet others doe take the Hebrew word to signifie an excellent plant.

V. 20. Done this] namely, hath caused this admirable restauration of his Church.

V. 21. Produce] he returns again to the summons made to the idolaters, v. 1.

V. 22. And shew us] seeing that the certaine foretelling of things to come, which have no assured naturall cause, nor signe, belongeth onely to God: Let the Idols prove their deity by revealing Gods ſecret Councels to the world, concerning Chriſts comming, and the ſalvation of the world through him. God alone had made them manifeſt by his word. The former] that is to ſay, doe but tell us the beginnings: and we will looke out the ſequels by diſcourſe, and reaſon, unleſſe your Idols will relate all from the beginning to the ending. Ironicall kinds of ſpeeches.

V. 23. That we may be diſmayed] the Italian, We will looke upon it with delight; Or, we will talke of it.

V. 24. Ye are] you have neither Godhead nor power, all your being is nothing but the idolaters imagination. That chooſeth you] namely, for their God, to whom they cleave.

V. 25. I have raiſed] words of God the Father, declaring that he alone hath adviſed and taken counſell from everlaſting to ſend his Sonne into the world, and hath revealed him in his due time. Wherefore he alone ought to be acknowledged and worſhipped for the true God. One] the Italian, him; namely, Chriſt Jeſus the Redeemer. From the North] that is to ſay, from one end of the world, that ſo paſſing through all parts of it, by the preaching of his Goſpell, he may ſubdue them, and bring all Kingdoms and powers, under the obedience of his faith.

V. 26. Righteous] that is to ſay, the true God, lawfully taking upon him this title.

V. 27. The firſt] as I have foretold theſe things by my Prophets, ſo will I at mine appointed time ſend John the Baptiſt, to preach the accompliſhment of them firſt to the Jewes.

V. 28. For I] Gods Word is a Judge, before whom the party ſummoned hath not appeared, or when it did appeare, had nothing to anſwer. Amongſt them] namely, amongſt the Idols, of which he had ſpoken before. No Counſellor] that could plead for them in this cauſe, ſee Iſa. 45. 21.

V. 29. Behold] Gods definitive ſentence againſt Idols and Idolaters.

CHAP. XLII.

Verſ. 1. Behold] God the Fathers words concerning the ſending of his Sonne into the world. My ſervant] namely, my Sonne, who in his humane ſhape tooke the form of a ſervant upon him, Phil. 2. 7. inſomuch as he ſubjected himſelfe to the Law of God, which was the covenant of ſervants, for to be judged, and recompenſed of God according to his workes to the extremity of all rigor; and in this manner hath accompliſhed the work of God, to his glory and the ſalvation of man, without any reſpect to himſelfe. I uphold] whom I will ſtrengthen by my Spirit, in the accompliſhment of his office, in regard of his humane nature, Pſal. 110. 4. Shall bring forth] he ſhall exerciſe his juriſdiction as King, not onely amongſt the Jewes, but alſo amongſt all other Nations of the Earth.

V. 2. He ſhall not cry] his Empire ſhall not be with violence of command, nor in roughneſſe of threatnings, as worldly Empires are, but in the mildneſſe and ſtength of the Spirit.

V. 3. Not breake] he ſhall lovingly beare with the infirmitie and ignorance of his poore children, and ſhal not rigorouſly puniſh them, neither ſhall he winke at their faults, but ſhal correct them for their amendment. And ſhal not endure hypocrites, nor prophane men, but ſhal puniſh them ſeverely.

V. 4. He ſhall not] the meaning ſeems to be this; He ſhal uſe his elect in ſuch ſort, that they ſhall never want light nor ſtrength, even as he who is their head, could never be quite extinguiſhed nor beaten down in his humil ation: Yea, was by means of it raiſed to glory, and to the poſſeſſion of his Kingdom over all the world.

V. 6. In righteouſneſſe] that is to ſay, by a juſt eſtabliſhment, contrary to worldly Kingdoms, which are all grounded upon violence. Or by an order eſtabliſhed by my will, which is the rule of all manner of righteouſneſſe. Give thee] that is to ſay, I will make thee an acceptable and effectuall mediator, between me and my Church, upon which I have founded my covenant, Iſa. 49. 8. For a light] to invite and bring the Gentiles into the ſame covenant of grace.

V. 7. To open] to illuminate their underſtanding by the power of my Spirit. The priſoners] namely, thoſe men which were ſlaves to ſin, death, the divel, and damnation.

V. 8. Will I not give] for to eſtabliſh my Sonnes Kingdome, I will beate downe all manner of idolatrie.

V. 9. The former things] he ſeemes to meane the whole order of nature, which was eſtabliſhed in the creation, and hath been ſo preſerved without varying, Pſalm. 119. 89, 90. to which he oppoſeth that of grace in Chriſt Jeſus. Or the particular prophecies, which were from time to time prophecied to the Church, and accompliſhed in their due ſeaſons.

V. 10. Sing] let all the world rejoyce and give God thankes for theſe things, for the benefits thereof ſhall be ſcattered abroad indifferently every where.

V. 11. That Kedar] namely, the people of Arabia that dwell in Tents and Cabins.

V. 13. The Lord] an allegoricall deſcription of Chriſts ſpirituall victories, by the powerful voice of his Goſpel.

V. 14. I have] I have endured, and diſſembled the injuries which Satans kingdome hath for a long while done to me, Acts 17. 30. Rom. 3. 26. but now I will deſtroy it, by the power of my Goſpel, which is the the cry of a travelling woman, that is to say, accomplishment of all Gods promises.

V. 15. I will make waste] that is to say, I will destroy all high powers that shall rebell against my kingdome, and send the fire of my curse upon them, Luke 12. 49.

V. 16. I will bring] I will safely and rightly conduct mine elect, enlightning them by my grace who otherwise by nature are blinde. I will I say, conduct them in the way of their spirituall vocation, by means unknown and incomprehensible to the flesh.

V. 18. Ye deaf] the Lord directeth his speech to his people, whom he reproveth for their hardnesse and rebellion, and chiefly for their idolatry.

V. 19. Who is blinde] namely, through a voluntary ignorance, see Isa. 32. 3. Ezech. 12. 2. My servant] namely, my people. My messenger] namely, the Priests and other Governours of my people, which should have taught my people my will, and have brought them tidings of my grace towards them, Mal. 2. 7. 2 Cor. 5. 20. That is perfect] namely, in all Gods gifts and graces, Ezek. 16. 14.

V. 20. Opening] he makes shew of lending the eare of the body, but my word entreth not into his heart.

V. 21. For his] namely, to shew the loyalty of his promises, and his equity and beneficence towards those that doe fear and serve him. He will magnifie] that is to say, by his innumerable benefits towards his elect, he did gain much honour to his Law and Covenant, because the observers and keepers thereof were so highly recompensed.

V. 23. Who] an outcry or exclamation to call the people to repentance.

CHAP. XLIII.

Vers. 1. But now] namely, in the dayes of the Gospell, I will redeem my Church from sinne, and free her from all her evils. That created thee] in respect of thy first creation, but chiefly in regard of the second, namely, the spirituall regeneration, Isa. 29. 23. I have called] I have given thee all that being thou hast, and have chosen thee amongst all the rest, Exod. 33. 17.

V. 2. When thou passest] a description of extream calamities, Psal. 66. 12. from which God alwayes delivereth his Church.

V. 3. I gave] I have delivered thee out of all thy calamities, and have put other Nations which were strangers to mee, and thine enemies in thy stead, to be thy ransom, see Prov. 11. 8. and 21. 18.

V. 7. That is called] even as children are called by their fathers name. Yea I have] this redoubling of words signifieth, that all the Churches deliverance from the beginning to the end, is Gods worke and grace, Phil. 1. 6. Heb. 13. 21.

V. 8. The blinde] within this particular taxation of the children of Israel with wilfull blindenesse, Isa. 42. 19. are contained all other men in their naturall state, deprived of all spirituall light and obedience to God, though they abound in carnall understanding.

V. 9. Be gathered] as in a solemn judgement, either to defend and maintaine their idolatries and superstitions, or to see themselves condemned for them, as Isa. 41. 1, 21, 22. Among them] namely, among their false gods. Declare this] namely, this admirable restauration of the Church by the Messias. Be justified] bee acknowledged for true Gods, Isa. 41. 26. And say] let them confesse this truth which is so powerfully preached by the Gospell, namely, that there is but one true eternall God, to whom belongeth all glory and worship.

V. 10. Ye] namely, all nations shall be convinced by this truth, and shall bear witnesse of it to all men, jointly with the people of Israel, here called Gods servants, and chosen by prerogative, Isa. 42. 19. That ye may] the end of all that I say to you, is for to bring you to this beleefe and confession. That I am he] namely, the true eternall God, subsisting of himself, and being still th esame, all which acknowledgements are comprehended in the Hebrew word.

V. 12. I have declared] I have caused my Prophets to foretell the salvation which I will accomplish in my sons person, and will afterwards have it preached to all men by the Gospell. No strange god] namely, that hath done these things with me.

V. 13. Ye before] I was, before time began to run on, and therefore was eternall. Let it] or call it back.

V. 14. For your sake] a prophesie of the deliverance from the captivity of Babylon, set forth as though it were come already, according to the Prophets stile. I have sent] namely, by the Persians and the Medes. Brought down] I have caused the Babylonians being affrighted with the unlooked for surprising of their City, to flie to save themselves upon the river Euphrates.

V. 16. Which maketh] Exod. 14. 21.

V. 17. Bringing forth] by hardning of Pharaohs heart, causing him to pursue the people with his army, Exod. 14. 4.

V. 18. Remember ye not] that is to say, the deliverance out of Egypt shall be so much inferiour to the deliverance out of Babylon, that it shall in some sort not deserve to be remembred, for the glory of the one shall quite darken the other.

V. 19. Now it shall] that is to say, within a short time, namely, in respect of the many yeers which are past, since the comming out of Egypt: or in respect of God, with whom the furthermost times are as hard by and present. Make a way] that is to say, I will bring backe my people by a miraculous means, as I did formerly bring them thorow the desart, in which I caused streams of water to run continually along with them, Exod. 17. 6. Numb. 20. 11. Psalm 78. 16. see Isa. 35. 6. and 41. 18.

V. 20 The beasts] a figurative exaggeration, as if the wilde beasts, participating also of this unwonted abundance of waters (as peradventure they really did in the wildernesse) had also on their behalfe praised the Lord, who was the author of this miraculous benefit.

V. 21. Have I formed] to whom I will give as it were a new being through my deliverance, and a new heart to know and serve me, contrary to that ungratefull and rebellious people which was in Isaiahs time, of whom hee speaks afterwards, see Psal. 102. 18.

V. 23. Thou hast not] but hast done these things to thine idols. Or I doe not regard the externall service thou doest to mee, it being done without piety or repentance, Amos 5. 25.

V. 24. Made me] that is to say, thou hast tried my long patience in seeing and suffering thy sinnes to my great annoyance, Isa. 1. 13.

V. 25. For mine own] out of mine own free motion and meer good will, to exercise and shew my mercy, that all the praise may be given to me, Ezek. 36. 22.

V. 26. Put me in] hast thou any thing to alledge or reply to these mine accusations?

V. 27. Thy first father] namely, Adam, his meaning is, Thou art corrupt and evill, even in thy first naturall beginning, Isa 48. 8. namely, in Adam, in whom all men have sinned, Rom. 5. 12. Teachers] namely, those men which thou imployest as mediators towards me, as the priests. Therefore neither in thy selfe, nor in any others for thee, is there any means of restauration to salvation, but in me onely. Have] they are guilty of grievous sins, which makes them abominable to God; and consequently, their prayers, sacrifices, and intercessions will be altogether unprofitable.

V. 28. I have prophaned] not regarding the false names they bear of sacred persons. The princes] namely, the Priests and chiefe of the Ecclesiasticall order, and ministers of the Temple.

CHAP XLIV.

Vers. 3. Water] namely, abundance of my grace, for the purging and remitting of sins; and of the gift of my Spirit for sanctification. Upon him that is] that is to say, upon my poor Elect, whose consciences will finde and feel the extream want of it.

V. 5. One shall say] all manner of persons and Nations shall joyne with my Church, and shall make open profession of my faith and service, see Psalm 87. 4.

V. 7. And who] God here reiterates the proofe of his eternall God-head, whereof he had spoken, Chap. 41. 22. and 43. 9. against idols and idolaters. Sha'l call] this word seemeth to have a relation to Gods first decree and councell, by which he gives the first form and being to all things: for Gods calling, in Scripture signifies creating and producing by his word: and this declaring, which followeth, is the prediction of things determined, and setting in order is the execution thereof in the appointed time. It] namely, the salvation and redemption of the Church by the Messias. Since I] namely, since or from the beginning of the world, Gen. 3. 15. Unto them] namely, to them that follow and worship them.

V. 8. Fear ye not] that is to say, O yee people, and especially O thou my Church, free your selfe from the bond of superstition, which is but a vain and anxious feare of a false deity.

V. 9. Delectable] he speaketh thus, because that idolatry is a kinde of spirituall concupiscence, and unchaste and disordered love, like as fornication or adultery.

V. 11. His fellows] namely, they that follow the first Authors of idolatry. Be ashamed] under the light of the Gospell, and under the Kingdome of Christ, which shall discover the foulnesse of idolatry, and shall destroy the idols. The workmen] see an example thereof, Acts 19. 24, 25.

V. 12. He is hungry] with much labour and trouble he frameth a thing of nought: this is a scoffe for idolaters.

V. 13. The beauty] the Italian, the glory; namely, the noble and excellent forme of humane body, which is the master-piece of Gods work, amongst all other earthly bodies. That it may] to be a dead and unprofitable thing, without any motion or action.

V. 14. And taketh] he chuseth out, or marketh some fair young tree, and lets it grow to its full height and strength.

V. 19. Considereth] the Italian, setteth it to his heart; they doe not thinke upon it, nor examine it deliberately, nor do not set the absurditie of it before their eyes.

V. 20. Feedeth] that is to say, He puts his trust, and sets his religious devotion and affection upon things which are not only frivolous and vain, but also hurtfull; as if one should eat ashes, see Psal. 102. 9. Prov. 20. 17. Lam. 3. 16. Deceived] blinded with the love of idols preoccupated by false opinions, led astray by evill customs, but especially possessed by the spirit of error, which works with efficacie in the children of rebellion. Deliver] free it from the foresaid snares and bonds to give way to true reason, in which consisteth the true liberty liberty of the ſoule, Iſai. 46. 8. Is there not] that is to ſay, is not that which I honour, ſetting it alwayes at my right hand? for the idolaters did alwayes turne to the right hand to look upon their idols: or that which I put my truſt and confidence in, altogether falſe.

V. 22. I have] namely, through Chriſt, of whoſe benefits he had ſpoken in the beginning of the Chapter, and by whom alſo heatheniſh idolatry was to be overthrown. As a thick cloud] whereof there remains no ſigne after it is once diſperſed by the winde.

V. 23. Sing] let all the world participate of this joy which is for the deliverance of his Church, eſpecially the ſpirituall deliverance by the Meſſias, ſee Rom. 8. 19, 20.

V. 24. I am] and therefore ought onely to be worſhipped.

V. 25. The tokens] namely, the ſoothſayers and Aſtrologers falſe prognoſtickes, eſpecially the Chaldeans, who upon certaine ſignes either feigned at their pleaſures, or falſly interpreted and applied, did foretell the perpetuall laſtingneſſe of their Empire, which God would not withſtanding deſtroy to deliver his people from thence, ſee Iſa. 47. 13. Turneth] through ſhame and confuſion.

V. 26. Of his ſervant] namely Iſaiah, or ſome other of my Prophets. Meſſengers] the Italian, angels; who are as it were addreſſers in Gods councell concerning the deliverance of his Church, and doe his meſſage to his prophets, ſee Pſal. 89. 7. Dan. 4. 17. Others do take the word Angels for Meſſengers, namely, Prophets, who declare the will of God to men. Be inhabited] after thy deſolation is paſt, and after the returne from Babylon.

V. 27. That ſaith] that ſhall deliver my people by a miracle, like unto the ancient paſſage thorow the Red ſea: unleſſe he have a relation to the turning away and drying up of Euphrates, which was done by Cyrus, which was the means of taking Babylon, Jer. 50. 38 and 51. 32.

V. 28. That ſaith] who even now do nominate and appoint Cyrus firſt King of Perſia, who was borne above two hundred yeers after this propheeie, to be the inſtrument of gathering together and ſending home my people, and to feed and defend them, which are the proper actions of a good Shepherd, Ezech. 1. 1. Thou ſhalt] or be thou built, and let thy foundation be laid.

CHAP. XLV.

Verſ. 1. His anointed] that is to ſay, a King by me appointed, and as one ſhould ſay, Conſecrated for to be the deliverer of my people. Looſe the loines] namely, to diſarm them and take away their ſtrength, or degrade them from their authority and power, of which two things the girdle was the badge, Job 12. 18. Iſai. 11. 5. and 22. 21. and 45. 5. To open] of private houſes; as by the gates afterwards, he meaneth the city gates.

V. 2. And make] I will lay levell all difficult places, and put away all incumbrances or lets.

V. 3. Which call thee] who have expreſſly appointed thee therefore: and as it were pointed thee out by name and ſirname, Exod. 33. 12, 17.

V. 5. Girded thee] that is to ſay, made thee King, and gave thee power and authority, verſ. 1.

V. 7. I make] I am the author of all goodneſſe and proſperity through my benignitie, as likewiſe by my juſtice I ſend afflictions and puniſhments.

V. 8. Ye heavens] let all the creatures, heaven and earth concur and imploy themſelves to bring forth, as one ſhould ſay, this plant of ſalvation for the Church. Righteouſneſſe] namely, whatſoever God hath appointed concerning the deliverance of his Elect out of their unjuſt oppreſſion and bondage: or the effects of Gods good will and benefits, ſee Pſal. 85. 11.

V. 9. Wo unto] although it bee an execrable thing for man to conteſt with God concerning his works, or to preſcribe him what he ſhould do: even as if a childe would undertake to contend with his Parents concerning his begetting; or if the worke ſhould appoint the workman what he ſhould doe: yet I will give you leave to appoint me, and aske of mee what you would have mee to doe for you, verſ. 11. Exorbitant wayes to ſhew Gods infinite mercy above any thing a man can thinke or deſire, Epheſ. 3. 20. The potſheard] that is to ſay, every one with his equall.

V. 10. To the woman] namely, his mother.

V. 12. I have] that is to ſay, the world is firme and laſting, onely by vertue of my command; and therefore this my work of grace ſhall likewiſe neither be recalled nor overthrown.

V. 13. Raiſed him] namely, Cyrus. In righteouſneſſe] that is to ſay, by a firm decree of my juſtice, to deliver my people from the oppreſſion of the Babylonians, and by a juſt calling, ſee Iſa. 42. 6.

V. 14. The labour] that is to ſay, O my Church, thou ſhalt not only be delivered, but ſhalt alſo be inriched with the goods of the whole world, and exalted in power above all the Kingdomes thereof, which muſt bee ſpiritually underſtood of Chriſts Kingdom. Of ſtature] the Italian, of great ſtature; ſee upon Iſa. 18. 2.

V. 15. Hideſt] though thou doeſt not for the preſent in effects ſhew thy ſelfe gracious to thy Church, yet thou art her God and Saviour, as in time they they will make it fully appear.

V. 16. They ſhall be] namely, the Babylonians and other idolatrous people.

V. 17. Be ſaved] he chiefly meanes the deliverance which Chriſt obtained for his Church, whereof the deliverance from Babylon was but a figure and gage.

V. 18. To be inhabited] by men, who reaping benefit from all the other creatures, ought alſo in the name and behoof of all the reſt to obey and acknowledge the Creator.

V. 19. I have not] the promiſes which I have made to my people are publikely and openly made; wherefore, when I ſhall have accompliſhed them, there will bee no cauſe to doubt of mine eternall deitie, ſee Iſaiah 41. 23. and 43. 9, 12. and 48. 16. Seek ye me] looke after me onely, and not after idols. Righteouſneſſe] in conſtant loyalty, without any fraud or variation.

V. 20. Draw neer] let all men that remaine in the world, after Gods great judgements, come in the time of the Meſſias, and hear the voice of the Goſpel, which ſhall condemne and beat downe all manner of idolatry, Revel. 14. 7. That ſet up] the Italian, that carry; in pompe and proceſſion upon your ſhoulders.

V. 21. Take counſell] to defend the idols cauſe if they can, Iſa. 41. 28. Declared this] namely, the Churches deliverance by Chriſt.

V. 22. Look] by faith, converſion, and ſervice, forſaking idolatry.

V. 23. In righteouſneſſe] namely, by a decree which hath the force of everlaſting Law, and is the rule of all manner of juſtice and righteouſneſſe, ſee Iſa. 42. 6. Shall ſweare] ſhall acknowledge me for the onely true God, whoſe name alone is and ought to be taken in all lawfull oaths, Gen. 31. 53. ſee Iſa. 19. 18. and 65. 16.

V. 24. Shall men come] to yeeld unto him, and to acknowledge him.

V. 25. Seed of Iſrael] namely, of the Iſrael according to the Spirit and Faith, which is the whole Church of Gods Elect. Be juſtified] that is to ſay, they ſhall obtain remiſſion of their ſinnes, and right unto everlaſting life, by vertue of the Son of Gods righteouſneſſe, which ſhall be applied to them by faith, to juſtification of life.

CHAP. XLVI.

Verſ. 1. Bel, Nebo] names of chiefe Idols of Babylon Iſaiah 21. 9. Jer. 50. 2. and 51. 44. Is bowed down] that is to ſay, the Babylonians ſeeing their City taken, have thought to ſave their gods, taking them down, and ſpeedily loading them upon beaſts of carriage.

V. 2. They ſtoop] namely, all thoſe idols. They could not] namely, the Babylonians. Others, the idols themſelves. Themſelves] namely, the idols, which the heathen were wont to carry away captive, together with the conquered nations, 1 Sam. 5. 2. Jer. 43. 12. Dan. 11. 8. Hoſ. 10. 6.

V. 3. Which are] I have not born you, as idolaters do bear their idols, but I have borne you my ſelfe, that is to ſay, have taken you even from your firſt beginning into my care and protection, ſee Exo. 19. 4. Deut. 8. 31. Pſal. 22. 10. and 71. 6, 18. Iſa. 63. 9.

V. 4. I have made] and not you me, as the idolaters do their gods. Now this ought to be underſtood, as well of the naturall creation as of the ſpirituall regeneration, ſee upon Iſai. 29. 23.

V. 5. That we may] or to make us alike or equall one with the other.

V. 8. Remember] hee directs his ſpeech to the people of Iſrael, which were run into idolatry, exhorting them to converſion. Shew your ſelves men] the Italian, be upon good ground; forſaking the vaine prejudices of cuſtoms, examples, traditions, and opinions, take the word of God and true reaſon for the grounds of your diſcourſes and reſolutions.

V. 9. Former things] namely, the workes and miracles formerly done for the deliverance of my people, by which I have ſhewed my ſelfe to be the true everlaſting God.

V. 11. From the Eaſt] namely, out of Perſia, which is eaſterly from Babylon. Bird] namely, Cyrus, who ſhall fall upon Babylon like a Falcon, or ſome ſuch like ravenous bird. My counſell] whom I have choſen in my counſell: or who ſhall put my decree in execution. Have purpoſed it] namely, appointed and determined it within my ſelfe.

V. 12. That are far] who through your miſdeeds make your ſelves unworthy to be dealt withall by me as innocents, with favour and clemency, and to be defended by me.

V. 13. My righteouſneſſe] namely, my grace and good will, which in Scripture is often called righteouſneſſe.

CHAP. XLVII.

Verſ. 1. Come down] thou ſhalt be beaten down from thy great and flouriſhing Empire: and ſhalt never have any power to riſe again, ſee Jer. 48. 18. Virgin] the Scripture calleth often ſo thoſe Nations and States which had continued as they were at the firſt under their naturall Princes, and had never been ſubdued nor conquered by others. There is no] namely, for thee, nor for thy Nation, for after the taking of Babylon by Cyrus, the Chaldean Empire did never riſe again, though the City ſubſiſted a long time after.

V. 2. Take the] thou ſhalt be brought into ſubjection, jection, and as a slave shalt grind at the hand-mils, Exod. 11.6. Judg. 16.21. Math. 24.41. Uncover] like unto bond-women, which went with their haire loose and bare-foot, Isa. 20.2.4. Passe over] to goe into captivity into a far Country.

V.3. Shall be] an ordinary disgrace done to women prisoners, see upon Isa. 20.4. Jer. 13. 22,26. Will not meet thee] I wil use thee as an enemy in wrath, and as God in my power without any moderation, see 2 Sam. 7.14. Isa. 13.6. & 27.7,8.

V.5. Sit] lay downe thy pomp, and pride, and bring thy selfe into a vile and abject state.

V.6. Polluted] I tooke away from her all that should make her holy and inviolable, namely, my presence, grace, and vertue, and did use her like unto a prophane and uncleane thing, see Isa. 43.28. Thou didst shew] thou didst mixe thine owne proper passions of cruelty, and inhumanity, with the execution of my judgements, and didst not take example by me, to use mercy and clemency, see Psal. 69.26. The ancient] under which name are comprehended all other wretched persons, see Deut. 28. 50.

V.9. The losse of] by children he seems to meane the people, and by the husband, the King. For the multitude] that is to say, notwithstanding all thy divellish arts, which thou makest use of to keepe thy selfe up. For sorcery was frequent amongst the Chaldeans, Dan. 2.2. & 5.7. and Southsayers did beare a great sway in the publique government, vers. 13.

V.10. None seeth] I know no Godhead to whom I should give any account. Thy wisedome] namely, these unlawful arts, which thou hast termed wisedome, in which thou hast trusted.

V.11. It riseth] Heb. the morning thereof, by which may also be understood the day in which it should happen.

V.12. Stand now] a scosse for the Chaldeans vaine confidence.

V.14. They shall be] that is to say, both they, and their accursed arts perished and could not save themselves, nor bring any ease or remedy for others, like a fire of Flax which quickly goeth out, and leaves no embers behind it.

V.15. Merchants] namely, strangers, who had any trading or states-businesse with thee, see Revel. 18. 11.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Vers. 1. COme forth] like streames from a spring. Sweare] which acknowledge and professe the true God: for every Nation did sweare by that God which they worshipped, Deut. 6.13. Psa. 63.11. Isa. 45.23.

V.2. Stay themselves] they doe rest upon that outward profession, see Micah 3.11. Rom. 2. 17.

V.3. I have] as formerly I did beforehand tell my people what benefits I would doe for them, that afterwards, when those things came to passe, their incredulity, and inclination to idolatry might be suppressed and altered, so now I have foretold them their miraculous deliverance from Babylon, that they may acknowledge, serve, and worship me for their onely God.

V.6. Will not] that is to say, would you be so ungrateful, as not to celebrate the memory of it in all ages, and not give unto God perpetual honour and praise for it? Hidden things] the Italian, New things] concerning the Babylonian deliverance, and the ruine of the Empire.

V.7. Created] that is to say, brought to light by my revelations and predictions.

V.8. For I] I had reserved this excellent proofe of mine eternal deity, for this time, to convince thee more lively for thine apostacy and idolatry, thou being more licentiously addicted to it now, then at any other time. Called] thou hast at all times shewed thy selfe inclined to this vice of Idolatry.

V.9. Mine anger] that is to say, I will moderate my wrath, and wil not vent it all upon thee, Psa. 78. 38. And for] because I would not be scorned nor abused by mine enemies, Deut. 32.26,27. but praised and extolled for mine infinite mercy towards my children.

V.10. I have] I have chastised and tried thee by the Babylonians, yet not to the uttermost, as they use to doe your most precious mettals, which will not perish by fire, for I have had a regard to thy weakenesse and imperfection, Psal. 118.18.

V.11. Polluted] by the enemies blasphemies.

V.12. My called] namely, to the participation of my grace, and covenant in my Church.

V.14. All ye] namely, idolatrous Jewes. Among] namely, among the false gods after which ye have gone astray. Loved] namely, he hath favoured Cyrus and his enterprises. His arme] namely, the worke and efficacy of his power.

V.16. From the] I have at all times given you by my Prophets, publique, cleare, and undoubted predictions of many things, for your deliverance, and have punctually put them in execution, that you might cleave to me, the onely true God, and your benefactor. From the time] I have from everlasting been the author of that counsell by which all these things have had as it were, their first beginning; and afterwards in their appointed time I have brought them forth by my power. Now] that is to say, at this present time I doe the like by these admirable prophecies. Hath sent me] some hold that the Sonne of God speakes in his owne proper person in this sence. The holy Trinity having consulted and decreed to reveale these things to the Church: I the Sonne of God, whose personall property it is, to be the fathers word, wisedome, and Interpreter, doe bring this worke to passe, by my Prophets who have all spoken by Christs Spirit, 1 *Pet.*1.11. see *Zech.*2.9,11. Others referre it simplie to Isaiah, sent by God, and inspired by the holy Ghost.

V.18. As a river] abundant, and continuall without any interruption. Thy righteousnesse] that is to say, my blessings upon thy piety and loyalty; or, the right, and well ordered establishment of all thy businesses.

V.21. Thirsted not] that is to say, he did not onely deliver them, but did also provide for them all things necessary, as he did in the wildernesse, at the comming out of Egypt, from whence these termes are taken, see *Isa.*43.19,20.

V.22. There is no] this seemes to be added for to exclude wicked men and hypocrites from the generality of the aforesaid promses made to the Church. Or, to oppose Gods implacable judgements upon his enemies, to the Churches deliverances, or to his fatherly chastisements.

CHAP. XLIX.

Vers.1. Isles] that is to say, Provinces afarre off. Which have no communication with the Jewes, as the places beyond the Sea, see *Isai.*41.1. whereby are meant the Gentiles. Hath called me] that is to say, God the Father shal make known his everlasting decree concerning the sending of me his Sonne, and concerning mine Office; whileſt I shal yet be in the Virgins wombe, from whence I shal take flesh upon me, see Matth. 1.20, 21. Luke 1.31.

V.2. Made my mouth] he shal adde to my Word and Doctrine the power of his Spirit to make it of efficacy to destroy any thing that shall oppose it, see *Isa.*11.4. 2 *Thes.*2.8. Heb 4.12. *Rev.*1.16. & 2.16. & 19.15, 21. Hid me] that is to say, he is my defender, and Keeper in the infirmities of the flesh which I shal take upon me.

V.3. Servant] in regard of my humane nature, and voluntary tying of my selfe to fulfill the Law, see *Isa.*42.1. *Phil.*2.6,7. Israel] I wil by thy meanes unfold, and lay open my glorious power for the safeguard and deliverance of my people before any other.

V.4. Then I said] the Sonne of God his words complaining to his Father of the Jewes incredulity and obstinate rebellion against his word, which he hath so faithfully preached. My judgement] the Italian, my right] that is to say, God knoweth with what uprightnesse, and in what perfection I have accomplished his worke. And therefore he wil crowne me with eternall glory though my labour hath beene in vaine with the most part of the people.

V.5. To bring Jacob] namely, that I should reconcile Jacob unto him, by meanes of his faith and conversion to me. Israel] though the body of the Nation doe remaine in its naturall errors, *Isai.*53 6. My strength] that is to say, my glory. Or, his divine vertue shall not therefore be taken away from me; but shal rather shew it selfe so much the greater, in calling of all Nations, whereby my glory shal also increase.

V.6. The preserved] namely, this poore Nation, preserved unto Christs time, and delivered out of so many calamities. Others to restore the desolations of Israel.

V.7. To him] namely, to Christ, contemned and hated by the Jewes: and who voluntarily submitted himselfe to humane power, into whose hands they delivered him, see *Psa.*22.7. Isa 53.3. Kings] that is to say, I wil cause Kings and Princes to acknowledge thee, and submit themselves to the command which I shal give thee, by the preaching of the Gospel. Because of] because they shal see God maintaine thy vocation, and Crowne thy perfect obedience with glory, according to the loyalty of his justice.

V.8. Have I heard thee] that is to say, I the Father wil assist thee with mine eternal and divine power, when as being fully appeased with my Church, I shal spread over all the World the fruition of that salvation which thou hast acquired; that by thy perpetual intercession towards me, my worke of grace may be accomplished, without any hinderance. Preserve thee] not so much in respect of thine owne person, as in respect of thy Kingdom and Gospel. For covenant] that is to say, a Mediator, and foundation of the covenant of grace. To establish] figurative terms taken from the peoples deliverance, and return from Babylon.

V.9. They shall] namely, mine elect, being thus freed from sin, and the world, shal by my blessing be borne up in the way of their celestial calling, and shal be preserved from all evil.

V.11. I will make] I wil cause men to come from all parts of the World to my Church, and wil take away all things as may hinder their conversion.

V.12. Of Sinim] according to some they are a people towards the South, where the wildernesse of Sin was, *Gen.*10.17. Others think they were a Nation on the furthermost Eastern parts, called formerly Sina, now China.

V.14. Zion] namely, the ancient Church in her greatest afflictions.

V.16. Graven thee] I wil ever remember thee and take care of thee, see Cant. 8.6.

V.17.

V. 17. Thy children] thy former desolations shal be restored, and recompensed by the calling of the Gentiles, so dainly converted, and joyned to thee in Spirit, by the preaching of the Gospel. And thou shalt be delivered from all thine enemies.

V. 18. All these] namely, the multitude of the converted Gentiles. Clothe thee] thou shalt by them be made renowned and glorious.

V. 19. Thy waste] a figurative description of the unspeakable number of new members, which shal be joyned to the Church under the Gospel.

V. 20. The children] namely, the Gentiles converted and regenerate in the Church. The other] namely, the carnall Jewes.

V. 21. Desolate] that is to say, without a husband, which is God. Who by the Babylonian captivity had in a manner made a divorce with the Jewish Church.

V. 22. I will lift up] I wil by my power cause Nations and Kingdomes to joyne themselves to the Church, and contribute their favour and assistance for the upholding and increasing of it.

V. 23. They shall bow] they shal submit themselves to Christs faith and Kingdom administred by thee. Or, they shal doe homage to Christ present in the middest of thee.

V. 24. Shall the prey] an exaggeration of the Churches miraculous deliverance out of the hands of most powerful enemies, who had good right to be Lords over it by reason of the victory which God had granted them over his people. And by this figure is also signified the Churches Redemption from the divels tyrannie, who worked with power, Luke 11. 21, 22. as executioner of Gods just vengeance.

V. 26. Feed them] that is to say, they shal consume and destroy one another, Isa. 9. 20.

CHAP. L.

Vers. 1. Where is] that is to say, O ye Jewes, I have not cast off your Nation with which I had contracted matrimony, neither have I subjected your particular persons unto bondage through mine owne rigour and hardnesse, (as under the Law it was lawful for the husband to put away his wife which was not pleasing to him, though she was innocent, Deut. 24. 1. and the father for poverty might sell his children, though they were obedient, Exod. 21. 7. 2. King. 4. 1.) but by reason of your publike and private sinnes. Now this may be referred either to the captivity of Babylon, or to the last rejection of the Jewes, after Christs comming.

V. 2. No man] namely, for to receive me, John 1. 11. A description of the Jewes rebellion against the voyce of the Gospell. My hand] doe not you know me to be sufficient to deliver you? At my rebuke] I am the same, who formerly delivered you out of Egypt, where I did the miracles here mentioned, drying up the Sea, causing the Fish to die in the rivers, darkning the skie with thicke darknesse, Exo. 7. 18. & 10. 21. & 14. 21.

V. 4. The Lord] my word is altogether divine, directed to the comfort and salvation of afflicted soules, Matth. 11. 28. and propounded by me through Gods expresse command, and therefore for it am I hated and persecuted. Christs owne words. As the learned] namely, of supreame and divine learning, and of celestiall doctrine. He wakeneth] he alwaies inspires me with his truth, and mysteries, and with ful knowledge and understanding, Ioh. 5. 20. & 8. 28, 38. Col. 2. 3.

V. 7. Set my face] I have strengthened and encouraged my selfe in the execution of mine office, against the hardnesse of the people, and all other opposition, see Jer. 1. 18. & 15. 20. Ezek. 3. 8, 9.

V. 8. He is] namely, God, the Judge, approver, and defender of my perfect obedience and righteousnesse, is present to beare me up against all men.

V. 9. They all] namely, the wicked, mine adversaries.

V. 10. Of his servant] namely, Christs servant, Isa. 42. 1. In darknesse] of afflictions, dangers, and perplexities, Psal. 23. 4.

V. 11. Behold] but as for you rebels, who thinke to escape my judgements with your carnal wit, and your arts and inventions, see what benefit you will reap by it; for all shalbe but in vaine. This shall ye] namely, all these inevitable, and irreparable evils.

CHAP. LI.

Vers. 1. After righteousnesse] namely, true righteousnesse by faith in Christ, not false righteousnesse by the merits of your owne workes, Rom. 9. 31, 32. Looke unto] that is to say, you beleeving Jewes, who will be but few in number at the comming of Christ, the whole body of the Nation being rejected: consider that your first parents Abraham and Sarah were alone when I called them, and tooke them to me, and yet I increased their posterity to an infinite number. And from thence you may gather, that I wil doe the like by you, by joyning the Gentiles to my Church.

V. 2. Alone] having no children, and being out of hope of having any.

V. 3. Shall comfort] raising her up (by calling of the Gentiles) out of the ruine she was fallen into by the apostacy of the Jewes. Like Eden] namely, the earthly paradise, Gen. 2. 8.

V. 4. A Law] I wil cause my Gospel to be preached through the World, to be as it were a new Law and forme in the state and government of my Church, Psa. 110. 2. Isa. 2. 3. Will make] I wil firmely and irrevocably eſtabliſh the government of my Word and Spirit in the Church, for a ſecure guid to bring it to eternal life.

V. 6. My righteouſneſſe] that is to ſay, the effect of my promiſes, my grace and bounty, but eſpecially the revelation of the Sonne of Gods righteouſneſſe, which proceeded from, and was appointed by God; and is onely ſufficient to appeare before his juſtice ſeate, in juſtifieation of life to all beleevers, Rom. 3. 21, 25, 26. Mine armes] I wil raigne over all the World by my Goſpel, which is the power and arme of God, Iſa. 53. 1. Rom. 1. 16. 1 Cor. 1. 18.

V. 6. Shall vaniſh] namely, at the end of the world.

V. 9. O arme] the Churches prayer to God, praying him to diſplay his Soveraigne power, for the deliverance of his children, as he formerly did in Egypt. Rahab] that is to ſay, Egypt; Pſal. 87. 4. The Dragon] namely, the King of Egypt, which is a wateriſh or mooriſh Countrey, Pſalm. 74. 13, 14. Ezek. 29. 3.

V. 12. Who art thou] O thou my Church which heretofore haſt been ſo dejected, take now a good heart, ſetting before thee thine enemies approaching and certaine deſtruction.

V. 14. The captive] that is to ſay, the deliverance is neere, and even almoſt come. Or, it is a deſcription of the beleevers readineſſe, in anſwering with the motion of their hearts, to Gods calling and deliverance.

V. 16. And I have] Gods words to his Church, as it is Chriſts body to whom they properly belong, Iſa. 49. 2, 3. the meaning is, I have appointed thee to declare, and teach my word, accompanied with my power and Spirit, to re-eſtabliſh through thy miniſtery the ſtate of the world, decayed and overthrown by ſinne, and to preach to mine elect my grace and reconciliation.

V. 17. Which haſt drunke] which before the comming of thy Saviour ſhalt be tried, exercifed and chaſtiſed by all manner of afflictions, ſee Job 21. 20. Pſal 75. 8. Jer. 25. 15, 16. Of trembling] the Italian, of aſtoniſhment] ſee Pſa. 60. 3.

V. 18. Among all] my Church hath hath had no reliefe nor eaſe amidſt all her troubles, from any of hers.

V. 19. Theſe two things] that is to ſay, evils at home, namely, deſolation and famine, and evils abroad, namely, devaſtation, and the Sword, ſee Deut. 32. 25. 2 Cor. 7. 5. By whom] by whoſe example that hath ſuffered the like afflictions, Lam. 2. 13. the meaning is. Thine evils are extreame, and without example; and therefore I onely can helpe and comfort thee, with my Divine comfort, Verſ. 3. and 12.

V. 20. In a Net] that is, catched in Nets by Hunſ-men, and can no way free himſelfe.

V. 21. But not] but with the Cup of Gods wrath, Verſ. 17.

V. 22. I have taken] that is to ſay, that as no man could doe, I wil do, freeing thee of all thy miſeries, and laying them upon thine enemies, which oppreſſe thee without mercy.

CHAP. LII.

Verſ. 1. Zion] under the figure of the Jewiſh Nation, delivered from the captivity of Babylon the Church is exhorted to rejoyce, and triumph in the Lord, becauſe ſhe is through Chriſt delivered from all her ſpirituall enemies. The uncircumcifed] thou ſhalt be no more aſſaulted nor tyrannized over by any prophane Nations which are the figure of the World. And ſhalt moreover be ſpiritually ſanctifised in all thy members, Iſa. 35. 8. which ſhal perfectly be accompliſhed in the heavenly Jeruſalem, Rev. 21. 27.

V. 2. Shake thy ſelfe] accept and make uſe of the ſpiritual liberty which I offer thee. And uſe all meanes and endeavours which thou art able to uſe, being thereunto ſtrengthned by my Spirit of freedome, to free thy ſelfe perfectly.

V. 3. Ye have ſold your ſelves] the Italian, Ye have been ſold] that is to ſay, according to mans reaſon, you have beene made ſubject to the Babylonians without any cauſe.

V. 4. My people] that is to ſay, though the Egyptians had ſome right to my people, who were come into their Countrey, and had received many benefits from them in their extreame need, and therefore were bound and ſubject to them. Yet when the Egyptians begun to tyrannize over them, they were grievouſly puniſhed for it. How much more then ſhall the Chaldeans be puniſhed, who violently ſubdued my people, and kept them in moſt cruell bondage?

V. 5. What have I] ſhal I ſuffer ſuch an intolerable violence? Or, ſhal I who am alwaies inſeparably preſent in grace with my people, be kept here in Babylon, as in captivity, out of my Temple, in a prophane Land?

V. 6. My name] that is to ſay, my vertue and glorious power, from whence I have thoſe titles and names which I have revealed unto them. That doth ſpeake] namely, as God, effecting by mine omnipotence what I have ſpoken.

V. 7. How beautifull] how acceptable and pleaſing ſhal the meſſage of our deliverance out of Babylon be unto us. And how much more welcome ſhal the Goſpel be unto us, which is the embaſſage of life and peace? Thy God] that is to ſay, God hath raiſed up againe his glory and ſervice, which was beaten downe by the Babylon captivity. And

Jeſus

Jeſus Chriſt, the true eternall God, hath taken upon him the ſpirituall Kingdom, which was beſtowed upon him by his Father, Pſal. 93. 1. and 96. 10. and 97. 1.

V. 8. Thy watchmen] figurative termes taken from watchmen that ſtood in watch-towers, who as ſoon as they ſaw a farre off any thing that was deſired and expected, did uſe to call and give notice of it.

V. 9. Waſte places] that is to ſay, thou earthly Jeruſalem, which haſt been laid waſte by the Babylonians: and eſpecially thou Church which art ſpoiled by ſin and death, rejoyce becauſe of the ſalvation which God ſendeth thee by Chriſt Jeſus.

V. 10. Hath made bare] the Italian, hath drawn out; as it were out of his boſome, Pſal. 74. 11. and hath diſplaied his infinite power, which before ſeemed to lie idle.

V. 11. Go ye out] an exhortation to the people to come forth of the earthly Babylon, and not to be allured or enticed by the uncleane and prophane commodities thereof. And an exhortation to all the Church, redeemed by Chriſt, to ſeparate it ſelfe from the communion and affection of the world, and the corruptions and idolatries thereof, 2 Cor. 6. 17. Gal. 1. 4. Be ye clean] namely, you ſacred Officers, to whom it belongeth to carry thoſe veſſels and ornaments which belong to the Temple: and thereby are ſpiritually meant all beleevers, whereof every one carrieth a veſſell ſacred to the Lord, namely, himſelfe, 1 Theſ. 4. 4. 2 Tim. 2. 21.

V. 12. Ye ſhall not] as you did formerly, when you came out of Egypt, Exod. 12. 33. 39. The meaning is, this return from Babylon, ſhall be with publike authoritie and openly, under Gods manifeſt protection, and ſhall be like the peoples comming thorow the wilderneſſe following of the ark; and therefore every thing may be done in good order, obſerving of Gods Ordinances concerning ſacred things. And this ſpiritually hath a relation to the mature deliberation and calme minde with which beleevers do forſake the world to follow Chriſt.

V. 13. My ſervant] namely, Chriſt, who is the chiefe ſubject of this Chapter, ſee Iſa. 42. 1. and 49. 3.

V. 14. As many] that is to ſay, Even as thou my people ſhalt be brought into ſuch extream miſery that many ſhall be aſtoniſhed thereat, and afterwards ſhall by me be reſtored into a moſt happy eſtate: even ſo Chriſt thy head, from great ignominie before the world, Iſa. 53. 2. 3. Phil. 2. 7. ſhall be exalted to ſoveraign glory, Heb. 2. 9.

V. 15. So ſhall he] as thou, O my people, haſt received abundance of graces after thy miſerie, even ſo ſhall Chriſt receive the fulneſſe of the Spirit from the Father, which he ſhall ſhed over all the world, Acts 2. 33. and by this meanes ſhall make himſelfe known. Shall ſhut] ſubmitting to him in ſilence and humilitie. For that which] namely, the myſterie of the Goſpell, and of the Sonne of Gods Kingdom, which was unknowne in former ages, Rom. 15. 21.

CHAP. LIII.

Verſ. 1. Who hath] whereas other nations have yeelded themſelves to the obedience of faith, the Jewiſh nation ſhall refuſe Chriſt, foretold by us Prophets, and preached by the Apoſtles. To whom] how few of the Jewes ſhall open their eyes and hearts to the Goſpell, which is the power of God unto ſalvation to every one that beleeveth, Rom. 1. 16. Or in whom God ſhall work by his powerfull and ſuperabundant grace, to bow their hardned hearts.

V. 2. For he ſhall] that is to ſay, Chriſts beginnings in reſpect of his humane nature, and of his Kingdom, ſhall be very ſmall and weak, like unto a young plant growing in dry ground, ſee Iſa. 11. 1: Before him] namely, before God the Father, under whoſe protection and providence the Kingdom of Chriſt is grown up: Or before the people, who ſeeing Chriſts weakneſſe in the fleſh, did contemn and deſpiſe him. Shall ſee him] he ſpeakes as if he were a carnall Jew, who judged of Chriſt according to his outward appearance, Joh. 7. 24.

V. 3. Acquainted] to whom all manner of evills and ſufferances have been familiar and ordinary.

V. 4. He hath born] in the quality of a pledge for his Church, he hath given ſatisfaction for her ſins, bearing all the puniſhments due for them in torments and extreame griefes both of body and ſoul, and by feeling the wrath of God, and death, &c. Yet we] namely, the Jewiſh nation. Stricken] namely, for his own proper ſins.

V. 5. The chaſtiſement] that is to ſay, Gods juſt judgements for ſin have been fully executed againſt him, in ſtead of all his Elect for their benefit and abſolution, whereby his wrath hath been appeaſed, and they reconciled with him.

V. 6. All we] all men through ſinne were alienated from God, and were gone aſtray out of the way of everlaſting life, and every one followed his own luſts and particular ſins. Laid on him] by his Sons one and onely righteouſneſſe, he hath expiated all thoſe ſeverall ſins, Rom. 5. 16, 18, 19. The iniquity] not the tranſgreſſion, nor the fault, but the bond by which we were liable to Gods juſtice and the puniſhment of it, Chriſt being our ſurety. Of us all] namely, of all beleevers, who in Chriſt have a true ſpirituall communion amongſt themſelves.

V. 8. Was taken] into celeſtiall glory. From judgement] namely, from the puniſhment of judi-ciall death which hee ſuffered for men as their pledge. His generation] the Italian, his age; namely, the laſtingneſſe and eternity of his Kingdome, into the poſſeſſion of which he entred after his reſurrection.

V. 9. His grave] according to the cuſtome of malefactors condemned to death, he was to be buried ignominiouſly: But Joſeph a rich and honourable man laid the body in his grave by a ſecret providence of God, to ſhew that with Chriſts death, all the puniſhments and ſhame due to ſinne were ended.

V. 10. He ſhall ſee] hee ſhall gaine an infinite number of beleevers, regenerate according to his own image, through his Spirit and the incorruptible ſeed of his word, Pſal. 110. 3. Hebr. 2: 13. Prolong] he ſhall reigne and live eternally. The pleaſure] namely, Gods eternall decree concerning the ſalvation of the Elect, ſhall be powerfully and fully executed by Chriſt, who by his word and Spirit ſhall communicate unto them the fruit of his death to everlaſting life and ſalvation.

V. 11. He ſhall ſee] he ſhall receive a full reward for his ſufferings, when after he hath accompliſhed the work of redemption, he ſhall be raiſed up in glory, and ſhall gather unto him all his Elect by the preaching of the Goſpell. My righteous ſervant] who hath and poſſeſſeth that perfect righteouſneſſe as can alone ſatisfie Gods judgement for his Elect, Dan. 9. 14. Zech. 9. 9. Rom. 5. 18, 19. 1 John 2. 1. Juſtifie] that is to ſay, he ſhall cauſe them to be abſolved as righteous before God by his righteouſneſſe, which through faith ſhall bee imputed to them, Rom. 4. 5, 6. By his knowledge] by the lively light and impreſſion of faith, which embraceth Chriſt and his righteouſneſſe to ſalvation, and doth myſtically unite the beleever to him, Gal. 2. 20. He ſhall beare] to redeem them from condemnation by his ſuffering: to make interceſſion for their defects, by preſenting himſelfe continually before God, and to mend their defaults by his Spirit.

V. 12. Will I divide him] that is to ſay, I the Father will cauſe my Son, after he hath overcome the devill and death, to gain unto himſelfe a great many men whom the devill held in ſlavery, and ſhall upon them eſtabliſh his Kingdome amongſt the other Kingdoms of the world, Ephe. 4. 8. Of many] not generally of the whole world, but of the decreed number of the Elect, John 17. 9. Rom. 5. 15, 19.

CHAP. LIIII.

Verſ. 1. O Barren] namely, O thou Church, which before Chriſts comming were like a barren woman, or like a woman forſaken of her husband, bringing forth no more ſpirituall children. Rejoyce in the Meſſias his time, becauſe that by the renewing of the covenant of grace, and by the ſending of the Spirit thou ſhall become a moſt fruitfull mother; farre more fruitfull then ever the ancient Jewiſh Church was, whileſt it continued in Gods Covenant.

V. 2. Enlarge] a repreſentation of the wonderfull increaſe of beleevers under the Goſpel, by the figure of a tent that ſhould grow too little for them that live in it.

V. 3. And thy ſeed] that is to ſay, The beleevers which thou ſhalt bring forth to the Lord, ſhall ſpiritually become Lords of the world, planting his faith and Kingdome in it, and peopling with a new and ſanctified kinde of people the whole world, which before was void of the knowledge and grace of God.

V. 4. Shalt forget] that is to ſay, the greatneſſe of thy glory under the Goſpel, ſhall blot out and cancell in thee all feeling and remembrance of thy former ſtate, which was infamous for ſins and idolatries, and wretched for puniſhments, by meanes of which, I was in a manner divorced from thee, Iſa. 50. 1.

V. 5. Thy maker] namely, God, who as by his grace he gave thee thy firſt being, to make thee his Church, can alſo reſtore it to thee again when he pleaſeth. Of the whole] and not onely of the Jewiſh Nation.

V. 6. Hath called thee] hath re-united thee to himſelfe by the Covenant of grace.

V. 9. This is] namely, this ſalvation and deliverance from the deluge of former ſinnes. That I would not] namely, that I would not reprove nor ſuffer my true Church to periſh, which conſiſts of mine Elect and beleevers, with whom God is never angry ſo far as to curſe or overthrow them, but doth onely puniſh and correct them, ſee Jer. 31. 35, 36.

V. 11. I will lay] a figurative deſcription of the Churches ſpirituall excellency, which is like a building compoſed of precious ſtones, which are the faithfull, upon an exquiſite foundation, which is Chriſt, 1 Cor. 3. 12. Rev. 21. 18. With faire colours] the Italian, upon fine marble; the Hebrew word is of a doubtfull ſignification.

V. 14. In righteouſneſſe] that is to ſay, in a well and right ordered manner. Or by Gods grace and bounty; for the word Righteouſneſſe is oftentimes taken for Gods property, which is to doe good to thoſe that are his.

V. 15. They ſhall] the enemies ſhall often conſpire againſt thee, but as I will not be the author of it, ſo will I cauſe the iſſue of it to prove to their ruine.

V. 16. I have] that is to ſay, Weapons and Souldiers have no power, nor cannot bring any thing thing to passe, but onely so far as I will give them leave by my permission and pleasure.

V. 17. And their] that is to say, the fruit and reward of their faith, and loyaltie in my service. Or this is the inheritance which I will bestow upon them, as my servants and children.

CHAP. LV.

Vers. 1. That thirsteth] that are in want and necessitie of Gods grace, and have a lively feeling thereof. Come ye] namely, to mee Christ, who am the wellspring of grace, signified by the water, and of life, signified by the wine and milke, which are nourishment for the body. That hath] that hath no meanes to gaine this good of your selves. Buy and] that is to say, take as a gift that which shall be made yours in like manner, as if you had paid the just price of it. Or give (that is to say, forsake and renounce) all other worldly goods for this, Matth. 13. 44. Rev. 3. 18.

V. 2. Do ye spend] that is to say, Why doe you bestow all you have in superstitions, idolatries, works of the Law, and other wayes to purchase eternall life, which none can give you but I?

V. 4. I have given him] words of the Father confirming his Sonne in his vocation, in whom, descending from David according to the flesh, were to be verified the promises made to David and to all the other Fathers. A witnesse] namely, to declare and confirme the Fathers will and counsell, at which, being his eternall wisdom, he had been present. He toucheth Christs two Offices, namely, of Propher and King, after he had accomplished his priesthood upon earth.

V. 5. A nation] namely, the poore Gentiles, who were strangers to Gods Covenant, and void of all true knowledge of him, Ephes. 2. 11, 12. Because of] because that God the Father shall accompany thy Gospel with his divine vertue, by which mens hearts shall be effectually converted. Or because God shall have plainly manifested himselfe to be thy God and thy Father by thy resurrection and glorious ascension, Rom. 1. 4.

V. 6. While he] while he offers himselfe to men by the Gospel, out of which he cannot bee found, Psal. 32. 6. John 7. 34. and 8. 21.

V. 8. My thoughts] I am infinitely mercifull and ready to forgive, and not hard and implacable as men are, neither am I inconstant and wavering in my promises as they are.

V. 11. So shall] so likewise will I never recall the promise of my grace, but will fully performe it. Shall prosper] shall happily accomplish it without any obstacle or let.

V. 12. Ye shall goe out] namely, out of your spirituall bondage, from which Christ shall free you.

V. 13. In stead] God shall fill the world with true beleevers, noble plants in stead of harmfull, bastard, and wilde plants, such as man is in the state of his corrupt nature, Mic. 7. 4. And it shall be] this miraculous change shall be as an eternall monument of Gods glorie, and he shall be everlastingly praised for it in his Church.

CHAP. LVI.

Vers. 1. For my salvation] since I do proffer my salvation to the world by the Messias, it is fitting that all men should turn to me their Benefactor. And it is also needfull for them to do so, for to make themselves capable of receiving it, Mat. 3. 2. and 4. 17. Rom. 13. 11, 12. My righteousnesse] namely, mine Evangelicall righteousnesse, which onely is the cause of salvation, Rom. 1. 17. and 3. 21, 22.

V. 2. The Sabbath] namely, all the true and spirituall service of God, especially in the keeping of the first Table, of which the Sabbath was anciently the figure and summe.

V. 3. Neither let] that is to say, by the Messias, shall be abolished and disannulled all manner of distinction and difference of Nations and persons, and none shall be excluded out of the assembly of beleevers, as formerly those that are here specified were, Deut. 23. 1, 2, 3.

V. 5. A name] that is to say, an honour and dignity far more excellent then theirs who are called Fathers amongst my people: namely, they shall have the right and priviledge to be called my children, John 1. 12. That shall not] which I will never take away from them, recalling mine election, and of which they shall alwayes have an inward impression by the Spirit of adoption, Rom. 8. 16. Revel. 2. 17.

V. 7. Will I bring] I will graft them into my Church, and make them partakers of all my good and comfort, and will accept of the service which they shall do me in Spirit and truth.

V. 8. Yet will I] I will also gather the Gentiles into my Church, as I have done the Jews, to make of two Nations one. John 10. 16. Ephes. 2. 14, 15. To him] namely, into the congregation of the Church, which is the true Israel according to the Spirit.

V. 9. Come] another prophetick speech, by which Isaiah declares, that the chiefe cause of the dispersion and destruction of the Lords flock by their enemies, was the disloyaltie and negligence of the Shepherds, as well Ecclesiasticall as politick, who are called watchmen according to the ordinary stile of Scripture.

V. 11. They all look] every one hath given himselfe to following of his own disordered lusts.

V. 12. And to morrow] that is to say, Let us not take care for any thing; if to day we take our delights, we may also continue to morrow at our own leisure, words of a prophane secureneſſe and diſſolutenesse, see Prov. 23. 35. Iſa. 22. 13.

CHAP. LVII.

Verſ. 1. The righteous] it is likely that in the time of theſe Prophecies God did take out of the world divers perſons, noted for piety and vertue, which was a preſage of great approaching evils, from which God would exempt thoſe his faithfull ſervants, ſee 2 Kings 22. 20.

V. 2. In their beds] as the death of the faithfull is called a ſleep, ſo is their grave like unto a bed, in which they expect the great day of the bleſſed reſurrection.

V. 3. Ye ſonnes] that is to ſay, a generation given to all manner of impiety, even to ſorcerie and devilliſh arts, Iſa. 2. 6. And of] meaning both corporall and ſpirituall fornication by idolatry.

V. 4. Againſt whom] are not your prophane ſcoffes againſt me?

V. 5. Inflaming] namely, by ſpiritull luſt of the ſoule. With idols] the Italian, among the oaks, which were dedicated to idolatry, Iſa. 1. 29.

V. 6. Thy portion] that is to ſay, Thou haſt choſen ſtones to make thine idols with, or for to build Altars and Chappels, rather then mee who am thy God, ſee Pſal. 16. 4.

V. 7. Haſt thou ſet] phraſes taken from the ordinary cuſtom of common whores, that is to ſay, Thou haſt made thy Chappels, Churches, and Altars neer to the high places, according to the cuſtome of idolaters, for to joyn thy ſelfe to idols through idolatry.

V. 8. Haſt thou ſet up] thou haſt contemned and refuſed my Law which I had commanded thee to write upon thy doors and poſts for a remembrance, Deut. 6. 9. and 11. 20. With them] namely, with idolatrous people, tying thy ſelfe to their idolatry, ſee 2 King. 16. 10. Thou loved ſt] in every place, and upon every occaſion that hath preſented it ſelf, haſt thou uſed thine idolatry, a terme taken from unchaſte women.

V. 9. To the King] namely, of thoſe prophane Nations with which thou didſt joyn in idolatry. Debaſe thy ſelfe] by a ſervile and baſe ſubmiſſion to their wils.

V. 10. Saidſt thou not] thou haſt not fainted for all the difficulties which thou haſt found in the obtaining of theſe prophane leagues, neither haſt thou been weary untill thou haſt finiſhed it. The life] the means to ſtrengthen thy ſelf in this practice, that thoo thou mighteſt not bee forced to leave it.

V. 11. And of whom] thou haſt pretended that the cauſe of thine entring into theſe wicked Covenants, hath been for fear of thoſe mighty Kings that were thine enemies: and ſo for fear of men, thou haſt not beene affraid of mee, who was alone able to deliver thee. Haſt lied] in that thou haſt thus diſloyally broken my Covenant. Have not] have I not uſed a great deale of patience towards thee, ſuſpending my judgements?

V. 12. Thy righteouſneſſe] an ironicall terme, ſignifying that which is quite the contrary, unleſſe he means the falſe ſhews of externall piety, Iſa. 58. 2.

V. 13. Let thy] namely, thoſe prophane Nations which thou haſt called in great troops to aid thee. But he that] namely, mine Elect, though they were carried into captivity with the reſt, they ſhall at the length be brought back, and re-eſtabliſhed in the place of my habitation and ſervice. A figure of the moſt aſſured bringing of beleevers into the Kingdom of Heaven, out of the captivitie of the world.

V. 14. And ſhall ſay] all things that may hinder this return ſhall be taken away, Iſa. 62. 10. Mic. 2. 13.

V. 15. The high] namely, the great and ſoveraign God. I dwell] as in my glory I dwell in Heaven, ſo am I preſent in grace with mine humble, timorous, and afflicted beleevers, to comfort and free them from all their afflictions, ſee Iſa. 66. 2.

V. 17. I hid me] that is to ſay, I have for a time kept back from them the effects of my grace, Iſa. 45. 15.

V. 19 I create] that is to ſay, I will effect that indeed which I promiſe by my word, ſee 1 Kings 8. 15. Rom. 4. 21. That is far off] that is to ſay, By the Meſſias I will impart my peace and grace, as well to the Gentiles, who are ſtrangers and farre from me, as to the Jews who are my neighbours by knowledge and Covenant, Pſal. 148. 14.

CHAP. LVIII.

Verſ. 2. They ſeek me] they make a ſhew and profeſſion of calling upon me, and of ſeeking to obtaine my favour by ſacrifices and ceremonies, but all this is without any internall pietie. They aske of me] namely, by my prieſts, who did both publikely and privately explaine to ſuch as asked them what was Gods right according to the Law in all things, Deut. 17. 8. 11. Mal. 2. 7.

V. 3. You finde pleaſure] that is to ſay, God hath commanded that the yeerly faſt, of which the Prophet ſpeaketh in this place, ſhould be performed with an inward kinde of affliction and mortification of the ſoule, and abſtinence from all carnall pleaſures, Levit. 16. 29. but contrariwiſe, ye doe

finde a vicious kinde of delight in it, namely, in exacting your debts, ver. 3. he seems to have relation to that the yeerely fast was appointed to be the first moneth of the politicke yeere; in which moneth also for the most part was the time of freeing one from debt and bondage.

V. 4. For strife] employing the solemne day therein; which was appointed for you to employ your selves in repenting of your sins, and you contrariwise doe increase them. And to smite] he seems to have a relation to the masters cruelty towards their servants, who had sold themselves, untill the yeere of remission, Exod. 21. 2. Levit. 25. 39, 50. From whence there did often arise contentions and strifes.

V. 5. To spread] according to the manner of penitent and afflicted persons, Est. 4. 3. Job 2. 8. Jer. 6. 26. Dan. 9. 3.

V. 6. To loose] that calling to God for mercy, in this ceremony of fasting, you doe likewise use mercie towards your neighbours, concealing all unjust bonds, and releasing the rigor of just debts and bondages.

V. 7. That thou hide not] that thou doe not draw backe from helping thy brother, who is a man of the same kind as thou art, see Neh. 5. 5.

V. 8. Then shall] thy prosperity shal revive; by the returne of Gods grace, even as the Sunnes returne causeth the day to breake. Thine health] Heb. thy physicke, that is to say, thou shalt get new vigour. Like Plants when the spring is come. Thy righteousnesse] namely, the reward of thy good and righteous life.

V. 9. The yoake] namely, the inhumane slavery of thy brethren. The putting forth] a signe of an absolute and rigorous command, and of threatning.

V. 10. If thou draw out] the Italian, Open thy soule; as a treasure, and store, of hearty liberality. Thy light] that is to say, in the middest of the greatest calamities I will cause thee to feele my grace in joy and comfort, and will change thy wretched state into a most perfectly happie one.

V. 12. And they that] that is to say, thy posterity shal re-edifie my Temple and the City of Jerusalem, after they have layen waste all the time of your Captivity. To dwell in] to cause the Country to be inhabited a new.

V. 13. If thou turne away] that is to say, if thou truely keepe holy the Sabbath, by abstaining from such workes as in their owne nature are evil; and setteth all thy delight in mine honour and service. Or speaking thine owne words] without replying or contending, in a voluntary, ready, and absolute obedience.

V. 14. Shalt thou] then wil I fill thine heart with joy in my grace, and wil bring thee backe gloriously into thy Countrie, overcomming all difficulties and lets, and there thou shalt enjoy my blessings.

CHAP. LIX.

Vers. 4. None calleth] there is none that doth lively oppose himselfe to the violences and deceipts, that raigne amongst these people, and doth maintaine Gods right which is violated, and mans right which is oppressed. They conceive] they doe inwardly plot, and outwardly execute all manner of mischiefe.

V. 5. They hatch] they hatch all manner of wicked and pernicious thoughts, which they endeavour to effect, to bring to passe, to the uttermost of their power. And weave] they weave fine deceipts which notwithstanding shall be to no effect nor purpose, see Job 8. 14. He that eateth] they shal be deadly, if they can bring them to perfection, and catch some body in them.

V. 7. Are in their paths] whersoever they goe, (that is to say, with whatsoever they meddle) they overthrow and spoile every thing, a phrase taken from torrents that overflow, or from tempests.

V. 8. They know not] as they are not inclined to peace, so they never enjoy the sweet fruits thereof. Whosoever goeth] that is to say, whosoever imitateth them: Or whosoever frequents them, findes no sweetnesse nor humanity in them but all manner of fiercenesse and violence.

V. 9. Judgement] that is to say, God hath not defended our right against our enemies, nor revenged us of them. Justice] that is to say, he hath not done us any good or favour, as to his people or children, Vers. 14.

V. 10. We grope] being troubled, and amazed, we have not been able to take any good counsel or advice. Desolate places] in a most sad and mournfull condition, see Psa. 44. 19.

V. 11. We roare] we make grievous complaints and lamentation, with much impatience and despight.

V. 12. And our sinnes] that is to say, we are convinced in our consciences, that we suffer these evils for a punishment for our sinnes. Are with us] our consciences lay them continually before us. Or our consciences are yet burthened with them. God hath not yet forgiven us, nor blotted them out.

V. 13. Oppression] against our neighbour and revolt against God.

V. 14. Judgement] as Vers. 9. For truth] that is to say, all loyalty and equity, is vanished from amongst the people, and hath been banished out of the Land.

V. 16. And he saw] because that through the peoples impenitencie, their enemies have oppressed them, and in their oppression Gods glory hath been wronged, wronged, and neither they nor no man for them have made any intercession to appease the Lord with praiers, and sincere confession: God himselfe hath determined to shew his Grace and Power, to defend his Churches cause, as his owne. And this must chiefly be understood of the everlasting salvation obtained by Christ. And wondred] a phrase taken from men, as Isa. 63. 5. Mark. 6. 6.

V. 17. He put on] the weapons which God hath used in this great worke, have beene the affection he hath to doe his children good, which is his righteousnesse, and his revenge and jealousie against his enemies.

V. 18. The Ilands] namely, strange Countries and enemies.

V. 19. The enemies] namely, the divel, and all that take his part, wil poure out a deluge of evils upon the Church, see Psa. 124. 4. Revel. 12. 15. The Spirit] namely, his strength and Divine power. Or, he meaneth that God will oppose spirituall means. Forces, and weapons, against these assaults of the World and the Divel, see 2 Cor. 10. 3, 4. Ephes. 6. 13. 2 Thess. 2. 8. Lift up] others, he shall put them to flight.

V. 20. To them] to all true beleevers, which are the Israel of God according to the Spirit, and faith: who by their conversion shal make themselves capeable of Christs salvation, and especially to the converted Jewes, Rom. 11. 26.

V. 21. As for me] that is to say, O my Church, composed of true and penitent beleevers, I will rejoyne my selfe in thee in Christ, by the new covenant of grace, and by vertue of it, I will irrevocably and for ever give thee my Spirit, and Word: which are the Churches true goods, Prov. 1. 23. Isa. 30. 20, 21. Rom. 11. 29.

CHAP. LX.

Vers. 1. Shine] the Italian, be enlightned] that is to say, O thou Church, change thy countenance and condition, and in stead of thy former miseries and sorrowes, shew thy selfe inflamed with joy, by reason of the glorious deliverance which thy Redeemer hath purchased for thee.

V. 2. The darknesse] termes taken from the darknesse which was in Egypt, Exod. 10. 21, 23. To signifie that the whole World remaining buried in sinne, ignorance, and a curse, the Church should alone enjoy the knowledge, grace, and blessing of God.

V. 3. Shall come] that is to say, shall be set in the way, and directed to God; and to eternall life, by the Gospel, of which the Church beareth the light, Phil 2. 15. Of thy rising] of the Christian Churches birth, by the preaching of the Gospel.

V. 4. All they] a figurative description of the calling of the Gentiles, who shall in great multitudes come into the communion of the Church. At thy side] like unto sucking children. The meaning is, the great ones of the World shall assist and favour the conversion of the Gentiles, see Isa 49. 23.

V. 5. And flow] the Italian, and be enlightned] that is to say glorified and made resplendent, or enlightened with knowledge, and spirituall judgement; to acknowledge with admiration, the effect of Gods grace and promises, in this wonder. Be enlarged] with joy. The abundance] the Italian, the fulnesse; this is that which S. Paul calleth the fulnesse of the Gentiles, Rom. 11. 25.

V. 6. The multitude] the people of Arabia, and the bordering Countries, shall come to thee in great bands to worship God, and to consecrate themselves and all their goods, to doe him service in his Church. Gold and Incense] that which was done by the wise men, Matth. 2. 11. was a small essay of this prophecie.

V. 7. Kedar] Ismaelites that lived upon Cattell, Gen. 25. 13. They shall come] the Italian, they shall be offered] figurative termes taken from the old manner of service, to signifie the spirituall service under the Gospel, according to the stile of the Prophets. The House] namely, my Church, where I doe manifest my selfe in my glorious effects, and where I am likewise acknowledged and honoured.

V. 8. Who are these] the Churches admiration.

V. 9. Surely] Gods answer, declaring the cause of this wonderfull concourse, which will be the conversion to the faith. Of Tarshish] of the great Sea. First] the first comming shall be by Sea, as a more ready and easie way. Figurative termes. Unto the name] namely in the Church, where God doth manifest himselfe, as it were, by his owne proper Name.

V. 10. The Sonnes] namely, the Gentiles and their Princes being converted to the faith shall employ themselves for the establishment, and advancement of the Church, Zec. 6. 15.

V. 11. Thy Gates] I wil not for one time onely gather all Nations indifferently into my Church, but this shall last untill such time as all mine elect be gathered together.

V. 12. For the Nation] they shall all come to thee because that out of the Church there is no salvation. That will not] namely, that will not submit themselves to Christs Kingdome, established in thee, and administred by thee, by meanes of his Word.

V. 13. The glory] the faire Cedars of Lebanon, and other Trees of value, shall be made use of in the building and beautifying of my Temple; that is to say, whatsoever is good in the World, either in understanding, vertue, or doctrine, shall be sanctifyed and employed for the building up of the Church, see Isa. 41.19. Of my feet] namely of mine ordinary residence in grace. He hath a relation to that the Arke was called the Lords foot-stoole, 1 Chro. 28.2. Psal. 132.7.

V.15. Thou hast been] that is to say, thou Church whilst thou wert restrained within the compasse of the Jewish Nation onely, which suffered so many evils and reproaches from the World:

V.16. Thou shalt] the Princes and Nations which are converted to Christ, shall maintaine thee with their substance and wealth.

V.17. I will bring] my graces under the Gospel shall be farre more excellent and precious then they were under the Law. Also make] whereas heretofore thou wert tyrannized over by those that were thy Governours, I will now have thy government be in peace and justice.

V.18. Thou shalt call] thou shalt be every way defended by my protection. And thy gates] the meaning seemes to be, that God will continually come to thee with new benefits, and thou shalt goe forth to meet him with thankesgiving, Psa. 89.16.

V.19. Shall be no more] thy true light shall be Gods grace in this world, and his glory in Heaven, both which are firme, and without variation.

V.21. Thy people] all the true members of the Church shall be justified through faith in Christ, and sanctified by his Spirit, Isa. 35.8. & 52.1. The Land] the world in the estate renewed by Christ and the good things thereof, as well in this life, as in the life everlasting.

V.22. A little one] that is as much as to say, the Church shall increase wonderfully.

CHAP. LXI.

Vers.1. Is upon me] Christs words. Anointed me] in my humane nature God the Father hath endowed me with the gifts of his Spirit above measure, John 3.34. and in my whole person hath consecrated me to be King, Prophet, and Priest of his Church, for the ancient holy unction was applied to these three offices. Good tidings] namely, the Gospel of grace, which hath a reference to his Office of Prophet. Unto the meeke] the ordinary title of true beleevers, for this quality is required in true faith, and is a true token of the Spirit of regeneration. To bind up] to heale those soules that are afflicted by the feeling of their sinnes, and contrite through repentance, which belongeth to the Office of Priest. Liberty] from the bondage of the divell, sinne, and death. John 8.36. Which belongeth to the Kingdome, and Kingly Office of Christ.

V.2. The acceptable yeere] namely, the new and happy age of Gods grace, answerable to the ancient yeere of Jubile, wherein all bondages, and morgages of Lands were freed, see Isa. 49.8. and Tit. 3.4. Of vengeance] upon the Churches enemies. This seemes to be added, to shew that the spirituall jubile hath a great advantage of benefit, over the ancient ceremoniall jubile; for in the old jubile, a man had no way to complaine, or have right of a master that had abused his servant during the time of his bondage. But here Christ punisheth the divell and all his ministers.

V.3. For ashes] which they were wonted to cast upon their heads in time of mourning, Job 2.12. Lam. 2.10. The Oyle] according to the fashion of the times, wherein they used to anoint their faces with Oile in the time of rejoycing. The garment] namely festivall garments, which were worne onely in those daies that they offered Sacrifices of praise, and solemne thankesgiving, Psal 30.11. & 132.16. Eccl. 9.8. Be called] they shall be like unto faire great Trees, well rooted by faith in Christ, firme, and abounding in fruits of good workes.

V.5. And strangers] namely, those that shall joyne themselves to the Church, only by an outward profession, and shall not be incorporate into it in Spirit, and truth, like unto the Gibeonites, Jos. 9.21. and they shall also doe service in Gods Church, in secular businesses.

V.6. Ye shall be] all true beleevers shall attend upon the spirituall service. Offering up through Jesus Christ, their owne bodies and persons, their goods, praises, and thankesgivings, &c. Ro. 12.5. Heb. 13.15. 1 Pet. 2.5.

V.7. Double] that is to say, extreame, as Isa. 40.2. Jer. 17.18. Or, full of misery within themselves, and subject to contempt from others. Their portion] namely, the beleevers. The double] that is to say, the fulnesse of goods and glory, Zech. 9.12.

V.8. For I] that is to say, I will doe all beleevers this good, because I will have them by reason that they shall be truely converted to me, renouncing all manner of hypocrisie, for which they were heretofore abominable unto me. Robbery for] that is to say, all outward profession and exercise of religion, which is not joyned with inward righteousnesse and justice, Matth. 23.25.

V.9. Shall be knowne] by its vertue and good workes, and also by Gods singular blessings upon them.

V.10. I will] the Churches words, acknowleding Gods benefits. Hath cloathed me] he hath compassed me round about with glory, by the deliverance which he hath sent me, and by the effects of his righteousnesse and grace, see Psa. 132.9,16. Decketh himself, &c. the Italian, decked with a Crown] the Hebrew word signifieth a Priestly garment for peradventure a bridegrooms head ornaments, had some resemblance to the Priests ornaments.

V.11. Cause righteousnesse] namely, the effects of h is grace and bounty, followed by the Churches ac knowledgements, and thankesgivings.

CHAP. LXII.

Vers. 1. For Zions sake] the Prophets words in the name of all the other Prophets, ver. 6,7. by which he protesteth, that because of his zeale for the good and safety of the Church he wil continue in declaring of Gods promises concerning the Messias, and in praying him to fulfill them. The righteousnesse] that is to say, the defence of the Churches right against her enemies, and the communication of Gods in benefits to her.

V. 2. Thou shalt be called] thou shalt be set into a new estate, which the Lord himselfe shall create.

V. 3. Thou shalt also be] that is to say, he shall keep thee as a most precious thing, or thou shalt be the subject of his glory.

V. 4. Forsaken] namely, by Gods grace and presence, like unto a woman that her husband had put away, see Isa. 54. 6, 7. Beulah] the Italian, married; that is to say, returned into favour, and communion with her husband, which is God.

V. 5. Thy Sonnes] that is to say, thou shalt have Princes and Magistrates of thine owne Nation, and not strangers, Jer. 30. 21. under the supreame command of God and his Christ.

V. 6. I have set] Gods Word, that is to say, I have given thee Prophets, who are like watchmen upon the wals, to admonish thee by their preaching, and to preserve thee by their prayers to God, Isa. 21. 11. Ezek. 3. 17. & 33. 7. Ye that] Isaiah his words. That make mention] the Italian, that remember the Lord] that doe keep the knowledge and service of God amongst his people, and the remembrance of his grace and promises by your preaching.

V. 7. And give him] never let your fervencie, and perseverance in praying grow slacke.

V. 8. By his right hand] that is to say, as true as he is almighty. Give thy Corne] thou shalt be no more exposed for a prey. Figurative termes, to shew the Churches security, and spirituall tranquillity under the Messias his Kingdom. A promise, contrary to the threatning, Deut. 28. 31. Jer. 5. 17.

V. 9. In the Courts] that is to say, in my Church, and as it were in my presence, with thanksgiving. He hath a relation to those sacred feasts, which were kept in the Court of the Temple, to give thankes unto the Lord in holy mirth, see Deut. 12. 12. & 14. 26. & 16. 11, 14. & 26. 11.

V. 10. Goe thorow] that is to say, O you beleevers, which are already gathered into the Church, goe and meet the Gentiles, whom God purposeth to bring into it. And make their conversion the easier by your doctrine, example, and charity, take away all stumbling blocks, and lets out of the way. Gather out] or pave the waies with stones.

V. 11. The Lord] God hath appointed this to be publiquely declared by us Prophets, that all men may receive him when he appeares. His worke] that is to say, his redemption and salvation. Or the recompence which he wil give to his.

V. 12. They shall call them] namely, those that shal joyne themselves to the Church, vers. 10. And thou] namely, O thou Church in general. Sought out] namely, by God thy husband, after he had cast thee off, Isa. 54. 6, 7. Now this terme sheweth that the beginning of conversion commeth from God.

CHAP. LXIII.

Vers. 1. Who is this] the Prophets words, or the Churches, brought in here wondring at Christs glorious triumph, over all his enemies, figured by the Idumeans, the Jewes perpetual adversaries. Botzrah] a chiefe City of Edom. Died] namely, with blood. I] Christs answer. That speake] who have faithfully promised everlasting salvation to my Church, and wil powerfully perform my promise.

V. 3. I have] namely, I have without the help or assistance of any man, executed Gods just vengeance upon his enemies, often set downe under the name of Vintage, Lam. 1. 15. Revel. 14. 19, 20. & 19. 15.

V. 4. The yeere] namely, the time of the Gospel, figured out by the yeere of Jubile, in which every one re-obtained his liberty, and his patrimony.

V. 5. I looked] he sheweth, how that the whole glory of this victory belonged to Christ alone, see John 16. 32. My fury] all my weapons, and aid were nothing but my justice provoked, and zeale for my Fathers glory.

V. 6. Make them drunke] as who should say, drowned in their own blood, see Rev. 16. 6.

V. 7. I will mention] Isaiah or the Churches words, giving God thankes for his infinite goodnesse.

V. 8. He said] namely, God said formerly, when he brought his people out of Egypt. Surely they] he brings God in, as a father conceiving good hopes of his children.

V. 9. In all] he had a lively feeling of all those evils which were done to his people, see Zach. 2. 8. Acts 9. 4. The Angel] namely, the Sonne of God, in whom the father hath at all times revealed himselfe, as being the lively Image of God who is invisible, see Exod. 23. 20, 21. and 33. 14. Col. 1. 15.

V. 11. Remembred] namely, in many deliverances of his afflicted people. Moses] namely, his covenant, in which Moses had been the Mediator. Or Moses his vehement intercession, that he had used upon the the like occasion, Exod. 32. 11. Saying] the Italian, but now; namely, in Isaiah his time, in the peoples great distresse, neere the time of the Babylonian captivity. Where is] that is to say, God seemeth to have given over the conduct of his people, the outward conduct by his Word, and the inward conduct by his Spirit. With the shepherd] the Italian, with the shepherds; namely, by the ministerie of Moses and Aaron, Exod. 34. 10. Psal. 77. 20.

V. 12. With his] that is to say, he accompanied Moses his ministerie with his glorious and divine power.

V. 15. The sounding] the Italian, the commotion; the fervency of that fatherly affection which thou formerly shewest.

V. 16. Though Abraham] though we are so much degenerate, that if Abraham were alive againe, he would hardly acknowledge us to be his children.

V. 17. Made us to erre] that is to say, thou hast by thy just judgement taken away the conduct of thy Spirit from us, and hast forsaken and left us to our own blinde lusts; and for a height of punishment hast given us over to the spirit of error, see Job 12. 16. Thy servants sake] namely, the ancient Fathers, with whom God made his Covenant, and who did also faithfully keep it: for whose sake he prayeth God to be mercifull to their posterity.

V. 18. Have possessed it] namely, the countrey which thou hadst promised us we should enjoy for ever.

V. 19. Not called] not accepted for thine own, nor called by thy Name, as children are by their fathers name.

CHAP. LXIIII.

Vers. 1. OH that] the Churches prayer to God, that hee would bee pleased to shew his divine power for her deliverance, as he did formerly when he brought her out of Egypt, and gave her his Law, Psal. 68. 8.

V. 3. When thou didst] namely, in the old daies, in the deliverance out of Egypt, in the bringing of thy people through the wildernesse, and in the bringing of them into the land of Canaan.

V. 5. Thou meetest] thou wert most bountifull of thy favours towards this people that did endeavour to serve thee, and doe good works with a willing heart. Remember] Isaiah his words, the meaning is, when thou hast executed thy judgements upon thy people by the Babylonians, they will turn unto thee in their captivity, and will call upon thee with a sincere confession of their sinnes, Levit. 26. 39. Dan. 9. 4.

V. 6. We are all] we acknowledge that our persons, and our actions, even the most praise worthy of them, namely, those wherewith we did thy service, were all contaminated with hypocrisie, prophaneness, or some other vices, wherefore thou hast rejected us as abominable. Taken us away] namely, out of thy sight, out of the blessed country into captivity.

V. 7. For thou hast] because that for our sinnes thou hast withdrawn thy grace and Spirit from us, we have had no motion to call upon thee, nor have had no lively attraction of faith. Because of] making our sins to be the punishment of them, and us sinners the executioners: in so much as thou hast forsaken us to our sinnes, to heap up the measure of them, and to draw thy punishments upon us, and also to give an occasion for mens vengeance to come upon us, see Job 8. 4.

V. 8. But now] a representation of what the faithfull will say in the time of their conversion, and after Gods punishments.

V. 11. Our holy] namely, thy Temple, which was our onely honour above all other Nations, as having with us Gods holy seat upon earth, by whose presence also we were sanctified.

V. 12. Refrain thy selfe] namely, from being moved to mercy towards us, and to just wrath against our enemies.

CHAP. LXV.

Vers. 1. I Am sought] that is to say, I am called upon by the Gentiles, which are converted by my grace, whereas before they were altogether strangers unto me, Ephes. 2. 12. Others expound it, I have caused my selfe to be found, or I have proffered my selfe.

V. 2. I have] that is to say, the Jews have hardned themselves against the Gospel preached by the Prophets and Apostles, and by Christ himself.

V. 3. In gardens] according to the custome and manner of idolaters. Now these impieties which reigned in Isaiahs time, are here set downe for an example of the peoples revolt in Christs time; for otherwise, at Christs comming, and afterwards, they were very free from any outward idolatrie. Upon altars of brick] the Italian, upon bricks; he seems to meane the house tops, which were made like terraces paved with bricks, upon which the idolaters did use to burne incense to the host of Heaven, Jer. 19. 13. setting up little altars of brick for that purpose, 2 Kings 23. 12. Zeph. 1. 5.

V. 4. Which remain] which use necromancy, and raising up of the spirits of dead men, and other devilish arts, Deut. 18. 11. Isa. 8. 19. In the monuments] the Italian, in remote places; that is to say, in solitary and unhabited places, where the Devil useth to appeare to his ministers. Swines flesh] which was forbidden by the Law as unclean, Lev. 11. 7. Deut. 14. 8.

V. 5. Which say] which use prophane Ceremonies and Devotions that are taught by the Devil, to purifie themselves above the common sort of people, Isa. 66. 17. Smoak] that is to say, the cause and object of mine anger, signified by the smoak, and by the fire of the nostrils.

V. 6. It is written] that is to say, I doe remember it, Deuter. 32. 34. Mal. 3. 16. Into their bosome] that is to say, abundantly and fully, see Psal. 79. 12.

V. 7. Your iniquities] that is to say, since you will imitate your idolatrous fathers, and heap up their measure, I will make as it were a bundle of your sinnes and theirs, to send a generall and finall punishment upon the whole body of the people for them, see Mat. 23. 32.

V. 8. As the new wine] that is to say, I will nevertheless moderate my judgements towards you for mine Elects sake, who will bear good fruits of justice and holinesse, as if one had resolved to pull up a barren vineyard quite, yet should nevertheless refraine in part, by reason of some good fruitfull vine-plants that were in it, see Jer. 8. 13.

V. 9. I will] a description of the return from Babylon, and the re-inhabing of the land, under the figure of which is understood the last conversion of the Jews to Christ, Rom. 11. 25. 26.

V. 10. Sharon] names of Countries that were exceeding fruitfull, Isa. 35. 2. Hos. 2. 15. the meaning is, I will feed my Church abundantly with my graces, Psal. 23. 1.

V. 11. Prepare] according to the custom of idolaters, who set tables furnished with food before idols, or in honour of them, made great feasts with the flesh of their sacrifices. Others will have this to have a speciall relation to a certain custome which was in Egypt, where on the last day of the yeere the Idolaters did use to set tables furnished in that manner with meat before their idols. to thank them for the plenty of the yeer that was past, and to pray unto them for the fruitfulnesse of the next yeere. For that troup] the Italian, for the planet Gad; many thinke it means the planet called Jupiter, held to be happy and fortunate. Number] the Italian, Meni; this they hold to signifie Mercury, which is held to bee favourable to Merchants, and men that keepe accompts, with which opinions the signification of the Hebrew words doe seeme to concur.

V. 12. Number you] to the end that none of you may escape, he makes an allusion to Meni, the planet of numbers.

V. 15. Ye shall leave] that is to say, after your death your memory shall be accursed, and of your name shall be made a formulary of curse and execration, which is to this day seen in the name of Jew. And call] in stead of Jews, according to the flesh, he shall call his Elect the children of God in Christ, or Christians.

V. 16. That he] all true content and peace of Spirit and Conscience shall be grounded upon God, and the truth of the promises of his grace: Or men shall direct their prayers onely to the true God. The former troubles] I shall pour out my graces by the Messias to the remission of sins, and delivering of men from all evils.

V. 17. I create] in Christ I will re-establish the world in a new state: not in respect of the materiall substance of it, but in regard of the qualities, order, and government of the intellectuall world, which is the Church, as well in this life as in the eternall life, whereunto shall be added the change of the forme of the universe at Christs last comming, Psal. 102, 26. Rom. 8. 21. 2 Pet. 3. 10.

V. 18. I create] through Christ I will cause my Church to enjoy perfect and eternall happinesse.

V. 20. There shall] figurative sayings, whereof the meaning is, That true beleevers, members of the Church, shall grow on in their spirituall life, untill they come to the age of perfect man, Ephes. 4. 13. in which state, without decaying or varying, they shall continue for ever. Shall die] a continuation of the same sence; namely, of the eternity of spirituall life, described by the figure of long life amongst men, as if so be that humane age were so long that he that died at a hundred years of age, should be accounted as a childe, or had provoked Gods curse by some grievous sin, see Zech 8. 4.

V. 22. They shall not] a spirituall promise opposite to the temporall curse of the Law, Levit. 26. 16. Deut. 28. 30. Of a tree] namely, of such trees as live long, as oaks and the like, this reason hath a relation to vers. 20. Shall long enjoy] the Italian, Shall cause to grow aged; that is to say, they shall persevere unto the end of their vocation, to bear the true fruits of the spirit, Psal 92. 14. for which they shall receive the reward of everlasting life.

V. 23. They shall not labour] this reason hath a relation to vers. 21. Trouble] namely, of children who by chance of war might be slain or taken prisoners, Deut. 28. 41. Hos. 9. 12. or for whom the fathers may stand in continuall fear in the time of publike calamities. With them] the Italian addeth, and they shall have their off-spring with them; which is opposite to the carrying away of children from their parents in the time of war.

V. 25. Dust] that is to say, He shall be held to his first condemnation, which was to lick the dust, Gen. 3. 14. without touching either plants or beasts; a figure of the Devil, whose power is limited within the world and the children thereof, Ephes. 2. 2. and cannot exercise it to the ruine of Gods children, who are citizens of Heaven, Luke 10. 17, 18. 1 John 5. 18.

CHAP LXVI.

Verſ. 1. Where is the houſe] as much as to ſay, Thinke you then, O carnall Jews, to keep me ſhut up in your Temple, ſo that I ſhall not bee able to part from thence for your ſinnes ?

V. 2. Mine hand] I am the creator, and conſequently owner and poſſeſſor of all my creatures, and therefore make no account of hypocrites offerings, but doe reſpect the true repentance and humble faith and devotion of true beleevers.

V. 3. He that killeth] that is to ſay, All your ceremonies and ſacrifices are abominable to me, and as diſtaſtefull as offences, by reaſon of your hypocriſie and internall impiety, ſee Prov. 15. 8. and 21. 27. Iſa. 1. 11. Have choſen] ſeeing they have purpoſely given themſelves to follow their owne ſenſes and vicious inclinations, forſaking my Law.

V. 4. I alſo] I will uſe them according to their deeds, ſee Levit. 26. 28.

V. 5. Heare] this ſpeech is directed to the remainder of good beleeving Jews under the Goſpel, who were perſecuted by their owne brethren for their faith in Chriſt, 1 Theſſ. 2. 14. Said] in a prophane kinde of ſcorn, as if they did require of Chriſt ſome glorious ſigne of his deitie, or making a mocke at thoſe things which he foretold concerning his laſt comming in glory, ſee Iſa. 5. 19. 2 Pet. 3. 3, 4.

V. 6. A voice of] a propheticall deſcription of the laſt deſtruction of Jeruſalem and the Temple by the Romanes.

V. 7. She brought forth] namely, the ſpirituall Jeruſalem, which is the Chriſtian Church; hath by her preaching, in very ſmall time, converted an innumerable company of Gentiles to God, in the place of the unbeleeving Jewes. Of a man-childe] namely, good and bold Chriſtians, ſtrong in faith; figurative termes, unleſſe he means Chriſt himſelf, who is formed by faith in every beleevers heart, Galat. 4. 19.

V. 9. Shall I bring] that is to ſay, this wonder ought to ceaſe, if ye conſider mine infinite power, whereof there appears ſmall beams in the order of nature.

V. 11. That ye may ſuck] that ye may be nurſed and brought up in faith, knowledge, and other Chriſtian vertues in the militant Church, untill you attain to the glory of the triumphant Church in Heaven.

V. 12. Peace] that is to ſay, all manner of happineſſe. Ye ſhall be born upon] like little tender babes by your mother the Church, and by all thoſe that ſhall be employed in her and your ſervice.

V. 14. And your bones] you ſhall be revived and ſtrengthened, where as before you were dead, and like dry bones, ſee Ezek. 37. 1, 4, 11.

V. 15. The Lord will come] this may be underſtood of Gods particular judgements; but it is fully and principally meant of the laſt and generall judgement. To render] that is to ſay, to pronounce the ſentence, and execute the condemnation upon the ungodly, Rom. 2. 8.

V. 17. They that] under theſe idolatrous abominations, wherewith the people defiled themſelves in the dayes of Iſaiah are comprehended, all the unbeleeving Jews ſinnes and their apoſtaſie, as Iſaiah 65. 3, 4. Behinde one tree] the Italian, after Ahad; that is to ſay, following the idolatry of Ahad, which was a Syrian idol, that repreſented the ſunne. Others expound it, behinde Ahad, that is to ſay, behinde his Temple. In the midſt] as who ſhould ſay, that do waſh openly in all mens ſight, for your pagan ſuperſtitions were often times contrary to naturall honeſty. Swines fleſh] that is to ſay, unclean things ſtrictly forbidden in the Law, Levit. 11. 7, 29. Deut. 14. 8.

V. 18. For I know] ſeeing my people have defiled themſelves to the uttermoſt, I will ſhortly reprove them, and call the Gentiles in their place, to whom I will reveal my grace and glorious ſalvation acquired by the Meſſias, ſee 2 Cor. 4. 6.

V. 19. And I will ſet] that is to ſay, I will ſave thoſe whom I have choſen amongſt the Jews, of which he had ſpoken, verſ. 5. which ſhall be marked with my mark, Epheſ. 1. 13. 2 Tim. 2. 19. Rev. 7. 3. and amongſt them will I chuſe mine Apoſtles as mine Ambaſſadors, who ſhall carry my banners, that is to ſay, the undoubted proofs of my Spirit, Hebr. 2. 4. to go and preach my Goſpel to the Gentiles. Tarſhiſh] namely, the great ſea; Pul is a nation towards the ſouth; Lud or Lidia towards the eaſt, Gen. 10. 22. Tubal towards the north, Gen. 10. 2. and Javan, that is to ſay, Greece, towards the weſt, and by theſe is meant the whole world. Seen my glory] namely, my glorious deliverance, the revelation of my ſoveraign mercy, the manifeſtation of my Kingdom in my Sons perſon, and the deſtruction of all falſe gods.

V. 20. They ſhall bring] that is to ſay, they ſhall gather all the beleevers, ſpirituall brothers to the true Iſraelites into the univerſall Church, which is the heavenly Jeruſalem, the Lord lending all means and helps which ſhall be needfull for this converſion, which means are here ſet down in figurative tearms. For an offering] ſee Rom. 15. 16. Phil. 2. 17.

V. 21. Take of them] I will even amongſt the Gentiles chuſe Miniſters of my Goſpel, and Paſtors of my Church.

V. 22. Remain] that is to ſay, the true beleevers, begotten by the incorruptible ſeed of Gods

Word in the Church ſhall for ever remain in my favour, even as the glory and ſtate of happineſſe which I have prepared for them is alſo eternall.

V. 23. That from one] the Italian, that from new moon to new, &c. that is to ſay, all Nations ſhall continually ſerve me in my Church in ſpirit and truth: termes taken from the ſolemne and publike ſervice which was yeelded to God on feſtivall dayes.

V. 24. And look upon] they ſhall be ſpectators of my judgements upon the wicked, and eſpecially of the finall and univerſall judgement. Their worm] he calls the inward gnawing of the Conſcience ſo, accompanied with eternall torments.

THE BOOKE OF THE Prophet IEREMIAH.

ARGUMENT.

AS the Lord never failed in raiſing up of great inſtruments of comfort and deliverance to his Church in her extreameſt neceſſities and calamities: So did he alſo in her greateſt and horribleſt depravations, ſend her excellent Miniſters to beare up the imminent ruine, and to interpoſe themſelves between the wrath of God and men, enclining the ones rebellion to repentance, and to appeaſe Gods wrath by prayers and interceſſions; and in defaults of one or the other, to juſtifie at leaſt Gods judgements, and condemne the rebellious and hardned world: This did he eſpecially doe by the means of Jeremiah to the Jewiſh Nation. For the whole ſtate and government, both Politick and Eccleſiaſticall, being corrupted and perverted, Gods Service neglected, polluted, and almoſt annihilated by publike idolatries, and the common courſe of life defiled by all manner of raigning ſinnes, and finally all forme and appearance of a Church being almoſt cancelled and extinguiſhed, and God being almoſt ready to dart out his laſt ſentence, he would firſt raiſe up Jeremiah of the prieſtly ſtocke, and beſides divinely called to the office of Prophet, and endowed with all the moſt eminent qualities belonging unto it, for to oppoſe himſelfe to that torrent of evils by lively reprehenſions, denunciations, and proteſtations, and to try whether he could call them to repentance, before the fulneſſe of Gods judgements did overflow. But all theſe remedies of grace, and means of reconciliation proving unprofitable, being overcome by the peoples untamed malice, he was at the laſt employed to denounce the decree of their laſt ruine, which did hang over their heads by the Caldeans: who by the deſolation of Jeruſalem and the Temple, ſhould ſubvert the Kingdome, and the whole body and forme of a common wealth, and ſhould carry away the people into a long captivity. Reſerving nevertheleſſe, after the manner of all Prophets, for the remnant of the Elect and true beleevers, excellent promiſes of grace, and aſſurances of preſervation, and of returning from Babylon at ſeventy yeers end, and of their temporall re-eſtabliſhment; and eſpecially of their eternall ſalvation by Chriſt the onely foundation, and lively root of hope and reſtauration to all the fathers: of whoſe Comming, Covenant, Benefit, Kingdome, and Prieſthood, he propheſieth in divers places in a moſt divine and high ſtraine. And to ſhew that Gods Juſtice was not aſleep concerning other Nations, which had been occaſions of corruption or ſtumbling blocks to the people, or had been aſſiſting to the deſtruction of them. God gives him a Commiſſion to propheſie againſt them alſo, and to tell them that they ſhould be involved in the same inundation of the Chaldeans. And especially, he causeth him to thunder out his most fierce and thundering threatnings upon the head of Babylon. In the exercise of this his Office, there may be discerned in him, not onely a most entire fidelity towards God, but also a most entire charity and compassion towards his Nation, carrying in his owne person, and digesting in his owne holy bosome, all the anguishes, and feelings of lively sorrowes, whereof the people made themselves uncapable through their owne hardnesse. And likewise to Gods glory, and for the example and instruction of all his faithfull servants, he himselfe discovers his owne infirmities, the combats of impatience which he hath felt, in so toilesome, and contentious an exercise of many yeeres, describing also the corrections and comforts of Gods Spirit, by vertue of which he was able to stand to the triall, and finish his course. To this Prophetick part of this booke, Jeremiah doth in divers places joyne the other which is the historicall; relating how unworthily his ministery had been entertained both by great and small, how he had been contradicted by Priests and Prophets: his person despised, slandered, assaulted by violence, and secret conspiracies; threatned, beaten, persecuted, and imprisoned in extreame misery: yet still held up by God, and borne up by some remainder of holy soules. And at last, how the event verified his propheseies, when the Chaldeans after divers inroads having overrunne the Country, changed the Kings, subverted the State, and carried away part of the people into captivity, did at last execute the finall sentence, by the taking, sacking, and burning of Jerusalem, destroying the Temple, killing the Royall Progeny, and all the men of command, and transporting the King, and the remainder of the people into grievous captivity to Babylon; all this falling out before the Prophets owne eyes, he being preserved by singular miracle. He doth moreover set downe, how for all these accidents, the heart of that perverse Nation was no way humbled. For there being a small remainder left in the Country under the government of Gedaliah who was appointed by the King of Babylon, some wicked men conspired against the said Gedaliah, and slew him. Whereupon the people, notwithstanding that Jeremiah did strictly forbid them, did retire themselves into Egypt, forcing the Prophet to goe along with them: And their persevering in their frantick idolatry, and rebellion: they heard from him new threatnings of their last perdition: wherewith they were so enraged, that they cruelly murthered him, as antiquity beleeved, and left to us by tradition.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. ANathoth] one of the Cities assigned to the Priests, Josh. 21. 18, & Chron. 6. 60.

V. 3. In the fifth] of the present yeere.

V. 5. I knew thee] that is to say, I did by a degree of my Soveraigne pleasure choose and appoint thee to take upon thee the sacred Office of Prophet, see Exod. 33. 12, 17.

V. 7. Thou shalt goe] doe thou obey me without any contradiction, for I will give thee strength, and all needfull meanes to fulfill my commands. To all that I shall] the Italian, Whithersoever I shall; or to doe all those things, which I shall send thee to doe.

V. 9. Put forth] namely, in a vision, for a token of inspiration and confirmation, see Isa. 6. 6, 7.

V. 10. Over the Nation] to declare my word publikely, with a prophetical authority, to the ruin, and perdition of the wicked and rebellious, and for the salvation of the faithfull and penitent, which shall be accomplished and fulfilled from point to point, as if thou thy self didst put it in execution.

V. 11. What seest thou] namely, in prophetick vision. Of an Almond tree] the name of this Tree in the Hebrew tongue is taken from a word which signifieth watching, or being attentive upon some businesse. For the Almond tree blossomes sooner in the spring then any other Tree, and upon this signification is this vision founded, see Amos 8. 1, 2.

V. 13. A seething pot] a figure of Jerusalem, and Judea, as Ezek. 11. 3, 7. & 24 3. in which God would seeth, destroy and consume the Jewes, by the fire of the Chaldeans which were Northward from Judea.

V. 15. They shall set] that is to say, they shall encampe themselves with their royall tents, which shall be like so many thrones, in which I will sit and condemne my people, to such punishment as the Chaldeans shal execute upon them, see Jerem. 52. 4, 5.

V. 17.

V. 17. Gird up] prepare thy selfe to doe thine Office freely.

V. 18. A defenced City] invincible to withstand all their contradictions and persecutions.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 2. Of thy youth] this age of the people, ought to be understood of their first beginnings untill their deliverance out of Egypt, the espousals were when God gave them his Law; see Ezek. 16.8, 22. & 23.3, 8, 19.

V. 3. The first fruits] as by the Law all first fruits are consecrated to me, so among all the Nations of the world Israel was consecrated to me, for to be my Church, Jam. 1.18. Rev. 14.4. see Psa. 114, 2. Shall offend] see the contrary, Jer. 50 7.

V. 5. After vanity] namely, after idols, that have no Godhead, nor vertue, but onely in the vaine opinion of the idolater.

V. 6. Of pits] namely, a horrible and dolefull place, like unto Church-yards carrying a perpetuall resemblance of death, by reason of the present dangers, and for want of all things necessary for mans life, see Deut. 8.15. & 32.10. Or where passengers are oftentimes buried quicke by the Sands, which are moved by the Windes. Others translate it desolate.

V. 7. A pentifull Countrey] the Italian, the Countrey of Carmel; that is to say, a most plentifull and pleasant Countrey, such as Mount Carmel was, Isa. 32.15. & 35. 2. Mine heritage] namely, the place which I had chosen for my Churches proper habitation, and given to my people for an inheritance, by me their father, for a pledge of their heavenly inheritance.

V. 8. That handle] namely, the Priests, and Levites, which were the ordinary Ministers and Doctors of the Law, see Mal. 2.6, 7. The pastours] the conductors of my people, both politicke, and Ecclesiasticall. After things] namely, after idols, and superstitions.

V. 10. Of Chittim] it is held to be properly Macedonia, Num. 24.24. but under this name are comprehended all parts beyond the Sea, in Europe. Kedar] namely, Arabia, which was towards the East and South, opposite to those Islands, which were more Westward and Northerly.

V. 11. Their glory] namely, their God, in whose grace and covenant consisted all their glory and excellency, Psal. 106.20. For that] namely, for idols which have no essence nor power.

V. 12. Desolate] melting, and as it were dissolving for the grievousnesse of this act.

V. 14. Is Israel] how comes it that my people which are my children and free, are by me subjected to their enemies as slaves? Is it because they have gone astray, and have forsaken me?

V. 15. The young Lyons] namely, the Assyrians and Babilonians, see Psa. 74.4. Lam. 2.7.

V. 16. Noph] Cities of Egypt. His meaning is, O thou Judea thy league with Egypt against the Chaldeans will be the cause of thy ruine. For the rebellion of the Kings of Judah against the Chaldeans, was in the behalfe of Egypt, and grounded upon hope of assistance from them. And the reason of the Chaldeans comming against Ierusalem was chiefly for to win that passage into Egypt, which then stood in contention with Babylon.

V. 17. He led thee] when he did governe thee securely and prosperously by his providence, and led thee by the high road way of his obedience, to which are opposite the by-waies, and windings, and turnings of vain carnall wisdome, whereof he speaks afterward.

V. 18. What hast thou] wherefore doest thou meddle or take part, sometimes with the one, and sometimes with the other of these Nations which are enemies amongst themselves, and with which thou hast no communion at all, and from whom thou needest not to feare any thing, if thou wouldest keepe thy selfe joyned to me? To drinke] to draw the Egyptian forces to thine assistance, see Isa 8.6. Sihor] here is meant the river of Nilus, but elsewhere Jos. 13.3. 1 Chron. 13.5. It is a little river between Palestina and Egypt. Of the river] namely, Euphrates.

V. 20. Thou wanderest] thy carnall security appeareth in this, that thou art unbridled in thine idolatry, for he that feareth punishment will take heed of offending.

V. 21. A right] namely, a loyall seed, and the seed of true beleevers.

V. 22. For though] that is to say, thy sinnes cannot be excused, nor dissembled. Is marked] namely, is still kept in mind, and not forgiven: like a processe already informed upon, and ready to be sentenced.

V. 23. In the valley] that is to say, generally in all the valleys which were chosen out by Idolaters, Isa. 57.5, 6. or particularly in the valley of Hinnon, where they did homage unto Molech, 2 King. 23.10. Dromedary] a kind of swift Camell. Traversing] that is to say, thou hast no order nor rule, nor stay in thine actions and designes.

V. 24. Wild asse] by this word he representeth the untamed fiercenesse of this people, that will not submit themselves to the Lawes of God, even as this beast cannot be made tame, nor brought to doe man any service, Job 39.8. Snuffeth up] he hath a relation to the nature of this beast, which panteth with hunger, thirst, and wearinesse, rather then it will come into places that are inhabited, see Jer. 14.6. Who can turne her] they runne with so much fiercenesse upon all occasions, and objects of idolatry, that one knoweth not how to stay them, nor turne them.

They

They that seeke her] even as beasts when they grow proud, and in heat of lust, doe runne after the males, so doth this people of its owne proper motion run to idolatry, not being sought to, see Ezek. 16. 34. & 23. 40.

V. 25. Withhold] keep thy selfe from this unquiet and disturbing passion, which can produce nothing but dammage and hurt. Strangers] namely, strange men, and gods, their idolatries, superstitions and customes.

V. 27. Saying] that doe attribute their being, subsistence and meanes to their idols and not to me.

V. 30. Your Prophets] namely, Gods true and faithfull Ministers, which you have persecuted and killed.

V. 31. Have I been] hath my people served me, and reaped no fruit thereby, as if they had tilled a barren piece of Land? have I not blessed them abundantly, and rewarded them whilest they were faithfull to me? We are] now that our Kingdome and state is come, as one should say, to mans full age and growth. We will be the masters of our owne wils, and live as we please and not suffer the ancient discipline which we were subject to in former ages.

V. 33. Why trimmest thou] why dost thou employ so much art and skill to obtain the favour of strange Nations, to the prejudice of thy spirituall chastity, and pureness of my service?

V. 34. In thy skirts] besides thine Idolatry, thou art polluted with the blood of my prophets and others who have reproved or withstood thee.

V. 36. To change] flying now to Egypt for assistance as Ahaz did heretofore to the King of Assyria, 2 Kin. 16. 17, 18. and both having been not onely unprofitable, but also hurtfull to you.

V. 37. From him] namely, from this King of Egypt, to whom thou now fliest for relieve, against the Chaldeans. Thine hands] that is to say, discomforted, it being the gesture of women in great sorrow, 2 Sam. 13. 19.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. They say] the Law of divorce forbiddeth the man who hath put away his wife, to take her againe if she be married to another husband, Deut. 24 4. and if there be adultery committed, she must die. Yet I have used no such rigor towards thee, O my people, for I have not destroyed thee for thine idolatries, which are spirituall adulterie of the soule, and am yet ready to receive thee into my covenant againe, though I have once put thee away, and thou hast joyned thy selfe unto other gods.

V. 2. Hast thou sat] a description of such as give themselves over to idolatry, under the figure of common strumpets which sat by the high way sides, waiting for passengers. As the Arabian] that is to say, a thiefe, and high way robber.

V. 4. The guide] the title of a wise and loyall husband, Prov. 2. 17. under whose conduct a young woman passeth over that dangerous age, in honour and safety.

V. 5. Will he reserve] the Prophets words exhorting the people to an holy repentance, not in words, but in deeds to reconcile themselves to God.

V. 6. Israel] namely, the Kingdome of the ten Tribes severed from Judah.

V. 8. Put her away] like to a divorced woman, which I had put away from my covenant, and taken away from her the title of being my Church, by the Assyrians, 2 Kin. 17. 6.

V. 10. And yet] and to all her other sinnes, to make up the measure, she hath added the sin of impenitencie and hypocrisie.

V. 11. More then] namely, lesse guilty, and faulty.

V. 12. Towards the North] namely, towards that quarter of the world whether the ten Tribes were carried into captivity.

V. 13. Scattered thy waies] the Italian, Prostituted thy selfe] that is to say, hast abandoned thy selfe to unlawfull conjunctions, which the Hebrews call waies, see Ezek. 16. 15, 36. Others, thou hast runne out, and hast gon wandering without any shame, or stay, as Jer. 2. 23.

V. 14. I am married] that is to say, I have made a firme covenant with you by vertue of which continually, untill the end of the World, I will call some converts from amongst you, to the participation of my grace in my Church: which hath been principally verified under the Messias. Others, because I have rejected you yet, &c. as Jer. 31. 32.

V. 16. When ye be] when the spirituall Israel, which is the Church, shall be encreased by the calling of the Gentiles, and finally by reason of the conversion of the people of Israel the materiall Arke which is called Gods Throne, shall be no more in use, but God shall by his Word and Spirit dwell and raigne gloriously in his Church. A prophecy of the abolishing of ancient ceremonies under the Gospel.

V. 17. To the name] that is to say, to God, who shall plainly, and as it were by his proper name manifest himselfe to his Church, Isa. 60. 9. Imagination] the Italian, hardnesse; or thought, Num. 15. 39. Isa. 57. 17.

V. 18. The house] that is to say, I will in Christ reunite all mine elect, without any distinction of Nations, disannulling all former enmities, Ephes. 2. 14, 15, 16. This may also be more particularly understood of the last reduction of the Nation into one, which was before divided into Israel and Judah, as Isa. 11. 13. Ezek. 37. 16, 22. Hos. 1. 11. The Land] a figure of the Church in this World, and of the Kingdome of Heaven after this life.

V.19. But I said] my will indeed is firme for to reestablish you; but true conversion is the onely meanes and necessary condition of it.

V.21. A voyce] a representation of the Israelites conversion, as Zech. 12.10. Upon high places] peradventure he hath a relation to the custome, which was to goe up to the tops of the houses, upon occasion of some great publique mourning, Isa. 15.3. & 22.1. Jer. 7.29.

V.22. I will heale] I will free you from the punishments due therefore, I will pardon the offence, and amend the defect in your soules.

V.23. From the hils] namely, from idols, whose service was performed upon hils or high places. Or, from any other worldly high power. A protestation of the converted Israelites that they will trust onely upon Gods grace.

V.24. For shame] the Italian, for that shamefull thing; Baal and other idols are so called by way of abomination, see upon Jud. 6.32. Jer. 11.13. Hos. 9.10. The meaning is, idolatry hath been the cause of our former calamities.

CHAP. IV.

Vers. 1. If Israel] constantly, and sincerely. Then shalt thou not] the Italian, and wilt no more goe wandering] that is to say, through inconstancie to follow, sometimes one Idol, and sometimes another, for want of a firme resolution to stand to the performance of thy duty towards me.

V.2. Thou shalt sweare] that is to say, thou shalt acknowledge and call upon the onely true eternall God, an oath being a proofe of the Godhead which one worshippeth, Psa. 63.11. Isa. 19.18. & 65.16. The Nations] thou shalt re-obtaine the ancient right and title, to be called the flocke or body of the Church, into which all Nations shal think themselves happy and honoured, to be incorporate, according to the promise, Gen. 12.3. & 22.18.

V.3. Breake up] that is to say, by a true contrition and repentance, prepare your hearts to receive the seed of my word.

V.4. Circumcise your selves] put off your wickednesse and naturall corruption, which was the spirituall truth of the Sacrament of the corporall circumcision, Deut. 10.16 & 30.6. Col. 2.11

V.5. Declare] a representation of the generall uproare upon the comming of the Chaldeans.

V.6. Set up] namely, to give the signall.

V.7. The Lyon] namely, Nebuchadnezzar.

V.9. The Prophets] namely, the false Prophets which fed the people with vain predictions of peace, Jer. 26.7,8. & 28.1. Ezek. 13.2,10.

V.11. Said] Jeremiahs words. Surely thou hast] that is to say, is it possible that thou shouldest suffer this people to be deceived by false Prophets, that have in thy name promised them peace, and that thou shouldest grant their errour to take so much effect? see Jer. 6.14. Ezech. 14.9.

V.11. A dry winde] he seemes by this dry winde, to meane, the Northerly winde, from which coast the Chaldeans came, which kinde of winde is most violent and durable, Job 37.22. Prov. 25.23. Not to fan] the Corne in the floore, for to that purpose are required moderate windes, whereas this winde is boisterous and doth dissipate and disperse. The meaning is, this scourge will be to destruction, and not to correction.

V.13. He shall come up] namely, the King of Babylon, who is signified by this winde.

V.15. A voyce declareth evil] the Italian, for there is voice where doth reside more malignity is greater than in Dan, and proclaimeth than in it more grievous ruine in mount Ephraim, that is to say, it is as well known here as if it were proclaimed, that the sinnes of Jerusalem, especially for Idolatry, are farre greater then the sinnes of Dan, or Bethel in the confines of Ephraim, where Jeroboam had set up the Calves, 1 Kin. 12.29.

V.16. Make ye mention] a description as it were of a generall Commission from God, to raise a great Army against Jerusalem.

V.17. Keepers] which go about the fields, to keep out Theeves and Carrell.

V.19. My bowels] the Prophets words, lamenting the desolation of his people.

V.20. My Tents] that is to say, all my dwellings, a description, as it were, of the ruine and overthrow of a Campe.

V.22. For my] these are Gods words.

V.23. I beheld] that is to say, Jeremiah have seen in a vision the representation of this horrible desolation which was to come. They had no] an hyperbolicall terme, as if he should say, every thing above and beneath was, as it were, enfolded in mournfull darknesse, see Isa. 5.30. & 50.3.

V.29. The whole City] the Italian, all the Cities; that is to say, the inhabitants of them. They shall goe] that is to say, they are fled into the woods, and holes of mountaines.

V.30. And when thou art] the Italian, and thou spoiled; that is to say, O thou Nation of the Jewes, or thou Jerusalem, though in these thine extreame calamities thou endeavourest by cunning allurements, and vile submission to obtaine the favour of thine ancient friends, with whom thou hast held, to the wronging of the purity of my service, yet all that shall nothing availe thee; for the one shall forsake thee, namely the Egyptians; and the other will see thee perish, namely, the Chaldeans, and neither shall care for thee thy more then for an old ill favoured strumpet, Ezek. 16. 36, and 23. 22.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 1. A Metaphor] an hyperbolicall terme, to shew that good men were brought to a very small number. Or that they hid themselves for fear of the persecutions of the wicked multitude, Psal. 12. 1.

V. 2. Though they say] that is to say, all their outward profession of serving me, understood by the act of swearing, is false and feigned, Jer. 4. 2.

V. 4. Therefore I said] that is to say, I Jeremiah thought that this rebellion was but onely amongst the base common sort of people who were ignorant of Gods Law.

V. 5. Broken the] they have cast off all manner of respect, subjection, and obedience to the Law of God.

V. 6. A lion] that is to say, They have been and shall be destroyed by mighty and furious enemies. A wolfe] see Hab. 1. 8. Zeph. 3. 3. Some think he means the ordinary sorts of wolves which run in the evening, and are most hungry at that time. Others will have it to bee another kinde of beast more subtill and ravenous then a wolfe, called by Authors, Hiena. Others translate it, The wolfe of the deserts.

V. 7. Adultery] namely, corporall adultery and spirituall also, by idolatry.

V. 10. Goe ye up] as much as to say, O Babylonians, destroy ye Jerusalem and the walls thereof. Her battlements] the Hebrew word signifieth, the young succours that grow out about a plant, and by similitude here may be understood the counterscarfes, bastions, towers, and other things belonging to a city wall, which is the chiefe stem or stock of a strong hold.

V. 12. It is not he] the Italian, he is not; that is to say, all that is spoken of his providence, justice, &c. is not so: and have also doubted of his being, for Atheisme groweth in a man by degrees.

V. 13. The Prophets] words of prophane scoffers and contemners of Gods servants, 2 Chron. 36. 16. that is to say, all their threatnings shall come to nothing, for there is no divinity that speaks by them. Thus shall it] that is to say, we will use them like false prophets as they are.

V. 14. I will make] that is to say, thy ministery shall be employed in threatnings and curses, and not in declaring grace and peace unto them; and thy prophecies shall be verified by a most infallible and severe execution.

V. 15. A mighty nation] that is to say, a fierce and rough nation.

V. 21. And see not] that is to say, they make no use of their sight, or they doe extinguish and smother up the light which they received from me.

V. 22. Will ye not] will you be more unbridled and untamed in breaking my commands, then the furious elements of the Sea is, which keepeth it self within the bounds which I have set it?

V. 24. That giveth] from whom proceed all good things which we enjoy, and that holdeth the order of nature in his hands, which he may suffer to go on, or interrupt it, according as men shall shew themselves worthy or unworthy of receiving the aforesaid good things.

V. 27. As a cage] namely, the bird-catchers cage. Of deceit] namely, of ill gotten riches.

V. 28. They overpasse the deeds of the wicked] the Italian, they have past over some evil chances; that is to say, through my favour they have escaped great dangers and misfortunes.

V. 31. By their means] that is to say, strengthning themselves by the league which they have made with these false prophets in their tyranny and ambition; and whereas true Prophets were to reprove and amend the defects of the Priests, these false prophets have confirmed them in their abuses and usurpations.

CHAP. VI.

Vers. 1. To flee] O you inhabitants of Jerusalem, whereof one part was in Benjamin, Josh. 18. 28. flee away from the Caldeans that come to take the City, and give warning of their comming. Tekoah, Beth-haccerem] they were Cities or Castles set in high places, in the confines of Judah and Benjamin.

V. 3. The shepherds] that is to say, Princes and Captains shall come against her with their armies, Jer. 12. 10. and they shall lay her waste and desolate.

V. 4. Prepare ye] a representation of the Caldeans encouraging one another to assault the City. Woe unto us] unhappy we, that through our owne baseneſſe doe lose our time.

V. 7. Grieſe] namely, oppression of the poor.

V. 9. Turn backe] words of God to the Prophet, to whom he shewed in a vision the destruction of Jerusalem, under the figure of gathering or gleaning of grapes. The meaning is, let them set their hand often to this work of ruining my people, till such time as they bee utterly consumed. And according to this the Chaldeans did come severall times, and invaded the lands, Jer. 52. 28, 29, 30.

V. 10. Their ear] their hearts and all their senses are carnall, corrupted, and void of any regeneration, whereof circumcision was the Sacrament, and therefore they can neither obey nor understand my word, see Rom. 8. 7. 1 Cor. 2. 14.

V. 11. I am full] namely, I Jeremiah am as it were full of prophetick spirit, of curses and threats against this people, which in compassion I could willingly keep in, but that of necessity I must obey Gods will, and be the messenger of his wrath.

V. 14. Have healed] they have dallied with the great and deep wounds of my peoples sinnes, and have not cauterized them according to necessary severity: whereby their souls being lulled asleep with vain hopes of Gods patience, are become incurable.

V. 16. Stand ye] consider with deliberation, and take time to know and finde out, whether ye be truly in the right way of salvation or no: inform your selves by my word, which is the onely high way that the faithful have continually travelled in.

V. 17. Watchmen] namely, Prophets, to declare unto you things to come, Isa. 21. 11. Ezech. 3. 17. Hab. 2. 1.

V. 18. Ye nations] all you nations, as if you were all gathered together to one place, come and be witnesses of my peoples sinnes, and spectators of my judgements.

V. 19. The fruit] namely, a just recompence for their deeds, and for their conspiring against my will, Prov. 1. 31.

V. 21. Stumbling blocks] that is to say, occasions, preparations, and means to ruine them.

V. 27. I have set thee] Gods words to the Prophet. The meaning is, I have appointed thee to be a Prophet, and to oppose thy selfe freely against my peoples rebellions; thou shalt feel their malice, but I will grant thee strength for to resist them, Jer. 1. 19.

V. 28. With slanders] slandering, or accusing thee, and mine other servants, Jer. 18. 18. and 20. 10. Brasse] that is to say, in stead they should have been pure and refined gold and silver, but they are not onely mixed, but altogether changed into other base and false mettals.

V. 29. The bellows] tearms taken from such as melt and refine mettals, who use lead for to separate them; to signifie that all the art and labour which was imployed for to amend this people was lost, Ezek. 24. 6, 12, 13.

V. 30. Reprobate] or refused, or false silver that is of no worth.

CHAP. VII.

Vers. 4. The temple] that is to say, God dwelleth in this Temple, and hath no other habitation in the world, wherefore he will never depart from hence, and this Temple shall be a secure pledge of his grace to us, Mic. 3. 11.

V. 9. Whom ye] namely, new strange gods, whose godheads and powers you never tried, as you have done me.

V. 10. And say] namely, that you have avoided my judgements, as your false prophets doe perswade you, and so return to your accustomed wickednesses more then ever you did before.

V. 12. At the first] even since Joshuah's time, who placed the tabernacle of the Covenant in Shiloh, Josh. 18. 1. which was the first place of its setled abode.

V. 15. The whole] namely, the whole ten tribes, which were often called by the name of the chiefe and predominant tribe, which was Ephraim: which ten tribes had been already led into captivity by the Assyrians.

V. 18. The children] that is to say, all of all ages and sexes do run to idolatry. To the Queen] that is to say, to the Sun; called in Hebrew by a name which is of the feminine gender. Others translate it, to the frame of Heaven, that is to say, to all the celestiall bodies, Jer. 8. 2. and 44. 17.

V. 19. Doe they provoke] that is to say, to whom doth the evil and dammage of this outragious wickednesse redound, to me, or to them?

V. 21. Put your] multiply your sacrifices as long as you will; I doe not accept of them, being offered with hypocrisie and impiety, as you offer them. And eat] that is to say, thinke not to be sanctified by that part which you take according to the Law of my sacrifices of thanksgiving: for seeing they are not acceptable to me, those portions which you eat are but onely ordinary and profane food, see Hos. 8. 13.

V. 22. I spake not] I did not appoint holy ceremonies to be the whole substance of my service, as you hypocrites beleeve; but onely to bee sacred signes of faith in my promises, and obedience to my commandments, without which they are nothing.

V. 24. Imagination] the Italian, stubbornesse; or imagination. And went] like to resty beasts.

V. 28. Truth is perished] there is nothing now but falshood and hypocrisie in all their words and professions of pietie.

V. 29. Cut off] in token of great mourning, Job 1. 20. Isa. 15. 2. On high places] see upon Jer. 3. 21. Of his wrath] namely, the generation, which is as it were the object and provocation of his wrath.

V. 31. The high places] namely, the Altars, Chappels, &c. set up to idols in that valley neer to Jerusalem, 2 King. 23. 10.

V. 32. Of slaughter] by reason of the great slaughter which the Chaldeans made there, who shall also bury dead bodies in heaps there, that all opinion of holinesse may be blotted out.

CHAP

CHAP. VIII.

Vers. 6. To his course] to an unbridled licence of doing all manner of evil.

V. 7. In the heaven] that is to say, in the air. The judgement] that is to say, their punishments which hovered over their heads, of which he gave them expresse warnings and evident tokens.

V. 8. We are wise] and yet doe not regard these things which are so plaine and needfull. Of the scribes] namely, of the Doctors and interpreters of the Law; according to whose opinions, publike judgements were ordered, and they oftentimes perverted through their prevarication, Psal. 94. 20. Isa. 10. 1.

V. 9. The wise men] that is to say, those great Doctors, puft up with the conceit of their owne wisedome, shall not thereby escape my judgements.

V. 13. There shall be no] that is to say, I will send them scarcity and famine, and that little which they gather, shall be taken away by their enemies.

V. 14. Why do ye] a representation of the Jews generall terrour upon the Chaldeans comming, determining to forsake the field, and retire into strong holds without any further resistance, hoping that way to avoid this inundation, but all in vain, for all shall be taken and laid waste, vers. 16.

V. 16. The snorting of his] namely, of the Chaldeans Armie. From Dan] which was the border of the countrey north-ward, from whence the Chaldeans came. They are come] according to the manner of Prophets, things to come are set downe as if they had already been.

V. 17. Serpents] that is to say, mortall enemies, against which there is no defence nor help.

V. 18. When I] the Italian, O my comfort; the Prophets words, being wounded with sorrow by reason of these calamities; as if he should say, Where shall I have any comfort? Or, O God, I turn to thee, who art mine onely comfort in this mine affliction.

V. 19. Behold] that is to say, I doe now set before mine eyes the complaints and outcries of the people that shall be led away into the first Babylonian captivity, when they shall feele the continuation and fulnesse of those miseries at the last siege of the City under Zedekiah. Is not the Lord] that is to say, How is it possible that this extream ruine should fall upon Jerusalem, seeing that the Lord is there present in his Temple, and that there is a King of the seed of David, to whom was promised a perpetuall Kingdom? Why have they] the Lords answer, by an admiration on the other side.

V. 20. The harvest] namely, the season wherein we hoped for some ease and deliverance.

V. 22. Is there no] is it possible that in the Church, which is as it were a storehouse of all spirituall remedies, there should be no means to cure the peoples sins, and deliver them from these desolations? as in Gilead grew a balsome good to make plaisters and salves for all sores and wounds, Gen. 37. 25.

CHAP. IX.

Vers. 2. Adulterers] both bodily and spiritually.

V. 3. They are not valiant] they doe not care for strengthning and defending themselves against all dangers and chances by righteousnesse and loyaltie, but onely by frauds and deceits. From evil] as who should say, doing one kinde of wickednesse at one time, and another at another, sometimes using violence, and sometimes deceit.

V. 4. With slanders] slandering, accusing, and backbiting.

V. 6. Thine habitation] that is to say, O Jeremiah, thou dwellest amongst a people that is full of hypocrisie towards me, and frauds and deceits; and trusting in their own cunning, are careless of turning to me.

V. 7. Melt them] namely, lay grievous afflictions upon them, by which the vanity of humane deceit and malices are discovered, and the Church purged of them, Jer. 6. 29. How shall I doe] there is no way to helpe the Church in these extream evils, but by applying of extream remedies thereunto.

V. 10. Will I take up] Jeremiahs words. The fowl] a figurative description of an universall desolation.

V. 15. I will feed them] that is to say, I will send them most bitter and deadly afflictions.

V. 17. Call] the ancient custome at burials was to hire certain persons, especially women, to goe along with the corpse, and sing certain mournfull songs with fained cries and lamentations, 2 Chron. 35. 25. Job 3. 8. Amos 5. 16. Now God, without approving of this vanity or affectation, would say plainly, that he would give great cause of weeping and lamenting.

V. 23. The wise] that is to say, Let all mans pride and confidence bee cast downe at these my threatnings; and on the other side, let every man trust in my goodnesse and mercy, which I delight to use towards mine Elect. Or let him make a buckler and a defence of a good Conscience grounded upon the true knowledge of me, which may produce in him the imitation of these my vertues, to which are joyned the promises of my grace.

V. 25. Circumcised] namely, all the hypocrites and false Jews, who bear circumcision in their bodies, which is a mark of my Covenant, but have not the truth of it: keeping still and nourishing in themselves their naturall wickednesse, signified by the fore-skin of the uncircumcised, Rom. 2. 25, 28.

V. 26. Egypt] he nameth these nations, because that they also were circumcised. But circumcision was no way profitable to them, they having no part in Gods grace nor Covenant. To shew that the Jews, which went astray, had no more privledge then these nations had.

CHAP. X.

Vers. 2. Dismayed] that is to say, Do not worship the stars through a vain superstition, which is but a false and irregular religious fear, vers. 5. Others refer this to Astrologers prognosticks, concerning accidents which are meerly casuall, and absolutely depending upon Gods will, and can no way be caused nor signified by the celestiall bodies, as men have falsly given rules for it: to which God doth sometimes give way, and suffereth them to fall out right, onely to punish their curiositie.

V. 3. The customs] namely, their customs and ordinances concerning Religion, as may be observed more evidently in the adoration of idols, which have no other essence but their corruptible matter, nor no other forme but that which man at his pleasure giveth them.

V. 5. Upright] these idols are framed high and straight.

V. 8. The stock] the idol doth imprint in man false opinions concerning God, and concerning his essence and service, and vaine passions and hopes, through which a man becomes senceleſse and stupid, like to his idol.

V. 9. Uphaz] the name of a place, whereof there is no certainty.

V. 11. Thus] this verse is written in the Caldaick tongue, which seemeth to have been done to put the Jewes in minde, and as it were in their mouthes, that they should shortly be carried away captives to Babylon. A kinde of formulary in detestation of idolatry, whereof they should see frequent examples in Babylon.

V. 13. Rain] see upon Psal. 135. 7.

V. 14. Every man] that is to say, Idolatry hath taken such deep root in the minds of men, by reason of their admiring the art of carving. Is confounded] the Italian, is become infamous; that is to say, execrable, using his art by the means of idolatry, which is a spirituall fornication and infamy, Jer. 3. 24. Others translate it, ashamed, finding himselfe at the last deluded of the hope which he had fixed upon his idol, as Isa. 42. 17. and 44. 11. and 45. 16.

V. 15. In the time] for when God shall punish the idolatrous Nations, their idols shall also perish. He hath a relation to victorious Pagans, who did break or carry into captivity the idols of those Nations which they had conquered, Isa. 46. 1.

V. 16. The portion] namely, the true everlasting God, who hath given himself to his people particularly, having forsaken all other nations, see Deut. 29. 26. Psal. 16. 5. and 119. 57.

V. 17. Inhabitant] a propheſie of the ruine of the Countrey, and captivity of the people. The meaning is, Let the people that are in Jerusalem save themselves and their goods if they can, though the place be strong both by nature and art, for there commeth an enemie whom no power will be able to withstand, Jer. 6. 1. Ezek. 12. 3.

V. 19. But I said] that is to say, I did not think the ruine would have been so extream, I presumed that I might have escaped with some small losse.

V. 20. My tabernacle] the Italian, my tents; that is to say, I was heretofore the fruitfull pasture of the Lords flocks, with their tents, stalls, and sheep-coats, which were the particular congregations of the Elect; now every thing lieth waste through the negligence and fault of the shepherds, that is to say, The Governours as well Politicke as Ecclesiasticall.

V. 23 I know] the Prophets words in the Churches name: the meaning is, I know that this enterprise of the Chaldeans, as well as all other humane enterprises, lieth in thy hands, and the issue thereof is as thou pleasest: thou canst moderate it, limit it, and direct it according to thy wisdom and pleasure. Wherefore, Lord, doe not give them the reins, to let them execute their wicked wils to the uttermost, and give them at last their just punishment to their utter ruine.

CHAP. XI.

Vers. 2. Hear ye] it seems that Jeremiah had charge from the Lord to relate these words from the third verse to other Prophets, and to the Priests, and they afterwards to declare them to all those Cities wherein they dwelt.

V. 3. Of this covenant] namely, of that ancient covenant made with the Fathers, and it is likely that Jeremiah held the book in his hand, or some part thereof, as namely, the seven and twentieth Chapter of Deuteronomie.

V. 5. So be it] Jeremiah answereth in the name of all the people, binding himself to obedience, according to the commandment, Deut. 27. 15, 26.

V. 8. The words] namely, the threatnings and curses comprehended in the Law.

V. 9.

V.9. A conspiracy] that is to say, a generall consent to rebell against me, as it were by conspiracy, see Ezek. 22. 25. Hos. 6. 9.

V.13. Altars to] namely, to idole, for so are they called often times by way of detestation, Ier. 3. 24.

V.14. For I will not] the meaning of this reason is, doe not thou cast away thy labour in praying for them: for if they should pray for themselves, which by reason of their impiety they doe not, I should reject their prayers, and not heare them.

V.15. My beloved] some take it for Ieremiah, or generally Gods faithfull servants which preached in the Temple, Ier. 7. 2. or prayed for the people, but all in vaine, by reason of their extreame stubbornesse. But it is most likely that God speakes of his well beloved sonne, Isa. 5. 1. who was present in person, and did manifest himselfe in his word and power in the Temple, see Exod. 23. 20. & 33. 14. Ezek. 1. 26. & 10. 2. Mal. 3. 1. That hath] that is to say, O my people, I will cause my sonne to depart out of his Temple, which being burnt and destroyed, thou shalt offer no more sacrifices, especially of thanksgiving, of the flesh of which sacrifices, thou didst make great feasts in my Temple, and at the same time committest the greatest wickednesses.

V.16. Called] that is to say, he hath made thee like to an Olive tree. Great tumult] that is to say, a noise, and tumult of warre, made by the Chaldeans.

V.18. Hath given me] hath revealed unto me the secret treacheries of the Priests of Anathoth, my Countreymen, Jer. 1. 1. which they have plotted against me. That] namely, in a certaine prophetical vision.

V.19. Let us destroy] the Italian, let us poyson his food; this is the sence that the Chaldean interpreter gives the Hebrew words. Others translate it, let us spoyle the tree, and the fruit thereof, that is to say, let us destroy the Prophet, and his Prophecies together.

V. 20. The reines] that is to say, the most secret thoughts and affections. A frequent phrase, taken peradventure from the beasts of the sacrifices, which were diligently searched, both within and without, whether they were without any fault and acceptable, that they might offer the Kidneys, and the fat to the Lord, which alwaies belonged to him. Let me see] a prophetical imprecation guided by Gods Spirit.

CHAP. XII.

Vers. 1. WHen I] the Prophets complaint to God, seeing his enemies present prosperity; whereas he for all his fidelity, was continually persecuted and afflicted. The meaning is, I know that all that which thou dost appoint to be by thy providence is most just, yet will I a little alleage some reasons for my cause, because I would be cleared and instructed by thee. Art thou] that is to say, there is nothing but hypocrisie in all the honour and service which they make a shew of doing to thee.

V.4. How long] that is to say, wilt thou O Lord for ever suffer these wicked ones; who are the cause that the whole Country is ruined through thy wrath. Nor see] he doth not know nor doth not appoint what things shall befall us, every thing doth fall out accidentally and by chance.

V.5. If thou] Gods answer to the Prophet, to set him right againe, and encourage him. The meaning is, if thou growest faint for particular and private mens offences, what wilt thou doe, when thou must goe and contest with Princes, which Jeremiah did doe afterwards: and if thou hast not the free courage of a Prophet, but in time of peace and tranquillity, how wilt thou be able to bear the generall rage and overflowing of the wicked; like to the yearly overflowing of Jordan, Jos. 3. 15. 1 Chr. 12. 15. Jer. 49. 19. & 50. 44.

V.6. Thy brethren] namely, the Priests, the inhabitants of Anathoth, as Jeremiah himselfe was Jer. 1. 1. & 11. 18. The meaning is, thou oughtest to strengthen thy selfe in me alone, for thou seest that thy prophecying doth exasperate thine owne Kinsmen, and Country-men, against thee.

V.7. Beloved] that is to say, my Nation, which I once loved so well.

V.8. Mine heritage] namely, my people, which I had taken for mine own, hath no longer been a flock of sheepe, but a company of wild beasts, enraged against me.

V.9. A Bird] he seemes to meane a red Bird, speckled with blacke, which is very wilde, and solitary, delighting in darknesse, and when it comes to the light, other Birds flocke about it, and pecking of it, doe pull off its feathers. The meaning is, seeing that my people imitate the nature of this bird, in loving darknesse, in strangenesse and bruitishnesse of customes, in savage minds, &c. I will cause their enemies to flock about them on every side, and use them in like manner.

V.10. Pastours] namely, Princes, and heads of armies, Jer. 6. 3.

V.11. To heart] that useth true spirituall wisdome, and doth maturely thinke upon preventing of my judgements by a true repentance.

V.12. High places] namely, upon hils and valleyes fit for pasture, which ordinarily are most secure from invasions, being in solitary places, and hard to come at.

V.13. They have] the people of the Land have beene afflicted with scarcity and famine. Ashamed] quite fallen from the hope which they had conceived.

V.14.

V. 14. Neighbours] such as the Syrians, Moabites, Ammonites, Idumeans, &c. who came all to the spoyling of Judea, 2 King. 24. 2. Psal. 137. 7. and afterwards were likewise subdued, destroyed, and carried away into captivity by the Chaldeans. The house] namely, the poore Jewes, which they shall keep prisoners, and in bondage amongst them.

V. 15. I will] a prophecie of the vocation of the Gentiles at the Messiah his comming.

V. 16. The waies] namely, Gods true Religion and service, and the holy conversation taught and kept in my Church. To sweare by my] under which act is comprehended every other act of religious profession towards God, Psalm. 63. 11. Isa. 45. 23. Jerem. 4. 2. Built] that is to say, incorporated into my Church, which is the spirituall building of Gods habitation.

CHAP. XIII.

Vers. 1. Goe] publiquely, and in the sight of all men. Put it not] to the end that thou thy selfe be not any way the cause of the girdles putrifying. Whereby is signified that God who is represented by the Prophet was not the cause of the peoples ruine, but the people themselves.

V. 11. A name] even as the girdle is an ornament to the body. The meaning is, To the end that I might be glorified through their obedience, and also by reason of the wonders which I should doe in their behalfe.

V. 12. Every bottle] that is to say, this people thinke to have a great vintage, to make themselves merry and drunke, tell them that I will send them another kind of drunkennesse, namely, my wrath; which shall astonish them, and make them rage like drunken persons, see Isa. 51. 17, 21. & 63. 6. Jer. 25. 27. & 51. 7.

V. 14. Dash them] that is to say, I will suffer the Land to be filled with factions and divisions, and let them thrust at and overthrow one another.

V. 16. Give glory] namely, by confession and repentance, see Jos. 7. 19. Darknesse] namely the foresaid calamities. Stumble] termes taken from such as goe by night over high and craggy places.

V. 17. My soule] that is to say, I Jeremiah shall be able to doe no more, but retire into some solitary place, and there lament for your inevitable ruine, Lam. 1. 16.

V. 18. The King] namely, Jehoiakim the sonne of Josias, as it is likely. The Queen] namely, the Kings wife or mother, 2 Kin. 23. 36. For your] or that which you weare on your heads.

V. 19. Of the South] namely, of Judah, which in respect of the other Tribes lay Southward. Shut up] because they are besieged, or because they are desolate, and no man dwelleth in them.

V. 20. That come] namely, the Chaldeans which were Northward from Judea. Where is] for, O Jehoiakim, where is that people thou didst glory so much in? see Prov 14. 28.

V. 21. Wilt thou say] the property of the Hebrew word sheweth that this was spoken to a woman, which might be the Queene, or the whole Comunalty of the Jewes. When he] namely, God, or the King of the foresaid Northerne Nations. Thou] namely, thou O mother of Jehoiakim, by the counsell which it is likeliest thou gavest thy sonne, to make himselfe a vassall to Nebuchadnezzar, hast gotten the Chaldeans the right of Soveraignty over the Kingdome of Judah, 2 King. 24. 1. Or thou Nation hast subjected thy selfe to the Babylonians, by infamous submissions, or unlawfull covenants.

V. 22. Thy skirts] that is to say, thou hast been carried into a shamefull and disgracefull bondage and slavery, see Isa. 20. 4. & 47. 2. Made bare] with the irons and stocks.

V. 23. The Ethiopian] you are altogether incorrigible, no admonition nor exhortation will prevaile with you, or doe any good, and therefore I will destroy you without any remission.

V. 25. The portion] a terme taken for the parting or dividing of fields and possessions. In falshood] namely, in idols, false doings, and vaine hopes.

V. 27. Thy neighings] a terme taken from Horses when they are in heate of lust. Whoredome] namely, spirituall whoredome, through idolatry. When] what time wilt thou take for thy conversion?

CHAP. XIV.

Vers. 1. The dearth] the Italian, the drought; it seemes that it was some extraordinary dry time that hapned in those daies, whereupon ensued famine and dearth.

V. 2. Gates] that is to say, their Cities and inhabitants, which held their assemblies in market places, and Courts, which were ordinarily by the City gates

V. 3. Covered] a custome in those daies in time of mourning and shame, see 2 Sam. 15. 30.

V. 6. Snuffed] namely, to quench their thirst, or panting, and fetching their breath short, see Jer. 2. 24.

V. 7. Doe thou it] shew the effects of thy grace and power; for thou art wonderfully good and mercifull. Or to make all men know thee to be such by the effects.

V. 8. Why] seeing thou hast established and setled by habitation amongst thy people, why shouldest thou give over caring for them, as if thou didst not dwell at home, but in some strange place, and as a passenger?

V. 9. Thy name] that is to say, we beare thy name, as thy children, and thy people, and we have been consecrated to thee by calling upon thy holy name, when thou receivest us at our comming into thy Church.

V. 10. Thus have they] that is to say, I doe reward them according to their errors, strayings, and unbridled licentiousnesse.

V. 13. Ah Lord] Lord take pity upon this poore people, for they continue in their errours, by reason of their false Prophets.

V. 16. Their wickednesse] that is to say, the punishment which they have deserved for their wickednesse.

V. 17. The Virgin] namely, the commonalty of my people, which heretofore remained in her ancient state and liberty, as in her own fathers house, and was never subdued by any stranger, nor never led into captivity.

V. 18. Goe] begging their bread, or flying from these miseries.

V. 21. The throne] the Arke of the covenant is often so called, and by the name of that is meant the whole Temple.

V. 22. Are there] that is to say, we flie to thee in this extreame necessity and drought, for thou alone canst helpe us, by granting us some raine. The vanities] namely, the idols.

CHAP. XV.

Vers. 1. Moses and Samuel] by whose prayers and intercessions God was formerly appeased with his people, Exod. 32. 14. 1 Sam. 7. 9. Psal. 99. 6. Cast them out] tell them that I have cast them off, and that I will heare them no more, nor no others for them.

V. 3. Foure] namely, kindes of living creatures that shall destroy them. The Sword] that is to say, their enemies, that shall execute the full rigor, and rage of warre upon them.

V. 6. I am weary] that is to say, I have so often put off my judgements, and revoked my threatnings, that unlesse I should wrong my justice, I can doe so no more, a humane kind of speech, Gen. 6. 6.

V. 7. Fanne them] a terme taken from Corne lying upon the floore. The meaning is, though I have already scattered a great part of the people, by the meanes of the ten Tribes captivity, which were upon the confines of the Countrey, see Lev. 26. 33.

V. 8. I have brought] I have brought against Judea the mother of so many valiant warriours, the Chaldeans, who by open force, like a thiefe that ravisheth a thing at noone day, are come to assault her.

V. 9. She that] namely, that most fruitfull Nation of the Jewes, as by way of proverbe they were wont to say, a woman, the mother of seven children, Ruth 4. 15. 1 Sam. 2. 5. to signifie the great fruitfulnesse of a woman. Sunne] that is to say, her calamities are come upon her suddenly, whilst she yet was in hope of some worldly ayd and meanes.

V. 10. Woe is me] the Prophets complaint, seeing that his prophecies, did produce nothing but contradiction, and rebellion against his word, and deadly hatred against his person. I have] that is to say, I have neither had strife nor contention with them, but all is by reason of mine office.

V. 11. The Lord] I have not set forth any thing of mine owne will, nor spoke any thing but in Gods Name, and by his expresse command. Thy remnant] a kind of an oath. As much as to say, I will surely destroy the body of this Nation, and will save but a small remnant of them, Isa. 10. 22.

V. 12. Shall, &c.] the Italian, Is it possible to breake Iron, the Iron and Brasse of the North; that is to say, is it in the power of me Jeremiah to breake Gods decrees, or to keep backe, or take power away from his words? Or, O thou Jewish Nation, I will send the Northerne Chaldeans which are a warlike and invincible Nation against thee. The Northern] a part of the world most abounding with such kinds of hard mettals which are good to make weapons of.

V. 13. Without] having no regard at all neither to losse, nor gaine, but onely, to the justice of my revenge, Psal. 44. 12.

V. 14. To passe] the Italian, I will make thine enemies to passe through a Land, &c. I will give them meanes, and shew them waies unknowne, and incredible, whereby they may accomplish their designes.

V. 15. Thou knowest] that I have done nothing without nor beyond thy command. Take me not] whilest thou doest use so much patience towards these my wicked adversaries, do not thou suffer them to kill me.

V. 16. Thy words] the Italian, I soone on thy words: I have received the words which thou directest to me, with promptitude and good will, disposing my selfe to obey thee with great zeale and freedome of mind. Thy name] that is to say, I am thy Prophet, and professe my selfe to be thy servant, dedicated and consecrated to thee alone.

V. 17. I sate not] I have kept my selfe from all prophane companies and recreations, to lament the calamities which hang over the head of this people, Jer. 13. 17. Indignation] namely, with prophecies, threatnings and curses, Jer. 6. 11. Or with griefe, and despight, to see the untamed malice of this people, which causeth their evils to be irrevocable.

V. 18. Unto me] Have I in vaine hoped in thee? shall I finde my selfe deceived in my greatest need, Like to one that in the greatest heat of Summer runs to some dried up Spring, Job 6. 15.

V. 19. If thou returne] that is to say, if thou renounce nounce all diffidency, impatience and murmuring, and turneſt to me with true faith and obedience. I will ſtrengthen thee, and will give thee grace to attend upon my ſervice freely, and without any feare. If thou] that is to ſay, if thou doſt loyally and conſtantly, without feare or flattery declare, what the true good is which I approve of, and the evill which I reprove: if thou maintaineſt that which is good, and doſt beare up and comfort good men; and contrariwiſe, condemneſt that which is evill, and keepeſt downe evill men, thou then ſheweſt by the effects that thou art my true Prophet. Let them] take heed leſt thou goe aſtray after them, or imitate their wicked faſhions, but be thou rather a conſtant example of vertue to them, 1 Tim. 4. 12.

CHAP. XVI.

Verſ. 5. Of mourning] the Italian, Funerall banquets; ſee concerning theſe banquets, Deut. 26. 14. Now by this forbidding, God would ſet before his peoples eyes the horrour of the approaching deſolation, wherein by reaſon of the multitude of the dead, and the terrour of the living, there would be no time, nor meanes to obſerve the ceremonies appointed for burials. And beſides either the cruelty of men, or feare of the enemies, will cauſe men to forgoe and leave undone theſe honeſt offices, ſee Iob 27. 15. Pſal. 78. 64. Ezek. 24. 17, 22. Amos 6. 10.

V. 6. Nor cut] according to the cuſtome taken from the heathen, though it were a bad and reproved cuſtome, Leu. 19. 27, 28. Deut. 14. 1.

V. 7. Neither ſhall men] the Italian, There ſhall be no bread ſhared for the mourning to comfort, &c. it was the faſhion anciently amongſt the Jewes, that when any one died in a houſe, the neighbours, friends, and kinſfolkes came thither, and brought bread, wine, and meate with them to make ready, which thoſe of the houſe could not make ready by reaſon of their freſh griefe: and there they invite their friends to eate, comfort themſelves, and overcome their griefe.

V. 13. I will not] that is to ſay, I will puniſh you to the extremity of rigor, without any remiſſion. Or I will not cauſe your enemies hearts to relent, and uſe mercy towards you, ſee the contrary to this threatning, Pſal. 106. 46.

V. 14. Behold] notwithſtanding theſe grievous threatnings, and extreame deſolations, I will bring my people backe from Babylon, and this deliverance ſhall be eſteemed more miraculous then that of Egypt, and the luſtre of this ſhall dimme the luſtre of the other. Others conſtrue it as if the extremity of the evils ſhould move God to compaſſion, ſee Iſa. 40. 2. Hoſ. 2. 14.

V. 16. Send] that is to ſay, I will make the Chaldeans come hither like ſo many Fiſhermen, and they ſhall gather up in their nets both people and goods, Amos 4. 2. Hab. 1. 14, 15. and like Huntſmen they ſhall lay open all hiding places.

V. 18. And firſt] before I make them partakers of of my grace, v. 14. Double] that is to ſay, to the full. Carcaſſes] idols are called ſo for deteſtation, Leu. 26. 30. Others would have this underſtood of idolatrous ſacrifices, oppoſite to true and legall ſacrifices, which are tearmed to be of ſweet odour.

V. 19. The Gentiles] that is to ſay, in the Meſſias his time the Gentiles ſhall renounce all manner of idolatry, to be converted to thee the only true God: and that action of theirs which is yet to come, doth even now condemne thy people, which is ſo outragious in this vice of idolatry. Inherited] they have had for their hereditary God, idols that have no eſſence nor vertue.

V. 20. Gods unto] namely, Idols, to thinke or beleeve that there is any manner of Godhead in them, when indeed there is none.

V. 21. I will this] namely, by my terrible judgements, by which I will make them trie my power.

CHAP. XVII.

Verſ. 1. Is written] they carry it deeply engraven in their hearts, and cannot put out the ſtampe. Or, their conſciences are ſuch witneſſes to it, that it can no way be diſannulled nor gain-ſaid. The hornes] God had appointed that the hornes of the Altar ſhould be ſprinkled with the blood of the Sacrifices, Leuit 4, 7. & 16. 18. for to remaine there as a token of propitiation. Now the idolaters uſing the ſame ceremonie upon the altars of their idols ſaith the Prophet ſaith, that contrary to the other blood, this blood was a permanent ſigne of abomination.

V. 2. Remember] they love their idols as dearely as their deareſt things.

V. 3. O my mountaine] the Italian, O thou mountaineer] that is to ſay, O thou Jewiſh Nation that truſteſt in the ſtrength and ſituation of thy hilly Countrey, as if it were inacceſſible, Jer. 21. 13. I will deliver thee into the hands of thine enemies, as well as if thou ſtoodeſt in the plaine field. High places] namely all mountaines, hils, and cliffs are filled with idols, temples, chappels and altars.

V. 4. For ever] namely, for a long time, continually, untill the determined end.

V. 5. Curſed] this is added, becauſe of them that truſted to mens helpe, againſt the Prophets threatnings. Fleſh] namely, mortall man, ſo called by contempt in reſpect of God who is an everlaſting Spirit, Iſa. 31. 3. His arme] namely, his prop and ſtrength.

V. 6.

V. 6. Heath] a baſtard kinde of plant, which is good for nothing, but onely for the fire; that is to ſay, he ſhall have no part in the grace of regeneration, he ſhall not be manured nor dreſſed by Gods Word in his Church, he ſhall bear no fruits of good works, and his end ſhall be everlaſting perdition.

V. 9. The heart] he ſeems to touch another falſe ſupport which men truſt to, namely, carnall wiſdom and cunning, contrary to faith, ſimplicity, and ſincerity. Wicked] the Italian, incurabile; as diſeaſes, impoſthumes, and hidden ulcers are: hee means that mens hypocriſie and falſhood makes it impoſſible for any one, ſave onely God, to cure their ſouls. Others tranſlate it, perverſe or obſtinate, and deſperate or unſearchable.

V. 11. The partridge] of which it is written, that ſhe gathereth other Partridges and other birds eggs, and hatcheth them as her own, but the young ones, being once hatched, flie away to the right dam ſo ſoon as they hear her voyce. Others expound it, like the Partridge, which gathereth together many eggs, but doth not hatch them, for the cock Partridge ſitteth them out, and breaketh them; So wealth evil gotten, either returneth to the right owner, or is quite loſt. That getteth] mans third falſe confidence, namely, in riches.

V. 12. Throne] that is to ſay, the glorious ſeat of Gods preſence amongſt men, which is alſo inacceſſible and impregnable to men. The place] mans fourth falſe confidence, namely, in the materiall Temple, Jer. 7. 4.

V. 13. They that] namely, turning to other falſe and vain hopes. Written] that is to ſay, condemned to periſh with the earth, in which they have put all their truſt, heart, and hope; and ſhall have no part nor right to eternall life, which is proper for the Elect, whoſe names are written in Heaven, Luke 10. 20. ſee Pſal. 17. 14.

V. 14. Heal me] Jeremiahs words, as much as to ſay, Comfort and ſtrengthen me in my vocation amidſt ſo many dangers and combats. My praiſe] namely, the Lord, in whoſe ſupport and grace I doe onely glorifie my ſelfe. Or who is the onely ſubject of my praiſes.

V. 15. They ſay] namely, the prophane which are amongſt the people, making a ſcoffe of my predictions and threatnings.

V. 16. I have not] the meaning ſeems to be thus, Mine adverſaries doe accuſe me, that by my prayers to thee I doe purchaſe their raine; thou knoweſt that therein I never went beyond the zeale of a true Paſtor and a faithfull Prophet. Others, I have not haſtened, nor intruded my ſelfe after thee, more then was befitting a true Paſtor; that is to ſay, I have followed thy Commandments ſtep by ſtep as thy ſervant, and have attempted nothing by any raſh boldneſſe.

V. 17. Be mi] that is to ſay, Doe not ſuffer me to be in continuall danger and terrour, by reaſon of doing thy ſervice.

V. 18. Double] namely, a moſt heavy, doubled, and entire deſtruction.

V. 19. The gate] he ſeems to meane that gate which was called the water-gate, Neh. 3. 26. neer unto which was a great market place called the Eaſtern-place; at the end of which was the Kings Palace built by Solomon, and therefore it was the ordinary gate at which the Kings went out and came in, and where the people did uſe to come together, becauſe it was neer the Court, and therefore it is here called the gate of the children of the people, ſee 2 Chron. 29. 3, 4. and 32. 6. Neh. 8. 1. 16.

V. 21. Selvet] even as you tender the ſalvation of your ſouls, upon pain of incurring Gods judgements in your perſons; Deut. 4. 25. Joſ. 23. 12.

V. 25. Enter] that is to ſay, The City and Kingdom and people ſhall be kept in their eſtates.

V. 26. About] the land of Judah is oftimes divided into theſe parts as are here ſpecified.

CAP. XVIII.

Verſ. 2. There] that is to ſay, I will there ſend thee a new prophetical revelation by viſion; or by internall revelation onely.

V. 7. What inſtant] that is to ſay, Unlooke for, when men ſhall leaſt think upon it.

V. 13. Virgin] namely, the people of Iſrael, who having hitherto been kept and maintained in their ancient ſtate and liberty in my houſe, as it were in their Fathers houſe, were therefore bound to keep their honeſty and virginall chaſtity towards me in the pureneſſe of my ſervice.

V. 14. Of Lebanon] the Italian, the ſnowie Lebanon for a ſtone of the field; that is to ſay, There is no more equalitie between Idols and me, who am the rocke and ſtrength of all ages, Deut. 32. 4. Iſa. 26. 4. then there is between the ſtone of a field and mount Lebanon; wherefore my people did very ill to forſake me, to follow them. Waters] namely, that are brought a great way from ſome pure and freſh ſpring, whereunto muſt be ſupplied, for the water of ſome pond or ſtanding pool.

V. 15. To vanity] namely, to idols. Cauſed them] that is to ſay, They have been ſeduced by falſe teachers, and induced by evill examples to ſtray from Gods true ſervice, which is the great road which hath formerly beene laid out and travelled in. Mal. 2. 8.

V. 16. Hiſſing] that is to ſay, a ſubject of deteſtation and ſcorn, Iſai. 37. 22.

V. 17. Eaſtwind] which was the moſt tempeſtuous winde in thoſe countries, ſee Pſal. 48. 7.

V. 18. For the] the meaning is, Jeremiah is a false prophet: seeing that all those who are in authority in the Church, as the Priests, ancients of the people, and the colledge of Prophets, doe all contradict him, they being the oracles of truth, who have the understanding of the Law and the Spirit of good counsell, Deut. 17. 9. and 18. 15. Smite him] let us lay false accusations against him, and overcome him with slanders, see Jer. 6. 28. and 20. 10.

V. 20. To speak] that is to say, to pray for them.

V. 21. Deliver up] prophetick imprecations inspired by Gods Spirit, and not proceeding from any carnall passion, as Psalm. 69. 22. and 109. 6. 7. Hos. 9. 14.

CHAP. XIX.

Vers. 2. Ash-gate] the Italian, the potters gate; some translate it, The gate of the sunne.

V. 4. Estranged] Hebr. made strange; that is to say, they have done so that I doe not accept of it, nor acknowledge it any more for a place consecrated to me, nor for my temple. Of innocents] namely, of little children whom they offered to Moloch, Psal. 106. 38, who was worshipped in this valley of Hinnom, at the comming out of this Potters or East gate.

V. 7. The councell] that is I say, All their counsels and determinations, and generally all the publike government. He hath a regard to that, the royall Palace was neer to this gate, where the common councell did use to assemble and come together.

V. 11. Make] that is to say, seeing they have shed the blood of these poor children in Topheth, I will also cause their blood to be shed all over the City. Or, I will make this City as abominable and horrid as Topheth, which by reason of these execrable idolatries represented Hell, see Isa. 30. 33.

CHAP. XX.

Vers. 1. Governour] the Italian, overseer; under the high Priest there were one or two more that were Governours of the priestly order, and such an one was this, see Numb. 3. 32. 2 Chron. 35. 8.

V. 2. High gate] it was a gate which was not one of the Temple gates, but was in that part of the City that belonged to the tribe of Judah, drawing towards the other part which belonged to the tribe of Benjamin, and was neer the Temple, and was called high by reason of its situation, and to make a difference between it and the other gate of Benjamin, Jer. 37. 12. and 38. 7. which was in the lower part of the City, and looked towards the land of Benjamin.

V. 3. Magor Missabib] that is to say, Fear round about; a terme used in a generall terror, Jer. 6. 25. and 46. 5. The meaning is, seeing thou doest endeavour by thy false prophecies, vers. 6. to encourage the people against Gods threatnings, God shall cause thee to bee encompassed with terrour on all sides, and thou shalt be a cause of terrour to all thy followers, by reason of the horrible disasters that shall befall thee.

V. 7. O Lord] the Prophets complaint to God, who had by great promises induced him, and by an absolute command almost forced him to accept of this charge of Prophet, by which he got nothing but derision and injuries at mens hands.

V. 8. I spake] that is to say, Every time as I preach thy word to this wicked people, I am furiously assaulted by them, as by so many theeves and murtherers.

V. 9. I said] I had almost taken a carnall resolution, to renounce altogether my vocation of Prophet, but that I felt such opposition of the holy Ghost within my selfe, that I could not follow mine own fantasie.

V. 10. Report] he seems to set forth the Commission which was given by his enemies to their spies, namely, that they should particularly relate unto them whatsoever they should heare Jeremiah speak, that they might thereby frame an accusation against him before the King, the Priests, and others. Halting] to see if I did speake any thing unadvisedly, whereupon they might entrap me. Be enticed] the Italian, he will be deceived; namely, being inticed by our cunnings, he may let goe some word, whereby we may cause him to perish.

V. 14. Cursed] the Prophet being overcome at last by humane weaknesse, namely, impatience, breaks out into these irregular speeches, whereof see upon Job 3. 1.

V. 16. Let him hear] that is to say, Let him live in continuall terrors and troubles.

CHAP. XXI.

Vers. 4. Turn back] the meaning seems to be thus, I will make your warlike engines, which you have set upon the City walls for your defence, to be to no use, neither shall they avail you any thing, being broken or dismounted by the enemies without. Or they shall cast up such fences against them, that they shall be to no effect, whereupon you will be constrained to draw them into the City again.

V. 9. His life] the Italian, their soul; that is to say, their persons at least shall escape, though they lose their goods. Or, they shall think themselves as happy in saving their lives, as if they carried away a great deal of booty.

V. 12.

V. 22. In the morning] that is to say, carefully, or every morning, that is to say, every day, or at the hours of your judiciall assemblies, which were in the morning. Psal. 101. 8.

V. 23. Inhabitant] that is to say, O thou Jewish Nation, which dwellest in the vallies encompassed with high hils; and O Jerusalem, which art as it were the strength of all the plain that lieth round about thee, wherupon thou art confident against my threatnings, Jer. 17. 3. I my selfe, against whom no strength nor defence will prevail, will come against thee to execute my judgements.

V. 24. The fruit] that is to say, with a punishment befitting your sinnes: the sinne being as the seed, and the punishment as the harvest, Prov. 1. 31. In the forrest] namely, in the parts and Cities of this Countrey, which are most inhabited, rich and strong, see Isa. 10. 18. and 32. 19. Jer. 22. 7.

CHAP. XXII.

Vers. 6. Thou art] the Italian, thou hast been as Gilead; that is to say, I have hitherto maintained thee, in a high, powerfull, and happy state, as these fruitfull mountains, which are full of noble plants, but I will lay thee waste, like a wood that is digged up by the roots.

V. 10. For the dead] namely, for King Josiah, for whom there was great lamentation made, 2 Chr. 35. 24, 25. For him] namely, for Jehoahaz, Josiahs eldest son, who was carried away prisoner into Egypt, and there died, 2 Kings 23. 34.

V. 11. Shallum] it seems to be the same Jehoahaz which was spoken of before, who might have two names, and peradventure a third name, namely, Iohanan, 1 Chron. 3. 15. for it is not credible, that it should bee that Shallum spoken of in the Chronicles, which was Iosiahs fourth son.

V. 13. Unto him] he means Iehoiakim, the second sonne of Iosiah, whose tyrannie and pride in buildings is blamed.

V. 15. Reign] doest thou beleeve that thou shalt enjoy the Kingdom peaceably, notwithstanding thy tyrannies and wickednesse, that thou buildest thy selfe such a stately Palace garnished with cedars and with most curious pictures. Eat and drink] did not Iosiah enjoy peace and prosperitie through his righteousnesse and pietie towards God.

V. 18. Lament] Iehoiakim shall not be lamented by his kindreds tears for him, nor by his wife, nor by his subjects.

V. 19. As an asse] that is to say, his dead body and his bones shall lie above ground without buriall, like the body and bones of an asse, which some say, befell him by the way as he was carried away to Babylon; and others say, it was in Babylon it selfe, he dying in prison, and being afterwards thrown out upon a dunghill, see 2 Chron. 36. 6. Ier. 36. 30. Ezech. 19. 9.

V. 20. Go up] let thy refuge be sometimes to the Chaldeans, calling them (as it were) from mount Lebanon, to aid thee against the Egyptians. And sometimes let it bee to the Egyptians, calling them from the hill of Bashan against the Chaldeans; one of these hills being over against one of these Kingdomes, and the other against the other Kingdome, but it shall be all in vain, see Jer. 2. 18, 36. Ezech. 16. 26, 28. and 23. 12, 14. Lovers] namely, these prophane people thine associates, to whom thou beares a blinde affection, contrary to Gods Covenant, they have been discomfited and could not releeve thee.

V. 21. From thy] even from thy first beginning.

V. 22. The winde] that is to say, thy Kings and Princes, together with all their power, counsels and enterprises, shall be dispersed and brought to nothing. Lovers] namely, the Egyptians thy confederates, or the false Prophets and Priests to whom the people were joyned in love and affection against God and his Prophets.

V. 23. Inhabitant] thou livest in greatnesse, height, and security, as if thou stoodest upon the top of Lebanon, see upon vers. 6. How gracious] he mocketh the Jews, who in their prosperity were like to a pleasant and dainty woman, but they shou'd quickly lose that flower, being brought into extream distresse, like a woman that travelleth.

V. 24. Coniah] it is the same as Iehoiakim, 2 Kin. 24. 6. and Ieconiah, 1 Chron. 3. 16. The signet] that is to say, though he had been heretofore neere and dear unto me, as a signet is very carefully carried and kept, see Cant. 8. 6. Hag. 2. 23. Pluck thee] I would forsake thee and put thee away, see 2 Kings 24. 14, 15.

V. 28. This man] whence comes it that he is so despised, like some old idol that falls in pieces? or like some foul broken vessel that is of no value? Ier. 48. 38. Hos. 8. 8. is it not for his sins?

CHAP. XXIII.

Vers. 1. Pastors] that is to say, Governours, as well Politick as Ecclesiasticall, namely, Kings, Magistrates, and Priests.

V. 3. Gather] this in part and by figure may be referred to the return from the captivity of Babylon; but the perfect spirituall accomplishment is in the gathering together of all the Elect into the Christian Church by Christ the supream Pastor, who hath to that purpose imployed the Apostles, Evangelists, Prophets, &c. Eph. 4. 11. see Ioh. 10. 16.

V. 5. Unto David] namely, according to the flesh, and in his stead. Branch] a title which is often given to Christ in the Prophets, as well in regard of David, whose right branch he was, as also in regard of the Church, of whose life and subsistence he is the root.

V. 6. Iudah] that is to say, the true Israel according to the Spirit, which comprehends all the Elect and beleevers. Name] namely, Christ, who shall bee acknowledged to bee the true everlasting God, who in the humane nature which he hath taken upon him, shall fulfill all manner of righteousnesse for his Church; and by vertue of his own righteousnesse, shall obtain of God justification and absolution of sins for all beleevers.

V. 7. Therefore] that is to say, This glorious and admirable everlasting salvation, figured by the deliverance out of Babylon, will dim the lustre, and almost blot out the memory of all ancient temporall deliverances.

V. 9. Mine heart] that is to say, I Ieremiah am grieved to the very heart to see this poore people made even incorrigible, and their evils past cure by the seducements of false Prophets. A drunken] that is to say, troubled, partly with wrath, to see Gods Word so contemned and gainsaid; and partly with fear, by reason of Gods threatnings.

V. 10. Of swearing] namely, false oaths, or perjuries, &c. Or Gods curse for their execrable sins. Their course] they run to evil, and study to their uttermost power for to doe it, Ier. 3. 24, 25. and 8. 6.

V. 12. Their way] that is to say, all their actions, and whatsoever they undertake, wanting the light and guide of good advice, shall bee occasions to make them fall into utter ruine, which there shall bee no way to deliver them from, Psal. 35. 6.

V. 14. The hands] flattering them in their sins, and deceiving them with their prophecies, and making themselves examples, and heads of rebellion against my true Prophets.

V. 18. For] these may be Gods word in this sense, they are false prophets, for none of them have had any prophetick revelation from me, vers. 22. Others will have them to be the false Prophets words, for to encourage the affrighted people against Ieremiahs threatnings; as if he, and such as he was, could not certainly know nor declare things to come, and therefore that they ought to feed themselves with good hopes.

V. 20. In the] that is to say, when it is come to passe you shall conceive the truth, firmnesse, and weight of my threatnings, which are now despised by you as vain terrors, because the execution of them is put off for a while.

V. 23. Am I] thinke yee that the far distance of places can hinder my knowledge or my strength?

V. 25. Dreamed] that is to say, I have a prophetick revelation in a dream.

V. 26. Is it in the heart of the] that is to say, I do appeal to their owne consciences, if they doe not know that they do falsly alleadge Gods revelations. Or have they concluded in their hearts to make a continuall trade of false propheccying?

V. 27. Forget] that is to say, to lose all knowledge and right understanding of my truth, and all respect due to me.

V. 28. The chaffe] why should mens lies and inventions, which are things of no value, be mixed with the true food of the soul, which is my Word?

V. 29. Is not] that is to say, the true marke and triall of my word is, that through the power of my Spirit which accompanieth it, it purifieth the Consciences of beleevers, and doth lively animate them, and inflame them with holy zeale and love: and doth also on the other side tame and terrifie obdurate Consciences: whereby it is an easie matter to discerne true Prophets which produce these good and divine effects, from false ones which doe nothing at all, but are barren and unprofitable.

V. 30. Steal] that do fraudulently take upon them to preach my Word which doth not belong unto them, but to the true Prophets whom I have called, and from whom they take away all authoritie and credit. Or which borrowing some termes and parcels of true Prophecies, doe cover and paint out their false ones therewith.

V. 31. That take their tongues and say] that doe undertake of their own heads to speak in my name. Others, that doe frame their tongues, and doe artificially counterfeit the Prophets.

V. 33. People] a sharpe reprehension of the peoples prophane malignity, who in scosse or despight did reprove the Prophets, telling them that they had nothing in their mouthes but the Lords burdens, namely, his threatnings and curses, Isa. 13. 1. as if they should say, Have you yet any more mournfull prophesies for us, after so many as you have already related to us? Will you never speak any thing else to us? Say unto them] a word of indignation and refusall.

V. 35. Thus shall] that is to say, enquire of Gods Word with reverence and pureneſſe of heart.

V. 36. Word] the prophane scorning and sleighting of my Prophets shall be the cause of their being accursed, and of their ruine, which shall as surely befall them, as if it had beene foretold them by some Prophet.

V. 38 Sith ye say] namely, if you will still persist in your iniquities, contrary to all mine admonitions.

CHAP.

CHAP. XXIV.

Vers. 1. Jeconiah] called also Jehoiakim, and Conia. Jer. 22. 24. Carpenters] see upon 2 King. 24. 14, 16.

V. 5. So will I] that is to say, I will take care of, and shew my favour and good will towards the Jewes which were first led into captivity, to preserve them, that the Nation may one day be reestablished and planted by their posterity, but I will send more severe judgements upon those that staid behind, as guilty of greater rebellion, because they were not converted by the examples of others punishments.

V. 7. A heart] that is to say, a mind, and will regenerate and sanctified by my Spirit.

CHAP. XXV.

Vers. 3 Rising] the Italian, every morning] at the time of prayer and morning offering at which time was the greatest concourse of people in the Temple.

V. 9. My servant] namely, him that executes my judgements, and my will, of which he had notice, though he had no inrent to conform himself thereunto; Jer. 40. 2. see Isa. 44. 28. & 45. 1.

V. 10. Mil-stones] namely, of hand-mils, which onely were in use in those daies, and in a great City full of people, they did make a great noyse, Rev. 18. 22. Of the Candles] which were lighted in great number at feasts, and other nightly assemblies. Or generally in every private house, which by the great light doe manifest and make shew of the greatnesse of a City: as contrariwise, silence and darknesse are tokens of the desolation of it.

V. 15. Take] he represents a propheticke vision, wherein Gods particular judgements upon all these severall Nations, were signified unto him, by the figure of a cup carried about to them all according to the custome of solemne feasts. Fury] that is to say, of Gods judgements, see Psal. 75. 8. Isa. 51. 17.

V. 18. Jerusalem] for in generall judgements upon the world, God useth to begin at his own home, v. 29. 1 Pet. 4. 17. This day] namely, at that time, as the Prophet compiled, and published the whole volume of his prophecies which was after the delolation by the Chaldeans.

V. 20. People] the Italian, the mixed people] it was a certaine people of Arabia, gathered together out of divers Nations, which did lie scattered in the deserts, and had no setled abode nor habitations in houses or Cities, Jer. 50. 37. Ezek. 30. 5. Of Vz] a Countrey neere to Idumea, or part of it, Job 1. 1. The remnant] for Ashdod it selfe had been already taken and destroyed by Tartan, Isa. 20. 1.

V. 22. And all] he speakes thus because that these great Cities had many Colonies and plantations upon the Sea coast, to which they sent Governours and deputies, and also had hereditary Kings there, which were their vassals.

V. 23. Dedan] people of Arabia, and neighbours thereunto.

V. 25. Zimri] people likewise of Arabia, descended from Zimram, Gen. 25. 2.

V. 26. One with] As who should say, bringing this cup from one to the other untill the round be finished. Sheshach, see Jer. 51. 41. Questionlesse by this word is meant Babylon: whether Sheshach were the concealed and sacred name of it, according to the Pagans custome, to have certaine secret names for great Cities, which they used in their Sacrifices, and secret ceremonies, thinking if these names were once revealed, the ruine of the City and State must needs follow. Or, whether it be the same name as Babel by a certaine change of letters, as the Jewes would have it. Or whether it were the name of the Babylonian goddesse, on whose holy-day the City was taken, as oftentimes the Cities were named by the names of their Gods, Jer. 48. 46. Zech. 9. 1.

V. 27. Be drunken] that is to say, be dismayed and troubled in your counsels and actions, and be brought to base submissions, and dishoneſt wants, Isa. 51. 21. & 63. 6.

V. 29. The City] namely, Jerusalem which is consecrated unto me, and called by my name.

V. 30. His habitation] namely, against Jerusalem, and against his Temple. That treads] see Isa. 16. 9. Jer. 48. 33.

V. 34. Shepheards] namely, conductors of my people, Jer. 22. 22. & 23. 1. Wallow] a signe of extreame griefe, Jer. 6. 26. Pleasant] namely, when they are whole, for when they are broken they are of no value.

V. 38. The Lyon] for whilest a Lyon is in his covert, neither man nor beast dares to come neere it, and contrariwise, when he is gone from it every one goeth in, and spoileth it without feare. So God who had defended his Temple by his terrible presence, Joel 3. 16. Amos 1. 2. shall forsake it, to have it destroyed by reason of his departure, see upon Ezek. 10. 7. Of his] that is, of Gods.

CHAP. XXVI.

Vers. 6. A curse] that is to say, I will cause it to be accursed of all men, and used for an example and formularie of cursing.

V. 7. Prophets] they were men which were learned and understood the holy Writ, and had been bred up in the Schooles and Colledges of the chiefe Prophets, 1 Sam. 10. 5. 2 King. 6. 1. to whom God did often send propheticke and divine revelations, and in in Jeremiahs time were preſent at Eccleſiaſticall judgements and Aſſemblies, 2 King. 23.2. as in Chriſts time the Scribes and Doctors of the Law uſed to be, who were ſomewhat like theſe Prophets.

V.10. Newgate] peradventure he meanes that which was built againe by Joram, 2 *Kin.*15.35.

V.15. Bring] that is to ſay, you make your ſelves guilty of this fact before God, and burthen your ſelves therewith.

V.20. There was] this is a narration put in by Jeremiah, and not a continuation of the former diſcourſe.

CHAP. XXVII.

Verſ.1. IN the beginning] the Prophet had this viſion in the daies of Iehoiakim, but he did not reveale it untill the daies of Zedekiah many yeeres after it, *Ier.*27.3.12.

V.2. Bonds] this was done really, and in the ſight of all men; and that yoake which Ieremiah did put about his owne necke, was the ſigne of the conqueſt of the Kingdome of Iudah, and of the peoples bondage, *Ier.*28.10.

V.3. To the King] it is likely that theſe Kings were in ſome league with Zedekiah, when he rebelled againſt Nebuchadnezzar, 2 *Chro.*36.13.

V.7. All] this muſt be underſtood of the moſt famous Nations which were knowne to the Jewes: for although thoſe great Empires did uſurpe the titles of univerſall, yet none of them ever had the command over the tenth part of the world. His Son] namely, Evilmerodach, 2 *Kin.*25.27. *Ier.*52.31. His ſonnes] namely, Belſhaſher, *Dan.*5.1.

V.16. The veſſels] namely, thoſe which were carried away in the time of Iehoiakim, and Iechoniah, 2 *Chro.*36.7,10.

V.21. Viſite them] I will by my providence appoint a great part of them to be brought backe againe, and be new conſecrated to my ſervice; *Ezr.*1.7. and 7.19.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Verſ.1. THe ſame] namely, in the which Jeremiah ſpake to Zedekiah, and to the Prieſts, Ier. 27.12. In the beginning] ſome take this at large, as who ſhould ſay, in his firſt yeeres, for afterwards it is ſaid that this happened in the fourth yeere. Others hold that this was in the firſt yeere of Zedekiahs raigne, and in the firſt of the weeke of yeeres, *Exod.*23.10. *Lev.*25.3. as alſo they will have in other places theſe Sabbathicall yeeres, meant, 2 *Kin.*19.29. *Dan.*1.1. The Prophet] namely, one of the Colledge of the appointed Prophets, Ier. 26.7. or profeſſing to have propheticke revelations, though he had none.

V.2. I have broken] that is to ſay, I have determined, ſhortly to deliver my people out of the Chaldeans bondage, figured by the yoake which Ieremiah did weare about his necke.

V.3. The Prophets] that is to ſay, it is an ordinary thing for true Prophets to denounce Gods judgements upon grievous ſinners, as this people is: and one ought not to ſuſpect ſo much deceit in miniſter predictions which cauſe offence; as in favourable ones, which doe gaine favour and applauſe; yet the event will ſhew the truth. Thus ſpake Ieremiah, being not yet certaine of Hananiahs falſhood, as he was afterwards, *v.*16. & 17.

V.16. Rebellion] becauſe that by thy falſe promiſes thou haſt cauſed the people to be hardned in their ſinnes; and haſt contrary to Gods will, and to the the oath which Zedekiah had ſworne, 2 *Chro.*36. 13. ſoſtered his rebellion againſt Nebuchadnezzar.

CHAP. XXIX.

Verſ.5. BUild you] by theſe meanes he ſignifieth that the captivity would be long, *v.*28. and exhorteth them to mitigate the troubleſomeneſſe of it, by all honeſt means.

V.8. Which you cauſe to be dreamed] namely, inducing your falſe Prophets, by bribes, or flattery to ſpeake as you would have them: and to frame their predictions according to your minds.

V.10. Accompliſhed] and not before, as the falſe Prophets ſaid.

V.11. End] of evils which are paſt, and hope for the time to come.

V.15. Becauſe] becauſe you believe falſe Prophets that are amongſt you, *v.*21,24. which feed you with vaine hopes. Heare ye Gods decree concerning the remainder of the Jewes which is yet in Jeruſalem: ſo farre are you, which are out already, from comming home.

V.22. Roſted] that is to ſay, burnt with a ſoft fire.

V.23. I know] though they commit their wickedneſſes in ſecret, and doe diſſemble them before men.

V.24. Speake] that is to ſay, denounce this prophecie againſt him here, and then ſend it to him in writing.

V.25. Zephaniah] this was the ſecond Prieſt, next to the high Prieſt, 2 *King.*25.18. and therefore had great power in Eccleſiaſticall buſineſſes, ſee *Ierem.*20.1.

V.26. Iehoiada] if by this Iehoiada be meant the high Prieſt in the time of Ioaſh, 2 King. 12. 2 Chro. 23. the meaning is, ſeeing it hath pleaſed God to eſtabliſh thee in the Prieſtly Office, doe thou imitate Iehoiada his example; who upon an extraordinary occaſion did uſe Soveraigne power, in re-ordering of the State and Church: and doe thou the like againſt gainst Jeremiah who seeketh to subvert both. Others thinke that this Pehaiah was Zephaniahs predecessor. That is mad] thus did prophane men scoffe the Lords Prophets, because of their extasies, and extraordinary motions, see 2 Kin. 9. 11.

V. 32. Shall not have] that is to say, I will cause all his generation to perish, before the time of the promised deliverance come.

CHAP. XXX.

Vers. 3. For lo] I will have thy prophecies as well of threatnings as promises bee preserved for posteritie: the one for the comfort of the residue of my people; and the other for their instruction in after times, when I have re-established them, to keepe them from falling againe into the same miseries through sinne.

V. 5. We have] a representation of the peoples generall terror upon the Chaldeans comming.

V. 8. His] namely, the King of Babylons. Yoake] he hath a relation to the signe spoken of by Jeremiah Jer. 27. 2.

V. 9. David] namely, the Messias, descended from David according to the flesh, and shall hold his place in being King over his people, see Ezek. 34. 23. & 37. 24. from hence it appeares that the perfect accomplishment of this promise is referred to Christ, and belongs to the spirituall Israel.

V. 12. Incurable] that is to say, inevitable, by Gods irrevocable decree.

V. 13. To plead] the Italian, to take in hand; that is to say, that seekes to stay my judgement, by conversion, prayers, and other spirituall meanes, to ease thee of those evils thou art threatned withall.

V. 14. Thy lovers] namely, the Egyptians, and other Nations, with which thou hast joyned thy selfe in league, to the wrong of Gods pure service, Jer. 22. 20. Ezek. 16. 37. & 23. 22. Cruell one] that is to say, without any compassion, by a desire of a just revenge, and through a jealousie, even to utter destruction. Which must be understood of the impenitent people, and not of the elect which were amongst them.

V. 17. They called thee] thine enemies thought that I had for ever cast thee out of my favour, and driven thee out of the Land of promise, never to have either care or remembrance of thee.

V. 18. Heape] that is to say, railed up upon its owne floore. The manner] that is to say, according to the ancient modell and forme. A figurative Prophecie of the spirituall re-establishment of the Church by Christ.

V. 21. And their] that is to say, my people shall no more be governed nor tyrannized over by strangers; It shall have governours of its owne Nation, who shall therefore be more pitifull, and loving; Deut. 17. 15. Isa. 62. 1. His being referred to Christ signifieth that he shall really be of the Iewish Nation according to the flesh, and that being like his Church save onely in sinne, he shall take compassion enough of their miseries and infirmities, Heb. 2. 17. & 4. 15. Will cause him] that is to say, I my selfe will convert my people by vertue of my spirit, seeing that of themselves they cannot, nor will not do it, and that without me it is impossible for man to doe it, Ier. 13. 23. & 32. 18. Lam. 5. 21. Ioh. 15. 5.

CHAP. XXXI.

Vers. 1. The same time] namely, of the Messias promised in the precedent chapter.

V. 2. Left of] that is to say, the deliverance out of Egypt, and the bringing of the people through the Wildernesse, ought to be an example and pledge to you, of the new deliverance out of Babylon, which I promise you, and of everlasting salvation in Christ. The Sword] from the Egyptians persecution with armed hand, and from their cruell oppression. Went] that is to say, in the signes and effects of my presence, the Arke going before them. Rest] that is to say, a place to settle, and encampe themselves in commodiously, Num. 10. 33. Deut. 12. 9. and afterwards a setled and peaceable habitation in the Land of Canaan, Psal. 95. 11.

V. 3. Of old] the Churches reply, as if it should say, it was so indeed in those daies, but the times are now altered. God doth not now shew himselfe such towards me. Yea] the Lords answer, namely, that he is alwaies the same towards his Church, Psa. 44. 4. & 74. 12.

V. 4. Thou shalt] that is to say, thou shalt flourish in all manner of joy. Prophecies which began to come to passe at the returne from Babylon, and were spiritually accomplished in Christ.

V. 5. Yet] thou shalt restore the ruines of a desolate Country, tilling it, and planting it with good plants.

V. 6. A day] that is to say, the time will come, that the difference of Nations being once taken away by Christ, the ten Tribes meant by Ephraim, which were fallen away from Gods covenant, shall be called into it againe by the Gospell, signified by the Watchmens cries, and the Watch-towers set upon the high places of the Countrey, see Isa. 62. 6.

V. 7. Sing] that is to say, let every one rejoyce at the salvation which God will send his Church by the Messias; whose figure and beginning shall be the Babylonian deliverance, and let them purchase it, by vowes and prayers.

V. 8. The North Countrey] namely, Caldea, which is Northerly from Iudea. The blind and] no infirmity shall let them from comming together. I will afford them all strength to come bodily to Ierusalem, and ſpiritually into my Church under the Meſſias, ſee Iſa. 35.1,6. & 42.16.

V.9. Supplications] under this word are comprehended all acts of piety, thankeſgivings, prayers, vowes, &c. Rivers] namely, the abundance of my graces ſcattered in my Church, Iſa. 43.2,3. Iſa. 35.7,8. Ephraim] that is to ſay, Iſrael according to the Spirit, and converted to Chriſts faith, to whom in the Chriſtian Church ſhall be reſerved the title of birth-right above other Nations, Exod. 4.22. The name Ephraim is uſed here, becauſe that the ten Tribes did march under Ephraims enſignes, and were governed by Ephraim.

V.10. Heare] let all the world heare, and beare witneſſe of the promiſes which I make to my people.

V.12. They ſhall come] that is to ſay, mine elect gathered out of my Church, ſhall be for ever comforted, and ſo ſhall plentifully enjoy all my favours.

V.14. I ſatiate] the Italian, make drunken, termes taken from the goods and fat parts of the Sacrifices which were allotted for the Prieſts, ſuch as in Spirit are the faithfull under the Goſpel.

V.15. A voyce] Rachel was the mother of Joſeph and Benjamin. By Joſeph and Ephraim his ſonne are meant the ten Tribes. And under Benjamin is alſo comprehended Judah, with whom Benjamin remained joyned, 2 Chro. 11.12. and therefore the Prophet ſeemes to repreſent in this place, by the common mothers teares, the deſolation of the whole Country and Nation. Now becauſe Rachel was buried by Bethlehem, Gen. 35.19. The Holy Ghoſt hath alſo deſigned as the ſlaughter of the children of Bethlehem by Herod, Matth. 2.18. and this hidden ſence was brought forth, and ſet down by the Evangeliſt.

V.16. Rewarded] in ſtead of the ſorrowes which thou haſt had, God will give thee comfort, and bring thy children backe againe into his Church.

V.17. Thine end] after the time of thine afflictions ſhall be accompliſhed.

V.18. I have ſurely heard] the Prophet repreſents the future converſion of the Jewes, after the calamities which they have ſuffered.

V.19. I repented] that is to ſay, God working in me by his Spirit of converſion, I will alſo cooperate with his grace, feeling actively ſorrow for my ſins, and ſtriving for newneſſe of life. I ſmote] a ſigne of ſorrow and repentance, as Ezek. 21.17. Of my youth] that is to ſay, of my ſinnes and exceſſes committed, as it were, by errour and heate of youth, in the flowre of mine age, and in the time of my greateſt vigor.

V.20. Is Ephraim] Gods anſwer. Since I] for all my judgements and threatnings, yet I did never caſt him quite off. My bowels] my fatherly affection is awakened, and enflamed towards him.

V.21. Set thee up] to make the way well. The meaning is, I will ſurely bring thee home out of thy captivity and exile, into thine own Country, and there I will re-eſtabliſh thee.

V.22. Goe about] running as mad after idols and idolaters, ſee Jer. 2.18,23,36. Or ſeeking after mans aſſiſtance, and making falſe leagues with them. Created] namely, hath by his juſt judgement abandoned his people, to the infamous purchaſing of theſe forraigne and prophane leagues and friendſhips, which is the ſame thing, as if a woman, did not ſtay for to be requeſted, but ſhould ſolicite the man, ſee Jer. 2.24. Ezek. 16.33,34. Hoſ. 8. And this is more likely to be the meaning, then the common conſtruction which referreth this to the bleſſed Virgin, big with Chriſt by the onely power of the Holy Ghoſt. Compaſſe] that is to ſay, doth hang about him, to daily with him to obtaine his love, doth ſolicite him, ſeeke after him or embrace him.

V.24. All they that goe] namely, ſhepheards that have no firme abode, but fold their ſheep here and there, looking after their paſtures.

V.26. I awaked] that is to ſay, I Jeremiah, conſidering the Churches moſt happy ſtate, which was revealed to me in a prophetick dreame found my ſelfe refreſhed and comforted as by a very ſweet ſleepe.

V.27. Will ſow] that is to ſay, I will againe populate, and cauſe to be inhabited their waſte and deſolate Country, and ſpiritually will raiſe up many believers in my Church.

V.28 Like as I] my providence ſhall labour for their reſtorement, as well as it hath been employed in puniſhing of them.

V.29. The fathers] an ordinary proverbe, Ezek. 18.2. to blame, as it were, Gods judgements by an oblique and indirect way, as if they did puniſh the innocent children, for the fathers offences. The meaning is, the old ſinnes of the Nation ſhall lie buried from thenceforth, and if any one ſinneth, he ſhall be puniſhed. And finally under the Goſpel, God ſhall ſhew more favour then under the Law, where oftentimes one mans fault did draw the puniſhment upon all, and the ſins of the fathers were required at the childrens hands.

V.31. A new] not in ſubſtance, for that hath alwaies been the ſame; but in the diſpenſing of it, which ſhall be done more clearely, freely, effectually, and ſpiritually under the Goſpell: like to a ſon that is out of nonage, being of full age, in comparſion of a pupill, who is under age, and hath not knowledge, nor full poſſeſſion, nor free adminiſtration of theſe things which by right belong to him; nor hath not ſuch familiar acceſſe nor communication with the father, ſee Gal. 4.1,3,4.

V.32. Although I was] the Italian, whereupon I regarded them not, ſaith, &c. for ſo the Greeke tranſlation hath tranſlated it, with which agreeth that of the the Apostle, Hebr. 8. 9. Others translate it, though I had married them, Jer. 3. 14.

V. 33. I will put my Law] that is to say, I will sanctifie them, by my Spirit, and will give them a heart and will, agreeable to my Law, from whence shall ensue their voluntary obedience, see Psal. 40. 8. Rom. 6. 17.

V. 34. Teach no more] that is to say, all the true members of Christs Church shall be lively illuminated by Gods Spirit, so that all humane instruction and perswasion, after that divine and inward, shall be of small vertue; as without it, it hath no force at all, but is altogether unprofitable. Or, he speaks of the infusion of the supernaturall light, and of the motion of the heart, which are the true beginnings of faith created by the Spirit, and not framed by any humane precepts or authority. For I will] that is to say, I will give them my Spirit, for I shall have received them into favour. As by the sinne of man Gods gifts had been taken away from him, see Rom. 11. 27.

V. 36. If those ordinances] that is to say, as I have established the order of nature, and chiefly for the heavens, so that it is unvariable untill the end of the world, Psal. 72. 5. 17. and 89. 2, 36. and 119. 89. So I have also decreed that my Church shall never totally fail, Psal. 102. 28. and also that the Israelitish nation shall never be utterly abolished, Ps. 83. 4. untill I do re-establish it at its last conversion.

V. 38. The city] under the figure of Jerusalems restauration after the captivity, must be understood the Churches eternall re-establishment by Christ, see Zach. 14. 10. The tower] see concerning these places, 2 King. 14. 13. 2 Chron. 26. 9. Nehem. 3. 1. Zech. 14. 10. the space here mentioned was the North side of Jerusalem.

V. 39. Gareb, Goath] these places are not mentioned elsewhere. It is thought that Gareb was a little hill on the north-west side of the City, the word signifying North in the Caldaick tongue, and Goath is thought to be the same as Golgotha, by which is meant the western side of Jerusalem.

V. 40. Valley] this was, as it is thought, a certain bottom neer to mount Calvarie, which served for a place to cast out ordures in, and also the bodies of executed malefactors. Of the ashes] this seems to be some place neer to the said valley, where they did use to carry the ashes of the brazen altar, Levit. 4. 12. and 6. 11. these places also were on the west side. The fields] hereby is meant the south side, where there were without the City divers closes called fields, as the fullers field, Isa. 7. 3. the potters field, Matth. 27. 7. The horsegate] of which see 2 King. 11. 16. Neh. 3. 28. now this gate and brook were on the east side of the City, whose whole compasse is here described by the four winds. Holy] that is to say, unviolable, protected by the Lord, even as his own dwelling, which by a figure must be understood of the spirituall safeguard of the Church.

CHAP. XXXII.

Vers. 5. I visit him] namely, untill I take him out of the world by a naturall death, Jer. 34. 4, 5.

V. 7. Thine uncle] the Hebrew word doth also signifie cousin, and in this signification it should be referred to Hanameel, and not to Shallum. Buy] it was decreed by the Law, that the next of kin might redeem the Land which was sold, Levit. 25. 25. and therefore to avoid suits and contentions, and for the speedier course in such sales, the custom was to make an offer thereof unto the nearest of kin, to the end that if he refused it, it might freely be passed over to another, Ruth. 3. 12, 13. And so doth Hanameel here. Field] seeing that Jeremiah was of the priestly stock, Jer. 1. 1. he could not enjoy any field that was for tillage, Numb. 18. 20, 24. So that by the word Field, ought to bee understood some part of those suburbs which were appointed to the Priests for Gardens, Orchards, Pasturage, &c. see Numb. 35. 2. And it is likely that the Law, Levit. 25. 34. by which such lands could not be alienated, was by processe of time altered.

V. 8. I knew] that is to say, I was perswaded by the precedent vision, that what Hanameel did, was by divine motion, whereupon I resolved to consent unto it.

V. 10. Subscribed] for in those dayes there were no publike notaries nor scrivenors for that purpose.

V. 11. Sealed] by this it appeareth that they did make two copies of these contracts or instruments; the one open, which contained onely the sale, for a remembrance and confirmation of the act; the other closed and sealed, which did moreover containe all the clauses of conditions, assurances, and private agreements ratified by the Law, as it was expounded by the Doctors, that one might have recourse thereunto in case of suit, and for the preventing of any others that might lay any claim, or have any pretence thereunto.

V. 12. To Baruch] who was Nehemiahs houshold servant, and being at liberty, might do his masters businesses, who was a prisoner.

V. 14. An earthen vessel] which questionlesse was to be hidden in some secret place, to serve after the return from Babylon, not onely to prove the purchase, but especially to make good Gods promise concerning the peoples re-establishment.

V. 15. Shall be] that is to say, this bargaine which was made in a time of the extream desolation of this country, and of the peoples approaching captivitie, is a token that I am assured that the people shall be re-established in their ancient possession, and that the commerces of buying and selling, and all other acts of civill society shall be used here again.

V. 18. The bosome] that is to say, in full measure, Psal. 79. 12.

V. 19. The fruit] that is to say, as he hath deserved.

V. 24. The mounts] which were not onely like to your trenches in these dayes, but like Galleries and Terraces of earth to fill up the ditches, and to be raised up as high as the walls, to fight as it were upon even ground with the besieged.

V. 39. I will give them] that is to say, I will regenerate them by my Spirit, which operating in the whole body of my Church, shall make them all joyntly to serve and obey me. A prophesie directed to the spirituall Israel.

V. 41. Assuredly] Heb. in truth, which may also be thus understood, faithfully performing, and constantly maintaining what I had begun.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Vers. 2. Thereof] namely, of the deliverance and re-establishment promised in the precedent Chapter, which in this Chapter is further confirmed.

V. 3. Mighty] the Italian, reserved things; as it were in secure secresie to my selfe.

V. 4. By the] namely, which are made to withstand the enemies, or to make empty places for courts of guard, see Isa. 22. 10.

V. 5. Of men] which were slain when the City was assaulted by the enemies.

V. 6. Reveale] that is to say, causing this to happen unlookt for, and beyond all hope.

V. 9. A name] that is to say, It shall be a glory to me, and a common comfort and joy to men. Shall fear] so that they shall not dare to attempt any more against it, seeing by proofs that God was present in it by the miraculous communication of his graces.

V. 13. The flocks] he hath a relation to the custom of shepherds, namely, to count their sheep one by one at their comming out of the sheepcoat or pen, and at their comming in again with a wand in their hand, see Levit. 27. 32. Ezech. 20. 37. and thereby is shewed the peaceable estate of a country: yet he thereby chiefly meaneth Christs spirituall conduct, who knoweth all his sheepe, and calleth them by their names, John 10. 3, 11, 12.

V. 16. Be called] not that the Christian Church is called so literally, but the meaning is, that all true beleevers, whereof the Church is composed, shall be justified before Christ, by Christs onely righteousnesse, who is the true everlasting God, see Isa. 62. 4. Ezech. 48. 35.

V. 17. Shall never want] that is to say, Christ the true Son of David, according to the flesh, shall live and reigne eternally.

V. 18. The Priests] that is to say, Christ, who was figured by the ancient Priests, shall continue for ever exercising his spirituall priesthood by his perpetuall intercession with God. And the inferiour parts belonging to the said office, namely, praises, beneficence, &c. shall be performed continually under him by his Elect, made priests by him: and especially by his sacred Ministers by the preaching of his Word, and all true Evangelicall service.

V. 22. The seed] namely, all true beleevers made spirituall Kings and Priests by Christ, 1 Pet. 2. 5, 9. Revel. 1. 6. and 5. 10.

V. 24. Two families] namely, the principall branches of the people of Israel, to wit, the ten tribes and Judah. Despised] they make no account of the small remainder of people, as if it were incredible that they should ever spring up again to be a Nation, in form of state and common-wealth.

CHAP. XXXIIII.

Vers. 5. In peace] that is to say, by a naturall death, and not a violent one. Burne odours] see 2 Chron. 16. 14. and 21. 19.

V. 8. Had made] that is to say, when he had solemnly bound the people by oath, every one to observe Gods Law in this point. Proclaim] by the fourteenth verse it appears, that that yeer was the Sabbathicall yeer, in which bondmen were to be set at liberty, Exod. 21. 2. Deut. 15. 12. Now this Law being but badly observed, was renewed in this distresse of the siege in manner of a publike repentance.

V. 11. Afterward] thinking they were out of danger, because that the Chaldeans had retired themselves from the siege, vers. 21. to goe as it is likely to fight with the reliefe that was comming out of Egypt, Jer. 37. 7, 11.

V. 13. I made] that is to say, I gave them this command with the rest, joyned with promises and threatnings.

V. 16. Polluted] namely, violated the sacred honour which was due unto me by your perjury, and sleighting of the promise which you made in this Temple.

V. 17. I proclaim] that is to say, I doe give you over to these scourges. I doe renounce all title of property in you, and leave you to your own protection.

V. 18. Passed] see concerning this Ceremony, Gen. 15. 9, 10, 17. the meaning whereof it seems was, to shew the correspondency of wills, to which the contracters did binde themselves, and the punishment of a violent death, to which they submitted ted themselves, in case they brake their promises, vers. 20.

V. 19. Eunuchs] or officers of the court.

V. 21. Goine up] for a small time, see upon v. 11.

CHAP. XXXV.

Vers. 2. Rechabites] it was one of the families of the Kenites, which descended from Jethro, Moses his father in law, which inhabited amongst those of the tribe of Judah, see Jud. 1. 16 and 4. 11. 1 Chr. 2. 55. The chambers] of one of the great Porticoes, which went about the courts of the Temple.

V. 4. Of the sons] certainly, it seems to be some family of Priests, or other sacred Officers, whose turn it was to wait upon the service that week, according to the custom, see 2 King. 11. 5. Man of God] namely, a Prophet, or peradventure the same man, as is spoken of, 2 Chron. 16. 7. Princes] namely, the two chief Priests under the high Priest: or the chiefe of those who were in service that week. Keeper] that is to say, one of the porters, 1 Chron. 26. 1. and because the porters of the Temple had also the keeping of the holy vessels, some have translated it, The keeper of the holy vessels and ornaments.

V. 5. And said] onely for to try them.

V. 6. Jonadab] some think it was the same as was mentioned, 2 King. 10. 15. and so the word Father was to be taken for one that was born before him. Others think it was their father indeed, and that that order was but newly made. Drinke no wine] this was not enjoyned to establish any new arbitrary service, or any rule of greater perfection of life, but onely in imitation of the Nazarites, Numb. 6. 3. for to certaine his posterity in a discipline of life, free from delights and enticements of the flesh, and more conformable to the pastorall life of the Midianites, who were their ancestors, and more befitting them who professed to study and meditate upon holy things, 1 Cor. 2. 15. Now their obedience to this humane command did aggravate the Jews rebellion against the Law of God.

V. 7. Strangers] for being Midianites, they were incorporated into the body of Gods people, and grafted upon that stock, Judg. 1. 16.

V. 11. When] this is added, to shew that it was not of free will, but compelled through necessity that they were come into Jerusalem.

V. 19. To stand] those that were of Hamaths posterity, from whom the Rechabites came, had continually much applied themselves to the study of holy Writ, 1 Chr. 2. 55. and did teach it publikely in the Temple, see Jer. 36. 10. and therefore many of them were there very frequently. And the continuation of this gift is here promised to the Rechabites, together with Gods blessing.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Vers. 2. A Roll] according to the old fashion of making books of long lists of skins rolled about a stick, see Isa. 8. 1.

V. 5. Shut up] in the house and may not goe forth. The cause is not set down, and peradventure it was by reason of some legall pollution, for the cleansing of which, there were certain dayes prefixed, Numb. 19. 11.

V. 6. Fasting day] it was some extraordinary fast which was to be proclaimed afterwards, v. 9.

V. 7. Will present] the Italian, their prayer will fall before the Lord; that is to say, It will be presented by them with humility, and shall be lovingly accepted at Gods hands.

V. 9. The ninth] namely, of the yeer current, and not the yeer of Jehoiakims reign, whose fifth yeere began but then, as it appeares by vers. 1. and 22. and this moneth was the November moon.

V. 10. In the chamber] this Gemariah might be a Priest, or of some other order of the sacred officers, wherefore ministring in his turn, he had his lodging appointed in the Temple, see Jer. 35. 4. unless that he was a scribe, that is to say, a Doctor of the Law, Ezra 7. 6. who had his ordinary abode in the Temple, there to exercise his office. The higher court] there were three courts in the Temple, that of the Gentiles, or the common court, the peoples court, which was divided into severall great places, and the Priests court. Here it should seem he means the peoples court, in which Baruch did read out at the said chamber window.

V. 12. Princes] that is to say, the chief officers; the Princes of the blood royall, the governours of the places, &c.

V. 17. How diddest thou] that is to say, hast thou gathered them from time to time, as he hath preached them to the people, and as thy memory hath served thee? or hast thou received them from his own mouth all at once? or did he dictate them to thee word by word? or did he make a continued discourse unto thee, which thou hast set down in writing as thou hast pleased? By this question it seems that they had a desire to be certified, whether they were all the Prophets words, and consequently Gods.

V. 19. Hide thee] for fear of the Kings fury, who could not indure the Prophets, Jer. 26. 21. & 36. 26.

V. 20. Into the court] of the royall palace.

V. 22. Winter house] according to the custom of great ones, who have severall rooms, according to the diversity of the seasons, Judg. 3. 20. Amos 3. 15. The ninth] see upon vers. 9.

V. 23. Leaves] for those rolls were divided into severall spaces, written from the top to the bottom.

V. 16. The ſcribe] namely, Jeremiahs ordinary ſcribe or clerk, or the Doctor of the Law. Hid them] that is to ſay, after they had hid themſelves, God would not ſuffer them to be found.

V. 29. Thou ſhalt ſay] write theſe words in this new roll, and direct them to Jehoiakim.

V. 30. Shall have none] for that three moneths time as Jehoachin his ſon reigned, 2 King. 24. 8. is eſteemed as nothing.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Verſ. 5. Come forth out] namely, to relieve Jeruſalem.

V. 12. The people] which came out of Jeruſalem, thinking that the ſiege had been raiſed.

V. 20. Be accepted] the Italian, fall; that is to ſay, accept of my humble requeſt.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Verſ. 1. Unto all] namely, all thoſe which came to him in the court of the priſon, from whence his ſpeeches were carried abroad into the whole City.

V. 2. His life] the Italian, his ſoul; ſee upon Jer. 21. 9

V. 5. Can doe any thing againſt you] or with you; namely, by commanding you, no nor to induce or perſwade you to any thing.

V. 7. The gate] it is likely to be the ſame, as Jer. 20. 2. and that the King ſate then upon his judgement ſeat, for they then did uſe to ſit in judgement in the gates.

V. 9. Is like to die] as much as to ſay, it is needleſſe to haſten his death, which he cannot avoid, although he remained in the court of the priſon at large.

V. 14. The third entry] the Italian, the chiefe entry; he ſeemes to meane the ſoutherne entrance, which was the ordinary way that the King came into the temple out of his own palace, ſee 2 Kin. 16. 18.

V. 19. They mock me] by ſome ſhamefull outrages, which were more inſufferable from his owne ſubjects, then from his enemies.

V. 21. Hath ſhewed me] namely, in a prophetick viſion.

V. 22. Are left] namely, after Zedekiahs flight, Jer. 39. 4. Thy friends] thus ſhall the ſaid women reprove the King for beleeving thoſe that flattered him, rather then Ieremiah. Thy feet] that is to ſay, thou haſt plunged thy ſelfe into an inavoidable ruine by following of their advices. Or according to the letter it may be underſtood, that Zedekiah in his flight did run into ſome pond, where he was taken.

V. 27. Told them] concealing part of the foreſaid ſpeeches, which he was not bound to reveale unto them, yet relating a part of the truth unto them, Jer. 37. 20.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Verſ. 2. The city was broken up] the Italian, the Chaldeans came into the city: namely, they came into it by force through the Fiſh gate, Zeph. 1. 10.

V. 3. The middle gate] this was a gate in an inward compaſſe of wall, which incloſed one part of the City, called Bezeta, and this ſame is alſo called the ſecond gate, Zeph. 1. 10. to make a difference between it and the firſt gate which was on the ſame ſide, and was called the Fiſh gate, ſee upon Zech. 14. 10. Rabſaris] it ſeemes to be ſome name concerning his office, that is to ſay, The chiefe of the Eunuches: as Rabmag might be the chiefe of the Magicians, ſee upon 2 King. 18. 17.

V. 4. The two] namely, the outward wall which did encompaſſe the whole City, and the inward wall which encompaſſed onely that part which was called Bezeta, ſee upon Iſa. 22. 11. Plaine] which lay ſouthward towards Egypt, whither it was likely that Zedekiah meant to flie.

V. 5. Hamath] part of the Antiochian Syria.

V. 14. Gedaliah] who was made governour of that ſmall remnant of people by Nebuchadnezzar, 2 King. 25. 22. Ier. 40. 5. Home] namely, to Anathoth, a city of Benjamin, of which city he was, Ier. 1. 1.

CHAP. XL.

Verſ. 1. The word] this title doth not ſo truly belong to this Chapter, as to the 42. and 43. to which theſe two ſerve for a Preface. Being bound] this might happen by ſome overſight againſt the King and his Captaines expreſſe commands, Ier. 39. 12, 13. before that Ieremiah was known to be the man.

V. 5. Gedaliah] to whoſe care Ieremiah was committed, Ier. 39. 14. and to whom Nebuzaradan would have him again recommended.

V. 10. To ſerve the] the Italian, to preſent my ſelf before thee; to oppoſe my ſelfe againſt all their violent attempts by vertue of my commiſſion, to give them thanks for this our government, and to be a mediatour towards them for our common ſafety. Wine] he makes mention only of wine and fruits of the trees, that is to ſay, Oile, for harveſt was paſt, Ier. 39. 2. Taken] every one as he pleaſed, they being abandoned and left void.

CHAP. XLI.

Verſ. 1. Of the ſeed] and therefore pretending to have the command of the people from Gedaliah.

V. 4. Knew it] it was not known out of Mizpah in the country.

V. 5. Shaven] in token of mourning and ſorrow for Jeruſalems, the Temples, and the peoples deſolation tion, though these Pagan fashions, of shaving their beards, and cutting themselves, were forbidden by the Law, *Lev.*19.27,28. *Deut.*14.1. Offerings] for it is likely that amidst the ruines of the Temple there remained some signe of an Altar, and amongst the people there remained some Priest.

V.6. Weeping] faigning the like sorrow, to take away all manner of mistrust, or suspition.

V.7. Slew them] the cause of this cruelty is not set downe, it may be it was because that Gedaliahs death should not be so soone divulged about the Country. The pit] it was some secret cave in Mitpah, formerly made by Asa, for some unknown use for the wars, v.9.

V.9. The men] not onely these fourescore but also the rest which he had slain before, v.3.

V.10. Daughters] which were for pitty left behind, in Gedaliahs charge, Jer. 43.6. or which were hidden when the City was taken, and afterward were mingled againe amongst the people.

V.17. Chimham] that is to say, the place where Chimham did well, who questionlesse is the sonne of Barzillai, mentioned, 2 *Sam.*19.37. to whom it is likely that David gave some Lands, which he called by his owne name.

CHAP. XLII.

Vers.6. Evill] that is to say, let it be never so hard or dangerous.

V.10. I repent me] that is to say, I will turne the vengeances of my justice into benefits of mercy, a terme taken from men, *Gen.*6.6.

V.19. O ye remnant] it should seem that the Prophet knew already by some signe what they had resolved to doe contrary to Gods will.

CHAP. XLIII.

Vers.11. For death] namely, by way of punishment condemned thereunto, as when afterwards he saith, for the Sword are meant those that were slaine in the warres.

V.12. carry them, namely, the statues, images, and idols, which the pagans were wont to carry away, with the rest of the spoiles of conquered Cities and Countries, see 1 *Sam.*5.2. *Isa.*46.2. Array himselfe] that is to say, he shall carry away the prey, or shall easily become Lord thereof.

V.13. Of Beth-shemesh] the Italian, of the Temple of the Sunne] hee seemes to have a relation to the City called Heliopolis, or City of the Sunne, Isa. 19.18. wherein they did use a famous kind of idolatry.

CHAP. XLIV.

Vers.10. Humbled] the Italian, tamed; that is to say, bruised by my scourges, nor humbled in Spirit.

V.14. A desire] or where they hope to returne. But such] the Italian, but some; namely, some small number which I will spare, and favour, v.28.

V.19. Without our men] the Italian, without the authority of our governours; that is to say, our Kings, and Princes, and some times our very Priests have tolerated, and approved of what we have done. And that their former consent shall be a sufficient warrant for us to continue in the same actions, and we will not submit to thy judgement. And some referring this idolatry especially to women, translate it our husbands.

V.21. Into his mind] the Italian, is it not come up into his heart] that is to say, hath he not at last taken notice of it, to shew his judgements upon it? Or hath he not been moved to revenge it?

V.26. My Name] the meaning is, I will destroy all the Jewes which are in Egypt, so that they shall prophane my Name no more, abusing it in their oaths, though they be idolaters.

CHAP. XLV.

Vers.5 Great things] that is to say, a prosperous and triumphant state, for thine owne particular, amidst this generall desolation. Thy life] the Italian, thy soule; that is to say, I will promise thee to spare thy life, but nothing else, see *Jer.*21.9.

CHAP. XLVI.

Vers.2. Carchemish] namely, to set upon the Chaldeans, or to oppose their endeavours in the frontiers, as had been done in the daies of Josias, 2 *Kin.*23.29. 2 *Chro.*35.20.

V.3. Order] a prophetical description of the preparation, battell and discomfiture of the Egyptians.

V.6. The swift] that is to say, Gods will is, that they should be discomfited and die in the field, where the battell was fought, and that they shall not scape with swiftnesse, nor be able to resist by strength.

V.7. Who is this] a scoffing kind of question made concerning Egypt. The meaning is, what King is this that hath gathered together such a mighty army, and doth glorifie, and exale himself so, as if he would overflow and sinke every thing? he hath relation to the great waters of Egypt.

V.9. Ethiopians, and the Libyans] the Italian, Cush and Put; names of certaine people of Africa, whereof Pharaohs army was composed.

V.10. For this] see the like terms, *Isa.*34.5,6,7,8. A sacrifice] that is to say, a great slaughter to appease his wrath.

V.11. Goe up] that is to say; O you Egyptians seeke all the meanes you can possibly to withstand the ruine of your Country which hitherto was never subdued, and for to fortifie, and strengthen your selves, all is but in vaine, see *Jer.*8.22. & 51.8. Ezek. 30.21. Virgin] see upon *Isa.*47.1.

V.12. The mighty] that is to say, thy souldiers, being discomfited, are fallen in heapes, one on the top of the other. A description of a mighty slaughter.

V. 14. Publish] a propheticall representation of the Chaldeans arrivall in Egypt. The meaning is, let advice be given by a generall outcry of the Chaldeans comming, that every one may prepare himself for defence. The Sword] the King of Babylon hath already overcome by force of armes all the neighbouring Countries, and hath by that meanes made his way plaine for the conquest of Egypt.

V.16. Arise] words of the Egyptian souldiers, put to flight. From the] namely, of Nebuchadnezzar whom none is able to withstand.

V. 17. The time appointed] that is to say, the opportunity, and advantagious time for warre.

V.18. Shall he come] that is to say, Nebuchadnezzar shall come to subdue all his enemies, as these two high hils doe command, namely, Tabor, the little hils which are round about it, and Carmel the adjoyning Sea.

V.19. Furnish] that is to say, prepare thy selfe to goe into captivity. Noph] a City of Egypt, called by the Grecians Memphis.

V. 20. A faire] namely, a prosperous Kingdome, which hath not yet worne the yoake of slavery, under strange Lords. The North] namely, out of Chaldea which lieth Northward from Egypt.

V.21. The hired men] that is to say, though he had a great number of brave souldiers.

V.22. The voyce] that is to say, the Egyptians shall be humbled, and shall not brag too loud and stoutly any more, but they shall yeeld with base submission, and shall stand still and dumbe, speaking softly like to the hissing of a serpent, see *Isa.*29.4. They shall] namely, the Chaldeans.

V.23. They shall cut downe] a kind of speech very frequent in the Prophets, to describe a generall destruction of a great state, like unto a great forrest.

V. 25. No] a very populous City which in after times was called Alexandria, *Ezek.*30.15. *Nahum.*3.8.

V. 26. Afterwards] namely, at the end of forty yeeres, Ezek 29.11.

V. 27. O my servant] if I doe out of mine infinite mercy promise to restore Egypt, after it is destroyed; how much more ought my Church assure her selfe that she shall be re-established, after I have punished her?

CHAP. XLVII.

Vers. 1. Before that] the Scripture makes no mention of this History, nor of the time of it; but it is likely that this happened when Neco came out of Egypt, to fight with the King of Assyria, 2 *King.*23.29. And this seems to be noted, to give the greater credit to the ensuing prophecy, as being spoken before there was any beginning or signe of the Philistines destruction.

V.2. Waters] namely, a whole deluge of Chaldean armies, which are a people that live Northward from the Philistines.

V.3. The fathers] the faintnesse, and the decay of strength and heart hath been such, that every one hath lost the care and remembrance of those that were neerest to him.

V.4 Tyrus] the Tyrians, and the Philistins were both of one stocke, Gen 10.14. wherfore in time of need they did help one another. The Country] namely, the Countrey beyond the Sea, or which lay by the Sea side. Some doe imagine it was Cappadocia, from whence the Philistines came. Caftor] by *Gen.*10.14. *Deut.*2.23 Amos 9.7. it appeares that these two Nations, the Cafrorites, and the Philistins were of the same stocke, and were joyned together, wherefore they are often named one for the other.

V.5. Baldnesse] the Italian, Sborving; that is to say, occasion of great griefe and mourning. At which times the Pagans did use to whip themselves, shave their haire, and cut their flesh, *Lev.*19.27,28. *Jer.*16.6.

V. 6. O thou] the Prophets lamentation out of his compassion towards strange Nations, as *Isa.*15.5. & 21.3. *Jer.*48.36. which he appeaseth againe by his submission to Gods will.

V.7. The Sea shore] namely, the Philistines Countrey, which lay along the coast of the Mediteranean Sea.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Vers. 1. Nebo] this name, and those names which follow are the names of Cities of Moab. Misgab] the Italian, the rocke; it may be the place called Sela; which some doe beleeve was Bamoth, Num. 21.20. unlesse here he meanes the whole Land of Moab, which was strong and mountainous.

V.2. Praise] the Moabites shall not boast any more of the magnificence, greatnesse and strength of this City, which was the principall City of Moab. In the Hebrew tongue there is an allusion betweene Heshbon and devising, and betweene Mad men, and causing to perish. They have] namely, the Chaldeans.

V.6. Like] that is to say, lie hidden and unknown, in solitary places, like heath in the wildernesse, which was of no worth, see *Jer.*17.6.

V.7. In thy] namely, in thy valour, and strength, or in thy wealth and riches, or in thy workes, namely, thy strong places. Chemosh] the Moabites idoll, *Num.*21.29. Shall goe] according to the custome of heathen Nations, who were wont to carry the gods of conquered Nations, in triumph away with them, *Isa.*46.1. *Jer.*49.3.

V.9. Give wings] a propheticall and figurative description of the flight and dissipation of the Moabites.

V.10. Cursed] a propheticall exhortation to execute cute Gods judgements upon Moab with all manner of rigor.

V. 11. Hath been] that is to say, ever since it was a Nation, they were never turned out of their Countrey, wherefore like Wine that hath not been drawn off from the Lees, it hath kept its strength, dignity, and lawes, &c. see Zeph. 1. 12.

V. 13. Of Chemosh] because that idoll could not save them, see Isa. 15. 2. & 16. 12. The house] that is to say, the ten Tribes of Israel have found no relefe in their idols, which they had in Bethel, and in Dan, 1 Kin. 12. 29.

V. 17. The strong staffe] the Italian, the Scepter of strength; that is to say, this strong, powerfull, and magnificent Nation.

V. 18. Thou daughter] namely, ye people and communalty of Dibon, a City of Moab, forsake your ancient splendour and Noblenes, and conform your selves to a low, and wretched condition and state.

V. 19. Stand] a description of the Moabites affrightment at the newes of their discomfiture by the Chaldeans.

V. 20. Arnon] a river of Moab.

V. 24. Bozrah] this is not the Idumean Bozra, but it is the same as Bezer, Jos. 21. 36. which stood in the Land of Moab.

V. 26. Make ye him] let him be overcome with judgements, and with Gods wrath, which is likened to a cup of drinke, Isa. 51. 17. & 63. 6. Jer. 25. 27. Wallow] in signe of feare, and astonishment.

V. 27. Israel] that is to say, God will punish thee, because thou hast derided his people, and scoffed at their afflictions, shouting after them, as one would doe after a thiefe that is taken stealing, see Job 30. 5. Skippedst] with joy or with passion to follow him.

V. 28. Leave] retire and save your selves in retired and inaccessible places, see Psal. 35. 6.

V. 30. His wrath] his bold threats and brags against my people, and against me, which I will beat downe, and will not suffer them to last alwaies, nor be put in execution. Lies] namely, their vaine brags, or crafts, and deceipts, see Isa 16. 6.

V. 34. The cry] the terror and tumult hath passed from one end of the Countrey to the other. Of three] which at that age begins to low after the Bull. Waters] see Isa. 15. 6.

V. 37. Bald] the Italian, shaven; ordinary signes of extreame sorrow.

V. 38. Upon all] see Isa. 15. 3. & 22. 1. Like a] see Jer. 22. 28.

V. 40. He shall] namely, Nebuchadnezzar.

V. 45. They that] all the Moabites which lived in the Countrey, the discomfited men of warre, all weary men, and such as fainted, in heart and strength, did flie before the Chaldeans, and came into Heshbon a strong City, thinking there to be secure, but they shall all be there consumed. A fire] these are like Moses words, Nu. 21. 28. Sihon] Heshbon is often called so, Num. 21. 26. The Crown] namely, the King, and all the chiefe. Tumultuous ones] namely, the Moabites, a tumultuous and turbulent people by reason of its multitude, see Isa. 16. 14. whose noise shall be turned into a tumult, and disorder of men that are running away.

V. 47. Bring again] this may be referred to some reestablishment which the Moabites had after these desolations, but especially, to the spirituall deliverance under the Messias, whereof this Nation was to participate with the rest, see Isa. 49. 6, 26.

CHAP. XLIX.

Vers. 1. Israel] what reason have the Ammonites to seize upon that Land which I had given to my people, as if there were lawfull heires wanting? Their King] the Italian, Malcom; the Ammonites idol, 1 King. 11. 5. Now this invasion of the Ammonites, is attributed to their idol, in their opinion, they holding this victory as from him, and having brought in his service in the conquered Countrey. Gad] namely, the Land which belonged to this Tribe beyond Jordan. And it is likely that this happened, when by the Syrians, 2 Kin 10. 33. and afterwards by the Assyrians, 2 Kin. 15. 29. this Land was desolated, and the people carried into captivity. Or when Nebuchadnezzar came the first time with the Ammonites bands, 2 Kin. 24. 2. Amos 1. 13.

V. 2. Rabbath] the chiefe City of the Ammonites, 2 Sam. 12. 26. Be heire] there is no accomplishment of this according to the Letter, mentioned any where but onely, 1 Mac. 5. 6.

V. 3. Heshbon] a City of the Gadites, Jos. 13. 8, 10. & 21. 38, 39. seized upon by the Ammonites and Moabites, as it appeares by Jer. 48. 2. whose ruine was next after the taking and sacking of Ai, a City neere unto it, which cannot be the same, as is spoken of Jos. 7. 2. And run] as flying and wandring persons, save your selves, and hide you in the fields, and behind the hedges.

V. 4. In the valleys] namely, in thy Countrey, full of fruitful valleys, encompassed with high hils. Flowing valley] a figurative terme, as who should say, the wars like unto a deluge have carried away the fat of the soile, and hath melted the mountaines and hils.

V. 7. In Teman] namely, in Edom, whereof one part had its name from Teman, Esau his grandchild, Gen. 36. 11. and is possessed by his posterity, and was a Nation famous for its wisedome, Obad. 8. He meanes as it were in scoffe, Have those great wise men wanted understanding at their need? hath not their wisedome been found weake, and vaine against God, and his judgements?

V. 8 Dedan] certaine people of Arabia, neighbours to the Idumeans, see Gen. 25. 3.

V. 9. If grape-gatherers] by this comparison, the Prophet doth exaggerate the desolation of Edom, which ſhould be quite deſolate, and ſpoiled, leaving no remainder at all in it.

V.10. Bare] I have cauſed his enemies to leave nothing at all there, but to empty him quite. His ſeed] namely, thoſe Nations which were joyned to him by diſcent or by ancient alliance.

V.11. Leave] the meaning is, fathers, and husbands ſhall be deſtroyed in Edom. Little children and women ſhall have no reliefe nor help from men, nor ſhal not have any to fly unto but onely God.

V.12. They whoſe] namely, the Jewes, my people, and my children, whom one would have thought ſhould have been free from theſe deſolations, have notwithſtanding endured them: and ſhall not you Idumeans who are mine enemies, be overcome and ruined by the like deſolations:

V.13. Bozra] chiefe City of Edom.

V.14. I have heard] namely, in a prophetick viſion.

V.15. Make thee] I have appointed thee to be brought into the moſt unhappy ſtate, of any other Nation.

V.16. Thou that] he hath a relation to the rough and mountainous ſituation of Edom.

V.18. Dwell] the effect of this prophecy began by the Chaldeans, and then from time to time it hath been fully accompliſhed, the name and memory of Edom being at the laſt quite extinguiſhed.

V.19. He ſhall] namely, Nebuchadnezzar. Swelling] whereof ſee *Joſ.*3.15. *Jer.*12.5. The ſtrong] namely, Idumea, a Countrey very ſtrongly ſituated. And who is] as if one ſhould ſay, I will ſeeke out all the valiant ſouldiers, for to muſter them up againſt Edom. Will appoint] the Italian, who will challenge me; or who can ſet upon me? or, who can withſtand me? Shepheard] that is to ſay King, or Potentate, according to the Prophets ſtile.

V.20. The leaſt] that is to ſay, I will cauſe the very weakeſt of the Chaldeans Army, to be more then ſufficient to beat down the greatneſſe and ſtrength of the Idumeans, and deſtroy all their Countrey.

V.22. He ſhall] namely Nebuchadnezzar.

V.23. Hamath] a Citie of Syria, of which Damaſcus was the head, ſee *Iſa.*7.8. & 37.13. Tidings] namely, of the Chaldeans comming.

V.25. How is] theſe are the words of the King, or people of Syria.

V.27. Benhadad] a common name to all the Kings Syria, and eſpecially of one of them, which was very of famous, 1 *Kin.*20.1.

V.28. Kedar] Nations and Countries of Arabia. Smite] namely, after, and according to theſe prophecies. Thus ſaith] namely, to the Chaldeans. Of the Eaſt] all the Arabians are ſo called, Judg 6.3, Job 1.3. in reſpect of Paleſtine.

V.29. Shall they] namely, the Chaldeans, ſhall ſpoile the Arabians, which live a paſtorall life in tents. Curtaines] whereof they made their tents.

V.31. Ariſe] a comfort from God, encouraging the Chaldeans to ſet upon the Arabians, a Nation which lived in Tents, without any Cities or ſtrong holds, thinking themſelves ſecure in the ſolitudes of their Deſerts.

V.33. A dwelling] ſee *Iſa.*13.22. & 34.13. *Mal.*1.3.

V.34. Elam] a people between Perſia and Media. And it is not certaine, at what time this prophecie was fulfilled.

V.35. The Bow] he ſpeaketh this becauſe the Bow was theſe Nations ordinary weapon.

V.36. The foure] that is to ſay, the enemies ſhall come upon them on all ſides.

V.38. I will ſet] that is to ſay, I will ſolemnly execute my judgements upon theſe people, as if I ſate in my judgement ſeat, in a publique Court in the midſt of them.

CHAP. L.

Verſ.2. And ſet up] that being the way to give notice by ſuch ſignes in unlookt for chances. Bel, Merodach] the names of Chaldean idols, ſee *Iſa.*46.1. Broken in pieces] or ſpoiled, or diſcomfited.

V.3. A Nation] namely, the Medes and Perſians, which lay Northward from Chaldea, by whom the Babylonian Empire was deſtroyed, and afterwards from time to time followed the entire ruine of the City, according to this prophecy. Bothman] a repreſentation of an extreame deſolation.

V.4. Shall come] ſhal returne into Judea, being freed out of captivity. Weeping] for joy, and repentance for their ſin: & for grief to behold yet the tracks of Gods judgements, and their miſerable eſtate, in reſpect of their eſtate which was in former times, ſee *Ezr.*3.12.

V.6. Their ſhepheards] namely, their Governours, as well Politick, as Eccleſiaſticall, have cauſed them to wander out of the way of my obedience, and from the refuge and ſafeguard which they had in my grace and protection: of which being deprived, they were made a prey.

V.7. We offend not] that is to ſay, God will have it ſo, *Jer.*40.2. wherefore we may freely do it unto them, as to wicked men, as *Zech.*11.5. ſee the contrary, *Jer.*23. The habitation] namely, whoſe protection was like a ſacred habitation, and ſecure ſheep-coat, in which their forefathers had lived very ſecurely, *Pſalm.*90.1. and 91.1.

V.8. Goats] the Italian, He goats] which goe freely and readily before the flocke.

V.12 Mother] that is to ſay, your Countrey, or Babylon the ſeat of your Empire.

V.15. Given] that is to ſay, ſhe yeelds, and fainteth.

V.16. Oppreſſing] namely Cyrus, Generall of the Medes and Perſians Army, who ſhall oppreſſe and caſt downe all his enemies. Turne] he ſpeakes of hired ſouldiers, or of ſtrangers who lived in Babylon, for commerce or ſome other buſineſſes.

V.17.

V. 19. The King] that is to ſay, divers Kings of Aſſyria, Pul, Tiglath-Pileſer, Shalmaneʒer, Sennacherib, which laid waſte the whole Countrey, leaving nothing, but (as it were) the bones of a carcaſſe that is eaten up.

V. 20. Be ſought for] that is to ſay, I will be reconciled to my people for any offences that are already done, freeing them from all penalties that they were already run into.

V. 21. Go up] the Prophet directs his ſpeeches to Cyrus King of Perſia, and chiefe of the enterpriſe againſt Babylon. Land of Merathaim, Pekod] the names of Babylonian Provinces, Ezek. 23. 23. Commanded thee] that is to ſay, which ſecretly inſpired thee with, and directed thee in by my providence, according to theſe Propheſies, ſee 2 Kings 18. 25. 2 Chron. 36. 23.

V. 23. The hammer] namely, the Babylonian Empire, which the Lord had before made uſe of to beat down and break the others.

V. 24. Laid a ſnare] that is to ſay, taken thee ſuddenly and overthrown thee: a hunting terme.

V. 26. Open] that is to ſay, Force her cities and ſtrong holds, to the end that me may be deſtroyed without any reſiſtance.

V. 27. Bullocks] that is to ſay, all her valiant ſouldiers and captains, and all her mighty and rich vaſſals and ſubjects.

V. 28. The voice] the Italian, there is a voice; a propheticall repreſentation of the Jews return, declaring Gods wonderfull judgements upon Babylon, Ier. 51. 10

V. 37. The mingled people] he ſeems to mean the ſouldiers which were levied in Arabia, and the countries thereabouts, ſee Ier. 25. 20, 24.

V. 38. Upon her] he ſeemes to have a relation to that Euphrates, the chief ſtrength of Babylon, was turned another way, and the channell dried up by Cyrus, whereupon he ſuddenly aſſaulted the City on two ſides. Idols] the Hebrew word ſignifieth properly Giants, the Chaldean idols being for the moſt part remembrances of ancient Kings and Worthies, which were of a vaſt and unreaſonable ſtature, ſee Dan. 3. 1.

V. 41. A people] namely, the Medes and Perſians.

V. 44. He ſhall] namely, Cyrus. See the expoſition of theſe words following, Jer. 49. 19. Habitation] namely, againſt Babylon, a City which was very ſtrong both by art and nature.

CAHP. LI.

Verſ. 1. That riſe up] the Italian, that dwell in the heart of mine enemies; namely, in the City, which is the ſeat and center of the great earthly Empire, which is againſt my Kingdom and Church. A deſtroying winde] ſee Ier. 4. 11, 12.

V. 2. Fan her] that is to ſay, ſhall bring her power and domination to nothing, ſhall diſperſe her inhabitants, and diſſipate her riches, a phraſe taken from the corn on the threſhing floor.

V. 5. Iſrael] that is to ſay, Though the Church have grievouſly offended her God, yet hath he not ſo forſaken her, but that he will take vengeance upon her enemies.

V. 6. In her iniquity] namely, in the puniſhments of her grievous ſins.

V. 7. A golden cup] that is to ſay, a powerfull and famous meanes, by which God hath executed his judgements (likened to a potion, Ier. 25. 15.) upon the Nations of the world, whereby they have beene aſtoniſhed with terror, or grown outragious through impatience and madneſſe, by reaſon of an evil which could not be avoided.

V. 8. Take balme] uſe all the moſt effectuall means either by war or policie, all ſhall be in vain, ſee Jer. 8. 22. and 46. 11.

V. 9. We would] he brings in Babylons friends, ſouldiers, and confederates, who deſpairing of doing her any good, take counſell to forſake her quite.

V. 10. The Lord] he directs his ſpeeches to the Church, whereof the meaning is, God hath ſhewed by his judgements upon Babylon, how unjuſt a thing it is to oppreſſe his Church, which by right ought not continually to be a ſlave to the world.

V. 11. Make bright] O Babylonians, prepare your ſelves to reſiſt the Perſians aſſault.

V. 13. O thou] O Babylon, which art environed with great rivers, and branches or ſtreams of water. The meaſure] the Italian, the fulneſſe; namely, the end of all thine unſatiable uſurpations, and unlawfull purchaſes.

V. 14. Surely I will] that is to ſay, I ſweare I will cauſe to fall upon thee, and come into the midſt of thee, the numberleſſe army of the Perſians, who with their noiſe and military outcries, ſhall hearten themſelves on to aſſault and deſtroy thee.

V. 16. He maketh lightnings with rain] that is to ſay, he maketh them as forerunners of the enſuing raine. Others, he diſſolves the lightnings into rain.

V. 20. Thou art] God here ſpeaks to the Babylonian Empire, ſee Iſa. 10. 5, 15.

V. 24. I will] I will not enter into judgement with thee for the violences which thou haſt uſed againſt other prophane Nations, in whoſe deſtructions I have imployed thee, but only for tormenting of my people. In your ſight] namely, your ſight, O my people.

V. 25. O deſtroying mountain] that is to ſay, O thou great, high, and well founded Empire, which abuſeſt thy power to other mens deſtruction. A burnt mountain] I will bring thee into great heaps of aſhes and rubbiſh, as burned and deſtroyed Cities are.

V. 26. They ſhall not] there ſhall no part of thee remain whole, whereon they may found, or wherewith they may build another ſtate.

V. 27. Of Ararat] namely, of Armenia. Minni] theſe are unknown Nations, but it is likely that they were Northern people, Scythians, or the like. The nations] the Italian, a captain; namely, Cyrus. As the] namely, in innumerable troops.

V. 32. One poſt] ſome refer this to the bigneſſe of Babylon, which ſeemed rather a Province then a city: wherby one of the ends of it did not know that it was taken untill a good while after. Others do hold, that it was not taken under Belſhazar, but under another King, who was not at that time in Babylon, but in a ſtrong hold with ſome of his great ones and Barons, and that news of the taking of it was brought thither to him in ſuch manner as is here deſcribed. At one end] namely, on that ſide as Euphrates went in and out at, which was turned another way and dried up by Cyrus.

V. 32. The reeds] namely, the mariſhes which Euphrates made by overflowing the countrey. Burnt] that is to ſay, dried up, as if fire had gone thorow them, or peradventure they were really burnt after they had been dried up, to make the way the eaſier to paſſe.

V. 35. My fleſh] that is to ſay, the ſin of having ſo torne and devoured me, reſts upon her to cry unto God for vengeance.

V. 36. Her ſea] according to the letter, this may be underſtood of the great and broad river Euphrates dried up by Cyrus, Ier. 50. 38. And figuratively of Babylons great power and plenty that was in her.

V. 39. In their heat] I will blinde them in ſuch ſort by my judgements, that following their ſuperſtitious and diſſolute manner of life, they ſhall heat themſelves with wine in their feaſts, notwithſtanding the imminent danger of the ſiege, that they may be ſurpriſed and ſlain at the ſame time. For according to the Scripture, Iſa. 21. 5. Hab. 2. 5. and to Hiſtories, Babylon was taken in a night of publike ſolemn feaſting and great diſſoluteneſſe.

V. 42. The ſea] a great deluge of enemies is fallen upon her.

V. 44. Bel] the chiefe idol of the Babylonians, Iſa. 46. 1. Jer. 50. 2. that is to ſay, I will puniſh them for their idolatries. In Babylon] or upon Babylon. Bring forth] he doth attribute Babels extortions to Bel, for the Chaldeans made him the author of all their conqueſts and victories, ſee Ier. 49. 1. Others think that the Prophet had a relation to the great offerings which from all parts were offered to Bel, and eſpecially of the ſpoils of conquered Nations.

V. 46. The rumour] namely, of Cyrus his comming, who did not lay the ſiege to Babylon in the firſt yeer of his expedition, but in the ſecond.

V. 49. As Babylon] I will in the ſame manner cauſe to periſh by the ſword, not onely the inhabitants of the city, but the ſubjects alſo of this great Empire, which termed it ſelfe to be univerſall over all the world.

V. 50. Ye that] words directed to Gods people which went into captivity, after there had been great ſlaughter made of them by the Chaldeans, exhorting them to return to Jeruſalem.

V. 51. We are] the Jews lamentation.

V. 52. Wherefore] Gods anſwer to them.

V. 55. The great] namely, the great multitude of people which made ſuch a noiſe. Her waves] ſee verſ. 42. namely, the waves of thoſe deſtroyers, verſ. 53.

V. 59. A quiet prince] the Italian, great chamberlain; Heb. a prince of reſt. Some doe hold that he was Governour of a place or City called Menucha. Others do expound theſe words, as if amongſt great ones he had been the man that did ſettle and procure the reſt and quietneſſe of the Country, by oppoſing himſelfe to the rebellion againſt Nebuchadnezzar.

The

The Book of the Lamentations of JEREMIAH.

The ARGUMENT.

Eremiah after he had by his holy Ministery performed all the offices of fidelity towards God, and charity towards his Nation, to prevent their approaching ruine, did not cease even after it had hapned, but still continued in his former zeal and affection, and began to burden his innocent soul with the feeling of these calamities, and to make his sacred tongue and pen instruments of the publike grief. Being chosen for this use by the holy Ghost, to shew, That in the most sacred vessels of his grace he doth imprint the most lively and sharpest feelings of the evills of his Church, and of Gods judgements: and likewise giveth them the cleerest sights for to discern the true causes of them, and to make the right and true use of them. And according to this he composed this small compilement of Lamentations, to serve for a form to the Church at all times in the like cases: Not to teach any to abandon themselves to an immoderate sadnesse, nor much lesse to vain and affected complaints, which break the naturall bond of patience and silence in beleevers, nor to drive them to despairing, murmuring, and blaspheming of God; precipices into which excessive Lamentations do oftentimes plunge carnall men: but to prevent that ordinary vice which exteam griefs do produce, namely, an insensible stupefaction, and an obdurate heart, and to cooperate with the humiliation of mans spirit, to make him capable of the comfort of Gods Spirit promised to broken hearts and desolate souls, and to dispose him to a true conversion and invocation of God, to which these Lamentations do serve both for matter and incouragement. So then the Prophet doth in a Poetick stile, and figurative termes, full of the very bowels of compassion (lament in the communion and name of the Church) the misery wherein it was brought thorow the desolation of the whole land, and the destruction of the Kingdom, Jerusalem and the Temple, and the consumption of the people brought almost to nothing, and the dispersion of the rest into captivity; and therein he preceeds two wayes: First, by admiring and grieving at the greatnesse of these incredible and unheard of calamities. And in the second place, by a lively representation of the peoples excessive sins, which had induced the Lord to this extreme act of justice; which upon this occasion he doth in all humility adore, and doth submit unto it in silence and patience: acknowledging nevertheless, that it was tempered with some remnant of mercy, seeing that God had left a residue of his people for a small branch or bud of restauration: And therefore he declareth, that he was to make this use of all these punishments, namely, to turn to the throne of grace, by a sincere conversion and fervent invocation in faith; which the Prophet himself doth do in the Churches name, and interchangeably by a Prophetick Spirit doth promise her the sure effect of it in her reestablishment, and in the ruine of her enemies.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 11. [In the night] that is to say, in the darknesse of affliction, or at that time as other men take their rests, she is most troubled: See Iob. 7.3. [Her lovers] namely, amongst all those Nations which for their own advantages, and for to wrong Gods service, had in former times desired her league and friendship: See Ier. 4.30. and 30.14.

V. 3. Is gone into] he seems to mean the dispersion and voluntary flight of the Iews, by reason of the oppressions which they had suffered before the last desolation [in the straits] upon occasions of times and businesses, and in such places as it could not escape, a terme taken from hunters, or from robbers upon the high way.

V. 7. Mock at her sabbaths] namely, that being utterly depopulated, the countrey remained desart and abandoned, Levit. 26. 34, 43. whereupon she hath been derided, as if she had kept a long Sabbath.

V. 8. Removed] Heb. in a shaking; namely of the head, [have seen] for, God hath shewn to the world her infamous wickednesses: A terme taken from the ignominious punishments which were inflicted upon common and publike strumpets.

V. 9. Her filthinesse] that is to say, She hath made shew of her infamies: A terme taken from prostituted whores, or from menstruous women, see Isa. 3. 9. Her last end] namely, the judgement which I should in the end give upon it.

V. 10. Upon all] namely upon the holy vessels and treasures and upon the instruments of thy service, and pledges of thy presence.

V. 14 The yoke] that is to say, The Lord hath fastened unto me the punishment of my sins, and I cannot free my self from it.

V. 15. An assembly] the Italian addeth, at an appointed time; that is to say, he hath appointed the time and place when and where mine enemies should assault me. He hath trodden] he hath broken and bruised it with extreme calamities, see Isa. 63. 3. Rev. 14. 20

V. 16. The comforter] namely, God by his holy Spirit.

V. 17. Spreadeth forth] the Italian, Distributeth bread to her self with her own hands; description of the want of comfort, because that amongst the Iews, the kinsfolks and neighbours did use to bring food to them that mourned for the death of their friends, inviting them to take food and to comfort themselves, see Deut. 26. 14. Ier. 16. 7. Ezek. 24. 17. Hos. 9 4. As a menstruous] shunned and severed from all men, as menstruous women were under the law.

V. 19. Lovers] see vers. 2.

V. 20. Death] by pestilence and famine.

V. 21. The day] namely, the time of thy vengeance, which thou hast caused thy Prophets to foretell openly.

V. 22, Come] remember it, and let it come before thee, that thou mayest give it condigne punishment.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. Covered] that is to say, hath overcome her with extreme confusions and calamities, depriving her of the light of good counsell and direction, and taking all the lustre of happinesse and hope from her. His footstool] the Ark of the Covenant is so called, 1 Chron. 28. 2. Psal. 99. 5. and 132. 7. Others do take it more generally for the whole Temple, or the Sanctuary.

V. 2. Polluted] He hath dealt with it as with an unclean thing; hath taken away all the luster of it: or hath deprived it of his grace and protection, which before made it inviolable and holy.

V. 3. The horn] that is to say, the power and glory.

V. 6. Destroyed] the Italian, violently taken away, he hath rooted out his Temple, which was thought should have stood firme for ever: others dissipated.

V. 7. They have] namely, the enemies.

V. 8. They languished] that is to say, they lie upon the ground and cannot be raised again.

V 9 The law] is no more taught nor preached publikely, nor observed in the ordinary service.

V. 10. The elders] namely, the Magistrates and Governours [keep silence] through extreme anguish and confusion.

V 11. My liver] I am in a sound and trance, as if I had poured out all mine entrails.

V. 13. What thing] that is to say, What reasons or arguments shall I use to thee to comfort thee. I cannot produce any examples of the like calamities, which seemeth to ease ones grief

V. 14 They have not] they have not reproved thee for thy sins, to bring thee to repentance, for to keep thee from going into captivity. False burdens the Italians, burdens of vanity, namely, false prophecies of threatnings against thine enemies, Isaiah 13. 1. in confidence whereof thou hast straied further from thy dutie.

V. 15. Clap their] in derision, and by way of insulting over them: see Iob 27. 23.

V. 17 His word] namely, the threatnings of his Law, Lev. 26. 14. Deut. 28. 15. and the predictions of the Prophets from time to time.

V. 18. Their heart] namely, the poor Iews hearts, O wall] a representation of an extreme and universall grief; as who should say, O City, wherein there is now nothing but walls and houses, being left void of inhabitants.

V. 19. The beginning] namely, in thy first sleep, which is the deepest and sweetest sleep.

V. 22. As in a] that is to say, Thou hast gathered together all thy fearfull scourges at one time, even as people come together in dayes of great solemnity.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. I am] the prophet speaks in the person and name of all the people.

V. 3. Is he turned] that is to say, He strikes me at times, and with redoubled blows: see Iob 19. 12.

V. 5. He hath] he did as it were besiege me round with evils: see Iob 19. 12.

V. 9. Paths crooked] that is to say, He hath disordered ordered us, and turned all our buſineſſes, counſels, and State upſide down, making all things to fall out the contrary way

V. 11. He hath] he hath taken away from me all means of eſcaping from his rage and fury.

V. 14. To all] or to all my nation. And ſo it would be the Prophets particular complaint.

V. 16. He hath] that is to ſay, He hath tormented me with ſuch harſh afflictions, that I could not diſgeſt them with any patience.

V. 19. The wormwood] namely, my moſt bitter afflictions.

V. 27. Bear] to uſe himſelf to patience and obedience in time, under the diſcipline of afflictions, and of Gods Law.

V. 29. He putteth] he ſhall humble himſelf before God, he ſhall keep his mouth from murmuring, and confeſſe his ſin and unworthineſſe, Iob 42 6. to try by all ſuch means as are appointed by God for to appeaſe his wrath.

V. 30 He giveth] that is to ſay, He ſhall diſpoſe himſelf willingly to ſuffer ſuch evils with patience as he ſhall know to be ſent him from the Lord, though they come upon him by the means of wicked men, ſee Iſa 50 6.

V. 33. Willingly] that is to ſay, He takes no delight in it, nor doth do it upon pleaſure, without being forced thereunto by their wickedneſſe, ſee Iſa. 28.21.

V. 34 To cruſh] the Italian, while others ſtamp; that is to ſay, are not mans oppreſſions, either in time of peace under pretence of right, or in time of war, all done by Gods permiſſion and direction for the puniſhment of ſins.

V 37. Who is he] that is to ſay, No enterpriſe, nor counſell of man, can take any effect without Gods will, therefore we ought to take as from his hands even thoſe evils which men do unto us.

V. 51. Mine eye] that is to ſay, I do even conſume and wear out my ſelf with weeping. the daughters] namely, the Cities and Commonalties of my diſtreſſed people.

V. 53 Caſt] as they did upon the carcaſes of thoſe which died for ſome miſdeed, Ioſh. 7.26. and 8.29. 2 Sam. 18.17.

V. 54. Waters] namely, a deluge of afflictions.

V. 57 Dreweſt neer] thou haſt alwayes been ready to relieve me when I have called upon thee: O continue in doing ſo now at this preſent.

V. 59. Wrong] in reſpect of mine enemies and their intentions, and not in reſpect of thy juſtice in puniſhing of me.

V. 60. Vengeance] namely, their hoſtilitie and violence.

V. 65. Sorrow] the Italian, encumbrance; namely, ſorrow, perplexity, and confuſion.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. Become dim] how hath it hapned that Gods people, who were like unto fine gold and precious ſtones, whereof the ſpirituall Temple is built, have loſt their luſtre and dignity, being ſcattered about like the ſtones of the ruine of a building?

V. 3. Sea-monſters] the Italian, great ſea-fiſhes; it is a kinde of a whale: This is ſpoken onely to exaggerate the extremity of the famine, which was ſuch during the time of the ſiege at Ieruſalem, that fathers and mothers did forget their affection towards their children, being diſtreſſed through their own wants

V. 5. Embrace] an Hebrew phraſe, to ſhew their geſture, who lying in their beds, do wrap themſelves up in the clothes and coverlids, ſee Iob 24.8. As much as to ſay, The children of curiouſeſt breeding, and of the beſt families have lien upon dunghils, where common ordures have been thrown out, ſeeking there for ſome mean kind of food.

V. 7 Nazarites] who according to the Law, Numb. 6. 2. were bound to a more ſtrict kinde of puren ſſe. Others tranſlate it, The moſt honourable men, and which were of moſt note.

V. 13. For the ſins] this is not ſaid to excuſe the people, but to aggravate the generall corruption which had reached even to theſe principall members in whom moſt holineſſe was required, and whoſe evil example bred more ſcandall and contagion, and through whoſe default the Church came to be without any help, ſee Ier. 23.15. Mat 5.13.

V. 14. As blinde men] the Italian, Blinde men have wandred; an amplification of the great ſlaughters which were made in Ieruſalem, either in the time of the Caldeans ſiege, or under Manaſſeh, and other wicked Kings, 2 Kings 21. 16. whereby poor blinde men could not avoid the defiling of themſelves with the blood that was ſhed, Num. 19 11.

V. 15. when they] the Italian, and though they; though they ſpeedily withdrew themſelves from ſuch unclean places as were ſhewed them, yet they could not chuſe but defile themſelves by touching of ſome dead carcaſe, whereof every thing was full. They ſaid] the very prophane people, hearing and ſeeing the wickedneſſe of the Iews, have judged that it was impoſſible that God ſhould ſuffer them any longer

V. 16. They reſpected not] this alſo is likely rather ſpoken of the Iews then of the Caldeans.

V. 17. Our eyes] we have in vain wearied our ſelves, expecting relief out of Egypt, 2 Kings 24. 7. Ier. 37 7, 8

V. 20. The breath] namely, Zedekiah the laſt King in Davids race, in whoſe life time we hoped to be restored, re-established, and gathered together from our dispersions and captivities. In their nets] or pits: A terme taken from hunters, Ezek. 12. 13.

V. 21. Reioyce] an ironicall reproof for the Idumeans, the Iews deadly enemies, who did insult upon them in their ruine, Psal. 137. 7. Thy self naked] the Italian, uncover thy self; that is to say, Thou shalt be void of shame and understanding, even like a drunken body, see Gene. 9. 21. The meaning is, Gods judgements shall bring thee into such misery, that thou shalt be exposed to publike scorn, even as thou hast derided the Iews.

V. 22. Punishment] that is to say, God hath punished thee untill the appointed and prefixed time, henceforward he will take pity upon thee, and turn his wrath upon thine enemies.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 3. Fatherlesse] having lost our King. Our mothers] namely, our cities and commonalties.

V. 4. We have] a description of an extreme famine during the siege.

V. 5. Necks] being laden with an extreme yoke of slavery.

V. 6. Given our] we have humbly desired aid of these nations which were confederate with us, who had great cause to be enemies to the Caldeans.

V. 7. We have born] God hath reserved those judgements which were due for our forefathers sins, whereof we have filled up the measure, for to cast them upon us after he had so long suspended them.

V. 9. The sword] by reason of the souldiers which lay every way, especially towards the wildernesse, which was the way by which we looked to have relief out of Egypt, and to have provision come to us, vers 6.

V. 13. To grinde] the Italian, to carry the grists; like poor asses, or other beasts that carry loads. Some have it, to grinde; which was a service that slaves were imployed in, Judg. 16. 21. Isa. 47. 2. The wood] which they caused them to carry.

V. 14. The gate] which was the place appointed to sit in Councell, and for publike meetings

V. 16. The crown] namely, our glory and ornament.

V. 19. Remainest] thou art everlasting and invariable in essence, and in truth, will, and promise. Seeing then it hath pleased thee to chuse us to be thy people, do not alter thy good will towards us, but imploy thine everlasting power for to grant us the life and being of thy grace, see Psal. 102. 27, 28, Heb. 1. 12.

The Book of the Prophet EZEKIEL.

The ARGUMENT.

THe Lord, Who at all times in the midst of his most severe judgements hath reserved some remnant of grace and favour for the residue of his elect and true beleevers, did the like in his peoples captivity in Babylon, raising up excellent Prophets to them, Who gathered together and kept united the reliques of that great shipwrack, by the Word of God, preached in lively demonstration of the Spirit, for the conversion and amendment of souls, by a representation of the present evils, and the true causes thereof; and also for their comfort by the assurance of the restauration promised in the appointed time: Amongst which was Ezekiel of the priestly race, Who being carried into captivitie with King Jehoiakim, was called to be a Prophet in Babylon, at the same time as Jeremiah propheseied in Jerusalem: Wherefore there is a great deal of conformity in the substance of these their Prophecies, save only that Ezekiel proceeds more by admirable descriptions of visions; and Jeremiah by a continued kinde of speech. The subject of this Propheste, almost in every place is, To shew that the Son of God is Head and King of his Church, residing in grace and power in his Temple, after he had a long time endured the ingratitude, rebellions, idolatries, and generall corruptions of his people, nourished by their false teachers and prophets, and kindled by the evil government of their governours, as well Ecclesiasticall as Politike, having at last determined to forsake his Temple and his abode amongst his people, shewing the Prophet this departure in visions at severall times, to the more open shame and reproach reproach of the Iews impenitency, for which the Lord would at the length utterly forſake them, and give them up into the Caldeans hands, to exterminate and diſperſe them, burn and throw down the Temple, race their Citie, kill their Kings and Princes, and finally, extinguiſh and annihilate in Jeruſalem all ſignes of any Common-wealth or Church; whereof he would notwithſtanding preſerve the ſeed in Babylon amongſt thoſe poor captives, to make it revive, and flouriſh again at the appointed time. And the Prophet doth ſet down and exaggerate at large in divers Chapters the cauſes of this decree; namely, the violation of all his commandments, both of the firſt and ſecond Table of Gods Law in a ſuparlative degree. And he alſo taxeth thoſe which were already in captivity in Babylon with the ſame ſins, with moſt ſevere threatnings. Then he turneth himſelf to many ſtrange nations, which were the Iews neighbours, and had been either a cauſe of miſleading them, or had through malice been aſſiſting to their deſolation and overthrow, or had rejoyced at it, eſpecially to Tyre, Egypt, and Edom, whom he telleth that they ſhould be enfolded in the ſame Caldean deluge, who raiſed an Empire out of the ruine of many States and Kingdoms: And ſo goeth on to the foretelling of the ruine of Gog and Magog, the laſt and cruelleſt perſecutors and enemies of the Church; to which he turneth himſelf again towards the end of his Book with comfort and conſolation, by the promiſes of eternall redemption through the Meſſias, and the eſtabliſhment of his Kingdom in this World, which is magnificently deſcribed by the viſion of the admirable reſtauration of Solomons ancient Temple, deſcribed very particularly in its firſt form and ſtate, to which the Church, renewed by Chriſt, ſhould be every way correſpondent in ſpirituall excellency and glory, into which he ſhould come again to make his eternall reſidence there: ſetting it again in a perfect order of ſpirituall pietie, pure ſervice of God, holineſſe and righteouſneſſe: after which ſhould follow a compleat and celeſtiall happineſſe.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. The thirtieth] that is to ſay, From the beginning of Nabopolaſſar his reign, who was father to Nebuchadnezzar the great, according to the Babylonian accompt, where Ezekiel was, which accompt was alſo obſerved for a long time after. Captives] namely, under King Ithoiakim, 2 Kings 24. 12. Chebar] a river of Meſopotamia, neer to which it ſhould ſeem were appointed the habitations for the Iews which were led into captivitie, Pſal. 137. 1. The heavens] a kinde of ſpeech very much uſed in the deſcription of viſions, Mat 3. 16. Acts 7. 56 and 10. 11. Rev. 19. 11. to ſhew a ſuddain breaking forth of light from above, created by God miraculouſly, as if it came out of Heaven it ſelf: in and through the midſt of which were ſhewn the repreſentations of divine things.

V. 3. The hand] that is to ſay, God did work in him after a miraculous manner, did raviſh him in Spirit, did enlighten and ſtrengthen his minde, and the other faculties of his ſoul, and did reveal to him in viſion ſuch divine ſecrets as did far ſurpaſſe any humane capacity, 1 King. 18. 46. 2 King 3. 15.

V. 4. A whirlwinde] a figure of the coming of the Son of God, eternall King of the Church, in judgement againſt the Iews; uſing the Caldeans, which lay northerly from Iudea, for his inſtruments. Amber] the Italian, ſiaebroſſe; the Hebrew word is of a very uncertaine ſignification: according to ſome, it is a kinde of mettall compoſed of gold and ſilver; according to others, a kinde of very fine braſſe, as Rev. 1. 15.

V. 5. Out of the midſt] the meaning of this viſion ſeems to be, That the Son of God, who had eſtabliſhed the Ark of the covenant with all the things belonging to it, for a ſigne of his reſidence amongſt his people, and for a figure of heaven, where he dwelleth and reigneth in glory amongſt his angels, doth here reveal his heavenly Majeſtie in forms and ſhapes anſwerable to the earthly figures of the Temple, appearing in judgement againſt his people, purpoſing to depart from them and deſtroy them, as it is declared, Ezek. 10. 19. and 11. 23. untill the time appointed for the reſtauration of the Church, at which time he would return in the ſame form, Ezek. 43. 3. See the like viſions, Dan 7. 9. Rev. 4. 6, 7. Thereof, namely, of the fire. Creatures] living and moving bodies, which repreſented the Angels about Chriſt his throne, as likewiſe upon the Ark, and upon the walls on the outſide and inſide of the Sanctuary, there were pictures of Cherubims, as theſe beaſts are alſo called, Ezek. 10. 15.

V. 6. Four] See verſ. 10. and Ezek. 10. 14.

V. 7. Their feet] according to the Hebrew

phraſe, by the foot is meant the leg and thigh, here deſcribed to be ſtrait, without any bending in the ham or hough like unto the fore legs of beaſts. Sole] to ſignifie, as it ſhould ſeem, the indefatigable motion of Angels in the ſervice of God and of his Church.

V. 8. The hands] to ſhew the vertue and diverſity of their operation. The four ſides] namely, on the four ſides of the wagon, on each ſide of which there was a Cherubim.

V. 9. Their wings] namely, with which they did flee, verſ. 11. did ſpread themſelves and move alike, to ſignifie the equall uniformity of the Angels motions in Gods ſervice. Returned not] namely, at their own will and pleaſure, but according to the directions of him that ſat upon the throne, verſ. 14. A figure of the conſtancy, perſeverance, ſimplicity, and uprightneſſe of the Angels in all their ſervice.

V. 10. Faces] which by ſome have been taken for reſemblances of a man in the generall ſhape of the body, of an ox in the hoofs, of a lion in the hair, and of an eagle in the wings. But moſt commonly they are taken for reſemblances of the head: thoſe of the man and of the lion being oppoſite, ſeem to repreſent the angels, done ſometimes in mildeneſſe and ſometimes in rigour; thoſe of the eagle and the ox, the various object of their working, ſometimes in earthly, and ſometimes in heavenly things.

V. 11. Upwards] namely, above the ſhoulders where the four faces did begin to divide themſelves, and where the four wings of the Cherubims were alſo divided, whereof two they uſed to flie with, and with the other two they covered the lower parts of their bodies: The firſt two ſignifie the ſwiftneſſ, equalitie, and ſublimeneſſe of their ſervice; the ſecond their unſpotted purity, as Iſa. 6. 2.

V. 12. The Spirit] namely, the will and pleaſure of him that ſate upon the Throne, who did drive and put forwards the beaſts and the wheels to the ſame kinde of motion, verſ. 20.

V. 14. Returned] not in a tumultuary way, by chance, and according to their own minds, but according as their head did guide them.

V. 15. One wheel] the Ark, which was the figure of Gods throne of glory, is called a chariot, 1 Chr. 28. 18. to ſhew that God is not ſhut up in heaven, nor is not idle, but moves and works continually by his Spirit and power. So alſo he ſets wheels to the celeſtiall throne, Dan. 7. 9. The meaning in this place is, that the Prophet did ſee a wheel by every one of the beaſts, ſo that there being four beaſts, there were alſo four wheels; and ſo there was the whole frame of a cart or wagon, ſee Ezek. 10. 9. Upon the earth] namely, upon the floor which appeared in this viſion. Faces] that is to ſay, Sides; ſo that two Cherubims flew before the two firſt wheels, the other two by the chariot ſide, before the two laſt wheels.

V. 16. As a wheel] not in manner of a ſphere, two circles cutting one another by direct angles, which would be abſurd in a chariot, but one wheel being doubled upon the other, to ſignifie, as it ſhould ſeem, either the ſeverall ſpheriticall compaſſes of the Heavens upon which Gods Majeſtie is carried. Or the two orders of Gods manner of working, namely, the order of nature, and the order of grace. Or his two orders of government, namely, the temporall and ſpirituall order joyned together in his Church.

V. 17. They returned not] they did not move out of the direct tract wherein the beaſts did lead them, but even as the beaſts were led by their chief, ſo did they alſo guide the wheels, ſee verſ. 20. A figure of the conſonant harmony which is in all the works of Gods providence towards his Church.

V. 18. Full of] inſtead of great nails wherewith Charet wheels are garniſhed, here were eyes, for to repreſent either the ſtars of Heaven, or more particularly the providence of God in all parts of this government; or the gifts of the Spirit in the inſtruments which are thereunto imployed, ſee Zach. 3. 9. Rev. 4. 6.

V. 20. The Spirit] ſee verſ. 12. For the Spirit] that is to ſay. The ſame divine inſpiration which did drive the beaſts, did alſo give a motion to the wheels, to ſignifie that God is preſent and effectuall in all the inſtruments of his providence, and that Chriſt doth do all in all in his Church, 1 Corinth. 12. 16. Epheſ. 1. 11 Coloſ. 3. 11.

V. 22. The firmament] ſee Gen. 1. 6 by this is meant Chriſts celeſtiall glory, who is King of the Church.

V. 23. Straight] namely, when they did flie, for when they ſtood ſtill they did let down their wings.

V. 24 As the voyce] namely, like thunder.

V. 26. A man] which repreſented the Son of God, Head of the Church and King of the univerſe, who at the appointed time was to take upon him humane fleſh, ſee Iſa. 6. 1. Ioh. 12 41. and was the ſame who was perſonally preſent upon the Ark of the covenant.

V. 28. I fell] aſtoniſhed and affrighted at the ſight of Gods Majeſtie, alwayes terrible to ſinfull men during this mortall life, ſee Dan. 8. 17. Revel. 1. 17.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 2. The Spirit] the holy Ghoſt did work powerfully in me for to ſtrengthen and embolden me in mine affrightment, and to reſtore me to the free and entire uſe of my ſenſes, to hear and apprehend thoſe things which were ſpoken to me

V. 4. Im-

V. 4. Impudent] the Italian hard of forehead; that is to say, Such as are not ashamed of any thing, Ier. 6. 15 and 8. 12.

V. 9. A roll] namely, a book or a volume wrapped and rolled up upon a stick, according to the ancient fashion Isa. 8. 1. Now this book did set forth the subject of these ensuing prophecies, full of threatnings and curses.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. He said] namely, he that had spoken to him in the precedent chapter which was very likely to be he that sate upon the throne. Eat] all this was done in vision, to represent the deep impression of the word of God in the heart of his Ministers, who must apprehend it by Faith, and digest it by Meditation; for to utter it, not as a meer narration, but as a quick and lively doctrine. That thou findest] namely, that I give thee whatsoever it be, sweet o bitter, hard or soft, pleasing or displeasing: to signifie, that one ought to follow their vocation freely, without contradiction or doubt.

V. 3. It was] the office of a Prophet at the first seemed pleasing to me by reason of the excellency of revelations, the communication with God, the profit that might from thence come to the Church, and the honour which God did therein do me by the seal of his grace, but the bitternesse followed afwards, vers. 14.

V. 5. For thou] that is to say, I will not employ thee in preaching to strange and barbarous nations, as Ionas and others; but thou shalt preach only to thine own Nation, which should be a pleasure and a comfort to thee, and should strengthen thee in zeal and vertue.

V. 9. Though they be] or, Because they be.

V. 12 The Spirit] namely, Gods Spirit, by which the Prophet was taken up, and corporally transported from the place where he had seen the vision, to the chief residence of his countrey men, which were captives in Babylon, a thing which did often befall the Prophets 1 Kings 18. 12. 2 Kings 2. 16. Acts 8. 39. From his] namely out of Heaven, where the Angels and blessed Spirits do uncessantly glorifie the Name of God.

V. 14. In bitternesse] after I had well thought upon the subject of my Prophesies, and of my Commission, finding them full of miseries for my Nation, and of danger and troubles for my self, [the hand] that is to say, the power of Gods Spirit made me to overcome all these fleshly apprehensions, Isa. 8 11. Ier. 1 9

V. 15 Tel-abib] the name of some chief place or plantation of the Iews in captivity [astonished] by these dolefull prophesies, and mine unlookt for vocation.

V. 18. I say] When I shall have given thee commission to say so to him from me [die] by some notable punishment or casualty, which is a signe and forerunner of eternall punishment. Will I require] I will in part hold thee to be guilty of his death, and shall make thee bear the punishment of it.

V. 20. A stumbling block] namely, some casualty, danger, or occasion of death into which he shall run himself. His righteousnesse] seeing it is not accompanied with perseverance, shall be of no esteem with me to free him from my judgements, neither shall the evill which came after be satisfied nor counterpoised by the good which was done before.

V. 25. Binde thee] in vision thou shalt think that thou art bound with cords, for a signe of Gods straitly forbidding thee. Others think that God foretelleth him, that he shall be shut up by those of his own houshold, as if he were beside himself, as Prophets often seemed to be.

V. 26. Dumb] a token of a propheticall extasie, Ezek 24 27 Luke 1 22

V. 27. But when] thou shalt remain thus dumb untill I come to thee again by prophetick revelation. It should seem that this continued but till the next vision, see Ezek. 14 7.

CHAP. IV.

Vers. 1. Take thee] it is likely that all this was inspired too, and done by the Prophet whilst he was in extasie.

V 2. And lay] draw a design of a very strait siege. Battering rams] namely, to batter the walls, according to the ancient manner.

V. 3. An iron pan] the Italian, an iron plate; to shew that all endeavours and resistance that they of Ierusalem could make against the besieging Caldeans, should be to no purpose, and that it should be impossible for any relief to come and deliver them. Lay siege] thou shalt in rapture of spirit act the part of a chief Commander of an Army, which doth straitly besiege a place. A signe] namely, of the siege and taking of Ierusalem, which the Iews that were already in captivity in Babylon with Ezekiel, would not be perswaded that could come to passe.

V. 4. Lie thou] this also hapned and was done in his extasie. as it is likely that the Prophet doing these things, did speak such words withall as did declare these dayes, and other circumstances. Now this Vision was a figure of Gods long patience in suffering the sins of his people, though they were great and intolerable: as it would be very troublesome for a man to lie long upon one side without turning himself, especially if he had any great waight lying upon him. Upon it] namely, upon the contrary side, the other bearing the waight. Thou shalt bear] this was also spoken by the Prophet in extasie, extasie, doing as a man that did take up some burthen.

V. 5. The yeers] that is to say, Thou shalt tell them, that I will have thee lie thus for such a number of dayes, a day signifying a yeer of my patience after the revolt of the ten tribes, accompanied with publike idolatry, 1 King. 12. 27, 28. and after Iudahs going astray, 1 King. 14 22. unt ll the last captivity by Nebuzaradan, Ier. 52. 30. which time doth just contain the three hundred and ninety yeers, during which the Lord endured the sins of the whole nation, namely, of the ten tribes and Iudah.

V. 6. Of the house] of the tribe of Iudah, whose sins having been as it were confused and mixed with the sins of the other ten tribes for the former number of yeers, are now reckoned severally, from the time that the covenant was renewed by Iosiah, 2 King. 22 3. and 23 2, 7. untill the last captivity, which was fourty yeers, during which time Iudah did run out into idolatries, and other manner of sinnes.

V. 7. Set] the Italian, fix; do the actions of a Commander that were very busie about some siege. Prophesie] by these signes, with words and expressions joyned thereunto.

V. 8. I will lay] this also was in vision, Ezek. 3 26. for a signe, that as God had born with the people three hundred and ninety yeers: so Ierusalem should bear her punishment in the last siege three hundred and ninety dayes, vers. 9. now though the siege lasted eighteen moneths, Ier. 52. 4, 5, 6. yet there was an intermission by the means of the Egyptians coming, Ier. 37. 5. which intermission might last for the space of some five moneths, which are left out in this account.

V. 9. Vnto thee] a figure of the extreme dearth in Ierusalem during the siege, signified by the course bread made of divers sorts of grain, then by the small weight, and lastly, by the times appointed to eat.

V. 10. Twenty] which was about ten ounces.

V. 11. Water] whereof there was also great scarcity during the siege, the springs without the city being possessed by the enemies, and Ierusalem having no river, see Lam. 5. 4

V. 12. The dung] this signe doth also shew the great scarcity of wood to bake their bread with, Lam. 5. 4. and it signifieth besides, that the Lord holding his people for prophane and unclean, would make them in their exile and captivity, unable to observe that ceremoniall purity in their meats which God had commanded, see Hos. 9. 3.

V 15. Cows dung] used by some Nations for to dresse their meat, and was not altogether so abominable as mans dung: And this was a signe of the misgation of this threatning towards the elect.

V. 16. Break] an Hebrew phrase, Levit. 26. 26. Isa. 3. 1. that is to say, I will send an extreme penury of bread, and of all things needfull for the sustenance of mans life.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 1. Take thee] this seems to have been commanded, during the former extasie, for to be really put in execution, to signifie a totall destruction of the Nation, here understood and meant by the hair of the head and beard: whereof one part was consumed in the siege by famine and pestilence, as it were by fire; another was killed by the Caldeans; a third was scattered over the world, and persecuted by Gods vengeance; and a small remnant escaped, whereof a part also perished by divers calamites, see Ier. 15. 2. Ezek. 5. 12.

V. 2. Of the city] which was designed upon the brick, Ezek. 4. 1. The dayes] see Ezek. 4 8, 9. After them] against that part of my people, signified by this part of the hair, vers. 12.

V. 4 Shall a fire] after the representation of this part cast unto the fire, shall follow the true and reall effect in the extermination of all the Nation, see upon Zach. 5. 3.

V. 5. This is] that is to say, This figure represents Ierusalem, and sheweth how I will use her. I have set it] amongst many nations I had sanctified and made choice of it for mine abode, and enriched it with singular graces.

V. 7. Multiplied] namely, in misdeeds and wickednesses, or in my gifts and graces, which you have requited with nothing but ingratitude. To the judgements] the Italian to the customs; namely, by cleaving to your God, as every one of them hath done to their god, Ier. 2. 10, 11. or by following the meer naturall light of reason, as the best amongst other Nations have done, Rom. 2. 14.

V. 11 Diminish] the Italian, shave; that is to say, I will lay thee waste, and destroy thee totally: He alludes to the shaven hair which were spoken of before.

V. 13. To rest] not by any clemency, pardon, or reconciliation but by the full execution and discharge of my vengeance.

CHAP. VI.

Vers. 3. Ye mountains] that is to say, Ye people of Iudah, which dwell in a hillie countrey and valleys, wherein you practise your idolatries Isa. 57. 5.

V. 4. Images] See Levit. 3. 30.

V. 6. Your works] namely, your Idols, Altars, Chappels, and all other superstitious inventions of man.

V. 9. I am] that is to say, My patience hath been been overcome. Or I have been grieved and afflicted, even as a husband would be at the evill carriage of his adulterous wife. See *Pſ.*78. 40. *Iſa.*7.13. and 63 10. loath themſelves, with a lively and holy ſorrow, and repentance, *v.*12 beſieged, or reſerved.

CHAP. VII.

Ver.3. ALL thine] that is to ſay, the puniſhment due for them.

V.4. Shall be] that is to ſay, they having never been wiped out, nor cancelled by my pardon, nor by your repentance, I will make you endure open puniſhment for them.

V.7. Sounding againe] the Italian, an Eccho; namely, a vaine ſound, to no effect.

V.10. The rod] A proverbiall kind of ſpeech, to ſignifie, that the peoples ſinnes were paſſed from violence againſt man, which is the firſt budding out into habituall and generall impiety: and had proceeded to bring forth bloſſomes, and flowers of pride and bold rebellion againſt God, which is, as it were, the filling up of the meaſure heap full, which draweth Gods judgements upon us.

V.11. None of them] they muſt all periſh, I will ſuffer them no longer.

V.13. For the ſeller] by reaſon of the deſolation of the land, all manner of right and title to the property of lands ſhall be loſt, by the buyers and ſellers and none ſhall come againe to the poſſeſſion of his land in the yeare of Jubile, though he live to it, *Lev.*25.13,23. any] none ſhall be able by art or cunning, to avoid my ſentences of death.

V.14. They have] though they make great preparations, their hearts ſhall faile them at their need, and they ſhall not be able to doe any thing for to defend themſelves.

Diblah] which place is not found mentioned, except it be that Diblathaim, *Ier.*48.22. which was a place in Moab neare the great deſert.

V.17. All hands] All manner of ſtrength to defend themſelves, and to ſubſiſt, ſhall faile.

V.18. Baldneſſe] according to the cuſtome of plucking off, or ſhaving off ones haire, in token of great griefe, though God had forbidden it, Deut. 14.1. See *Iſa.*3.24. and 15.2,3. *Ier.*48.37. Ezek. 27.31. *Mic.*1.16. Amos 8.10.

V.19. Shall caſt] taking care for nothing, but to ſave their owne perſons. Or they ſhall leave their wealth to their enemies, thinking to ranſome their lives therewith, but it ſhall all be but in vain. See *Iſa.*13.12,17.

V.20. He] namely the people of Judah. Set it] that is to ſay, that gold and ſilver, and thoſe jewels and ornaments ſhall be caſt away from them, and forſaken by them, as things of no value.

V.21. Pollute it] with the bloud of ſlaine perſons.

V.22. My ſecret place] namely, my ſanctuary, into which it was not lawfull for any one to come but only the High-prieſt, and where God by the ſignes of his preſence did dwell in darkneſſe, that place being filled with a miſt, 1 *King.*8.10,12. and receiving no light from without. To ſhew that God in his Eſſence is inviſible and incomprehenſible, and in his glory and Majeſty inacceſſible. Into it] namely, Jeruſalem. Defile it] that is to ſay, ſhall ſacke and deſtroy it, as a prophane and polluted place, without any reſpect to it, as to a City conſecrated to God.

V.23. Make a chaine] the Italian, an encloſure] that is to ſay, repreſent unto my people by ſignes and figures the ſiege of Jeruſalem; as *Ezek.*4.1. Others make a chaine for a ſigne of the peoples captivity. See *Ier.*27.2. Bloudy crimes] namely of unjuſt ſentences, by which the innocent were condemned to death. Or judgements upon capitall offences.

V.26. Seeke] in the midſt of theſe great troubles, they ſhall require ſome counſell, direction or comfort from the Prophets. But not only prophecie, which is an extraordinary gift, ſhall faile them, but alſo the ordinary preaching of Gods word, and all good advice and proviſion of humane wiſedome.

V.27. The hands] The people ſhall be ſo diſmayed, that they will be able to doe nothing in their owne defence.

CHAP. VIII.

Ver.1. THE ſixth] namely of Iehoiakims captivity, *Ezek.*1.2.

V.3. Puts forth] All this was done in a mentall viſion, and not really, nor corporally. Inner-gate] namely, of Solomons temple, and this ſeemes to be the gate that led into the inner court, or Prieſts court: and right over againſt that another gate, by which they went into the outward court, or the peoples court. Of jealouſie] it is very uncertaine what idoll this was, but it is plaine that it was a very abominable one, to which the people bare great devotion, as Baal was, it is called the idoll of jealouſie, becauſe it was the principall object of the peoples ſpirituall adultery. See *Ier.*7.30. and 23.11. and 32.34.

V.5. Of the Altar] namely, of burnt offerings, which being in the middle of the inner court, the three doores of this court were by direct line oppoſite to the ſaid Altar in equall diſtance. And therefore it is not knowne why the Northerne gate should be so called peculiarly, unlesse this name was given it: when Achaz removed the Altar out of its place, and did set it neare to this gate, 2 Kin. 16.14.

V.7. The Court] namely, the Priests court, a hole] to signifie, as it seemeth, the Jewes carelesnesse, in preserving and repayring Gods temple. In the wall] He seemes to meane the wall that was on the one side of this Portico, where the doorkeepers chambers were, Ezek 40.10.

V.8. A doore] It should seeme that this chambers ordinary doore was shut, and that this doore was on some other part of the chamber, by which the idolaters came secretly into this chappell of idols.

V.10. Creeping things] A kind of idolatry taken from the Egyptians.

V.11. Ancients] Chief men or Magistrates: some held that they were all Priests, out of which they tooke Judges. Iaazzaniah] this name is not mentioned any where elsse, and it is likely that it was some Priest, or chiefe Ruler.

V.12 Seeth us not] He takes no more care of us, he hath forsaken both us and the land: wherefore we fly to the gods of other nations, which doe relieve them; and since he hath renounced us, we will also renounce him. See 2 Chron. 28.23. Ier. 44.17.

V.14. The doore] namely, the doore of this Northerne Portico, which was against the Priests court. Thammuz] This hath been thought by the Ancients to be the Egyptians Osiris, which according to some Authors, was the same as Adonis, lamented every yeare at certaine times by the women with very unseemely ceremonies.

V.16. Inner Court] Into which it was lawfull for none but Priests to goe, whereby may be gathered, that these were such idolaters as worshipped the Sunne, which is confirmed by Ezek. 9.6. Porch] Which was in the frontispiece of the basilicke of the temple, 1 King 6.3. Their backs] for a signe that they had utterly renounced God and his service.

V.17. Is it] Was it not evill enough to have violated the first Table, and my service, but they must also transgresse against the second Table, doing all manner of wickednesse towards men? Put the branch] The Italian, Thrust a bough against, &c.] A terme taken from Travellers, who sometimes passing through thicke woods or hedgerowes, have oftentimes boughes that hit them in the face; The meaning is, seeking to despight me, all the harme redoundeth to themselves, Ier. 7.19. Others, they bring the stinke to their owne noses; that is to say, they offend themselves by committing such abominations.

CHAP. IX.

Ver.1. Every man] In this vision, being a figure of what was done on earth. God speaks to his Angels, executioners of his judgments, by which are meant the Chaldeans, instruments of the Jewes destruction.

V.2. Six men] namely, Angels in mens shapes, who with him that had the inkehorne were seven, a number much used in such commissions, Rev. 1.4. and 5.6. and 8.2. Some have thought that by these six Angels were meant the six chiefe Commanders under the King of Babylon, who did invade and take Jerusalem, Ier. 39.3. The higher gate] Every gate belonging to the courts of the temple had a portall belonging to it, which was a great building that had two overtures, with a gallery or entry between; one of these doores was towards the outward court, the other towards the inner court. Now the plaine on the outside being lower, the gate was likewise lower, and that of the inner court was higher, and they went up to it by steps, Ezek. 40.18. See upon 2 Kings 15.32. Toward the North] To signifie Chaldea, which lay Northward from Judæa, from which place came the desolation which is here described, Ier. 1.13. One man] namely, a created Angell, Ezek. 10.2. who amongst the rest was a Minister of grace, and therefore he is not here set forth armed, but in a Priestly habit. Brazen Altar] namely, the Altar of burnt offerings, Exod. 27.2. Now these Angels doe here present themselves, as it were to receive their commission from God comming out of his temple.

V.3. The glory] namely, the sonne of God appearing upon the chariot, which was the Throne of glory, Ezek. 1.3. and 3.23. Seene by the Prophet in the court, as visiting his house, and the Jewes iniquities in it, Ezek. 8.4. Now he comes out to the gate of the temple for to pronounce the sentence. Was gone up] The Italian, raised it selfe. It is not likely that the Sonne of God did goe off from the chariot; but the meaning is, that he raised himselfe above the Cherubims, which were about the chariot, and by that motion gave the Cherubims, and all that frame warning, for to move. See Ezech. 1.11.20. and 10.4. And he] the Italian, and the Lord; namely, the Sonne of God, who sate upon the Throne, Ezek. 1.26.

V.4. Set a marke] All this happened in vision, for a figure of the distinction which God makes in his generall judgements, between his elect, beleevers, and the wicked.

V.6. At my] namely, at the Priests and other sacred Officers, who had defiled themselves with idolatry, Ezech. 8.11.16.

V. 7.

V.7. Defile] make a ſlaughter there, and beare no reſpect to the holy place; For according to the Law, a place was defiled by a dead carkaſſe, or by bloud ſpilt therein.

V.9. Perverſeneſſe] the Italian, Of going aſtray] namely, from Gods pure ſervice, and from all manner of righteouſneſſe. Others, revolt.]

CHAP. X.

Ver.2. With coales of fire] wherewith the pavement ſeemed to be ſtrewed, that way as the chariot went. A ſigne of Gods Majeſty; namely, in wrath and judgement; who is a devouring fire, which devoureth the wicked ones, and ſuch as are his enemies, *Pſal.*18.8,13.

V.3. The Cherubims] with all the reſt of the frame of the waggon. The right ſide] As forſaking the cuſtody of the entrance of the temple, went in] namely, under the Cherubims, for to take ſome of the fire-coales. The cloud] that cloudy darkneſſe, in which was hidden this apparition of Gods glory, an ordinary token of the preſence of it, *Exod.*40.34. Numb 9.15. and 16.42. 1 *King.*8. 11. *Ezek.*1.4. Inner Court] namely, the Prieſts court; at the entrance of which God comming out of his temple, did make as it were his firſt reſting place, to ſhew, that he did yet give his people time for to repent.

V.4. The glory] namely, the Sonne of God in this glorious apparition. See *Exech.*9.3. Threſhold] namely, of the Prieſts court, at the comming out of which he reſted the ſecond time as he went away. And the houſe] namely, that part of the ſacred buildings where the chariot ſtaid. The Court] namely, the Prieſts court.

V.5. The utter Court] namely, the peoples court, which way the Lord was going as he departed out of his temple. As the voice] namely, as thunder, *Pſal.*29.3,4,5.

V.11. The head] according to ſome, he meanes the Cherubim which ſtood by each wheele. But it is better to be underſtood of him that ſate upon the Throne, who guided the whole chariot, by an univerſall and equall inſpiration, *Ezech.*1. 12, 20,21.

V.12. Their whole] The meaning is, this viſion was in all parts alike to that of *Ezek.*1. Wheeles] namely, the outward circle of them, *Ezek.*1.18.

V.13. Cried] What was commanded them is not here ſet downe. But all this ſeemes to ſignifie nothing elſe, but that the wheeles did abſolutely obey the Sonne of God, as well as the Cherubims who had life in them, and that they received all their motion from him.

V.14. Of a Cherub] Seeing that *Ezek.*1.10. Amongſt the foure faces there is a bullockes face, in ſtead of which here is ſet downe a Cherubs face. We muſt beleeve that Cherub ſignifies properly the figure of a bullocke, under which hieroglyphically was repreſented an Angell: As indeed in the Syriack tongue, the word Cherub is taken from a word which ſignifieth drawing the plough, which is the bullocks proper labour.

V.18. Over the] that is to ſay, upon the chariot which was drawne by the Cherubims.

V.19. Stood] The third reſting place, at his departure out of his Temple. Of the Eaſt-gate] namely, at the peoples court, which was the firſt comming in of his Temple.

V.20. I knew] It ſeemes the Prophet did not know certainly till now, that theſe were Angels, repreſented in the like figures as thoſe which were in the Temple.

CHAP. XI.

Ver.1. Liſt me up] In viſion I thought I was carried up in the aire from the Prieſts-court to the Eaſt-gate of the court of the people. Five and twenty] Theſe are not the ſame as thoſe which were ſpoken of, *Ezek.*8.16. but theſe ſeeme to be the Senate of Ieruſalem, which was compoſed of foure and twenty, with their Preſident, who was the Governour or Prefect of the City. See upon *Rev.*4.4. which Senate did often uſe to come together at the gate of the Temple. As *Ier.*26.10.

V.2. Then ſaid he] namely, the Lord who ſate upon the Throne as chiefe of this viſion.

V.3. It is not] There is no likelihood that theſe Prophets predictions concerning the taking and deſolation of Jeruſalem, ſhould happen ſo ſoone. Wherefore, without taking any more care about it, let us take our eaſes. The ſtorme is fallen, and hath ſpent its rage upon the Jewes, which are already gone into captivity with Iehoiakim. See *Iſa.*29.1. *Ezech.*12.22. Amos 6.3. This city] Queſtionleſſe theſe people did make a ſcoffe at Ieremiahs prophecie, *Ier.*1.13. By which Ieruſalem was likened to a pot, and the Chaldeans to a fire, thereby prophanely gathering, that if that be the pot, we ſhall be the fleſh, and ſhall remaine in it, and ſhall not be driven out, as theſe Prophets contradicting one another, doe threaten us.

V.4. Prophecie] namely in viſion, uſing ſuch geſtures, and doing as if thou wert in Ieruſalem, ſpeaking to this people.

V.6. Ye have multiplyed] This may as well be referred to the murthers and violences committed by the inhabitants of the City, as to the occaſion which they had given, through their perfidiouſneſſe towards the King of Babylon, and their obſtinacy in not yeelding to him according to Gods command, to cause a very great number of people to die by famine and pestilence.

V.7. They are] They indeed shall remaine there, but your chiefe and heads shall be carried out to be slaine, *Ier.*39.6. and 52.10.

V.10. In the border] namely, in Riblah, in the land of Hamath, the Northerne border of Israel, *Ier.*39.6.

V.11. Shall not be] that is to say, you shall not remaine in it.

V.13. And when] The Prophet saw this sudden death in vision, as an executioner of the foresaid threatenings: whereupon he feared that God would presently destroy every thing.

V.15. Thy brethren] namely, the Jewes which remained under Zedekiah in Ierusalem, doe scorne thee and thine, and those of Iudah, who have already been carried away into captivity, as if God had reproved them, and they alone were his people, and heires of all the pledges of his grace.

V.16. Yet will I be] that is to say, they shall have from me really, and in spirituall vertue, that which was figured by the materiall sanctuary in Ierusalem; namely, the presence of my grace and favour, my protection, comfort, and conduct of my spirit, &c.

V.17. I will] Under the corporall returne from the captivity, is also understood the spirituall gathering together of the Church under the Messias.

V.19. Of flesh. namely, a will pliable to my word and spirit; sensible of my motions, and acts of mildenesse or severity, and penetrable to my grace.

V.21. whose heart] Who cannot turne by any good reason, or sound Judgement, from their foolish inclination to idolatry.

V.22. The Cherubims] This was a signe of Gods totall departure out of Ierusalem.

V.23. From the midst] namely, from the East-gate of the Temple, where he had rested the third time, *Ezek.*10 19. And stood] This is Gods last stop at his departure, by which is signified, that God would yet make one triall more, to see if the people would call him backe, by invocation, and lively repentance. Or that God being gone out of the City, stood there to be present at, and see the ruine of it. See the promise of his returning upon the selfe same hill, *Zach.*14.4. The mountaine] which is the Mount of Olives.

V.24. By the spirit] Not corporally, nor in a dreame and naturall imagination, but in a divine and supernaturall rapture, caused by the Holy-Ghost.

CHAP. XII.

Ver.2. Which have] which is taught, and illuminated in the knowledge of my will, but makes no use of this gift, but doth out of meere malice withstand it, and endeavours and strives as much as it can to put it out: wherefore it's sinne is so much the more aggravated, Iohn 9.41. *Eph.*4.18.

V.3. Prepare] This is a signe, whose interpretation is set downe, *v.*10,11. Thy stuffe] as thy hat, thy cloake, thy shooes, and thy staffe, &c. They be] and therefore are not touched with thy plaine preaching to them onely, therefore adde this expresse signe thereunto.

V.4. Bring forth] Take all these things which thou hast prepared out of thy chests, to have them all ready at thy need.

V.5. Through the wall] Of the court of the house.

V.10. This burden] A Propheticke signe of threatening and calamity, *Isa.*13.1. The Prince] namely, Zedekiah, among them] namely, among the inhabitants of Ierusalem.

V.12. The Prince] namely, Zedekiah with his Courtiers shall flye in the night time, by some secret gate, which ordinarily was walled up, and then opened, in the habit of a poore Traveller, his face covered, not to be knowne, or by reason of sorrow and griefe. See 2 *King.*25 4. *Ier.*39.4.

V.13. Shall he not] His eyes being put out in Riblah, 2 *King.*25.7.

V.16. Declare] that is to say, confessing their idolatries and sinnes, give testimony for Gods judgements against them.

V.18. Eat] that is to say, in the taking of thy food, seeme to be an affrighted and perplexed person.

V.19. The people] namely, the common sort of the people of Iudah, which are in captivity. They shall eat] namely, during the distresse of the siege, by the meanes of which, and after which, all the countrey shall be wasted according to my decree. The land] belonging to Ierusalem.

V.22. In the land] the Italian, concerning the land, namely, concerning the state of your countrey, which you are out of. The dayes] namely, of Gods judgements foretold by the Prophets, which shall be either prolonged, or disanulled and brought to nothing.

V.23. The effect] the Italian, the word of every] namely, the things foretold and signified by the visions.

V.24. Shall be] I will confound and disanull all false propheceyes, made according to every ones fancy, and for to gaine favour, by the accomplishment of my true propheceyes.

CHAP.

CHAP. XIII.

Ver. 3. That follow] that doe meddle with prophecying of their owne proper motion, being driven thereunto by their owne carnall affection, and declare nothing but their owne imaginations and inventions.

V. 4. Like the Foxes] which have spoyled the Lords vineyard as Foxes doe, when the inclosures of mud-walls (as are made in those countries) are broken downe, Cant. 2. 15.

V. 5. Ye have not] Manners of speech taken from sieges, in which the duties of Captaines are to repaire and fortifie the place, and then stand to defend it if there be any breach made. The true strength of the Church is faith, obedience, piety, &c. The defence is invocation, intercession, repentance, and zeale to represse the wicked, &c. See Psal. 106. 23, 30. Ezek. 22. 30. The false Prophets are here reproved for failing in both these duties: Of the Lord] Of his judgements.

V. 6. The word] namely, their false predictions.

V. 9. They shall not] I will root them out of the world, so that they shall not onely be debarred from having any voice in publicke Assemblies, as the Prophets in those dayes had, Ier. 26. 7. but they shall not so much as be members of the people which were all numbred and set downe, Exod. 30. 12. nor they shall not be suffered to dwell in the Holy Land, which was not denyed even to strangers.

V. 10. Built up] Proverbiall speeches. The meaning whereof is, the people doe heap up a great masse of sinne, and build vaine hopes of happinesse. The false prophets with their lyes and predictions plaister and dawbe over these sinnes, and give their false hopes some colour; but the building being of it selfe ill built, this plaistering of it over cannot keep it from ruining, as strong plaister will for a time keep up an old ruinous wall.

V. 11. Overflowing shower] Hereby are meant Gods extreame judgements.

V. 12. Shall it not be said] You will beare the just reproofes for your flattering predictions.

V. 14. In the midst] You shall be infolded in the ruines of it.

V. 15. The wall is] I will presently destroy both the wall and the dawbers.

V. 18. The women] They were certaine false prophetesses, that did use these signes and ceremonies after the manner of the Prophets: And it should seeme that the pillowes were a signe of peace and ease for the one: and the vailes of mourning and calamity for the other, according to the custome of covering their faces in the like cases, 2 Sam. 15. 30. and 19. 4. Est. 6. 12. and 7. 8. Job 9. 24. And to this seemes to have a relation that which is spoken, v. 19. and 22. All arm-holes] indifferently to whom they please, without regarding either Gods will, or the worth, or unworthinesse of men. Every stature] the Italian, Of persons of all statures] namely, of all conditions and qualities, great and small, young and old: to hunt] to ensnare them in errour, and consequently in perdition, at your pleasures.

V. 19. Pol'ute me] making me the authour and maintainer of your lyes and deceits, without any respect to my most holy name. For handfuls] that is to say, for any sleight reward, Mic. 3. 5. To slay] denouncing death and unhappy chances to good men, and raising persecution against them amongst the people. And contrariwise, promising life and prosperity to wicked men, and defending them against the justice of men.

V. 20. Behold] I will quickly cause you and your false ceremonies to perish.

V. 23. Ye shall see] I will root you out, that you may no more seduce my people with your deceits.

CHAP. XIV.

Ver. 1. Of the Elders] namely, of the heads of the people which were in Babylon.

V. 3. Set up. that is to say, they are Idolaters in thought and affection, though peradventure they are not so in any outward action, as if their heart were the temple of their idols, and put] they doe seeke out objects, and baites fitting to nourish and kindle that wicked inclination to idolatry, and seeke occasion to fulfill it. See Zeph. 1. 3. Or they themselves, by their sinnes, will be the causers of their owne ruine, Ezech. 18. 30. Should I] being such, is it not a meere hypocrisie and scoffe in them to come to me to aske for help and counsell in their disasters, seeing their hearts are separate from me, and being the only causers of the evils which they suffer? Others. translate it, shall I answer them when they seeke to me?

V. 4. According to] His Idols shall not shut up, nor close my mouth, but they shall rather cause me open it to denounce the sentence of punishment against them.

V. 5. That I may] that is to say, mine answers shall be like to many snares to consciences convinced by my word; and therby will I keep him, as it were shut up, in expectation and feare of mine unavoydable judgements.

V. 7. Separateth] Like unto a harlot that forsaketh her husband. See Hos. 4. 14. and 9. 10. My selfe] not according to his desire that asketh the queſtion, nor according to the Prophets mind, but according to my moſt holy truth and Juſtice.

V.8. A ſigne] namely, for a ſpectacle of my judgements, of whom every body ſhall ſpeake.

V.9. If the Prophet] that is to ſay, if this Prophet, to whom theſe idolaters doe come, be any way poſſeſſed with the ſpirit of errour, and anſwereth them flatteringly to pleaſe them; yet their condition ſhall be never the better: For I in my judgement ſhall have given way to it, to the end that being ſeduced, they may periſh paſt recovery. See 1 *King.*22.20. Job 12.16. *Jer.*4.10. 2 *Theſ.*2. 11. Hath ſpoken] namely, ſome falſe Prophet ſhall have uttered any thing without commiſſion. I will ſtretch] though he doth but what I by my ſecret providence have ſuffered him to doe; yet will I puniſh him, becauſe he ſinneth againſt my Law, which is the rule of humane actions.

V.13. The Land] the meaning is, when I have reſolved to puniſh a land with ſome kinde of ſcourge I will not forbeare to doe it, for any manner of interceſſion: how much leſſe then can I be appeaſed now that I have decreed a generall puniſhment of all manner of evils to fall upon Jeruſalem for its extreame ſinnes? *Jer.*7.16. and 11.14. and 14.11.

V.14. Noah] Theſe three perſons are ſet down for patternes of ſingular piety, eſcaped out of extreame deſolations. Daniel carried into captivity before Ezekiel under Jehoiachim, Dan.1.1. who already had given manifeſt proofes of his holineſſe and vertue. See *Ezek.*28.3.

V.19. In bloud] that is to ſay, with great ſlaughter.

V.21. For thus] that is to ſay, I doe alleadge all theſe examples of particular ſcourges to concludе, that I ſhall much leſſe be intreated, when I ſhall reſolve to joyne them all together, for a deluge of evils, which are brought up to their height.

V.22. Come forth] Within a very ſhort time they ſhall be brought hither to Babylon in captivity like you. Shall be comforted] when ye ſhall know their grievous ſinnes, you will have cauſe to acknowledge Gods juſtice, and ſtrengthen your ſelves againſt the ſcandall of this deſtruction, and give glory to God.

CHAP. XV.

Ver.2. What is] The meaning is, as your Vine trees pulled up, or the vine branches cut off, are good for nothing but the fire, Iohn 15.5,6. eſpecially when they have been in the fire, which hath dried up all the moiſture of them, whereby they cannot be ſet againe, nor grow. Even ſo my people, which once was my vine being cut off and caſt away by me, is of no value, nor good for any thing; eſpecially, being more hardened and ſeared through my judgements. More then] A vine that is planted, and liveth, is of more value and excellency then other trees; but being pulled up, the wood thereof is worſe to burne then any other wood.

CHAP. XVI.

Ver.2. Cauſe Ieruſalem] namely, the remnant of the Jewes, which are in Ieruſalem, which repreſent the whole body of the Nation and State.

V.3. Thy nativity] Though you be of Abrahams race, yet you are ſo degenerate, that you deſerve rather to be called Amorites, and Hittites, which were two accurſed and execrable Nations. See *Iſa.*1.10. *Hoſ.*12.7. Iohn 8.33,37,40. *Rom.*2.28. and 9.7,8.

V.4. For thy nativity] An Allegory continued in all this Chapter, wherein the peoples eſtate is repreſented by a wretched maid, married, exalted and enriched through meere grace. Now the peoples birth ſeemes to be referred to the time, as being come to ſome forme and perfection of a body of a Nation in Ægypt, they began to be perſecuted there. See *Exod.*1.7,8. Thy navell] termes taken from that which uſeth to be done to little children newly borne, to ſhew that the people had no humane help nor aſſiſtance, but were utterly forſaken in their miſery: Salted] the Italian, rubbed with ſalt] ſalt being uſed about theſe little creatures, to bathe and rub them, to drie up, cleanſe and ſtrengthen the body of the childe.

V.6. I paſſed] Hereby ſeemes to be ſhewne, that God did not deliver his people preſently, but let them lie a long time in miſery in Ægypt, amidſt ſundry bloudy perſecutions; preſerving them ſtill alive, and not ſuffering them to be deſtroyed, which is ſignified by theſe reiterated words, live in thy bloud.

V.7. Thy breaſts] He continues the ſame figure of a maid, that is now come to age to have a husband, to ſignifie the time appointed by God, to ſet his people at liberty, and honour them with the title of being his Church, and to make his covenant with them in Horeb, as *Cant.*8.8. See *Hoſ.*2.15. Naked] without any honour or defence, being yet in miſery and captivity in Ægypt.

V.8. Spread] An ancient ceremony, wherein the husband in ſigne of the right of property which he obtained in his wife, and for a pledge of his interchangeable duty of protection and love, did when hee married her, cover her with the skirt of his garment, *Deut.*22.30. Ruth 3.9. which was a figure of the righteouſneſſe, innocency, and merit merit of Christ, which hideth all the blemishes of his Church from Gods sight, and by this meanes gets the title of being her head, Lord, and husband, which hath at all times been the foundation and summe of the covenant of grace. I sware] I made a solemne covenant with thee, that I would take thee to be my people. See concerning the time of the peoples marriage, Ier. 2.2.

V.9. Washed] Corporally I tooke away from thee all signes and tokens of misery, and of thy former oppression, and enriched thee with my gifts and benefits. And spiritually I purged thee from thy sinnes, which are the uncleannesse of the soule in which man is borne, and endowed thee with the graces of my spirit; signified by the anointing which was commonly done after they had washed. Ruth 3.3. Luke 7.46.

V.10. Badgers skin] which were some way neatly dressed for to make handsome shooes. Covered thee] with a curious vaile, which maidens bore over thy head.

V.12. Thy forehead] the Italian, thy nose] See touching this kinde of ornament, Gen. 24.47. Isa. 3.21.

V.13. Didst prosper] So high that thou becamest a great and glorious kingdome.

V.15. Thou didst] Thou art become presumptuous and bold, by reason of the gifts which thou hast received from me; and wouldest be no longer subject to me, nor containe thy selfe within the chastity of my service and obedience, but didst chuse to live a loose life, Playedst the harlot] Thou hast joyned thy selfe by unlawfull covenants, and by imitation of idolatry, to prophane people, which thou hast drawne to thee, by the greatnesse of thy state, and the preheminence which thou hast above other Nations. Poured out] Thou hast indifferently, and impudently prostituted thy selfe. See Ier. 3.13. Ezek. 16.36. Hit it was] He might satisfie his lust as he would, for thou gavest him free liberty to doe it.

V.16. High place] namely, the Altars, Chappels and Temples of thine Idols, garnished with ornaments, and rich tapestries, which I had bestowed upon thee for thine owne use.

V.17. Of men] namely, idols, which were as adulterers to the idolatrous soules, though there were many female idols also.

V.19. Sweet savour] burning those offerings as it were, to appease the idols; as God had appointed they should doe to him. Thus it was] All these things were notoriously knowne and verified, and they are not to be denyed nor excused.

V.20. whom thou hast] Who at their birth were mine, by vertue of my covenant, whereby the whole body of the Nation were as a wife to me, and the particular persons as children, wherefore thou shouldest have consecrated them to me.

V.21. For them] namely, for the images of the foresaid idols.

V.22. In all] Thine unbridled idolatry hath been accompanied with an infamous ingratitude, and presumptuous confidence, that you could no more fall into your former miseries.

V.24. Thou hast] Like to an unchaste woman, who after she hath used dishonestly privately with some particular men, doth afterwards prostitute her selfe publickely in a brothell house: whereby is meant idolatry that is commonly practised and allowed by publicke authority. See Isa. 3.9.

V.26. Committed fornication] He hath a relation to the frequent treaties, and covenants between the Aegyptians and them, together with the acceptation and imitation of their idolatries. See Ezek. 8.10,14 and 23.19. Great of flesh] A figurative terme taken from the shamelesse desires of lascivious unchaste women, Ezek. 23.20. to signifie that the power and wealth of Aegypt did entice the people to desire to adhere, and be linked unto them.

V.27. Diminished] I have diminished thine estate, and have taken away the abundance of my blessings from thee. The daughters] namely, to the Cities and people. See 2 Chron. 28.18. Ashamed] They detest and abhorre thine unconstant and wavering idolatry: they holding themselves constant to their ancient idolatry, which was at first established. See Ier. 2.10,11,33.

V.30. Weake] Weakened and melted in spirituall lust, which worketh the same effect in the soules, as bodily lust doth in the bodies, extinguishing all manner of vertue in them, and effeminating them to a base and sensuall esteem of God and his service, and weakening the true worship of him in spirit and truth. Imperious] that is to say, licentious, unbridled, and incorrigible, that taketh liberty to doe what she pleaseth.

V.31. Thou scornest] the Italian, For thou despisest] as much as to say, thou hast not been sought after, nor solicited, nor rewarded, nor paid; but thou thy selfe hast solicited and paid thine adulterers, which in a woman is the extreame of impudency. See 2 King. 16.7,8. 2 Chron. 28.21. Isa. 36. Hos. 8.9.

V.34. In that] No body hath desired nor solicited thee: so is the sinne of the people aggravated, who without any bodies inducement, of their owne proper motion were run into idolatry. See Ier. 31.33.

V.36. Thy filthinesse] Heb. thy poilon, that is to say, the infamous fluxes of whores. The meaning is, thou hast sinned without shame, and I will punish thee with infamy and disgrace, even by them with whom thou hast sinned.

V.37.

V.37. Loved] most constantly, and to the end, like to the Ægyptians, hated] namely, the Babylonians against whom the Jewes tooke part with the Ægyptians, Ezek. 23.22.28.

V.38. That sheid] that doe murther the children which they bring forth. v. 36. give thee] the Italian, punish thee] or I will make thee all bloud.

V.39. Eminens place] the Italian, thy brothell] namely, the City of Ierusalem it selfe, or the whole state where idolatry had been publickely practised and without controule, v. 24.31.

V.40. stone thee] He hath a relation to the punishment appointed for adulteresses by the Law, Deut. 22.24.

V.41. women] namely, of many kinde of people, and Nations, whereof the Chaldean army shall be composed.

V.42. To rest] that is to say, I will powre out and execute it fully.

V.44. As is the mother] It was a common proverbe by the name of mother, he meanes the Hittites, whom the Jewes had succeeded, not only in the possession of their countrey, but also in customes, and works, v. 3. Now these Nations were taxed with serving of Devils, and sacrificing their children to them, Deut. 18.9,10.

V.45. Her husband] namely, God the Creator of all, and Law-giver to all, whose knowledge and service those Nations utterly forsooke to worship Devils.

V.46. Thine elder sister] that is to say, thou Jewish Nation, and Samaria; that is to say, the ten Tribes, and Sodome, are like one another in sinning, even as if you were one and the selfe-same mothers daughters, Deut. 32.32. Isa. 1.10. Jer. 3.8. Thy left hand] that is to say, to the Northward: For the Hebrewes call the forepart the East, the hinder part the West, the left side the North, and the right side the South.

V.47. Nor done] Thou hast not been contented with imitating, and equalling them, but hast gone beyond them.

V.49. Pride] She had gotten none but temporall excellencies from me, not the spirituall ones of my word and covenant as thou hadst: And besides, her greatest sinne was but against the second Table, rather then against the first, as thine is in violating my service.

V.50. As I saw good] or after I had seen, namely, their abominations, Gen. 18.21.

V.51. Halfe] because thou receivedst more favours at my hands, and hast been longer suffered, exhorted and corrected, and hast seene my judgements upon the other; therefore thine ingratitude, rebellion and obstinacy, cannot be equalled, justified] made their sinnes to seeme but little ones, and excusable, by the accesse of thine, and them innocent, in comparison of thee, Jer. 3.11. Mat. 12. 41.42.

V.52. Justified] the Italian, judged] condemned them without any pity, as wicked, and not deserving any mercy.

V.53. Shall bring] the Italian, if I bring] that is to say, as I will never re-establish those Cities and Nations into their former estate, so shall the Jewish Nation never be restored after the ruine which shall come upon them by the Chaldeans, in respect of the glory of the Temple, and the state of the Kingdome; but as concerning spirituall good, the people had alwayes a remainder of grace, and hope of restorement to salvation, v. 60. which the other Nations had not, Isa. 1.9. captivity] This word is taken for all kinds of extreame misery, Job 42.10. the captivity] namely, free them from thy servitude, and other continued and successive calamities. See 2 Chr. 33.11. and 36.6,10. Jer. 52. 28,29,30.

V.54. A comfort] A common kinde of speech; as if those other Nations had any way been eased, by seeing the Jewes as much, or more punished then they were, Lam. 4.6.

V.56. Was not mentioned] Though thou were like Sodome in sinnes, yet through pride thou didst disdaine, and through hypocrisie thou hadst in abomination the very name of it, and didst thinke thy selfe out of danger of being used in the same kinde.

V.57. Was discovered] by my judgements which I began to execute upon thee by meanes of these Nations.

V.59. The Oath] by which thou hadst bound thy selfe to me, as a people to their King, and a wife to her husband. See Deut. 27.15.

V.60. An everlasting covenant] namely, the spirituall covenant, made with the true Israel in spirit.

V.61. Thou shalt] Thou shalt be touched with true compunction and repentance. When thou] namely, when I shall convert the Gentiles, and make them members of the Church, whose body was represented by the old Jewish Nation, which was also first imployed in the preaching of the Gospell. Thy Elder] more or lesse ancient, powerfull, or noble then thy selfe. But not] not by vertue of the old externall and carnall covenant, in which the naturall Jewes only had part, or such as joyned themselves to their Religion and Ceremonies, Jer. 31.32. But by vertue of the new, spirituall and eternall one, grounded upon the Messias, and upon his righteousnesse, redemption, and spirit, which is made with the whole Israel according to faith, Gal. 4.25,26.

V.63.

V. 63. That thou mayest] these things are here written and set downe, to the end, that after thy re-establishment, especially in the time of the Gospell, thou maist give God all the glory for thy deliverance, by a sincere acknowledgement and confession of thy sinnes, approving of, and in silence adoring the judgements which had formerly been inflicted upon thee, Rom. 3. 19.

CHAP. XVII.

Vers. 2. A Parable] or a figurative Speech representing one thing by another, with a convenient correspondencie.

V. 3. Eagle] namely, Nebuchadnezzar, Ier. 48. 40. and 49. 22. Divers colours] hereby is meant Nebuchadnezzars Empire over many nations, of divers customes and languages; or his army composed of severall sorts of people, unto Lebanon] to Iudea, which is oftentimes likened to a wood of excellent trees, The highest] namely, Iehoiachim led into captivity, 2 Kings 24. 12.

V. 4. Crept off] Hereby is signified the captivitie of the chiefe of the Kingdome, led away with Iehoiachim, of merchants] the Italian of traffique] he meanes some Province or Citie of Babylon, assigned to the Iewes, which was commodious for traffique; to keepe them from all thoughts of war and State policie.

V. 5. Of the Seed] namely, Zedekiah, who was of the blood Royall, A fruitfull] namely, in the Kingdome of Iudea, not yet made desolate, where Zedekiah might have maintained himselfe, and growne up prosperously.

V. 6. It grew] namely, Zedekiah prophesied whilst hee was faithfull to the Chaldeans, Of love] signifying thereby, that hee was but a vassall, not Soveraigne nor absolute. Branches turned] being a dependent and subject to Nebuchadnezzar, The roots] that is to say, he staid in his owne countrey, and was not transported into any other place, and the State remained in its antient forme, and state, onely the Kings power was diminished, Brought forth] that is to say, Zedekiah begat and brought up children, Jer. 52. 10.

V. 7. Another] namely, the King of Egypt, who was also a mighty King, with whom Zedekiah joyned himselfe against Nebuchadnezzar, 2 Kings 24. 20. Water it] should uphold him, and relieve him with his forces against the Chaldeans: See Ier. 37. 7. The Furrowes] he alludes to the channells and pipes wherewith the Egyptians conveyed the waters of Nilus to their land, See Deut. 11. 10.

V. 8. It was] It was very likely that Zedekiah having made this league with Egypt might very well have maintained and bettered himselfe.

V. 9. Shall bee not] the Italian, shall not that Eagle] namely, Nebuchadnezzar.

V. 10. The East wind] By this tempestuous and scorching wind Jon. 4. 8. is meant Gods judgement executed by the meanes of the Chaldeans, Ezek. 19. 12. in the furrowes] that is to say, notwithstanding Egypts assistance and reliefe.

V. 12. The King] namely, Jehoiachim, v. 2. 3.

V. 13. Of the] namely, Zedekiah, v. 5. and hath taken] that is to say, hee hath carried them away with him, to weaken the Kingdome so much the more, and for to have hostages by him.

V. 17. Made for him] Hee shall doe Zedekiah no good, who was straitly besieged by Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. 37. 37.

V. 18. His hand] namely, his faith and promise.

V. 19. Mine oath] namely, the punishment for breaking the oath hee had made in my name.

V. 22. Take off] This begun to be put in execution, in Zerubbabel, who was of the blood Royall, and brought the people out of Babylon, but the perfect accomplishment is in Christ, the everlasting King and sonne of David, Isa. 11. 1. a tender] hereby are meant Christs weake beginnings in his humane nature, who was descended from the ancient stocke of the Kings of Juda.

V. 23. The mountaine] namely, in my Church, which spiritually is higher then any worldly height, Isa. 2. 2. 3. Ezek. 20. 40. Mic. 4. 1. under it] all nations shall come under the Messias to shelter themselves from all evills.

V. 24. The trees] namely, the great ones, and Princes of the world.

CAAP. XVIII.

Vers. 2. Have eaten] have sinned, and the children have suffered for it: as the sins of Mannasseh are remembred upon Judah, and the sinnes of Jeroboam upon the ten tribes, See Lam. 5. 7.

V. 3. Any more] Since you make my patience an argument whereupon to tax my judgements; I will hereafter bring them presently upon him that sinneth, and lay open your iniquities, like unto the iniquities of your forefathers, for which I have heretofore punished you.

V. 4. All soules] I am equally God, and Judge of all; not accepting of persons. And if I doe delay my generall punishments, it is out of my superabundant goodnesse. And if the children doe beare the iniquities of the fathers, it is according to justice, either by reason of their imitating them, or in so much as I punish them in their body and goods, which they have from their fathers. But the judgements upon the soule, which proceed absolutely lutely from me and is mine, have no other cause nor foundation, but every ones owne works.

V.6. Hath not eaten] namely, of the idols sacrifices, whose service was done upon hils and mountaines, Ezek. 22.9. See Deut. 32.38. Ps. 106. 28. 1 Cor. 10. 20, 21. Lift up his] that is to say, shall have detested them with all his heart. Defiled] by adultery.

V.10. Any one] the Italian, any thing like to one] Heb. the brother of any of these things.

V.11. Any of those] namely, all the good deeds set downe before, v. 7, 8, 9.

V.13. His blood] He shall suffer the capitall punishment for his owne sinne, and he shall be the causer of his owne death, Lev. 20.9. Acts 18.6.

V.17. Hath taken off his hand] the Italian, hath withdrawne] that is to say, keeps himselfe from wronging or oppressing him] though he might have cause to doe it.

V.19. why] He sheweth, that those prophane men contending with the Prophets did seeke to catch them, and make them confesse, either that Gods judgements were not just, in punishing the children for the fathers sinnes: Or that the Prophets limitations and expositions were contrary to Gods Law, Exod. 20.5. Deut. 5.9. When] the meaning of my Law is, that I will punish the sinnes of the fathers upon the children, in case that they follow their fathers examples: which I doe often suffer to fall out so, through my secret judgement; And if through my speciall grace I doe sanctifie them, so that they doe not follow their fathers steps, they shall also be exempted from the punishment.

V.20. The sonne] namely, the innocent sonne, who is by my spirit purged from his fathers wickednesses: Yet this is no generall rule, in respect of the body, and bodily goods, in which God in all seasons hath visited the children for the fathers sinnes; but must be understood of the everlasting punishment of the soule, or especially and particularly of the corporall punishments of those times. The righteousnesse] that is to say, every one shall receive either a reward for his good works, or punishment for his evill works.

V.22. Shall live] He shall be delivered from the common evils of this world, and shall attaine to everlasting life, to which the true way and direction is the pure and constant conversion of a sinner.

V.23. And live] Or had I not rather that he should be converted from his evill wayes and live?

V.25. Ye say] the Italian, will ye say] will you yet dare to taxe, either mine actions with injustice, or my words, and my law with contradiction? Are not your] All the injustice, is in you who follow your fathers wayes, and not in me. My Law agreeth well with this doctrine, but your understanding is perverted.

V.26. When] This is the rule of my soveraigne Justice, that the death of every one shall be the punishment of his owne proper sinne; as the order of my mercy is, to give a sinner hope that he shall be restored by repentance. Both the one and the other ought to be well enough knowne unto you; but that in this contestation you fight against your owne consciences.

V.30. Every one] and not for the sinnes of their fathers, as you impute it to me. Your ruine] the Italian, a stumbling blocke to you] to cause your ruine.

V.31. Make you] give way to the spirit of grace, to whom it properly belongeth to regenerate a man, who cannot doe it of himselfe, Jer. 13.23. Ezek. 11.19. and 36.26.

CHAP. XIX.

Ver.1. For the Princes] namely, for Jehoahaz, Jehoiachim and Zedekiah, last Kings of Judah, in whom consisted the remainder of the people of Israel.

V.2. what is thy mother? a Lioness, that she layeth?] namely, every one of those Kings. Or thou Nation of the Jewes, Jerusalem, wherein you have been borne and bred, hath for a long time been a city of bloud and violence, and hath brought forth Kings of the same nature.

V.3. One of her] namely, Jehoahaz, who was carried away a prisoner into Ægypt, 2 King. 23.33. Jer. 22.11.

V.4. Their pit] or net, a terme taken from the hunting of Lyons.

V.5. When she saw] namely Jerusalem, when she saw that there was no hope that Jehoahaz should be restored, tooke another] namely, Jehoiakim appointed to be King by the King of Ægypt, 2 King. 23.34.

V.6. went] A description of Jehoiakims treaties with other Kings, and chiefly with the King of Ægypt, which was also the cause of his ruine.

V.7. Their cities] namely, the Cities of his people, by his extorsions and violences, 2 King. 24.4. Jer. 22.17. By the noise] by his cruell and tyrannicall commands.

V.9. Into holds] in some strong tower, or rocke, where he died, and his body was afterwards thrown out upon a dunghill. See 2 Chron. 36.6. Jer. 22.18.

V.10. Thy mother] After the tyranny was ceased, which was signified by the Lyons roaring. Jerusalem seemed to flourish againe, especially under Zedekiah, who had many sonnes fitting to succeed ceed him in his kingdome, and to prop him up, which is signified by the following termes.

V.12. She was] This last desolation was performed by the Caldeans, who are likened to an Easterly winde, Ezek.17.10. The rods] namely all the young men, and the Royall issue. See 2 *King.*25.7.

V.13. She is] The whole body of the Nation shall within a short time be carried away into Babylon, to live there in extreame misery.

V.14. Out of a rod] namely, out of Zedekiah, who through his perfidiousnesse and rebellion against Nebuchadnezzar, shall be the cause of the last desolation, 2 *Chron.*36.13. And shall be] not only at the present time, but in after ages likewise.

CHAP. XX.

*Ver.*1. The seventh yeare] namely, of the captivity of Jehoiachim. See Ezek.1.2.

V.3. To enquire of me] in that true manner as I have appointed you to desire my your by the way of faith and repentance. Or doe you come to tempt me, having none other aime, but to get something out of my Prophet, as may be pleasing to you? I will not, &c.] the Italian, I am not sought after by you, or I will not answer you: or you shall not find me.

V.4. Iudge them] Thou shalt reprove them for, and convince them of their sinnes. Of their fathers] intimated, and increased by their children, who would not amend by the examples, nor the punishments of their forefathers, *v.*30.

V.5. In the day] When as my people being in Ægypt, I declared by effects, that I had chosen them to be mine, according to my promises made to their forefathers. Lifted up] did shew my soveraigne power for their deliverance, and to the destruction of their enemies. See Exod.14.8. Unto them] that is to say, did sweare to them.

V.6. Espied] the Italian, discovered to them] that is to say, appointed it for them by my decree, as the most excellent above all other countries. And for the conquest of which, I had prepared all things in my secret counsell, and into which I had marched before mine Arke, to give them a secure entrance into it. See *Num.*10.32. The glory] or the flower. A title of the land of Israel, not so much for its naturall qualities, as for the singular blessing of God; and by reason that it was chosen to be the seat of his Church, and the figure of the kingdome of heaven.

V.7. Said I unto them] These things are specified in Exodus, but are revealed by the spirit to the Prophet, and doe agree with what is written, Jos.5.9. The abominations] that is to say, the idols: to the spirituall desiring of which mans heart is induced by the eyes delighted with the matter, or the forme of them: And generally, by all the outward sences, seeing they could not apprehend any deity in them by the spirit. See *Numb.*15.39.

V.9. For my names] that is to say, for mine owne sake, and my glories sake, that it might not be derided, as if my promises were false, or my power too-weake, or insufficient to performe them. See Exod.32.12. Numb.14.16. Deut. 9.28.

V.11. Shall live] Shall be preserved from all dangers, and shall at the last obtaine everlasting life, the way to which, and the beginning and pledge of which is new obedience, though it be no way a cause of it.

V.15. Given them] that is to say, hath promised and resolved to give them, so they did not make themselves utterly unworthy of it.

V.20 A signe] that is to say, a sacrament of an interchangeable agreement, namely, that I shall sanctifie you by my spirit, causing you to cease from your evill works: And you likewise shall be conformable to the working of my grace.

V.23. Yet I lifted up] Though I did forbeare them for that time; yet I swore to them, that if they continued in their sinnes, after I had performed my promises unto them, by bringing them into the promised land, I would drive, and scatter them out of it.

V.24. They had not] namely, after I had put them in possession of the land of Canaan.

V.25. Gave them] By my just judgement I did give them over to the evill spirit, that they might be subject to his evill inducements, to their death and ruine. See Psal.81.12. Ezek.20.39.

V.26. Pollated them] I suffered them to prostitute themselves to all manner of abominable idolatry. To passe] either to sacrifice them, or to purifie and consecrate them, which in this place is most probable. Openeth] All the first borne amongst their children.

V.27. Therefore] Seeing that I give thee commission to lay all their fathers sinnes open before them, *v.*4. adde this to all the rest.

V.28. The provocation] namely, the object and provocation of my wrath.

V.29. Said unto them] I did often admonish them by my Prophets, and reproved them for their idolatry. what is] Doe not you know sufficiently, by the very name of high place, which at all times hath been infamous, as a place of idolatry, and unlawfull worship, that all which is done there is abominable? As the very name of a brothell is sufficient to make any honest woman to fly the conversation and neighbourhood of it.

V.30. Wherefore] Seeing the reproving of the fathers sinnes ought to serve for a correction to the children which follow them, tell them that I reject all their falſe ſhewes of piety, which they make in ſeeking after my word, v. 3.

V. 32. As the heathen] namely, idolatrous and heathen people, who doe proſper for all that, Jer. 44. 17.

V. 33. Rule over you] that is to ſay, I will exerciſe my power over you in puniſhment, as over rebellious and diſloyall ſubjects: ſeeing you have not accepted of my government in obedience; and I will not ſuffer in you that are bound to me by duty and obedience, the exceſſes which I winke at in other Nations, which are ſtrangers to my covenant. See Hoſ. 9. 1. Amos 3. 2.

V. 34. Bring you] I will not let you live at eaſe in the idolaters countrey, where you had ſheltered your ſelves. See Jer. 40. 11. and 43. 7.

V. 35. I will bring you] I will drive you into the moſt ſolitary and ſavage places of the world, for a fulneſſe of miſery, v. 38. will plead] execute my revenge with all manner of rigor.

V. 37. Cauſe you] Even as a ſhepheard maketh his ſheep to paſſe one by one, when they come out of the ſheep-coat, and marketh them diſtinctly with his rod, to diſtinguiſh them from the other, Lev. 27. 32. So I will ſever thoſe that are rebellious from amongſt you, to puniſh them, and ſhewing favour to the others, Ezek. 34. 17. Mat. 25. 32, 33. will bring you] will conſtraine you to acknowledge me for your God and King, by thoſe puniſhments, the threatenings whereof I have joyned to my covenant: by which, I will chaine you up like wilde beaſts, and tame your ſtubbornneſſe.

V. 38. Bring them forth] as v. 35.

V. 39. Goe ye] I doe caſt you off quite, and give you over to all manner of wickedneſſe; that my name, which you make profeſſion of worſhipping, may be no more prophaned by your hypocriſie, nor be expoſed to the ſcorne of mine enemies. with your gifts] offered indeed to the true God, but defiled by the idolatry which is joyned to it. See Iſa. 1. 13. and 61. 8. or really preſented to idols.

V. 40. For in mine] I doe caſt all you apoſtates off, and will only hold the true Iſrael, which truly beleeveth, and is truly converted, for to be my people, and will gather them into my Church, to be by them ſerved in ſpirit and truth, whereof the ancient ſervice was but only a Figure. An Evangelicall prophecye, whereof the returne from Babylon was but only an eſſay, except them] an ordinary terme for lawfull ſacrifices which were daily performed, require] ſhunning them no more, as I had done the offerings of idolaters and hypocrites, Iſa. 1. 13, 14. ſanctified] I will cauſe my ſelfe to be reverenced, praiſed, and bleſſed for your ſakes, and the ſacred and inviolable truth of my promiſes ſhall be acknowledged and taught by all men.

V. 46. Towards the South] namely, toward Judea, which lay Southward from Chaldea, where the Prophet was, drop] that is to ſay, ſpeake and preach like a Prophet, a terme which ſeemes to be taken from Deut. 32. 2. See Amos 7. 16. The forreſt of the South] that is to ſay, Jeruſalem, and the people which are therein, great cities and multitudes of people being oftentimes likened to Forreſts, Iſa. 9. 18. and 10. 18. and 32. 19. Jer. 21. 14. and 46. 23.

V. 47. Kindle a fire] namely, the Chaldean war. Every greene tree] all manner of people indifferently; both good and bad, v. 8. many righteous men being alſo entangled in theſe temporall judgements. See Luke 23. 31. Others ſay that by theſe greene trees, and juſt men, are meant thoſe which are not ſo guilty as others, or little children which are free from actuall ſinne. Faces] thoſe that are not conſumed therewith, ſhall be brought into extreame miſeries. See Lam. 4. 8. and 5. 10. From the South] from one end of the countrey to the other.

V. 48. They ſay of me] theſe prophane people doe ſcoffe at my propheceyes, which thou doeſt dictate to me in allegoricall and enigmaticall termes, as if they were dreames and imaginations.

CHAP. XXI.

Ver. 2. SEt thy face] ſeeing it is ſo, propheceye the ſame things in plaine and proper termes, the holy places] namely, againſt the Temple, and the buildings adjoyning to it, which were not to be ſpared in this generall deſolation. See Jer. 7. 14. Ezek. 9. 6.

V. 3. The righteous.] See Ezek. 20. 47.

V. 5. It ſhall not] untill it have performed all its execution.

V. 6. with the breaking] doing like a woman that travelleth, bowing and wringing her ſelfe. See Iſa. 16. 11. and 21. 3. Jer. 4. 19.

V. 7. For the tydings] namely, the Babylonians tumult, whom I ſee approaching to Jeruſalem, It commeth] namely, the ruine of it, which I had foretold.

V. 9. A ſword] my judgement is ready to be put in execution.

V. 10. Glitter] that is to ſay, that it may terrifie and affright with the brightneſſe of it. Should we] can one doe any thing but lament as I doe, it contemneth, &c.] the Italian, O thou Tribe of my ſonne which contemneſt all other wood] O thou Nation hardened againſt all fatherly puniſhments, as an evill childe is againſt a rod, thou ſhalt now be puniſhed by the ſword. In the Hebrew Text there is an alluſion between rod, or ſtaffe, and Tribe; the meaning wherof is, whiles thine afflictions are moderate, as from rod to rod, thou doeſt contemne them; but this ſhall be as from rod or ſword, which thou ſhalt not be able to endure nor withſtand.

V.11. Of the ſlayer] namely, of the King of Babylon, who is the executioner of Gods judgements.

V.12. Smite therefore] uſe all the actions of a grieved and moaning perſon. See Jer. 31.19.

V.13. A triall] I am almoſt forced to come to the extremity of puniſhment, for all puniſhments, as trials to bring them to repentance would be vaine, Iſa. 1.5.

V.14. Smite thine hands] in token of extreme ſorrow, Ezech. 6.11. The third time] for Nebuchadnezzar came three times againſt Jeruſalem, 2 Chron. 36.6,10,17. The ſword] by which there ſhall be a great ſlaughter in Jeruſalem, not only of meane people, but alſo of Princes and great ones; and the King himſelfe being overcome by the ſword ſhall dye in captivity.

V.15. I have ſet] I have cauſed their cities to be furiouſly beſieged and ſet upon.

V.16. Goe thou] the Italian addeth, O ſword goe, &c.] an expreſſion of the permiſſion which God gave the Chaldeans to root out at their pleaſure.

V.19. I will alſo] as I have commanded thee Ezekiel to ſmite thine hands for ſorrow, v.19. ſo will I contrariwiſe ſmite mine in ſigne of joy, that I have vented my wrath, and ſatisfied my juſtice. See Deut. 28.63. Iſa. 1.24. Ezek. 5.13. and 16. 42.

V.19. Appoint thee] the Italian, make thee] draw out, in Propheticke action, upon a boord, or upon the ground, two wayes comming both from one plaine place, to repreſent Nebuchadnezzars deliberation, when he had gathered together his army, whether he ſhould goe againſt Jeruſalem, or againſt the land of the Ammonites, which were the two wayes to ſet upon Ægypt, which was the Chaldeans chiefeſt intent. Chuſe thou a place] the Italian, levell a place] to make a muſtering place to muſter the army in. The head] namely, at the croſſing of a road way, ſuch as thoſe high wayes were which led to great cities.

V.20. Rabbah] The chiefe City of the Ammonites, 2 Sam. 11.1. Jer 49 2.

V.21. To vſe divination] according to the cuſtome of the Heathens, in deliberations of any importance, made his arrowes, &c.] the Italian, he hath ſcattered his arrowes] This was a kind of caſting lots with a bundle of looſe arrowes caſt up into the aire: And according as moſt of the arrowheads fell one way, which was either marked out according to fancy, or according to the naturall ſituation of the places (as it was in this paſſe) they did reſolve upon moſt important affaires, as by divine augury. Looked in] This was alſo another kinde of divination, by the ſhape, colour, poſture, &c. of the entrailes of ſacrificed beaſts, and eſpecially of the liver.

V.22. To open the mouth] to take it by aſſault, with ſhouts and cries uſed in ſuch actions; and with a generall ſlaughter.

V.23. A falſe divination] The Jewes who had oftentimes before broken, and renewed their covenants with the Chaldeans without falling into finall ruine, ſhall thinke that the buſineſſe will paſſe ſo for this time alſo; and that Nebuchadnezzars enterprize will come to nothing, but he] namely, Nebuchadnezzar will at this time pay them for their former treacheries.

V.24. To be remembred] that is to ſay, through your wickedneſſe and impiety which you openly make profeſſion of, you give cauſe firſt to me, whoſe name hath been uſed in your oathes, and next to the King of Babylon, to puniſh you at once for your perjuries and reiterated rebellions.

V.25. Wicked] namely, Zedekiah, whoſe day] namely, of thy juſt puniſhment.

V.26. Thus ſhall not] The Kingdome of Judah ſhall no more be that triumphant Kingdome which it was at other times. that is low] namely, Jehoiakim, now a priſoner, and afterwards ſet at liberty, and exalted, 2 King. 24.12. and 25.27,28. that is high] namely, Zedekiah.

V.27. Untill he] the Kingdome ſhall never be reſtored to its former luſtre, untill the Meſſias comes, to whom by right it belongeth, as Davids ſucceſſion according to the fleſh; and eſtabliſhed by God to be King over his Church, who ſhall alter it into a ſpirituall and everlaſting kingdome. See Gen. 49.10.

V.28. Thus ſaith] by this prophecye is declared, that though the Ammonites were at that time ſpared, yet at the laſt they ſhould be deſtroyed by the Chaldeans. Their reproach] namely, the wrongs and outrages offered to my people, and their inſulting over them, Ezek. 25.3,6.

V.29. Whileſt they] whileſt thy diviners and Soothſayers doe foretell thee all manner of happineſſe and ſecureneſſe; perſwading thee that thou ſhalt trample upon the Jewes necks, who are ſlaine for their ſinnes, and that no harme ſhall come to thee.

V.30. In the place] O you Ammonites, I will not ſcatter you into ſtrange lands, as I have done my people, but will deſtroy you in your owne land.

V.31. Will blow] I will light and kindle it.

V.32. Thy blood] all thy country ſhall be overflowne with bloud.

CHAP. XXII.

Vers. 5. Much vexed] the Italian, Great in ruine] thou shalt be famous for the greatest desolation that ever fell upon any City.

V. 13. I have] A signe either of great joy, or of extreme sorrow and anger: as in this place, See Ezek. 21.14.17.

V. 14. Can thine heart] Wilt thou have courage and strength enough to withstand my judgments?

V. 15. Will consume] I will cause thee to perish, that thou mayst no more provoke me by thine enormities.

V. 16. And thou shalt take] &c. the Italian, and thou shalt be defiled] That is to say, filled with blood, desolated, not regarded as a holy City, but like a wicked place, which God hath cast off.

V. 18. Is to me] It is quite degenerate, like to good silver turned to drosse, Brasse] they have some appearance of goodnesse and holinesse, but in effect they are wicked, like to a masse of base silver, mixed with all manner of base metalls, In the middest] namely, in Jerusalem, where I will melt and consume them by the fire of my judgement as in a furnace, See Ezek. 24. 10.

V. 24. Say unto her] namely, to the Jewish nation, or to Jerusalem, that is not cleansed] the fire of my judgements hath not cleansed thee from thy filthinesse, and there is nothing sound nor good in thee, therefore I will lay a most extreme burthen upon thee, and use no clemencie at all towards thee, see Jer. 4.11. and 19. Ezek. 24. 6.

V. 25. There is a conspiracie] All this may have a relation to the persecutions which the false Prophets by plots and conspiracies raised against good men, see Jer. 20.2. & 26.8.10 & 29.25.26. Lam 4 13.

V. 26. Hid their eyes] They have winked at the violation of the Sabbath, or they themselves have framed pretences whereby they might safely violate it, Prophaned] contemned and dishonoured without any reverence to any sacred Majestie.

CHAP. XXIII.

Vers. 2. There were] that is to say, my people have beene divided into two Kingdomes, of the ten tribes, and of Judah, both come of one Nation, namely, Israel, see Jer. 3. 7. 8. 10. Ezek. 16. 44. 45.

V. 3. Commited whoredomes] spiritually by Idolatry, There were] a figurative description of the peoples first going astray after Idolls.

V. 4. Aholah] the Italian Ohola] these are feigned names, fitted to the state of these two Kingdomes in respect of Religion: for Aholah, or Ohola signifieth her Tabernacle, because that the ten tribes having forsaken the Temple of God, had established a worship of God according to their owne minds, 1 Kings 12. 28. 29. 31. Aholiah or Oholiba] signifieth my Tabernacle is in her, for the pure worship of God remained amongst the Jewes in the Temple, 2 Chron. 13. 10. 11. Samaria] the head of the ten tribes, Ha. 7. 9. Jerusalem was of Judah.

V. 5. When she was mine] the Italian, receiving others in my place] Heb. under mee which may be understood thus, being my wife, subject to mee, Loved] an ordinary title for prophane Nations; with which Gods people joyned in idolatrie and impurity, neighbours] after the Assyrians had conquered Syria, which bordered upon the ten tribes.

V. 6. Cloathed] a magnificent gentle, rich, and powerfull Nation.

V. 8. From Egypt] He seemes to have a relation to the golden Calves set up by Jeroboam in imitation of the Calfe Apis, dedicated to the Egyptians chiefest Idoll, Serapis; see upon Exod. 32. 4. this may also be understood of the unlawfull covenants made with Egypt, 2 Kings 17. 4.

V. 10. Discovered] that is to say, They have shamefully punished her; a terme taken from the disgraces which are done to poore women which are taken in the warres, Ha. 20. 4. and 47. 3. or from the shamefull punishment of Strumpets, slew her] namely, the body of the Nations, famous] that is to say, A noted and memorable example of Gods judgements.

V. 14. When she saw] a description of an unbridled lust, like a woman that should fall in love with strangers that are absent onely by seeing their picture, and should send to seeke after them into a farre country.

V. 17. Her mind] that is to say, The Jewes have broken the league which they had made with the Chaldeans, to joyne with the Egyptians, their enemies and emulators, 2 Kings 24. 1. 20.

V. 18. She discovered] Shee hath publikely prostituted her selfe.

V. 19. She multiplied] She hath also had shamefull doings with the Egyptians, putting her whole confidence and trust in their reliefe and friendship, contrary to the faith they owed to God.

V. 20. Whose flesh] these are termes taken from the shamefull lusts of unchaste women, and doe shew the strength and riches of Egypt, which moved the Jewes to make a league with them.

V. 21. Of thy growth] The meaning is, the Egyptians tooke occasion to perswade thee to idolatry when thou wert in thy spirituall childhood, by reason thou hadst but small knowledge and experience of my pure worship, which thou canst not now pretend, being fully instructed in it: As a young Maid, if shee were seduced, might partly be excused for her simplicity, which a married woman that is of full age cannot plead.

V. 23. Peked]

V. 23. Pekod] Names of some people of Asia, which were subjects to Nebuchadnezzar, of which his army was also composed, Jerem. 50. 21.

V. 24. To their judgements] they shall indeed be my judgements, but I will leave the execution of them to their discretions; as hee doth oppose mens judgments which are without mercy, to the judgements of God, which are always tempered with some clemencie, see 2 Sam. 24. 14. Zec. 1. 15.

V. 25. Take away] the Italian cut off] manners of speaking, taken from the ignominious punishments used in some countreys towards adulterous women, or from the cruelties of enemies enraged against their prisoners, before they kill them.

V. 27. From the land] I will hinder thee from going any more into Egypt to commit fornications; or, I will cause thy fornication which thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt to cease.

V. 29. Shall be discovered] even as a malefactors misdeeds are discovered when he is once sentenced to death.

V. 31. Of thy sister] namely, of the ten tribes, will I give] that is to say, I will inflict the same punishment upon thee, a terme taken from the ancient manner of feasting, where every one had his portion of meat and drinke given them, see Psal. 75. 8. Jer. 25. 15.

V. 34. Breake] Thou shalt grow mad therewith, like to a drunken man, who, after he is overcome with wine, will breake the cups and the pots, and will teare his flesh with his nailes, and with his teeth, Jer. 25. 16.

V. 38. They have] They have openly derided and mocked mee, making a shew, as if they would doe me some service in my Temple, at appointed times, see Ezek. 20. 39. Or they have even committed these abominations in my Temple, and upon Holidayes, see 2 Kings 21. 4. Jerem. 11. 15. Ezek. 8. 3 6.

V. 40. Yee have sent] A figurative description of the prophane entertainment given to the Chaldeans, Egyptians, and others, sent for by the Jews, to treat about unlawfull covenants: taken from a Whores preparation, when she entertaineth her expected Ruffian, Wash thy selfe] he directs his speech to either of them two, namely, Aholah, or Aholibah.

V. 41. Upon a] According to the manner of many ancient Nations, and also of the Jews, namely, at their most solemne feasts, to sit, or lye upon beds, Est. 1 6. & 7 8. & 6 4. Joh. 13. 25. mine incense] namely, which thou hast received of me, together with other blessings, and with which they did rub and anoint themselves at banquets and publique feasts. Hee would say that she had employed Gods gifts in gaining the favour and friendship of prophane nations.

V. 42. With her] The Italian, in her] that is to say, Jerusalem and Samaria upon these occasions have been full of strangers, walking, and taking their pleasures, like fornicators in a brothelhouse, with the men] the Italian besides the men] besides those great and noble nations, as the Chaldeans; the Jewes have also desired the friendship and reliefe of the Arabians, the Ethiopians, and other base nations, who thinking themselves much honoured by such a request, have carryed them presents, which the nobler nations have not done, but have received presents of the Jewes, Ezek. 16. 33. 34.

V. 43. Unto her] the Italian of her] of or to either of those nations which were growne old in their idolatrie, now] words of disdaine; as much as to say, now they will satisfie their unbridled lust, having all these fornicators at their command.

V. 45. Righteous men] namely, the Assyrians, and Chaldeans have executions of Gods justice, who shall have a just cause, according to mens opinions, to revenge themselves of the Jewes and Israelites perjuries and rebellions.

V. 48. All women] namely, Nations and Cities, especially those where God hath planted his Church.

V. 49. Your lewdnesse] namely, the just punishment for it.

CHAP. XXIV.

Vers. 1. The ninth] of the captivitie of Jehoiakim, Ezek. 1. 2.

V. 3. Set on a Pot] See such a similitude, Jer. 1. 13. Ezek. 11. 3. The Pot is Jerusalem, the flesh and the fat pieces, are the chiefe, richest, and the noblest that are in her; the fire are Gods judgements, by which hee would have humbled and mollified his peoples hearts, to bring them to repentance, but that having taken no effect, by reason of their obstinate rebellion, hee would convert those judgements into a totall consumption.

V. 5. Burne also] the Italian, Lay the bones in the bottome] it seemes that the bones that were put into the bottome of the pot, v. 4. 10. and not as others have understood it, without the pot to kindle the fire. And by the bones are meant the great ones and governours which beare up the body of the State.

V. 6. Wherefore thus] To make the accomplishment answerable to the figure, to the pot] namely, to Jerusalem, that hath not been cleansed by my punishments, see Jer. 4. 11. and 6. 29. Ezek. 22. 24. bring it out] Let all the people without any difference difference be driven out of it, and carryed away, let none be pardoned: for in warres often times they caſt lots, to ſlay ſome, and ſave ſome.

V. 7. Her blood] Shee is full of miſdeeds, eſpecially of murthers and oppreſſions, She ſet it] ſhe committed them boldly, and did not care if they were knowne to all men, contrary to that which God had commanded; namely, that the very blood of beaſts ſhould be covered over with duſt, Lev. 17. 13. Deut. 12. 16. 24.

V. 8. Set her blood] I will puniſh her openly, and the ſignes and monuments thereof ſhall remaine for ever.

V. 9. I will make thee] that is to ſay, What I have commanded thee to doe for a ſigne, doe thou alſo in effect, making ready the Caldeans great fire, Jer. 1. 13.

V. 10. Spice it well] the Italian, Bring her to be like a compoſition of ſweet ſmells] cauſing the whole Nation to be deſtroyed, leaving not ſo much as any forme or ſtrength of ſtate.

V. 11. Set it empty] To ſignifie that Jeruſalem, after the inhabitants were gone out of it, ſhould be burned by the Chaldeans, as it were to cleanſe it perfectly from all its ordures. The braſſe] As who ſhould ſay, her ruſt.

V. 12. She hath] in ſtead of the onely meanes of deliverance which was repentance and converſion, ſhee hath with a great deale of care ſought out other worldly and unprofitable meanes.

V. 13. In thy filthineſſe] that is to ſay, Wicked obſtinacie hath been the onely cauſe that thou haſt not been cleanſed: for I have ſought to doe it with all carefulneſſe, by admonitions, exhortations and puniſhments.

V. 14. The Iudge] namely, the Chaldeans, ſee Ezek. 23. 45.

V. 16. The deſire] namely, thy deare wife.

V. 18. A ſtroke] namely, by a ſudden death, proceeding from ſome ſupernaturall and divine cauſe.

V. 19. Binde the tire] Shew no ſigne at all of mourning, ſuch as thoſe were of going bare-headed, Lev. 10. 6. & 21. 10. and bare-footed, 2 Sam. 15. 30. Iſa 47. 2. of covering ones face, Lev. 13. 45. Mic. 3. 7. and eating of food, brought in and given by neighbours and friends, Jer 16. 5. 7.

V. 21. I will prophane] I will ſuffer it to be ſpoyled by prophane nations at their pleaſure, as a place that was not holy, the excellencie] namely, the Temple, the Arke, and other ſignes of my preſence, wherein conſiſteth the glory and the ſtrength of your ſubſiſtence and defence: the deſire] namely, your wives, ſoule pitieth] Heb. what your ſoule ſpareth, namely, that which you are moſt jealous and tender of, ye have left] in Judea: for the Prophet ſpake to theſe which had been carried away priſoners with Jehoiakin.

V. 22. Yee ſhall doe] You ſhall be forced to digeſt all theſe ſorrowes, not daring ſo much as ſeeme to be grieved thereat, for feare of angring your enemies; or becauſe that in ſuch a great deſolation every one ſhall thinke upon himſelfe, without taking any care for others: Or, becauſe that there will an expreſſe curſe of God be perceived in it: Or, becauſe there will be more cauſe of weeping for thoſe that are alive, and languiſh in ſorrow, then for the dead, ſee Job 27. 15. Pſa. 78. 64. Jer. 16. 5. Amos 6. 10.

V. 23. Pine away] Yee ſhall be buſied in weeping for your owne ſinnes and miſeries.

V. 24. A ſigne] The Prophet, as he was ſpeaking theſe things, became dumbe in an inſtant; but when theſe things were fulfilled, he recovered his ſpeech, to aſſure the Jewes that all proceeded from God, v. 27. ſee Ezech. 3. 26. 27. and 33. 22. Others doe take this word of becomming dumbe, v. 27. for holding his peace, as if hee ſaid, Thou thou haſt ſpoken enough to this people for to warne them, let them alone, untill that by the comming to paſſe of theſe things, thou mayeſt convince and waken them againe.

V. 25. In the day] When I ſhall have fulfilled theſe Prophecies by the taking and ruine of Jeruſalem I will cauſe tidings thereof to be brought unto thee, and then ſhalt thou put the people in minde of theſe things, for their inſtruction and correction, deſire] the Italian, the intent of their ſoules] that which they deſire and hope for, namely, to ſee and enjoy their children againe.

CHAP. XXV.

Verſ. 3. Thou ſaideſt] becauſe thou haſt injuriouſly ſcoffed Zeph. 2. 8.

V. 4. The men of] namely, the Arabians, who after the Chaldeans had ſpoyled the Ammonites countrey, and had ſlaine and carried away the inhabitants into captivitie, did come and poſſeſſe the land. Palaces] the Italian caſtles] namely, their holds fitted for warre, and for defence of the countrey; for the people dwelt for the moſt part in Tents, often changing their abodes, according to the commodiouſneſſe of their paſtures.

V. 5. Rabbah] the chiefe Citie of Ammon, for camels] wherein the Arabians doe abound, for to carry their houſholds, their ſtuffe and merchandiſe: Or, Caravans of Camels and Travellers.

V. 6. Haſt clapped] Here it is a ſigne of joy, deriſion, and inſulting.

V. 8. Stir] This was the Idumeans countrey, Gen. 36. 8. bordering upon the Moabites, whereby theſe nations did oftentimes joyne againſt the Iewes, the houſe] though ſhee boaſt of having a love love to the true God, yet hee hath not protected her, no more then the gods of other nations have protected them; words of contempt and blasphemie against God himselfe, as 2 Kings 18.33.

V.9. I will open] I will cause the Chaldeans to breake through that part of the countrey, where the strong and frontier cities are, which are here under named; for a difference between that and the other part of the land which lay open, and was not fortified. From the cities] Others translate it towards the cities of Ar, see Numb. 21. 28. Jos.12.2.

V.12. Vengeance] Of the title of birth-right, which Jacob did get away from Esau, the father of the Edomites: Or of Davids conquering of Edom, 1 Chro. 18.13. See Ezech.35.3. Amos 1.11.

V.14. I will lay] We read nothing of this execution done by the Jewes upon the Edomites, but onely, 1 Mac. 5. 3. and 2 Mac. 10. 16. 17. Some doe understand this spiritually of the Churches victorie over her deadly enemies, as the Edomites were to the Jewes, as Isa. 11. 14. Jer. 49. 2. They shall know] namely, my people, or Edom.

V.15. Have taken] See 2 Chro.28.18. Amos 1.6.

V. 16. Cherethims] A name of a part of the Philistims countrey, 1 Sam.30.14.16. Zeph.2.5. The Sea-coast] Upon which was the Philistims land.

CHAP. XXVI.

Vers.1. The eleventh] Of Jehoiachins captivitie, Ezech.1. 2. Of the moneth] some say it was the first moneth Ezech.40. 1. others the fifth, that is to say, the first after the taking of Jerusalem, which was the cause of the Tyrians insulting, which is here mentioned: See Jerem. 52. 6.

V. 2. The gates] namely, Jerusalem where there came all manner of people, both for Religion sake and for traffique. A manner of speech taken from that neer the chiefe gates of the Citie. There were commonly great places for markets, meetings, and law pleas. It is turned] that is to say, It being the second citie in Palestine for commodiousnesse and repute, shall obtaine all these priviledges which Jerusalem hath, for traffique, concourse of people, and for wealth.

V. 3. Many Nations] Or great Nations, namely, the Chaldeans armie, compoled of divers mightie Nations, v. 7.

V. 4. Scrape her dust] that is to say] I will destroy it utterly. This did not befall Tyrus the first time that the Chaldeans tooke it, Isa. 23. 15. but the ruine of it began then; and then from time to time it came to that degree, as the Prophet speakes of, as may be seene at this time.

V. 5. For the spreading] As who should say, a waste and desolate place. In the midst] because that Tyrus was an Island encompassed with the Sea.

V. 6. Her daughters] the Italian, Her cities] namely, such cities and colonies as depended upon Tyrus.

V.7. King of Kings] namely, Him that is possessor of this mighty Monarchie, which calls it selfe Universall. Upon the North] namely, from Chaldea, which was partly Northward from Tyre and Palestine.

V.8. And lift up] namely, At the assault.

V.11. The strong] the Italian, The statues] The trophies, or statues of famous men, which were set up to beautifie the citie: Others take it for idolls.

V. 13. Thy songs] The Tyrians having at all times been much given to musick, Isa. 23. 16. Ezech.28. 13.

V.14. Thou shalt be built] namely, After her last ruine, whereof the spoyle made by the Chaldeans was but the beginning.

V. 16. Cloth themselves] They shall be strooke with amazement, as well by the example of such as unlooked for ruine: as for feare of the danger which hangeth over their owne heads.

V. 17. Her inhabitants] Those that were borne and brought up there. See Isa. 23 8. On all] strangers also.

V. 18. At thy departure] Because thou wilt be an exile and a captive.

V. 19. When I shall bring] When I shall have rooted thee out by a most cruell warre.

V. 20. Bring thee downe] When I shall cause thee to perish as so many nations and cities have done before thee, especially in the generall deluge, to which he seemes to have a relation, having before likened the invasion of Tyrus to an overflowing. Shall set] the Italian, Shall restore] I shall gloriously re-establish my people, and cause them to live and flourish againe, for to be the honour of the world: See Ezech. 20. 6.

V. 21. I will make thee a terror] Thou shalt be brought into such an extreme desolation, full of horror in thy selfe, and a subject of terror to others. Others translate it, I will bring thee to nothing, and to perdition.

CHAP. XXVII.

Vers.3. The entrie] in a very commodious place for to resort unto by Sea from divers places, and to carry merchandises from thence into the continent, or firme land.

V. 4. Thy borders] Thou wert encompassed round with the Sea.

V. 5. Shenir] A hill in the confines of Paleſtine, Deut 3. 9.

V. 6. Thy benches] Wherewith they covered the walls and floores of chambers, and the decks of ships. Chittim] of Greece, and of the Archipelago, Gen. 10. 4.

V. 7. Eliſha] it is thought that hereby are meant the Eolians, a people of Greece, Gen. 10. 4. ſome doe take it for Italie. Covered thee] the Italian, Thy canopie] namely, of the poop of thy ſhips.

V. 8. Aruad] It is thought to be the Iſland called Arado neere to Sidon, Gen. 10. 18.

V. 9. The ancients] namely, the chiefe of this Nation, famous for Architecture and Building, ſee 1 Kings 5. 18. Pſal. 83. The wiſe men] The maſters and moſt cunning workmen.

V. 10. Lud] See Gen. 10. 13. Phut] See Gen. 10. 6. They hanged] according to the cuſtome of garriſon ſouldiers. They ſet] Their ſouldiers being there continually, did much increaſe thy ſplendor and Majeſtie.

V. 11. The men] The Italian, The children] Thoſe of Arvad, which lived by the Sea-coaſt, v. 8. and thine owne ſouldiers kept a continuall watch about the city. The Gammadims] it was thought to be a people of Syria, of a citie called Gamalah.

V. 12. Tarſhiſh] namely, The people that lived along the coaſt of the Mediterranean ſea, and eſpecially, the city of Tharſus, a Tyrian colonie; others will have it to be Carthage.

V. 13. Of Javan] Of Greece, Tubal Meſhech] See Gen. 10. 2. The perſons] the Italian, The ſoules] that is to ſay, Traded for ſlaves.

V. 14. Togarmah] See Gen. 10. 3. Horſemen] Men which were expert in managing and breaking of horſes.

V. 15. Dedan] People of Arabia, Gen. 10. 7. They brought thee] for to have the benefit of being free of thy Faires and Markets.

V. 17. Wheat] the Italian corne] By 1 King. 5. 9. Acts 12. 20. it appeares that Tyrus was furniſhed with corne out of the land of Iſrael. Minnith] A countrey abounding in corne: Pannag] the Italian Ermag] Some will have it to be the name of a countrey, and the name of Phenicia to be taken from thence; and others tranſlate it Rozen. Balme] or Turpentine, wherein Gilead abounded, Gen. 37. 25. Jer. 8. 22 and 46. 11.

V. 18. Helbon] A place of Syria, which is thought to be that which at this time is called Aleppo.

V. 19. Dan] He meanes thoſe which after the captivitie of the ten tribes, came and inhabited the ancient country belonging to Dan, namely, Laiſh, a City neere to Tyre, Judges 18. 28. 25. Going to and fro] for the Grecks have alwayes beene great travellers.

V. 20. Clothes] It is very likely that they were ſome faire ſhagged carpets, wherewith they covered their horſes and chariots, to ſit upon them.

V. 21. Kedar] namely, of Arabia, Petrea, Lambes] That countrie abounding with cattell, Iſa. 60. 7.

V. 22. Sheba] Names of Arabia Felix.

V. 23. Haran] Places of Meſopotamia. Chilmad] it is thought to be Media, or ſome part thereof.

V. 24. Blew clothes] namely, Silks and Woolls died in this noble colour, enclining to a Violet.

V. 26. Did ſing of thee] the Italian, Were thy caravans as thoſe places which are haunted with wild beaſts upon the land are travelled through with great companies of travellers, and loaded cattell, ſo doe the ſhips flock towards thee in great numbers together. Glorious] enriched in goods.

V. 26. Thy rowers] Thou haſt been like unto a well furnished ſhip, brought into the maine Sea of greatneſſe, riches and power, by the governours, and there left to ſuffer ſhipwracke. The Eaſt-wind] Moſt tempeſtuous and dangerous in thoſe countries, Pſal. 48. 7.

V. 27. Thy Calkers] Heb. thoſe which mend thy breaches, which ſome take for the breaches of walls and buildings. Shall fall] Shall be all enfolded in thy ruine. A continuation of the ſame ſimilitude of a broken ſhip.

V. 28. The ſuburbs] the Italian, The boats] the Hebrew word ſeemes to ſignifie a cock-boat, which they throw out of the ſhip. The meaning is, that the colonies and cities ſubject to Tyre, ſhould be ſurprized with terror at the fall and ruine of their chiefe citie: and all other leſſer ſtates ſhould be likewiſe ſo terrified.

V. 30. Caſt up duſt] Which is a ſigne of great ſorrow and mourning.

V. 33. Went forth] Thou wert the Magazin and ſtaple of victuall and merchandize, which thou didſt tranſport by Sea, and diſtribute them to divers nations.

V. 34. By the Seas] that is to ſay, By the overflowing of warre, Ezek. 26. 19.

V. 36. Hiſſe at thee] the Italian Whiſtle] in token of wonder. A terror] a ſubject of terror to all men by reaſon of thy terrible fall: or, thou haſt beene brought to nothing.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Vers. 2. I am] Thou art growne vaine, and haſt exalted thy ſelfe, through thy glory, wiſdome and happineſſe, as if thou wert no more a mortall man, but a petty God. I ſit] I raigne in a ſtrong place, full of glory, goods, and and delights, which are the two properties belonging to heaven, which is Gods habitation, thou hast thou set thy heart] the Italian, thou didst make thine heart like Gods heart] thou didst thinke thy selfe to be endowed with divine and more then humane understanding and wisedome: the Tyrians wisedome being very famous, Ezech. 9.2.

V.3. Thou art wiser] in thine owne conceit and opinion. Daniel] who for the incomparable gifts of Gods holy spirit, as well in prophecye, as in counsell and wisedome, Dan.1.17. was by a common proverbe, set as a patterne of wisedome in Babylon, where Ezekiel then prophecyed. See Ezek.14.14.

V.4. Riches] or power.

V.7. Against thee] By strength they will overcome all thy counsels, and arts of prevention and defence. Or they will kill thee, not respecting thy wisedome, which maketh thee so majesticke and venerable.

V.8. The deaths of them] namely, of all kinds of violent death, in the generall slaughter of thy people. See Isa.14.19.

V.10. Of the uncircumcised] of prophane and accursed people, like to the ancient Cananites, which were accursed. See Ezek.32.21.

V.12. Thou hast sealed up the summe] the Italian, thou wert at the height] Heb. thou sealedst the summe, or thou didst make up the account, a terme taken from them which tell money, and make up what is wanting of the whole summe.

V.13. In Eden] like to a tree planted in an earthly Paradise, Gen.2.8. Ezek.31.8,9. the workmanship] Hee hath a relation to the art of musick, which was alwayes held in great esteem amongst the Tyrians, Isa.23.16. Ezek.26.13. was prepared in the] Even at the first founding of thy state, musicke began to flourish in thee.

V.14. Anointed] endowed by God with severall Prerogatives, Cherub] amongst the great ones of the world, which are Gods Ministers upon earth: thou wert exalted in glory, even as the Cherubims, are amongst Gods other Angels in heaven, that covereth, the Italian, the protector] being a secure defence to thy people, covering them with thy wings which are attributed to this King, because he is called Cherub, whose shape and forme is set downe in the Scripture with wings. The Holy] having likened him to a Cherub: he compares his seat, being full of magnificence, to mount Sinai, where God appeared with millions of his Angels, having a fiery pavement under his feet, Exod.24.10.

V.15. In thy wayes] the Italian, in thine imployment.] Heb in thy wayes, which may be also understood of the state and condition, or of the enterprises. From the day] He seemes to allude to the fall of wicked Angels, till iniquity] whilest thou hast continued in justice and integrity, I have borne thee up. But since thou and thy City have given your selves to violences, deceits, and other manner of wickednesses, thy ruine hath been ready at hand.

V.16. Cast thee] that is to say, I will subvert thy glorious state.

V.17. Thou hast corrupted] thy glory and greatnesse have caused thee to lose thine understanding and wise carriage, for which thy predecessors were admired, and thine owne splendor hath dazled thee.

V.18. Thou hast] thou hast made thy chiefe City, which ought to have been a holy Seat of justice and vertue, a den of theeves, and of all manner of wickednesse. From the midst] He seemes to intimate that the occasion of the ruine of Tyre did succeed from its selfe, by some meanes or accident, which the History doth not specifie.

V.22. Shall be] in the manifestation of my justice, and power exercised over thee. Sanctified] I shall have given sufficient subject, for to be feared and worshipped, yea, and blessed and praised.

V.25. When I shall] This prophecye hath in part, and according to the letter, a relation to the returne from the captivity of Babylon; but perfectly and in spirit to the spirituall re-establishment of the Church by the Messias.

CHAP. XXIX.

Ver.1. The tenth] namely, of the captivity of Jehoiakin, Ezek.1.2.

V.2. Pharaoh] likely this was Pharaoh Hophrah, Jer.44 30.

V.3. Dragon] the Hebrew word signifieth, any great creature that liveth in the sea. Here is meant the Crocodile, the figure of Pharaoh, the river] I possesse a most fruitfull kingdome, and so strongly situated, by reason of the river Nilus, that it cannot be taken away from me by any humane strength. I have made it] I doe not depend upon any one; as I have gotten and increased my kingdome of my selfe, so am I sufficient to maintaine it against all men.

V.4. Hooks] I will draw thee out of thy country which is so strong, together with all thy subjects which will follow thee to goe and meet Nebuchadnezzar, to the end that you being all slaine by him, your bodies may lye for food for the fowles of the aire, and the wilde beasts of the field, *Psal.*74.14.

V.5. Gathered] to be buried.

V.6. They have been] they have solicited my people to rebell against the Caldeans, promising them assistance, and have violated their faith; and so have not only been unprofitable, but also very hurtfull to them.

V.7. Madest all their loines] thou hast left them to defend themselves with their owne strength, and alone to beare the burden of the warre which they had undertaken for your advantage.

V.9. And I have] he speaks in the person of this King: or in generall, of all the Kings of Ægypt his predecessors, who with great charges and labour had brought Nilus with channels over all the land of Ægypt.

V.10. From the tower] from one of the ends of Ægypt to the other. Of Seveneh] it hath been commonly thought by reason of the likenesse of the name, that it was the city of Sienc, standing upon the confines of Ægypt and Æthyopia, where there might be some tower, to marke the defect of shadowes in the very day of the Summer Solstice, as there was a Well also to that purpose. But because here are set downe two bounds from the North to the South, and that Siene was the Southerne bound: we must with more likelihood take it to be the branch of Nilus called Sebennitcus: upon which there was in former times Pharus, called by the Greeks the tower of Perseus, which was the Southerne bound or confine.

V.14. A base] namely, subject and tributary to the Persians, who shall people it againe. See Ezek. 17.6,14.

V.16. Which bringeth] that by reason of these unlawfull practises; through which my people trusting upon Ægypt, have forsaken their beliefe they had in me, and have broken their faith to the Chaldeans, I may not againe call them to account for all the sinnes which they have committed, imitating the Ægyptian idolatries, Ezek. 8.10,14. and 23.19,20,21.

V.17. Seven and twentieth] It is not likely that this yeare must be counted after the taking of Jehoiachin, as the rest of the yeares are in this booke. See Ezek. 29.1. and 30.20. but after the Jubile. Unlesse this prophecye be inserted out of the order of times, and was directed to the Prophet after the taking of Tyre, the enterprise of Ægypt being already begun.

V.18. Caused his army] namely, to execute my judgements upon Tyre, and therefore I will requite him. And if that ancient Histories be true, that siege lasted thirteen yeares. Every head] that is to say, they have suffered long and hard labours, and toiles, and have worne out themselves about it.

V.20. For me] to execute my judgements, though they did not know my will, nor had no intent for to obey it.

V.21. In that day] when I shall beat downe the Ægyptians, then will I begin to raise up again my people in Babylon, by the exaltation of Jechoniah, Jer. 52 31. which questionlesse caused a great deale of ease and liberty to the Jewish prisoners; To bud] See Psal. 132.17. will give thee] I will make it so, that thou Ezekiel, and all the rest of the beleevers may freely, and with open mouthes, praise the Lord in your Assemblies.

CHAP. XXX.

Ver.2. Howle] namely, you Ægyptians and other Nations which are subject to, and confederate with them. Woe worth the day] the Italian, what day is this?] namely, the day of the ruine of Ægypt, whereof he speaks hereafter.

V.3. A cloudy day] namely, of horrible and strange calamities; as rainy dayes are very rare in Ægypt. Of the heathen] the Italian, of the Nations] in which the prophane Nations, Egyptians, Æthyopians and others shall be visited and punished.

V.4. In Æthyopia] a neighbouring and confederate Nation with Ægypt.

V.5. Æthyopia] the Italian; Cush] people of Africa. See Gen. 10.6,13. mixed people] See Jer. 25.20, 24. Cub] the name of some part of Africke not mentioned elsewhere. Of the land that is in league] the Italian, of the land that is in covenant] it might be some land which was confederate with Ægypt, or some countrey of divers Nations, which governed themselves in commonalties, which were confederate one with another. Unlesse the word of league or covenant be taken for the proper name of a city in Arabia, called Berites; for the common or mixed people also which were spoken of before, were of Arabia.

V.6. They also] namely, those armies and Nations which shall take their parts, or relieve them.

V.9. From me] the Italian, from my presence] namely, from Ægypt, where I will shew my selfe present by the execution of my judgements: For God is said to be present there where he operates. In Ships] upon the Red Sea, Isa. 18.2. As in the day] as formerly all neighbouring Nations were astoshed at the report of the Ægyptians discomfiture in the Red Sea, Exod. 15.14. It commeth] namely, the foresaid calamity.

V.12. I will make] that countrey which is most fruitfull, by reason of the abundance of waters which are in it, shall become barren and desolate, as if it were scorched up with the Sun. Or I will make the waters thereof to be no safeguard for it: See Jer. 50.28.

V.13. Noph] called by the Ancients, Memphis.

V.14.

V. 14. Pathros] The name of a countrey in Egypt. Zoan] Which is Tanis, one of the chiefe cities of Egypt. No] Which is Alexandria.

V. 15. Sin] Which is Peluſium, a ſtrong frontier citie of Egypt.

V. 17. Aven] Or on which is the city Heliopolis. Phibeſeth] Called by Authors Bubaſthus. Theſe cities] namely, The multitude of people that is in them.

V. 18. In Tehaphnehes] This is the city of Daphne, which was, as it were, the gate of Egypt, at which the Chaldeans came in. Shall be darkned] that is to ſay, an extreme calamitie, deſolation and confuſion ſhall overtake them. The cloud] as who ſhould ſay, a ſudden ſtorme of evills, v. 3.

V. 20. The eleventh] From Jehoiachins captivity, Ezek. 1. 2.

V. 21. I have broken] This hath a relation to the firſt overthrow of the Egyptians under Neco, Jerem. 46. 2. by which they loſt a great part of that which they poſſeſſed out of Egypt, which is the broken arme, and there remained nothing to them but Egypt alone, which was the whole or ſound arme; and after this loſſe, they could never recover nor defend themſelves againſt the Chaldeans.

V. 24. My ſword] namely, The execution of my judgement.

CHAP. XXXI.

Verſ. 1. The eleventh] namely, Of the captivity of Jehoiachin, Ezek. 1. 2.

V. 2. Whom art thou like] Equall thy ſelfe, if thou wilt, through thy pride, to the greateſt Empires of the world: as to the Aſſyrian, which was the firſt and mightieſt of all, and thou mayeſt ſee how I have overthrowne it; the like ſhall happen to thee, ſee Iſay. 23. 13.

V. 3. A Cedar] See Ezek. 17 3. 22. 23. Dan. 4. 10.

V. 4. The waters] He was growne great through abundance of all proſperities. Her rivers] The great ſea of his happineſſe did ſeeme to run round, as it doth at the comming in of great rivers, at the foot of this tree; and hee out of his grace and plentie, ſeemed to ſend forth ſome ſmall ſtreames out of it to other Kingdomes.

V. 6. The foules] The greateſt part of man-kind lived under dominion and protection.

V. 8. The Cedars] No other great Kingdome, likened to the trees of earthly Paradice, Ezek. 28. 13. could equall him in height and greatneſſe.

V. 10. Thou haſt] namely, thou Aſſyrian Empire.

V. 11. Of the mighty] namely, Of Nebuchadnezzar, who ſubdued Aſſyria, and overthrew the Empire of it.

V. 12. Strangers] namely, The Chaldeans.

V. 13. The foules] namely, The nations which were ſubject to the Aſſyrians, after the overthrow of their Empire, did prey upon them, with contempt.

V. 14. That none] I have ſet forth this ſpectacle of my judgements upon Aſſur, for to teach all Princes that are growne great through my bleſſings, not to raiſe themſelves againſt mee through pride; for they are all mortall by nature, and I can bring down their eſtates as I have raiſed them.

V. 15. I cauſed] By this fall of Aſſyria, I raiſed a generall horror, and terror in them all, ſeeing him on a ſudden deprived of my helpe and bleſſing, by the meanes of which he had proſpered ſo well.

V. 16. Comforted] Having ſo great a Kingdome for their companion in miſerie, their evill ſeemed leſſer, and more tolerable unto them: a figurative and poeticall repreſentation, as Iſa. 14. 8. 9, 10. Ezek. 32. 31. Hab. 2. 17.

V. 17. His arme] that is to ſay, All his power and dominion.

V. 18. To whom] He applies the foreſaid things by compariſon to Pharaoh, as if he ſhould ſay, Compare thy ſelfe to whom thou wilt, thou canſt not avoid ruine. This is Pharaoh] as much as to ſay, All this Allegoricall ſpeech hath a relation to Pharaoh.

CHAP. XXXII.

Verſ. 1. The twelfth] Of the captivitie of Jehoiachin, Ezek. 1. 2.

V. 2. A young Lyon] in cruelty and violence, ſee Ezek. 19. 2. A whale] See Ezech. 29. 3. Thou cameſt forth] by reaſon of the convenient ſituation of the countrey thou didſt undertake divers enterprizes, annoying and invading of other nations. A ſimilitude taken from Crocodiles, which come up into the land by divers armes of Nilus.

V. 6. Of thee] Of thy blood, and of thy dead carkaſſes.

V. 7. I will cover] I will fill the world with horror and terror at thy ruine, ſee Iſa. 13. 10.

V. 8. Will I make darke] I will deprive thee of all advice, wiſdome and direction, and will bring all thy ſtate into confuſion, and extreme miſeries.

V. 9. Vex thee] Seeing ſo mightie a Kingdome periſh, and the King of Babylon growne ſo great.

V. 13. The great] From off the Land of Egypt which is abundantly watered, and therefore very fruitfull.

V. 14. Their waters deep] the Italian, Their waters to ſettle] a figurative deſcription of a mighty deſolation of a wateriſh countrey, wherein there is neither man nor beaſt for to trouble the waters.

V. 16. The daughters] namely, The cities and commonalties.

V. 17. The twelfth] See v. 1. The moneth] namely, The twelfth moneth.

V. 18. Waile] the Italian, Tune a mournfull song] that is to say, Make some kind of funerall exequies for Egypt, by lamentations or mournfull songs, according to the custome, and for the funerall of other nations likewise.

V. 19. Whom doest thou passe] O Egypt, What priviledge hast or deservest thou, more then all the other prophane Nations and Kingdomes? Thou must even perish, as all the rest have, and must doe.

V. 20. Shall fall] God will make a generall destruction of such people by warre, to doe which he hath already given the Chaldeans a commission. Draw her] namely, Egypt, Even as one would draw a dead carkasse.

V. 21. The mighty] A Poeticall and Ironicall representation of the entertainment which other Princes and warlike nations, and especially those which were Egypts confederates, and were already dead, would give Pharaoh at his comming downe into hell, see Isa. 14. 9. To him] namely, To the King of Egypt.

V. 22. His graves] namely, The graves of his men which were slaine in the warres.

V. 23. Caused terror] Who had also beene violent and tyranicall in this world, like Egipt.

V. 24. Elam] namely, The King and people of Persia, or of some part of it, Gen. 10. 22.

V. 27. They shall not lie] These Kings did not die gloriously, having overcome their enemies, nor are not buried triumphantly with their armes, as it is the manner to honour warriers burialls: But these are dead basely, being overcome and discomfited by their enemies. Their iniquities] They who have not suffered punishment for their faults and tyrannies in this life, but it hath beene reserved for them to be inflicted upon them after their death; by reason that no man durst undertake to punish them whilest they lived.

V. 28. Thou shalt] namely, Thou, O King of Egypt.

V. 30. With their] notwithstanding, or together with that great power, with which they kept men subject to their tyranny. Ashamed] Because that it could not save them, but is at the last come to nothing.

V. 31. Shall be comforted] As meeting with many companions in miserie.

V. 32. My terror] I have staid their fury through my terrible judgements.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Vers. 2. The sword] that is to say, Warre with all the sudden invasions, inroads and dangers belonging to it.

V. 4. His blood] His death must not be imputed to any other but himselfe.

V. 6. He is taken away] This death shall not have happened by chance, but I shall by my secret providence have executed my judgement upon him; yet shall I hold the watchman guilty, as having failed in his dutie, either through negligence or disloyalty.

V. 10. Our transgressions] The meaning is, It is true that your Prophets have admonished us heretofore, and we having neglected your admonitions, doe beare our punishment, and are ruined past all relieſe: what good doth it doe then to speak to us any more of these preservatives against the evill, into which wee are already fallen? The Lord answereth, Your ruine is not so extreme, but that you may rise againe by true repentance; which comes alwayes in time, either before or after the punishments, so it come during life.

V. 13. That he shall] namely, If he perseveres to the end; a condition necessarily annexed to all the promises of the Law.

V. 15. Of life] The observation of which Statutes, the promises of life annexed to it, Lev. 18. 5.

V. 21. Is smitten] Taken by force and sacked.

V. 22. Had opened] Hee had againe appointed me to speake to the people, after I had a while held my tongue by his command; or after I had lost the use of my tongue; and revealed unto me, and inspired mee with what I should say, according to the prediction, Ezek. 24. 26. 27.

V. 24. Abraham] If out of Abraham alone could come so numerous an issue, as could conquer and people all this countrey, how much more may we hope that are left in great number, that wee may be restored to our former estate which is beaten downe by the Chaldeans, and once againe re-possesse and be masters of the countrey?

V. 26. You stand upon] Every one righteth himselfe, defends and revenges himselfe by violence, and good order is quite beaten downe.

V. 27. In the Caves] In hidden and strong places, into which people did use to flie in time of warre, see Judg. 6 2. 1 Sam. 13. 6.

V. 30. Are talking] In prophane contempt, or through hypocrisie or curiositie.

V. 31. As the people] Very frequent, and with a shew of devotion, as it were to an Ecclesiasticall assembly.

V. 33. When this] namely, of my threatnings, in the ruine of Jerusalem, and of the whole nation.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Vers. 2. The Shepheards] namely, The Governours, as well Ecclesiasticall as politicke.

V. 5. Scat-

V.5. Scattered] spiritually, by running into errours, superstitions, idolatries, vices and disorders: or corporally, by their dissipation out of their countrey, by the ill leading of their guides. No shepheard] namely, a true and faithfull shepheard.

V.10. Cause them] I will take away their dignities and offices away from them who doe abuse them, bearing the names, and reaping the profits, not performing the charge, but converting them to their owne proper use.

V.12. That he is] when after they have been scattered by some sudden storme, the shepheard tels and musters up his sheep, to see whether any be wanting, and seeketh them out, and gathereth them together. In the cloudy] which is full of calamities, and publicke desolations, Joel 2.2.

V.13. To their owne] corporally, and according to the letter into the land of Israel, by delivering them out of captivity, and spiritually into the Church, which is the true sheepfold of all the elect, John 10.16.

V.15. I will] this doth not inferre any abolishment of either Ecclesiasticall or Politicke government in the Christian Church; but doth inferre a more effectuall and renewed presence of God in it, by his spirit, providence, grace and vertue: Or the mysticall and inward operation of Christ true God, upon all the members of his body, in vivifying, conducting, comforting and defending them.

V.16. The fat] these who in my Church shall abuse my benefits in pride and rebellion against me; and in contempt and oppression of their brethren. See Isa.5.17. and 10.16. Amos.4.1. With judgement] namely, with upright and just government.

V.17. Between cattell] that is to say, between those that are good in my Church, and those that are evill, violent as rammes, or filthy as goats.

V.18 Seemeth it] O you powerfull and rich Jewes, is it not sufficient for you to enjoy my blessings in abundance, unlesse you trouble the poore in the possession of their small portion?

V.23. David] namely, Jesus Christ, the sonne of God, according to the flesh: And for this reason oftentimes called David, Jer.30.9. Ezek.37.24. Hos.3.5. and the servant of God, by reason of his humane nature, and office of Mediator, Isa.42.1. and 49.6. and 53.11. Phil.2.7.

V.15. Of peace] of grace, reconciliation and blessing, Jer.31.31. the evill beasts] figurative termes, to shew the Churches safeguard against all her spirituall enemies.

V.26. And I will] I will blesse them, and their habitation, and their pasture abundantly.

V.27. when I have broken] when I have freed and redeemed them by the bloud of my sonne from the spirituall captivity of the devill and sinne.

V.29. A plant] Jesus Christ glorious in his divine Majesty, and force: who shall make his Church famous through his gifts and grates, being her true tree of life. See Isa.11.1. Jer. 23.5.

V.31. Are wee] all the aforesaid things are to be understood spiritually, with a relation to the soule of the elect, and the salvation of it, so that the correspondency which is betweene the sheep, a bruit beast, and the shepheard, which is man, is found in spirit between man and his God.

CHAP. XXXV.

Ver.2. Mount] towards the land of Idumæa or Edom.

V.5. Hatred] against Israel. See Ezek.25.15. Amos 1.11. Of the children] the Italian, overthrowne the children] that is to say, hast assisted the Caldæans in making a horrible slaughter of my people, Psal.137.7. Ezek.25.12. that their] the Italian, at the fulnesse of their iniquity] at which time the measure of my peoples sinnes being full, I also caused my judgements to fall violently upon them, Ezek. 21.30.31.

V.6. And blood] namely, the sword and violent death.

V.10. Two Nations] thou hast perswaded thy selfe that thou shouldest possesse the land of Judah, and of the ten Tribes, Whereas the Lord] the Italian, though the sword] though the Lord have taken it for his owne proper habitation, placing his people there, and his Temple with the signes of his presence.

V.11. Make my selfe] I will make my selfe knowne to my Church by new trials of my justice and power against her enemies, and of my love and mercy towards her.

V.14. So shall] the Italian, when the whole earth rejoyceth] namely, when I shall give all the world cause to rejoyce at my peoples deliverance, and their re-establishment in their countrey, then will I increase thy desolation. This was partly verified in the Idumæans, but hath been accomplished in the enemies of the Church, whose curse and condemnation increased, when salvation appeared to the elect and beleevers through Christ.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Ver.2. Had said] hath triumphed, and scoffed at your desolation. The high places] the Italian, the everlasting hils, an epithet epithet ordinarily given to high hils, Gen.49.26. Deut 33.15. Hab.3.6. by reason of their immovable firmeneſſe, but by this figure is chiefly meant the Church, founded upon Gods promiſes.

V.3. And ye are taken up] ye have been derided by prophane Nations.

V.7. I have lifted] that is to ſay, I have heaven.

V.8. Shoot forth] you ſhall be endowed with new fruitfullneſſe which my people ſhall enjoy, being ſhortly to come out of captivity. A figurative deſcription of the happineſſe which ſhall be in the world under the Meſſias, in the behalfe of the Church.

V.13. Thou ſhalt no more] he attributes the deſolation which happened to his people by hunger, peſtilence, and warre, to the countrey, by a ſimilitude of evill women that doe kill their burthen in their wombe.

V.13. Devoureſt up] as who ſhould ſay, an accurſed countrey, condemned to all manner of miſery, the inhabitants of which cannot live, the Canaanites having firſt been rooted out of it, and ſince that the Iſraelites.

V.14. Thou ſhalt] thou ſhalt no more be ſubject to thoſe frequent calamities which have made thee infamous.

V.17. As the uncleanneſſe] which is extreamely abominable.

V.20. They prophaned] Through their miſery and ſlavery occaſioned by their owne ſins they have given their enemies occaſion of blaſphemíng me: as if I their God could not have ſaved them, or as if I were not faithfull in my promiſes.

V.21. I had pity] For to free my Name from theſe imputations, I have reſolved to forgive my people, and to re-eſtabliſh them.

V.23. Sanctifie] I will cauſe my divine perfections to be knowne by the effects, contrary to thoſe ſlanders, that my holy name may be reſpected and honoured by all men, as it ought to be.

V.24. I will take you] By the returne from Babylon, is figured and comprehended the ſalvation of the Church by the Meſſias, together with the abundance of all ſpirituall graces.

V.25. I will ſprinkle] I will largely communicate my grace nnto you, and grant you pardon for all your ſinnes, purchaſed with the price of my Sonnes blood, which was ſhed for the ſinnes of the world, Epheſ.5.26. Heb.9.14. 1 John. 1.7.

V.26. The ſtony heart] namely, The hard heart, which hath beene inflexible to my ſpirit, inſenſible of my Word and Judgements, and impenetrable to my grace. Of fleſh] pliable, and capable of being vivified and governed by my ſpirit, as amongſt naturall bodies, there is none fitting nor apt to receive and containe the vitall ſpirit, but onely the fleſhly body.

V.29. Save you] By my free Juſtification I will free you from that puniſhment which your filthineſſe deſerves, and by the ſanctification of my ſpirit, I will free you from the corruption and ſlavery of ſinne. I will call] By mine Almighty Word, I will cauſe all manner of good things to be brought forth unto you.

V.32. For your ſakes] Not for any deſert or worth that is in you.

V.37. Be enquired] that is to ſay, The abundance of goods ſhall be ſuch, that they ſhall deſire nothing but for to have a number of men ſufficient to enjoy thoſe goods.

V.38. As the holy flocke] Which was brought into Jeruſalem at the three ſolemne feaſts for ſacrifices in innumerable quantity.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Verſ. 1. IN the ſpirit] namely, In extaſie, and rapture of minde. Bones] Dead mens bones.

V.3. Can theſe bones] By any way or naturall power, that thou knoweſt.

V.4. Prophecie] Be thou the inſtrument of mine Almightie Word; by which in viſion theſe bones ſhall ſeeme to thee, to have life put into them; for a ſigne that by my power, my people ſhall be re-eſtabliſhed in their former eſtate.

V.7. A noyſe] A ſigne of Gods glorious preſence, ſhewing his power in a miraculous and ſupernaturall worke. To his bone] Joyning themſelves againe to thir naturall joynts.

V.9. To the wind] the Italian, To the ſpirit] According to ſome, to the ſoule of man, and according to ſome, to the holy Ghoſt, it ſelfe whoſe perſonall property is to vivifie and cauſe all things to live, Pſal.104.30. From the foure] For to ſignifie the reſtauration of the people from all thoſe places where they had been ſcattered. Breathe upon] Send the ſoule and ſpirit of life into every one of theſe dead bodies by the operation of thy divine power. Hee ſeemes to intend to repreſent the manner of the creating and infuſing the ſoule into Adam, deſcribed, Gen.2.7.

V.11. Our bones] Wee are deſtroyed beyond hope of reſtauration: Wee are in Babylon like dried bones in ſepulchres, Pſal.141.7.

V.16. One ſticke] Some little piece of boord, or a ruler, or a cleft ſticke. And write] Set downe upon it that part of the people which is ſignified by it. For the chidren of Iſrael] Whereof many, namely, the two whole tribes of Levi & Benjamin, and many other particular men of the other tribes did joyne with Judah, when the ten tribes revolted, 2 Chron.11.12. 13. 16. Unto Joſeph] namely, to the ten tribes whoſe head was the tribe of Ephraim, which came from Joseph.

V. 19. I will take] that is to say, I will gather together, and unite all mine elect of what nation soever they be, into one spirituall body, annihilating by Christs crosse, the divisions and enmities of the nations; as of Judah, and of the ten tribes, oftentimes used by the Prophets for a signe of the division which was between the Jews and the Gentiles, Isa. 11. 13. Ephes. 2. 14, 15, 16. The stick of Ioseph] of the ten tribes, represented by this tree of Joseph, by reason that the tribe of Ephraim had ruled over them.

V. 22. One King] namely, The Messias.

V. 23. Their dwelling places] Whersoever they shall be in exile or captivity; as in Babylon, in Egypt, and other places of the world, where either willingly, or by compulsion, they have beene partakers of Pagan Idolatries, Jer. 44. 8. Ezek. 14. 3. and 20. 30, 39.

V. 24. David] namely, Jesus Christ, the sonne of David, according to the flesh.

V. 25. In the land] A figure of the Church.

V. 26. will set my] I will be present in my Grace, Word and Spirit in their assemblies, and in their hearts, of which spirituall presence the Tabernacle and Sanctuarie, heretofore were signes and pledges, Lev. 26. 11, 12. 1 Cor. 3. 16. 2 Cor. 6. 16. Ephes. 2. 21. 22.

V. 28. Doe sanctifie] That doe take it, and consecrate it to my selfe, and by my presence do make it holy and inviolable, against all manner of injuries and offences.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Vers. 2. Gog] Names of Scythian people this day, called Tartars, Gen. 10. 2. this Prophecie may be referred partly to the desolations that befell the Jewes which returned from Babylon, by the King of Asia, and Syria, Dan. 8. 23. and 11. 31. And because that the Scythians had anciently overrun and possessed Asia minor, and Syria (whereof in Asia there was a city called Magog, and another in Syria, called Scitopolis) the Provinces have taken their names from this cruell and barbarous conquering Nation, to signifie the inhumanenesse of those Syrian Kings, Alexanders successors, towards the Jewes. But it is likely that besides this, the spirit of God did purpose to signifie a great oppression, which the Church is like to suffer, and especially the Jewes which shall be converted to Christ towards the latter end of the world, by the said Scythians or Tartars, as John seemes to point out, Rev. 20. 8. Zach. 14. 2. The chiefe Prince] namely, A Province which commandeth those Provinces. See Gen. 10. 2.

V. 4. I will turne thee backe] namely, After thou hast assaulted my people. With all sorts] Or furnished and armed with compleat Armes.

V. 5. Ethiopia] Nations of Africa, joyned in this enterprize.

V. 6. Gomer] People of Asia, towards the North, Gen. 10. 2, 3.

V. 7. Be thou] An Ironicall kind of speech, as much as to say, Defend them if thou canst, from my power, and from the battell which I shall fight with them.

V. 8. Visited] Like an instrument or weapon which was laid up, and afterwards used to punish my people. In the latter] A little before the comming of Christ in the flesh, in whom begins a new age; if this be meant by the Kings of Syria: But if this have a relation to the other great inundation of the Scythians, it meanes the times which shall be towards the latter end of the world. Always waste] that is to say, For a long time; likewise never to be restored to it former state.

V. 11. Villages] Where the inhabitants, either because of their continuall peace, or by reason of their fore-past miseries, have not cared, or have not had the meanes to wall and fortifie their cities, and therefore dwell in open villages.

V. 12. Turne thy hand] Renewing the ancient desolations of this poore countrey, restored from its ruines. In the midst] the Italian, In the Navell] namely, In the heart of the land, where they shall thinke themseves more secure then if they dwelt upon the borders. See Judg 9. 37.

V. 13. Sheba] These people of Arabia, and they that dwell upon the Sea-coast, shall come to thee to have part of the prey, and to buy the spoiles of thee. The young Lyons] The pirats and robbers upon the Sea, who are like to wild Sea-beasts.

V. 16. Sanctified] When I shall have shewed my selfe glorious, venerable and terrible in sacred Majestie, by my judgements upon thee.

V. 17. Art thou] Seeing I have foretold thy comming, and thine endeavours; I must be acknowledged to be the director and moderator of them by my sacred Providence; which shall suffer these evills, but shall limit them, and cause the issue of them to be to my glory, and the comfort of my people. In old time] We find no such prophecies before the time of Ezechiel; and therefore the words old time, must be understood in comparison, not of the age in which the Prophet lived, but of the time wherein these prophecies were fulfilled. The Prophets] namely, Ezekiel, in these two Chapters, Zech. chap. 14. and Saint John, Rev. 20. 7. Against them] namely against my people.

V. 18. Shall come up] A humane kind of speech taken from men, whose nostrills puffe out when they are heated with anger.

V. 19. Shaking] All creatures shall be astonished and terrified at the presence of my glorious Majestie, when I punish mine enemies.

V. 21. A sword] This was partly accomplished in the civill warres of the Kings of Syria, whereupon followed the ruine of their Empire.

V. 22. Will raine] I will cause a miraculous destruction and discomfiture to come upon them, termes taken from the deluge, the fire of Sodom, and Joshuahs haile, Josh. 10. 11.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Vers. 6. A fire] namely, An extreme ruine and desolation.

V. 7. Pollute] By the blasphemies and insultings of mine enemies.

V. 8. It is come] that is to say, It will questionlesse come to passe.

V. 9. They that dwell] Hyperbolicall termes to signifie an exceeding great discomfiture.

V. 11. The valley] This valley is not made mention of any where else: It is likely to some passage which was much frequented by strangers that came into Judea, the intent is to shew the greatnesse of the slaughter, by the greatnes of the burying place which was appointed, which should be stopped up with the carkasses and bones of dead men, that travellers should not be able to goe that way. The Sea] Hee seemes to meane the dead Sea, or the lake of Sodom. To stop] namely, their noses by reason of the stinke which shall proceed from thence.

V. 12. May cleanse] For according to the law, a dead carkasse not buried, did defile the land, Deut. 21. 23.

V. 13. This shall be] namely, This great heap of carkasses and bones shall be as a glorious trophie and monument for them.

V. 14. They shall sever out] Because, that men as did such things were uncleane, according to the law, Numb. 19. 11. With the passengers] Causing travellers that come along the way to helpe them: for otherwise a Jew had defiled himselfe by doing of it.

V. 15. A sign] To shew the buriers a farre off, that there are bones of a dead carkasse, that they might bury them, and perfectly cleanse the country.

V. 16. The name] There shall a perpetuall memory remaine of this great discomfiture; as if the next city standing at the end of this valley, should beare the name of Hamonah, that is to say, multitude.

V. 18. Rammes] that is to say, That are not base persons, like the carkasses of uncleane beasts; but noted persons, like unto choyce flesh.

V. 21. I will set] That is to say, I will cause it plainly to appeare.

V. 23. All] The whole state and body of the Nation, or indifferently, of all estates and qualities.

V. 29. I have powred] Whereby having abundantly sanctified it, I will for ever take pleasure in it; whereas contrariwise, sinne is that which causeth the Lord to turne away from his Church.

CAAP. XL.

Vers. 1. IN the beginning] In the first moneth. The City] namely, Jerusalem. Smitten] Taken, sacked, and destroyed. Thither] To Jerusalem.

V. 2. Very high mountaine] This was mount Moriah, upon which the Temple was built. Now though it was but an indifferent high hill, yet because it was the figure of the height of the spirituall Temple of the Church; it is represented in vision, like unto an exceeding high hill, see Isa. 2. 3. Mic. 4. 1. Rev. 21. 10. As the frame] namely, the Temple of God, which for greatnesse, number of buildings, strong walls and towers, shewed more like a city then a Temple. The South] Moriah did stand on the North side of Jerusalem, Psal. 48. 2. but in respect of Babylon, which lay Northward from Judea, from whence the Prophet is here transported in vision to Jerusalem, the Temple appeares Southward to him.

V. 3. A man] The Sonne of God himselfe in humane shape, who is the soveraigne Architect of his Church, Zech 6. 12. Heb. 3. 3, 4. 6. Rev. 21. 15. Brasse] Bright and sparkling, see Ezek. 1. 4. Rev. 1. 15. In the gate] It is likely that he means the North gate of the Temple, seeing the Prophet was come from the North.

V. 5. A wall] This was the outward wall which went round about the whole building. Now the Lord sheweth the Prophet the frame of Salomons Temple, which had been destroyed by the Chaldeans, that the memory of that incomparable magnificence might be preserved in the Church, for a figure and assurance of her spirituall Temple in this world, but especially of it in the celestiall glory, See Eph 3. 18. Rev. 21. 2. 10. The breadth] namely, The thicknesse of the wall, whose forme is not here specified whether it were with pillars or no.

V. 6. Then came he] Passing through the Gentiles Court, which was within side of that wall, and did wind from the North towards the East. The gate] Which was the East gate, by which they went into the court of the people of Israel, separated from the Gentiles court by a great bulding, framed of arches below, and two stories of chambers above. Now, by the word gate, hee meanes the body bodie of a building which had two gates, at the two ends, with a gallery of fifty cubits in length, v. 15. at the end of which gallery were three little chambers on the one side, and three on the other side, parted with pilasters and arches. The staires] which were in number seven, as may be gathered by v. 22. and 26. And this sheweth that they went up from the court of the Gentiles to the court of the people, and likewise from thence to the Priests court by eight steps, v 31. 34. 37. and from the Priests court to the porch of the Temple by eight more, v. 49. So that whole masse of building did rise every way. The threshold] which was answerable to the breadth and thicknesse of the wall. Of the gate] namely, the first gate, which looked towards the Gentiles court.

V. 7. Little chamber] they were the Chambers belonging to the doore-keepers of the Temple, within side of the portall, which were at the end of the said gallery. Five Cubits] this space was taken up by the posts which bore up the vaults, under which the chambers were. And besides those five cubits of massie pillars there were the out jettings in the bases, and the cornices, which with the pillars made seven Cubits and a palme. The threshold] in the gate there were two wide spaces, and the gallery from the one to the other, in the porch of the first space comming from without, there were steps which were within side of that space of v. 9. In the other space towards the inward Court, there was a threshold a little raised from the ground, which was a reed in breadth, equall with the post threshold, v. 6. The porch] by the porch he meanes all the whole gate, with the pillars and the vault above, neere or under which vault was the threshold which the Angell measured.

V. 8. The Porch] namely the breadth of the pillars from East to West.

V. 9. Measured he] from the South to the North. The Porch] from one of the fronts opposite to the other. Now the fronts were the halfe columnes set to the whole columnes without the gate, and those whole columnes being of two Cubits of diameter; these halfe columnes were of one Cubit on the one side, and another Cubit on the other side: and these two Cubits joyned to the eight Cubits of this verse, make up the tenne Cubits of verse 11. The Porch] that Gallery or open Entry, which led to the gate of this Court, was not out of the building, but within it.

V. 10. The Posts] the Italian, The Fronts] by which are also meant the whole columnes, before which were these fronts or halfe columns.

V. 11. Ten] see upon v. 9. The length] that is to say, the height. Now because there is no proportion in thirteene Cubits of height, upon eight Cubits of breadth, these thirteene Cubits must be taken either from the Pedestall upward, or from the ground to the arch of the gate.

V. 12. The space] the Italian, the inclosure.] he seemes to meane the walls which inclosed the chambers before and behinde; for on the two sides the pillars of the vaults served for walls. One Cubit] namely, in thickneſſe. were six Cubits] that is to say, it was as long as it was broad. Now v. 7. it is said, that it was a reed long, and a reed broad: but in this description which is made but grossely, the palme, which the reed was more then six Cubits, may be left out and neglected.

V. 13. The Gate] namely, all that building a crosse, which contained the two rowes of Chambers with the entry betweene them. From the roofe] drawing a direct line from the cornice of the hindermost wall of the Chambers: which cornice going round about made as it were an outjetting of the roofe.

V. 14. Posts] the Italian, Pilasters] namely, measuring the whole height of the building which were about the Court, divided into three stories, whereof the lowermost was vaulted, the other two seeled, and distinguished or divided on the outside with rowes of pilasters, which jetted out of the wall. So he found therein threescore Cubits, the lower story being of thirty Cubits, the middle one of twenty, and the uppermost of tenne. Even unto] that is to say, the height was the same every where. The Gate] by the word gate here is meant, as well the gate it selfe, as also all those buildings of the Court, to which they went thorow that gate.

V. 15. The face] the whole body of the gate in length from the one face where they went in, to the other at which they went out into the Court.

V. 16. The little chambers] in the lower part of their walls. Their posts] the Italian, In their arches] namely, in the upper part of the wall, which filled the space of the arches from pillar to pillar. Within the] within side of the entry of the doore. Vpon each post] the Italian, Vpon the fronts] namely, upon the capitels of those halfe columnes which were set upon the whole columnes, and these palmes were instead of the enrichments of leaves and beares clawes which have beene used since.

V. 17. Outward Court] the peoples Court opposite to the inward Court, into which none went but the Priests. Now this Court was encompassed round with a portico, made with pilasters and arches below; over which there were two rowes of chambers, thirty in each row, of which see 1 Chron. 28. 11. 12, 13. A pavement] which was the floore of this portico wrought with Mosaick work. Thirty] eight towards the South, and eight towards the North, and ſeven on the Eaſt ſide, and ſeven on the Weſt: the reaſon of the difference is, becauſe that on the Eaſt and Weſt ſide were the gates, whoſe columnes were much thicker then the pilaſters of the other arches, and did take up the ſpace betweene the two columnes. Now the thickneſſe of the pilaſters was alſo the ſame in the other ſtories where the chambers were over the gate, even to the top. As well for the Symmetrie as for the ſoundneſſe of the building to beare up thoſe great ſquare Towers which were over thoſe gates.

V. 18. By the ſide] in breadth was fifty Cubits, as much as the length of the gates was, v. 15.

V. 19. The breadth] the Italian, A ſpace] which was the floore of the peoples Court. From the fore-front] the whole building was ſquare, and was divided into diverſe Courts, encompaſſed with porticoes; of which Courts there were ſeven for the people, which by the gates heretofore deſcribed, went all into the Prieſts Court, which is called the inner Court, as the reſt are called outward Courts; now they went up from one Court to the other by ſteps, ſo that the lower gate was that, by which they went into the peoples Court. The outward front of the inner Court was the front of the portico which encloſed the Prieſts Court, which front was towards the peoples Court; whereupon, in reſpect of the inner Court it was outward, as who ſhould ſay, the back part of this portico. Eaſtward] namely, from Eaſt to Weſt, and from South to North, the meaning is, that it was one hundred Cubits ſquare.

V. 20. Meaſured] after he had meaſured the gate, the court, and the portico, on the Eaſt ſide, he turned to the North ſide in all meaſures proportionable to the Eaſt ſide.

V. 21. The firſt gate] namely, the Eaſt gate, which was firſt meaſured.

V. 22. The arches] being gone up thoſe ſteps they went directly into the entry which had arches on both ſides, and in the middle ſpaces of them were the doore-keepers Chambers.

V. 23. Over againſt] the gates of the Prieſts court and the peoples court, were directly one againſt the other on that ſide, as well as on all the other ſides. From gate] from that gate which went into the peoples court, to that as went out of it, to go into the Prieſts Court, there was the plain of this peoples court, which was one hundred Cubits ſquare.

V. 26. The arches thereof,] ſee upon v. 22. One on this ſide] theſe fronts or halfe columnes had palms, upon their capitels in ſtead of leaves, and there was a branch of palme on each ſide, which caſt out its ſprigs or tops to make the volutes on both ſides.

V. 30. Long] that is to ſay, high. Broad] that is to ſay, thick.

V. 31. The arches thereof] the portico which was diſtinguiſhed with arches, was encloſed with an incloſure towards the Prieſts Court, and was open towards the peoples court. The uſe of this incloſure was to exclude the people out of that place which was forbidden them, that no man might go in there but at the gates: the height of this incloſure is not ſpecified; but it ſhould ſeem that it was ſuch that it did hinder the paſſage, but not the ſight of what was done there, eſpecially upon the Altar: And contrariwiſe, the Court of the people had a wall, which went betwixt them and the Gentiles Court, that they could not ſee any thing that was done in the Temple. See Ezek. 42. 20.

V. 37. The poſts thereof] the Italian, the fronts thereof] under which words are comprehended the pilaſters and arches, that is to ſay, the whole portico which was compoſed of them, as v. 31.

V. 38. By the poſts] the Italian, Betweene the pilaſters] within the Prieſts Court, neere unto, and by the ſide of the Southerne and Northerne gate: betweene the pilaſters were the ten baſons or lavers which Solomon made, five on the one ſide, and five on the other ſide, for to waſh the holocauſts, in 1 Kings 7. 39. 2 Chro. 4. 6.

V. 39. In the porch] the Italian, neer the porch] it is likely that theſe tables ſtood without in the open court. Of the gate] namely, the South gate.

V. 41. On this ſide] namely, on the South gate ſide. On that ſide] on the North gate ſide.

V. 42. The foure tables] which ſtood at each one of theſe doores.

V. 43. Hooks] which it ſhould ſeeme were driven into that ſtone incloſure which incloſed the Prieſts Court, v. 31. upon which they hanged the beaſts for the offerings whileſt they were flaying them, and their fleſh when they were cut to peeces. Was the fleſh] that part which was to be offered to God was preſently laid upon theſe tables, the other portions belonging to the Prieſts, or to the offerers, remained hanging upon the hookes, untill they were ſhared out.

V. 44. And without] being come forth of the porch which led into the Prieſts court. In the inner court] on the Eaſt ſide of the portico, which butted one way towards the North, and another way towards the South, and theſe chambers it ſeemes were upon the ſecond and third floore. At the ſide] at that ſide of the porch, where the Eaſt ſide met with the North ſide.

V. 45. This chamber] the Angell ſhewes the Prophet another chamber on the ſide of the ſame porch, where the Eaſt ſide met with the South ſide, being oppoſite to the former.

V. 46. And the chambers] whereof was ſpoken, verſe 44.

V. 47. The court] namely, the Prieſts court. The Altar] of burnt offerings deſcribed, Ezek 43. Before the houſe] namely, the body or baſilick of the Church conſiſting of the portico, the holy and moſt holy place.

V. 48. To the porch] which ſtood in the fore-front of the Temple, 1 Kings 6.3. Of the porch] namely, of the gates thereof. Five cubits] in the broadeſt place within ſide of the gate. Of the gate] namely, of the poſts thereof in the outward front.

V. 49. The length] correſpondent to the breadth of the Temple, before which this porch was. By the ſteps] the Italian, Beſides the ſpace of the ſteps whereby they went up to it] that is to ſay, not comprehending within this breadth the ſpace which the ſteps took up, they being on the outſide of the portico. Pillars] made by Solomon, 1 Kings 7.21. 2 Chro. 3.15.

CHAP. XLI.

Verſe 1. TO the Temple] namely, the fore-part of the body or baſilick of the Temple, correſpondent to the ancient Tabernacle, Exod. 26.33. The breadth] from Eaſt to Weſt, according to the thickneſſe of the wall. The Tabernacle] it ſeemes we muſt take this for the upper threſhold or upper part of the doore which was ſquare.

V. 2. The breadth] namely, the breadth of the doore way. The ſides] the Italian, The ſhoulders] namely, thoſe two parts of wall which were of each ſide of the doore, from the doore to the ſides of the houſe.

V. 3. He inward] the Italian addeth, into the inner part] namely, into the moſt holy place or Oracle, Exod. 26.33. 1 King. 6.19. which was in the very bottome or end of the Temple, towards the Weſt, two cubites] namely, in breadth, according to the thickneſſe of the wall, which divided the holy place from the moſt holy: The doore] namely, the breadth of the doore way, or entry of the doore. The breadth of the] the Italian, and beſides the breadth of the doore were ſeven cubites] that is to ſay, upon each ſide of the doore, to the ſides of the houſe were ſeven cubites, which makes fourteen on both the ſides, which joyned to the ſix of the doore way, make the twenty cubites of the breadth of the Temple.

V. 4. Before the Temple] namely, the holy place.

V. 5. The wall] which wall, according to the manner of high buildings, was garniſhed with counterforts, or ſpurres to ſtrengthen it. Six cubites] namely, in thickneſſe.

V. 6. Thirty in order] each counterfort did jet outwards, ſixteen foot and a halfe: wherefore the two which were one againſt the other, did jet out two and thirty foot. They entred] between each counterfort, there were certaine chambers, and the beames of theſe chamber-floores were laid upon certaine in-lets made upon the ſides of the counterforts, and then all theſe ſpaces, together with the counterforts were incloſed, with a wall on the outſide, which wall was garniſhed with pilaſters, anſwerable to the counterforts, ſo that the length of the counterfort, ſerved for a wall to the chambers, which chambers were to lay up the veſſels of the holy treaſures, 1 Chron. 28.12. Nehem. 13. 4,5.

V. 7. An enlarging] namely, a void ſpace left within thoſe counterforts, for a ſtaire-caſe made ſnaile-faſhion, whereby they went up to theſe three ſtories of chambers, which were between the two counterforts, in each of which there was a doore to goe from one chamber to the other, v. 11. To the ſide-chambers] namely, in two of the counterforts, which were at the head of the Temple towards the gate, whereof one was on the South-ſide, and the other on the North-ſide.

V. 8. The foundations] namely, thoſe in-lets or menſolas upon which the beames of the chamber-floores were laid, were ſix and ſix cubites one from the other, drawing upwards, great cubites] that is to ſay, not common or naturall cubites, but as one ſhould ſay, Geometricall cubites. See 2 Chron. 3.3.

V. 9. The thickneſſe] namely, the thickneſſe of the wals, which incloſed all theſe chambers, and the counterforts. And that which] namely, the ſpace likewiſe which was between the counterforts, which was left for the chambers, was of five cubites, from the outſide of the Temple to the wall of the chambers, v. 11.

V. 10. Between theſe chambers] namely, between theſe chambers which were joyned to the body of the Temple, and the chambers which were right over againſt them, over the porticoes round about the courts, there was a void ſpace.

V. 11. The doores of] the counterforts of each ſide, namely, of the North and South ſide (under which is alſo comprehended the Eaſt ſide) had doores made in them to goe from the ſtaire-caſe into the chambers, and from one chamber to the other, and the breadth] namely, from the wall of the Temple, to the wall which incloſed the counterforts.

V. 12. The building] namely, this whole circuit of chambers and counterforts. In the end towards] the Italian, on both ſides towards] namely, from the North and South ſide, which by a direct line looked full Weſtward, was ſeventy] whereof ſixty were the length of the body of the Temple, five the length of the chambers and counterforts, and five the thickneſſe of the wall which incloſed them on the outſide. Broad] he cals the length ſo, compared with the height, which was of ninety cubites. The length] that is to ſay, the height.

V.13. The houſe] that is to ſay, comprehending all the parts and additions thereunto together, as the Portico, and the chambers, the dimenſions whereof from Eaſt to Weſt, being all put together, made up juſt one hundred cubites.

V.14. Of the ſeparate] It was a ſpace correſpondent in breadth to the other which was ſpoken of, v.10. an hundred cubites] namely, in length from North to South.

V.15. Of the building] namely, of thoſe porticoes made with pilaſters and arches, wherewith the inward court was incompaſſed. Over againſt] namely, the place of twenty cubites, v.10. which was in the middle, which was behind it] namely, towards the Weſt, on the one ſide, and the] namely, towards the North and South, an hundred cubites, equall with the place, v.14. The inner Temple] namely, which was in the middle of that court which was incompaſſed with pilaſters and arches.

V.16. The doore-poſtes] he ſeemes to meane the upper parts of the windowes. On their three ſtories] For on the Eaſt ſide there was portall, but only a plaine incloſure of ſtone, which did ſeparate the Prieſts court from the Temple floore, over againſt the] He ſeemes to meane the chambers which were between the counterforts, ſeeled with] namely, their ſeelings were made of Cedar wood, and not vaulted with ſtone. From the ground] it ſeemes to be the flat roofe of theſe chambers which were about the Temple. To the windowes] namely, of the body of the Church, covered] namely, there was a kinde of an out-jetting in the Temple-wall juſt over the windowes.

V.17. Above the doore] the meaning is; this order was obſerved over the gate of the Temple, which was of the ſame height, as the three ſtories of chambers round about were. Now by theſe words of the Text, is meant the Eaſt ſide. Even unto] namely, the whole Southerne and Northerne length. The inner] he ſeemes to meane that this ſymmetrie of the windowes, was obſerved within ſide, as well as without ſide of the Temple.

V.18. It was made] namely, upon the wals within ſide of the Temple. With Cherubims] the wals of the Temple were covered over with Cedar boords, 1 King.6.18. and over them was woodden carved worke guilded, 1 King.6.20.

V.20. Above the doore] which was the place for the windowes, v.17.

V.21. The Poſtes] that is to ſay, the forme and ſtructure of the gate was made ſquare, and not vaulted. The face of the] namely, the doore of the ſanctuary, had the ſame forme, order, and ornaments, as the Temple gate had, only there was ſome difference in the dimenſions, 1 King.6.31,33.

V.22. The Altar] namely, of perfumes, which was within the Temple. Of wood] as Exod.30.1. 1 King.6.20. covered over with plates of gold, 1 King.7.48. The corners] theſe were the ſquare woodden poſts, on which the boords were faſtened, wherewith the Altar was made. The length] Heb. ſuperficies: it ſeemes to be the upper part or covering of this Altar, Exod.30.3. and 37.26. in the midſt of which there was a little grate, or ſome ſuch other veſſell to hold the fire over which the perfumes were made. Others underſtand it to be the upper part, and the bottome.

V.25. Thicke plankes] namely, the heads of the beames of the portico, which was before the Temple, did jet out in the void ſpace of the freeze, above the architrane, wrought in trigliphes, or modiglions, and menſolas, according to the ancient manner of architecture. In following ages the ſame forme hath been obſerved, but all hath been made of ſtone.

V.26. On the ſides of] namely, in the capitels of the pilaſters, and of the fronts of this portall. Thick plankes] namely, the heads of thoſe beames which did jet out in the freeze, were wrought with the ſame palme worke as the capitels were, which worke was in ſtead of the foliadges which in after times were uſed for that purpoſe.

CHAP. XLII.

Ver.1. THe utter court] From the inner court, where the Baſilicke or body of the Temple was, he brought me to the portico, which encompaſſed the outward court on the North ſide. The chamber] the Italian, the chambers] into that long file or row of pilaſters and arches, over which there was a continued building of chambers in two rowes, and on the Eaſt ſide of this file there was a ſquare tower which ſerved for a ſtaire to go up to theſe chambers, which ſtaires were immediately oppoſite to the body or baſilicke of the Temple. The building] namely, that addition of chambers between one counterfort and the other. See Ezek.41.12.

V.2. Before the] he repreſents the foure ſides or fronts of the tower: whereof the firſt looked from Eaſt to Weſt, towards the length of the portico of a hundred cubites, equall to the length of the court, Ezek.40.19,47. The other was towards the breadth of the ſaid Portico, which was of fifty cubites, Ezek.40.21. The North doore] namely, on the ſide of this doore, to which all the other doores were equall in all dimenſions.

V.3. Over against] this is the third ſide of the Eaſt tower, ſtanding towards the void ſpace of twenty cubites, called here the inner court, whereof is ſpoken, Ezek. 41.10. The pavement] this is the fourth ſide of the tower, where it ſhould alſo ſeeme the doore was at the end of the pavement, upon the plaine of the ground of the porticoes. See Ezek. 40. 17. In three] this tower ſtood on a ſide where three of theſe porticoes did meet; the Eaſt, the Weſt, and the North.

V.4. Before the] when you were gone up the ſtaires of that tower, you came to the chambers, borne up by the porticoes underneath, and thoſe chambers ere divided into two orders or rowes, one towards the inner court, and the other towards the outward court, with an entry between, into which came theſe chamber doores. Inward] the meaning is, upon the wals of theſe chambers, which were one againſt the other, of each ſide of the entry, there were pilaſters like to them in the portico underneath, jetting out one cubite without the wall, ſo that from wall to wall there were twelve cubites, and from plaiſter to plaiſter ten cubites. Their doores] namely, of theſe which ſtood to the Temple ward for the doores of the oppoſite file ſtood towards the South.

V.5. Were ſhorter] the ſeeling of the uppermoſt chambers was not ſo high as the ſeeling of the lowermoſt, and theſe were alſo lower then the vaults below. For the galleries, the Italian. For the pilaſters] that is to ſay, the pilaſters and halfe columnes which were ſet to the outſide of theſe chamber wals, were of a leſſer proportion, and not ſo maſſy as thoſe beneath; wherefore, according to reaſon they ought not to be ſo high.

V.6. For they were in three] counting the portico which was made with pilaſters and arches for one. But had not] namely, the two upper rowes or ſtories were not made up with vaults, borne up with maſſy pilaſters, as the lowermoſt row which ſtood upon the plaine of the court, but with a continued wall divided with little pilaſters, or halfe columnes, which from ſtory to ſtore were leſſened according to the rules of architecture, and they being leſſened in that kind, reaſon would have the height alſo to be abated.

V.7. The wall] the Italian, the cloſure] namely, the wall at which ended the Northerne file or row of theſe chambers; for there was no wall a croſſe of theſe rowes, but only at the Temple gate. That was without] at the head of thoſe rowes of chambers, to make a difference between them and the inward wals. The chambers] of that entry, and that whole body of building, fifty cubites] counting the void place of the entry, and the wals, and the pilaſters, which was the breadth of the porticoes alſo.

V.8. The length] that is to ſay, the extent in breadth, and not in length of this body of building, v.2. from one of the chambers oppoſite to the other. That were] ſo it ſeemes were diſtinguiſhed the chambers of the porticoes, with which the courts were encompaſſed, from theſe chambers, which joyned to the body of the Temple, Ezek. 41. 9. And lo!] the Angell and the Prophet comming downe from the Northerne tower, to goe to the Southerne tower, which was oppoſite to it, by the way found this place of a hundred cubites in length, and twenty in breadth, which was before the Temple, Ezek. 41.14.

V.9. Under] being come to the Southerne portico they found the tower with ſtaires, every way like to the oppoſite Northerne tower, the comming in of which below was towards the Eaſt. Theſe chambers] namely, this Southerne body of building, where there were chambers like to the former chambers. As one goeth] by theſe words he ſeemes to ſignifie, that there were in other places alſo other towers and ſtaires to goe up into theſe chambers. From the] namely, along the portico which incompaſſed this court.

V.10. In the thickneſſe of the wall] the Italian, in the breadth of the precinct of the court] namely, in that ſpace of fifty cubites of breadth, v.2. where the porticoes were that encompaſſed the inward court. Toward the Eaſt] along the Southerne ſide, drawing towards the Eaſt by a direct line over againſt the Temple, and the chambers joyning to it, there was ſuch an other building of chambers as on the foreſaid Northerne ſide. The building] See Ezek. 41.12.

V.11. The way] the Italian, an entry, or gallery] See v.4.

V.12. Toward the South] the ſame ought to be underſtood of the Northerne ones. Before the wall] the Italian, the cloſure of the parapet] the Hebrew word is of a very doubtfull and obſcure ſignification: it may ſignifie ſtraight, and it ſeemes this cloſure was made like to ſome leaning place where one ſtood upright.

V.13. That approach] that come neare to the ſanctuary where God dwelt in the ſignes of his grace and vertue, whiles the people ſtood further off.

V.14. Enter therein] the Italian, enter into the holy place] into the Prieſts court where the Altar was, and much more in the inner court where the Temple was. Not goe out] clothed in their ſacred garments, in which they have done their ſervice. But there] in the aforeſaid chambers.

V.15. The inner houſe] namely, the Temple porticoes, and all the buildings that were incloſed within the outward compaſſe of the wall, meaſured hereafter and deſcribed, Ezek. 40.5.

V.16. The East side] the meaning is not, that there were five hundred reeds of every side; but that on which side soever they did begin, they found the same measure in the whole circuit: which seemes to shew, that the building being of like proportion on all sides, every side being of one hundred and five and twenty reeds: of which side soever a man stood, it appeared that the whole circuit was five hundred.

V.20. He measured it] the Italian, he measured the house] namely, the inner square, in which the porticoes, courts and Temple were, within which compasse the Israelites only might come, which were purified according to the Law, and without that, to the other inclosure and compasse of five hundred reeds: the Gentiles and all were admitted; and therefore it is called the Gentiles court, Rev.11.2. A wall] which encompassed the said whole square. See upon Ezek.40 31. Between the] namely, that part of the Temple which was appointed for Gods people, from the other which was common to strangers and heathens.

CHAP. XLIII.

Ver.1. THe gate] namely, the chiefe gate, which by a direct line looked towards the Temple and sanctuary. See Ezek.44.2,3.

V.3. when I came] namely, in a vision, Ezek.8.3. To destroy] when I assisted in spirit to the destruction of it, and for to denounce it, and give notice of it to the people, Ezek.9. and 10.

V.6. The man] as soone as ever I had heard the voice, presently the man which did utter it, appeared close by me, which was the Sonne of God, as it plainly appeareth by the words following.

V.7. The place] this is the figure of the spirituall Temple of my Church, with which I will remaine perpetually, being served by her in spirit and truth, whoredome] their idolatry. The carkasses] Idols are so called by way of detestation, Lev.26.30. Jer.16.18. Of their Kings] for the publicke idolatry was established, and authorised by their Kings. See 1 King.12.28. 2 King.16.10. and 21.4.

V.8. Their threshold] that is to say, they set their idols, and performe their service in my Temple, in places and Chappels neare to the places which are consecrated to my service. See 2 King. 16.14. and 21.7. Jer.11 15. Ezek.8.3. and 23.39. and 44.7.

V.9. Now let them] namely, all the true elect, and especially the Jewes, which shall be converted under the Gospell, shall serve God in all purity.

V.10. That they may be] That they may be truly converted to be my spirituall Temple.

V.12. Most holy] Dedicated in a most especiall manner, to God and to his service, to make it different from those places which were employed to mens uses, for otherwise this place had also its distinction between the sacred and prophane place, Ezek.42.20.

V.13. Of the Altar] Of burnt offerings, which was in the Priests court, of which the Prophet in vision did see the forme and dimensions. The bottome] by this word is meant a little channell halfe round, which encompassed the foot of the Altar round every where, and into that they spilt the blood of the sacrifices, which was carried away and cleansed by certaine pipes under ground, by which, water did runne out into the said channell by certaine spouts. A cubite] In height. The border] It was a kind of little border, made about the said channell. A spanne] In height, according to others in breadth, or both. This shall be] namely, This space, which is encompassed with this chanell.

V.14. The lower settle] It was a cornice or hemme, which jetted out beyond the body of the Altar, like a basis about it. Two] namely, in height. One cubit] Outward. From the lesser] Not for the breadth of the jetting out of the settles, which shall be the same in both, namely, of a cubit; but for the height, the lowermost settle being but two cubits high, and the uppermost settle foure.

V.15. The Altar] the Italian, The Hareel] This word signifieth the Will of God, and by it is meant the upper part of the Altar, after the second out-jetting settle. The cause of this name is dubious, peradventure, it was to shew, that was the onely place for sacrifices to be lawfully offered in, and not upon hills, and other places of Idolatrie. Foure] namely, in height. From the Altar] the Italian, From the Ariel] it seemes to be the same as Hareel before. See concerning this name upon, Isa.29 1. Hornes] See upon, Exod.27.2.

V.17. The settle] the Italian, The out-jetting] namely, the body of the Altar, with its uppermost out-jetting of a cubit round about, v. 15. Now you must suppose, that from the first lower out-jetting, the body of the Altar, lessened by a cubit on every side; so that if in the second out-jetting it was foureteen cubits, in the first it was sixteen; and so with the body of the Altar, the border, and a little addition at the foot of it, are found the twenty cubits of length and breadth, 2 Chron.4.1. The border] Or crowne or cornice, which encompassed the upper part of the Altar, meant by that name of second settle, or out-jetting. Halfe a] In breadth, The bottome] see v 13. His staires] See upon Exod.20.26. Towards the East]

Eate] To the end, that the Priest which did the service, might have his face turned towards the West, where the Sanctuarie was, for the contrary done by Idolaters, Ezek. 8. 16.

V. 12. The ordinances] namely, The modell, with all its measures and figures.

V. 29. Thou shalt give] As representing, in the restauration of Gods service, the person of Moses, who was the institutor of it; as Lev. 8. 13. 14. Now all this ought to be understood spiritually; being figuratively spoken. That is his] See 1 King. 2. 35. Ezek. 44. 15.

V. 30. Purge it] See Exod. 29. 36. Lev. 8. 14. 15.

V. 31. In the opposed] During the voyage in the wildernesse, the carkasses of these sacrifices, after the blood to them was spilt; and the fat offered, were burnt without the camp, Exod. 29. 14. Lev. 4. 21. After the Temple was built, it seemes, that it was done in some place within the great inclosure of it: which place, notwithstanding is not specified any where. Without the] namely, in some corner of the Gentiles court. See Ezek. 42. 20.

CHAP. XLIV.

Vers. 1. HE brought me] After he had brought mee through this gate into the inward court, Ezek. 43. 5. He made mee goe backe through the Easterne porch, whose outward gate went into the court of the people. Of the outward Sanctuary] namely, by which they went out of the Priests court into the peoples court; Others, by the holy place do understand the whole circuit of the court of Gods people, separated from that of the Gentiles, Ezek. 42. 20. and so this gate should be the first without all the Temple.

V. 2. The Lord] namely, The Angell which spake to mee, which was the everlasting Sonne of God. This gate] To signifie, that onely the Sonne of God hath directly presented himselfe before God his father, by vertue of his owne merit, and righteousnesse, whereas men come; but as it were by collaterall and side doores: which were all towards the Altar, by vertue of the mediator, and through the benefit of his death, which is imputed to them by grace.

V. 3. For the Prince] namely, The chiefe Priest or the King, whereby we must meane Christ, who hath both the offices. To eate] If this be referred to the high Priest, it must be understood of the meats made of the sacred flesh, Exod. 29. 32. Lev. 8. 31. and 24. 9. If to the King; it must be understood of the sacred feasts upon solemne festivall dayes, Deut. 16. 11, 14. A figure of the fruition of glory which the Sonne of God hath in heaven through his sufferances. See Isa. 53. 12.

V. 5. The Ordinances] namely, The modell with all its dimensions & formes as I appoint thee.

V. 6. Let it suffice you] Yee have sinned enough: continue no longer therein, Ezek. 45. 9. 1 Pet. 4. 3.

V. 7. To be in my] To practice their Idolatries there. See 2 Kings 21. 3. 5. 7. 2 Chron. 34. 5. My bread] My sacrifices, and especially the blood and the fat thereof; the use of which, was forbidden to men. See Lev. 3. 11. 16. 17. and 21. 8. And they have] the Italian, While they have] that is to say, At the same time, and in the same place you have done my outward service: and have likewise so practised your Idolatries by these strange Ministers, Ezek. 20. 39. and 43. 8.

V. 8. Your selves] Transgressing Gods Commandement concerning the vocation and calling of Aarons posteritie onely to be the sacred Ministers; who it is likely would not alwayes yeeld to the wills of their Idolatrous Kings and people. Whereupon they were degraded, and others put in their places, See 2 Chron. 31. 2.

V. 10. That are] See 2 Chron. 29. 4. 5.

V. 11. They shall] This is by figure taken from the example of Josias, 2 King. 23. 9. The meaning is, from Priests they shall be degraded to be plaine Levites, serving the Priests and the people, in the meanest offices belonging to Levites, of which; see 1 Chron. 23. 28, 29. Whereby is meant the sanctification and re-establishment of all the Ministery of the Church. Ministers unto them] See 2 Chron. 35. 5, 13.

V. 12. Caused the house] They have beene the occasion of it, and an inducement thereunto, by meanes of their Idolatrie. Lift up] that is to say, I have sworne.

V. 13. Holy things] See Lev. 2. 3. and 21. 22.

V. 14. Keepers] Which was one of the meanest Offices.

V. 15. The sonnes of] See 1 Chron. 29. 22. Ezek. 43. 19.

V. 16. My table] namely, The Altar, Ezek. 41. 22. Mal. 1. 7. 12.

V. 17. Whilst they minister] Especially in the act of sacrificing, in which the blood would sparkle upon their cloaths; for which cause they were forced to wash and whiten them often. For the other Priestly garments, which were died of divers colours, were no question woollen. And within] namely, Within the Temple.

V. 18. With any thing that] the Italian hath it, In the sweating places] namely, Under the armepits, and under the flanks or sides; but about the middle of the body. This belongeth to the ceremoniall puritie, a figure of the spirituall.

V. 19. Shall not sanctifie] All that touched any holy thing was consecrated, Exod. 29. 37. and 30. 29. Whereupon, if any of the people had touched these garments, he had been as it were gotten to God, and could not have returned to an ordinary course of life. And not being of the tribe of Levi; he could not have been imployed in Gods service: whereupon would have growne a grievous confusion. See Ezek. 46. 20.

V. 22. That hath had] which might fall out in two cases: namely, when the Priesthood did not passe from father to sonne, but did fall into a collaterall line. And when one brother, a High Priest being dead without children; his brother succeeded him, with a right to marry his widow, for to raise posterity to him. Deut. 25. 5.

V. 28. I am their] that is to say, instead of inheritance, I have appointed mine offerings to them, and other rites, which I draw from my people, for a reward of the service which they do me. Num. 18. 20.

CHAP. XLV.

Verse 1. When ye shall] by this new division of the countrey, quite different from the ancient division which was made in Iosuas time; is figured the reformation of the spirituall state of the Church under the Messias. Ye shall offer] that is to say, dedicate and consecrate. And within this compasse is comprehended the whole ground of the City, within which the Temple stood.

V. 2. For the Sanctuary] that is to say, for the Temple and all the fabricks belonging to it: the Gentiles court excepted. See Ezek 42. 20. And peradventure that also is comprehended in it. The Suburbs] the Italian, the appurtenances] it may be that space of ground which is called Parbar, 1 Chro. 26. 18. Or Parvarim, 2 Kings. 23. 11.

V. 4. Shall be] namely, the overplus of this ground after the five hundred cubits are imployed in the building of the Temple. For their houses] with the additions belonging to them; as Gardens, Orchards, and other commodities. As Num 35. 2.

V. 5. Twenty] namely, in the porticoes of the Temple. Now by chambers we must understand the chambers of the higher and lower floore: and the forepart and the hinder part of the porticoes, whereby these twenty chambers in effect came to be foure score. See Ezek. 40. 17. Otherwise, in twenty chambers there would not have been room for so many ordinary ministers belonging to the Temple.

V. 6. The possession] namely, for the territory of it; in which all the Israelites may indifferently have part, according as occasion shall serve.

V. 8. His possession] his proper inheritance wherewith he shall maintaine himselfe without burthening of my people with exactions. So is the righteousnesse of Christs kingdome represented. Psal. 72. 2, 4, 14. Isay 11. 3, 4. & 42. 1. 2, 3.

V. 10. Ephah] a measure of drie things, and bath of wet things.

V. 12. Twenty shekels] that is to say, of sixty shekels in the whole. But the distribution seemeth to import; that there were coines of every one of those severall values.

V. 14. The cor] which is the same measure as the Homer.

V. 15. Out of the fat] namely, out of the watered and most fruitfull pastures. So he seemes to intimate that according to the proportion of the lesser goodnesse of pastures, the offering was also to be diminished. Meat offering] namely, to furnish the ordinary and daily offerings: for the Prince was to furnish them upon festivall dayes, verse 17.

V. 16. The Prince] who shall levie it by his soveraigne authority, and shall distribute it to the use of the Sacrifices.

V. 17. To give] out of his owne proper goods.

V. 20. Everyone that] namely, to purifie the Temple, if by chance it were polluted unawares, or by some frantick person.

V. 25. The feast] namely, of the Tabernacles, Levit. 23. 34. Num. 29. 12. Deut. 16. 13.

CHAP. XLVI.

Verse 3. At the doore] on the out side of it.

V. 7. According as] as he shall please: Or, as it shall happen. See Numbers 6. 21.

V. 11. As he is able] the Italian, as much as the Prince shall be willing to give] for, it belonged to him to furnish offerings for the feast dayes.

V. 13. Every morning] by this continuall morning Sacrifice, must also be understood the evening Sacrifice. Exod. 29. 38.

V. 17. Of liberty] namely, the yeere of Jubilee, See Lev. 25. 10.

V. 19. Through the entry] by the doore which by the Northerne Porch (at which the Prophet was come in) did leade to the porticoes where the Priests chambers were, Ezek. 42. 13. A place] an inclosed place appointed for Kitchins, where they dressed the most holy flesh which was for the Priests, and those parts of the offerings wherewith the people made their sacred feasts. Westward] the Italian, at the west end] in the furthermost part from the gate in the court floore.

V. 20. The passe offering] namely, for the people: the flesh of which sacrifice was to belong to the the Priests, after they had spilt the blood and burnt the fat. See Num. 18. 9. The utter court] hereby must be meant the Gentiles court, which was not inclosed within those great porticoes: and therefore is not the same as is mentioned in the following verse. Profanities] See upon Ezek. 44. 19.

V. 21. The utter court] there were about the Temple seven floores incompassed with porticoes: and they were called utter Courts, or the peoples court, to make a difference betweene them and the inner court, which was the Priests court. Here it should seeme is meant the Northwest floore. There was a court] namely, another little floore encompassed with walls and vaults; so that all the roome of that great utter court was taken up, save only a little turning for a way.

V. 24. The ministers] this was one of the meanest offices of the Levites, who were employed in none but manuall and laborious services. See 1 Chro. 23. 29. Of the people] namely, those Sacrifices whereof those of the people which shall offer them, may and ought to eat their shares in the Temple. See Lev. 7. 15. Deut. 12. 18.

CHAP. XLVII.

Verse 1. Waters] there were many conduits under ground in Solomons Temple, by which the water was brought for the use of so many sacrifices and other services. And amongst the rest there were some which came out by the Altar, to wash away the blood that was spilt: and so did runne out of the Temple againe. To the resemblance of which; here are also represented spirituall waters: namely, the abundance of grace, and of the gifts of the holy Ghost, which have beene powred out upon the world by Christs death, Ioel 3. 18. Zach. 13. 1. & 14. 8. Rev. 22. 1. The right side] that is to say, the South side.

V. 3. The man] namely, the Son of God, who appeared to the Prophet in humane shape. To the ancles] this signifies the progresse & increases of Gods grace in the world, and in every particular beleever, out of small beginnings. See Mat. 13. 31, 32.

V. 7. Trees] whereby is showne the spirituall fruitfulnesse of holy workes, which Gods grace bringeth forth in beleevers, who are as it were the trees thereof, Iob 8. 16, Psal. 1. 3. Ier. 17. 8.

V. 8. Into the Desert] the Italian, the plaine] in which was the lake of Sodome, therefore called the sea of the plain. Deut. 3. 17. & 4. 49. Ioth. 3. 16. Waters] pure, cleare, sweet, and having all other qualities of good waters; instead of the bituminous and sulpherous matter whereof that lake is full: whereby humane nature depraved by sin, is represented, and changed by Gods grace in the Gospell.

V. 9. Which moveth] the Italian, creepeth] as fishes and other water creatures of which none can live, in that Sodome, or dead sea. The rivers, the Italian, those two torrents] it should seeme these waters divided themselves into two branches: whereof, the one did runne Eastward, and the other Westward, as Zach. 14. 8. but there is no mention made only of that which did runne into the Sea of Sodome Eastward, by reason of the notable effect it wrought in this bituminous sea.

V. 10. The fishers,] a figurative description of Gods infinite vivifying grace in Christ. Engedi] this name and that which followeth are names of places neere to the said sea of Sodome. The great sea] namely, the Mediterranean sea.

V. 11. The miry places] hereby is meant, that the Gospell; though it be largely spread over the world; yet it shall leave their naturall malice uncorrected and unamended in the reprobates: for this grace is not universall nor common to all.

V. 12. Because their waters] these admirable effects shall be produced: because the Gospell shall be accompanied with a celestiall power of Gods Spirit. Shall be meat] this may signifie the double use of beleevers good works: the one to the glory of God, and advancement of their own salvation; the other, to the edification and correction of their neighbours.

V. 13. Ioseph] whose posterity was divided into two Tribes; Ephraim and Manasseh. See Genesis 48. 5. 1 Chro 5. 1.

V. 15. The great sea] namely, the Mediterranean sea, in regard of the little seas or lakes of Palestine. Now, these bounds or borders do signifie, that Christs kingdome shall have its perfect being within it selfe, and shall be severed from the world.

V. 17. The border of Hamath] namely, the uttermost part of the Northerne line; which from Hamath shall turne Eastward.

V. 18. From the border] namely, Hamath, where, as it were in an angle shall meet the North and the East side. The East sea] namely, the sea of Sodome. Ioel 2. 20. Zach. 14. 8.

V. 19. The River,] namely, Sihor, called the river of Egypt. Num. 34. 5. Josh. 15. 47, 1 Chron. 13. 5.

V. 20. From the border] from the end of the foresaid Northerne line; unto that place where the land of Hamath butts upon the Mediterranean sea towards the North.

V. 22. The strangers] a figure of the calling and ingrafting of the Gentiles into the Church.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Verse 1. Hamath] the meaning seemes to be, there shall be a line drawing from the Mediterranean sea, along by the way of Hethlon to Hamath, and from thence to Hazar-enan: which on the one side borders upon the land of Hamath; and on the other side upon the countrey of Damascus. For Dan] these divisions are quite differing from the ancient divisions which Iosua made: and by these seems to be shewen the equall right which Gods children shall have in his Church, and in his spirituall goods.

V. 9. The oblation] the Italian, The part] This consecrated part which was five and twenty thousand cubits in length: and as many in breadth; was divided into three parts: ten thousand of those cubits in breadth, was for the Priests; and there, was the Temple: other ten thousand cubits were for the Levites, v. 23. The other five thousand were for the city of Jerusalem: and there being a great deale of space yet left Eastward and Westward; besides these five and twenty thousand cubits, that was for the publique officers, and for the Prince, v. 18. 21.

V. 12. Most holy] Belonging onely to the Priests, who were to enjoy it in the presence of God; in the exercise of their Function in the Temple, as they did the most holy parts of the offerings, Lev. 2. 3.

V. 14. The first fruits] This part was consecrated to God, as the first fruits of the earth were.

V. 16. The measures] This representation is altogether figurative and mysticall: representing the perfect constitution and ordering of the body and state of the Church, as Rev. 21. 16.

V. 18. That serve] All those which doe the publike service in the meanest kindes of secular callings.

V. 28. To the river] Called Sihor, or the river of Egypt, the Southerne confine of Palestine.

V. 35. The name] Gods presence in his Word, grace, spirit and vertue, shall give the Church its true being: wherefore, for to give the Church its true name, we must say, That it is the assembly in which God is present in the aforesaid manner. See Isa. 26. 4. Jer. 33. 16.

The Booke of the Prophet DANIEL.

ARGUMENT.

THough Daniel did never exercise the publique Calling nor Function of a Prophet, in the qualitie of an Ecclesiasticall person, to preach to the people, and expound inspired assemblies, the revelations which were sent him by God; yet his booke hath always beene inserted amongst the number of the other Prophets, as containing most speciall and admirable predictions of the state of the world and Church, from his time, until Christs comming in the flesh: gathered by himselfe, and published in this Booke. Wherein we may observe two generall parts; the one Historicall, and the other Prophetical. In the first he sets downe, what notable things happened concerning his owne person, and his course of life: to make himselfe to be acknowledged a Prophet authorised by God; relating how that in his youth he was carried away captive to Babylon, and was with others of the same Nation, age and condition, chosen to be instructed, and consequently employed in honourable employments in that Empire. But that God having taken charge into his particular care and charge, did preserve these humane instructions, by an infusion of divine gifts and graces. First, in a time of sanctification, weale, and singular piety, tried by cruell torments inflicted upon Daniels three companions in their youth; and upon Daniel himselfe in his old age: and besides, in several kinds of standing and wisdome; wherein Daniel was remarkable, and spoken of, as it were, by a common Proverb: whereupon they were promoted to eminent dignities, to the great ease and sustenance of the Church in her captivitie and sufferings in Babylon. And as the last in the time of Prophecie in Daniel: which manifested it selfe first, in giving Nebuchad-manner in mind of his dreame which he had forgotten, and interpretting of them: and afterwards to the universall prediction of the evils which did hang over the head of Belshazzar his grandchilde. But it did so follow, as is to be considered before, for the ground-part of all Books concerning the future great Monarchies of the world until the comming of Christ: and especially, touching Seleucides King of Syria, and other successors of Alexander, under whom the Jewish Church should suffer most grievous and mournefull accidents, and especially under Antiochus Epiphanes the most cruell, subtill, and pestilent persecuter that ever the Church had: his principall scope and end being to root out Gods worship in it, together with all impression and notion of piety in mens hearts. Under the figure of whom are also foretold the persecutions of Rome, whilst it was heathen: and also of Antichrist, the last deadly enemie of the Christian Church: as Antiochus had borne of the Jewish Church, against whose outrages the Prophet comforteth and strengtheneth the Church by the promise of Gods help and deliverance in his appointed time; lifting their hearts notwithstanding up for a soveraigne comfort to Gods promise of everlasting salvation by Christ, who being established by the father, to be the everlasting King of the world; should from time to time come to take upon those Empires, and should at the last lay the foundation of his owne spirituall and everlasting Empire, upon the redemption purchased by his death. (the prefixed time whereof is more clearely shewen to him, then to any other Prophet) through which all ancient ceremonies being accomplished in their signification, the use of them should also be abolished, preaching the service of God in spirit and truth: foretelling also that Christs Kingdome should be exercised, in justly punishing the Jewish Nation for their incredulity and rebellion. So it pleased Gods unsearchable counsell, glorious reformation and everlasting happinesse for all true believers.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1, 2. Heathen] Comming from the time as he lived, as a vassall to the King of Babylon, 2 Kings 24. 1. having before raigned seven yeeres as a vassall to Egypt, 2 Kings 23. 34. Now these three yeeres must be understood compleat, because it hath beene said that it happened the fourth yeere of his raigne, Jer. 25. 1. and 46. 2.

V. 2. Of Shinar] namely, of Chaldea, or Mesopotamia, where Babylon was, Gen. 11. 2.

V. 4. To stand] To be Pages of honour, according to the prophecie, Isa. 39. 7. and to be from time to time advanced to the offices of the court. They might teach] as Acts 7. 22.

V. 3. The Prince] By the Kings command, Dan. 5. 12. To shew his absolute power over them, as over slaves: and to honour his Chaldean Idols, whereof the chiefe were Bel, or Belt, Sac, Kac, and Nego; and also to extinguish in them the memory of their parentage, countrey and Religion: together with the knowledge of the true God; whose names they bore: El and Ja. Now in Belthazzar; it should seeme that Belt is the femall name of the Goddesse; answerable to the masculine Bel: but others doe judge otherwise. Melzar] Followed herein, as it appeares by his three companions. Defile himselfe] Either because there might be amongst that food some flesh, which was by the law unclean: or that had been consecrated to Idols; or, because he fetered he should endamage, and corrupt his pleasure and purine, through the pleasures of the court, and not participating sufficiently of the common afflictions of the Church.

V. 9. Had brought] See Gen. 39. 21. Psal. 106. 46. Prov. 16. 7.

V. 10. Worse liking] Lesse cheerefully, and comely.

V. 11. Melzar] Is seemes to be a name of office, as who should say, Over-seer, and Governour of the Pages.

V. 17. Understanding] For the property of a Prophet is not onely to receive divine revelations in dream or in vision; but also to understand them, and know how to interpret them. Numb. 12. 6. 2 Chron. 26. 5. Dan. 10. 1.

V. 21. Continued] that is to say, Hee was in dignitie and honour whilest the Empire of Babylon lasted, and afterwards also; see Dan. 6. 28. and 10. 1.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. The second] Nebuchadnezzar carried away Jehoiachim in the third yeere of his raigne, Dan. 1. 1. and afterwards those young Jewes were brought up for the space of three yeeres, Dan. 1. 5. and therefore this second yeere cannot be taken from the time that he came to the crowne. But it is likely, that after he had subdued the King of Egypt, his greatest emulator, and had by that meanes established his Monarchie, he did then begin a new computation of the yeeres of his raigne.

V. 2. Chaldeans] that is to say, South-sayers, that Nation, being more given to those arts and studies then any other.

V. 4. Answered] A wish of affection, and naturall and civill honour, which was used amongst Gods people also, 1 King. 1. 31. Neh. 2. 3. Dan. 3. 9. and 5. 10. and 6. 6, 21.

V. 9. But one] My sentence shall stand, and bee put in execution. See Ester 4. 11. For ye have] I know, because you cannot put mee in minde of my dreame; you did prepare your selves to tell mee a lie: fitting it to the present times, and which might be wrested to all kind of events: you can tell future things, which never had no being, yee might farre more easiely know things that are past.

V. 11. Whose] Who have no ordinary conversation nor communication with men; whose soules harbour with their bodies, and are fastned to their senses; which maketh that divine light which they have, to be so little, and altogether depending upon Gods good will and pleasure.

V. 12. Went forth] When the King had pronounced it, and caused it to be proclaimed. The wise men] namely, Those that were present there; or they were all to be slaine.

V. 14. Captaine of the Kings guard] As Gen. 37. 36.

V. 16. Time] Not to study, or meditate by discourse of reason, or by the helpe of bookes; or by rules of art, or to deliberate: but to call upon the Lord with fervencie and perseverance.

V. 21. Changeth] This seems to have a singular relation to the revolution of States and Empires, and to the changes of the affaires of the world, which was the subject of the Kings dreame. Giveth wisdome] This hath a relation to the gift which Daniel had received.

V. 23. And might] that is to say, Valour and Magnanimity in mine Actions, and wisdome and advice in the understanding of businesses.

V. 28. In the latter] In the time to come, untill the Messias. See Ezek. 38. 8.

V. 30. But for their] the glory of this revelation belongeth wholly to God: who would fulfill thy desire, which was to know things that were to come: and therefore I, who am his Minister, ought not unnecessarily to desire to see those things which I shall tell thee; seeing thou hast desired to know them, and God hath commanded mee to revele them to thee.

V. 38. Thou art] he meanes not only the person of Nebuchadnezzar, but his Empire; called head, because it was the first of those foure Monarchies; and of gold; by reason of the glory and magnificence of it, in all manner of greatnesse. See Isa. 13. 19. and 14. 11. Dan. 7. 4.

V. 39. Another] namely, the Persians and Medes, figured by the breast and armes of silver, v. 32. by reason of the conjunction of these two Nations into one Empire; which was also rich, and sumptuous, but not equall to the Babylonian Empire. Dan. 7. 5. and 8. 3. and 11. 2. Third] that of Alexander the Great, represented by the belly and thighes of brasse, v. 32. because all that Empire did nothing but devoure by force of Armes: which in those dayes, were made of tempered brasse, Dan. 7. 6. and 8. 5. and 11. 3. Over all the earth] upon a very great part of it: so that he shall obtaine one of the greatest Empires of the world; which by popular custome were called universall. See Ezra. 1. 2. Dan. 8. 5. Luke 2. 1.

V. 40. The fourth] signified by the two legs and feet of yron, mingled with clay. By many it is understood for the Roman Empire, and also the Antichristian Empire, to which indeed that which is here spoken, and Dan. 7. 7. may be referred by analogy; and it may be the Holy Ghost had a relation to it, as in the Revelation. But in the first and proper sense, he seemes to meane the successors of Alexander the Great: who raigned in Syria, and in Ægypt, who did oppresse the Church more cruelly then any of the rest; for they went so farre, as to force the consciences of men. See Dan. 7. 7, 8. and 8, 9, 10, 24. and 11. 4, 5, 31. and this kingdome is termed to be of yron, which is but a base mettall, but very hard: divided into two, and of a very variable condition: sometimes mighty and powerfull; and sometimes also very weake: qualities which agree very well with these two kingdomes, by reason of their beginnings, acts and occurrences. All these things] namely, the foresaid mettals. Breaks] namely, wheresoever it shall exercise its tyranny, as it did upon Gods people. See Dan. 7. 23, and 8. 11. and 10. 21. 36, 41, 44.

V. 41. Divided] unto Seleucides, who held Syria, and Egides, who raigned in Ægypt, called Kings of the North, and of the South, Dan. 11. 5, 6.

V. 42.

V.42. Egypt] he hath a relation to the variable estate of these two kingdomes, sometimes high, and powerfull, and sometimes also beaten down: first by one another, afterwards by the Maccabies, and finally by the Romans.

V.43. Shall mingle themselves] covenanting frequent marriages amongst themselves: Dan. 11.6, 17. 1 Mac. 10.51, and 11.9. by which notwithstanding they shall never be able to knit a loyall and constant union betwixt them.

V.44. In the dayes] namely, towards the later end of these kingdomes of Ægypt, and Syria. A Kingdome] the spirituall and heavenly kingdome of the Messias, manifested in the flesh, Dan. 7.13, 14, 27. It shall] because that the Sonne of God, supreme King of the world, hath at all times been He, that hath destroyed all the powers and Empires that have been contrary to his, Psal. 2.9. Isa. 60.2. Zech. 11.8. 2 Cor. 10.5, 6. And having made an end of subverting those foure Monarchies, with the ruine of those two last kingdomes of Syria, and of Ægypt; hath established his owne kingdome in the world, though it be amongst great enemies.

V.45. The Sonne] by these termes may be understood the eternall origine of the Sonne of God: the Scripture calling the hils everlasting hils: But by them is especially meant, the firme establishment of his kingdome, by the only power of God, without humane strength or art: which shall also out of exceeding small beginnings increase to an infinite, v. 35. Mat. 13.31. Sure] the Italian, Vnfaithfull] not fained, nor made as one pleased; as the King had told his Soothsayers, v. 9.

V.46. Worshipped] he was about to doe it, but by the following verse it appeares that Daniel forbade him, and turned him towards God.

V.49. Over the] namely, over the treasure, revenewes, and rites, &c. Sate] the Italian, Stood] did not stirre from the King, being as it were chief steward of the Palace, and chiefe officer of the Empire.

CHAP. III.

Ver. 1. An Image] Heathen histories have many examples of such Colossicke dedicated to idols. Of gold] it is very likely that it was but guilded, and hollow. The breadth] that is to say, over-crosse the body, as it is very likely. Now there being no proportion betweene these six cubites in breadth, and sixty in height; we must suppose, that under the threescore, is comprehended some great pedestall, upon which the statue was set. Dura] a City of Mesopotamia, which Authors make mention of.

V.24. His Counsellors] or Officers.

V.25. The Sonne] the Italian, a Sonne] like to an Angell, in divine beauty, glory, and brightnes. See v. 28.

V.29. After this sort] or, as this God doth.

CHAP. IIII.

Ver. 13. A Watcher] that is to say, an Angell, so called as well by reason of his nature, which being spirituall, is alwayes in action, and never rests: as also of his office, which is to be alwayes ready to execute Gods commands, and to watch for the safeguard of the Church and of the elect.

V.15. with a band] the Italian, Binde it] namely, him that is meant by this stump.

V.17. The watchers] namely, of God, v. 24. encompassed with his holy Angels, who in Scripture are set downe as adessors in Gods counsels, 1 King. 22.19. Job 1.6. Psal. 89.7. The demand] the Italian, the deliberation] the Caldean, the demand, A terme taken from the propositions that are made in a counsell, upon which they use to aske the advice of the counsellors. Others expound it, it hath been desired by the word of the holy ones, that is to say: the Angels of heaven have desired and requested from God this execution which was for his glory.

V.19. was astonished] by reason of the mournfull interpretation, and because he was to expound it to the King. Be to them] would God that the meaning of this dreame were directed rather to thine enemies then to thy selfe. A kinde of protestation, to shew that in this interpretation he was not pre-occupated by any hatred or passion against the King.

V.22. It is thou] namely, that great Empire which thou possessest.

V.25. Shall drive thee] being overcome with rage and fury, which is a disease called Licanthropie: for which thou shalt be bound with chaines; losing all manner of humane understanding, and shalt become brutish, fierce and wilde, like a beast, and shalt live in the fields for the space of seven yeares.

V.26. After that] after thou hast been cured by this horrible accident, thou shalt recover thine understanding: having lost all thine ambition, which now thou hast, and humbled thy selfe before God, who giveth thee leave to raigne. The heavens] that is to say, God who dwelleth and raigneth in glory in heaven; as Mat. 21.25. Luke 15.21.

V.27. Breake off] the Italian, redeeme thy] namely, concerning temporall punishments: For as concerning everlasting punishment, man cannot give any price sufficient for his redemption, but must fly to the only bloud of Christ. The meanning is, prevent Gods judgement with repentance, changing thy tyranny into acts of courtesy vertues. If it may be] the Italian, Lee, it shall be] Others, it shall prolong thy peace and prosperity.

V.20. That I have built] which I have adorned and beautified with many wonderfull buildings: increased, and encompassed it with new wals: so that it may seeme a new City.

V.22. All this] no humane power can withstand his most free actions, he doth not regard it. Others, with whom, and in comparison of whom, all, &c. In the ayre] in the celestiall bodies, and the Angelicall creatures.

V.23. Mine honour] the Italian, my majesty] namely, the royall presence, and other heroicke qualities fitting to beare up the dignity of the Empire.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 1. Belshazzar] This was Nebuchadnezzars daughters sonne, as may be gathered by Histories; and in him failed Nebuchadnezzars line, according to the prophecy, Jer. 27. 7. Drunke] This word signifies a solemne drinking in a publicke feast; which was seldome used amongst the Chaldeans.

V.2. He tasted] being already heated with wine, and being disposed to drinke largely. His father] that is to say, his grandfather.

V.4. Praised] attributing unto them the victories which they had obtained over Gods people, and over God himselfe, feasting in honour of them, offering, and powring unto them, of their meat and drinke, according to the customs of Pagans.

V.5. The part of] that likeneſſe of a hand taken off from the arme.

V.6. The joynts] the Italian, the girdles] A proverbiall kind of speech, Ha. 21.9. taken from affrighted souldiers, that are running away: who unbuckle their armours off their backs. The meaning is, that his strength and courage failed him.

V.7. Shall be clothed] A badge of honour for great Officers and Lords. See upon Gen. 41.42. The third] the first after me, said the Queene my mother.

V.8. They could] It is likely that these letters were written without any distinction or separation of words: whereupon they could not compose nor frame the words, to make any sense of them.

V.10. The Queene] the Kings Mother, by accounting to some, his grandmother. Of the words] having heard his words full of terrour and feare. Or his command to call the wise men.

V.12. Doubts] the Italian, riddles] Cold, knotty perplexed and obscure speeches and sentences.

V.20. Hardned] against Daniels exhortations, Dan. 4. 27.

V.21. Rule over all] who by his providence governeth all whatsoever man undertaketh, and whatsoever happeneth to him, and upon whose will all things absolutely depend.

V.25. Mene] these words signifie, he hath done right, he hath weighed, and it falleth in peeces.

V.26. God] God hath a long time forborne thee, he is at last come to take an account of thine administration, and having as one should say, cast up thine accounts; he now requireth satisfaction: a terme taken from creditors.

V.27. Weighed] a terme taken from right coines. The meaning is, God hath examined thee, and hath found thee unworthy of the degree which thou holdest.

V.28. Is divided] the Italian is, put in peeces] as who should say, put to the mint, like broken or false coine. There is an allusion between the word Peres and Persis. To the Medes] namely, to Darius the Mede, and afterwards to Cyrus the Persian, Dan. 6. 28.

V.30. Slaine] as some say it was, when Babylon was taken by Cyrus, whilest the Babylonians were feasting and banquetting. See Isa. 21.5. Jer. 51.39. Hab. 2.5. Others by some reliques of ancient Histories doe imagine that he was slaine by a conspiracy of his Barons, whereof one was this Darius, and that happened some few yeares before the said surprise.

V.31. Darius] the Histories make no mention of this Darius; and it hath been thought that it was Chiaxsar King of Media, Cyrus his uncle and father in law. Who having accompanied Cyrus in his Babylonian enterprize, after the taking, was by him made King of it, for an honour to his age and degree. Others will have this Darius, sonne of Assuerus, Dan. 9. 1. to be one of the conspirators against Belshazzar, and one of the Barons of Babylon, though a Mede by Nation: called Darius whilest he was a private man, and Nabonnidus, or Labinitus when he was a King: and that it was he under whom Babylon was taken by Cyrus, who rooke away his kingdome from him. Take] the Italian, received] by the Babylonians election, if we follow the second opinion as hath been spoken of. Or by Cyrus his yeelding it to him; if we follow the first. See Dan. 9.1. About threescore] he who was already threescore and two yeares of age.

CHAP. VI.

Vers. 2. No damage] in his rights and revenewes. Others, that he might not be troubled.

V.4. An

V.6. An occasion] some subject whereupon they might accuse him.

V.7. To establish] namely, for to present it unto thee, and have it confirmed by thee, whereby it may receive the force of Law.

V.8. Of the Medes] they who will not have Darius to be Chiaſſar King of Media, anſwer here; that thoſe Barons, to flatter Darius, that was a Mede borne; deſired him to make a Law, according to the manner of his owne countrey; though he was not King thereof, but of Caldea. Others, that all this happened in the City of Suſan in Perſia, ſubject to the Caldeans, where Daniel was Governour, Dan. 8.2. and that in that City and countrey the lawes of Perſia were obſerved.

V.10. His windowes] to oppoſe openly an impious and unlawfull way, to overcome the malice of his enemies, who watched his conſtancy, and ſought to overthrow it with feare; and to give all beleevers an example of zeale to Gods glory: he was moved by the Holy-Ghoſt, not to change nor ſlacke any thing in his ordinary devotions: which, theſe reſpects laid aſide, were not abſolutely neceſſary. Towards] as towards the place conſecrated to the manifeſtation of Gods preſence in grace and power: which Law ſtanding yet in force, and being very ſhortly to be re-eſtabliſhed in effect; hee looked that way, as towards heaven. See 1 King. 8. 48. Three times] the morning, noone, and evening, which were the three houres of the Jewes daily prayers. See Pſal. 55.17.

V.17. The purpoſe] namely, in the execution of the decree.

CHAP. VII.

Ver.1. OF his head] which were inwardly repreſented to his imagination, and not to the outward ſenſes. See Dan. 4.5.

V.2. The foure] by the Sea is meant the world, and by the winds, the changes thereof, by which one Empire is raiſed, and another is brought low, like to the waves of the Sea.

V.3. Beaſts] that is to ſay, Empires, figured in this manner; becauſe, for the moſt part, they are gotten, kept, and governed with violence and tyranny. See Pſal. 76.4 Cant. 4 8.

V.4. The firſt] this Lyon repreſents the Caldeans Empire, Dan. 2.37. by reaſon of the might, and ravenouſneſſe of it. See Iſa. 5.29. Jer. 4.7. Wings] to ſhew the Caldeans great celerity in their conqueſts, Iſa. 5.26. Jer. 4.13. and 48.40. Ezek. 17.3. Hab. 1.8. Pluckt] all meanes of conquering or raiſing it ſelfe any more, were taken away from it, and the eaſe, and reſt which it had a long time enjoyed, lying upon the ground like a beaſt, was taken away; and being ſubdued, was brought to a reaſonable, civill, and modeſt life: ſuch as the ſtate of Babylon was, long after it had been taken by Cyrus.

V.5. Another] which is the Perſian Empire, Dan. 2.39. and 8.3. Like to a Bare] for the Perſians were a mountaine Nation, more uncivill then the Caldeans; though they were great warriors, and much inclined to ſet upon Empires and States. On one ſide] he ſeemes hereby to meane the beginning of the Perſian Empire, from the one ſide of the world, namely, from the Eaſt, from whence they came to conquer the other three parts, Dan. 8.4. They ſaid] Gods ſecret providence did drive them on to thoſe enterprizes, and made them eaſie for them. See Iſa. 21.2.

V.6. Another] namely; Alexander the Great his Empire, Who was very ſpeedy in all his conqueſts; which is figured by the Leopard, which is a very active beaſt, Hab. 1.8. and by his wings, Dan. 2.39. and 8.5. and 11.3. Foure heads] which were the foure Satrapies, into which Alexander the Great his Empire was divided after his death, Dan. 8.8. and 11.4. 1 Mac. 1.9,10.

V.7. A fourth] by Dan. 8.9. we may finde; that the firſt meaning of this Prophecye, hath a relation to the kingdome of Syria and Ægypt; poſſeſſed by Seleucides and Lagides: which notwithſtanding, doth not hinder us from beleeving; but that Gods Spirit did looke yet further; namely, to the Roman Empire, by the reſemblance of it to the other, in the perſecuting of the Church, the ſubverſion and interdiction of Gods ſervice, and the violence done to conſciences: Whereupon, the Revelation doth fit many of theſe paſſages of Daniel to Antichriſt. See Dan. 2.40. Dreadfull] eſpecially, to Gods people: who were never more cruelly uſed, then by Seleucides, Dan. 8.11,12. and 11.31,36. Diverſe] ſeeing his tyranny over Gods people, tended to force men to idolatry, and to annihilate Gods ſervice, which none of the precedent Empires had attempted. Ten hornes] theſe are the ten Seleucides, Kings of Aſia, and of Syria, to Antiochus, comprehending him amongſt the reſt, v.24. For although he had ſucceſſors; yet the people of God; (in regard of whom theſe things are ſpoken) begun after Antiochus, to re-aſſume their liberty under the Aſmoneans, untill Chriſt.

V.8. Another] this is Antiochus called Epiphanes, who is one of the number of the ten Kings; yet he is called another; becauſe his tyranny over the people was eſpeciall, v.24. Little] as Dan. 8.9. becauſe that this Antiochus was the ſtrongeſt of his brethren, and the kingdom did not by right belong him; and beſides, he was of a baſe and deſpicable carriage, Dan. 11.21. Three of] that is to ſay, three Kings; namely, Ptolomeus Philopater, King of Ægypt, who had taken Syria: Antiochus the Great, father of Epiphanes, and Seleucus his brother, ther, who were all three deprived either of their lives, or of their kingdomes, by Antiochus, v. 24. Weare eyes] to shew his naturall sagacity and cunning, Dan. 8. 23, 25. and 11. 23, 32. Presumptuous] he shall be exceeding haughty in words, 1 Mac. 1. 25. and cruell in bloudy decrees, and a great blasphemer of God himselfe, v. 25. Dan. 8. 23, 25. and 11. 36. 1 Mac. 1. 46, 47. See the comparison of this with Pagan Rome, Rev. 12. 5.

V. 9. Till the Thrones] untill God did enter into judgement against Epiphanes, for the deliverance and revenge of his people: A figurative description; as Psal. 7. 6, 7 and 9. 4, 7. The ancient] A figurative representation of God the everlasting Father, and his glorious Majesty. wheeles] Gods Throne is here described with wheeles; 1 Chron. 28. 18. Ezek. 1. 15. and 10. 9. to shew that Gods providence moveth every where, to governe all things, and to provide for all things.

V. 10. Fiery streame] hereby is signified, the inevitable, and consuming force of Gods judgements. See Psal. 50. 3. and 97. 3. Isa. 30. 33. Thousand] of holy Angels. The books] termes taken from judgements amongst men, in which the enquiries, proofes, confessions, and other writings, are produced to frame the judgement by, and the Lawes also are considered. See Rev. 20. 12.

V. 11. And given] A description of the death and everlasting damnation of Antiochus, 1 Mac. 6. 8, 13.

V. 12. Their dominion] not at the same time: but the meaning is; that every great Empire, enemy and persecutor of the Church, was destroyed before Christs comming upon earth, from time to time: though the nations still continued and subsisted, in some weake and low forme of state. See Dan. 2. 35. untill all the reliques were swallowed up by the Romans.

V. 13. One] the Sonne of God is here represented in the flesh, who after his resurrection, is set at the right hand of the Father, and from him hath obtained all power in heaven and in earth. See Ezek. 1. 26. Acts 2. 34, 36. Ephes. 1. 20. Phil. 2, 9. Heb. 1. 3, 4. Rev. 1. 13. & 14. 14.

V. 15. Was grieved] the Italian, I fainted] through the greatnesse and brightnesse of the sight of Gods majestie, according to the manner of Prophets after their extasies which did dazle their senses, tire their spirits, and overthrow their naturall faculties. See Dan. 7. 28. and 8. 27. and 10. 8, 16.

V. 16. That stood by] namely, one of the Angels that appeared in this vision.

V. 17. Kings] that is to say kingdomes, Dan. 2. 38, 39.

V. 18. The Saints] that is to say, the Church of God in Christ her head first; and afterwards the whole body which shall be perfectly united with him: shall receive from God the spirituall and everlasting kingdome. See Dan. 7. 22. Isay 60. 12. Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 10. whereof the Machabies principality was but a shadow, and was betweene the reigne of Antiochus and the comming of Christ.

V. 20. Whose looke] thus, is Antiochus his great power and enterprizes set downe, which he reformed more then all the rest of the Seleucides, Dan. 8. 20. and 11. 37.

V. 22. To the Saints] namely, to Gods people, v. 25. Dan. 8. 24. and 11. 30.

V. 23. The whole earth] this understood of the Seleucides, signifieth a great extent of land, but being anagogically referred to Rome, it represents the affected and titulay universality of their Empire.

V. 25. Change times] to annihilate Gods service, his feasts, Sabbaths, and other solemne and sacred dayes, and all the other Ordinances of the Law. Dan. 8. 11. & 11. 31. 1 Mac. 1. 47, 48. Until a time] these persecutions of Antiochus with which he persecuted Gods people, shall last one yeare, two yeares, and halfe a yeare. That is to say, three yeares and a halfe, beginning as it should seeme from that time which is set downe, 1 Mac. 1. 30. See Rom. 13. 5.

V. 28. My countenance] I became pale and wan, as well by reason of the violent raptures of the Spirit, as through horror of thinking upon those things which were foretold against Gods people.

CHAP. VIII.

Verse 1. At the first] in the first yeare of Belshazzar, Dan. 7. 1.

V. 2. I was] some hold that he was there in vision, as Ezek. 8. 3. & 40. 2. Others corporally, which seemes to be confirmed by Dan. 10. 4. and that the Province of Shushan was then under the Babylonians Empire, whereof notwithstanding, the stories make no mention. Palace] the place of royall residence where the Kings of Persia afterwards kept their Court, and dwelt one part of the yeare. Of Elam] namely of Persia. Of Ulai] called by historians Eulæus.

V. 3. A Ram] a figure of the Persian and Median Empire, signified by the two hornes, Dan. 2. 39. & 7. 5. But one] namely, the Persian, which though it was founded upon the Median; grew a great deale greater then it, by the means of Cyrus the Persian his victories, Who took away Media from his Grandfather, and afterwards took Babylon, and many countries moe.

V. 4. Westward] See Dan. 7. 5. What he] and none could hinder his enterprizes nor actions.

V. 5, 21.

V. 5. An he Goat] a figure of the Grecians kingdome under Alexander. v. 21. See Dan. 2. 39. & 7.6. From the west] namely, from Greece and Macedon west from Asia, where the Prophet was, and where the Persians reigned. The whole] so those great Monarchies through ambition called themselves universall; though they possessed but a small part of the world, Dan. 2.39. Yet it was that which was most esteemed, and best knowne. Touched not] whereby is signified Alexanders extreame celerity in his conquests, as if he had flien; and not walked. See Dan. 7.6. A notable horne] the Italian, A crooked horne] this is Alexanders person in his kingdome, which is signified by the Goat.

V. 6. And he came] a description of Alexanders acts against Persia, by which he overthrew the Empire, and made himselfe Lord of Asia.

V. 8. The great] that is to say, Alexander died suddenly in the flower of his age, and the middle of all his victories. Foure] these are the foure Satrapies or kingdomes of the Grecians, which were seazed upon, by Alexanders Captaines, out of the shipwrack of his Empire. Babylon towards the East, Asia towards the North, Macedonia towards the West, and Egypt towards the South, which in processe of time came to two: the Seleucides towards the North; and the Lagides towards the South. Dan. 11.5,6.

V. 9. Out of one] namely; out of the Seleucides, who reigned in Asia, and Babylon. A little horn] namely; Antiochus Epiphanes. Toward the South] in Egypt, which Antiochus seazed upon, Dan. 11. 25.40,43. The East] in Persia, which was also conquered by Antiochus. The pleasant land] the land of Israel, so called in Scripture, by reason of its great prerogatives: both spirituall and temporall. See Jer. 1.3,19. Ezek. 20.6.15. Dan. 11.16.41,45. Zach 7.14. See of these enterprizes of Antiochus upon Judea. Dan. 11.30. and the following verses.

V. 10. Even to the] even to war against Gods Church, which is as heaven; where God dwelleth in grace: and where the faithfull doe hold the place of Angels, Isay 14 13. Dan. 8.24. & 11.32.

V. 11. Even to the Prince] daring to push at God himselfe, by blaspheming him, and violating his service and glory. See Dan. 7.25. & 11.22,36. The daily sacrifice] namely; the morning and evening sacrifice. Exod 29.38. Num. 28.3. whereby is meant, all Gods service. See 1 Mac. 1.47.

V. 12. And an hoste was given] the faithfull shall be in great danger of apostating from the true religion; and Antiochus shall give them many occasions to doe it, and shall seek to induce them to it: and the Lord shall put them to this triall, Dan. 11.31,35. Cast downe] all use, preaching, and profession of Gods truth, and doctrine of salvation shall be forbidden and suppressed by Antiochus; Who did seek to destroy even the very books of the law, 1 Mac. 1.59.

V. 13. One Saint] an Angell, The vision] that is to say, the things signified by it. The transgression] the idolatry of the Olimpian Jupiter, which Antiochus had set up in the Temple, instead of Gods pure service, 2 Mac. 6.1. which caused the extreame desolation of the Temple: in some, spirituall; by apostacy: in others, bodily, by persecutions and torments, Dan. 11.31. & 12.11.

V. 14. He said unto me] for that Angell, had asked that question in Daniels name; and for to instruct him concerning it. Vnto two] this time containes six yeares, three moneths, and eighteen dayes: and, that ending at the purification of the Altar, 1 Mac. 4.25. it is likely that we must take the beginning of it, from that time which is set downe, 1 Mac. 1.11. & 2 Mac. 4.23. Of evening and morning] the Italian addeth dayes] that is to say, the day and night of foure and twenty hours. Gen. 2.5. Cleansed] the Italian, Justified] that is to say, freed by Gods just judgement, from Antiochus his tyranny: Who had made it a receptacle of Idols; to be againe according to its first institution, the holy Temple of the true God. Others, it shall be purified from its uncleannesse.

V. 15. The appearance] namely, the Angell Gabriell in humane shape. v. 16. Dan. 9.21.

V. 16. Betweene] the Italian, in the mids of] betweene the two banks of that river, or in some Island incompassed by it. Gabriel] the name of an Angell, which signifieth, strong man of God. See Dan. 9.21. Luke 1.26.

V. 17. The vision] the things foretold in it, shall happen about the time of the Messias his comming, who shall fulfill the propheſies and the old age. For to bring in a new one, by renewing the state of the Church. See Ezek. 38 8. Daniel 9.24.

V. 18. A deepe sleepe] that is to say, in my propheticall extasie, I lost all manner of action and motion, like a man that were overcome with sleepe.

V. 19. what shall be] what shall befall the Jews in these last afflictions, which God shall send them for a punishment for their sins: after which, shall be revealed the great and eternall reconciliation in Christ, Dan. 9,24 & 11.36. The end] there shall be a certain prefixed time, for the lasting of these calamities. Dan. 11.35.

V. 21. The first King] namely, Alexander.

V. 22. The nation] namely, of the Greek or Macedonian nation, though not of Alexanders posterity.

V. 23. Of their Kingdome] Over Gods people, who, after Antiochus, did shake off the yoake of the Seleucides: Dan. 7. 22. who notwithstanding a long time after that, raigned over the remainder of their Kingdome. The transgressors] Which are amongst Gods people. Are come to the full] Of open impietie, and formall apostasie: Dan. 11. 30. 1 Mal. 1. 12. A King] namely, Antiochus Epiphanes: Dan. 7. 20. and 11. 21. Darke sentences] See Dan. 7. 8.

V. 24. Not by his owne power] But by his cunning devices, and the perfidiousnesse and trecheries of other men, Dan. 11. 23. The mighty] Great Kings and Princes; and especially them of Egypt, Dan. 11. 25. The holy people] namely, The Church of God.

V. 25. His policy] His cunning and deceits. By peace] See 1 Mac. 1. 30. 31. 38. The Prince] namely, against God himselfe; who is King of kings, v. 11. Broken downe] shall perish, stricken by God, and not by men, 1 Mac. 6. 8.

V. 26. The vision] Concerning that determined number of dayes, v. 14. Shut thou up] As Isa. 8. 16. Dan 12. 4. Keepe it to thy selfe, and reserve it in writing for posterity, without much publishing of it at the present; for it is not so much for the use of this age, as for the use of ensuing ages.

CHAP. IX.

Vers. 3. VNto the Lord] that is to say, Towards heaven; or, towards Jerusalem: a City chosen by him to be the place of his presence: as Dan. 6. 10.

V. 9. To the Lord] Thou hast a large subject to exercise thine infinit mercy upon us which is as it were, the Queen of thy perfections: to which we also have recourse; and not to thy Justice, in this our height of iniquitie. Or, having sinned so excessively, as we confesse we have; to Thee it belongs to use mercie and forgivenesse; for thou alone hast power to doe it, v. 18.

V. 13. Understand] Endevouring to to repent truly; according to thy Word, by meanes of which, we may be made partakers of the fruit of thy holy promises.

V. 14. Watched upon the evill] His providence hath been attentive, to bring it in the prefixed time, and instant: see Jer. 1. 12. and 31. 28. and 44. 27. 2 Pet. 2. 3.

V. 16 Thy righteousnesse] namely, Thy goodnesse and loyalty in thy promises, and fatherly equitie towards thy poore children, cruelly tormented by their enemies upon unjust causes: See Psa. 31.

V. 17. To shine] Shew thy Grace and Favour in effects; which like a vivifying and cheasing sunne, may disperse all these mists of extreme desolations, Numb. 6. 25. Psal. 8. 3. 7. 19. For the Lords sake] For thine owne sake: or, as some will have it; for the promised Messias and Mediators sake.

V. 19. Thy Name] They are, and professe themselves to be thine; and doe beare the bages and markes of it.

V. 21. Touched me] In token of encouragement to heare these mysteries, and of infusion of new divine vertue, to understand and remember them; and of comfort in these promises.

V. 23. The commandment] the Italian, The Word] God hath revealed to us Angels; and to me especially; the secrets of his Councell, concerning the restauration of Jerusalem: and how long it shall last afterward untill the Messias, and hath sent me to declare it unto thee. See Dan. 10. 12. Beloved] Singularly beloved of God, and favoured with his graces, Dan. 10. 11, 19.

V. 24. Seventie weekes] Thou hast prayed to God concerning the seventy yeeres of the peoples captivity which the Lord hath appointed. And I will tell thee moreover, That after the accomplishment of those yeeres, there be seventie times seven yeeres (which are the weeke of yeeres) that is to say; foure hundred and ninty yeeres appointed for the lasting of the people, and of the city of Jerusalem: in which time the Messias shall come, shall fulfill the Prophecies, shall satisfie for the sins of the world by his death, and shall establish the true righteousnesse of the Gospell, which shall remain for ever; through Which, all believers shall be absolved and justified, and shall by his spirit be regenerate to a new and godly life; and hee shall be consecrated and made an everlasting King, at the right hand of God his Father; having obtained the fulnesse of Gods-spirit, as head of his Church. And after all this; the City and the Nation shall be destroyed by the Romans. The most holy] Heb. The Holinesse of Holinesse: that is to say; He that is Holinesse it self: and in Whom consists all the Churches holinesse; who is in Spirit and truth, that which the Arke, the Propitiatory, the Altar; and the Sanctuary, which were called most holy things; and were consecrated by unction, Exod. 30. 36. were but in shadow and figurative.

V. 25. From the going forth] He sheweth, when the beginning of these seventie weekes shall be: namely, After that, by Darius his decree: Ezr. 4. 24. and 6. 1. 15. The Temple was re-edified, and consequently the City also; after Darius had given way for that which the enemies would have hindred: namely; the restauration of the City: Ezra 4. 12, 13, 24. Unto the Messiah] Untill the Son of God; made manifest in the flesh, and consecrated ſecrated everlaſting King of the Church, v. 24. doe by a ſecred conduct make Himſelfe, as it were, Captaine of the Romans, v. 26. Matth. 22. 7. and utterly deſtroy Jeruſalem. Seven weekes] Of yeeres, which are nine and forty yeeres from Darius his decree; untill ſuch time as the walls of Jeruſalem were finiſhed by Nehemiah. Threeſcore and two] Which are foure hundred foure and thirty yeeres; namely, from the reſtauration of Jeruſalem, untill the time of the laſt ruine of it by the Romans. Built againe] that is to ſay; Jeruſalem ſhall ſubſiſt, being continually built, and beautified with new buildings within ſide; and fortified on the outſide: notwithſtanding the grievous oppreſſions which it ſhall ſuffer under the Empires of Perſia, Greece and Rome.

V. 26. And after] Joyned to the ſeven precedent weekes; which make in all, threeſcore and nine weeks, that is to ſay; In the laſt of the ſeventie. Be cut off] By the Jewes; and in their opinion, quite deſtroyed, without any reſidue or hope of reſtauration. Iſa. 53. 8. But not for] the Italian, And ſhall have nothing left] Being brought to nothing by death; having no life, ſtrength nor dignitie in ſhew left him. See Pſa. 22. 6. Iſa. 53. 2, 3. Phil. 2. 3. Others there, being nothing in him; namely, no cauſe nor fault, Iſa. 53. 9. Or, there being nothing therein for him; that is to ſay, All being done for the good and redemption of mankind. The people of] namely, The Romans. Shall be with] It ſhall be ſudden, irreparable and violent; like to a deſtruction, cauſed by a deluge of waters. Deſolations are] After the warre with the Romans is once begun, it ſhall never ceaſe, untill Jeruſalem be quite deſtroyed, according to Gods decree.

V. 27. And he] namely, Chriſt, being come; and comming in the world, ſhall in one of thoſe weekes by the Goſpel, renew the Covenant (with the Jewes which ſhall believe) which he had made with their forefathers; and ſhall ratifie it by new ſacraments. Of the weeke] Of that weeke which remaines after the forefaid ſixty nine, to make up the number of ſeventy: for, indeed the revolts and troubles of the Jewes laſted three yeeres and a halfe; or foure yeeres after the threeſcore and nine weeks. Shall cauſe] Through the deſolation of the Temple by the Romans, the Jewiſh ſervice and ſacrifices ſhall ceaſe. And for the] the Italian, The deſtroyer ſhall come upon the abominable wings] that is to ſay, The Roman army, led by Titus, ſhall come with great ſpeed: as if it were carryed flying upon Eagles wings; which were the enſignes of the Roman legions; called abominable; becauſe the Romans did worſhip them, as Godheads of armies and did place them in the Temple of God for to prophane it, Mat. 24. 15. Mar. 13. 14. Luke 21. 20. Until] See Iſa. 10. 23. The conſummation] the Italian, The inundation] Whereof ſee v. 26.

CHAP. X.

Verſ. 1. The third] After hee had ſeized upon the Babylonian Empire, and had eſtabliſhed the ſecond Monarchie. The time appointed] the Italian, The army was great] namely, Of the Angells which appeared in this viſion. Others, The time appointed was long] that is to ſay, Though the things fore-told are not to be fulfilled of a long time; yet is the Prophecie true.

V. 2. Was mourning] For the enemies of our Nation, hindered the re-eſtabliſhment of Jeruſalem, and of the Temple, which Cyrus had given way to, Ezra 4. 5.

V. 3. I eate no] I abſtained from all meales wherein one might rejoyce; either at the qualitie of the food, or at the company that was at them, or that I tooke any delight in: I faſted with bread and water. Annoint] For in times of rejoycing people did annoint their faces with ſweet ſmelling oyles, when they went to the Table; and contrariwiſe, in time of mourning they did abſtain from it: See Eccleſ. 9. 8. Mat. 6. 17.

V. 4. Of the firſt] Of this preſens yeere. Hiddekel] Which is Tigris, Gen. 2 14.

V. 5. A certaine man] The likeneſſe of a man repreſenting the Sonne of God, that was to take humane fleſh upon him. See Ezek. 1. 26. and 40. 3. Dan. 12. 6, 7. Rev. 1. 13. Uphaz] See Jerem. 10. 9.

V. 6. The Beril] the Italian hath it, Chryſolite] as Ezech. 1. 16. and 10. 9. Poliſhed braſſe] See Ezek. 1. 4. Rev. 1. 15.

V. 7. Alone] As Acts 9. 7.

V. 8. There remained] See Dan. 7. 15, 28. & 8. 27.

V. 12. From the firſt] See v. 2. That thou] By faſts and devotions didſt diſpoſe thy ſelfe to receive ſome propheticall revelation from God, concerning the State of the Church; to which the reeſtabliſhment of the Temple, and of Gods ſervice, is yet forbidden; and the peaceable reſtauration of Jeruſalem: though the ſeventie yeeres which were prefixed be paſt. For thy Words] namely, To fulfill thy requeſts and prayers.

V. 13. The Prince] namely, Cambiſes, the ſon of Cyrus, who governed the Kingdome, whileſt Cyrus was employed in forraigne warres. Now, Cambiſes was an enemy to the Jewes, and hindered the reſtauration of Jeruſalem; and this Angel remained in Perſia, for to repreſſe him the ſpace of three weekes, which was the time of Daniels faſting, v. 2. Whereby the execution of his Commission against Daniel was staid. Others, take this to be some evill Angel, Prince of the world, particularly assisting to these evill counsels which were against the Church. Michael] Saint Jude calls him Archangel, Jude 9. that is to say, An Angel of eminent degree, which commanded the rest, Dan. 10. 21. He is termed head of the Church. And Dan. 12. 1. Defendor of the same; and Rev. 12. 7. head of the Angels. Whereupon many thinke that it was the Sonne of God himselfe, as indeed Michael signifieth, Who is like unto God? And so the meaning would be; that the Sonne of God had joyned his divine power to the worke of this Angel, for the defence of his Church. One of the] If Michael be the Son of God; by these chiefe Princes may be understood, the three persons of the most holy Trinity. If a created Angel, the Archangels: See 1. Thes. 4. 16. So Angels are called Principalities and Powers, Rom. 8. 38. Ephes. 3. 10. Colos. 1. 16. The Kings] namely, Cambises already declared King, and his Councellors, and Lords.

V. 14. In the latter] namely, In the declining, and almost at the end of their temporall state: a little before the comming of the Messias; under whom began another age, and a spirituall state of the Church: See Ezek 38 8. Hab. 2. 3.

V. 15. I set] Through reverence and feare.

V. 16. My sorowes] The Italian, My joynts] See Dan. 7. 15. Others expound it, great sorrowes assailed me.

V. 17. The servant] I thy servant, in the state which I am in. Of this] So glorious and Majesticall.

V. 20. Knowest thou] Hast thou not understood what I told thee, v. 14. that I was come unto thee, to tell what should hereafter happen to my Church? Will I returne] I will againe oppose all the Kings of Persias plots against my people: untill such time as going from thence, I goe and call Alexander to destroy the Persian Empire.

V. 21. That which is] namely, Gods determined counsell: which is, as it were; All written in His minde and providence, figurative termes: see Psal. 139. 16. and 149. 9 Mal. 3. 16. There is none] No humane strength upholds the Church but Christ alone, who is her Head; by the ministerie of his Angels, v. 13. Jos. 5. 14, 15.

CHAP. XI.

Vers. 1. Also I] These are also words of the Angel, who was mentioned in the former Chapter; his meaning is: I have been assisting to the destruction of Nebuchadnezzars progenie by Darius, and so have begun to beat downe the Chaldeans Empire; now I will declare unto thee the continuation of Gods victories over such enemies: Others take this Darius to be Chiasseres, King of Media, made for his honour, King of Babylon by Cyrus: see upon Dan. 5. 31. and then the meaning would be; I have upheld these beginnings of Cyrus raigne, whilest he hath been favourable to my Church: Ez. 1. 1, 2. Then I resisted Cambises, the sonne of Cyrus: Dan. 10. 13. Now I will tell thee what shall follow.

V. 2. Three Kings] which are according to some; Cyrus, Cambises, and Darius the son of Hystaspes: Others leave out Cyrus, as having resigned the Kingdome to his sonne Cambises: and Count Cambises, Smerdes and Darius. The fourth] namely, Xerxes, surnamed the Terror of Greece: not that hee was the last King of Persia; but because through his so famous enterprize against Greece: he gave the first occasion of warre betweene the Persians and the Greekes; which at last caused the totall ruine of the Persians by Alexander the great. Stirre up all] A hyperbolicall terme, meaning; an innumerable company of all manner of people.

V. 3. A mightie King] namely, Alexander, Dan. 7. 6. and 8. 5.

V. 4. And when] the Italian, And as soone] namely, Some twelve yeeres after that he shall be come to the crowne: see Dan. 8. 8. Toward the foure] Into foure principall Satrapies and Provinces, Dan. 7. 6. and 8. 8. To his Posterity] Which perished all after the death of Alexander. Nor according] namely, In greatnesse or strength, Dan. 8. 22. Pluckt up] By the totall extermination of Alexanders race. Besides] Besides those foure Satrapies; there shall be other petty Governours and Kings, of some small parcels of the ruine of Alexanders Empire: Others translate it to others, besides those; namely, them of Alexanders line.

V. 5. The King of] At the last these foure Satrapies shall be reduced to two principall Kingdomes; namely, of Egypt: seized upon by Ptolemie the sonne of Lagus, called the King of the South: and the Kingdome of Babylon and Asia, possessed by Seleucus Nicanor, called King of the North, who were both Alexanders captaines. And he shall] namely, The King, and Kingdome of Asia. Above him] namely, Above that of Egypt: Or, against him, because he tooke away all Syria and Judea; and divers other countries from him.

V. 6. Shall joyne] the King of Asia, Antiochus Soterus, the sonne of Seleucus, and the King of Ægypt, Ptolemeus Seleucus, shall joyne together in amity: and their sonnes, Ptolemeus Philadelphus, and Antiochus Teus by marriages: according according to the propheeye, Dan. 2. 43. Daughter] namely, Bernice, the daughter of Ptolomeus Philadelphus, married to Antiochus Theus; who for the love of her, did put away Laodice his lawfull wife; and sister to the said Bernice. To make] to keep the peace, and end all differences; by reason of which, they were ready to goe to warres. She shall not] this marriage shall not hinder them from comming shortly to open warre. Neither shall he] Antiochus Theus shall soone after that be poisoned, and the forces of his kingdome shall be overthrown by diverse sinister accidents, which shall be set downe hereafter. But she] namely, Bernice and her sonne; and all those that tooke her part, and her followers; shall be constrained to yeeld to the mercy of Seleucus Callinicus, the sonne of Theus and Laodice: Who shall put them all to death, by the instigation of his mother. He that begate her] the Italian, her sonne] Others, her father; namely, the King of Ægypt, who died presently after.

V. 7. Out of a branch] namely, Ptolomeus Evergetes, brother to Bernice; shall succeed Ptolomeus Philadelphus his father, in the kingdome of Ægypt; and to revenge his sisters death, shall with very good successe set upon Seleucus. Shall prevaile] or shall strengthen himselfe.

V. 8. Their Gods] according to the custome of heathen conquerours. See 1 Sam. 5. 1. Isa 46. 2. Then the King] the Italian, without feare of the King] or the King of the North being not able to hinder him: or being secured from him: or being more powerfull then he.

V. 9. Shall come] shall cause himselfe to be crowned King of Syria, which he shall hold for many yeares.

V. 10. His sonnes] namely, Seleucus Ceraunus, and Antiochus the Great, sonnes of Callinicus, King of Asia. Stirred up] the Italian, shall commence warr] against Ptolomeus Evergetes, King of Ægypt, to get the kingdome of Syria againe. And one] namely, Antiochus the Great, with a sudden force, like unto an overflowing streame, shall regaine a great part of his kingdome. Returne] the yeare following he shall returne with great power; and having discomfited the army of Ptolomeus Philopater, the sonne of Evergetes, shall come unto a principall fort of his, called Raphia, upon the frontiers of Ægypt, and shall take it. Others, understand this of another fort, called Rabathamam.

V. 11. And the King] namely, Ptolomeus Philopater. The multitude] that great army shall be discomfited by Philopater.

V. 12. His heart shall be lifted up] being puffed up by this victory, shall contemne his enemy, and give himselfe up to dissolute pleasures; and shall not follow Antiochus to his totall ruine.

V. 13. The King] namely, Antiochus, after the death of Philopater, shall againe assault Ptolomeus Epiphanes, the sonne of Philopater, being yet young, against whom many of his subjects shall rebell, and many Princes combine.

V. 14. The robbers] he seemes to meane some seditious, and peradventure apostated Jewes, who joyned themselves to the King of Ægypt his faction, and to his false Religion. To establish] the Italian, to fulfil]: making this for a pretence of their faction; which Isaiah chap. 19. 19, 21. had spoken of, namely, Ægypts spirituall union with the Church. They shall fall] being persecuted by Antiochus, as rebels to him.

V. 15. The armes] that is to say, the strength.

V. 16. But he] namely, Antiochus the Great, the glorious land] namely, Judea. See Dan. 8. 9.

V. 17. He shall also] namely, Antiochus the Great, shall set upon Ægypt againe with prosperous successe; but for feare of the Romans, who shall interpose themselves in the behalfe of Ptolomeus Epiphanes: he shall make peace with him; giving him Cleopatra his daughter to wife, having before suborned her to kill her husband: which nevertheless, he would not performe, but went with her husband against her father. See Dan. 2. 43.

V. 18. Shall he turne] Antiochus shall warre against the Iſlands and Provinces beyond the Seas; which were subject, or confederate with the Romans. A Prince] the Italian, a Captaine] namely, Scipio, a Roman Consul, with his brother. Cause the] he shall not only force Antiochus to retreate out of all those places, which he had taken from the Romans, or their friends, to the disgrace of the Common-wealth of Rome; but shall also overcome him in a pitched battell, and shall spoile him of part of his dominions; and force him to accept of a disgracefull peace.

V. 19. He shall turne] he shall goe into Syria; keeping himselfe in strong holds; and shall not dare to wage warre any more. Stumble] being killed in a tumult, as he would have spoiled the Temple of Belus, in the Elimeans countrey.

V. 20. A raiser of] Seleucus Philopater, the sonne of Antiochus the Great; whose Raigne shall be tyrannicall, and full of exactions; which he shall endeavour to have even out of Gods Temple, 2 Mac. 3. 4. Shall be] he shall be poisoned; not killed in war, nor by any open violence.

V. 21. A vile] Antiochus, sirnamed Epiphanes; that is to say, illustrious; opposite to that which the Spirit cals him, by reason of his execrable deeds and qualities. See Dan. 7. 8. and 8. 9. To whom] who shall neither be created nor crowned King, nor shall not obtaine the kingdome by force of of armes: but ſhall advance himſelfe as tutor to Demetrius; his nephew, the ſonne of Seleucus; and ſhall win mens hearts with preſents, curteſies, and ſecret practiſes; and ſo ſhall inſtall himſelfe in the kingdome. Peaceably] namely, by deceipts, Dan. 8. 23, 24.

V. 22. The armes] the power of Ægypt ſhall be ſuddenly aſſaulted, and overthrowne by him: which Ægypt, is a countrey that is yearely overflowne by the river Nilus: whence proceeds the great fruitfulneſſe and ſtrength of it. The Prince] namely, God Himſelfe, Dan. 8. 11, 25 who is the Prince of his people, and joyned to them by his holy covenant. And ſo in this verſe are ſummarily comprehended, Antiochus his two greateſt enterprizes; namely, upon Ægypt, and Judea: both which are afterwards more particularly ſpecified.

V. 23. with him] namely, with Ptolomeus Philometer, King of Ægypt. Shall come up] he ſhall come into Ægypt, bringing but ſmall power with him, for feare of affrighting the Ægyptians; and yet he ſhall gaine into his hands the chiefe forts.

V. 24. Peaceably] namely, into Ægypt; which at that time ſhall enjoy both peace and plenty Shall doe that] gaining the greateſt part of Ægypt, which his forefathers could never doe. He ſhall ſcatter] See concerning Antiochus his infinite bountifulneſſe to his ſouldiers, 1 Mac. 3. 30. Strong holds] of Ægypt. For a time] untill ſuch time as Philometer being come to age, drove out his garriſons.

V. 25. For they ſhall] his great ones, his Officers and Counſellors, being corrupted by Antiochus, ſhall betray him, whereby he ſhall loſe the battell.

V. 26. Deſtroy him] by their treachery they ſhall cauſe him to be overthrowne. His Army] namely, Antiochus his army:

V. 27. Hearts ſhall be] after Philometer ſhall be diſcomfited; he ſhall make peace with Antiochus, and ſhall receive him with great feaſts, and ſhewes of courteſie; but all that ſhall be but fained; both of them ſtill retaining their ancient hatreds. The end] of this falſe peace, at that time as God ſhall appoint. See v. 29, and 40.

V. 28. Shall be] namely, Antiochus. His heart] he ſhall undertake to overthrow the true worſhip of God, and to deſtroy his people, v. 21. Dan. 7. 25. and 8. 24, 1 Mac. 1. 46, 47.

V. 29. At the time] of which time ſee v. 27.

V. 30. Shall come] namely, the Romans, called by the King of Ægypt to ayd him; who ſhall come by ſea, out of the harbours of Grecia, called Chittim, Numb. 24. 24. or out of Italy and Cilicia; enjoyning Antiochus by an expreſſe embaſſage, to let Ægypt live in peace; which he ſhall doe inforcibly, and then ſhall vent his rage upon the Jewes. Shall euen returne] at the end of two yeares, 1 Mac. 1. 30. 2 Mac. 5. 24. Shall have intelligence] the Italian. ſhall lend the eare] to wicked perſwaſions, and the advices of certaine apoſtated Jewes, to oppreſſe and injure even their owne brethren, ſuch as Jaſon was, 2 Mac. 1. 7. and 4. 7. and Menelaus 2 Mac. 4. 23

V. 31. Armes] many of the mightieſt among the people ſhall follow him, 1 Mac. 1. 45. Of ſtrength] namely, of Jeruſalem, a place exceeding ſtrong by ſcituatian. Or of the Temple, which was the great Kings rocke. See Zech. 9. 12. and 11. 2. Shall take away] they ſhall bring all Gods ſervice to nothing, Dan. 8. 11. The abomination] according to ſome it is the idoll of the Olympicke Jupiter; 2 Mac. 6. 2. according to others, an idolatrous Altar erected above Gods Altar, 1 Mac. 1. 54, 59 for which things, the people refuſing to conſent to idolatry; were deſtroyed, and the Temple and Gods ſervice made deſolate.

V. 32. By flatteries] by gifts, promiſes, and allurements, he ſhall draw the Jewes to his ſide, to proſtitute themſelves to idolatry; for to draw others to it by their example. The people] namely, the true beleevers; amongſt whom, Gods true people ſhall be preſerved; ſhall ſhew themſelves conſtant, and perſeverant in his pure ſervice. Doe exploits] ſhall overcome all their temptations.

V. 33. That underſtand] thoſe whom God ſhall enlighten by his Word and Spirit; ſhall inſtruct, and ſtrengthen their brethren by their doctrine and example. Others underſtand this, of a certain religious ſociety, which was newly ſet up in thoſe dayes, called the Aſideans: that is to ſay; pious, and holy, very underſtanding and zealous in the Law of God. See 1 Mac. 2. 42. and 7. 13. 2 Mac. 14. 6.

V. 34. They ſhall be] namely, by Mattathias, and other Aſmoneans, or Maccabees, 1 Mac. 2. 1. and 2 Mac. 8. 1. Many] of Gods people; who being run into idolatry; when they ſhall ſee ſome enlargement, by the meanes of the Maccabees, ſhall unite themſelves to their brethren; yet without any inward faith or piety.

V. 35. Shall fall] many of them ſhall ſuffer martyrdome; that the triall of their faith, and the purification of their hearts and works, may be in this world, by the fire of afflictions, to their everlaſting ſalvation. See Dan. 12. 10. To the time] which is appointed by Gods counſell, to have an end of theſe perſecutions

V. 36. Above every] becauſe he ſhall forbid the uſe and exerciſe of any Religion; but only of that which he ſhall eſtabliſh, 1 Mac. 1. 43. and 3. 29. Marvellous things. See Dan. 7. 25. and 8. 10. 25. 1 Mac. 1. 46, &c. Till the] untill the time as God hath ſet downe for his judgments and viſitations of his people.

V. 37.

V. 37. Shall he regard] he shall disannull his owne ancient Religion, 1 Mac. 1. 43. Nor the desire] Antiochus shall be so rigorous in his superstition; that he shall not suffer any of his women, (wherof he shall have many, and amongst the rest a Jewesse) to use their own religion as other Kings have done, 1 Kings 11 4. & 16. 31. Others refer this to the cruely of this Kings heart, who would never be moved by any naturall affection. Unlesse the sin against nature be here meant.

V. 38. The God of] namely; the Olympian Jove, to whom Antiochus had consecrated the Temple of God, 2 Mac. 6. 2. and so he placed him, as it were, in Gods own rock, v. 31. Whom his fathers] for the said Olimpian Jove was an Athenian Idoll; and not a Syrian one: which was Antiochus his native countrey. With gold] namely, with gifts, and offerings of such things, according to the manner of Idolaters.

V. 39. Thus shall] the Italian, he shall come] that is to say; he shall seaze upon Jerusalem, and especially; upon the strong City and fort of David: which hee having well fortified and furnished with men; shall put downe Gods true service, and establish his owne abominable idolatry in the Temple, 1 Mac. 1. 35, 38. As if that Idoll were his protector against God. And increase] he shall raise these Jewes to honour, who shall take pleasure in his wicked counsels and enterprizes, as Jason, 2 Mac. 4. 7, 8. and Menelaus, 2 Mac. 4. 23, 24, 50. Whom for money he made High Priests and Governours of the people.

V. 40. The end] when God shall have set a period to Antiochus his reigne and persecutions, v. 35. The King] Philometer, King of Egypt, shall come against Antiochus: who with great strength and celerity shall set upon him, overcome him, and drive him out of his dominions, and shall victoriously over-run Egypt, and other neighbouring countries.

V. 41. The glorious land] namely, Judea. See Dan. 8. 9. & 11. 6. Overthrowne] by the incursions and spoiling of the countrey. Shall escape] because they shall hold of Antiochus his side.

V. 43. The Lybians] a people of Africa, subjects to Philometer, who after that he was overcome; submitted himselfe to Antiochus his service.

V. 44. But tydings] of the Persians and Parthians rebellion, which were nations towards the North-east of Syria; and of their invasion made upon Antiochus his dominions. Shall trouble him] in his enterprize against the Jewes, who shall have shaken off their yoake, and shall be set at liberty under Judas Maccabeus, 1 Mac. 3. 27. Goe forth] he shall send his Captaines with a mighty army, to destroy all the Jewish nation, 1 Mac. 7. 31, 35.

V. 45. Shall plant] Antiochus his army shall intrench it selfe, having the royall tent set up for a signe of full power given to his Captaines in Emmaus, betweene the Sodome and Mediterranean sea, neer to Jerusalem, 1 Mac. 3. 40. & 4. 3. and there it shall be overthrowne. In the glorious] See Psal 48. 1. Dan. 8. 9. To his end] whereof see 1 Mac. 6 8.

CHAP. XII.

Verse 1. At that time] after the destruction of all the foresaid Monarchies. See Dan. 2. 24. Michael] the Sonne of God shall appeare in the flesh; and shall by God his father be established everlasting King of the Church. See Dan. 10. 13. Josh. 5. 14. 15 Which standeth] who is their protector against all their enemies, Psal. 34. 4. A time] this seemes to have a relation to the extreame calamities, which the Jewes suffered under the Romans, after Christs ascent into heaven, Mat. 24. 21. Thy people] God shall deliver his elect out of the generall reprobation, and extermination of the Jewish nation. See Mat. 24. 22. Rom. 9. 27, 29. In the booke] of eternall life, Psal. 69. 28. Luke 10. 20. Phil. 4. 3. Rev. 3. 5. & 13. 8.

2. Many of them] the Angell goeth on to the accomplishment of Christs kingdome, and the eternall salvation of the Church, at the last Resurrection, joyned with the finall destruction of her enemies. That sleep] a Scripture terme: to shew the immortality of the soule after the death of the body; with the certainty of the resurrection. To shame] See Isay 66. 24. Rom. 9. 21.

V. 3. They that be wise] namely; the true beleevers; who in this life are inlightned by the holy Ghost in faith, shall injoy the light of glory in the kingdome of heaven. He alludes to the understanding men, of which he had spoken in the times of Antiochus, Dan. 11. 33, 35. That turne many] namely, the faithfull ministers of the Gospell. See 1 Tim. 4. 16. Iam. 5. 19, 20. As the stars] See 1 Cor. 15. 41.

V. 4. Shut up] the use and cleere understanding of these prophecies is not for this present time, v. 9, but for the times of the fulfilling of it, which is appointed by God. Shall runne to and fro] to seek out these prophecies, to be instructed, comforted, and strengthened. Knowledge] that is to say; God by his Spirit and by the events shall give full knowledge of these things: which are as yet, but obscurely foretold. See Isay 29. 18. Jer. 23. 20.

V. 5. Two] namely, Angels, besides that which had hitherto spoken to the Prophet. Of the river] whereof see Dan. 10. 4.

V. 6. Vnto the man] of which see Dan. 10. 5. Vpon the] See Dan. 8. 16. Wonders] of these admirable predictions, and strange accedents which shall befall the Church.

V. 7. That it shall be] that this desolation of the Church by Antiochus, should be accomplished in three yeares and a halfe, Dan. 7. 25. When he shall] when Antiochus had brought the people into extremity, God should miraculously releeve them.

V. 8. I understood not] namely, the secret of those times distinguished in that manner.

V. 9. Goe thy way] content thy selfe, and forbeare inquiring any further concerning these things, the knowledge whereof is reserved for its proper time; and belong neither to thee, nor to the age thou liveſt in.

V. 10. Purified] by the aforesaid persecutions. The wicked] See Dan. 11. 32. 1 Mac. 1. 12. 45. 55. None of the] the prophane and apostataes shall give no heed to these prophesies, nor shall reape any benefit, document, or comfort thereby. But the wise] of which see Dan. 11. 33. 35.

V. 11. There shall be] before Gods service be reestablished in his Temple, and it be purged from idolatry, 1 Mac. 4. 37. A thousand] which are the three yeares and a halfe mentioned V. 7. with thirteen dayes over: comprehended in the foresaid round number, or added to shew some particular time, of some accident not mentioned in Scripture.

V. 12. To the thousand] In this Number there are five and forty dayes more then in the former Number. And it is likely that they were from the re-establishment of Gods service, untill Antiochus his plague, 1 Mac. 6. 8. 9. of which he dyed, after he had languished many dayes, 1 Mac. 6. 16. whereby the people were freed from his tyranny.

V. 13. Goe thou] dispose thy selfe to end thy dayes quietly; during which thou shalt be exempt from these calamities, v. 9. and shalt keepe those great honours which thou enjoyeſt. Daniel 6. 28.

The Booke of the Prophet Hosea.

Argument.

After the ten Tribes of Iſaell were separated from the kingdome of Iudah, and from the communion of the Church, and from the pure service of God: the Lord did for all, that preserve some forme of Church amongſt them, by the preaching of his word, ministred by his Prophets: to keep his Elect in the profession of Gods covenant, and the enjoyment of his grace; and to preserve Them from those evils which then reigned, and to gather together and save the reliques of them. And also to reprove and condemne the wicked, call them to repentance, and affright them with the denunciation of Gods judgements, and finally to supply the defect of the ordinary ministery of Priests and Levites, which was quite annihilated amongst them: and to preserve Gods right amidst a Nation, which through his patience did yet beare his name and badge. Amongst these Prophets was Hosea raised up in the laſt declining of the kingdome. The summary of whose prophesies is contained in this booke, and is referred to two chiefe heads: namely, to the Law and the Gospell. In the first, he discovers, reproves, and sharply condemnes the generall corruption which reigned in the ten Tribes: Especially, in regard of the idolatry of the Calves, and Baali, the well-spring of all other vices which are either in a publick government, or in a private life: without sparing sometimes Iudah it selfe; though in a more moderate degree of reproofe, by reason of his persevering in Gods covenant and service. Then he denounces unto them, Their approaching reprobation, and finall destruction, notwithstanding all their confidence in worldly assistance and meanes, whereof he confuteth the vanity. In the second, he promiſes

Gods

Gods grace to the remainder of true and repentant Believers: and to the body of the people; their latter conversion and re-establishment under the Gospell, and to all the true spirituall Israel, taken indifferently out of all nations; their gathering together, peace, safety, regeneration, and eternall conjunction with God by Iesus Christ his Churches King and Bridegroome. Now these two heads are diversly handled. In the three first Chapters briefly and obscurely, under two figures or visions. In the rest of the booke, in clearer and plainer terms and larger discourses.

CHAP. I.

Verse 1. Ieroboam] as Amos 1.1. there were indeed other Kings of the ten Tribes untill the time of Ezekiah. But it may be, that Hosea prophesied under Jeroboam amongst the ten Tribes: and that after his reigne he came into Judah. Or that the other Kings are left out, because that under them the state was turned upside downe, by revolts and continuall troubles.

V. 2. By Hosea] or in Hosea: to signifie the inward prophetical revelation, Num. 12.6. 2 Sam. 23.2. Go take unto thee] it is likely, that all this was commanded, and seemed to the Prophet to be performed in vision: that it being related to the people, they might perceave in the lookingglasse of this Allegory, their duty towards God, and their rebellion and disloyalty; and the punishment which God would inflict upon them for it. See Hosea 3.1. A wife of whoredomes] not that she was a whore already; but that being first a married wife, she afterwards went a stray. The application of the figure to the subject, requireth that it should be so understood: whereby it appears that all this was done in vision. Children of whoredomes] which are really borne of an unlawfull copulation, though they beare thy name. For the land] I will have thee in this manner represent unto the people, their idolatries and spirituall strayings, and reprove them for it. See Psal. 73.27. Ezek. 23.35.

V. 3. Gomer] some hold it to be the name of some famous strumpet which lived in those dayes. Others; that it is a fained name: to signifie the qualities of Gods people, as well in grace (for it may signifie perfection) as in judgement; for it may be taken for the end or finall extermination. Diblaim] the reason of this name, which seemes also to be figurative; is very obscure. Some have held it to be the name of some wilderneſse, Ezek. 6.14. to shew the Churches wretched beginning in its own nature. As Cant. 3.6. Ezek. 16.7.

V. 4. Izreel] it seemes that by those three Children, was figured the ruine of the kingdome of the ten Tribes, which was effected at three severall times. The first was, when the progeny of Jehu was extinguished, 2 Kings 15.12. The other two was when the King of Assyria did invade them, 2 Kings 15.29. & 17.3,6. The blood] namely, the executions done by Jehu in Izreel. 2 Kings 9.24, 31. & 10.11,17. which were commanded by God for the re-establishment of his service; which Jehu not performing, they are imputed unto him for so many murthers. See 1 Kings 16.7. will cause to cease] for by the rooting out of the line of Jehu, the kingdome of Israel receaved such a wound, that it could never rise againe.

V. 5. Breake] I will beat down the power of Israel. I will take away from them all means of defending themselves, and of subsisting against their enemies, by the losse of some battell, or by some other accident not mentioned in Scripture. In the valley] of which, See Josh. 17.16. Judg. 6.33.

V. 6. Lo-ruhamath] that is to say; one of whom no mercy is had. Rom. 9.25. But I will] because I have pardoned them enough already.

V. 7. Of Judah] in which the covenant remained, and the service and Church of God. By the Lord] by my selfe miraculously, or by vertue of the everlasting Son of God perpetuall Head, and Saviour of his Church.

V. 9. Lo ammi] that is to say, one that is not my people, Rom. 9.25. Your] namely, your God according to the enterchangeable condition of the covenant.

V. 10 The number] this may be understood of the increase of this people in all their dispersions, untill the time of their conversion. In the place] the Italian, Instead] that is to say; by the Gospell which they shall at last receive, they will obtaine a more firme covenant and conjunction with God; being made, not onely his people and subjects; but his children by adoption of grace, and regeneration of Spirit, and holy spirituall liberty.

V. 11. The children] that is to say, at the last all Israel shall acknowledge, and accept of Christ for their head, and shall be altogether re-united to his Church, Rom. 11.12,15,25. 2 Cor. 3.16. See Isay 11.13. Jer. 3.18. Ezek. 37.16,22. Come up] they shall separate themselves from the world, to joyne themſelves to the Church, and ſo goe on the way to the Kingdome of heaven. The day] That time ſhall be admirable, by reaſon of the gathering together of the Iſraelites; which before ſeemed rather to be an Izreel (that is to ſay, a people diſperſed by God) then an Iſrael.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. Say yee unto] Thou Hoſea; and all other believers, which are amongſt theſe people, doe not hold them to be altogether rejected, to forſake them, to their owne luſts: but call them to repentance, ſetting before them, what is the duty of Gods people, ſignified by Ammi: that is to ſay; My people, towards whom, God hath not yet ſhut up the entrals of his mercy; which is ſignified by Ru-hamah.

V. 2. Plead with] Reprove the body of your Nation openly. She is not] She doth not keepe her faith which ſhe hath promiſed me: and I have already good cauſe to put her away, which I forbeare to do; through my great patience. Let her therefore put away] Let her diſpoſe her ſelfe to true chaſtity, and ſpirituall purity; uſing no more laſcivious baits and practices, to draw prophane Nations on, to trade with her in Idolatry: ſee Jer. 2. 33. and 4. 30.

V. 3. Leſt I ſtrip her] Leſt I take away from her all my bodily and ſpirituall graces, and bring her to extreme miſery: ſee Ezek. 16. 39. and 23. 26, 29. She was borne] See Ezek. 16. 4. With thirſt] that is to ſay; With the ſcorching heat of my wrath, not tempered with any grace or comfort: Jer. 2. 15. Ezek. 22. 24. Amos 8. 11, 13.

V. 4 Upon her children] Namely; Upon the particular members of this people. Of whoredomes] that is to ſay; Baſtards: having no part in the regeneration of the heavenly Father, to holineſſe of life; but being altogether corrupted like their mother: ſee John 8. 44.

V. 5. My lovers] Idols and Idolatrous people, by whoſe gift and benefit; and not the true Gods: I have plenty of all good things, v. 8. 11. See Jer. 44. 17.

V. 6. I will hedge] I will encloſe her up with difficulties, and extreme diſtreſſes; that ſhee ſhall not be able to run out at her owne pleaſure: ſee Job 3. 23. and 19. 8. Lam. 3. 7, 9.

V. 7. She ſhall follow] She ſhall ſeeke for favour and aid at their hands, but all in vaine; they ſhall all forſake her, and ſhall change their ancient love into mortall hatred: Jer. 2. 36. Ezek. 16. 27. To my firſt] namely, to God.

V. 8. which they] In making of Idols: or, in ſerving and honouring them: ſee Ezek. 7. 20. and 16. 16. Hoſ. 8. 4.

V. 9. In the time] namely, At the time which I have appointed: or, in Harveſt-time and Vintage-time. I will take away her increaſe of corne and wine, and give it for a prey unto her enemies.

V. 11. Her feaſt dayes] Which were dayes of publike rejoycing, Numb. 10. 10. and were obſerved even amongſt the ten tribes in imitation of thoſe of Judea, 1 King. 12. 32.

V. 13. Decked her ſelfe] A terme taken from laſcivious women, which decke themſelves to allure men: whereby are meant the Iſraelites prophane pomps in their Idolatries.

V. 14. Therefore] Becauſe ſhe hath quite forgotten me, and will never be converted of her ſelfe; I will prevent her by my mercy, recalling her mildly by my Goſpel. Which is referred to the laſt converſion of Iſrael. And bring her] I will bring her unto me, bringing her home from her baniſhment through many miſeries; as I brought my people out of Egypt into the land of Canaan through the wilderneſſe.

V. 15. From thence] namely; From the head of the wilderneſſe. The meaning is; that as my people comming out of the wilderneſſe, came into a moſt fruitfull countrey: ſo mine elect comming out of an extreme ſpirituall miſery, ſhall enjoy mine abundant bleſſings. Others tranſlate it, from that time forward. The valley of] Whereof mention is made, Joſ. 7. 26. Iſa. 65. 10. It was a moſt fruitfull place; at the entrance of the countrey, ſo ſoone as they were come over Jordan, and by it are meant the firſt favours, which God beſtowed on his, when they enter into his Church; which are to them certaine pledges of the increaſe, and accompliſhment of them. Of her youth] See Jer. 2. 2. Ezek. 16. 60.

V. 16. Baal] the Italian, My Baal] Baal indeed, ſignifieth husband alſo. But becauſe this name had beene prophaned by being applyed to Idols: the Lord his meaning is, That all contagion and mixture of Idolatry ſhould be cut off from his ſervice.

V. 18 A covenant] A figurative deſcription of the Churches ſpirituall peace under the Goſpel.

V. 19. Betroth thee] I will re-eſtabliſh my covenant of grace with thee, not onely to obſerve that faith which is required in all covenents; but alſo to forgive thee thy ſinnes, and not regard thine unworthineſſe.

V. 20. In faithfulneſſe] the Italian, In truth] With an invariable faith and conſtancy to maintaine and keepe my Covenant of grace with mine elect, notwithſtanding all their defects; Zech. 8. 8. Rem. 3. 3, 7.

V. 21. I will heare] the Italian, I will anſwer] I will cauſe my bleſſing to glide along, according to the order which I ſet in the creatures; which I will will re-eſtabliſh for the ſalvation of my Church.

V. 22. Jeſreel] namely, My people, which Hoſ. 1. 4. had been called Jeſreel by way of threatning, and of curſe; but here it is changed into a ſenſe of grace and promiſe; for Jeſreel may alſo ſignifie Him whom God ſoweth, or ſhall ſowe.

V. 23. Sow her] I will people the world with the ſpirituall progeny of mine elect and believers, Jer. 31. 27. Zek. 10. 9. Upon her that] the Italian Upon Lo-ruhamah] that is to ſay; My people: meant by theſe names, Hoſ. 1. 8, 10.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. Go get] For a ſigne that God had oftentimes renewed his Covenant with his people, forgiving them their ſinnes which were paſt: as eſpecially under Jehu his raigne, 2 Kings 9. 10. Love] This muſt alſo be underſtood the ſame way and in the ſame ſenſe: as Hoſ. 1. 2. Flaggons of Wine] He intimates their diſſolute manner of living; which is the ordinary companion of Idolatry: ſee Exod. 32. 6 1. Cor. 10. 7. even as corporall fornication drawes gluttony and drunkenneſſe along with it.

V. 2. I bought] the Italian, I got me] He hath a relation to the ancient cuſtome, by which huſbands did give dowries for their wives, Gen. 29. 18. 27. and 34. 12. 1 Sam. 18. 25. For fifteene] This ſo ſmall price ſeemes to ſignifie, that although God did in ſome manner hold on his Covenant with the ten tribes; yet he communicated but ſome ſmall parcels of his graces unto them; beſtowing the whole plenty upon Judah

V. 3. And I ſaid] namely, after ſhe had gone aſtray. Thou ſhalt abide] that is to ſay; I will ſeparate thee from mee for ſome time; keeping thee, as it were ſhut up, to hinder thine unſtaidneſſe: untill ſuch time as I take thee to me againe; as I intend to doe, not putting thee away from mee for ever.

V. 4. For the] By this figure, I will have thee to ſet forth the ſtate of thy people, which for their Idolatries, ſhall be ſeperated from the grace and communion of their God; without any Kingdome or forme of common wealth: and without any exercise of true Religion, or yet of Idolatry, untill the time of their converſion to Gods grace by the Goſpel. Ephod] The name of a Prieſtly garment, Exod. 28. 4. under which is comprehended all the ſervice of the Church.

V. 5. David] namely; The Meſſias, the Son of David according to the fleſh: ſee Jer. 30. 9. Ezek. 34. 23, 24. This is oppoſite and contrary to the ſeparation of the ten tribes from the Kingdome of Judah.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. They breake out] Others, they commit theſts. And blood] every thing is full of murthers.

V. 3. Shall the land] A deſcription of an extreme and univerſall deſolation: as Jer. 4. 25. and 12. 4.

V. 4. Yet let no man] Notwithſtanding theſe great and publique ſinnes in which the falſe Prophets doe flatter and ſooth up the people. Let not the true Prophets prophane my Word, by ſpeaking it to theſe obſtinate and hardened rebels, I will contend with them by effects, and puniſhments, and no more by words and reproofes: So this agreeth well with what was ſpoken, v. 2. Th t ſt ive] That undertake to withſtand Gods right, whileſt the high Prieſt declares unto them, Deut. 17. 12 and is the laſt degree of boldneſſe: ſee Rom 2. 8. and 10. 21.

V. 5. Shalt thou fall] He directs his ſpeech to each particular perſon among the people. In the day] Theſe words in the day, and in the night, doe ſeeme to intimate a continuance of ruine. Others tranſlate it, to day: that is to ſay; within a ſhort time. The Prophet] namely; all the falſe Prophets. Thy mother] All the whole body of the Kingdome and Nation.

V. 6. For lacke] For of themſelves have no lively light of my Word; and they will fully put out that which I preſent unto them, and doe refuſe all manner of inſtruction; Iſa. 5. 13. Thou haſt] This ſeemes to be ſpecially directed to the Prieſts and other Eccleſiaſticall perſons, whoſe chiefe duty is to teach and inſtruct. See Deut. 33. 10. Mal. 2. 7.

V. 7. Increaſed] namely; In dignity and authority: for this is alſo referred to the Porters.

V. 8. They eate] They fatten themſelves with the ſacrifices which my people offer for their ſins, and are greedy after them; and take no care of their converſion.

V. 9. There ſhall be] They ſhall be alſo taken in the generall deſolation, without any difference or reſpect borne to their office.

V. 12. Aske counſell] In ſteed of ſeeking after Gods Oracle to have counſell given them in difficult caſes. Their ſtocks] namely; Their Idols made of wood. Their ſtaffe] Some thinkes he hath a relation to an antient manner of divining by ſtaves and rods: Others doe hold; that here are meant the South-ſayers and Magicians rods: as, Exod 7. 12. The ſpirit] namely, The inclination and affection to Idolatry, kindled in the heart of man by the evill ſpirit: ſee Iſa. 44. 20.

V. 13. Your daughters] I will puniſh your Idolatry latry by abandoning your daughters, and your ſpouſes, to an infamous and unbridled luſt, which ſhall not be repreſſed by the Lawes or Magiſtrates puniſhments, nor amended by mine: ſee Amos 7.17.

V.14. Are ſeparated] From me; cutting themſelves off from my covenant and communion by joyning themſelves to Harlots, which were excommunicate from amongſt Gods people, Prov.2.16. and 6.24. See of this ſeparation, Prov. 18.1. Ezek. 14.7. Hoſ. 9.10. Jude 19.

V.15. Unto Gilgal] In this place, whereof ſee Joſ. 5.9. and 12.12. Amos 4.4. Beth-aven] It is the ſame as Bethel; but becauſe Bethel ſignifieth Houſe of God, Gen. 28.17. And that this place had been prophaned by the Idolatrie of the Calves: 1 King.12.29. The Prophets do often call it Beth-aven: that is to ſay; The houſe of an Idoll, or the houſe of vanity: Hoſ. 5.8. and 10.5. being that neer unto Bethel, there was another high place, called Beth-aven, Joſ. 7.2. The Lord] According to the manner of Idolaters, who pretended they did ſweare by the true God, when they ſwore by thoſe Calves: Amos 8.14. For the ten tribes did profeſſe that they worſhipped God in them; imitating Aaron, Exod.32.5. 2 Kings 10.16. which notwithſtanding was reproved by God.

V.16. Will feed them] Seeing they have beene ſo rebellious, and have loved liberty ſo well; I will grant it them: but to their ruine, like to the liberty of a Lambe in the wilderneſſe, where it would be expoſed to a thouſand dangers and miſeries. Unleſſe he threaten them with the deſolation of the countrey, and with the ſmall number which ſhould remaine in it.

V.17. Ephraim] The ten tribes called by the name of the chiefe tribe. Let him alone] Separate thy ſelfe from him, O Judah! Or every beleever.

V.18. Their drinke] A proverbiall ſpeech to ſhew the peoples coruption in the whole ſervice of God: Pſal.14.1. Iſa.1.22. Their Rulers] The Rulers of this people doe baſely covet preſents, which diſgraceth all the government.

V.19. The wind] The people ſhall be ſcattered, as it were by a ſtrong puffe of wind or ſtorme. Be aſhamed] Seeing themſelves fallen from the hope which they had conceived, and deceived in the truſt which they had repoſed in them: or they ſhall be diſgraced: that is to ſay; they ſhall fall into extreme miſery and ignominy through their Idolatries.

CHAP. V.

Verſ.1. Houſe of the King] namely, Yee that are the Kings Officers, Miniſters, and Counſellors. Judgement] namely, The charge of doing right and juſtice belongeth to you, and yee have beene the chiefe authors of extortion and injury; as it is ſaid afterwards. A ſnare] You have laid ſnares to entrap the innocent in their lives and goods, as Fowlers doe upon the hils of Mizpah and Tabor.

V.2. The revolters] termes taken from ſuch as are high way robbers. Profound] Heb. in ſecret places: which ſome expound, in great number. I have been] that is to ſay; I that am the ſupreame Lord, will looke over, and correct their judgements: and make their falſe Judges give an account. Or I will be he, that ſhall reprove and puniſh all theſe iniquities.

V.4. They will not] for their works will not ſuffer them to be converted.

V.5. Doth teſtifie] their impudent boldneſſe in ſinning, and contemning of God, makes them notoriouſly guiltry, and altogether inexcuſable.

V.6. With their flocks] to offer ſacrifices.

V.7. They have] like an adulterous woman, which conceives and brings forth by others, beſides her husband. The meaning is; the peoples corruptneſſe ſheweth it ſelfe in this; that publicke orders ſerve for nothing, but to make them fitting for idolatry, and not to turne and amend them. A moneth] a ſhort time will ſerve for to root them quite out. See Zech.11.8.

V.8. Blow ye] A repreſentation of the enemies ſudden arrivall; as it were, by a ſignall given from thoſe high places of Benjamin; which bordered upon the kingdome of the ten Tribes. Beth-aven] A City ſituated between Ephraim, and Benjamin, Joſ.7.2. and 18.12. After thee] the City of Beth-aven, being a little beyond Benjamins countrey.

V.9. That which] namely, the denunciation of this irrevocable threatening.

V.10. Were like] they doe violate all the lawes, which are, as it were, The publike bounds of every ones right: and in their judgements, doe overthrow partieular mens titles, concerning the lawfull poſſeſſion of their goods. Like water] like a cloud, or a deluge of waters.

V.11. In judgement] by the abuſe of publicke orders, and by the tyranny of its Kings and Princes: which God ſuffereth for a puniſhment for their willingly conſenting and obeying the orders made by their Kings; for the eſtabliſhment of idolatry, 1 King.12.28.

V.12. Will I be] I will cauſe them by little and little, to conſume themſelves with diſorders, and inward evils, untill they be quite overthrowne.

V.13. His ſickneſſe] namely, the evils that conſume them. Then went] hath required his aſſiſtance, 2 King.15.19. To King Jareb] the Italian, to a King] namely, to Tiglat Vilezor, King of Aſſyria, 2 King.16.7.

V.14.

V.14. And goe away] A terme taken from wilde beaſts; which, when they have taken any prey, doe run away preſently: ſo that the prey cannot be reſcued from them.

V.15. Returne to] I will take away the preſence of my grace from them, as if I did ſhut my ſelfe up in heaven.

CHAP. VI.

Ver.1. Come] It ſeemes to be a diſcourſe of the people repenting, being the ſequell of the precedent Chapter.

V.2. After two dayes] in a very ſhort time he will reſtore us, as it were, from death to life. Others hold it to be a ſecret prophecye of Chriſts Reſurrection, the third day after his death. In his] under his protection and favour, participating of his grace, and in his feare and obedience.

V.3. His going forth] the manifeſtation of his grace in his ſonne, ſhall be in its appointed time, and ſhall keep its ordinary courſe, as the Sun doth at his riſing. See Prov.4.18. As the later and] See Job 29.23.

V.4. Your goodneſſe] all the ſhewes you make of converting your ſelves to Me, and ſerving and fearing of Me; have no firmeneſſe nor continuance. He hath a relation to the frequent reformations of Gods worſhip: which were never of any long durance amongſt the children of Iſrael. As a morning cloud] which is ſuddenly diſperſed, at the riſing of the Sun.

V.5. Hewed them] I have ſeverely reproved, chidden, and threatened them; to ſet them upright: like unto a peece of knotty and crooked timber. I have ſlaine them] I have judged, and condemned them to death. See 1 King.19.17. Jer.1.10. 2 Cor.10.5,6. Thy judgements] my threatenings, and the ſentence which I have pronounced againſt thee; have every morning been declared unto thee, by my Prophets. Jer.7.13. and 11.7. and 35.14. that ſeeming to be the houre which was appointed for the Prophets preaching.

V.6. For I] I have condemned you for all your ſacrifices, and externall ſervice; wherewith I am not ſatisfied: but deſire the inward and true ſervice, in piety towards God, and charity towards our neighbours.

V.7. The covenant] the Italian addeth, As Adam] the firſt ſinner of all; who broke Gods firſt Covenant with mankinde; whence followed the generall curſe upon all men. See Job 31.33. Iſa.43.27.

V.8. Gilead] it is thought to be Ramoth Gilead, Joſ.20.8. which was one of the Cities of refuge: for thoſe that had committed ſome murther unawares; and he ſeemes to inferre, that it was a refuge for ſuch alſo as had committed wilfull murthers. See Hoſ.12.11.

V.9. The company] or the league, and conſpiracy; as Jer.11.9. Ezek.22.25. By conſent] the Italian, towards Sichem] which was alſo a City of refuge, Joſ.20.7. and belonged to the Levites, Joſ.21.21. whereby it may ſeeme, that Jeroboam had placed ſome falſe Prieſts there, which he had made himſelfe. See Hoſ.5.2. which Prieſts committed many outrages and murthers upon them which frequented the Temple of Jeruſalem, contrary to his command; or generally, upon all travellers. For they] I doe liken theſe Prieſts violences to theft; for they are cruell and inſufferable.

V.11. Judah] that is to ſay; O yee tenne Tribes! though now you have no plants of true beleevers left amongſt you; yet you ſhall be filled with them againe: When by meanes of the Goſpell, which ſhall come forth of Jeruſalem, Pſal.110.2. Iſa.2.3. God ſhall deliver his elect of all Nations out of their ſpirituall captivity; and at the laſt, the whole body of his people Iſrael alſo, Jer.31.5.

CHAP. VII.

Ver.1. When I] when I have ſought to correct the ſinnes of my people by my word: their ſecret wickedneſſe, and inward hardneſſe hath manifeſted it ſelfe; as it often happeneth in bodily infirmities. Commeth in] into the houſes to ſteale.

V.2. Have beſet them] like unto ropes and ſnares; that they may no longer eſcape my judgements, Prov.5.22. or the puniſhments of their miſdeeds have bound them. They are] they commit their miſdeeds boldly and openly. Or, I keep them in minde, and they are alwayes before me.

V.3. They make] all their wickednesſes are made occaſions of mirth and paſtime; even by the Judges and Magiſtrates themſelves. A ſigne of an extreame corruption.

V.4. As an Oven] A ſimilitude taken from common Ovens; to repreſent unto us an unbridled kind of concupiſcence: to fulfill the Which, all meanes are uſed.

V.5. In the day] namely, the day of his Birth, or of his Coronation; his Courtiers have perſwaded him to drunkenneſſe: Whereupon, having laid aſide all manner of Majeſty, he hath done acts, befitting a jeſter, or jugler.

V.6. For they have] the Italian, when they have] when they have plotted ſome treachery; they hatch it within themſelves ſecretly, untill ſuch time as the paſſion of deſire, or of revenge, being come to the height, breaks out in effects. See Mic.2.1.

V.7. They are all] this Rage, discovers it selfe chiefly in their seditions, frequent conspiracies, and murthers of their Kings, 1 King.15.27. and 16.9,10,21. and 2 King.9.14. and 15.10,14,25,30. There is none] they are so possessed with an affection to evill; that they cannot thinke upon me, to call upon me in these publicke disorders: nor to be rightly converted to me.

V.8. Hath mixed himselfe] by treaties, leagues, and commerces; which have brought them into the participation of idolatry and vices. As a cake] as who should say; he is neither raw, nor baked: which may be referred, either to the mixture and indifferency of Religions: or to that; being as it were, all fired by Gods judgements; he was not one whit humbled or amended by it: but was still raw in impenitency and obstinacy.

V.9. Gray haires] he is decayed, by meanes of old age.

V.10. For all this] for all these foresaid punishments.

V.11. They call to] to ayde, and releeve them; and would not come to me. See 2 King.15.19. and 17.4. Hos.5.13.

V.12. I will spread] I will curse their endeavours, and make the issue thereof be to their ruine and confusion. As their] as it hath been foretold and declared by my Prophets, 2 King.17.13.

V.13. They have spoken] when I have delivered them, they have made false protestations to me of future faithfulnesse and service. Or they have spoken lies against me; attributing their deliverance to men, or to idols; and all their afflictions to me.

V.14. They have not cryed] by true and sincere prayers of faith; but have only howled when they have felt their evils. Or through grumbling and impatience. See Job 35.9. They assemble] to make publicke supplications.

V.15. Strengthened] I have compared my punishments; and have given them strength to beare them, and not to be overthrowne by them. Or after I have scourged them; I have re-established them. Mischiefe] by their rebellion and Apostasie.

V.16. They returne] they have no stedfastnesse nor uprightnesse towards Me; but are like an ill stringed or ill fashioned bow: or a bow which turneth in the Archers hand, Psal.78.57. For the rage] through their blasphemies against me; and their proud boasts and insolencie: which were hatefull, even to the Egyptians, who were their friends.

CHAP. VIII.

Ver.1. SEt the] as it were, to give warning of the enemies comming, Hos.5.8. He shall come] namely, the King of Assyria. The house] namely, against the children of Israel, amongst whom God had his habitation; as in his Temple or Palace.

V.2. Shall cry] out of season, for being heard: And out of the meere feeling of evil, without faith, piety, or conversion; as Job 27.9. Prov.1.27. Isa.1.15. Mic.3.4. we] Thou hast revealed thy selfe unto us by thy law and word. And we make profession of being thy people. See Mat.7.21,22. Luke 13.26,27.

V.3. Hath cast off] they have strayed from all piety and righteousnesse. Or they are the cause, that all my grace and blessing is gone away from them.

V.4. They have] the people of their owne proper motion, without enquiring after my will, or staying for my command, or permission; have chosen and made Kings of their owne heads; separating themselves from the lawfull rule of Davids posterity, 1 King.11.31. though this happened according to Gods secret providence, Hos.13.11.

V.5. O Samaria] namely; O you ten Tribes! whose chiefe City is Samaria: your idolatry with your calves hath been the chiefe cause of your being scattered out of your owne Countrey. Or, your Calfe hath been carried away into a far countrey; namely, into Assyria: As the idols of Nations, which were overcome; were carried away captive in triumph by the conquerors. See Hos.10.6.

V.6. Was it] the Italian, that Calfe came] the worship of Calves; in which the children of Israel professe they worship the true God; is false and reproved by God; being but a humane invention, as all other idolatries are. Broken in peeces] the Italian, shall be reduced into sparkles] the stuffe being laid againe upon the anvill by the Workeman,

V.7. They have] A proverbiall kind of speech: that is to say; they have studied vaine things, and shall reape nothing thereby; but dammage and ruine. If so be it] if their counsell should bring forth any seeming commodity or profit, the enemies shall take it away from them.

V.8. Is swallowed up] spoyled by the Assyrians, and laid waste. May be, hath a relation to what is written, 2 King.15.19,20. They be] the Nations, whose favour they seeke after, doe disdaine them, and neglect them, as an old broken vessell, fit for none but uncleane uses, Jer.22.28. and 48.38.

V.9. A wilde asse] A savage people, inhumane, and intractable, that care for no body. See Job 39.8,9. Jer.2.24.

V.10. Gather them] bring them up in armes against the people of Israel, for to destroy them. See Ezek.16.37. A little] the last evils which they shall endure, shall be so extreame, that the burthen burthen of the Tribute, which they paid to the King of Aſſyria; wherewith they have found themſelves ſo much oppreſſed, 2 King. 17. 3, 4. ſhall be eſteemed but a very light thing. Of the King] of the greateſt Monarch of the World, 2 King. 18. 19. Dan. 2. 37.

V. 11. Becauſe Ephraim] becauſe my people would commit idolatry without any end or meaſure: I have given them over to doe ſo; becauſe they might heap up their meaſure.

V. 12. The great things] namely, the admirable and precious Revelation and Doctrine. But they were] they have contemned them: as if they had been things which no way concerned them.

V. 13. They ſacrifice] in their ſacrifices of Thankſgiving (whereof a certaine portion was aſſigned to them that offered them, to make their ſacred Feaſts therewith) they never had any regard to any devotion towards me; but regarded onely their owne bellies: ſo that, it is no longer a ſacrifice; but prophane fleſh. See Jer. 7. 21. They ſhall returne] hoping to be relieved there; they ſhall be made ſlaves againe, as they had been formerly, Jer. 44. 12. Hoſ. 9. 3. according to the threatening, Deut. 28. 68.

V. 14. His Maker] that created them, as concerning nature; and hath afterwards made them his people, through his Covenant of grace, Pſal. 100. 3. Iſa. 29. 23. Eph. 2. 10. Temples] to Idols: or to the true God; but againſt Gods commandement: who approved but of one, where he had placed the ſignes of his preſence. Upon his cities] putting their truſt in them; for their deliverance and ſafety, Iſa. 22. 8, 9.

CHAP. IX.

Ver. 1. Rejoyce not] preſuming, that thine Idolatry ſhall ſcape unpuniſht: or that God will cauſe it to proſper; as it happeneth to other prophane people. See Ezek. 20. 32. Amos 3. 2. For thou] that, which in other Nations is but meere ignorance, in thee is meere Apoſtaſie and rebellion. Thou haſt loved] thou haſt proſtituted thy ſelfe to a looſe idolatry; like to a common whore, that goeth a whoring up and downe the threſhing floores. Or he doth meane ſome particular kinde of idolatry; which was uſed in the time of harveſt and threſhing: as if they would have acknowledged their increaſe to come by their Idols goodneſſe, Hoſ. 2. 5.

V. 3. Uncleane things] being not able, by reaſon of their miſery and ſlavery, to obſerve the diſtinction of meats, which was appointed by the Law: Or, being alſo oftentimes conſtrained to eat things conſecrated to Idols.

V. 4. Offer wine] all their ſacrifices and offerings being prophaned by their impietie; are rejected by God: and they themſelves, in ſtead of being ſanctified by them, are polluted thereby; as they ſhould be by funerall and mourning feaſts: whereof, ſee upon Deut. 26. 14. For their] they offer ſacrifices to me, only to make their feaſts thereof, Hoſ. 8. 13. Zech. 7. 6. Let them therfore keep them, as a common kinde of fleſh, and not offer them to me through hypocriſie, as if they were holy.

V. 5. What will ye doe] when I ſhall have deſtroyed you, and driven you out (as he ſhall ſay hereafter) ſhall take away from you the meanes of feaſting, as you doe at this preſent, abuſing my feaſts; the rejoycing at which, ſhould be altogether holy.

V. 6. They are gone] he repreſents their flight and exile, as a thing that had happened already. Deſtruction] by their enemies. Shall poſſeſſe] the Inhabitants being driven out, or dead; all manner of wilde beaſts ſhall grow up there.

V. 7. The Prophet] namely, the falſe Prophets, who faine themſelves to be inſpired by God; and flatter the people, feeding them with vaine hopes. The great hatred] namely, of God againſt you.

V. 8. The Watchman] namely; the faithfull Prophets, who are the Churches Watchmen, Iſa. 21. 11. and 62. 6. Ezek. 3. 17. are dead, and gathered up into their heavenly reſt. The falſe Prophets, which are now living, are ſo farre from keeping it from ruine; that they drive it, and caſt it downe headlong into it. And hatred] the Italian, and cauſe of hatred] the chiefe occaſion of Gods wrath; and of the reprobation of Gods people; who are, as it were, his family. In the houſe] as Hoſ. 8. 1.

V. 9. Deeply] totally, to the bottome: as Iſa. 31. 6.

V. 10. I found] I tooke great delight in my people, in their firſt beginnings: even as if a traveller ſhould finde grapes in a deſert place; or ſome rare fruit that were ripe before the ſeaſon. See Iſa. 28. 4. Mic. 7. 1. but they were quickly ſtained with idolatry; in which you doe yet perſevere at this time. At her firſt time] when the Fig-tree firſt begins to bud. They went to] to commit fornication by idolatry, Numb. 25. 3. Separated] from God to goe after idols, Hoſ. 4. 14. That ſhame] idols are ſo called by way of abomination, Jer. 3. 24. and 11. 13. and eſpecially Baal-peor, whoſe ſhape and worſhip was moſt obſcene. According as] like unto the idoll.

V. 11. Their glory] which conſiſted chiefly in their great number; wherewith God hath bleſſed them, and raiſed them to be the chiefe of the ten Tribes. See Gen. 48. 19 From the birth] by the ſudden death of their children, ſo ſoone as they ſhall be borne: or ſo ſoone as they ſhall be formed in the wombe; or ſo ſoone as they ſhall be conceived; or before, by the barrenneſſe of the mothers.

V. 12. Bereave them] By a violent death: Job 27. 14.

V. 13. As I ſaw] the Italian, Whileſt I looked upon him] that is to ſay; Whileſt I favoured and bleſſed him: Tyrus] A very faire and magnificent City: Ezek. 26. and 27. 28. Bring forth] Yeelding to the enemy, who ſhall put them to death: or, bringing them forth to battell.

V. 14 Give them] I deſire this for a favour at thy hands, namely, That thou cauſe them not to be brought forth into the world; or, that thou ſuffer them not to be brought up; rather then to cauſe them to periſh thus wretchedly after they are growne to ripe yeeres.

V. 15. All their] namely, A great part of their Idolatries and other offences. I will drive] I will no longer take them for my children.

V. 16. Is ſmitten] As by fire or thunder from God; whereby all power of recovering themſelves ſhall be taken from them: and if they doe multiply in children; I will curſe them, and root them out.

CHAP. X.

Verſ. 1. A Nempty Vine] After they have been deſolated and preyed upon by their enemies, or deprived of my favour, and laid waſte like a wilderneſſe: I have in part reſtored them, and have made them to proſper; but the more I have bleſſed them; the more they are become Idolatrous.

V. 2. Is divided] Having taken away the ſpirit of peace and concord from them, he hath given them over to ſeditions, factions, and frequent murthers of Princes, which will cauſe the utter ruine of the Kingdome: ſee 2 Kings 15. 10, 14, 25, 30.

V. 3. For now] Within a very ſhort time. what then ſhould] Though we had one; yet he could not free us or defend us.

V. 4. Swearing] To God, and promiſing him converſion and ſervice: Or, to their King, binding themſelves to be faithfull to him: Or, to the King of Aſſyria; being ſubject to him: 2 King. 17. 3, 4. Thus judgement] Gods puniſhments ſhall multiply like Cicuta; or other poyſonous herbes, which grow in abundance in the fields.

V. 5 Becauſe of] Seeing their Idols taken and carried away by the enemies. The Calves] the Italian, The Sheep-calves] He calleth thoſe Calves ſo in contempt. Of Beth-aven] See Hoſ. 4 15. Thereof] the Italian, Of the Calfe] A people that deſerves no more to be called Gods people; but the Calfe their Idols people. See Numb 21. 29. For the glory] Becauſe it ſhall be no more worſhipped nor reverenced as a God.

V. 6. It ſhall be] namely, That Calfe; according to the cuſtome of carrying away the Idols of thoſe Nations which were conquered by warre: ſee Iſa. 46. 2. To King Iareb] the Italian, To the King Protector] namely, The King of Aſſyria, whom the Iſraelites have choſen for their Protector and Defendor, Hoſ. 5. 13. Ephraim] Or ſhame ſhal overtake Ephraim. Of his] namely, Of that which he hath undertaken of his owne mind, beyond, and againſt the will of God, Pſal. 106. 43. Hoſ. 11. 6.

V. 7. The ſome] the Italian, A bubble] Which is ſuddenly framed upon the water when it raines, or when the water boyles; and paſſeth away alſo in an inſtant.

V. 8. Of Aven] Which is the ſame as Beth-aven. The ſinne] The object and inſtruments of Idolatry, Deut. 9. 21. Cover us] Words of ſuch perſons as deſire death, for feare of evils that are greater than death; and of ſuch as are in deſpaire.

V. 9. From the dayes] that is to ſay; The horrible ſinnes of Gibeah: Judg. 19. 22. which were then ſo ſeverly puniſhed, doe ſtill continue, and increaſe in thee. They ſtood] Though their fathers were no better then they of Gibeah, againſt whom they warred, becauſe of their infamous wickednesſes; yet the Lord delivered them out of thoſe bloody battels.

V. 10. Chaſtice them] Now, that they have heaped up their meaſure: I will ſatisfie my wrath with their juſt puniſhment. Two ſorrowes] This hath a relation to the two invaſions of the King of Aſſyria: 2 Kings 15. 29. and 17. 3. And becauſe the Aſſyrians had beene as the lovers of the children of Iſrael, Hoſ. 8. 9, 10. the Prophet uſeth a word which ſignifieth an appointment of ſome unchaſte meeting.

V. 11. And Ephraim] As a luſty Heyfer which is uſed to threſh corne upon the floore, loues that trade, partly; becauſe ſhe is free from the yoake, and doth not take much paines: partly, becauſe ſhe hath good food: even ſo my people would enjoy my bleſſings, but would not be ſubject to the yoake of mine obedience and diſcipline. But I paſſed] I will tame her, and bring her into ſubjection.

V. 12. Sowe to your ſelves] Endevour your ſelves to doe good workes, and the Lord ſhall be propitious to you; prepare your hearts, which are like a waſte ground, by true repentance: to receive Gods grace, which is like a ſhowre of raine. In righteouſneſſe] namely; In his grace and bleſſing, according to the truth of his promiſes. Others doe underſtand this to be ſpoken by Chriſt, who brought the true righteouſneſſe into the world: Dan 9. 24. To receive which, the preparation of the heart is neceſſarily required.

V. 13. Have plowed] By Art and Endevour, you have ſtirred up and practiſed your native malice, lice, to cauſe it to produce many evill acts. Wickedneſſe] namely, The juſt puniſhment thereof. Have eaten] You have in effect, tried what vanity there was in your hopes, grounded upon your wickednesſes, and upon humane ſtrength.

V. 14. Shalman] This hiſtory is mentioned no where elſe: ſome hold this to be the ſame as Shalmaneſer: 2 Kin. 17. 3. and Betharbel to be the name of ſome city, taken and deſtroyed by him, 1 Mac. 9. 2. There is mention made of Arbela, which may be the ſame as this. The mother] A proverbiall kind of ſpeech, to deſcribe a totall deſtruction: See Gen. 32. 11.

V. 15. Soſhall] Your Idolatry which you run headlong into; the chiefe place whereof is Bethel; ſhall be the cauſe of your deſtruction in the ſame kind. In a morning] As ſoone as the day prefixed for Gods judgements to light upon him, ſhall appeare.

CHAP. XI.

Verſ. 1. WHen Iſrael] In its firſt beginnings, namely, When it firſt began to be a Nation in Egypt: Jerem. 2. 2. Ezek. 16. 22.

V. 2. Called them] namely, My Prophets exhorted them to repentance; and to my true ſervice, which was the chiefe end, for which they were called out of Egypt, Exod. 4. 23.

V. 3. I taught] I have been as a nurſe to him: Deut. 32. 10, 11. Healed them] that is to ſay; Delivered them from all evill: Exod. 15. 26. and 23. 25.

V. 4. I drew them] A phraſe taken from cattell bred up to carry or draw; which by a good Maſter, are uſed gently, and brought to their labour without any violence. The yoake] By which muſt be underſtood, the muſroll; for otherwiſe a yoake doth not uſe to be laid upon the jawes.

V. 5. Returne] The body of this nation ſhall not goe for fafety into Egypt, which a friends countrey; but they ſhall goe into captivity to Aſſyria, an enemies countrey; and herein will I enforce them to obey my command: Deut. 17. 16.

V. 6. His branches] All his forces and defences; as wel thoſe which conſiſt in ſtrong towns, as thoſe which conſiſt in the valor of men. Counſels] Their actions and enterprizes which they have undertaken by their own advice: Pſal. 106. 43. Hoſ. 10. 6.

V. 7. Are bent] They deſire and expect that I ſhould turne in favour to them, and relieve them: whereas they ſhould turne to me by repentance; which they will not doe.

V. 8. Give thee up] Though thou deſerveſt to be irrevocably deſtroyed; as thoſe wicked cities were: Gen. 19. 24. Deut. 29. 23. yet my mercy will not ſuffer it; and therefore I promiſe thee reeſtabliſhment, by meanes of the Meſſias. Are kindled together] the Italian, Are moved] or, Are heated: ſee Gen. 43. 30. Lam. 1. 20.

V. 9. I will not] With extremity of rigor, and without remiſſion. I will not returne] to ſave the remnant of mine elect amongſt the people; I will not conſume them wholly by a redoubling of evils. I am God] And therefore moſt true, and invariable in all my promiſes: Numb. 23. 19. The holy one] I will be in the midſt of thee, in grace and ſpirit; as thy true God-head, object of all thy Devotion, Religion and worſhip; and the wel-ſpring and author of all thy holineſſe; and I will not be there any more as thine enemy.

V. 10. After the Lord] Who ſhall manifeſt himſelfe to them in grace and ſalvation in Chriſt. Roare] He ſhall cauſe the powerfull voyce of his Goſpel to ſound all the world over; by which the conſciences being moved, ſhall come to him: Hag. 2. 6, 7. Heb. 12. 26. The children] The true elect; children of grace ſhall joyne themſelves in ſpirit to the communion of the Church, from all the ends of the world, where they have beene ſcattered.

V. 12. Compaſſeth me] In all their actions they are diſloyall unto me. Judah] In the tribe of Judah, which hath not forſaken Gods pure ſervice; there doth yet remaine the lawfull government of Davids poſterity. Is faithfull] He perſevereth in my covenant, holding himſelfe to the faith and Religion of his holy ancient forefathers: or, to that which is taught them; by Gods holy ſervants, the Prophets and Prieſts.

CHAP. XII.

Verſ. 1. FEedeth] He builds upon vaine means, and feeds himſelfe with frivolous and ruinous hopes (the Eaſterne wind being very tempeſtuous in thoſe countreys) continuing in his ſinnes; and thinking to eſcape Gods judgements by ſtrange and unlawfull covenants. Oyle] the Italian, ſweet ſmelling oyles] Whereof there was great plenty in Judea: 2 Kings 20. 13.

V. 2. The Lord] That which I have ſpoken in praiſe of Judah, is not to free him from all defects; for he hath alſo his grievous faults; but becauſe Gods true ſervice is yet remaining there: God wil yet reprove and redargue him with words; but as for the ten tribes, he will judge them with deeds; ſeeing they are almoſt become incapable of all correction.

V. 3. In the wombe] Theſe hiſtories ſeeme to be alledged here, to reprove Iſrael for their ingratitude, after ſo many great benefits of God towards their foreſathers: which he reduces to two heads, figured here in these two histories: One is Jacobs election before Esau his brother: the Other his deliverance from all those evills wherewith God had tried and exercised him. By his strength] Which was given him by Gods grace. A figure of the spirituall strength of the faith and spirit. With God] With the Son of God, who appeared to Jacob in humane shape; who also by reason of his office of Mediator; is afterwards called Angel.

V. 4. He wept] This weeping may be referred to that which is said; Gen. 35. 8. And it seemes, it was a weeping upon some solemne time of supplication. With us] namely; With Jacob our father, confirming Gods promises to him and all his Posterity: Gen. 35. 11.

V. 5. The Lord is] He hath take this name of Eternall with his people: Exod. 3. 14, 15. for a pledge of the truth of his promises; and therefore he will without faile performe them, if we doe turne to him.

V. 7. He is] namely; Ephraim is degenerate, and hath taken upon him the customes and manners of a Canaanite, being wholly addicted to dishoneſt gaine; to deceits and avarice: see Ezek. 16. 3. Is a Merchant] the Italian, A Canaanite] A Nation whose ordinary exercise was merchandizing, with all the vices which were annexed unto it: and therefore that Name is taken for a Merchant, and very often also for a deceiver.

V. 8. My labours] I have not stained my trading with any great misdeed; onely I have used certaine subtilties and crafts therein, as were not subject to the Law: words of a prophane and cauterized conscience.

V. 9. I that am] Although thou beest so corrupt; yet will I observe mine ancient covenant which I made, even in the land of Egypt, towards my true Israel in spirit. An Evangelicall promise. Will yet make thee] I will deliver my Church from the spirituall Egypt; and will make her passe through the wildernesse of the world, in particular Churches, aspiring towards the heavenly Canaan: even as my people dwelt in Tents in the Wilderneſſe; the remembrance whereof is celebrated in the feast of the Tabernacles: Lev. 23. 43. See Zech. 14. 16.

V. 10. Spoken] the Italian, I will speake] I will largely manifest my selfe by my Word: see Joel 2. 28. Similitudes] grave sentences and doctrines, illustrated with similitudes, according to the Holy Ghosts stile.

V. 11. Vanity] They are altogether drowned in Idolatry. They sacrifice] To Idols: or, peradventure, also to the true God; but, beyond his command; wherefore it is all Idolatry. As heaps] that is to say; They are innumerable, and at the end of every field: see Hos. 8. 11. and 10. 1.

V. 12. Hid] The meaning seemes to be: Remember the first voyage, which was Jacobs, in extreme misery and servitude; and the second, which was your comming out of Egypt in a glorious deliverance by the hands of Moses: that you may be afraid; lest I cause you to make a third, into wretched captivity.

V. 13. Preserved] Even like unto a flocke of sheep: Psal. 77. 20. Isa. 63. 11.

V. 14. His blood] He will not pardon him his sinne, nor cleanse him from it; but will keepe it still in remembrance, to punish him for it at his appointed time: See Ezek. 24. 7, 8.

CHAP. XIII.

Verse 1. WHen] time was that the tribe of Ephraim having the rule of the ten Tribes, was terrible through its power: but now, that it hath strayed, and is runne into Idolatry; its strength and glory is come to nothing, like unto a dead carkase.

V. 2. They say] the Kings of the Tribe of Ephraim, do command the people to follow the idolatry which they have established, 1 Kings 12. 28. Kisse the] whosoever will do Gods service, let him come and worship the Calves which Jeroboam hath set up; Kissing being an act and token of worship and religious honour. See 1 Kings 19. 18. Psal. 2. 12.

V. 3. They shall be] they shall not be stedfast, but shall quickly be dispersed and brought to nothing.

V. 5. Know thee] that is to say, I took care of thee and provided all things necessary for thee.

V. 6. According to their] through too much fatnesse and plenty, they are become fierce and untamed, Deut. 8. 12. & 32. 15.

V. 7. A Leopard] which useth to lie in wait to set upon a man: See Jer. 5. 6.

V. 8. As a Beare] See 2. Sam. 17. 8. Prov. 17. 12. that is to say; I am become their implacable enemy. The cause] that is to say; I wound them mortally. And there] namely; upon the high way, whereby are meant, the instants, and times appointed for Gods judgements: See the like use of this word: Psal. 53. 5. Eccles. 3. 17.

V. 9. Thou hast] Many have wrought together to overthrow thee; but I alone can save thee, and not thy Kings in whom thou hast trusted.

V. 10. Of whom thou] Some referre this to the first asking of a King: 1 Sam. 8. 5. Others, to the tumultuary election of Jeroboam: 1 Kings 12. 16. 20.

V. 11. I gave thee] I have suffered thee to thy hurt and dammage, to have a King according to thine owne will, though I did not approve of it:

Hos.8.4. and I have aggravated my judgments the more upon thee; by reason of the frequent violent deaths of thy Kings, which doe bring the Kingdome into extreame ruine.

V.12. Is bound up] nothing shall escape me, I will make them beare the punishment for all. See Deut.32.34. Iob 14.17.

V.13. An unwise Son] If this people were not foolish, they would imitate little Infants: which comming into the World, doe help themselves, and strive to free themselves out of the straights and dangers of the birth: so should they likewise have endeavoured to free themselves out of their mortall dangers and travailes, by true repentance.

V.14. I will] if they would but repent indeed. Repentance] my goodnesse towards them should never alter.

V.15. Be fruitfull] namely; Ephraim. He hath a relation to the signification of the name of Ephraim; and to the blessing which Iacob gave him, Gen.41.52. and 48.19. His brethren] namely, the other Tribes. East winde] an impetuous and inavoydable desolation by the Assyrians; who assaulted the Land of Israel towards the Wildernesse. See Ezek.19.12. His Spring] figurative termes; whereof the meaning is; that every one of Gods blessings, which are the well-springs of all good things, shall be taken away from them; and consequently, all manner of happinesse shall faile them. He shall] namely, the Enemy signified by the East-winde.

CHAP. XIV.

Ver.2. Take with you] I desire neither sacrifices, nor offerings from you; but doe you present before me a sincere Confession of your sinnes; fervent Prayers to obtaine forgivenesse; and sincere Actions of grace. Take away] pardon through thy Grace, and alter by thy Spirit. Receive] accept out of thy fatherly favour the true witnesses and effects of our conversion. Others grant, &c. Of our lips] in stead of sacrifices of beasts, we will yeeld unto thee the true and spirituall ones of praise and thanksgiving. See Ps.50. 14,23. and 69 30,31. and 116.13,14.

V.3. Assur] we will not put our confidence any longer in any humane meanes or power; but in thee only. See Hos.5.13. and 12.1. Upon horses] to seeke reliefe from Egypt, Isa.30.16. To the worke] namely, to the Idols. The fatherlesse] namely, every person that wanteth a guide, reliefe, and sustenance as we doe.

V.5. I will be] I will water them with my graces and heavenly blessings.

V.6. Lebanon] A hill full of sweet smelling plants, Cant.4.11.

V.7. Returne] namely, from their exiles; where they were scattered, and shall come together into the Church in Asessius his time; and there they shall be safe under Gods protection. Revive] they shall increase and have children. The sent thereof] the Italian, the remembrance of him] namely, God, Hos.12.6. He meanes, that the knowledge of Him, and His Doctrine, shall be alwayes most pleasing to his people; like unto excellent wine, Cant.1.2,3. Or God shall love the memory of his people very dearly.

V.8. Ephraim shall, &c.] the Italian, O Ephraim! what have I any more to doe with] thou shalt joyne me no more with Idols, as thou hast done heretofore; I will alone be served in Spirit and truth, 2 Cor.6.16. I am like] the Italian, I will be to thee like, &c.] they shall finde all the good they desire in me. As when a Tree bringeth forth good fruit, and a pleasant shade, Cant.2.3. Thy fruit] this may be understood of the Elects good works, brought forth in Them, by the only power of Gods grace and Spirit. John 15.2,4.

V.9. The wayes] the whole guide of his providence, his works, and judgments; and also his Word, and Doctrine, are most holy things, and good for men: But they become an occasion of ruine, and perdition to the wicked; which doe abuse them through their incredulity and wickednesse, Prov. 10.29. Luke 2.34. 2 Cor.2,16. 1 Pet.2,7.

The Booke of the Prophet Ioel.

ARGUMENT.

THe holy History doth not specifie; neither the time, nor the occasion of Ioels Prophecie: The subject of which, is to denounce the people, a generall dearth and famine; caused by an extreme drought; and by a generall spoile, made by an extraordinary mixture of severall: Whereupon, he calleth all persons of all age and conditions; to mourne and humble themselves.

ſelves before God, by Faſtings, Prayers, and repentance: Whereby, he doth in Gods Name prophecye unto them; that they ſhall obtaine eaſe and deliverance from that terrible ſcourge; Promiſing them, that their afflictions and loſſes, which they had endured for many yeares before; ſhould be reſtored them by a mighty plenty: But eſpecially; according to the manner of Prophets, he promiſes the Church abundance of the gifts of the Holy-Ghoſt, under the Meſſias; whereof the temporall goods, were but only a token and pledge. And withall, the deliverance from all thoſe evils which ſhould happen in the World: as well before Chriſts comming to judgement; as alſo at the very comming; by the finall condemnation of all Gods enemies: which he moſt lively deſcribes by a Propheticke Spirit. And laſtly; perfect redemption, ſanctification, and eternall happineſſe in the Kingdome of Heaven.

CHAP. I.

Ver.2. YE old men] who by reaſon of your old age, have ſeen and heard many things.

V.4. The Locuſt] A deſcription of a moſt great ſpoile made by theſe ſmall vermine; which joyned with an extreme drought, had cauſed a moſt cruell dearth.

V.6. A Nation] A terme unproperly attributed to thoſe inſects, Prov.30.25,26.

V.7. Caſt it away] having thus made them unprofitable, men care not now for dreſſing them; or to looke for any fruit from them.

V.8. Lament] O thou Jeruſalem, or Judea! A virgin] eſpouſed, and not yet had home: or preſently after her eſpouſals.

V.9. The meat offering] the extreme dearth hinders them from furniſhing the ſacred offerings with Bread, Wine, and Oyle, &c. See Exod.29. 40. Lev.2.1. Mourne] partly, becauſe Gods ſervice is interrupted; partly alſo, becauſe they want their ordinary food, which they got from the offerings and ſacrifices.

V.11. Husbandmen] Or the Husbandmen are confounded, and the Vine-dreſſers howle.

V.12. Joy is] he hath a relation to the feaſts, and merriments which were in harveſt time, and in time of vintage, Iſa.16.10 Jer.48.33.

V.14. Sanctifie] appoint a time for this holy exerciſe; and prepare your ſelves unto it by all acts of piety and devotion. The Elders] namely, the Magiſtrates, and chiefe of the people.

V.17. Is rotten] becauſe it could not bud up; by reaſon of the extreme drought, v.19,20.

V.18. Of Sheep] which otherwiſe feed in the moſt dry and barren places.

V.19. The fire] the drought hath burnt up the Countrey, as if fire had gone through it. The Paſtures] or the heards.

V.20. Cry] by reaſon of extreme drought: A terme taken from Deere, and other beaſts.

CHAP. II.

Ver.1. BLow] As it were, to give notice of the comming of theſe inſects; that every one may prepare themſelves to prevent the ſcourge by repentance; and prayer to God, to beare it conſtantly and patiently; and to overcome it by faith in his grace.

V.2. Of darkneſſe] that is to ſay; of moſt grievous calamity. And may be, he hath a relation to the comming of theſe little beaſts in great ſwarmes; whereby the aire might be darkened, v.10. Spread upon the] which ſhall in an inſtant cover the whole Countrey: even as the Morning ſpreadeth abroad upon a ſudden, over the tops of hils, though they be a great way off.

V.3. A fire] theſe inſects going along, doe devoure the Countrey, which is rich, and full of goods, Joel 1.19. and after they are gone by, every thing is found gnawne and conſumed.

V.6. Blackneſſe] through horror and hunger. See Nah.2.10.

V.7. Shall not breake] they ſhall not ſtop nor ſtay their pace.

V.8. When they fall] A terme taken from the meeting of Armies: to ſignifie, that there will be neither defence, nor reſiſtance, that can ſtay this tempeſt.

V.9. They ſhall run] A kinde of ſpeech taken from a City won by aſſault.

V.10. The Earth] hyperbolicall termes; frequent in the Prophets, to repreſent a horrible deſolation. The Sun] this may be alſo underſtood in the ſame manner; as Iſa.13.10. Ezek.32.7. Joel 3. 15. unleſſe it be interpreted; as upon v.2.

V.11. Shall utter] like a Captaine encouraging his ſouldiers: or, giving the ſignall of the battell.

V.13. Repenteth him] out of his infinite mercy he changeth; not his counſell, or his will; being as ſorry for having done evill, as men doe when they they repent; but the effects of his rigor into the effects of mercy.

V. 14. A blessing] namely, The fruits of the earth, growing and preserved by Gods singular blessing: See Isa. 65. 8. Behind him] namely, After all these little beasts are gone by.

V. 15. The trumpet] namely; the holy trumpet to call the generall assembly of the people.

V. 16. Sanctifie] Give order by proclamation, that all men, being duely purified, according to the Law, may come to the Temple, to call upon the Lord, with mourning and fasting: See Exod. 19. 10. 22.

V. 17. Between the Porch] Whereof see 1 King. 6. 3. This was the voyd space: Ezek. 8. 16. where the sacred Ministers prayed after the sacrifices were offered. Rule over them] Thy people being constrained through want, to put themselves into the bondage of strangers: or, having no meanes to defend themselves, if the enemies should set upon them. Others translate it, that the Nations may not mocke them.

V. 18. Then will] He sets forth the effects of the precedent prayers. Be jealous] He will feele and be moved at the afflictions of his deare people, and for his owne glory; which by that meanes was troden downe by prophane Nations.

V. 20. The Northerne army] namely; That great swarme of vermine which came out of the North. Into a land] That multitude shall be carryed away out of your land; and like a great army, the body of it shall be driven into the Wildernesse; the van-guard into the lake of Sodome towards the East: and the reare-ward into the Mediterranean sea, towards the West.

V. 22. Their strength] Their fruits and increase, according to the vertue which God hath given them: Gen. 4. 12.

V. 23. Moderately] the Italian, Justly] namely; At the time of your greatest need, and in that just measure as is required, for to help the barrennesse which was before. Others in righteousnesse; that is to say: bountifully, and lovingly. In the first] Which was the March moone: for then began that time of the yeere which was called the latter season, by reason of the fruits which grow ripe, and are gathered therein; at which time raine was most necessary: next to September moone, which was the other part of the yeere, called the first season by reason of tilling and sowing of the ground.

V. 26. Shall never] Because they shall never pray to me in vaine at any such time of need.

V. 28. Afterward] In the Messias hi dayes, I will powre downe the gifts of my holy spirit in abundance; as I have heretofore powred out temporall blessings upon you. Upon all flesh] All mannner of people, without any distinction of Nations. Your sonnes] By the inward vertue of my Spirit I will enlighten the understanding of mine Elect, who, of their owne nature are but children in knowledge: or, youngmen without experience; or aged men, weake of understanding, and will give them a lively and supernaturall light of the mysteries of the Gospel; accompanied at certaine times, and in certaine persons with Prophetick revelations: Act. 2. 17.

V. 29. Upon the servants] namely; Persons of all conditions, be they never so meane, shall be sanctified by me: may be by these termes is meant the calling of the Gentiles, amongst whom slaves were bought: Lev. 25. 44. Unlesse he meanes the other principall effect of the spirit of grace; which is, to free men from the bondage of sinne and the Divell.

V. 30. And I will shew] He seemes to point at the great troubles of the world under the Gospel; or the signes which immediately before Christs comming to judgement.

V. 32. In mount Sion] namely, In the true Church of Christ. Deliverance] From those evils which shall trouble the world: Or, some remnant which shall escape. Hath said] In many places by his Prophets. In the remnant] Which are not run into the generall apostasie and corruption of the world: Luke 18. 8. Shall call] Whom he shall move, and effectually put forward to the participation of his grace in Christ.

CAAP. III.

Vers. 1. IN those dayes] This in part, and figuratively may be understood of Gods vengeance upon the enemies of his people after the deliverance from Babylon: but spiritually it must be referred to Christs judgements upon the enemies of his Church, by him delivered, and especially, at the last and universall deliverance; namely, At his last comming.

V. 2. All Nations] namely; The wicked Nations, which are enemies to me. The valley] This valley is not mentioned any where else: some believe, that it is That which is called the valley of Blessing: 2 Cron. 20. 26. where Jehosaphat blessed the Lord, when he had discomfited his enemies. Others doe firmly hold; that betweene the mount of Olives, and the city of Jerusalem towards the East; there was a low valley of that name: and so the Prophet shewed, that the enemies shall be judged, as it were, in the sight of the Church; Isa. 66. 24.

V. 4. What have yee] It lieth not in your powers to give me satisfaction, for the spoyles and wrongs which you have done my people; therefore you must beare the punishment thereof in your persons, tions, according to the Lawes for theft; Exod. 22. 3.

V. 8. For the Lord] The ſentence is paſt; and it is not now to be avoyded.

V. 9. Proclaime] An ironicall challenge to all Chriſts enemies: for to doe the uttermoſt of their power againſt him and his Church; that they may all be overcome, and overthrowne: See Iſa. 8. 9, 10. Rev. 16. 14.

V. 11. Thy mighty men] namely; The holy Angels, who are thine armies, to diſcomfit thine enemies: See Rev. 12. 7.

V. 13. Put yee in] O yee Angels! It is time to execute my judgements; for the malice of the world is growne to its height.

V. 15. The Sunne] Signes which ſhall goe before the laſt judgement: Mat. 24. 29. Luke 21. 25.

V. 16. Shall roare] Summoning, as it were, with a terrible cry; all the world to appeare before him: ſee Jer. 25. 30. Amos 1. 2. Out of Sion] namely, out of the ſeat of his glory; the repreſentation of which; was formerly in the Sanctuary: See Heb. 12. 22. But the Lord] See Luke 21. 28.

V. 17. Be holy] My Church ſhall be cleanſed from all pollution and mixture of hypocrites and prophane people: Iſa. 35. 8. Rev. 21. 27.

V. 18. The mountaines] A figurative deſcription of the good and happineſſe of eternall life; Pſal. 36. 8. The valley] A place in the land of Moab: Numb. 25. 1. Joſ. 2. 1. Mic. 6. 5. which was very deſart and dry, by reaſon that it ſtood ſo neere the lake of Sodom: See the expreſſion of this, upon Ezek. 4. 7. 1. 8.

V. 19. Egypt] namely; All the Churches enemies.

V. 20. Judah] namely; The true Believers, and Elect gathered up into heaven.

V. 21. Cleanſe] I will perfectly ſanctifie my Church from all her imperfections and ſpots of ſinne, which yet remained in her in this world.

The Booke of the Prophet Amos.

Argument.

Amos his Prophecies have a great deale of conformity with Hoſea his Prophecies: as well for the time, as for the perſons to whom they were directed: which were the ten Tribes of Iſrael, and for the ſubject. The ſumme whereof is; That the Prophet, after he had denounced Gods judgements againſt the prophane Nations, which were neighbours to Iſrael; eſpecially, for perſecuting of his people: turneth at laſt to the people, threatening them with a finall deſolation, and approching diſperſion: of which hee declareth the cauſes to be Idolatry, violence, injuſtice, diſſolutenеſſe, and univerſall corruption; as well of Iudah, as cheefly of Iſrael: And confirmeth his Prophecies by many very expreſſe viſions; yet comforting the Church, by the two ordinary wayes uſed by the Prophets: namely; by the promiſe of reſerving a remainder in Grace and Election: and by that of ſalvation and everlaſting reſtauration by Chriſt.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. Herdmen] namely; One of thoſe that make a trade of bringiug up of Cattell, and living by the profits or fruits of them; or by trafiquing therein. Tekoa] a City of Judah: 2 Sam. 14. 2. 2 Cro. 11. 6. Jer. 6. 1. Concerning Iſrael] namely; Concerning the ten Tribes. The earth-quake] Whereof is no mention made any where, but Zech. 14. 5.

V. 2. Will roare] According to the predictions and threatnings pronounced in the mindeſt of his Church by his Prophets; he ſhall vent his wrath upon his enemies. The habitations] the Italian, The Paſtures] All ſtrength, wealth and worldly greatneſſe (ſet forth by theſe fat and fruitfull places,) ſhall through Gods wrath be brought to nothing.

V. 3. For three] I will not puniſh Syria, whoſe chiefe chiefe City is Damascus; so much for many other sinnes; which they have committed; as I will for their cruelty used towards my people. Threshing instruments] See of this kind of torment and punishment, 2 Sam. 12.31. All this may be referred to Hazaels cruelty, 2 King. 8.12. and 10.32, and 13.3.

V.4. Hazael, Benhadad] names of Kings of Syria.

V.5. The barre] all strength, opposition, and defence. The plaine of Aven] The house of Eden] places of Syria. Him that] the King, and all the Royall race. Kir] A place of Media; called by other Authors, Cirtha.

V.6. Gaza] by this communalty, or principality of the Philistines, are meant all the rest. The whole] without any distinction of quality, sexe, or age, &c. Or in perpetuall and irrevocable slavery. See 2 Chron. 21.16, 17. Joel 3.6.

V.9. The brethren] which was between David and Salomon, and Hiram King of Tyrus, who called one another brothers, by a brotherly love, and covenant. See 2 Sam. 5.11. 1 King. 5.1. and 9.13.

V.11. His brother] namely; the Israelites, which were descended from Jacob, brother to Esau, the father of the Idumites, Gen. 27.40. Deut. 23.7. Cast off all pitty] the Italian, violated his compassion] that is to say; all the duties, affections, and respects of bloud and nature, by which he was bound. His anger] he hath vented upon the people of Israel, without end or ceasing, upon all occasions, all the implacable hatred, which he had once conceived against Jacob, Gen. 27.41. See Psal. 137.7.

V.12. Teman] A principall City of Edom; as also Bozrah: a frontier between the Edomites, and the Moabites.

V.13. Inlarge] by warre, and by unjust invasion.

V.14. Rabbah] metropolis of the Ammonites, Deut. 3.11. 2 Sam. 12.26. A tempest] with a sudden, and impetuous ruine. Gods wrath falling from above upon Ammon; together with the enemies endeavours.

V.15. Their King] the Italian, Malcom the Ammonites Idoll, Jer. 49.1,3. He hath a relation to the custome of conquerours; which was to carry away the Gods of conquered Nations, 1 Sam. 5.2. Isa. 46.2. Jer. 43.12. and 48.7. Hos. 10.6. Others translate it, their King.

CHAP. II.

Ver. 1. He burnt] Some referre this to that which hath been spoken, 2 King. 3.27. As if in that place, the sonne of the King of Edom had been burnt for a holocaust, by the King of Moab. Others take it for some terrible cruelty used, upon the King of Edom, either alive or dead, for which in particular, the Lord was angry with Moab.

V.2. Kerioth] a City of Moab. Shall dye] shall be destroyed by the fury of war.

V.3. The Judge] the Italian, the Governour] namely; he that bore the title of King, though he was no lawfull King, being he rebelled against Israel, 2 King. 1.1. Thereof] namely; of the Moabitish Nation.

V.4. Their lies] namely; their Idols, false worships, and superstitions.

V.6. Of Israel, namely; of the ten Tribes. The righteous; that is to say; his right in judgement. For a paire of shooes] for a matter of nothing; for a very small price, as Amos 8.6.

V.7. That pant] who inflamed with covetousnesse, spye out all occasions to enurap the lowly and weake, and to doe them hurt. A terme taken from serpents; as Gen. 49.17. Turne aside by their windings, like to the Serpents, doe overthrow good mens Rights, who are stiled in the Scripture, men humble, and meeke. Or they hinder them in their holinesse. My holy Name] which they are honoured by, being called my people.

V.8. They lay themselves downe] they doe use those things, which they have violently taken away from the poore and innocent in their feasts; which they celebrate in honour of their Idols, and in their festivals; and by that meanes doe accumulate the sin of Idolatry, upon the sin of violence. Of the condemned] the Italian, of desperate men] bought with such money as they have unjustly amerced and condemned the innocent in.

V.9. His Fruit] A proverbiall kinde of speech; to signifie an utter desolation; as Job 18.16. Isa. 5.24. Mal. 4.1.

V.11. For Nazarites] being persons sanctified after an especiall manner to purity of life, and consecrated to works of piety.

V.12. Gave the] you have transgressed the Law in this part of my service, Numb. 6.3.

V.16. Naked] being stripped by his enemies; or, having basely drowne away his Armes.

CHAP. III.

Ver. 2. I have known] chosen, and accepted to be my people; wherefore, your ingratitude and disloyalty, is so much the more to be condemned, Deut. 7.6. and 10.15. And those sinnes of ignorance which I passe over in others; are in You inexcusable, and proceeding from pure malice. See Ezek. 20.32.

V.3. Can two] even as two Travellers, whose end of their journey is not the same, cannot long travell the same way: so it is impossible, that God should continue his grace towards you, seeing his service is not the onely ayme of all your actions.

V.4. A Lyon] thinke ye that God will not at last bring all his threatenings to passe, though he hath had patience for a long time? See Amos 3.2.

V.5. Cast a Bird] the evils which have already befallen you, are not by chance, nor casually; but they are sent and directed by Gods expresse providence and judgement, which never is without its effect.

V.6. A Trumpet] when the watches give a signall, or sound an alarme, the people presently are terrified. And what ought you to doe at Gods threatenings, pronounced by his Prophets for your conversion towards him, from whom all these calamities proceed?

V.7. The Lord God will] I doe liken the Prophets to the Watchmen which discover afar off the comming of the enemies; for so God ordinarily reveales unto his Prophets the greatest judgements which he will cause to fall upon his people, to bring them to repentance.

V.8. The Lyon] the feare of Gods Majesty doth inforce us to relate his threatenings faithfully unto you, though you hate and disdaine us for it.

V.9. Publish] since my people hath neither heart, nor eares to hearken to my Prophets; let the Gentiles be called to be witnesses, and to judge of the justice of my judgements. Tumults] or oppressions.

V.12. So shall] in the sacking of a City; a small number, and that of the poorest sort of people shall escape. In the corner] he hath a relation to the hiding corners that are sought for, when a City is taken.

V.13. Heare] he directs his words to the Prophets, and to all true Beleevers.

V.14. I will also] I will destroy all places and instruments of Idolatry, to shew the fallhood of it: and to make knowne, that it is the chiefe cause of the peoples ruine. The horns] which we made upon the Idols Altars, to the likenesse of them which were upon the Altar of the true God, Exod. 27.2.

V.15. The Winter-house] he hath a relation to the customes of great men; who are wont to have severall roomes, for Winter, and for Summer, Judg. 3.20. Jer. 36.22. the meaning is, all manner of finelinesse, greatnesse, and commoditiousnesse, shall be taken away. Of Ivory] covered over with Ivory, 1 King. 22.39.

CHAP. IV.

Ver.1. YE Kine] O you Inhabitants of Samaria! rich and mighty (as ordinarily the Inhabitants of the chiefe Cities of Kingdomes are) See Psal. 22.12. Isa. 28.1. Ezek. 39.18. Say to] which doe perswade your Kings and Princes to all manner of excesse and dissoluteneesse, and are teachers and advisers of the disorders of the Court; as Hos. 7.5.

V.2. With hookes] like fishers, as Jer. 16.16. Hab. 1.14,15. and you shall be no more like fat Kine, that abide in their pastures.

V.3. Goe out] being led into captivity, after the taking and dismanteling of your Cities. See Ezek. 12.5,12. Before her] any way, there being neither gates, nor wals whole.

V.4. Come] Ironicall termes: that is to say; I doe abandon you to continue in your Idolatries, that you may heap up the measure of your sinnes. See Mat. 23.32. Bethel; Gilgal] the chiefe Seates of the ten Tribes publicke Idolatry, 1 King. 12.29. Hos. 4.15. and 12.12. Amos 5.5. Three yeares] the Italian, three dayes] in imitation of the three solemne feasts, appointed to be every yeare by the Law, Exod. 23.14. at which certaine kind of tythes were spent in the sacred feasts, Deut. 14.22.

V.5. Proclaime] making it knowne by publicke authority; that whosoever will offer any offerings, besides those which God hath commanded, shall come and offer them in such places, and at such times.

V.6. Cleannesse] that is to say; famine and dearth.

V.10. After the manner] the Italian, to the way] when you went into Egypt, to seeke aid from thence, Hos. 7.11,12.

V.12. Thus will I] namely; as thy sinnes deserve; or as I have foretold thee, v. 2,3; Prepare] since I denounce war against thee, as against my Rebels and enemies, prepare thy selfe to doe the best thou canst to beare me off, and keep Me backe if thou canst: or to prevent, and pacifie Me by true repentance. See Ezek. 13.5. and 22.30.

V.13. Declareth] that knowes and judges the most secret thoughts of man; overtakes the wise in their cunning; accuses the consciences, and summoneth them to appeare before him. Or according to others; that revealeth his secret judgements to men, to call them to repentance. walketh] that is; exalted above all humane power. See Mic. 1.3.

CHAP. V.

Ver.2. THe Virgin] So are called in Scripture those States which subsist & flourish in their first liberty & splendor, Isa. 23.12.

V.4.

V. 4. Seeke ye me] where must be understood: which they have refused to doe.

V. 5. Bethel] namely; the Idols, which were in these Cities, Amos 4. 4. To Beersheba] by Amos 8. 14. it appeares that this City also was the seat of some solemne Idolatry, though it were belonging to the tribe of Judah, Josh. 15. 28. Gilgal] namely; the inhabitants thereof. In the Hebrew there is an allusion betweene the word Gilgal, and Captivity. To nought] Bethel signifies the house of God: but by reason of the idolatry which was used therein, it is called Beth-aven: that is to say; the house of an Idol, Hos. 4. 15. and 10. 8. And because Aven signifieth an Idol, or nought and vanity: Therefore her last ruine is also set forth by this name.

V. 6. Of Ioseph] namely; of the tenne tribes, whereof the chiefe was that of Ephraim, which issued from Ioseph. Bethel] that none of your Idols which you serve in Bethel be able to helpe you.

V. 7. who turne] they corrupt justice, and whereas of it selfe it is a most profitable and pleasing thing: you make it most bitter to those that are oppressed, and abominable to God.

V. 8. Turneth the] this may properly be understood of the great and prodigious changes in the aire: or, figuratively of the alterations of States, and changes of the world. Powreth them] this is more likely to meane the deluges and inundations of the sea; then the vapors of it resolved into raine.

V. 10. They hated him] namely, the Judges, and Magistrates (who kept their Courts neere to the gates of Cities) cannot endure the censures of Gods servants. See Isay 29. 21.

V. 11. Burthens] that little which he hath to relieve himselfe.

V. 13. The prudent] that is to say; the true Beleevers, which judge truly of the calamities, and of their causes; shall in silence, and with patience worship Gods justice, without any murmuring or scandall.

V. 14. As ye] as you make your boasts that he is, you being his people. Or as you desire, and continually pray that he may be.

V. 16. Therefore] because you reject all mine exhortations and admonitions. Shall call] as to a publick and generall mourning. Such as are] those teachers of funerall mournings, whereof see Jer. 9. 17.

17. And in all] in stead of the joyfull songs in time of vintage, there shall nothing be heard but weeping and howling, because of the spoile of the countrey. I will passe,] as it were to do a generall execution of justice. Exod. 11. 4. & 12. 12.

V. 18. That desire] by a prophane boldnesse, as provoking him to bring that once to passe; which he hath so long threatned. Or by an impudent boasting of your own innocency, as if God coming to judgement should finde you guiltlesse; or at the least lesse guilty then the Prophets report you to be. See Isay 5. 19. Jer. 17. 15.

V. 19. As if a man] these judgements of God shall be altogether unavoidable, and he that shall escape one evill; shall fall into a worser, Job 20. 14 Isay 24. 18. Jer. 48. 44.

V. 20. Not light] of any comfort, ease, direction, or good counsell.

V. 20. Will not smell] I will not accept of your sacrifices which you shall offer me at those times. See Lev. 26 31.

V. 23. Of thy songs] he meanes the sacred songs which were part of Gods service, which he reproves as defiled with impiety and hypocrisie.

V. 24. Run downe] doe righteousnesse and justice, in a firme and invariable way.

V. 25. Have ye offered] your forefathers, even in the wilderneese were Idolaters, neglecting a great part of the worship which I had appointed them. See Deut. 32. 17. and you imitate them, and heape up their measure.

V. 26. Yea have borne] your forefathers making shew of serving me, carrying my tabernacle and all things belonging to it in the wilderneese, had notwithstanding, their hearts bent upon their Idols, and secretly carried some Chappell or Image of Molech, the Idoll of the Moabites. Others take the names of Tabernacle and Image Siccuth and Chim; for the names of Idols or Planets, Venus and Saturne. The Star] it is thought for certaine that Molech represents Saturne, and the other Baalims the other Planets. Ye made] you had made the images of them, and had attributed divinity unto them, and had consecrated and set them up for the object of your worship.

V. 27. Therefore] because that after so many sinnes of your forefathers, punished by me from time to time, you have persevered in them, yea have gone beyond them: I will execute the finall judgement upon you, in a totall desolation, and dispersion into strange countries; to the grievousnesse of which; the captivity of the people in Syria, caused by Hazael who reigned in Damascus, shall no way be equall nor comparable, 2 Kings 13. 3.

CHAP. VI.

Verse 1. Of the Nations] namely; of Sion or Jerusalem, of Judah, and Samaria and of the ten tribes. Came] commeth thither upon all businesses and occasions, as to the Princes Court, or Court of justice.

V. 2. Passe ye] doe but consider these Cities, which formerly were mightier and in greater prosperity then any of yours, and yet are decayed and ruined, to take example thereby, not to grow proud in carnall security. Camneh] a most ancient Citie in the Babylonian countrey, Gen. 10. 10. Taken (as Hamath also a famous City of Syria) and peradventure destroyed also by the Assyrians. Isay 10. 9. See Isay 23. 13. Gath] the Scripture makes mention of no other desolation of Gath, but only by Vzziah, 2 Chron. 26. 6.

V. 3. Put far away] you Christians put away farre from you all thought, and feare of Gods judgements. Ezek. 12. 22. Amos 9. 10. and in the meane time draw neere to publick tyranny; as if sinnes and their punishments, could go the one without the other.

V. 5. What drinke] namely, at your feasts. Like David] who was a great inventer and maister of musick, and musicall instruments. 1 Chron. 23. 5. which he imployed in praying of God: whereas these did use them for a provocation of carnall pleasure.

V. 6. In bowls] that is to say, beyond measure. The affliction] by reason of their publick calamities.

V. 7. Shall they go] they shall be the first, and most noted in the punishment; as they have been in degrees of honour and in sinnes.

V. 9. If there] suppose that some number doe escape the enemies hand, they shall fall by the pestilence; & if there be not men enough for to burie them, their bodies shall be burnt: which was not used amongst the people but onely in cases of extreame necessity. See 1 Sam. 31. 12.

V. 10. Kinsman] the nearest of kinne, who for the duty of consanguinity or to cleanse the house which is fallen to him by inheritance, shall take care of these dead bodies. To bring out] to cause the house to be more easily and privately freed from this legall uncleanesse, Num. 19. 14. To him] he seemes to mean him that hath beene employed in burning of these dead bodies. Hold thy tongue] tell no body what hath happened unto us, for feare lest we be sequestred as uncleane by the law. We may not] this extreame devotion doth dispence with us touching the lawes of God concerning these pollutions and the purifying of them. Which were not observed even by the most scrupulous consciences in the greatest extremities. See Lam. 4. 14, 15.

V. 11. For behold] all these things shall happen by reason of the utter extermination of great and small, which God hath appointed.

V. 12. The horses] shall we Prophets continually cast away our labours upon you who are so desperately corrupted, and turn all the good which is presented unto you and bestowed upon you, into evil: as if a man plowed or digd a hard rock?

V. 13. Ye] you triumph and glory in your strength, as if you could therewith overcome your enemies.

V. 14. But behold] he gives a reason why hee hath called all their hopes and meanes, things of naught. From the entring] these were the two uttermost bounds of the land of Canaan in length. The River] called elsewhere the river of Egypt. Num. 34. 5. Josh. 15. 47.

CHAP. VII.

Verse 1. He formed] whether according to the letter, he were shewen in this vision some great spoile done by their insects, Amos 4. 9. Or that the Assyrians comming, were figuratively represented, as Na. 3. 15. In the beginning] after harvest, as Amos 4. 9. There is no mention made allewhere of fields spoiled by these vermines. The King] it is thought that the Kings did take the first crop of hay to keepe their warre bodies, and for other services, leaving the latter hay for other cattell.

V. 2. By whom shall] the Italian, What is Iacob) how shall thy people ever recover themselves, if thou doest overthrow them with this plague, after so many former ones, that have already made them so weake.

V. 3. Repented] See upon Gen. 6. 6.

V. 4. By fire] this may be understood either of that extreame drought which hath been spoken of, Amos 4. 7. 8. Or figuratively of the extermination by the fire of warre, which had already consumed the country, 2 Kings 15. 19. It devoured] is feigned to doe so, by reason that the springs and streams which rise from under ground where the deepe is, Gen. 7. 11. Deut. 33. 13. were dried up. A part] the Italian adderh, Of the land] for one part of the land was watered with raine, Amos 4. 7.

V. 7. Stood] a figure of Gods justice, who is the supreame Master and Architect, who examines all the actions of men: which are like a wall that is to be built up by Masons: and if the worke be right, God approves of it and preserves it, if not, he reproves it, and overthrowes it.

V. 8. I will set] I will now actually execute my justice which I have hitherto suspended, passing over the misdeeds of my people.

V. 9. The high places] All places by them dedicated to Idolatries, under pretence of imitating Isaac and their other forefathers, who formerly sacrificed and served God in those places.

V. 10. The King] that is to say, he will raise some great tumult and sedition; or the people will rise against him of their owne private authority, if thou dost not provide therefore by thy royall power.

V. 11. Jerobo-

V. 12. Jeroboam] This is falsly alledged by Amaziah, to incense the King against Amos, who had onely spoken of Jereboams posterity, and not of Jereboam himselfe, v. 9.

V. 12. The seer] that is to say, Prophet: See 1 Sam. 9. 9. Eate] Whereas having here thou wilt starve, if worse doth not befall thee; being hated of all men: For Prophets lived for the most part, of almes and bounty.

V. 13. Cheppel] the Italian, Sanctuarie] A place consecrated by the King to the worship of the Calves: 1 Kings 12. 29. to which he beares a singular devotion; and where he often makes his residence; whereof it is not safe nor fitting for thee to prophesie against him here.

V. 14. Sicomore fruit] the Italian, Sicomore] A kind of wild figs.

V. 17. Shall be an Harlot] Being by me abandoned to luxury, Hos. 4. 13. or being forced thereunto by the enemies. A polluted] namely, In Assyria, a land of Infidels, farre from the land of Canaan; which was the pledge of the Saints communion in life and in death.

CHAP. VIII.

Verse 2. A basket of Summer fruit] In the Hebrew there is a kind of affinity between the word Summer, and the word End: which is the onely ground of this designe; and for to keep some harme thereof, the word End is joyned to the next verse: See Jer. 1. 11.

V. 3. The songs] namely; The sweet musick of greasbones: See Amos 6. 5. In every place] The dead bodies shall not be buried honourably, and without funerall pompe; but shall be throwne into pits, and common graves, without any mourning: Psal. 78. 64.

V. 5. The new moones] Which were festivall dayes; upon which it was not lawfull to buy nor sell: Neh. 13. 15, 16. Make the] Giving small measure in selling; and using great weights to weigh the money which we receive for payment.

V. 6. Buy] Ensnaring the poore into fraudulent debts to make them your bondmen; abusing the permission of: Lev. 25. 39. which aimed only at a remedy for casuall povertie.

V. 7. By the excellencie] the Italian By the glorie] namely; By himselfe, who is the glorious God of his people: Psal. 106. 20.

V. 8. The land] Are not the wickednesses sufficient to cause the land to be destroyed, and laid waste; as Egypt is overflowne by the river Nilus?

V. 9. Cause the Sunne] I will encumber the land with horrible and mournfull calamities, when it shall be least thought of; and when man shall thinke himselfe happy and peaceable: See Job 5. 15. Isa. 13. 10. and 59. 9, 10. Jer. 15. 9.

V. 11. The word] For to receive some comfort, counsell, or advice thereby.

V. 13. For hunger] namely, By the effects of my burning wrath, without any refreshment of comfort: Hos. 4. 3.

V. 14. By the sinne] namely, By the calves and other Idols, which are the objects and instruments of their sinne. Thy God] For they made profession of worshipping the true God in those figures: See Exod. 32. 4, 5. 1 Kings 12. 28. Hos. 4. 15. O Dan] Where one of the calves was set up: 1 Kings 12. 28. The manner] Heb. the way; namely, the religion or worship: as Act. 9. 2. and 18. 25. Beer-Sheba] See upon Amos 5. 5.

CHAP. IX.

Vers. 1. I Saw] In a prophetick vision. Upon the altar] Of the Temple of Jerusalem; to shew that there was no more pardon; seeing that the place of propitiation was by God converted, as it were, into a seat of rigorous and implacable justice. He said] To some Angel that was executioner of his judgements: See Ezek. 9. 4, 5. The Lintel] the Italian, The frontise-piece] namely; of the door of the Temple, Heb. The knobs; for they were wont to set great knobs or bals in frontise-pieces or lintels of the doores: And in this manner is presented the decree of the peoples desolation, amongst whom God had chosen his abode. And of the destruction of the materiall Temple, and of the annihilation of the outward service. Cut them] Let this act be a signe to them all, of what I intend to doe to their persons.

V. 6. His troope] The Italian, Of his fabrick] that is to say; The universe, which is like the fabrick of a building: of which the earth being the lower part, and onely immoveable, hath some resemblance of a foundation.

V. 7. Are you not] Being degenerate, and having gone astray, as you have done, I do hold you as Ethiopians; a base and accursed nation, as being issued from Cham: and your deliverance out of Egypt shall be no more a pledge to you of my favour, then the deliverances which I have granted to those other prophane nations. Captive] There is no other mention made of this; but onely what is written: Deut. 2. 23. Kir] If he meanes the Assyrians captivity, mentioned 2. Kings 16. 9. Amos 1. 5. which happed about Amos his time; the deliverance which was to come; is here set downe: as if it were come already.

V. 8. The eyes] God judgeth and punisheth all Kingdomes and Nations equally, which are addicted to grievous sinnes; and here is one only this difference: that he will never utterly destroy his people without leaving some remnant of them: Jer 30. 11. and 31. 36, 37. Obad. 17.

V. 9. Like as] Governing their dispersion by my providence in such sort, that none of mine Elect shall perish in eternall perdition: not the remainder of my Believers be extinguished nor overthrowne.

V. 11. Will I raise up] After I have thus punished my Church, I will restore the Kingdome of David by the Messias, changing it into a spirituall and everlasting Kingdome.

V. 12. That they] That the true Israel, according to the spirit, joyned with Christ their Head; may participate of the universall Kingdome, which he hath gotten over his enemies; such as the Idumeans were to the Israelites. Others doe bring it in thus: That they may professe the remnant of Edom, and all Nations that are called by my Name: that is to say, Mine Elect, and those who shall be converted to me by the Gospel; Isa. 19. 25. and 44. 5.

V. 13. The Plow-men] Figurative promises of Gods spirituall graces and blessings to his Church. See Lev. 26. 5. Shall drop] Into precious liquors, of honey, milke, oyle, and must.

The Prophesie of Obadiah.

Argument.

Obadiah denounceth to the Idumeans, (capitall and implacable enemies of Gods people,) their finall and irreviable destruction; by reason of the evils which they had done to the Church of God: to which, he contrariwise promiseth eternall Salvation, and perfect restauration in Christ, and likewise the totall destruction of all her enemies.

CHAP. I.

Verse 1. A rumour] namely; God having stirred up the Chaldeans, and other Nations, to the destruction of the Idumeans; which as it appeareth by the other Prophets, happened after the ruine and captivity of the Jewes. And Obadiah prophesied before either of them.

V. 3. In the clefts] he hath a relation to the strong and mountainous scituation of Idumea.

V. 7. Have brought thee] the Italian, Have accompanied thee] have joyned their forces to thine, so goe and withstand the enemies invasions: but just at the instant that thou hadst need of them, they have forsaken thee. And prevailed] he seemes to meane the Egyptians, who by powerfull perswasions, and by reason of intereſt of state; had brought the Idumeans to declare themselves enemies to the Chaldeans. They that eat thy bread, &c] the Italian, They have laid thy bread for a snare for thee] a terme taken from hunters, who with baits draw the beasts into their traps. The meaning is; the victuall which thou hast had out of Egypt, hath been as it were a bait to thee, to insnare thee in the league against the Chaldeans, which hath beene the cause of thy ruine: which with all thy famous wisdome thou couldest not perceave.

V. 9. Teman] the name of a City and Country in Idumea.

V. 10. Thy brother] namely, the Israelites and Jewes, which were descended from Jacob, brother of Esau, the father of the Idumeans.

V. 11. That thou stoodest] not only like an idle spectator, yeelding no assistance, nor pitying the Jewes calamities: but feeding also thine eyes therewith, as with a pleasing object. His forces] the men of war taken with Zedekiah in his flight, Jer. 39. 4, 5. Or plainely; the whole multitude carried away captive into Babylon. Upon Jerusalem] to part both the spoile and persons.

V. 12. That he became] or in the day of his strange chance, See Job 31. 3. Spoken proudly] by scoffing them.

V. 16. For as ye] as You, my people have drunke of the cup of my judgements; so your enemies shall drinke up the very dregs, and shall be utterly destroyed thereby. See Jer. 25. 29. & 49. 12.

V. 17. Their possessions] which they were dispossessed of by their enemies. A figure of the right to the eternall inheritance which the Devill and Sinne had gotten away from the Church, to which it was restored by Christ. Others, their possessions; namely; the possessions of those Nations which were their enemies.

V. 18. Shall be a fire] the Church by the power of of Christ, and of his Spirit, shall consume all her enemies: (represented under the person of the Idumeans) as easily as fire consumeth flaxe. Shall kindle] as fire doth kindle, when it takes hold of some combustible matter.

V. 19. Possesse] the Jewes shall be put into full possession of their Countrey; with great addition and enlargement of their ancient bounds; as of Idumea, on the South side, and the Philistines Land on the side of the plaine. See of these countries of Judea, Jer. 17.26. and 32.44. and 33.13. the meaning is the same, as v. 17.

V. 20. Of this Host] See upon v. 11. Zarep hath] it is thought to be a City or Countrey of Caldea.

V. 21. And Saviours] this may according to the Letter, and in part, be understood of the Maccabees, who subdued the Idumeans, 1 Mac. 5.3. but spiritually and fully, it is referred to the Apostles, and other of Christs Ministers; who were to preach the Gospell, for the salvation of the Elect, and condemnation of the wicked. See 1 Tim. 4.16. The Kingdome] Christ, true God, shall by his Father be established everlasting King of his Church, and of all the World.

The Booke of the Prophet IONAH.

ARGUMENT.

THough the Subject of this Booke be Historicall; yet it hath been put in the number of the other Prophets: As well by reason of Jonahs person, who was a Prophet in Israel; as by reason of the principall action of this History, which is a prediction of things that shall happen; and a preaching of repentance: By which, God setting forth a beame of His Grace upon the City of Nineveh, Head of that great Empire of the Assyrians, sent His Prophet thither: Who at the first withstood this Calling; and was therefore persecuted and punished by the Lord. And being afterwards miraculously delivered, he went to Nineveh, and there fulfilled what was commanded him; denouncing to them their approaching ruine. But this threatening having produced the effect of a publicke humiliation and repentance: God did suspend the execution thereof for that time. And Jonah discovering as much infirmity of humane frailty, in being troubled at the effect of Gods mercy; as he had shewed, in being unwilling to be the instrument and proclaimer of his justice; is by Him reprehended and instructed.

CHAP. I.

Verse 3. I O] See the cause upon Jon. 4.1. Unto Tarshish] the most common opinion is, that he meanes the City of Tharsus in Cilicia. Others translate it, to Sea. From the presence] namely, from the Land of Israel: where God made his abode in grace and vertue, and where he appeared to his Prophets. Or it is a phrase taken from slaves, who by stealth run away from their Masters service: to shew that he did run away, because he would not fulfill Gods Commandement. Joppa] A Sea Port of Palestine, so called, Acts 9.36.

V. 7. Let us cast] knowing that this tempest was neither naturall, nor ordinary; They conjecture by Gods secret inspiration, that there is some body in the Ship, that is guilty of some grievous sinne: Wherefore, they desire to discover the truth by lots, according to the Heathens customs, but God overseeth them, Prov. 16.33.

V. 9. I feare] my Religion is, to serve and worship him only.

V. 10. why hast thou] alas what a great fault hast thou committed.

V. 12.

V. 11. Said unto them] By Gods inward revelation, more then by discourse of reason.

V. 12. Innocent blood] For our parte: for he never offended us: and if he hath offended thee, wee are not to take notice, nor judge of it: in that, as wee now doe, follow that which thou declarest unto us by thy Workes, and by thy Word which hee himselfe hath pronounced. Hast done] Wee doe acknowledge in all this expresse signes of thy power, justice, and supreame providence: to which, because we will not displease thee, wee submit our senses to performe this execution.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 2. Out of the fish] This prayer; which conteines the Prophets speeches and motions whilest he was in the Fish, was set downe in writing by him after his deliverance; with the addition of thanks-giving.

V. 4. Yet I will] Words of faith, grounded upon an expresse revelation.

V. 5. Unto the soule] Bringing me into danger of present death: See Psal. 69. 1.

V. 6. Barres] A terme taken from prisons. The meaning is; I am in the sea, as it were, in a strong prison, shut up and barred from the earth on all sides. But ever] Unlesse thou dost miraculously relieve me.

V. 7. Temple] namely, In heaven, Gods dwelling in glory: the representation whereof was in the Temple of Jerusalem.

V. 8. They that] namely, Idolaters and Infidels are sometimes moved, when they are in wrath, with some kinde of devotion towards God: But because the lively roote of Faith, & of the Spirit is wanting in them, that motion is not constant in them. But I will fulfill my duties of piety with perseverance and loyalty.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 3. Exceeding great] Heb. A great City of God; for the Hebrewes doe extoll the greatnesse of things, by adding the name of God to their ordinary names. Three dayes] In circuit.

V. 4. A dayes journey] Not going on continually, but by pawses, and at times; going on from place to place, as his charge requirted.

V. 5. God] his word preached by Jonah.

V. 6. For a while] The Fast which the people had volumarily undertaken to keep, was authorized, and enjoyned by the Kings commaund; who would also be partakes thereof.

V. 7. Taste any thing] For a certaine limited time, which likely was a whole day.

V. 8. And beast] According to the custome of those dayes, the beasts they used to ride upon, and to employ for carriage, were wont to be covered and trapped; but in time of mourning, they tooke those ornaments off, and covered them with haire-cloth and ragged clothing. That is in] Whereof he is guilty, as if his hands were soyled therewith.

V. 9. Will turne] Towards us in grace & mercy.

V. 10. Repented] that is to say; He revoked his sentence, which was but conditionall in his mind and decree, seeing the Jonah spoke it not. See Gen. 6. 6.

CHAP. IV.

Vers. 1. It displeased] Not so much for feare of being thought a false Prophet; as for the zeale of Gods glory, which he thought was wronged by his change: and for affection he bore to Gods people; who had then no greater enemy to feare, then the Empire of Assyria, as by effect it appeared not long after.

V. 4. Doest thou well] O, thou hast great cause to be angry; an ironicall reproofe.

V. 6. Prepared] Did miraculously cause this plant to spring and grow up to a great height. Peradventure this happened when the Sonne began to rise up, and Jonah felt no more. Gourd] A plant which is very common in those hot countries, and groweth up to a great height, and spreadeth out in great breadth, called commonly Palma Christi. His griefe] namely, From the heate which increased the griefe of his mind: or to give him by the meanes of this plant some such some documents and remedy for his passion.

V. 7. It smote] namely, Did gnaw the roote of it.

V. 8. A vehement] Heb. A deafe wind, that is to say; A still hot wind, which re-doubled the heat of the sunne: others, a wind that made one deafe, it was so tempestuous.

V. 9. I doe well] Words of a passionate spirit, blinded with anger; rather then by any expresse rebellion.

V. 10. Thou hast pity] that is to say; Thou wouldst have spared, and dearely preserved.

V. 11. That cannot] Little children, that are not yet come to age of understanding.

The

The Booke of the Prophet MICAH.

ARGUMENT.

MIcah having propheſied at the ſame time as Iſaiah did; is alſo very like him in the ſubject, and in the termes and ſtile of Prophecies. Wherein he diſcovers, and ſharply reprooves the Idolatry, and other ſinnes of Iudah and Iſrael; and denounceth unto them therefore Gods extreme judgements, and their approaching diſperſion by the Aſſyrians and Caldeans. Then turning himſelfe to the reſidue of true Believers, he promiſeth them on the one ſide temporall deliverance from the captivity of Babylon: and on the other ſide the everlaſting ſalvation of the whole Church, gathered out of all Nations, through Chriſt; whoſe birth in the fleſh, and place thereof he deſcribes very particularly: joyning therennto excellent Prophecies concerning his Kingdome, the calling of the Gentiles, and eternall glory and happineſſe of the Church, and the deſtruction of all her enemies.

CHAP. I.

Verſe 1. THe Moraſthite] namely; Of ſome City called Moreſheth, whereof the Scripture maketh no mention; nor cannot be the ſame: as v. 14. Samaria and] And the chiefe Cities of the two Kingdomes: namely; of the ten Tribes, and of Judah, and their Princes and Heads.

V. 2. The people] A figurative manner of calling all creatures, as it were, to a ſolemne appearance at the judgement wherein God will judge his people: See Deut. 32. 1. Pſalm. 50. 1, 4. Iſa. 1. 2. Amos 3. 9. Be witneſſe] that is to ſay; He will convince you of your ſinnes, O yee of Judah and Iſrael! From hu holy] Comming forth, as one ſhould ſay, out of Heaven; or out of the Temple of Jeruſalem where he is preſent in his ſignes of grace and power.

V. 3. And tread] Hee ſhall ſhew himſelfe exalted above all worldly greatneſſe: or hee ſhall tread under foot all powers as ſhall offer to reſiſt him: Amos 4. 13.

V. 5. What is] Where is the ſpring of all theſe Idolatries, and other ſins of theſe two Kingdomes? Is it not in theſe two chiefe cities? and in the Kings and Princes; and in their courts, which are kept within thoſe cities.

V. 7. The hires thereof] that is to ſay; All her riches and goods which ſhee thought to have gotten by her unlawfull treaties and leagues with prophane Nations; and, as it were, for a reward given her for conſenting to Idolatry: See Hoſ. 2. 5, 12. and 9. 1. Shall returne] A proverbiall kind of ſpeech: as much as to ſay; Thoſe goods ſhall goe away as they came: that which hath beene gotten in the brothell ſhall be loſt in the brothell: Or the Aſſyrians, who ſhall make a prey of them, ſhall alſo take them as a reward, and a gift of their Idols.

V. 8. I will waile] The Prophets words having a feeling of the publike calamities. Stript and] namely; In my ſhirt, or without my outward garment, which was a faſhion uſed in times of extreme ſorrow.

V. 9. Her wound] namely; Samaia's, v. 6. Whereby is meant the whole Kingdome of the ten Tribes. It is come] The Aſſyrians, after they have conquered and laid waſte the ten Tribes, ſhall alſo lay Judah waſte, even to Jeruſalem: 2 King. 18. 13. Iſa. 8. 8. The gate] namely; To Jeruſalem, the Kings reſidence; and where Judah's ſoveraigne court of Juſtice was held, which the Scripture calleth often times, Gate.

V. 10. Declare yee it not] The meaning is; the peoples calamities ſhall be ſo horrible, that it were to be wiſhed that their deadly enemies (ſuch as thoſe of Gath and other Philiſtims were) might never heare no newes of it; for feare, leſt they should make triumphs for it, and should aggravate the measure of them by their insultings: 2 Sam. 1. 19. Neither weepe yee.] Forbeare making any shew of your miseries, for feare of giving your enemies occasion of laughter. Roule thy selfe] namely; Thou Nation of Israel, in signe of extreme sorrow: Jer. 6 26. These names of Aphrah and Saphir, &c. are not found any where else, and yet seeme to signifie some noted places: therefore it is likely that they were framed by the Prophet, to make some allusion to the sence of his prophecy: As in stead of Ephraim, that is to say, fruitfulnesse; he saith house of Aphrah: that is to say, of ashes: To shew that this Tribe, which was so mighty, should be ruined, and brought to ashes. In stead of Samaria: that is to say, a place of coales: he saith Saphir; that is to say, faire, to signifie the glory to which that City was raised; and from which it should fall. In stead of Sion, he saith Zaanan: that is to say; a place of comming forth; of great concourse of persons going and comming. Out of which place, when the Assyrians should overrun the countrey, one should not be able to come out. In stead of Bethel; that is to say, the House of God: he saith, Beth-ezel; that is to say, a house of Separation; because God should forsake it, as an uncleane place. In stead of Ramoth, which signifieth altitudes or heights: he saith Maroth; that is to say; bitternesses: by reason of the great and bitter mourning and lamentation, which should be made in it.

V.11. Passe ye away] into captivity, loden with reproaches. O thou Inhabitant] or people of that City. Standing] the Italian, his defence] the Heb. his presenting: For the Hebrewes, when they would say, defend one; did say, present himselfe for one. See Exod. 32. 25. Numb. 14. 9. Isa. 22. 8.

V.13. Bind the charet] to run away if thou canst, from before the Assyrians; who come to besiege thee, 2 King. 18. 14. To the swift beast] that is to say; horses, or mules, which could run very swiftly. She is] hence it appeares, that Lachish was first infected with the ten Tribes Idolatry, and that from thence it passed even to Jerusalem.

V.14. Give Presents] buy the friendship and assistance of this City of the Philistines; and of other Cities of that Nation against the Assyrians; yet all shall be in vaine. Achzib] it appeares by Jos. 19 29. Judg 1. 31. that this City, was one of those, out of which the Canaanites could not be driven: And it seemes that upon this invasion of the Assyrians, the Israelites had made a league with those Nations; by whom they were deluded, either through weaknesse, or treachery, And Micah amongst those Cities hath made choice of Achzib, by reason of the signification of the name, which is a Lye.

V.15. will I bring] I will cause the Assyrians to come; who shall make themselves Lords of thee, and thy goods. Mareshah] A City of Judah, Jos. 15. 44. And this also seemes to have been chosen out; by reason of the neerenesse of, which is between the word heire, and Mareshah. Adullam] A City of Judah, Jos. 15. 35. The glory] namely; to Jerusalem, the City of Gods glorious residence in his Temple; and of the Kings residence in his Royall Palace.

V.16. Make thee bald] that is to say; O thou Jewish Nation! make most bitter lamentation. See Job 1. 20. Isa. 3. 24. and 15. 2. & 22. 12. Jer. 7. 29. The Eagle] when she changes her feathers.

CHAP. II.

Vet. 4. Shall one] that is to say; whilest you shall sweep your enemies and ill-willers shall deride your miseries. How hath] this calamity is past restauration; the people will never be able to recover their countrey, nor settle themselves againe in their former estate.

V.5. Therefore] by reason of the sinnes set downe, v.1,2. you shall be put out of all right and share in the Church and people of God: whereof, the driving out of the Holy Land shall be a signe.

V.6. Prophesie ye not] the Italian, drop not] that is to say; prophesie not. See concerning this manner of speaking, which is very frequent amongst the Prophets, Ezek. 21. 2. Amos 7. 16. Now these are words of prophane men, who would hinder the free exercise of the Prophets Office: as Isa. 30. 10. Jer. 11, 21. Amos 7, 13, 16. Say they to them that prophesie] the Italian hath it, yet they shall] Gods reply; that is to say; they shall preach in despight of you; and if it be not for you ye Rebels, which wrong them; yet it shall be for the salvation of mine Elect; as Isa. 8. 16.

V.7. O thou] Is not this an execrable boldnesse in you, to oppose your selves against my Prophets? The Spirit] namely; the power and authority of my Spirit; which from time to time hath set my Prophets on to preach my Word: Is it now lessened or weakened, that it should yeeld to your desires? See Jer. 6. 11. and 20. 7, 9. Mic. 3. 8. Are these] the cause of all these evils and threatenings, which are denounced against you by my Prophets is in you, and not in me, and therefore you wrongfully complaine of my Prophets, as if they were the Authors of all the evill that befalleth you, Isa. 28, 21. Lam. 3. 33. Doe not] if you will be good men, and beleeve, you shall heare nothing from my Prophets, but onely promises and assurances of Graces and Blessings. If you be sinners; but corrigible, and capable of repentance, you shall have by by them healthfull meanes of conversion.

V.8. Even of late] whereas your forefathers shewed their valours in just warres; You use nothing now, but thefts and murthers.

V.9. The Women] namely; the poore widdowes, out of those houses where they had lived all their time in ease, with their Husbands and children. Taken away] you bring them into such a state of misery and slavery, that the splendor and honour of being my children, and members of my people, appeares in them no more.

V.10. Arise] you have thought to settle your selves in your countrey in faire and magnificent houses in rest; but I will shortly drive you out into captivity. It shall] the pollution of the Countrey by publicke and raigning sinnes, shall be a cause that you shall not live in rest nor security; but that you shall be driven out and dispersed: as Lev.18.25,28. and 20.22. Jer.9.19. and 10.18. Ezek.36.17.

V.11. If a man] namely; false Prophets, who say they have divine inspirations, and dally with the people; promising them good, and plenty, are those whom they accept of, and hearken unto. See Isa.30.10.

V.12. I will surely] an Evangelicall promise of gathering together the universall Church, under the Kingdome of Christ, Jeremiah 31.10. contrary to the precedent dispersion. Bozrah] a place in the Land of Moab, abounding in cattell and pastures.

V.13. The breaker up] I will take away all hinderances, which may hinder the spirituall deliverance of the Church: beating downe, and laying plaine all manner of oppositions, Isa.57.14. and 62.10. Their King] namely; Jesus Christ, Hos.1.11.

CHAP. III.

Ver.1. I said] This is the beginning of a new discourse of the Prophet. Know] shall you not be instructed and understanding in the Law of God, and know how to doe justice according to it? See Jer.5.4,5.

V.4. Then] namely; in the time of Gods judgements, set downe in the former Chapters. Or plainly, the time will come that they will cry unto the Lord.

V.5. Cry peace] who under a false shew of goodnesse and mildenesse, are ravening wolves, both in soule and body, Mat.7.15.

V.6. Therefore night] by my horrible judgements, and your extreme miseries; I shall so trouble and confound your senses; that having no true Prophecye from me: you shall not dare to faine any false ones, according to your owne mindes; and shall be reproved also for your former ones. See Isa.8.20,22.

V.7. The Seers] namely; the Prophets, though they be false ones, 1 Sam.9.9. Shall all cover] in token of mourning and confusion, Lev.13.45. Ezek.24.7,22.

V.8. But truely I] I Micah being guided by the Spirit of God, doe not falsifie His word, through disloyalty or feare; but doe proceed in mine Office, in righteousnesse, and freedome.

V.10. Build up] they that doe fill Jerusalem with stately Palaces, built by rapines and extorsions. See Jer.22.13.

V.11. Will they leane] though they commit such cruell sinnes; yet they presume that God is for them, and that he will defend them from all evill; as if he were tyed to them, and could not goe away from them. See Isa.48.2. Jer.7.4. Rom.2.17.

CHAP. IV.

Ver.1. In the last] See the exposition of these three first verses, upon Isa.2.1.

V.3. A far off] even as far as to the end of the World, Psal.2.8.

V.4. They shall sit] A figurative description of the Churches spirituall peace and security under Christs Kingdome, Jer.30.10. Zech.3.10. For the mouth] this shall certainly come to passe, seeing God hath solemnly promised it.

V.5. For all people] it is an usuall, and almost naturall thing for man to hold the same Religion as their forefathers did: but under the Messias, it shall be an especiall gift of Gods grace, in all true Beleevers; that being enlightened in the true faith, and knowledge of the true God; they shall never depart from it. See Jer.3.11. we will] we will live and persevere in the faith, invocation, and service of God; which shall be revealed unto us, as it were, in his owne name. See Zech.10.12.

V.6. In that day] namely; in the Messias his time, I will gather into the sheepfold of my Church, my poore dispersed, afflicted, and weake Beleevers.

V.7. And I will make] my promises, word, and grace shall be preserved in the reliques of those poore dispersed Israelites; who shall be, as it were, the seed of my Church, and the hope of reestablishment: which I will accomplish in its due time, with great increase.

V.8. O Tower] It is the same place as is spoken of, Gen.35.21. which was neare to Jerusalem; and was afterwards called the Sheep-gate, Neh.3.1. & By it, is understood the whole City; figure of the Church, into which Gods Sheep are gathered up in safety. Strong hold] the Italian, Rocke] it seemes to be the place called Ophel; that is to say, strong hold, which was under the Temple, neare to the aforesaid Sheep-gate, 2 Chron.27.3. Neh.3.26.

to signifie the inviolable security of the faithfull, gathered together into the Church. Even the] namely; the kingdome of David, which seemed to be quite overthrowne; shall be raised up again in thee, by the spirituall and everlasting kingdome of Christ.

V. 9. Why doest thou] O Church! be comforted; thy King and kingdome is not quite perished, though it seeme to be so, by the Babylonian captivity: for Christ thy true everlasting King, shall appeare in his time, and shall re-establish his kingdome in thee.

V. 10. Be in paine and] indeed for the present thou hast reason to be perplexed, but take comfort in my promises. In the fields] wandering and dispersed out of thy countrey.

V. 11. Defiled] polluted with blood and slaughter. Sacked without any respect to her Holinesse: and all her ornaments taken away from her.

V. 12. His councell] namely; to cleanse and chastise his Church by their meanes; and afterwards, to bruise and thresh them out, like corne in a floore. See Isay 10.7. & 21.10. Jer. 51.33.

V. 13. Arise] consume and destroy thine enemies. He attributes that to the Church which Christ her head doth for her, and sometimes also by her meanes. See Isay 41.15,16. Thine horne] hereby it should seeme are meant the hooves of beasts, wherewith they used in former times to thresh corne. Deut. 25. 4. Consecrate,] he alludeth to the interdicts, whereby certaine Nations were accursed, and all the people absolutely condemned to be rooted out, and their goods absolutely to be consecrated to God, Jos. 6. 17. 19.

CHAP. V.

Verse 1. Gather thy selfe] O Jerusalem! which hast hitherto been filled with rapines, like unto those which are committed by robbers upon the high-way; gather all thy forces together to resist the Chaldeans if thou canst. The judge] the City being taken, the King and all the great Ones shall be shamefully used by the enemies.

V. 2. Little] though at this time thou beest the least, and weakest City amongst the Tribes of Judah; yet shalt thou be exalted by Christs comming in the flesh. And Saint Matthew hath the same words to the same sense, with a Negation. Thou art not the least, &c. after the said Prophecy was fulfilled. Thousands] the Tribes of Israel being divided into thousands, whereof every one had a Head, or Prince, Judges 6. 15. 1. 6. Chro. 12, 20. Zech. 9. 7. Whereupon Saint Matthew, in stead of thousands, saith Head, or Conductor. Out of thee] he comforteth the Church, which was deprived of her earthly King, by the promise of Christs comming, the heavenly and everlasting King. come forth] he was from everlasting come forth of the Father, by generation, and by an eternall decree was by him appointed to be a mediator.

V. 3. Therefore] namely, to fulfill these prophesies. Will he] God shall suffer his people to be subject to forreine Princes and Lords, their enemies, untill Christ be borne of a Virgin, according to the promises, Gen. 3. 15. Isay 7.14. The remnant] namely; the Gentiles, converted by faith to Christ, and thereby made brothers to the true Israel in Spirit, shall be united with them in one body of a Church, under Christ their head.

V. 4. And he] namely; Christ shall doe the office of a good shepheard, standing still on foot, and watching for the safegard of his; employing for their safety the divine power of his Father; whereby the Church shall rest secure, having the King of the Universe for her Protector. Now] namely; at the prefixed and appointed time, or within a short space.

V. 5. And this man] namely Christ, shall be the foundation, the author and maintainer of the true spirituall rest of the Church: and if it bee assaulted by the enemies, it shall from him have sufficient meanes for to withstand them. As if they had raised seven Armies under the command of seven Captaines, against the Assyrians, who were the Jewes ancient enemies. Seven shepheards] having likened the Church to a flock of sheepe, he calleth the defendors of it; and all the ministers of her preservation, shepheards, as servants to the great shepheard; who in respect of Christ are also sheep, and members of the Church.

V. 6. Shall waste] they shall utterly ruine, Sathan and the worlds kingdome, with the sword of Gods word, and by temporall slaughters: like unto those slaughters which the enemies had made of them. Rev. 18. 6. or using against them their owne weapons which they had taken away from them, Psal. 37. 15. Of Nimrod] See Genesis 10. 10, 11.

V. 7. As a dew] by reason of its multitude growne up as it were in an instant, and miraculously fallen from heaven; they shall be like dew or raine, Psal. 110. 3. That tarrieth not] which doth not grow in Gardens nor tilled lands, watered by mens hands; but in Deserts, Mountaines, and wilde places, that have no other water but what fals upon them from heaven, Iob 38. 26, 27. Psal. 104. 13.

V. 8. As a Lion] the faithfull shall be endowed, with an invincible force of the Spirit of God, to overcome and overthrow the devill, the world and all their enemies, 2 Cor. 10. 4. 5, 6. 1 Ioh. 5. 4. 5.

V. 10. Out

V. 10. Cut off] I will take away all worldly ſtrength from my Church. And cauſe her to renounce all damnable and unlawfull meanes to maintaine her ſelfe, as ſorceries and recourſe to Idols, and idolatrous people, which meanes, the people had formerly made uſe of; to the end ſhe may put all her truſt and confidence in Me; and that ſhe may obtaine the victory over all her enemies, only by the power of my Spirit. See Hoſea 1.7. Zech.4.6.

V. 11. The Cities] namely, the walled and ſtrong Cities, to bring them to live in Villages and open places. See Ezek.38.11.

V. 14. Groves] dedicated to Idolatry, Deut. 16.21.

V. 15. Have not heard] have not beleeved and obeyed the Goſpell. 2 Cor.10.6.

CHAP. VI.

Verſe 1. Ariſe] O Micah! debate thou Gods cauſe againſt this rebellious and ingratefull people, as it were in judgement; calling all the creatures to be judges: ſeeing their conſciences are more inſenſible then theſe creatures. See Deut.32.1. Iſay 1.2. Micha 1.2.

V. 4. For I] thou canſt not alledge that there is any fault in me, who have accumulated bleſſings upon thee. Miriam] who had alſo the gift of propheſie.

V. 5. Conſulted] namely; to make Balaam curſe thee; who inſtead of that fruitleſſe endeavour perſwaded Balack to induce thee to idolatry and fornication, Rev.12.14. From Shittim] after thou wentest aſtray after Baal-Peor, Num.25.1. Yet I did endure thee, and brought thee into the land of Canaan; where I renewed my Covenant with thee in Gilgal, by the Circumciſion. See Joſh.3.1. & 5.2. The righteouſneſſe] his ſovereigne loyalty in keeping his covenant and promiſes. Or his infinite mercies.

V. 6. wherewith] the Prophet brings in the people, deſiring to know the true meanes to appeaſe God, and be reconciled unto him.

V. 9. The Lords voice] the Lord ſeeing what his people had deſerved by their ſinnes; doth admoniſh them by his Prophets, that they ſhould take heed of his judgements, which did hang over them: and by his predictions doth warne them and inſtruct them, not to hold them to be caſuall chances, but things proceeding from his Providence and Juſtice, that they might prevent them by Repentance. Thy name] thou thy Self, as thou haſt manifeſted thy ſelfe to thy Church by thy proper Name, doeſt judge rightly of the ſinnes of thy people, and of the puniſhments which they deſerved therefore.

V. 10. Treaſurers of] gotten poſſeſſed; and uſed unjuſtly and wickedly. Scant meaſure] the Italian, Scant Eph] to ſell by, Amos 8.5.

V. 12. Therefore] namely; of Jeruſalem.

V. 13. will I] Gods words.

V. 14. Thy caſting downe] that is to ſay, thoſe ſhall periſh like a building that ſinketh, and ruineth by its owne weight, having an evill foundation, or being built with evill ſtuffe. Shalt take hold] of ſome part of thy goods, to ſave them out of the ruine.

V. 16. For the] namely; thoſe ſinnes which have been ſpoken of before. Statutes] namely; the Idolatry brought in by thoſe wicked Kings, 1 Kings 16.25.32. A hiſſing] a matter of ſcorne and deriſion. The reproach] the ignominious puniſhment for having prophaned the name and title of being my people, and my Church by your ſins, Ezek.36.20,23. Rom.2.24.

CHAP. VII.

Verſe 1. Woe is me] the Prophets lamentation, becauſe godly men were deceaved in the countrey: as if a thirſty and wearied traveller could not finde any fruit or Grapes in the Fields or Vineyards. See Pſal.12.1. The firſt ripe] rare fruits, and therefore moſt to be deſired, Iſay 28.4. Hoſ. 9.10. The meaning is; that he ſought for a good man amongſt the people, as for a very rare thing.

V. 3. Adieth] for preſents. Wrap it up] they make a league together, they joyne and ſtrengthen their evill councels and frauds; even as by the twiſting together of diverſe threeds and ſtrings they do make a ſtrong rope.

V. 4. As a brier] hurtfull and catching, as Pſal. 58.9. Ezek.2.6. The day] the time of thy puniſhment, foretold by the Prophets, who are called the watchmen, Ezek.3.17. & 33.7. Hoſ.9.8. Perplexity] and extreme anguiſh, inſtead of the windings and practices of your deceipts. See Nah. 1.10.

V. 5. Truſt ye not] there is no more faith nor loyalty, no not even amongſt the neereſt friends. A guide] ſo are they called in Scripture, who by reaſon of their degree, duty, or authority, are as it were the heads and directors of others: as the husband is of the wife; the Schoolemaſter of his ſcholers, and the Councellor of the Prince, Pſal. 55.14. Keepe the] diſcover not thy ſecret to thine owne wife, for feare leſt ſhe betray thee.

V. 7. Therefore I] the Italian, but I] namely; I Micah, with all true beleevers; ſeeing all manner of hope of being releeved by men, to be paſt; will turn to God by faith, expectation & prayer.

V. 8. Rejoyce

V. 8. Rejoyce not] words of the Church, encouraged by Gods grace: against all the taunts of the whole multitude of her adversaries.

V. 9. I will beare] with humility and patience. He plead] against mine enemies: who taking no care for to execute Gods judgements for my sins, have wreaked all their cruelty upon me. will bring me] as it were out of the low pit of misery, in which I am. His righteousnesse] his deliverance, the effect of his loyalty and love towards me: and of his severe justice, against his and mine enemies.

V. 11. In the day] An Euangelicall promise: the meaning is; when in the Messias his time I shall re-establish my Church, which hath beene as an excluded and abandoned Possession: Amos 9. 11. I will set her in perfect liberty, freeing her from the commands of all others; but mine owne.

V. 12. They shall come] All Nations shall joyne themselves to the Christian Church: See Isa. 19. 23. The fortified cities] A Countrey which is most strong by nature, being bounded by the sea, and by wildernesses; and entrenched with great channells of water. The Prophet names it so by an allusion to the Hebrew name, of Egypt: See Dan. 11. 15, 24. The river] namely, Euphrates.

V. 13. The land] namely, Judea, before the comming of Christ in the flesh. Because of] Or, together with, &c. For the fruits] For the just recompence and punishment of their sinnes.

V. 14. Feed thy] The Prophets words to our Saviour Jesus Christ; that hee would be pleased to feed, and guide his Church: which is destitute of all humane help, and is exposed to many dangers, like sheep upon the mountains and in woods. Carmel Basham] Places yeelding fat pastures.

V. 15. Will I shew] Christ his answer.

V. 16. They shall lay] They shall hold their peaces for fear. Shal be deaf] With the sudden bursting forth of Gods wonderfull and terrible works.

V. 17. Thy shall lick] They shall be cast down with all their pride, at Gods feet, who shall raigne in his Church: Psal. 72. 9. Isa. 49. 23. Because of thee] O God! or, of thee, O Church! when thou shalt be restored to thy glory and splendor by Christ, who shall dwell and operate in thee.

The Booke of the Prophet NAHUM.

ARGUMENT.

AFter the Lord had suspended his judgements touching Nineveh, which seemed to be moved to repentance by Jonahs preaching: and that City, together with the whole Assyrian Empire (whereof it was the head) were returned to their former sinnes: encreasing them through the oppression and persecution of the Church: Nahum was raised up to denounce to both of them, the last and irrevocable decree of their ruine by the Chaldeans and Medes. The summe of which is; That the everlasting, glorious and Almighty God; being jealous of the wrong done to his Majesty, and the oppression of his people by the Assyrians, and to execute his judgements upon them for many other sinnes and violences, would within a short time cause that so ancient, mighty, and flourishing Monarchie to perish. The execution of which decree and sentence is set downe; and lively represented by Nahum by all its circumstances, to assure Gods people so much the more thereof; and to comfort them for the evills which they had suffered by them.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. THe burthen] that is to say; A Prophecie of threatnings and evils: Isai 13. 1. Jer. 23. 33. Nineveh] The head of the Assyrian Empire, which was conquered by Nebuchadnezzar the Great, King of Chaldea, who also destroyed Nineveh: Isa. 10. 5, 12. Ezek. 31. 3. Zeph. 2. 13. Elkoshite] Of a city or castle called Elkosh: which ancient histories have affirme to have been within the Tribe of Simeon, but the Scripture makes no mention thereof.

V. 2. Is jealous] Who cannot endure such injuries juries done in his glory, and to his children; as the Aſſyrians have done to them.

V. 3. The ſhields] He meaneth the cloudes of the ayre, even as a great cloud of duſt would be raiſed by a great multitude of horſemen riding apace.

V. 4. Baſhan] The ſtrength and beauty of creatures is deſtroyed, when they feele His wrath. The flowre] namely; The faire and excellent Cedars, and other trees of Lebanon. Or, Lebanon which was ſo proſperous and flouriſhing.

V. 7. He knoweth them] that is to ſay; He approveth of, favoureth, and taketh an eſpeciall care of them.

V. 8. With an overrunning flood] Which ſhall breake downe all defences and banks; and ſhall not be kept backe, nor turned any other way: as Iſa. 28. 19. Thereof] namely, of Nineveh.

V. 9. What doe yee imagine] What counſell or advice can you take to withſtand the judgement which hangeth over you?

V. 10. Falden together] Troubled, and perplexed in their counſells, and meanes of their defence; and alſo made drunke with wine and pleaſures, and with pride of their greatneſſe and power.

V. 11. One come] He ſeemes to point at Senacharib, who had plotted the totall ruine of Jeruſalem under Hezekiah.

V. 12. Though they be] The height which this Empire ſhall have attained to; ſhall be like unto the ripeneſſe of corne, or of the graſſe of the fields; which ſeemeth to call upon the Sickle and Sithe to cut and mowe it downe. Though I have] God turneth his ſpeech to the Church.

V. 14. Concerning thee] Thou King, or Empire of Aſſyria! Betweene] namely; That after thou art thus caſt downe: as v. 12. thou ſhalt no more come to thy former ſtate: contrary to thoſe fields, which after the corne is cut downe, are ſowne againe: or, he intimates the totall extinguiſhment of the royall race of Aſſyria. Will I cut off] This is added according to the cuſtome of Prophets; who in the deſcription of the ruines of States, doe adde thereunto the overthrow of the Idolls. Make thy] namely; That houſe of thy Gods; hee ſeemeth to have a relation to Senacharibs being murthered in his own Idols temple: 2 King 19. 37. after he had been ſhamefully forced to goe out of Judea.

V. 15. Behold] A deſcription of the Churches joy at the newes of the Aſſyrians ruine; by the meanes of which; ſhee might in peace, ſecurity and mirth attend upon God ſervice, and give him thankes. Performe] Or pay and yeeld them up.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. HE that daſheth] namely; The King of the Chaldeans. Keepe the] Uſe what care thou canſt for to defend thy ſelfe; for all ſhall be in vaine: See Jerem. 51. 11, 12.

V. 2. Turned away] the Italian, Reſtores] that is to ſay; Nineveh ſhall be deſtroyed; for God will reſtore his Church, which the Aſſyrians have brought into a ſhamefull miſery and ſlavery, to ſuch glorious libertie and happineſſe, as belongeth to the name and quality of Gods people.

V. 3. The ſhield] A deſcription of the Chaldeans preparation to aſſault Nineveh. Of his] namely, The deſtroyers: v. 1. Made red] A colour which was much uſed by the Babylonians; eſpecially in wars: See Ezek. 23. 14. Flaming torches] namely; with gliſtering armour: Some take this in its proper meaning, for Wild-fires, which ſhall be throwne. Preparation] To give the onſet. The Fir trees] He doth by hyperbole call ſo the great launces, ſpeares, and other piked armes.

V. 5. He ſhall] The King of Babylon ſhall encourage his captaines to the battell; calling them every one by his owne proper name, according to the cuſtome of Generalls. Stumble] There ſhall be ſuch a throng, and they ſhall goe on ſo fiercely; that they ſhall hardly be able to keepe their ranks. The defence] the Italian, The covering] It was ſome machine, or moveable defence, made after the ancient faſhion; under which the aſſailants drew neere to the wall, either to dig through it with mattocks and pickaxes: or, for to fight with them that ſtood in defence above, upon certaine wooden towers.

V. 6. The gates of the rivers] Hee ſeemes to meane ſome violent meanes uſed by the Chaldeans, to turne the river Tigris into the beſieged city, whereby many great buldings were overthrowne.

V. 7. Huzzab] the Italian, The Ladies] Heb. The Serraglio: that is to ſay; The Kings wife, and concubines, which ſhall be ſhut up in the ſaid Serraglio. Some have taken the Hebrew word for the Queen of Nineveh's proper name. The voyce] namely; Weeping and lamentation.

V. 8. Like a poole] It hath alwayes been a place of eaſe and reſt for her inhabitants; who, after the taking of it, ſhall run away; ſome here, ſome there, and ſhall no more come, nor be gathered together: like fiſh out of a pond that is emptied and drawne out.

V. 9. Of the ſtore] A magazine and ſtore-houſe of all manner of goods. Glory] namely; The meſtimable riches.

V. 10. The

V. 10. The knees smite] With terror: as Isa. 13. 7, 8. The faces] See Joel 2. 6.

V. 11. Where is] What is become of Nineveh, the seat of such a powerfull, terrible, and violent Empire?

V. 13. Her chariots] Her forces, and warlike power. Thy prey] The treasures and wealth that thou hast gathered up together, by thine oppressions and violences. The voyce] Hee seemes to have an especiall relation to Rabzakeh his blasphemimg ambassage: 2 King. 18. 19.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. City] namely; Nineveh.

V. 2. The noyse] A representation of the conquering Chaldeans coming into Nineveh.

V. 4. Whoredome] that is to say; Cunning devices and plots to draw in people; and become Lords over them, as it were, by entereſt of state. This word being often used in this sense amongst the Prophets: Isa. 23. 15, 17. Rev. 17. 2. and 18. 3. Of witchcrafts] This terme may also be referred to the same sense: it being the custome of Harlots to use sorceries and witchcrafts. It may also be understood in its proper sense. Selleth] Under the colour of protection, favour, commerce, and the like, he seizeth upon Kingdomes and States, and doth subject nations unto him.

V. 5. Discover thy skirts] I will expose thee to shame and slavery; a terme taken from the injuries done by souldiers to poore women which were taken prisoners in the wars: Isa. 47. 2, 3. Jer. 13. 22. Ezek. 16. 37.

V. 6. Filth] All manner of filth; as they used to throw upon people that were publikely disgraced.

V. 7. Shall flee] They shall so detest and abhorre thee.

V. 8. Noe] A famous city of Egypt, called in following ages. Alexandria, which it is likely had been greatly ruined before the Prophets time: of which ruine there is no mention made in Scripture. The rivers] In Egypt, where there were divers branches of Nilus, cut out in channells; for otherwise Alexandria was not situated by the river it selfe.

V. 9. Ethiopia] the Italian. Cush] and Put] People of Affrica.

V. 10. Were dashed] A cruelty used in cities which were taken by force of armes: see Psal. 137. 9. Isa. 13. 16. Hos. 13. 16. They cast] As it were, to divide the spoile.

V. 11. Thou] namely; Nineveh. Drunken] With the cup of Gods wrath: Jer. 25. 15. 27. Shalt be hid] for feare and shame.

V. 12. Shall be like] shall be easily taken by the enemies.

V. 13. Thy barres] thine enclosures and defences.

V. 14. Draw thee] make all needfull preparations and provisions for to hold out the siege, repairing the breaches of thy wall with bricks, An ironicall kinde of speech, as Nah. 2. 1.

V. 15. There shall] namely; in those thy strong holds, so well repaired and fortified. Like the Kanker-worme] that is to say; even as these insects, doe gnaw and spoile the plants, or as they themselves are destroyed in any place by fire.

V. 16. Thou hast] an infinite number of people were gathered together in thee; to live by thy trasick and commodities: but like to these little insects; so soone as there is nothing left to gnaw; they presently vanish away; so thou wert presently forsaken, when there was no more to be gained by thee.

V. 17. They crowned] namely; thy Barons and great Lords, wearing Diadems and Wreaths in token of dignity. Or vassall and confederate Kings.

V. 18. Thy shepherds] thy heads, governours, and officers are dead and astonished, and out of heart, Exod. 15. 16. Psal. 76. 5. Shall dwell] as Jer. 51 30.

V. 19. Shall clap] for joy to see thy tyranny overthrowne.

The Booke of the Prophet HABAKKUCK.

ARGUMENT.

IT is very uncertaine at what time Habakkuk prophecied. It seemes it was towards the latter end of Gods patience with his people, a little before the last desolation by the Chaldeans. Now this prophecy is conceaved, partly, in a manner of a prediction; and also in forme forme of a meditation. For the Prophet having shewne his extreame griefe, in beholding Gods long patience with his people that were runne into all manner of wickednesse; to whom he therefore denounceth their last ruine by the Chaldeans. He afterwards falls a wandering why God should so exalt and cause to flourish the Babilonians, who were a violent, proud, dissolute and wicked Nation, even in the highest degree, to whom he had committed the execution of his judgements. But the Lord by a vision, bringeth him and every beleever to the exercise of faith and patience, the onely helpe in all their calamities: staying for the effect of his justice upon those wicked nations in a curse and utter destruction. And the Prophet resting upon Gods good will and pleasure; doth in a song celebrate the ancient deliverances: and by faith conceives the like from these present evils: whereupon rejoycing in Spirit he gives praises and thanks.

CHAP. I.

Verse 1. The burthen] namely; the prophecy, denouncing threatnings and curses, by Gods expresse command, Isay 13,1. Did see] that is to say; receaved from God in a prophetick vision.

V. 2. How long] the Prophets lamentation, for the great sinnes of the people, which God seemed to passe over or tolerate. Violence] either generall against good men, or particular, against the Prophet.

V. 3. Strife] chiefly against those Prophets which reproved them. See Jer. 15, 10. Hos. 4. 4.

V. 4. Therefore] thy great patience O Lord, causeth thy law to be as it were disarmed of her terror, and be of no strength nor authority with these wicked men: and be no more publickly used. Judgement] all the course of publick justice is broken off. Compasse about] for the wicked doe besiege good men, by reason of their multitude, credit, and power: justice suffereth violence, and is not exercised with liberty and righteousnesse.

V. 7. Their judgement] they receave no law, nor assistance from any: their reason is their will, and the execution in their power.

V. 8. More fierce] the Italian, Ravenous] Heb. sharpened or fleshed.

V. 9. Their faces] they shall overthrow and dissipate all whatsoever shall come against them, as this tempestuous winde doth.

V. 10. Heap dust] the Italian, Make terraces] peradventure he meanes to shew the easinesse of the conquest. As if the Chaldeans should doe it as it were in a pastime, as little children do make trenches, and forts in the dust.

V. 11. Then shall] namely; when their greatnesse is come to the height.

V. 12. Art thou not] the Prophets words to God in the name of all the people. Mine holy one] the onely sacred Deity which I adore; him whom I onely acknowledge to be holy, amongst all other Gods, which are but impure Idols, that pollute the soule. We shall not] thy Church cannot perish, seeing it is joyned to thee who art everlasting, by a covenant which importeth communication of grace, and of life, and of glory. See Psal 102.28. & 118. 17. Lam. 5. 19, 20. Mat. 22. 32 Ordained them] it is true that thou hast established that great Empire to punish thy Church, 2 Kings 19. 25. Isay 10. 5, 6, 7. but not destroy it, as it endeavoureth to do by an extreame tyranny, contrary to thy nature and will.

V. 13. Canst not look] patiently without punishing it. The wicked] namely; the Chaldeans who are unjust in oppressing thy people who never offended them; and immoderate in the execution of thy judgements, which they do not regard and are more wicked then those whom thou punishest by them.

V. 14. Makest men] hast thou forsaken Nations and States, like fishes and such like beasts, which are his that can first take them?

V. 16. They sacrifice] instead of acknowledging all their greatnesse to proceed from God, and giving him thanks, and serving him; they attribute it to themselves, and to their industry, understanding, and valour. See Isay 10.13.

V. 17. Emptie] wilt thou O Lord suffer them after so many faults and impieties, to enjoy their oppressions, and endlesly continue in them?

CHAP. II.

Ver. 1. I will stand] the Italian, I did stand] phrases taken from watches, which were in strong and guarded places; as Isa. 21. 8. The meaning is; by prayers, meditations, and lifting up of my minde; I did desire of God some Propheticke Revelation: whereby I might be taught how to answer to that which prophane and weake persons might oppose against Gods providence, which doth so far favour these wicked Cal-deans with me] he will speake unto me: namely, by internall Revelation. See Hos. 1. 2.

V. 2. Make it plaine] See Isa. 8. 1. and 30. 8.

V. 3. Is yet] I have not yet taken away the gift of prophecye from my people; by which, I will cause them to know, not only such accidents as doe trouble them; but also what shall happen untill Christs comming; which is called the time of the end of the Law. See Dan. 10. 14.

V. 4. His strength which] the remedy against these calamities of the Church, is not to seeke out places to secure themselves from Gods hands: As the Jewes did, when they went into Egypt, and other places, and there perished: Now much lesse, to separate themselves from the communion of the Church, by Apostasie: these are only damnable errours of the carnall sense; which God reproveth: But good soules, having no other help, shall by a lively faith in God, be maintained in the true spirituall life; which is the conjunction with God, and the feeling of his grace: and shall be defended from anything as may hurt their salvation. Is lifted up] the Italian, withdraweth] the Hebrew word is so expounded by Saint Paul, Heb. 10. 38. and indeed signifieth; save himselfe, and hide himselfe in a strong place.

V. 5. By wine] If I blame my people, that thinke to save themselves by their cunning; how much more shall I condemne the Babylonians, who drowned in pleasures, and made drunke with prosperity, doe boldly contemne my threatenings? He seemes to have a relation to Belshazzars drinking feasts, Dan. 5. or to the taking of Babylon in a night of great dissolutenesse, Isa 21. 5. Jer. 51. 39. Who enlargeth] hath been inflamed with an insatiable desire, and ambition. But gathereth] bringeth them into his subjection, and maketh a prey of their goods, Isa. 10. 13.

V. 6. With thicke] namely; with earthly riches; the desire of which, is the exchange of the soules losse: or a burthen which overcommeth him, and smothereth him alive.

V. 7. That shall] namely; the Persians and Medes, Isa. 21. 2. Jer. 50 and 51. Bite thee] A phrase taken from hunting dogs.

V. 8. Of the City] that is to say, Jerusalem especially.

V. 9. To his house] to increase, and establish his estate, so that he might be out of all danger.

V. 11. Shall cry] as it were to witnesse, that thou hast built thy house with violence, and rapine. The beame] the Italian, the brick] wherewith they ordinarily built their houses in Babylon, with timber amongst it, Gen. 11. 3. Others; the matter, which comes almost to the same sense.

V. 13. Is it not] who can make any question, but that the ruine of Babylon, to the foundation, and increase of which, so many Nations, for so many ages, had contributed their labour; is a singular worke of Gods vengeance?

V. 14. The glory] by the just and powerfull punishment of his enemies.

V. 15. That putteth] this may be understood in the proper sense, of the dissolutenesse of the Babylonian Court; amidst the which, they did filthy and dishonest acts. Or figuratively, of the dishonest practises, by which the Babylonians drew in other Princes, and Nations, for to spoile them, and bring them into ignominious slavery.

V. 16. Drinke thou] of the cup of Gods wrath, Jer. 25. 26, 27. Be uncovered] be a shamefull spectacle. Spewing] A terme taken from drunkards feasts; which doe spoile the most adorned, and beautifull places. The meaning is, Gods judgements shall carry thee into unworthy and infamous acts.

V. 17. The violence] as he that felleth Trees in a Wood, is oftentimes crushed by them: so thine oppressions and violences will cause thy ruine. See Isa. 14. 8. Ezek. 31. 16. The spoile] as oftentimes Wolves, and other ravening beasts, are surprised in the greatest heate of their slaughter; which blindeth them: so the like shall happen to thee.

V. 18. What profiteth] A scoffe, at the Caldeans vaine confidence in their Idols. A teacher] Idols are so called, Jer. 10. 8, 14. Zech. 10, 2. because, that according to the opinion of Idolaters, they are remembrances, and visible documents of an invisible Deity. And in the meane time, they cause mans minde to goe astray, from the true and saving knowledge of God, revealed in his Word; imprinting false opinions of God in him; bringing him downe to sensible things, in stead of raising him up to spirituall ones.

V. 19. Awake] to help me. Teach] that is to say, counsell and direct thee.

V. 20. Is in his] liveth and raigneth in Heaven in glory, and is present in grace in Spirit & in his Temple: and it is fitting that all the world should submit to him, in all humility.

CHAP. III.

Ver. 1. Sigionoth] A terme of musicke. The meaning whereof is unknowne. See Psal. 7. upon the title.

V. 2. Thy speech] namely, the precedent prophecye, concerning the ruine of Babylon: Wherefore, in all humble reverence, I submit my selfe to Thy will: Only I pray thee, that thou wouldst continue thy worke or grace in thy Church, during The seventy yeares of captivity, of which thou hast declared unto us the prefixed time.

V. 3.

V.3. God] he describes the glorious bringing in of Gods people into the Land of Canaan under Joshua: inferring thereby, that as God had miraculously brought his people into that Countrey, so he might bring them in againe notwithstanding all lets and hinderances. From Teman]of Idumea; within whose territories lay a great part of that Wildernesse, through which the people passed, Judg.3.4. Paran] a place in the Wildernesse, Numb.10.12. Selah] See Psal.3.4. Of his praise] of his noble acts; worthy to be praised in all ages, and at all times. Others;of his Brightnesse.

V.4. The brightnesse] the brightnesse thereof was so great, that it dazeled the sight, so that one could not see into it.

V.5. Before him] these scourges went before him, and behind him; as his Officers, and executioners of his vengeances.

V.6. He stood] as it were, in the frontier, to mete out the Countrey for his people. The Nations] namely; the Canaanites. See Exod.15.15. Jos.2.9. and 5.1. Everlasting] which have never changed, neither place nor forme, since their Creation. See upon Gen.49.26. Deut.33.15. Bowed himself] all worldly heights, which seemed immutable, melted before him. His ways] to him only belongeth to move everlastingly, in the actuall exercise of his power to doe whatsoever he pleaseth.

V.7. I saw] that is to say;all the neighbouring Nations(as the Arabians that lived in Tents)were terrified at the peoples passage through the Wildernesse. See Exod.15.15. Numb.22.3,4. Others, thinke he hath a relation to the discomfiture of Cushan-Pisaraim by Othniel, Judg.3.10. & of the Midianites by Gideon, Judg.6.1.

V.8. Was the Lord] God did not cry out upon the Red Sea,nor upon Jordan; because he was angry with those creatures, to destroy them, or to alter their naturall course; but only for the safeguard of his people, Psal.114.5. Thou didst ride] every time that thou hast shewed thy selfe, as it were, in battell array; it hath alwayes been for the deliverance of thy people.

V.9. Thy bow] A figurative terme, taken from that in those Countries, the Archers did use to carry their bowes in certaine cases. Cleave] A poeticall hyperbole. Thou didst cleave the earth, and causedst waters and streames to come forth every where.

V.10. The overflowing] thou powrest downe from Heaven a strong and fierce raine, Psal.77.17. Uttered his voice] A poeticall representation, as if the Sea had required mercy and pardon of God,feeling it selfe strucken by his hand.

V.11. The Sun] this may be referred to that which was done by Joshuah, Jos.10.12,13. or it is a continuation of the precedent representation. The Arrowes,]namely;of thy lightenings.

V.13. Thine Anointed] namely; Moses and Aaron,or Joshua, persons consecrated by God, to be instruments of his peoples deliverances and victories. See Psal.77.20. Mi.63.11. Wounded] thou destroyedst Pharaoh, King of that wicked Countrey Egypt, with all his Army; even as a house which were overthrowne to the very ground.

V.14. With his staves] crushing his enterprize, and the preparation which he made to follow thy people to be the occasion of his owne ruine. Of his villages,]namely; of all the Land of Egypt, inhabited;as the most part of Africke is, in Castles, and Villages. See Ia.18.2. Secretly] being far from any relieve or assistance. A terme taken from highway robbers, Psal.10 8.

V.15. with thine horses] whereby are meant the windes or the cloudes, Psal.104.3. or the Host of Angels, who are Gods Horse-men, Psal.68. 17.

V.16. I heard] the denunciation of thine horrible judgments upon thy people,(so different from these thine ancient deliverances,) hath quite dismayed me. Rottennesse] my spirit is gnawne, and consumed therewith.

V.17. The Fig-tree] that is to say; the Countrey shall be brought into extreme desolation.

V.18. Yet I will]notwithstanding the naturall feeling of all these great evils; I and all other true Beleevers will be comforted by the most certaine promises of deliverance, Hab.2.4.

V.19. He will make] he will at last doe his people that favour, as to let them escape, and save themselves in the Church under Gods protection: as the Hinde hunted & followed by the huntsmen, retireth to her covert. To the] See Psal.4. in the title.

The Booke of the Prophet ZEPHANIAH.

ARGUMENT.

THis Prophet lived and propheſied but few yeares before the captivity of Babylon, together with many others; who by their preachings have kept off the imminent ruine: exhorting, That wicked people to repentance and converſion to prevent Gods judgements. And ſuch is alſo the only ſubject of this Prophecye: in which Zephaniah denounceth the approaching deſolation by the Caldeans; for a puniſhment of their idolatries, tyrannies, oppreſſions, and incorrigible wickedneſſes; which raigned in all the people, high and low; from which he earneſtly exhorteth them to turne. Then he turneth towards the true Beleevers, and the Elect, whom he comforteth with the promiſes of deliverance from theſe evils; and of everlaſting ſalvation by Chriſt; who ſhould gather together His Church, from amongſt all the Nations in the World; and ſhould ſanctifie it, bleſſe it, and gloriſie it for ever; and ſhould ruine all her enemies.

CHAP. I.

Ver. 2. I will] A threatening of the Countries deſolation by the Caldeans.

V. 3. The fowles] A kinde of amplification very frequent amongſt the Prophets. See Jer. 4. 25. and 12. 4. Hoſ. 4. 3. Stumbling blocks] the Idols, and all the objects and inſtruments of Idolatry; by which men were induced to ſinne, even to their owne ruine. See Deut. 7. 25. Ezek. 14. 3. 7.

V. 4. The remnant] that which remained ſince Joſias Reformation, 2 King. 23. 3, 4, 5. Chemarins] they were a certaine kinde of miniſtring Officers, belonging to Idols. See 2 King. 23. 5. Hoſ. 10. 5. The Prieſts] namely of Idols. Or Leviticall Prieſts; but corrupted by Idolatry, 2 King. 23. 8, 9. or by a wicked life, Zeph. 3. 4.

V. 5. That worſhip and] by an outward profeſſion, gain-ſayed by their life and converſation, Iſa. 48. 1. Others, tranſlate it; which worſhipping the Lord, and ſwearing by him, ſweare alſo by Malcham; that is to ſay; which mixe the ſervice of the true God with the ſervice of Idols. See Hoſ. 4. 15. ſweare by] the Italian, ſweare to] peradventure he hath a relation to the renewing of the Covenant by Joſia, 2 King. 23. 3. Others, ſweare by the Lord, which comprehendeth the whole profeſſion of true Religion, Pſal. 63. 11. Iſa. 19. 18. and 45. 23. Malcham] an Idoll of the Ammonites, ſerved in Topher, neare to Jeruſalem, 2 King. 23. 10. Jer. 49. 3. Amos 1. 15.

V. 7. Hold thy peace] let every one in humility and reverence adore Gods judgements, without any murmuring or contradiction. A ſacrifice] A great ſlaughter, as it were, to prepare a banquet; which he intends to make for the Caldeans, who are, as it were, his gueſts: or for the fowles of the aire, and for ravening beaſts, as Iſa. 34. 6. Jer. 46. 10. Ezek. 39. 17. Rev. 19. 17.

V. 8. As one cloathed] he ſeemes to meane the great Courtiers; who clothed themſelves in a Caldean or Egyptian habit, according to the party they followed: or by a prophane affectation.

V. 9. That leap] this was indeed a very frequent Superſtition amongſt the heathen upon many occaſions; as 1 Sam. 5. 5. but becauſe that agreeth not with this place, it ſeemes to be a proverbiall kinde of ſpeech, to ſignifie, great mens Officers; who by an abſolute power went into other mens houſes; and to whom no doores were ſhut.

V. 10. The noiſe] A great tumult at the taking of Jeruſalem by the Caldeans; who came in at theſe two gates, Jer. 30. 3. See concerning this Fiſh-gate, 2 Chron. 33. 14. Neh. 3. 3. which is alſo called the firſt gate, Zech. 14. 10. to make a difference between it, and this ſecond gate. The hils] as the hils of Gareb, and Goath, Jer. 31. 39. on the Weſt ſide of Jeruſalem; where it ſhould ſeeme, the Cal-

Chaldeans did also endevour to force the City.

V. 11. Of Mahtesh] It is thought that hee meanes a low village within the City betweene two hills; which was so called: Which by the Greekes for the same cause was called Tiropeon; as who should say: shape of a cheese; and that there were the shop-keepers for all manner of mercery wares. That beare silver] the Italian, The money-bearers] Hereby is signified the rich trading, which was in that place to which money was carryed in great burthens.

V. 12. I will search] I will cause the Chaldeans to seeke out the most hidden things that are in Jerusalem. That are setled] A phrase taken from such liquors as grew thicke when they are powred out of one vessell into another: Jer. 48. 11. to signifie either the gathering together of riches in Jerusalem; which for many yeeres before had not been taken nor pillaged: Or, the stupidity and carnall security of the Inhabitants: to which seeme to be referred the following words of those prophane men, who denied Gods providence, or took no care of it: See Psal. 119. 10.

V. 14. The voyce of] The Chaldeans shall come so suddenly, that the first newes that shall be heard of it, shall be the terrible cries of the tumult of the captaines and souldiers being already at the gate.

V. 16. The higher towers] the Italian, The high corners] Which are the places in Cities most fortified with towers and bastions, &c. Others translate it towers.

V. 17. They shall walke] They shall be amazed and unprovided of counsell and advice.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. Gather your selves] All your assemblies, whereby you shall endevour to defend your selves, shall be but like great bundles of stalkes and flaxe to be consumed altogether by the fire of Gods wrath: Zeph 1. 18.

V. 2. Before] This verse must be joyned with the next. The meaning is; before Gods decree against his people be put in execution: you Believers shall flie to his Grace by Prayer and conversion.

V. 3. All yee meeke] A title which is ordinarily given to good men. Be hid] Saved and defended.

V. 4. Gazah] The Philistims, and all other enemies of the Church shall be utterly destroyed, without hope of being restored. But I will preserve some seed and remainder of my people, to re-establish them in the appointed time: wherefore let every one of you endevour to be of that blessed number. Ashdod] The Inhabitants thereof shall be lead into captivitie. At the noone] The City being forced, and taken by assault.

V. 5. The Sea-coast] Where the Philistines land was: 1 Sam. 30. 14, 16. Ezech. 25. 16. O Canaan] Of which the Philistines were a part: Jos. 13. 3.

V. 7. Shall be for] This may be understood in part; and corporally, of the possession which the Jewes tooke of the Philistines land at their returne from Babylon: But it is perfectly meant by the spirituall dominion of the Church, joyned with Christ her Head, over all her spirituall enemies: See Isa. 11. 14.

V. 11. For he] The chiefe end of all those terrible judgements, shall be to root out those peoples Idolatries; annd cause the true God alone to be worshipped (which hath been accomplished under Christ Jesus,) The Iles] The far countreys, especially, beyond the Sea.

V. 13. He will stretch] Because the destruction of Nineveh and the Assyrian Empire happened, as it is thought; in the time of Jehoiakim, after Zephaniah's Prophecies.

V. 14. In the upper] See upon Amos 9. 1. Uncover the] Her roofe, and all her timber workes being burnt downe, there shall remaine nothing but the walls of ruined houses.

V. 15. Shall hisse] In horror and disdaine.

CAAP. III.

Vers. 1. That is filthy] the Italian, Rebellious] Or, infected City; which is nothing but uncleaneneſse: namely; to Jerusalem: Or, to her which provoketh to wrath.

V. 2. The voyce] namely; Gods voyce, calling her to repentance by his servants.

V. 3. They gnaw not] the Italian; Which have not broken a bone in the morning] that is to say; Which are even raging with hunger.

V. 4. Are light] the Italian, Are bold] In feigning Prophecies of their owne inventions; uttering them, and boldly maintaining them.

V. 5. The just Lord] that is to say; God, who hath chosen Jerusalem for the place of his residence, and manifestation in the world, cannot in justice suffer these sinnes to escape unpunished. Every morning] that is to say, every day even in the morning (which seemeth to have been the ordinary time appointed for the Prophets preaching) hee doth denounce unto them his judgements to come: and represents unto them those which he hath already executed upon other Nations, to call his people to repentance: See 2 Chron. 36. 15 and 11. 7. and 25. 3.

V. 6. Their towers] Heb. Corners: See Zeph. 1. 16. The Hebrew word may also be taken for Princes and Lords.

V. 7. Howsoever] Though I brought them into great miseries by reason of their sins: yet will I save Jerusalem from finall ruine, if so be shee will be converted. But they rose] They have studied nothing but evill doing: or, as fast as I called them to repentance every morning, they returned to their evill doings.

V. 8. Waite yee] O yee remainder of true Believers! comfort your selves still, with the hope of my vengeance upon your enemies: and of the deliverance which I shall send you in the Messias his time: for then will I gather all the nations together to serve me; as heretofore I have gathered them together to punish them.

V. 9. For then] He gives a reason of the former reason: for under the Messias the face of the earth shall be changed by the conversion of the Gentiles, and by their sanctification of hearts and tongues: See Isa. 19. 18. With one consent] Heb. With one shoulder; A phrase taken from oxen which are yoaked together: See Zech. 7. 11.

V. 10. From beyond] Even by the furthermost countries, which have least knowledge of Me, and of my Grace; will I be served and worshipped: See Isa. 18. 7. Acts 8. 27. My dispersed] Mine Elect dispersed through out the world.

V. 11. Shalt thou not] O my Church! I will take away that ignominy from thee wherewith I had heretofore punished thee for thy sinnes, and especially for the pride which thou wert growne to, by reason of the great prerogatives which I had bestowed upon thee, of my presence and abode with thee.

V. 12. I will also leave] Out of the carnall and reproved Israel; and out of lost man-kind will I deliver mine Elect and Believers, which are poore and wretched in the worlds esteeme: See Isa. 14. 32. Zech. 11. 11. and 13. 9.

V. 13. The remnant] The true Believers chosen out of all the world, being regenerated by the Holy Ghost, shall live in purity, sincerity, and innocence; like Christs true people, fed by the Word of truth; and kept safe under his protection, and not by any devices or cunnings.

V. 15. Judgements] namely, Punishments and visitations. The King] namely, Jesus Christ the true everlasting God shall alwayes be with thee: in the power and grace of his Spirit.

V. 16. Let not] Be not discouraged; strengthen thy selfe in faith, and in perseverance in all the duties of thy calling: not fearing any harme as may happen to thee.

V. 17. Rejoyce] His delight shall be in thee, in loving thee and doing thee good: Jer. 32. 41. Ezek. 20. 40.

V. 18. That are] namely; The poore Jewes led into captivity; and afflicted chiefly by the cessation of Gods service: whereby, whereas God at first was honoured, by offerings and sacrifices, he was dishonoured and blasphemed by his enemies. A figure of the Elects being gathered together in the Church; and of which there is no true service of God.

V. 20. Bring you again] Into your country, which is the figure of the Church.

The Booke of the Prophet HAGGAI.

ARGUMENT.

AFter the Babilonian Captivitie: God yet for a time raised other Prophets amongst his people; and amongst the rest Haggai and Zechariah: for to exhort them to re-edifie the Temple, and re-establish Gods pure service, which was interrupted through their negligence in restoring and re-edifying of the Temple; and was divers ways pollu'ed by their vices and evill customes: for which things the Prophet grievously reproveth them; calling them to repentance through the consideration of Gods former judgements; and strengthening them with the promises of his Grace, when they freely and courageously performed both those duties. Then he falleth to comforting of the Elect, who were grieved to see this second Temple farre lesse stately then the first; assuring them: that for this second was reserved the incomparable glory of Christs comming in the flesh; who was appointed appointed by the Father to be the universall King of the World; who should overthrow all Powers contrary to His; and should perfectly glorifie his Church, which was figured by that materiall building.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. Darius] called by Historians the bastard: Ezdr. 4. 24. The Sonne] that is to say; The Nephew: 1 Chro. 3. 17. Governour] Made Governour of the Jewes by the Kings of Persia, after the returne out of captivity: See Ez. 1 8. and 2. 63.

V. 2. The time] Feigned excuses of the Jewes, who were negligent in the re-edifying of the Temple: As if by those lets which had been a hinderance to them, God had shewen that hee would have the worke put off till another time: whereas the true reason of their intermission was; the contempt of Gods service, and their carnall affection to their owne ease.

V. 4. Soiled houses] Re-edifyed with seilings and timber worke, put to the ancient walls.

V. 5. Your wayes] Your carelessnesse whereby you have provoked my judgements.

V. 6. He that] You have not reaped any profit or benefit of all your labours: See Zech. 8. 10.

V. 8. will be glorified] I will shew my glorious power in blessing and defending you; and will give You cause to honour and serve me, and mine enemies to feare me.

V. 9. Ye looked] You hoped for a great harvest, by reason of the great likelihood there was of it, but your hopes were in vain. Yet runne] Every one is most carefull of building up his own house, and looking to his owne particular businesses.

V. 12. Obeyed thee] And went freely about the re-edifying of the Temple: Ezr. 5. 2.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. The seventh moneth] Of the second yeere of Darius his raigne: Hag. 1. 1.

V. 3. Who is left] See Ez. 3. 12. The meaning is; If any of you have lived ever since the destruction of the first Temple till now; which was impossible, it being one hundred and seventy yeeres since.

V. 5. My Spirit] Of grace, light, vertue, and holinesse: see Isa 63. 11.

V. 6. I will shake] as formerly, when I gave my law, I appeared in terrible majestie; so in the Messias his time, I will unfold the Almighty power of my Spirit, by the preaching of the Gospell: from whence shall follow great commotions to the ruine of the Devils kingdome, and the confirming of Christs, by the calling and gathering together all mine Elect. See Joel 3 16. Heb. 12. 26, 27.

V. 7. The desire] the Italian, The choice] Heb. The desire] namely; those that are deere and pretious to me, which are my true Elect. This house] this re-edified Temple shall be honoured with Christs bodily presence. And the spirituall Temple which is the Church; shall be honoured by my presence in spirit, the abundance of my graces, the light of my word, and power of my Spirit.

V. 8. The silver] if I pleased, it were an easie matter for me, to beautifie this Temple with pretious ornaments, equall with the first: but I doe prepare an endlesse glory, farre greater then that, for it.

V. 9. Peace] namely; the preaching and enjoying of spirituall peace, founded upon the reconciliation of men with God through Christ, who is our Peace, and did shew Himselfe in this house.

V. 11. The Priests] to whom it belonged to answer in doubtfull cases, and concerning questions of the law. Deut. 10. 10, 11. & 33. 10.

V. 12. If one] the meaning is; as according to the law, every thing as toucheth a holy thing (as the flesh of sacrifices) ought to be cleane: And yet though it be so, it cannot put any holinesse into a thing, which by Gods command is but for ordinary uses: but may, by its uncleanesse defile a thing which by the same law is pure and holy. So the holinesse of my service dependeth not upon you, but upon my free institution. But you may make it uncleane, by your prophaneness, hypocrisie and evill conscience. Bread] ordinary bread.

V. 14. So is this] even in the same manner, because this people is of an uncleane conscience, all that they doe for mine eternall worship; is also uncleane. There] namely; upon the altar, which was already re-edified, Ezra. 3. 2.

V. 15. Before] namely; before there were any hand set to the worke of re-building the Temple, which was interrupted for many yeares, after the returne from Babylon. See Ez. 3 8. & 5. 2.

V. 17. Since those] seeing you have taken no care of my Temple, and have prophaned my service, all your hopes of abundance and prosperity have failed you.

V. 18. The foure and] at which time the Prophet prophecied these things. V. 10.

V. 20 Of the moneth] namely; the aforesaid ninth moneth.

V. 23. I be

V. 22. The throne] all power and height contrary to Christs kingdome, which I have eſtabliſhed for ever, over all the world. Of bis] hereby is ſignified the conflict of the kingdomes of the world, ſtirred up one againſt another by Gods providence and judgement. See Mat. 24.7.

V. 23. Will I take thee] I will appoint Chriſt who ſhall come forth of thee according to the fleſh, Luke 3.27. and whoſe figure thou art. Zech. 4.10. to be my ſacred King, whom I will inviolably keepe by me, and love: which is the ſignification of this proverbiall terme of making, and keeping as a ſignet, Cant. 8.6. Jer. 22.24.

The Booke of the Prophet ZECHARIAH.

ARGUMENT.

ZEchariah was joyned to Haggai, to encourage the Iewes which were come back from the captivity of Babylon, to follow and accompliſh the re-edifying of the Temple, and the re-eſtabliſhment of Gods ſervice. Wherein the holy Ghoſt who had guided Haggai in a plaine and ſummary way of preaching, would here alter his ſtile in Zachariah having ſent many viſions unto him of high and miſterious meaning, like ſo many portraitures of the moſt large and diverſe Doctrines and Propheſies which he was to utter: the end of which was, once more ſeriouſly to repreſent to the Iewes, towards the end of the Prophets miniſtery: how marvellouſly the Sonne of God, Head of the Church, had heretofore guided them in grace, ſafety, deliverance, and correction towards them; and in puniſhment and deſtruction to their enemies. Which by meanes of a true converſion and conſtant piety, they might yet hope for hereafter, as well in temporall things untill the Meſſias, as in ſpirituall ones after his comming: which comming of his he doth very particularly ſet downe together, with his death and paſſion; his Kingdome and Prieſthood; the ſending of his Spirit, the power of the Goſpell, and the calling of the Gentiles: the reſtauration, juſtification, and everlaſting glorification of his Church. Of which favours he giveth moſt certaine promiſes to the true Iſraelites in Spirit. As contrariwiſe to the carnall and unthankfull Iewes, and enemies of Chriſt; he denounceth the threatnings of the deſolation of their Nation and City by the Romans, and their excluſion from Gods covenant, untill the time ſet downe for their laſt converſion: which ſhould be accompanied with the expiation of all manner of Idolatry, ſuperſtition, falſe doctrine, and Doctors: and finally of Antichriſt himſelfe, who is plainly deſcribed.

CHAP. I.

Verſe 3. I will turne] I will againe make you feell the effects of my grace and favour.

V. 5. Your fathers] the effects of thoſe propheſies, have been reſerved for you, and not for your fathers who died a great while ſince: and though thoſe ancient Prophets be dead, according to the courſe of nature: yet the power of their word is ſtill living, and is yet this day directed to you, and tyeth you to obedience.

V. 6. My words] the accompliſhment of their prophecies after their death, hath ſhewen ſufficiently that their words died not with them: and your fathers in their calamities acknowledged as much, and began to turne to God: and it is fitting for you to follow them therein, and accompliſh it.

V. 7. Sebat] which is January Moone.

V. 8. A man] the Sonne of God appearing in humane ſhape: who as chiefe, ſendeth his Angels, and they give him an account, V. 11. Riding] like a warrier, and head of the celeſtiall armies. See Rev. 19.11.14. A red Horſe] to ſignifie ſie Gods fierce anger againſt the enemies of his people, the execution of which he came to tell the people of. The myrtle trees] which repreſent the Church, compoſed of weake and low plants, but pretious and holy ones, as the Myrtle tree is. That were] by this property of the Myrtle tree, which delighteth in valleyes, ſea-ſhoares, and river ſides, is ſignified the lowly and abject condition of the Church in this world; and particularly the ſubjection it was in, at that time under the Perſian Empire. Horſes] with horſemen upon them, which were created Angels, Miniſters, and Warriours under that head. See Pſal. 68.17. Now by theſe colours it ſeemes may be underſtood the Angels ſeverall ſervices, the red ones for puniſhment, the white ones for grace, and the ſpectled ones for a puniſhment of viſitation.

V. 9. The Angell] it ſeemes to be the ſame, as was amongſt the mirtle trees: namely; the Sonne of God, who appeared in this viſion in both theſe qualities of the head of the Church on horſeback, and of her Prophet in the ſhape of an Angell.

V. 10. To walke] as his poſts and meſſengers, to take notice of the ſtate of the world, and to make relation to him of it.

V. 11. All the earth] all other nations are in peace and proſperity, onely thy people cannot recover themſelves of their late calamities. Is at reſt] or is inhabited.

V. 12. The Angell] namely; the Sonne of God, who is interceſſor to the Father for the ſafety of the Church. Theſe] of the captivity, as Zech. 7.5. the ruines of which laſted ſtill, though the people were ſet at liberty long before.

V. 15. I was but a little] I was willing to puniſh my people by their meanes, but with a moderation befitting the end which was to correct them; and according to my mercy towards them: But the inſtruments which I have made uſe of therein, have added their rage, and the exceſſes of their cruelty thereunto, not containing themſelves within the limits of my revealed will, though they could not go beyond my ſecret permiſſion. See Iſay 47.6.

V. 16. A line] that is to ſay; her buildings ſhall be reedified and made up againe.

V. 17. Chuſe] ſhall confirme and renew the right and priviledge which he had granted her, of being the place of his reſidence. See Iſay 14. 1. Zech. 2.12.

V. 18. Foure hornes] a figure of the Churches enemies which had ſet upon her from the foure corners of the world, or of the foure Monarchies by which ſhe had been and ſhould be oppreſſed, untill Chriſts comming. Dan. 2.17. & 7.3. Now by theſe hornes muſt be meant iron hornes, ſuch as warriers did weare upon their helmets; and therefore Carpenters are brought in to breake them, and not Butchers.

V. 20. Carpenters] a figure of the inſtruments which ruined thoſe Empires that perſecuted the Church.

V. 21. So that] ſo that they have eaſily brought it to paſſe, ſeeing none had power to reſiſt them.

CHAP. II.

Verſe 1. I Liſt up] in a viſion. A man] the Sonne of God in humane ſhape, as appeares by V. 9. & 11. This viſion ſets forth the great amplification of the Church under the Meſſias. See Iſay 54.2,3. & 60.4.11.

V. 3. The Angell] he that had the line in his hand. Another Angell] namely; a created Angell.

V. 4. And ſaid unto] he that was the Sonne of God, commanded the other who was but a creature, to expound the meaning of the viſion of the line to the Prophet. Shall be inhabited] the number of thoſe which ſhall come thither ſhall be ſo great, that it will be impoſſible to encompaſſe the City with wals. Figurative termes, to ſignifie the infinite number of beleevers, which ſhall be called into the Church by the preaching of the Goſpell.

V. 5. A wall of fire] that is to ſay; an impregnable wall and defence. The glory] my preſence in Spirit, grace and power ſhall make it glorious, as the reſidence of a King is a glory to the royall City. Or as formerly in the deſert, the glory of God ſhewed it ſelfe in the ſignes of the pillar, and of the cloud.

V. 6. Ho, ho] he exhorteth all the Jewes (whereof many, for eaſe, and carnall enticements, ſtaid in Babylon,) to returne to Jeruſalem. And by this figure all the elect to leave the world and the corruption thereof, to come into Chriſts Church. For I have] Babylon cannot be your countrey, nor a bleſſed nor holy abode for you, ſeeing I ſent you thither to exile and puniſh you; wherefore when I ſet you at liberty, make uſe of my benefit.

V. 7. Deliver thy ſelfe] come forth ſpeedily, that thou maiſt not be infolded in her totall ruine. See Jer. 51.6.45. Acts 2.40.

V. 8. After the glory] a terme taken from that which was ordained in the deſert, namely; that all the people ſhould move and follow the cloudy pillar, in which God appeared in majeſtie when it ſtirred, Exod. 40.36. Num. 9.17. The meaning is; let all true beleevers follow thorow the deſerts of this world, the guide of my word and ſpirit, reſiding, and divinely ſhining in my Church, by which they may be conducted to the firme ſeat of glory, which is the heavenly Jeruſalem. Hath be ſent] words of the Sonne of God, ſpeaking of his Father.

V. 9. To their ſervants] namely; to nations that had been ſubject to them; A figure of the Churches victory over the world, which before had oppreſſed her, and kept her in bondage.

V. 11. In that day] namely; in the time of the Churches re-eſtabliſhment by the Meſſias, figured by the Babilonian deliverance.

V. 12. Shall inherit] he ſhall hold his elect which are the true ſpirituall Judah, for his proper and peculiar people, and as ſuch, he ſhall love, governe, and preſerve them. See Exod. 34. 9. In the holy] namely; in the Church.

V. 13. He is raiſed] he hath wrought powerfully from heaven, and hath manifeſted his power, for the deliverance of his people.

CHAP. III.

Verſe 1. Shewed me] in a viſion. The end whereof is to ſhew, that in the reſtauration of the Temple, & of Gods ſervice, it was firſt of all neceſſary to have thoſe perſons, which were to be imployed therein, reconciled to God, and cleanſed from the pollution which they had gotten in Babylon. And that likewiſe the Church, repreſented here by Jehoſhua, a chiefe Officer of it, ſhould be re-admitted into Gods favour: to the end, that the ſervice which ſhe ſhould yeeld unto him, might be accepted: which is figured by a forme of judgement, wherein Jehoſhua is by the Lord abſolved, and afterwards ſanctified. Standing] like unto a man accuſed before a Judge. Before the Angell] namely; before the Sonne of God, who is both Judge and Advocate, and Defendor of thoſe that beleeve in him in this judgement, 1 Joh. 2. 1. Satan] the adverſary; the malicious accuſer of the Faithfull to God; againſt whom he complaines, pretending to be zealous of having juſtice done, though he be onely moved through an envious and malignant rage. Rev. 12. 10. See Pſa. 109. 6.

V. 2. The Lord] namely; the Sonne of God, who was before called Angell. Rebuke thee] may mine everlaſting Father rebuke and confound thee; in this malitious inſtance which thou makeſt againſt my Church. See Jude 9. the ſame words ſpoken upon another occaſion. That hath choſen] hereby is intimated and ſhewne the chiefe foundation and ground of the Churches abſolution, here repreſented by Jehoſhua; which is, that God from all eternity, hath out of his own meere grace choſen his elect to ſalvation. Rom. 8. 33. Is not this] namely; this ſmall company which Jehoſhua repreſents, a reſervation of my grace, which I have reſerved out of my people, whom I have cauſed to paſſe thorow the fire of my judgements? Amos 4. 11. See Rom. 11. 5. And therefore towards them my decree of grace ſhall ſtand firme and invariable.

V. 3. Filthy garments] an ordinary ſigne of ſinne, as a white and cleane garment is a ſigne of Chriſts righteouſneſſe put on by faith, and of the regeneration of the Spirit to the newneſſe of life. See Ezek. 16. 8. 10. Rev. 3. 4, 18. & 7. 14.

V. 4. Unto thoſe] namely; to the created Angels his Miniſters; to ſhew, that Chriſt who only hath power to forgive ſinnes, doth therein imploy the holy Miniſtery for an inſtrument. See 2 Cor. 5. 18. I have cauſed] this hath a relation to two ſpirituall effects. The one is; that by Chriſts ſatisfaction ſinne is taken away from before the eyes of God, and is not imputed to condemnation: though the corruption be not altogether blotted out in man during this life. See Pſal. 32. 1, 2. The other is; that Chriſts merit and righteouſneſſe is applyed to the beleever to life; and that by his Spirit he puts on the new man in righteouſneſſe and holineſſe, Gal. 3. 27. Col. 3. 10.

V. 5. Mitre] a Prieſtly ornament for the head, Exod. 28. 4. to ſhew, that God beſides his grace, which was common to all the members of his Church, did alſo adorne him with the gifts of his Spirit, befitting his prieſtly charge. Stood by] as it were to have this his ſentence put in execution. Whereby is ſignified Chriſts aſſiſtance to the worke of the miniſtery in power and Spirit. As to that alſo ſeemes to be referred his ſpeaking alone in this place, to ſhew that he alone doth all this worke, and doth all things in all men; and that he can alone pronounce the ſentence, and comfort the ſoule by his Spirit.

V. 7. Judge] I will keepe thee in the Prieſtly degree; of which the two chiefe parts were: the government in Eccleſiaſticall buſineſſes; and concerning the worſhip of God, according as it is ſet downe in the Law: Deut. 17. 12. 2 Chro. 19. 11. And the chiefe and continuall Miniſtery of holy things. I will give thee] After all this I will gather thee up into my heavenly glory, with mine Angels; the likeneſſe of which, thou beholdeſt here in this viſion.

V. 8. Thy fellowes] namely; The inferiour Prieſts. For they are] the Italian, For you are] I have appointed you to be in your own perſons and actions; a ſigne and repreſentation of my Churches re-eſtabliſhment by the Meſſias: of which I will give you a particular inſtruction. For behold] He gives a reaſon, why he had termed them ſignes and figures; namely; Becauſe that in Chriſt was the accompliſhment. I will bring] I will ſhortly ſend my ſonne into the world, who ſhall take upon him the forme of a ſervant, to accompliſh the worke of redemption: Phil. 2. 7. The branch] A frequent name of the Meſſias: See upon Iſa. 4. 2.

V. 9. For behold] The end of the ſending of my Sonne ſhal be to lay the foundation of my Church upon him, who was the fundamentall and corner ſtone: Pſa. 118. 22. Iſa. 28. 16. figured by ſome eſpeciall ſtone which was ſolemnlie put into the fabrick of Temple, and in the preſence of the Prieſts when it begun to be built up againe: See Zech. 4. 7. 10. Upon one] the Italian Upon that one] As that materiall ſtone hath been ſet in the ſight of Joſhua, and of other Prieſts: So ſhall the eyes of my providence: 2 Chro. 16. 9. which is infinite, and univerſall here ſignified by the number of ſeven: Zech. 4. 10. and 5. 6. and 9. 1. be alwayes fixed upon Chriſt, to maintaine, favour, and cauſe him to proſper in his Kingdome: See Iſa. 24. 6. and 49. 8. and 51. 16. I will engrave] Words of God the Father; who hath appointed his Sonne to be Mediator; and hath confirmed upon his humane nature all the gifts of his Spirit, for to performe it: See Dan. 2. 34. 44. Heb. 9. 11. I will remove] As in Joſhua: namely; made fitting to undertake the Prieſthood againe. I have ſanctified all my Church: ſo by one onely oblation of my Sonne, who was eternally conſecrated high Prieſt: I will purge all the ſinnes of my Church: See Heb. 9. 12. and 10. 12, 14. In one day] This is oppoſite to your figurative ſacrifices which were: namely; times reiterated: ſee Heb. 7. 27. and 9. 26, 28. and 10. 10.

V. 10. Shall yee call] A figure of the ſpirituall peace and reſt of the Church, redeemed and reconciled to God by Chriſt: Mich. 4. 4.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. Came againe] It is likely that there was ſome ſpace of time between thoſe viſions; during which time, the Prophet in his extaſie was, as it were, aſleepe: that is to ſay; without any light of Propheticke revelation; without any action or motion of the ſpirit to him.

V. 2. A candleſtick] It ſeemes he would ſhew the myſticall meaning of Moſes his candleſtick: Exod. 25. 31. to the deſcription of the making whereof, here are ſome parts added belonging to the myſterie. The Candleſtick is the Church; the bowle above it, is Chriſt, who hath received of the Father the fulneſſe of the Spirit; ſignified by the oyle to powre it upon his Church: Joh. 1. 16. and 3. 34. Acts 2. 33. And as the oyle is preſſed out of the Olive; which is, as it were, the lively ſpring of it: ſo all theſe gifts and graces proceed from that Chriſt, hath been annoynted and conſecrated for an everlaſting King and Prieſt; the ſeven lamps are the ſeverall operations of the Spirit in the faithfull; all in fervencie of life and motion, and in light of faith and underſtanding, whoſe chiefe uſe is to carry the lampe of Gods Word in the world; and to cauſe his glory to ſhine therein: Mat 5. 15 16. Phil. 2. 15. The ſeven pipes are the ſeverall meanes of the communication of the ſpirituall and myſticall power of Chriſt to his members: Epheſ. 4. 16. Seven pipes] Which you muſt imagine to be in the bottome of the bowle, to diſtribute the oyle to each lampe.

V. 3. By it] the Italian, Over it] that is to ſay; On the ſide of it; but in ſuch manner, that the branches might hang above the bowle.

V. 5. Knoweſt thou not] This is ſpoken to inflame the Prophets deſire to know the truth of it, and to ſhew him that this was the meaning of Moſes his ancient candleſtick; of which he might by ſome meanes have learned the ſignification.

V. 6. This is] This viſion is eſpecially directed to Zerubbabel to ſtrengthen him in his charge of politick head of the people, as the other was for Joſhua the Eccleſiaſticall head. Not by night] I have cauſed thee to ſee in this figure; that the ſubſiſtance of my Church, is not in the ſame kind as that of worldly Empires; in force of armes and might; but in a lively internall action of my Spirit: wherefore be not diſmaied in thy mind, O Zerubbabel! if worldly ſtrength doe faile thee, my ſpirit and power ſhall ſupply all; as well for the re-eſtabliſhment of the materiall temple, as for the ſpirituall conduct and preſervation of the Church: ſee Hoſ. 1. 7.

V. 7. Who art thou?] The Empires which oppreſſe the Church; though they be great, yet ſhall they be beaten downe by the ſtone: Dan. 2. 34. which is Chriſt, figured by Zerubbabel: See Zech. 14. 10. Shall bring forth] It ſhall be ſhewen to the world at the appointed time, and exalted above all worldly greatneſſe: Dan. 2. 35. The head ſtone] Or corner ſtone; or front-ſtone: ſee Pſal. 118. 22. With] The Angels, the faithfull; and all creatures rejoycing at Chriſts Kingdome eſtabliſhed in the world, ſhall deſire God the Father to heape all manner of bleſſing and happineſſe upon it: See Pſal. 118. 26. or they ſhall acknowledge and preach that the Father hath laid up in him all the treaſures of his grace and gifts of his Spirit.

V. 9. That the Lord] Seeing the Lord, v. 8. is he that ſaith; That the Lord hath ſent him: we muſt of neceſſitie conclude that there are here two perſons; the one, the Sonne who is ſent; and the other, the Father that ſendeth him, both one onely God, and everlaſting Lord: as Iſa. 48. 16. and Zech. 2. 8.

V. 10. For who] A reproofe of many Jewes prophane contempt, in thoſe weake beginnings of the Churches reſtauration. For they ſhall] Notwithſtanding all their diſdaine and diffidencie; they ſhall one day have occaſion to rejoyce, ſeeing the worke perfected. Thoſe ſeven] Of which, Zech 3. 9. and 5. 6. the meaning is; my providence ſhall as ſoveraigne architect, over-ſee this work, whoſe director Zerubbabel is, to bleſſe it, direct it, and accompliſh it.

V. 12. And I] It ſeemes, that in this viſion, when the myſtery of the inſtitution of the Church by the Meſſias was ſhewen to the Prophet, Hee ſaw two great olive trees, v. 3. But when God called him backe to that which belonged to the re-edifying of the materiall temple, by Zerubbabel, the reſemblance of theſe two trees was ſuddenly changed into the reſemblance of two ſmall branches, to ſignifie Zerubbabel and Jeruſalem, figures of Chriſt in his Kingdome and Prieſthood; wherefore likewiſe it is no more ſaid, that they give oyle into the great bowle, but onely to the lamps two little ſpouts; to ſhew the difference that there is between Chriſt the Author, Poſſeſſor and Diſtributor of the fulneſſe of the goods of the ſpirit in inward efficacie; and his Miniſters, as well in the Eccleſiaſticall as Politique order (which are the two ſpoutes) who have but a ſmall meaſure of gifts; nor no property nor power to adminiſter (by vertue of theſe two foreſaid orders) any thing but the externall meanes of the influence of Chriſts myſticall, univerſall, and effectuall conduct of his Church. The golden] namely; The pure yellow oyle, which did ſhine like Gold.

V. 14. Theſe] Hee doth not anſwer concerning the queſtion of the Olive trees; but onely concerning the Olive branches: for by underſtanding of theſe, it is an eaſie matter to comprehend the meaning of the Olive trees, by compariſon and proportion. The two] namely; Zerubbabel and Joſhua, two ſacred perſons, by reaſon of the holy unction, to be Gods Miniſters and figures of Chriſt.

CHAP. V.

Verſe 1. A flying roll] Of paper or other ſtuffe to write upon, after the ancient manner: This roll or booke ſignified Gods judgements upon his people; pronounced by his Prophets: the flying of it, the generall execution of them; the greatneſſe, the weight and long laſtingneſſe of them.

V. 3. The curſe] Gods curſe throwne upon all the land of Iſrael and Judah. For every one] God hath puniſhed all the times; as well thoſe which were againſt the ſecond table of the Law: as thoſe that were againſt the firſt; all comprehended under theſe two kindes of ſwearing and theft: others expound it on that ſide: that is to ſay; according to the prediction happened the execution.

V. 5. That goeth forth] That appeares againe to thee in viſion.

V. 6. An Ephah] A figure of the juſt meaſure of Gods judgements. This is] It ſeemes that the Angel turned himſelfe towards ſome apparition of the Lords which did repreſent his providence, and ſhewed it to the Prophet. Their reſemblance] the Italian; The eye] namely; of the three perſons of the moſt holy Trinity: as Gen. 1. 26. and 3. 22. and Iſa. 6. 8. By this reſemblance or eye, is meant Gods univerſall providence: Zech. 3. 9. and 4. 10. and 9. 1. 2 Chron. 16. 9. which preſideth over his judgements.

V. 7. A talent] The woman ſitting in the Ephah is ſinne; which by little and little filleth up the meaſure; and the ſame woman throwne into the middeſt of it, is ſinne puniſhed and beaten downe: the talent of Lead is, the immoveable decree for the puniſhing of the wicked.

V. 9. Two women] A figure, as it ſhould ſeem, of Gods two properties: namely; Mercy towards his Elect, and Juſtice towards his Enemies; wherewith hee tranſports upon theſe laſt the judgements by which he had puniſhed his owne people; which is done with admirable celerity.

V. 11. Of ſhinar] Of Babylon; Gen. 10. 10. and 11. 2. Wherby are meant all Gods and the Churches enemies. It ſhall be] Hereby is ſhewne the irrevocable eternity of the puniſhments of the wicked; oppoſite the termined and ſhort laſting puniſhments of the Church figuredbefore by the flying booke or roll.

CHAP. VI.

Ver. 1. Four chariots] whereby are ſignified as it were foure ſquadrons of Angels, which execute Gods judgements upon the Churches enemies. See Zech. 1. 8. Two mountaines] whereby it ſeemes is meant the Heaven, the high and firme habitation of Angels opened, and as it were cleft, to give way for the comming out of theſe ſpirits.

V. 2. Red horſes] A ſigne of execution of wrath, Zech. 1 8. Rev. 6. 4. Blacke horſes] A ſigne of execution of death, Rev. 6. 5.

V. 3. White horſes] See upon Zech. 1. 8.

V. 5. The foure Spirits] foure principall Angels: as it were, Commanders of ſquadrons.

V. 6. The blacke] the greateſt execution of my judgements hath been done upon Babylon, which lyeth Northward from Judea, v. 8. The white] the Angels of peace and deliverance, which goe with them that are to deſtroy Babylon; to deliver my Church

Church out of it. Of the grieved] to signifie, that the punishments of Egypt, which lay Southward from Judea, should be mixed with some clemency, which should not be so with Babylon.

V.7. To goe] to make as it were, a generall survay of the world, and punish other Nations, which had no communion with the Church. And he said] namely; the Son of God, Commander of all the Angels, Zech.1.8.

V.8. Have quieted] perfectly executed their charge, and given me satisfaction.

V.10. Take] the aime of all this action is to shew; that as Joshua and Zerubbabel (restorers of the Church, which was at that time) were each one for their severall part in their severall office, figures of the Messias: so Christ should for ever enjoy the two offices of King and Priest; which he shall enter into possession of, by his death and passion. Heldai] it is not certainly knowne, who these were; but it is very likely, that they were some heads of the people, who were induced by Zechariah to make this offering of gold and silver, which was bestowed in making of these crownes; which were to remaine in the Temple for a remembrance of this solemne promise, which God had made. And goe into] to have from him a part of this offering.

V.11. Make Crownes] two; to signifie, the two foresaid offices. Joshua] not upon Zerubbabel also, to shew in the spirituall application to Christ; that he was crowned with glory, and had taken the possession of the heavenly Kingdome, by reason of the accomplishment of his Priesthood upon earth, in so much as concerned the offering of himselfe, Heb.2.7.

V.12. Behold] in Christ, who shall appeare in the flesh; at the appointed time shall be verefied that which is taught, and confirmed unto thee by this action. Grow up] like a plant that sprouts up, and growes by vertue of its living root: even so shall Christ by his owne power, without any humane meanes, advance his Kingdome. Or he shall grow up from under himselfe; that is to say; by secret wayes, without any humane shew, as Isa.11.1. The Temple] namely; the universall Church, gathered together, united and built up by him alone, Heb.3.3.

V.13. Shall build] in the quality of a King: even as those temporall Commanders, Moses, Salomon, and Zerubbabel, were chosen by God, to oversee the building of the Tabernacle, and the Temple. The glory] namely; the royall glory. Upon his] namely; in the heavenly glory, where he shall eternally execute the other part of his Priesthood in making intercession for his Church, Heb.24.9. The Councell] these two offices and properties shall for ever be united together in Christ; and shall perfectly agree one with the other, though they seeme to be very different; the one, having the administration of justice to command and punish; the other, of mercy, to expiate and pardon; but Christ shall expiate and pardon, that he may be obeyed when he commands, Psal.130.4. having brought men into Gods favour, to make them receive the Spirit, which inclineth them to a voluntary obedience.

V.14. And the] after thou hast thus prophesied of Christ, setting these two materiall Crownes upon the head of Joshua; lay them up againe in the Temple in their names, as an offering offered by them; peradventure, with some inscripcion, or remembrance of their names, to be a sacred memoriall of these my promises. Helem, Hen] It is likely these are the same as were before Helda, and Joshua, v.10.

V.15. And they] namely; the Gentiles, who are now far from the knowledge and Covenant of God, Isa.55.19. Ephes.2.17. And build] they shall co-operate to the establishment of the Church, and advancement of Christs Kingdome, See Isa.60.10. This shall] you shall in effect finde, to your owne deliverance, the truth and power of Gods promises; which I his sonne, doe propound unto you by my Prophets.

CHAP. VII.

Ver.1. Of the ninth] which is, the November Moone.

V.2. They] namely; the Priests and Levites, who yet remained in Babylon. Before the] namely; in the Temple which was re-edefied in Jerusalem.

V.3. should I] are we in conscience bound to keep the solemne Fast, appointed to be in the fifth Moneth; by reason of the destruction of the Temple, which happened at that time; 2 King.25.8,9. Jer.52.12,13 now that it is re-edefied, and Gods service restored? seeing the keeping of it is not commanded by the Law of God. See Mal.3.14. Separating] from feasts, company of women, and all other carnall delights. See Exod.19.14.1 Sam. 21.5.

V.5. Seventh] this other Fast was appointed for the death of Gedaliah, which happened in this Moneth, 2 King.25.8,9. Jer.41.1. whereupon followed the totall dispersion of the remainder of the people. Seventy] during the captivity, Zech.1, 12. Unto me] to humble your selves, and turne with your hearts to me; was it not only through a carnall feeling of your evils? Isa.58.3. Hos.7. 14.

V.6. And when] yea, in your mirth and rejoycing you have not regarded me, to yeeld me honour.

nour and thanks for my benefits, Hos.8.13. and 9.4. Now the answer to the aforesaid question is referred to this point: your Fast might be sanctified by piety and devotion, but you had better to omit it, then prophane it as you doe; and in stead of your Ceremonies, endeavour your selves to serve God internally; by meanes of which, I will change these your dolefull dayes into dayes of feasting, and giving thanks for new benefits, Zech. 8.19.

V.7. Should ye not] hath not God sufficiently declared his will concerning these externall actions; and especially, concerning a Fast prophaned through wickednesse, Isa.58.3,4. Was inhabited] or a foot, or in its former state. The South] those parts of Judea which had most felt the desolations of war. See Jer.17.26. and 32.44.

V.11. The [houlder] A terme taken from yoaked Oxen, which are unwilling to draw, Neh.9.29. Hos.4.16. Zeph.3.9.

V.14. After them] after they have been carried away out of it. For they laid] they have been the cause that their fine and pleasant Country hath been laid waste.

CHAP. VIII.

Ver.1. The word] it appeares by ver.19. that this is a continuation of Gods answer to the question concerning the said Fasts.

V.3. I am] or I have turned to Sion. Of truth] or of loyalty.

V.4. There shall yet] I will blesse the Inhabitants of Jerusalem with peace, health, and long life: A figure of the spirituall blessings of the Church, as Isa.65.20,22.

V.6. If it be] even after the accomplishment, these things shall seeme incredible and impossible; but nothing is impossible to an omnipotency, Luke 18.27.

V.8. In truth] faithfully performing my promise, which I have made to them in my Covenant, and enlarging my bounty towards them, which is often signified by the word, Righteousnesse. See Hos.2,20.

V.9. Of the Prophets] Haggai and Zechariah.

V.10. There was] mens and beasts labour was in vaine: by reason of the curse which I laid upon your carelesnesse in restoring my service. Hag.1.6,10. I set] I suffered the Land to be full of robberies, and enemies incursions.

V.11. But now] seeing you have cheerfully gone on to the re-edifying of my Temple.

V.12. The Seed] I will set downe the true causes and meanes of a true and perfect peace and prosperity; and will cause it to increase and multiply. See Psal.72.3.

V.13. A curse] as it were, a formulary of execration, Psal.102.8.

V.14. Repented not] I have executed what I had determined, and have not revoked it, before I had brought it perfectly to passe.

V.19. The Fast] this is the principall answer to the question, which was propounded in the former Chapter, containing a promise of changing the estate of the Church. Of the fourth] appointed for a remembrance of the taking of Jerusalem by the Caldeans, which was in this Moneth, Jer.52.6,7. Of the fifth] for the burning of the Temple, Jer.52.12,13. Zech.7.1,5. Of the seventh] for the death of Gedaliah, Jer.41.1. Zech.7.5. Of the tenth] for the siege laid before Jerusalem, Jer.52.4. Love] if you desire to have these good things come to passe.

V.20. It shall yet] A Propheeye of the calling of the Gentiles.

V.23. Ten men] A figurative description of the great number of Gentiles, which should come into the Church, which in former times was restrained within the Nation of the Jewes.

CHAP. IX.

Ver.1. The burden] A propheeye of threatenings and curses. See Isa.13.1. Jer.23.33. Of Hadrach] it was an Idoll of the Syrians, which represented the Sunne. The name signifieth, the only King; to which they added a goddesse, called by Authors Atergati; which signifieth, only Queene, and that represented the earth: both of them were figured with Sunne-beames; the King downwards, and the Queene upwards; and their chiefe Temple was in Hierapolis a City of Syria; and the Prophet calleth the Countrey by the name of the god, or of the chiefe Idoll of it; as Isa.8.8. Jer.48.46. Hos.10.5. Damascus] A principall City of Syria; upon whose strength and wealth the whole Countrey depended; in which also, the people tooke their pleasures with all security. Others expound it, and Damascus shall be his rest: that is to say; these threatenings shall fall, and be executed upon Damascus; namely, by Alexander the Great, who conquered all these Nations. When the] the Italian, for the] he gives a reason why the words of the Prophets were directed also to Heathen Nations; namely, because Gods providence doth not governe his people alone, but the whole world. Eyes] See Zech.3.9. and 4.10. and 5.6.

V.2. Thereby] that eye of providence shall limit: that is to say; shall stay the course of the power, conquests, and enterprizes of Hamath the chiefe chiefe City of Syria. See Isa. 7.8,9. Very wise] in worldly wisedome, which is attributed to the Tyrians, Ezek. 28.3,4,12,17. upon which those Cities founded their subsistency and greatnesse.

V.5. Ashkelon] Cities of the Philistines; which were enemies to Gods people, even after their returne from captivity; and therefore were destroyed at the last by Alexander the Great. For her] namely; Tyrus, a very strong and mighty City; in which those Nations did put great confidence; hoping that it could stay, and hinder Alexanders proceedings. See the like termes, Isa. 20. 5,6.

V.6. The stranger] the Italian, a bastard] a mingled multitude of strange Nations gathered together.

V.7. Take away] I will keep them from devouring my people any more. Abominations] that is to say; abominable spoiles. That remaineth] that little remainder of my people, which escaped from the enemies violence, shall be gathered together by God, and held as part of his people: As a communalty thereof governed by its head, as the other communalties of Judah were. See Judg. 6. 15. Mic. 5.2. Ekron] the Philistines shall be utterly destroyed, as the Jebusites were by David, 2 Sam. 5.6.

V.8. Oppressour] they shall no more be tyrannized over; nor exacted upon, as they have been heretofore. I have] I have turned away my favourable countenance towards her, and have taken her into my safeguard.

V.9. O daughter] O universall Church. Thy King] A prophecye of Christs comming in the flesh; who is the everlasting King of his Church; from whom all former benefits proceeded, and were spiritually in him fully heaped up: not by worldly strength or power; but by vertue of his everlasting righteousnesse, by which he hath acquired salvation to his Church, whereof his royall, and withall, most humble entrance into Jerusalem was a signe.

V.10. I will cut off] the Messias will bring to the Church a true and everlasting spirituall peace; whereby there will be no more need of any warlike preparation, Psal. 46.9. Isa. 2.4. Hos. 2.18. Or by his onely power, without any humane meanes, he shall save and defend his people, Hos. 1. 7. Micah 5.10. His dominion] the figure of the Land of Israel, bounded by its ancient bounds; which are here set downe: no meanes, the extent of the universall Church, as Psal. 72.8.

V.11. For thee also] the same Messias, by vertue of the same bloud, wherewith he hath reconciled mankinde to God, and obtained everlasting salvation for them; hath also been the Author of the Babylonian deliverance, and all the other ensuing benefits. The bloud] namely; the bloud of Christ, figured by the bloud which was sprinckled upon the people, Exod. 24.8. Psal. 74.20 Heb. 13.20.

V.12. Turne you] O you distressed Jewes that are prisoners in Babylon, to whom I have given a certaine hope of returne; returne speedily to Jerusalem, the place of your habitation, secure under my safeguard and protection. See Dan. 11.31,38. Double] far greater then the evils which thou hast sustained, or the goods which thou hast lost, Isa. 61.7.

V.13. Have I bent] I will make use of mine owne people to overthrow mine enemies, and especially the kingdomes of Egypt and Syria, which were possessed by Alexanders successors, who were Grecians. A Prophecie fulfilled in the Maccabees, who delivered the Jewes from the tyrannie of these two kingdomes.

V.14. Shall be seen] God shall from heaven shew his Almighty power for their deliverance: see Ezek. 38.18. Whirle-winds] With great tumult and trembling; like to those tempests which are raised by a Southerne wind. Isa. 21.1.

V.15. Shall devour] His people and the children of Sion: v.13. Devouring] they shall enjoy my blessings; by vertue of which they shall be able to overcome all their enemies. Make a noise] Hereby is described the Jewes freenesse and courage in setting upon their enemies. Filled] With the spoyles of their enemies, and every good thing. Bowles] Which was used for to take in the blood of the sacrifices, which alwayes fell in great quantity from the Altar, where it was spilt.

V. 16. The stones] There shall be Trophies erected every where, by reason of their great outcries obtained over their enemies.

V. 17. How great] The grace and glory of God shall shew it selfe wonderfully and infinitely for the salvation of his Elect: Psal 84. 12. Corne] namely; Gods blessings, corporall and spirituall.

CHAP. X.

Vers. 1. Aske yee] O yee Jewes! which have now againe settled your selves in the right way of serving God, since the re-edifying of the Temple, doe but make your prayers unto him, and he will heare you. Raine] See Deut. 11.14. And under the name of this blessing, are meant all other blessings. Bright clouds] Signes and fore-runners of raine; Psal. 135.7. Jer. 10.13.

V. 2. For thee] The meaning is; Direct your prayers to God, who will really blesse you, and not to Idols, who have alwayes deceived you. There was] Your temporall and Ecclesiasticall

Governours

Governours have not performed their duties; but have been perverted: Jer. 23. 1. Ezek. 34. 1.

V. 3. The goats] The heads, and great Ones, upon whom God powred out his greatest vengeance by meanes of the Chaldeans: Jer. 39. 6. For the Lord] Now, that the Lord hath turned his favourable countenance towards his people, he hath endowed them with valour and strength; so that of sheep they are now become great warr horse; with which the Lord will overcome and trample his enemies, which may in part be understood of the Maccabees victories: but most perfectly of the whole Churches victories over the world and the divell: Cant. 1. 9.

V. 4. Out of him] From God descends all mans strength; whether it be to beare up themselves: as corner stones doe beare up the buildings; or as nailes doe hold fast tents; or, be it to defend themselves by open strength, which is meant by the bow. Oppressor] All manner of oppression done by other men, is also a worke of Gods providence.

V. 5. And the riders] The powerfull enemies; who are well appointed and provided for war.

V. 6. Of Joseph] namely; The ten Tribes, the chiefe whereof was Ephraim, descended from Joseph: that is to say; all true Israelites, according to the spirit.

V. 8. I will hisse] I will call them by my Gospel, as from a far off into my Church: see Isa. 5. 26 and 7. 18. For I have] Or, for I will redeeme them.

V. 9. Sow them] Scatter them abroad in exile and captivity; where I will, notwithstanding preserve them and their posterity, not to let them perish utterly. And turne] namely; from the Spirituall Babylon, which is the world, and the Kingdome of Satan; to the true Jerusalem, and to the land of promise, which is Christs Church: as Hos. 1. 11. Whereof the returne from Babylon was but a proofe and figure.

V. 10. Shall not] A figurative amplification to signifie the infinite number of Believers: as Isa. 49. 20.

V. 11. He shall passe] He will miraculously deliver his Church: termes taken from the comming of the children of Israel out of Egypt, by the red sea: see Isa. 11. 15. The river] namely Nilus of Assyria] that is to say; Of all the enemies represented by these two nations which had most oppressed the Church.

V. 11. In his name] They shall follow him; cleaving to Him, and to his Word and service which He hath revealed unto them.

CHAP. XI.

Vers. 1. Open] A Prophecie of the last destruction of Jerusalem and the Jewes by the Romans; because they had rejected the Messias; now, because Lebanon was the confine of the countrey on that side, as the Romans made their chiefe irruption; it is brought in, as opening the gates of Judea. Thy cedars] This may be understood, either literally; because the Romans did almost destroy the whole forrest of Lebanon, to employ the trees for the besieging of Jerusalem; as Isa. 14. 8. Or figuratively, for the most powerfull and flourishing City of Jerusalem: as Isa. 2. 13. Ezek. 17. 3.

V. 2. Firre tree] If the noblest plants have been spoiled, the inferiour ones must not looke to be spared, which may also be understood of the lesser cities and holds which were about Jerusalem. Forrest] namely; A faire pleasant parke; as Jerusalem was sometimes called by figure: Ezek. 21. 2.

V. 3. Of the Shepheards] namely; Of the Governours of Jerusalem; who, in stead of being shepheards to feed the people, were become ravening Lyons whelps: Ezek. 19. 2, 3. The pride] that is to say; the numerous and proud nation of the Jewes, likned to the yeerely overflowing of Jordan: whereof see Jos. 3. 15. Jer. 49. 19.

V. 4. Thus saith] namely; To his sonne, who is the Churches everlasting Shepheard: Heb. 13. 20. 1 Pet. 5. 4. to whom the father hath given the government and charge of his people, oppressed by powerfull prophane nations, untill the time prefixed for their totall dispersion, by reason of their ingratitude.

V. 5. Whose possessions] namely; Any one that hath any right over my people, either by conquest of war or otherwise. Not guilty] they doe it and are not punished for it: Jer. 2. 3. and 50. 7. That sell them] namely; Those that make merchandize of them; as of poore slaves. Say] They doe prophanely boast of the power which God hath given them over his people: as of an expresse blessing: See Deut. 20. 19.

V. 6. For I will] Oh my Sonne! doe thou exercise this charge of shepheard over this people; untill the prefixed time of my patiences lasting: after which time I will utterly destroy them for their rebellion and ingratitude. I will deliver] He seemes to signifie the frequent seditions and civill troubles of the Jewes about the time of their last desolation. Of his King] namely; The Roman Emperour; whom they should have accepted for their King; rejecting my Sonne: Joh. 19. 15.

V. 7. O poore] namely; My poore Church and Jewish nation, no way comparable in greatnes and power, to other nations and Empires of the world; and and brought very low by her calamities: see Isa. 14. 23. Zeph. 3. 12. Two staves] A figure of the two wayes which Christ useth at all times in feeding of his Church: the one by lovingly guiding them by his Word and Spirit; the other by severely punishing them by the cruell hand of their enemies: see Isa. 10. 5.

V. 8. Three Shepheards] The three chiefe Empires that had tyrannized over my people: Jer. 6. 3. and 12. 10. namely; The Chaldean, Persian, and Grecian Empire, which were destroyed by the Sonne of God: Dan. 2. 45. In one moneth] namely; In a short time: as Hos. 5. 7. My soule] I was sorry, and vexed at my peoples disloyalty and ingratitude; who did likewise begin, neither to love nor respect me.

V. 9. I will not] A representation of the Jewes Reprobation.

V. 10. My covenant] The peace which I had granted to my Church, that she should be no more assaulted nor molested by any strange nation; which was verified from the Maccabees time, untill a little before the comming of Christ.

V. 11. The poore] namely; Mine Elect which remaine of my people: who humbly gave faith to my promises, and obedience to my commandements; did acknowledge the time of Gods visitations: and that the warres moved by the Romans were effects of His providence, according to the ancient prophecies.

V. 12. And I said] By the figure of a Shepheard, who demands his wages; is shewed the Jewes horrible ingratitude; who in stead of a full acknowledgement of Christ, did deale with the Traytor Judas to have Christ put into their hands for thirty shekels: Matth. 26. 15. and 27. 9.

V. 13. And the Lord] God my Father did so detest their ingratitude; that he would have those thirty shekels through Judas despaire and despight, to be throwne into the Temple: and employed to a prophane use, and be no more laid up in the holy treasure. That I was prized at] Because, that the injury done to my Sonne, redounded to me, who had before governed them by him; see John 5. 23.

V. 24. I cut asunder] Whereby is meant; that Christ would not onely governe his people no more in mildnesse and clemencie; nor exercise his shepheardly severity in saving corrections and visitation: as hee had done in former times: but that he would altogether reprove them. I might break] Taking away from the Jewes, according to the flesh, the title of being my Church and my people; whereas before they had been the same thing in name & effect. Israel, the people of God, and Judah, I will take unto me the Israel which is according to the Spirit; namely; all true Believers, and will reject the carnall Judah.

V. 15. Unto me] namely; To me Zechariah, by a figure of the peoples evill government, by their owne Heads: Priests, Doctors, and others; into whose powers the Lord delivered them for a punishment, because they had rejected Christ.

V. 16. A shepheard] A government which shall be uniforme in wickednesse and depravation; though it be administred by severall persons, which God had suffered to raise themselves to that dignity and authority. Teare] As they use to doe in the slaughter houses; for to devoure up all: Or worse then ravening beasts who alwayes leave some foot or bone: Amos 3. 12.

V. 17. The sword] namely; the punishment of my judgements. His arme] Which signifieth the power: as by the eye is signified counsell and advice; as much as to say; I will take away from them the place of Conductor and Head, and will degrade them quite: see 1 Sam. 2. 31.

CHAP. XII.

Verse. 1. THe burthen] The Prophecie uttered by Gods commission. For Israel] the Italian, concerning Israel] concerning the victories which God shall grant unto his Church, which is the true Israel, according to the spirit.

V. 2. Jerusalem] My Church being set upon by her enemies, shall be an occasion that I will strike them with amazement: So that they shall not be able to bring their designes to any happy end; but shall be the causes of their owne ruines: Isai. 51. 17, 22. Jer. 51. 7. In the siege] In the very instant that they were ready to doe their best and last endevours.

V. 3. A burthensome stone] the Ancients observe; that this is taken for an exercise or game, which was very frequent in Judea: namely; to take up a great round stone, to try ones strength; lifting it up from the ground, sometimes to their knees, sometimes to their navels, sometimes to their shoulders; and sometimes as high as their heads; at which sport, many times they did grievously hurt themselves. The meaning is; the enemies of the Church shall strive and endevour, who shall be able to doe her most hurt; but the stoutest and valianteſt of them all, shall be overcome: See Matth. 21. 44.

V. 4. I will smite] I will take away all strength and understanding from mine enemies: See Psal. 76. 5, 6.

V. 5. The Governours] The Apostles and Evangelists shall fill the world with wars and dissentions, by preaching of the Gospel: Luke 12. 49. by which the enemies shall goe to ruine, and the Church ſhall be re-eſtabliſhed: Obad. 18.

V. 7. Shall ſave] The meaning is; Chriſts ſalvation ſhall firſt be proffered to the poore and weake: like to the tents of thoſe poore Jewes that lived in the fields, and were not comparable to Jeruſalem, which was a royall and ſtrong city, belonging to the Houſe of David: that is to ſay; The Kings and great Ones ſhal be laſt converted, as the event did verifie it under the Goſpel, to ſhew the prerogative of meane ones with God: See James 2. 5.

V. 8. And he] The weake and feeble ſhall by Gods Spirit be ſtrengthened and confirmed in heroicall vertues: as David was; ſee Joel 3. 10. The Houſe of David] namely; The Princes of the blood royall, who were alſo chiefe Officers of the Crowne: by which are meant the Apoſtles, who ſhould be endowed with ſo many graces, in Majeſtie, Authority, Strength and Truth; that they ſhould ſeeme to be Gods and Angels in the world, rather then men: See Gal. 4. 14.

V. 10. I will powre] A propheeie of the laſt converſion of the Jewes; whereof ſee Mat. 23. 39 Rom. 11. 26. 2 Cor. 3. 16. The Spirit] namely; The preſence the operation and the gifts of Chriſts Spirit, which is given through grace; and is the Seale and earneſt of Gods grace; and doth alone produce in Believers, holy and acceptable prayers: Rom. 8. 25, 26. They ſhall looke] that is to ſay; They ſhall turne to me by Faith. Have pierced] Pſal. 22. 16. Matth. 27. 35. Joh. 19. 34. Mourne for him] They ſhall be exceedingly grieved at their forefathers miſdeeds: See Jer. 3. 21. Acts 2. 37.

V. 11. As the mourning] It is likely that hee hath a relation to thoſe ſolemne lamentations which were appinted for Joſias his death, who was ſlaine in the field of Meghiddo: 2 Chro. 35. 22, 25. And it ſeemes that Hadradrimmon was ſome city or ſtrong hold in the ſaid field, made mention of onely: Zech. 14. 10.

V. 12 Every Family] Circumſtances taken from the manner of publike mournings; in which they uſed to ſhut themſelves up in their houſes with their families, and refraine the company of women, and all manner of delightfull converſation: ſee Numb. 20. 29. Of Nathan] A branch of Davids poſterity, out of which ſprung Zerobabel, who was next to the crowne after Solomons line failed: See 2 Sam. 5. 14 Luke 3. 27, 31.

V. 13. Shemei] It ſeemes that it was ſome Familie of the Levites: 1 Chron. 6. 17. and 23. 10. And the Prophet doth in this manner ſpecifie theſe Families; whereof ſome had held temporall, and ſome Eccleſiaſticall offices: to ſhew, that as the Church and State were united and joyned in perſecuting of Chriſt, and in putting him to death; ſo they ſhould joyntly doe penance for it.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſ. 1. IN that day] namely; when the Meſſias ſhall be come into the world. A fountaine] namely; The grace of God in remiſſion of ſinnes and regeneration of Spirit ſhall be proffered to all Believers in Chriſt. A figure taken from the Waters of the Temple, and the waſhings according to the Law.

V. 2. The Prophets] namely; The falſe prophets; by which are meant all ſeducers and teachers of lies. Uncleane ſpirit] namely; the Divels wicked and uncleane inſpirations.

V. 3. Shall yet] A repreſention of the ſpirit of knowledge, diſcretion and zeale in Chriſts true Church, to diſcerne falſe doctrines and oppoſe them. Figurative termes, taken from that which was commanded to falſe Prophets: Deut. 13. 5, 6. and 17. 2.

V. 4. The Prophets] All falſe doctrine and worſhip of former times, ſhall be beaten backe by the cleare light of the Goſpel. Shall they weare] They ſhall not dare to counterfeit the true Prophets, who uſed to weare ſuch kindes of garments; 2 King. 1. 8. Iſa. 20. 2. Matth. 3. 4.

V. 6. Shall ſay unto him] If it appeares that he hath paſſed through the Church's Diſcipline, becauſe hee hath been a ſeducer, hee ſhall confeſſe it, and give God the glory: approving of the Churches ſeverity, uſed for his correction. A repreſentation of the wonderfull power of Gods Spirit and light, in convincing and correcting the miniſters of error: See Acts 8. 13. and 19. 18, 19.

V. 7. O ſword] True it is, that for a time my Church ſhall be an enemy to all manner of falſe doctrine and falſe teachers: but there ſhall likewiſe come a time, in which by my ſecret providence Chriſts true Miniſters; according as hee himſelfe was ſlaine by the Jewes for a falſe Prophet; ſhall alſo be perſecuted and ſlaine: whence ſhall follow a great diſperſion of Believers and of Churches in the world. Hee ſeeme to have an eſpeciall relation to the times of Antichriſt. My Shepheard] Chriſt, as well in his owne perſon, as in the perſons of his faithfull Miniſters. My Fellow] To ſhew the unity of Eſſence, and union of the will of the Father, and the Sonne the Mediator: See upon Iſa. 5. 1. Jer. 11. 15. Joh. 10. 30. and 17. 22. And I will] In this generall deſcription, I will gather together, and preſerve mine Elect, who are poore and weake, according to the world. See Zech. 11. 7. 11. Matth. 18. 10, 14. Iſa. 2. 5.

V. 8. Two parts] The greateſt part of the world which beare the name of Chriſtians ſhall follow Antichriſt, and ſhall periſh: See Rev. 13. 14.

and 17.8. The third] namely; The Elect which are the leſſer number.

V. 9. I will bring] I will try the faith and conſtancie of mine Elect by many afflictions.

CHAP. XIV.

Verſe 1. The day] it is likely that theſe things muſt be underſtood, concerning the ſpirituall and corporall warres, which Antichriſt ſhall raiſe againſt the Church of God: drawing thorow Gods permiſſion, the Princes and Nations of the earth to follow him, Rev. 14.8 and 17.15. Unleſſe he meaneth that great unknowne accident deſcribed, Ezek.38. of Gog and Magog, the laſt enemies of the Church.

V. 2. Halfe] God ſhall ſuffer a great part of his Church to be diſcomfited and ſubdued, Rev. 11.7. & 13.7. but he ſhall reſerve unto himſelfe a remainder for grace and election.

V. 3. Go forth] ſee concerning theſe victories which the Sonne of God ſhall obtain againſt Antichriſt, 2 Theſſ. 2.8. Rev. 17.14. & 18.2. Of battell] the battell of Midian under Gideon, Judges 7.22. Iſay 9.4. & 10.26. where God diſcomfited his enemies by their own ſwords: as threatning to do the like at this time, V. 13.

V. 4. His feet] figurative termes to ſignifie the re-eſtabliſhment and gathering together of the Church diſperſed by Antichriſt, by a new and firme preſence of Chriſt in the middeſt of her: calling unto him all thoſe which were driven away, Rev. 14.1. No, where it is ſet downe, that at His returne He ſhall ſtand upon the Mount of Olives: being correſpondent to His departure which was alſo from off that place, as it is deſcribed, Ezek. 11.23. Shall cleave] all let and difficulty which might hinder the concourſe of mine Elect, ſhall be taken away, as Iſa. 40.3. & 57.14. & 62.10.

V. 5. Shall flee] all you beleevers ſhall ſpeedily come to the Church, to ſave your ſelves from periſhing with the world. For the valley] the free entrance into the Church ſhall be open every where, ſave onely where Gods election hath not wrought; but hath left a man as it were ſequeſtred: which ſeemeth to be meant by the word Azal, which ſignifieth ſeparation. See Iſay 4.3. With thee] O Chriſt, this may be underſtood of the Elect which ſhall joyne themſelves to Chriſt; Or of the Angels which ſhall accompany Chriſt at His laſt coming, Mat. 25.31. Jude 15. whereunto theſe following things ſeem to have a relation.

V. 6. In that day] after the deſtruction of Antichriſt ſhall the Sonne of God come in, who ſhall bring the Church into its glory, where without any viciſſitude or variation of day and night, of calamity and proſperity, of knowledge and ignorance; it ſhall enjoy eternall light by the ſight of God. Iſay 16.19,20. Rev. 21.23. and 22.5.

V. 7. One day] equall and everlaſting, not varied nor interrupted. Shall be knowne] this may be referred either to the prefixed time of Chriſt his comming to judgement; which God alone knoweth, Mat. 24.36. Or to the quality of that eternall glory which no man hath ſeen nor can comprehend, 1 Cor. 2.9.

V. 8. Waters] namely; the grace and gifts of Gods Spirit in this world, and His glory in the heavenly life ſhall be powred out upon his Elect for ever, Ezek. 47.1. Joel 3.18. Rev. 22.1. The former ſea] this is the ſea of Sodome, and the weſt or uttermoſt Sea, the Mediterranean, which by the ſetting forth of diverſe places of Judea, ſignifieth nothing but a generall powring out on all ſides, and upon all men. Shall it be] thoſe waters ſhall never be dried up, as your Summer ſtreames are. See Job 6.16,17.

V. 9. The Lord] the Sonne of God ſhall alone be acknowledged and worſhipped for everlaſting King of the world.

V. 10. All the land] figurative termes taken from the hilly ſituation of Judea: to ſignifie that all worldly height ſhall be beaten downe, and the Church alone ſhall be glorified, as Iſay 2.2. See Zech. 4.7. From Geba] Geba and Rimmon were two confines of Judah, the one towards the North, and the other towards the South, Joſh. 15.32 57. From Benjamins gate] by a ſimilitude taken from the precinct of the earthly Jeruſalem, as Jer. 31.38. he doth imply a perfect re-eſtabliſhment of the Church in all parts of it. Of the firſt gate] it ſeemes he meanes the fiſh gate, which was againſt the ſecond gate, Jer. 39.3. Zeph 1.10. and ſo he mentioneth the whole circuit of Jeruſalem. Benjamins gate was on the North-eaſt ſide: from thence going towards the corner gate which was on the North-weſt ſide; they went along by the fiſh gate: and from Hananiels tower which was on the ſame ſide as Benjamins gate; they went the other compaſſe from the South to the Kings wine-preſſes which were on the weſt ſide: where theſe two halfe compaſſes did meet, to make up a whole compaſſe. The corner gate] See 2 Chro. 26.9. peradventure there was ſome Tower there to make the corner, or ſome point like ſpurres or baſtions.

V. 12. The plague] he ſeems to deſcribe the eternall puniſhments of the wicked. They ſtand] though he ſubſiſt, and live, and ſhall not be capable of death, yet he ſhall be tormented everlaſtingly, ſtill outliving his paine: having no end that his paine may alſo be endleſſe. Their eyes] though they be alive, and can ſee, yet ſhall they be deprived of light, in infernall darkneſſe, having neither eyes nor underſtanding, but onely to ſee and judge of their extreame miſery. Their tongue] ſee Luke 16.24.

V. 13. In that day] of Gods victory over his enemies which is deſcribed, v. 3. Shall lay hold] God ſhall cauſe the to fight, one againſt the other, as in the battell of Midian, Judg. 7.22. Mat. 24.7.

V. 14. Iudah] the carnall & unbeleeving Jewes ſhall alſo be enemies to Chriſts true Church. The wealth] that is to ſay; the booty or ſpoiles: a figurative terme, to ſignifie a compleat victory.

V. 15. The plague] God ſhall not onely deſtroy his enemies, V. 12. but even all the inſtruments they made uſe of for to afflict the Church.

V. 16. That every one] God ſhall ſave ſome of his enemies, whom he ſhall cauſe to turne to his true ſpirituall ſervice deſcribed here as in a ſhadow by the ceremoniall ſervice of the law, as Iſay 66.23. The feaſt] a figure of the Elects gathering together into particular Churches in this world, to which every one muſt reduce themſelves to partake of the communion of Saints, and of Gods grace.

V. 17. Shall be no] God ſhall impart none of his bleſſings to them.

V. 18. Of Egypt] which was the ancienteſt enemie of the Church; which alſo ſeemed not to have much reaſon to feare the foreſaid want of raine, becauſe of the yearly overflowing of Nilus; but therefore inſtead of that it is threatned with everlaſting burnings, V. 12.

V. 20. Upon the bels] the Italian, The boſſes] having ſpoken of the horſes overthrow and other cattell of the enemies, V. 15. He addeth to make up the meaſure, that all their ſpoiles; even the deckings of their furniture, if they were of metall; ſhould be conſecrated to God, to make utenſiles for his ſervice; wherein he ſeems to have a relation to that as Gideon did, Judges 8.26. The meaning is, God ſhall convert to his ſervice in his Church, all ſuch things as before was imployed againſt him. The pots] made of theſe boſſes. The meaning is, that there ſhall be frequent ſacrifices of thankſgiving, of which ſome parts were dreſſed in the Temple, in the Kitchins, belonging to it, Ezek. 46.22.23. for the ſacred feaſts, 1 Sam. 2.15. And all this muſt be underſtood of the ſpirituall ſervice which ſhould be in the Chriſtian Church, deſcribed by the ancient ceremoniall ſervice, as Iſay 60.7. and 66.23. Mal. 1.11. The bowles] which were in very great number, for to receive the blood of the ſacrifices, and to make the ſprinklings. See 2 Chron. 4.8. Ezr. 1.9.

V. 21. Every pot] he ſeemes to meane, that the ſpirituall ſervice ſhall be yeelded to God every where, even in the moſt ordinary actions of a Chriſtian life. There ſhall be no more] God ſhall cleanſe his myſticall Church compoſed of true Beleevers and Elect, from the mixture of all profane perſons. See Iſay 35.8. Joel 3.17. Canaanite] or Merchant: he ſeemes to have a ſpeciall relation to the abuſe of Merchandizing, and ſelling, which was uſed in the Temple, Mat. 21.12. John 2.15.

The Booke of the Prophet MALACHI.

ARGUMENT.

BEcauſe there is no mention made elſewhere of this Prophet; and that this name Malachi, ſignifieth an Angell or a Meſſenger. Some have thought this to be no proper name, but a name of Office; and that thereby may be meant Ezra or Haggai, who is ſo termed, Hag. 1.13. But howſoever, it is likely that he was the laſt of the ancient Prophets; and was imployed as well to correct the preſent vices of his time; as alſo to direct the faith and hope of beleevers, to the promiſed Meſſias; which is the twofold end of almoſt all the Prophets. Now He prophecying after the reſtauration of the Temple, and after Haggai and Zechariah. It ſeemeth he goeth on to the reformation of what was yet corrupt and defective, after the miniſtry of thoſe other Prophets, as well in Gods ſervice, as in their life and converſation. And firſt, he repreſents unto the people their free Election, the only ground of their their ſubſiſtency and preſervation: and doth reprove and threaten them; becauſe they did evill performe their parts of the Covenant of grace: through their wickednesſes, contempts, and prophanations of Gods ſervice, and other iniquities of all ſorts; as falſe oathes, ſacrileges, blaſphemies, diſloyalties, and mixing themſelves in unlawfull marriages, injuſtices, and violences: Vices which were predominant; not only in the common ſort of people, but in the Prieſts and Levites alſo: and calleth them to repentance; by meanes of which, they ſhould feele Gods grace and bleſſing, which he aſſuredly promiſeth to all beleevers: eſpecially, at Chriſts comming; which ſhould ſhortly follow, Saint John Baptiſt being to come before him; and ſhould bring ſalvation and mercy to repentant ſinners; and judgement and deſtruction to the wicked; with the abolition of all the old Ceremoniall ſervice, to give place to the ſpiritnall only, which ſhould be diſperſed all the world over, by the calling of the Gentiles.

CHAP. I.

Ver. 1. The burden] A Commiſſion for a prophecye of reproofes and threatenings. See Iſa. 13. 1. To Iſrael] that is to ſay; to all the people of ſeverall Tribes, which were returned from Babylon.

V. 2. Was not Eſau] conſider the principall effect of my love, in that of my meere grace: I have choſen you to be my people in your father Jacob; reproving Eſau his brother, equall in all things to him: Whereupon, all my benefits have dropped downe upon you: namely, your preſervation, deliverance from captivity, and re-eſtabliſhment; whereof the Edomites have not been partakers.

V. 3. I hated] I have given him no part in my grace, and have left him as a ſinner, and corrupted, under my wrath and judgement: which I have alſo ſhewed in his irreparable deſtruction; which hath not befallen you, nor cannot befall my Church; which hath alwayes a remainder, and an iſſue out of her evils, Jer. 31. 36. Dragons] which have their dwelling in deſart, and unfrequented places.

V. 4. We are] if they beleeve they ſhall be reſtored out of their calamities, as you out of your deſolations, which have befallen you by the Caldeans; they ſhall finde themſelves deluded, Jer. 49. 7. 17.

V. 5. From the border] even from his holy Temple, the place of his abode, from whence he ſheweth the glory of his power, to the deſtruction of his enemies.

V. 7. Polluted] not lawfull nor acceptable, being defective, Lev. 22. 20. Deut. 15. 21. Bread] the Italian, food] See Lev. 3. 11. and 21. 6, 8. The Table] namely; the Altar, Ezek. 41. 22. and 44. 16. The meaning is; the Temple and the Altar, ſince the returne from captivity, are ſo wretched, and ſo different from the ancient ſplendor which they were in; that they doe not deſerve to have ſuch exact care taken of the beaſts which are offered there, as formerly in the firſt Temple. See Zech. 4. 10.

V. 8. Is it not] in your prophane conceit. Or is it not evill? To thy Governour] as Zerobabel, Nehemiah, and others under the Perſian Empire, who had their proviſion aſſigned them upon the people, Neh. 5. 14, 15.

V. 9. Pray] being prophane contemners of his ſervice, as you are; thinke you that God will, or can heare your prayers?

V. 10. Who is there] my ſervice is ſo farre contemned by you; that you have even neglected to ſhut the gates of my Temple: there being Porters which belonged thereunto. Doe ye kindle] I doe recompence you largely for your ſervice, by tythes, firſt fruits, offerings, &c.

V. 11. From the] ſeeing my ſervice is ſo much deſpiſed, and growne ſo degenerate amongſt you carnall Jewes: I will call the Gentiles under the Meſſias to my knowledge, who ſhall yeeld me a true worſhip in Spirit and truth; whereof this Ceremoniall worſhip is a figure, as Iſa. 66. 23. Zech. 14. 16. Mal. 3. 4. See John 4. 21, 23.

V. 12. Prophaned it] diſhonoured the name of God, bearing no reſpect, nor obedience to what he hath commanded. Is polluted] the Altar hath bin ſpoyled by the Caldeans; and the ſacrifices which are offered upon it, are not done with the ancient Majeſty and holy pompe. The fruit] whereby is meant whatſoever is offered upon the Altar.

V. 13. Ye ſaid] and though you doe me but little ſervice, and that after an evill manner; yet you complaine of it, as if it were a great burden to you. Torne] by wilde beaſts.

V. 14. The deceiver] that doth not proceed plainly, nor directly in Gods ſervice; but hath a regard to his ſo. did avarice. A male] without any blemiſh, according to the Law of burnt offerings, Lev. 1. 3. 10. becauſe that in ſacrifice of thanksgiving, females were alſo accepted of, Leviticus, 3. 1,6.

CHAP. II.

Ver.1. Commandement] to procure the purity and entire obſervance of my worſhip.

V.2. Your bleſſings] namely; the goods which you have through my bounty.

V.3. I will corrupt] that is to ſay; I will curſe them, and cauſe them not to increaſe. Spread dung] I will make you abject, and abominable, v.9. and will degrade you from your ſacred honour, putting you out from before me; as the dung of ſacrifices, which were offered in great number upon feſtivall dayes, was carried away out of ſight. See Lev.4.12.

V.4. Might be] that the Prieſthood might remaine in his race, with my favour and bleſſing; as I formerly promiſed, as it were, by an eſpeciall Covenant.

V.5. My Covenant] the Tribe of Levi; and eſpecially Aaron, and ſome of thoſe who were preſently after him, enjoyed the honour of this Office; with all manner of bleſſing, length of life, and proſperity. See Neh.13.29.

V.6. The Law] he expounded, and taught my Law in righteouſneſſe and truth. Iniquity] no falſe doctrine, evill life, or unjuſt judgement. In peace] in an humble and quiet obedience, without any rebellion, which is alwayes turbulent.

V.7. The Meſſenger] or Embaſſadour of the reconciliation between God and men, Eccl.5.6. Hag.1;13. 2 Cor.5.20. and a Miniſter and inſtrument of the great Angell of the Covenant, which is Chriſt, Iſa.63.9.

V.8. To ſtumble] namely; by your evill example; or for want of inſtruction; or giving them occaſion to diſdaine Gods ſervice, by reaſon of the Miniſters wickedneſſe. See 1 Sam.2,17. Jer.18. 15.

V.9. Have been partiall] to favour, or to wrong men; you have ſubverted my Law, either in the Doctrine, or in Judgements, Ezek.22.26. Zeph. 3.4.

V.10. One Father] namely; the heavenly one; which is God; or in the fleſh: namely; Abraham. One God] that is; the generall foundation of all juſtice amongſt men; who are of one and the ſame nature, though of different qualities and conditions. And muſt all anſwer before Gods Judgement Seat, as his creatures. See Job 31.15. The Covenant] not only naturall right; but the ſpirituall right alſo, of being the children of God through grace.

V.11. Hath prophaned] have diſhonoured that holy name of Gods people, which they beare, and all other ſighes of his Covenant: by which God had ſanctified them to himſelfe; ſeparating them from prophane Nations. Of a ſtrange] namely, Idolatrous women of Heathen Nations.

V.12. The Lord] he ſpeaks to the Prieſts and Levites, who had alſo ſinned in theſe forraine marriages, Ezra 9.1. and 10,18. Neh.13.28. and this threatening ſeemes to be directed to them, who ſhould not willingly ſubmit themſelves to the reformation of this fault, appointed by Ezra; or to thoſe who ſhould hereafter fall into the like. The Maſter and the Scholler] the Italian, him that watcheth, and him that ſingeth] he meanes, the Porters and ſingers of the Temple. The meaning is, that either by death, or by excommunication from out my Church; I will cauſe both him, and all his poſterity to be uncapable of having any ſuch ſacred Office. See Neh.13.28.

V.13. Done againe] you have not only married ſtrange women; but have alſo afflicted your owne lawfull wives: adding cruelty to prophaneneſſe. Covering] you have cauſed your poore Wives, to poure out dolefull lamentations before mine Altar; which are like a thicke cloud, that will not ſuffer your offerings to be looked upon, nor accepted by me.

V.14. Witneſſe] of the matrimoniall promiſes, made as it were in his preſence, by calling upon his name. See Prov.2.17. Of thy Covenant] thy firſt lawfull wife; with whom, having ſpent thy youthfull dayes, thou now beginneſt to contemne and hate her in her old age.

V.15. Did not he] did not God in the beginning create Adam alone; out of whom, he framed Eve to be his wife: without creating any more women for one man, or more men for one woman? Shewing thereby; that as he appointed Matrimony by one only Law of lawfull conjunction; it likewiſe ought to be of one with one, and two in the ſame fleſh, Gen.2.23,24. Mat.19 4. Yet had he] he could if he would, have created more living perſons at once. He might ſeeke] Gods chiefe end in this proceeding was; That the poſterity might be ſanctified, being borne in chaſte wedlocke, according to his appointment; whereas it is defiled by all manner of unlawfull conjunctions. To your Spirit] as your life and ſalvation of your ſoule is deare to you. Treacherouſly] defrauding, or otherwiſe abuſing his lawfull wife for concubines.

V.16. Putting away] if the husband doth diffame and diſgrace his wife; it were more tolerable for him to make uſe of the permiſſion of divorce, Deut.24.1. then for to keep her, and afflict her by the meanes of ſtrange women. Covereth] let him uſe the civill remedy of divorce, which is but a politicke coverture of iniquity, Mat.19.8,9. ſo the Holy-Ghoſt condemneth divorces in conſcience, though God did tollerate them in a politicke way.

V.17.

V.17. wearied] grievously, and intolerably offended him. See Mal.1.13. Every one] saying, that God favoureth the wicked: or if it be not so; why doth he leave them unpunished, and in the meane while afflicteth good men? Mal.3.15.

CHAP. III.

Ver.1. Messenger] my servant or Embassador, Mal.2.7. Here is meant John the Baptist. Shall prepare] by his preaching he shall prepare mens hearts for to receive Christ; taking away all lets of hypocrisie, carnall pride, impiety, &c. See Isa.40.3. Whom ye seeke] towards whom all the hopes and thoughts of beleevers are bent. Suddenly] presently after that John shall begin to preach; Christ the true everlasting God shall appeare, and publickely exercise his office. To his Temple] namely; the Temple in Jerusalem, which was the figure of the Church, to preach there, and use his authority as in his owne house. See John 2.14,16. The Messenger] namely; Christ the Mediator, and foundation of the Covenant of grace with the Elect. See Exod.33.20,21. Isa.63.9. Hab.8.6. and 9.15. and 12.24.

V.2. Who may abide] his presence and preaching shall be accompanied with a most powerfull vertue of Gods Spirit; and with most severe judgements, to destroy all Rebels, and cleanse his Church. See Isa 4.4. Mat.3.10,11,12. Fullers soape] the Italian, Fullers garse] which was very ordinarily used to whiten wooll, and cleanse it.

V.3. Sit] as a Judge. Or he represents his diligence, and care about this worke of cleansing of his Elect, likened to precious mettals. The sonnes] namely; all true Christians, made Priests by him, Rev.1.6. to offer unto God spirituall sacrifices, Rom.12.1. which were figured by the Ceremoniall sacrifices, as Mal.1.11. In righteousnes] rightly, lawfully, and according to his ordinance, without any default. See Psal.51.19.

V.5. Come neare to you] my Spirit shall effectually redargue all sinners, Isa.4.4. John 16.8. and the execution shall speedily follow that inward redargution.

V.6. For I am] under the Gospell, I will proceed with a speedy operation of my Spirit and judgement; whereas now, I doe use a great deale of clemency and patience; out of my meere loyalty, and constancy in my promises. See Lam.3.22.23.

V.7. Wherein] wherein have we sinned, that we should returne?

V.8. In tythes] keeping those things back which are my right, and are to furnish out my service; and for the maintenance of mine Officers, Neh.13.10.

V.10. The store-house] of the Temple, 1 Chron. 26.20. See the performance of this Commandement, Neh.13.12. Prove me] whither if you obey my Commandements, I will faile in my promises. I will not open] A figurative terme, to signifie, as it were, a deluge of goods. See Gen.7.11. 2 King. 72.19.

V.11. The devourer] the Italian, the beasts; namely; those insects, which doe spoile the fruits of the earth. Cast her fruit] they shall not lose their fruit by any accident.

V.12. A delightsome] A most happy Land, and abounding in all things as can be desired in the world.

V.14. Walked mournfull] the Italian, gone mourning] as Job 30.28. Psal.38 6. he seemes to have relation to those Fasts which are set down, Zech 7.3.

V.15. The proud] an ordinary title given to the most grievous sinners, who sinne maliciously and boldly. Set up] established and preserved in lasting happinesse.

V.16. Spake] whilest the wicked did blaspheme in this manner; the true beleevers opposed themselves against them, and strengthened themselves against those temptations. A Booke] God shall remember them in due time, and reward them for their faith and constancy. Termes taken from men, Psal.56.9. That thought] that have his feare alwayes in their hearts, and before their eyes; that meditate upon his grace, and his commandements, have a care to call upon him, and doe actually remember him in all their works.

V.17. Make up] namely; execute my judgements upon the wicked. Spare] I will love them, and preserve them carefully.

V.18. Returne] you doe wrongfully impute to God, that he doth not reward those that serve him: serve you him heartily and uprightly, and then you shall finde the effect of his promises; whereas now you deprive your selves of it, because your service is defiled with hypocrisie and impiety.

CHAP. IV.

Ver.1. The day] of Christs comming, wherof he had spoken, Mal.3 2,3. Neither root] A proverbiall terme, as Job 18.16. and 29.19. Isa.5.24. Amos.2 9.

V.2. Arise] by faith you shall know and enjoy Christ, who shall be a devouring fire to the wicked; but unto his Elect, a Son of yeelding; a vivifying and comfortable heate, by vertue of his perfect righteousnes; by which he will reconcile them to God his Father: and obtaine his Spirit for them; which shall regenerate, sanctifie, and save them perfectly. See Isa.60.1,2,19. Goe forth] A description of the liberty of Spirit in the Elect, in joy, vigor, and promptitude of spirituall motions.

V.3. Tread down] A representation of the Churches victory over her spirituall enemies, which is very frequent in the Prophets.

V.5.

V. 5. Elias] that is to say, John the Baptist, who shall come in the Spirit and power of Elias, Luke 1.17. The great] that stately appariton of the Sonne of God in the flesh, accompanied with the consuming power set downe before, Mal. 3.2. & 4.1. Especially, in regard of the Jewes, who shall be destroyed by him, by reason of their rebellion and ingratitude.

V. 6. Shall turne] his preaching shall be for to bring backe the children of Israel, that are gone astray, to the true faith and piety of their forefathers; whereby their fathers, as Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, who (as one may say) did not know them againe, Isa. 29.22.23. shall re-accept them for their lawfull posterity; which thing failing, I will finally and totally destroy the whole Nation.

FINIS

An Advertiſement concerning the Books, which are called Apocrypha.

IT is moſt certaine, that in the ancient Jewiſh Church; to which Gods Oracles were ſent and lay depoſited: the Books of the Law and the Prophets, having bin faithfully kept there, untill ſuch time as the gift of Prophecying, and the Prophets Miniſtry ceaſing; there was a Regiſter, or authenticall Catalogue made of all the ſaid Books, gathered into one volume by Ezra; either alone, or with the aſſiſtance of other Prophets, which lived in his time; being guided therein by the ſame infallible conduct of the Holy-Ghoſt, by which they had compoſed their owne writings. This Volume being gathered together, was the ſtime rule of the Church at that time, the only modell of all its Religion, and rule of divine worſhip: the foundation of all their hopes; the forme and ſoveraigne Law of their cuſtomes and government; and the only ſubject of all their Expoſitions and Lectures, which were made in their Aſſemblies. And though there were even at that time, many other Books of pious ſubjects; as Eccleſiaſticus, and the Books of Maccabees; and ſome alſo of more antiquity; as the Prophecye of Enoch, mentioned in Saint Jude his Epiſtle, and alſo ſome Hiſtory, out of which Saint Paul had the names of Jannes and Jambres, 2 Tim. 3. 8. yet the Jewiſh Church never gave place for publicke uſes to any other Books, but ſuch as were divine and ſacred, and comprehended within their Catalogue. The ſame care of the divine Providence, was alſo ſhewed in the Chriſtian Church: For the laſt Apoſtles; and eſpecially Saint John, who outlived all the reſt, made alſo (as ancient writers relate) ſuch a Catalogue of the Holy Books of the New Teſtament, for the ſame end as there had been one made of the old. And it ſeemes that Saint John, in the laſt Chapter of his Revelation, would ſeale and ſhut up the cloſe of it by His Apoſtolicall Authority, and by His terrible proteſtations: But the Chriſtian Church, after the death of the Apoſtles, did not uſe the ſame ſcrupulous circumſpection as the Jewiſh Church did: For many writings of ſeeming piety, paſſing through the Churches hands, under the name of divine Books: The care and ſeverity in diſcerning & cutting off the ſuppoſed ones, was not uſed: but only in ſuch as were moſt notoriouſly falſe, and did moſt dangerouſly corrupt Chriſtian Doctrine, as containe falſe Goſpels and Epiſtles, which were written in the name of the Apoſtles. Being the worke of ſome Jewes which were turned Chriſtians; or of ſome Heretickes, which were reproved, and baniſhed, even in their firſt beginnings. But a greater toleration was uſed with other Books, which were leſſe hurtfull: As Books of Hiſtories, or precepts and ſentences, profitable for the ordinary manner of living, and morality: from which the Church, hoping to have ſome fruit for the peoples inſtruction; permitted the uſe of them: firſt in private; and afterwards in the publicke Lectures of the Church alſo. And though the Ancients doe often proteſt, that it was not done to attribute any authority to them, for to rule the Faith; nor to confirme the opinions of it; nor to determine controverſies; nor to condemne errours: Yet the foreſight of the abuſe, induced many moſt grave Doctors, and alſo ſome whole Churches, (eſpecially of the Eaſterne ones, which had more ſtrictly obſerved Saint Johns Orders; who had ſpent a great part of His life, and exerciſed His Apoſtleſhip amongſt them) to reſiſt and oppoſe this introduction, as it appeareth by the Synod of Laodicea, kept in the yeare of our Lord, three hundred sixty foure, or thereabouts; which confirmed the Catalogue of the Books of either Testament, which we have at this time, and did forbid the reading of the other in the Church: Yet the inveterate custome prevailed, especially in the Latine and African Churches; and the publicke reading of them was continued with this pre-caution, of making a distinction of Canonicall and Apocryphall Books. Under the first name were contained all the Books of the New and Old Testament: whereof the Authenticall Catalogue was made by Ezra, and Saint Iohn. And under the name of Apocryphicall, these which were not contained in the said Catalogue. And by this name which signifieth, hidden or obscure, was notified their unknowne Originall, and their Faith and Authority doubtfull and suspected. And contrariwise, the Canonicall ones, whose Truth and Authority was unquestioned, did shine brightly in the Church, and in the uniforme consent of Beleevers, through the perswasion of the Holy-Ghost; who alwayes produced evidently their divine qualities, and the Character which he himselfe had imprinted in them. Now though the Apocrypha were alwayes stiled by the Ancients, false and supposed Books, bastard and reprovable ones; as well by reason of their Authors, who had no immediate Calling, nor infallible inspiration of the Holy-Ghost: as also, by reason their matters were besprinkled with many errors, falsehoods, vanities, basenesses, and other corruptions of the humane Spirit; and of the stile, which savours almost in all places, of the leaven of affectation of worldly wisedome and eloquence; rather then of that grave and chaste simplicity; and of that divine and spirituall Majesty of Gods pure Word: yet there were some chosen out, as more sure, for to be retained for publicke reading, and were called Ecclesiasticall Books; of which, there was also a Register or Canon made to exclude all the rest, which were more defective and hurtfull. These two Canons, or Catalogues, in processe of time caused the name of Canonicall to become common; both to the truly divine ones, and to them which were of the best sort of the Apocrypha. But the reall and essentiall difference was alwayes observed, untill the foure hundreth yeare of the Lord: these of the first Canon being only held (as they are now) to be divine, and for a certaine rule of Faith, and saying, Truth. And the Apocrypha, excluded from having any Authority in matters of Faith, and in the resolutions of doubts and questions therein. In this opinion lived and dyed Saint Ierome, the most famous and approved Interpreter of Holy Scriptures, that was in ancient times. Now in processe of time, it happened, that these Bookes were joyned and bound together, Canonicall and Apocrypha, one with another, in one and the selfe same Volume, for the greater ease of the Ecclesiasticall use. And under pretence of joyning Historicall with Historicall, and Sententiall with Sententiall; they were mingled together againe one with another, as at this time may be seene in the Greeke Bibles, and in the Latine vulgar, one which was condemned by Saint Athanasius. But still custome prevailed, and at last, brought forth the abuse, of holding them all in one degree and esteeme of divine Books: against the consent of the foure best Ages of the Christian Church, and against all reason: For in effect, since these are Apocryphall, where we speake (Esdras two having at the first been degraded, as the most unworthy) doe plainly appeare to have been composed by Jewes, and the greatest part of them in the time of the Jewish Church: we ought to beleeve, that if they were of a divine Originall, and had proceeded from the Holy-Ghost, working in their Authors by infallible inspiration; The same Holy-Ghost would also have revealed and inspired the certainty, and have perswaded the Church of that time thereunto, as he had done by all the other sacred Books; to cause them to be acknowledged, received, and respected. Now this was never so, and the Jewish Church never acknowledged them, wherein it could not be accused, neither of ignorance, nor malice: Not of ignorance, by reason that it had in its due measure, the light, discretion, and direction of the Holy Ghost in these things, as well as the Christian Church. And besides, that it is very likely that Christ and His Apostles would have cleered and corrected this so pernicious ignorance, as they had done other matters of lesse moment: Of malice much lesse, having never but so much as suspected therefore; but contrariwise, much commended, for most religiously keeping of the divine Oracles, with which they had been put in trust: Besides that, there is nothing in the Books that doth any way condemne the Jewes, for to induce them to put them out of their Catalogue. Every thing is in their behalfe, and for their credit. And if they would have presumed after Christs comming to have committed any such crime against the sacred Books; questionlesse, they would have endeavoured to doe it upon such passages of the Old Testament; which accuse, and formally confound their hardnesse and incredulity. But besides this reason, the internall quality of their matter, and the Character of their stile, doe plainly shew, that the ancient Church, as well the Jewish, as the Christian, did not use any arbitrary, or mutable reason in the rejecting of them. But that being enlightened, and guided by the Holy-

Holy-Ghost, it did know what they were of themselves, and that it could not alter the property of them, by any humane judgement, or authority, Whereunto may be added, that neither the Lord: nor the holy Apostles have ever honoured, or authorized them, by alleadging any of them: as they have done the most part of the other true Authenticall Books. And indeed, it seemes that they have not been held worthy (being not divine) to be kept in that religious custody and purity, as the true Canonicall ones: whereby there is such variety of Copies, so many defects, so many superfluities, and obscurities in them; there being no sure nor certaine Originall: that it is oftentimes very hard to gather any cleare or certaine meaning out of them: or to make a texture, or well composed Body of them. In conclusion, they may be read, and good instructions may be gathered out of them, observing notwithstanding those necessary pre-cautions; set downe in the particular advertisements upon every Booke; and applying alwayes the rule of Gods authenticall Word thereunto, and the light of His Spirit, to discerne truth from falshood, and good from evill; and to retaine the one and reject the other: According to the liberty which Beleevers have in all works and writings, which are meerly humane.

The first Booke of the Apocripha called Esdra, being called the third of Esdra.

THis Book is but onely a summary repetition of some holy and canonicall writings, namely, of the two last Chapters of the second Book of Chronicles, and of the Book of the true Ezra, and of Nehemia. Which besides its being neither necessary nor profitable, doth also containe diverse things and circumstances directly contrary to those foresaid bookes, that are of authenticall truth. As amongst the rest the narration inserted in the third and fourth Chapter of the three young men that were of Darius his guard, contending for the reward of the best sentence propounded by every one of them: though it be also related by Iosephus, an ancient Hebrew Historian: which besides that it hath no signe of divine majesty and holinesse, is also plainly convicted of falsehood: for this Booke taketh from thence the cause of the second returne of the Jewes from the Babylonian captivity, and of the re-undertaking of the building of the Temple, under Darius by Zorobabel, pretended to be one of the said young men. Whereas the true Ezra sets downe, that Zorobabel was conductor of the first company of Jewes, which returned under Cyrus many yeares before Darius. And therefore by very good reason this book hath been by unanimous consent rejected amongst the basest and falsest sort of Apocrypha.

The second Book of the Apocrypha called the fourth Book of Esdra.

THis Book which is extant but onely in Latine, was written by one who was by nation a Jew, and by profession a Christian, a little while after the death of Domitian the Emperour. Of whom, as also of his predecessors hee speakes so plainely that there is no doubt to be made of it. The end (as it seemeth of it) was to comfort his nation in the last desolation which was newly befallen them by the Romans: whose power fearing to provoke, as much as he feared to kindle the Jewes hatred against Christianity: he keepes himselfe hidden under the name of the old Ezra. And under diverse termes and narrations taken from what had befallen the Jewes in the taking of their City by the Babylonians, and during their ancient captivity. He endeavours to strengthen his nation in the expectation of deliverance and redemption thorow Christ so they turned to him and to the faith of his Gospell. As for the rest, either to insinuate with the Jewes by framing himselfe to their opinions: or because he was indeed infected with their fables, he mixes many of them amongst his rare grave and Evangelicall sentences, doctrines, and predictions, whereof many are taken out of our Lord Jesus own speeches, and out of his Apostles prophecies inserted by the Author in this Book; wherein he hath affected some resemblance and imitation of the Revelation of Saint Iohn. But the great number of fables, vanities, and Jewish bables, of which it is full, hath caused it all times to be held for Apocrypha of lowest esteeme, and of no authority.

The Book of Tobia.

THis Book was never acknowledged for Prophetick and divine, and peradventure was never seene by the ancient Jewish Church, which had receaved from the last Prophets the whole body of the sacred Bookes of the Old Testament shut and sealed up. The Christian Church also in the first ages, though with too much facility, it had admitted it to be read both privately and publickly for the uſe of ſome inſtruction of manners, and teaching of vertue; yet it alwayes held it as meere Apocrypha, and of no authority to rule and binde the Churches Faith. Wherein queſtionleſſe the Holy Ghoſt did guide it to take notice of the quality of the writer who had no prophetick light, nor infallible guide of Gods Spirit: and beſides to examine the ſubſtance of the matter of the Book every where full of ſtrange narrations that have neither ground nor conformity with authentickall Scripture: As thoſe of the love of a Devill to a chaſte and holy maiden; of the death of her Spouſes: of the manner of her driving him away: of the binding of him to a certaine place: of the long converſing of a holy Angell with men: things which do all favour of a Jewiſh fable, compoſed for delight, to give ſome inſtruction of vertue and morality, according to the manner of that nation. Which ſeemes to be confirmed, by reaſon that neither in Joſephus, nor any other jewiſh Author, there is any track of this Hiſtory. Beſides, though Saint Hierome affirmes he hath tranſlated it out of a Chaldaick text into Latine; yet reaſon plainly ſhewethus, that the Greek Text from which we have taken this tranſlation, is the true originall. In which language notwithſtanding there was not any ſacred book of the Old Teſtament written; the uſe of that language being brought up amongſt the Jewes a long time after that the gift of prophecy was ceaſed.

The Booke of Iudith.

THere are two principall queſtions concerning this booke: The firſt, whether it doe containe a true hiſtory; or rather an allegoricall and morall fiction; The other, whether the narration, being not grounded upon hiſtoricall truths; it may be held for Divine and Canonicall. As for the firſt; there are many pregnant reaſons which ſeeme to prove that this cannot be a true hiſtory. For, firſt it ſeemes very ſtrange, and without example; that ſo memorable an accident followed by ſuch a miraculous deliverance of the Church, and ſo long a reſt after it, ſhould not ſo much as be any way mentioned in holy Scripture; which hath ſo diligently gathered and ſet downe, actions and occurrences without any compariſon of leſſer moment then this. And that Joſephus a Jewiſh hiſtorian, and a moſt curious ſearcher out of Jewiſh antiquities; nor any other Jew after him ſhould leave the leaſt ineling of it in writing. But the reaſon of the times, the true eye of hiſtory, and touchſtone of truth, comes yet neerer: For theſe things happened either before the captivity of Babylon, or after: if before, as the moſt common opinion is, it was in the time of King Manaſſes, carried priſoner to Babylon: 2 Cro. 33. 11. Now, herein are found indiſſoluble difficulties; for then there was no Nebuchadnezzar, King of Aſſyria; Nineveh had not yet been taken by the Babylonians and the Empire of Aſſyria ſubſiſted and flouriſhed ſtill. And therefore no Nebuchadnezzar, which is the name of a Babylonian, and not of an Aſſyrian King, could have his Imperiall ſeat in Nineveh. Likewiſe there was not at that time any high Prieſt in Jeruſalem called Ioachim, as appeareth by 1 Chro. 6. much leſſe that did command in war and ſtate buſineſſes in the country belonging to the ten tribes, where Bethulia ſtood within the territory of the tribe of Zabulon. And though after the conqueſt of Aſſyria by the Babylonians, the name of theſe two Empires are often ſet downe one for another; yet that could not be done before the ſaid conqueſt: and yet in this booke, Nebuchadnezzar a Babylonian is alwayes called by the title of King of Aſſyria. And beſides, it is a thing notoriouſly falſe; that that King did command in Egypt before the conqueſt of Judea, by meanes of which, Egypt the onely oppoſer of the Babylonian Empire, was at laſt ſet upon and conquered. That is alſo falſe which is ſaid in the eighth Chapter, verſe 15. 16. namely; that all manner of Idolatry was then baniſhed from amongſt the people; if theſe things happened under Manaſſes, whoſe raigne is ſhamefully defiled with Idolatry. Contrary to truth is alſo that which is ſpoken in the third Chapter: namely; that Jeruſalem did at that time command the reſt of the land of Paleſtine, where Bethulia was: and then ſhould be ſo much zeale of piety, and ſo much conjunction of Religion with Jeruſalem after the captivity of the ten tribes, and the mixture of thoſe heathen nations, which were ſetled in the countrey. And the multitude of names of places is not to be omitted: as Endraelon, Kellus, Kimon, Scitopolis, Bethulia, and the like, which were never heard of before the Babylonian captivity. And the name of Holophernes himſelfe, being a Perſian name, ſeemes to be very unfitting for a generall of a Babylonian or Aſſyrian army: and beſides, that it were a moſt abſurd thing to thinke that the Babylonians or Aſſyrians ſhould not know the people of Iſrael, as is ſet downe, Chapter 5. 3. Seeing they had newly overrun the countrey, and ſpoyled it divers times, and had led the people into captivity which lived diſperſed in their Provinces, and after they had ſpoiled Judah, and beſieged Jeruſalem; they had alſo taken Manaſſeh, who was at that time in their hands: To which times it is alſo impoſſible that ſhould have relation which is ſpoken: Chap. 4. 2. and 5. 16. namely; namely; that the people should be returned out of any captivity; and that the Temple had been ruined, and afterwards re-edified: and likewise it cannot be proved by any history, that Nebuchadnezzar did ever intend to make himselfe the onely God upon earth, and root out all other religions: as is said, Chapter 2. 10. Finally, it Iudith lived one hundred and five yeeres, Chap. 16. 21. and that after that happened which is set downe in this booke, and a long time after her death people were not assaulted nor troubled by any; wee must conclude that this Rest lasted above one hundred yeeres, seeing that when Iudith did this, she was in the flowre of her age and beautie. Now this cannot agree with the sacred history which will have the most tragick desolations of Iudea, to be after the death of Iosias three and thirty yeeres after the death of Manasseh. Wherefore it is plaine, that this history cannot take place before the captivity, and after it much lesse; For then there was no mention of Nebuchadnezzar, nor of Nineveh, nor of the Assyrian Empire. The Persians held all these Empires by the conquest of Babylon; whose Provinces they did not take one after another, as it is said in the first and second Chapter of this book: neither is it to be believed that the Iewes should be unknowne to the Persians, who had so solemnly given them leave to depart out of Babylon at so many severall times; and they holding Palestine which was governed by their officers; who would have hindred the Iewes from commanding there in any matter of State or Religion; as it is set downe in this booke: Whereas contrariwise, the stories affirme, that neither in one nor the other, the ten tribes had any communion with Ierusalem: wherefore we may by good reason gather, that this is nothing but a feigned narration, according to the custome of the Iewes, and other nations for a morall representation of the Church under the name of Bethulia: that is to say; Virgin of the Lord, and of the assaults of the world against her, and of the Prince thereof signified by Nebuchadnezzar; and of the victory obtained against them, not by the meanes of Kings, Princes and worldly powers, but by the faith and prayers of pious soules, or of the true spirituall Iewes and Believers, signified by Iudith. Which being granted; it is an easie matter to resolve upon the second question; namely; That it is not a booke endited nor enspired by the holy Ghost, which never made use of any false histories for the Churches instruction, which is sufficiently done by true ones. For the short parables inserted amongst other discourses, and made plaine by their expositions adjoyned to them, are altogether of a different quality; besides Simeons act, which he did to the the Sichemites; Gen. 24. 25. condemned by Iacob: Gen. 49. 5. is here commended: Chap 9. 3. by an unavoydable contradiction. It is yet very hard to affirme at what time, or to what particular end this booke was made and set forth: It is likely that it was made by some Christian Iew, as some other Apocripha were, in the honour of his Nation; and peradventure, against the Romans, covertly meant by Nebuchadnezzar. Now as being of base authority, it was also carelesly kept even from the beginning; and from thence commeth the great diversity of copies; whereof Saint Hierome speaks, who translated it out of the Chaldean tongue, with a great deale of libertie. But the Greek texts, which wee have followed in this translation, seemes to be every way more sound and entire.

The Booke of Wisdome.

THough this Book do commonly beare in the title the name of Solomon, and the author himselfe do set himselfe downe to be so; yet it hath in all ages beene knowne to be the work of a Greekish Iew; that is to say, one of those Iewes which lived for the most part after the Greeke manner, and amongst the Grecians, and especially in Egypt where they had their chiefe Synagogue in the City of Alexandria. And indeed the stile it selfe being altogether rhetoricall and poeticall, sheweth that it was made rather amongst the Greeks, then amongst the Hebrews; whose inditing, especially in sacred Books, is altogether framed to simplicity, sobriety, and severity. The common opinion, as well of ancient as moderne agreeth in attributing of it to Philo, a Iew, a person of excellent learning, wisdome and eloquence, who lived in the Apostles time: and it is likely, that to hide himselfe from the Egyptians hatred, and to gaine authority, and respect from his own nation, he took upon him she name of Solomon in this book: wherein his end seemes to be to comfort and strengthen the Iewes which lived in Egypt, and were grievously oppressed and persecuted by the Egyptians in his time, as the Iewish History relateth. And thereupon he sets downe, how that the just and beleevers are oftentimes grievously afflicted in this world thorow Gods providence, who reserveth their reward for them in the life everlasting; and that contrariwise the wicked do triumph, tyrannize and afflict the righteous, but that their unhappy end, and their everlasting damnation shall manifest the vanity of their thoughts, and the perversenesse of their deeds. And that notwithstanding oftentimes God doth even in this world take in hand the defence of his Church; and freeing it from her enemies, causeth his judgements to fall upon the wicked: as he formerly did in Ægypt by the hands of Moses, by prodigies and workes memorable in all ages, described here in a most high and illustrious manner, with an intent to pierce the Egyptians of his time, who did imitate their forefathers in persecuting the Iewes. And he enterlaceth his discourses with grave admonitions to the Kings and Princes of the world, for to feare Gods judgements, and be obedient to his justice and wisdome; which also seemes to be directed to the Roman Emperour, and Governours, who did seeme to nourish and foment the hatred, and thorow their connivance did kindle the Egyptians rage against the Iewes. And by a solemne prayer he desires of God the gift of wisdome for all beleevers. Doctrines and discourses which are indeed very rare and profitable, and laid open with a singular eloquence: But yet are such as doe not goe beyond the measure of humane understanding enlightned by Gods law, and do not reach to the high pitch of the light and vertue of the Spirit, and of his word immediately inspired. And therefore this booke in the best ages of the Christian Church was likewise held for Apocrypha. First, in regard of the author who was neither Prophet, nor inspired by the holy Ghost; which doth also more plainely appeare if it were Philo, who after the Messias his comming remained in the Jewish incredulity and blindnesse, without Faith in Christ, without which, the Spirit of grace, and much lesse that of speciall revelation was never conferred upon any one. And because that he hath falsly taken upon him Solomons name contrary to the holy Ghosts simple truth in his true instruments: and that he doth every where shamefully flatter his owne nation, extenuating, and almost annihilating their most grievous sinnes set downe in Scripture. In the second place in regard of the matter it selfe, wherein without any ground of truth, many things are added and mixed for to please, with the plaine narration of holy Scripture, by descriptions and beautifyings altogether Poeticall. In the third place, in regard of the style, which savours too much of affectation, and of the vanity of secular wisdome, art, and eloquence to be attributed to the Spirit of God: whose Majesty and holinesse doth in all the holy Scripture, beare characters much differing from these. And finally by reason of the Greek tongue, in which this book was undoubtedly written and endited; and yet that language was never made use of in the times of the ancient Prophets, to write any holy or divine book.

The Book of Ecclesiasticus of Jesus the Sonne of Sirach.

THis Book without contradiction is the most excellent and most profitable amongst all the Apocrypha. And therefore also according to the opinion of some, the name of Ecclesasticall which was comuon to all the Apocryphall bookes which were accepted of, to be read publickly in the Church, was attributed to it for excellency, as containing a rich treasure, of sentence., precepts, advices, corrections, and exhortations to all manner of vertues; befitting all manner of living and condition of persons: written in the ancient stile of short and popular sentences, seasoned with much understanding and light of grace, with much sweetnesse, and very piercing: drawing as neer as humane spirit can doe to the Spirit of God, and to Solomons divine sentences. But yet the author having been no Prophet, nor inspired by God by that supernaturall vertue and light of the infallible Spirit, and living in so great a multitude and variety must many things contrary to the authentical all truth holy books, too low, and unworthy of the Majesty of Gods Spirit, this his book was not received by the ancient Jewish Church, and in the best ages of the Christian Church was alwayes taken for Apocrypha.

The Booke of Baruch.

AS it hath already beene observed in some other Apocryphall bookes, that it is likely they were written after Christs comming by some Christian Iewes under the name of holy ancient writers, to cause some doctrines and comforts to penetrate into the mindes of their obstinate and suspicious nation, the like may be said of this. For by Chap. 3. 38. it plainly appears that it was written by some good Jew which was a Christian, upon the subject of the Jewes desolation by the Romans. In which booke after he hath given glory to God for his most just judgements, and desired pardon and deliverance at his hands, and described their extreame misery: he returneth to comfort the people, and exhort them to a lively repentance, and to denounce unto them their restauration in grace knowledge and salvation of God, according to the prophesies revealed to the Christian Church from the Apostles time, and to foretell the ruine of the Roman Empire according to the same revelations. And though though the end were good and holy, and the doctrine sound and godly, and the termes excellent and effectuall; yet seeing there was no certainty of the authors vocation, to write a book of divine authority: and that he hides himselfe under a feigned name, contrary to the custome of all sacred writers. And that even in the very beginning he speaks of one Joachim high Priest, and of the sacred vessels brought back from Babylon, and of the burning of Jerusalem, as of things happened under King Jechoniah, contrary to the truth of sacred History, it hath by very good reason been reputed Apocrypha.

The addition to the Book of Esther.

THese parts joyned to the authenticall book of Esther, are indeed ancient; seeing Iosephus a Jewish Historian hath inserted some of them in his writings, though it can not certainly be knowne that it was he that did first frame them of his owne minde, according to the liberty he hath taken to vary in this kinde, in other parts of the sacred History. Yet by the conferring of them with the Canonicall History it plainly appeares, that by very good reason they have beene taken out of the Catalogue of holy Scripture. Which is also the more confirmed, because that the author by a pompous and affected stile, and by seeking out of circumstances, seemeth to have taken delight, in beautifying and painting of the simplicity of the true narration.

The Song of the Three Children.

THis Song, was also in the first beginnings of the Christian Church held for Apocrypha, though it was read as a formulary of pious conceipts, confessions and prayers in the middest of the most extreame calamities, and deadly dangers. And by v. 26. it seems may be conjectured, that it is of the same frame, subject, and scope, as the book of Baruch.

The History of Susanna.

THis narration and the next, which Saint Hierome, without any respect, calleth fables, were anciently by the Greekes joyned to the booke of Daniel, though many powerfull reasons doe take away from them the quality not onely of Divine writings; but also of true histories: For first, there is no likelihood of attributing the things which are here spoken of to Daniel the great Prophet; seeing that hee is here called childe, at which age he was indeed carryed to Babylon: but in that small number of yeeres, in which that name could be fitting for him, the publike and private state of the Jewes in Babylon could not have attained to that peace, authority and commodiousnesse: as is set downe in this narration: Besides that, Daniel living in the palace, and in the Kings service ordinarily; and being afterwards employed in the chiefest affaires of the Kingdome, it is not likely that hee could be an ordinary Judge of his people, in quality of an Elder, as it is here set downe. The joining of another Daniel, as some doe, is also a presumptuous thing, which overthrowes the authority of these writings, chiefly grounded upon the name of the true Daniel: and likewise there is not any proofe else where, that the Jewes in Babylon had any absolute power in capitall judgements. And finally, the allusion of the Greeke names of the trees under which Susanna is accused to have commited the fact, certifies that this is some Greek's invention; seeing that the Hebrew and Chaldean tongue in which the true Daniel writ, had no such resemblance.

The History of Bel and the Dragon.

THis Narration is also of the same make as the former, altogether Apocryphall and fabulous; as appeareth by that as is spoken in the true history of Daniel, concerning the reason of the hatred of the great ones of Babylon against him, to cause him to be throwne into the Lyons denne, altogether different from that which is here set downe.

The Prayer of Manasseh.

THis Prayer, though pious and holy; was never received nor seene by the Jewish Church: and truly it is more likely to be a generall formulary of a great Kings Prayers, or a repentant sinner, a Prince, as Manasseh who had beene King of Judah; and therefore was taken prisoner, and carryed to Babylon, rather then a Prayer made by himselfe.

The

The first Booke of Maccabees.

THe title of this Booke is taken from Judas surname, whose heroick acts for the deliverance of the Jewish Nation from Antiochus King of Assyria, his cruell & wicked persecution is the chief subject of it: and it is doubtfull what this word Maccabee signifieth, which plainly appeares to be an Hebrew word; some thinke it was a warlike title, signifying Destroyer or Slayer. Others with more likelihood hold that it was framed of foure Hebrew letters, which were the first letters of these words; Who is like unto thee amongst the Gods, O Lord? whereof Iuda had made his military motto, taken from Exod. 15. 11. for otherwise the generall name of that race of Priests; whereby God delivered his people miraculously, and afterwards governed them, untill the time of Christs comming in the flesh drew neer, was the Asmoneans, of the name of the father or grandfather of Matthias, the father of Iudas Maccabeeus and his brethren. And because this name Asmonean signifies in Hebrew Baron, or great Lord, it is likely that they kept it for a signe of a modest honour and domination; which notwithstanding grew to the heighth of Soveraignty in Simon, one of the foresaid brothers his time: and afterwards of royalty joyned with the high Priest-hood in his successors. Now, concerning the author of the said booke, whosoever it was; it cannot be justified upon any ground that he was endowed with Prophetical inspiration; because that a long time before that gift was ceased amongst the Jewes; and therefore the booke cannot be put into number of the canonicall and divine, it is indeed acknowledged to be of a profitable subject and very necessary for the understanding of Daniels and some other prophecies; and also of a grave and pure stile; though now in these dayes we have but onely the Greeke translation, the Hebrew originall being lost.

The second booke of Maccabees.

THis second booke of Maccabees containeth two parts, whereof the first is contained in the first Chapt 1, and in a part of the second; the subject whereof is nothing but onely two letters written by the Jewes of Jerusalem to them of Egypt, to exhort them to celebrate with them at the appointed times, the feasts of the Tabernacles, and of the purification of the Temple. Upon which letters, there are so many difficulties in the times and persons that are mentioned therein; and there is so little ground for the narrations of the holy fire found after the captivity; of the Arke, the Tabernacle; and of the Altar hidden by Ieremiah, that one may suspect them to be meere Jewish fables, bearing no character of Scripture divinely inspired. The other part, which begin-neth, Chap. 2. v. 20. is the summary of a long story of Iason Cirenean of the persecutions of Antiochus, and of the peoples deliverance by Iudas Maccabeus, untill the discomfiture and death of Nicanor: but amongst these, there are divers things which doe not well agree with the first booke, which is assuredly the truer, and most certaine: as the death of Antiochus set downe Chap. 9. very different from what is spoken of it in the first booke: Chap. 6. besides many other singularities; and especially there are some heads which cannot well stand to the triall of the doctrine of holy Scripture: as the commending of Razias, who run himselfe into voluntary death: Chap 14. and the false judgement which the author gives concerning Iudas sacrifies and prayers for the expiation of the misdeeds committed by some of his army, to turne away Gods wrath from the whole body of it: as if that had been done for their benefit who were dead for their owne sins: Chap. 12 44 An opinion which hath neither ground nor approbation in holy Scripture, wherein there are no sacrifices nor prayers appointed to be used for the dead. And therefore with very good reason, this booke, which is but an epitome of a history which is not holy, and is penned in a stile no way agreeing with Gods spirit, was rejected amongst the Apocrypha of least esteeme.

FINIS.

THE HOLY GOSPELL OF OVR LORD IESVS CHRIST ACCORDING TO SAINT MATTHEW.

GOD who would have his law which was given by Moſes and the reſt of holy doctrine, which he had revealed by his Prophets, ſet downe in writing by them, hath alſo obſerved the ſame in the New Teſtament, inſpiring his Apoſtles by the ſame ſpirit, which had formerly guided them when they preached by word of mouth, for to indite bookes thereof, by which it might be preſerved and tranſmitted to all ages in its originall truth, and divine authority. And ſo hath been made and ſealed up the number of ſacred books, whereof the firſt part goeth under the generall name of the Old Teſtament, or of the Law and the Prophets; and this ſecond under the name of New Teſtament, or of Goſpell. A Greek word, which ſignifieth good and happie tydings, uſed to ſignifie the relation or annuntiation of the Sonne of Gods comming in the fleſh, and of his accompliſhing all that had been commanded, figured, foretold, and promiſed by the Law, and by the Prophets. And whereunto were alwayes lifted up the hopes, extended the deſires, and ſuſpended the expectations of all beleevers. Now though all theſe bookes containe one and the ſame ſubſtance, yet are they in forme and particular ſubject divided into Hiſtoricall, Doctrinall, and Prophetical. And the name of Goſpell hath been eſpecially appropriated to the firſt foure hiſtoricall, written by two Apoſtles, S. Matthew and S. Iohn and two Diſciples or Evangeliſts, S. Marke and S. Luke, authorized all by their divine vocation, accompanied with the true and infallible aſſiſtance and conduct of the holy Ghoſt: who hath alſo from time to time imprinted the certaintie and perſwaſion thereof in the heart of each beleever, and in the whole Church: which by vertue of this ſeale hath teſtified, publiſhed, defended, and expounded this truth, to induce men to the obedience of this faith. Now in theſe foure Evangeliſts there are ſome parts which are common, wherein they all agree, and ſome that are particular to each one of them. Divine wiſdome having in this kind tempered this body: that in the eſſentiall parts wherein they all agree, the Churches faith might be founded and ſtrengthned by a relation which was every way agreeing, and that by ſome diverſe and ſingular narrations, their ſtudie and meditation might be ſtirred up, and by the ſupplements and amplifications of the one, more then of the other, the hiſtorie might be compleat, and the doctrine better made up in all its parts. And finally becauſe it might appeare, that they had all without any fraud or colluſion faithfully related, that which had to each one been ſeverally inſpired. The ſubſtance whereof is, that the everlaſting Sonne of God in his appointed and foretold time tooke humane fleſh from the ſacred Virgin, by the miraculous operation of the holy Ghoſt, by whom alſo his ſaid humane nature was perfectly ſanctified even from his firſt conception, and accumulated with all manner of graces: he being the ſacred Prieſt, the immaculate Offering, the acceptable Mediator, and the moſt righteous head of his Church, to redeeme it from death, obtaine Gods grace and peace for it, and right to everlaſting life. And that having ſpent many yeers in a private life, he was by God his father, when he was baptized by Iohn the Baptiſt his forerunner, inſtalled in the publike exerciſe of his office of Meſſias, of which he performed the parts of Prophet and Prieſt upon earth, and then he went up into heaven to take poſſeſſion of the third, namely his everlaſting Kingdome. Now the hiſtory of the Goſpell inſiſts more particularly upon deſcribing his converſation in the world, comprehended in theſe three parts of Actions, Doctrine, and Sufferances. As for his Actions he ſets downe of all ſorts, Naturall, Civill, Eccleſiaſticall, Spirituall, Miraculous, and Divine ones. In the one he hath ſhewed the truth of his humane nature, in other his exceeding charitie and mildneſſe, in other his voluntary obedi-rnce and humility, in other his holineſſe, righteouſneſſe, and moſt perfect innocency, in other his divine and infinite power. And as by the one he hath not onely given all true beleevers a moſt perfect paterne for them to imitate, but hath principally ſatisfied the juſtice of the law, and hath as a ſurety obtained right to eternall life for them: ſo by the other he hath given them moſt certaine proofes of his powers ſufficiency to ſave and deliver them. As for his Doctrine he imployed it firſt in re-eſtabliſhing of the true ſenſe of the law, which had beene falſified by the Iewiſh Doctors manifold traditions and ſuperſtitions: and next in ſhewing that he alone could fulfill what the Law of God commanded and promiſed man for his ſalvation: and that he communicated this benefit to all thoſe which were his by faith in juſtification of life, and by his Spirit of regeneration in ſanctification and new obedience. Whereof he hath alſo appoin ed new ſignes, and ſacred ſeales in the two holy Sacraments of the Chriſtian Church Baptiſme and the holy Supper. And conſequently to give his beleevers all manner of divine and ſpirituall inſtructions for the guide of their beleefe and life: which hath beene the ſeed of Evangelicall doctrine afterwards ſowne abroad, and manured by his Apoſtles. As for his ſufferings the hiſtory ſets downe how that his life hath beene nothing but a perpetuall courſe of miſeries and infirmities, aſſaults and temptations of the Devill, contempt, perſecutions, injuries and reproaches of the world, and eſpecially of the wicked Iewiſh nation, and their corrupt Governours, even unto the very death of the Croſſe: by which he having accompliſhed the chiefe act of his prieſthood, fulfilled Gods decree, obtained eternall redemption, deſtroyed the kingdome of Sinne, the Devill, and Death; and annihilated all ancient ſhadowes and ceremonies: God hath raiſed him from the dead, and hath moſt ſoveraignely exalted him by his aſcent into heaven, to take poſſeſſion of his kingdome; of which going out of this world he committed the miniſtery to his Apoſtles and all their true ſucceſſors: to gather his elect together out of all Nations, diſtribute his grace, and governe his Church by the preaching of his Goſpell, accompanied with the perpetuall power of his ſpirit, which he hath certainly promiſed them.

Chap. I.

Ver. 1. The book] A regiſter or muſter roll of Chriſt his lineall deſcent according to the fleſh, Luke 3.23.

V. 5. Of Rachab.] It is uncertaine whether it be meant of that Rachab. Ioſ. 21.

V. 8. Joram] three ſucceſſive Kings are left out here, Achazia, Joas and Amazia. 2 *King.*8.29. and 11.2. and 12.21. and 14.21. whereof the reaſon is unknowne, as alſo of many other particularities in theſe genealogies.

V. 11. Jechonias] the Greeks have confuſed both theſe names, of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſias, and of Iehoiakin the ſon of Ieboiakim into one name of Iechoniah, and therefore here muſt be underſtood the ſon of Ioſias, and in v 12. the grandchild, who was alſo properly called Iechonia. 1. Chro. 3.16. about the,] that is to ſay under whom at divers times the people were carried away captive to Babylon, 2 *King.*24.15.

V. 12. After they,] after they were led into captivity, begat,] by *Ier.*22.30. Luke 3.27. it appears that Salathiel was not the Sonne of Iechonia in whom the line of David by Solomon failed, but onely the next ſucceſſor in the governement of the people. *Ezra.*1.8. and 5.14. and 6.7. See the like examples 2 *Cro.*3.16.17. See upon Luke 3.23. how theſe two Genealogies of S. Matthew and S Luke may be reconciled. Zorobabel, who was not the ſonne but the grandchild of Salathiel, 1 Cro 3.17,18,19. and the father hath beene left out, peradventure becauſe he died before his father, and never came to that dignitie.

V. 16. Chriſt,] that is to ſay anointed, a Greek name anſwerable to the Hebrew name of Meſſias: ſo called becauſe he was appointed and conſecrated by the Father to be King, Prieſt, and ſupreme Prophet of the Church, in his whole perſon: And in his humane nature he was endowed with the fulneſſe of the gifts of the holy Ghoſt, which two things were ſignified by the ancient unction. See Iſa. 61.1. *Dan.*9.24.

V. 17. Fourteene,] it is certaine that in the ſecond and third rank there are ſome omiſſions where of there can be no certaine reaſon given, ſee *V.*8.

*V.*18. Eſpouſed,] that is to ſay promiſed according to the laudable ancient cuſtome, to let a ſpace of time be betwixt the betrothing or eſpouſals and promiſes of marriage and the conſummation thereof, *Gen.*19.14. Deut. 20.7. and 22,23. of the holy Ghoſt,] namely by his miraculous operation, by which beyond and above the order of nature, and without any conjunction of man he framed the body of our Saviour of the proper ſubſtance of the Virgin: and ſanctifying him perfectly, did animate and viviſie him.

V. 19. A juſt.] that would deale righteouſly and honeſtly, and would not marry another mans wife, nor one of a ſtained chaſtity: and alſo courteous and pious, not willing to defame her by putting her away ſolemnely after the accuſtomed manner.

V. 22. That it might,] not that the prediction was the cauſe of that accompliſhment which contrariwiſe was the cauſe of prediction, but to ſhew the neceſſity of the accompliſhment in due time; until which time the truth of the prediction did hang as it were in ſuſpence. Or plainly to ſhew the concurrency of the accompliſhment with the prediction.

V. 23. They ſhall call,] other texts have it thou ſhalt shale call: that is to say, thou Virgin mother according to Isaiah his proper termes.

V. 25. Till she had,] this was necessary to bee knowne for the Churches beleefe. But whither afterwards Ioseph kept Mary, and did abstaine from her company, the Holy Ghost, hath not specified; yet it is piously beleeved to be so.

Chap. II.

Ver. 1. Wise men,] the Italian hath it, Magicians, a name of some mens profession, who were Philosophers or Astrologers of Persia, or Arabia, or some other Country East-ward from Judea.

V. 2. His Starre,] Which was some bright and extraordinary meteor which God had caused to bee a signe of Christs birth. It may be that by some astrologicall observation, taken from the examples of such meteors, they might conjecture, some notable change, or chance to have hapned in the world. But that firme perswasion which they seemed to have, could not proceed but from an especiall revelation, or divine inspiration.

V. 4. The chiefe,] this word is taken here and elsewhere in the Gospells, at large for the heads of families, and of the divisions of the Priests, as 2 Chron. 36. 14. Scribes, these were certaine men who understood the holy Scriptures, & did expound them publikely in the Synagogues, and are called of the people because they were of all the severall Tribes of Israel, 1 Chro. 2. 55, and not of that of Levi onely, to whom this office was properly to belong, 2 Chro. 34. 13. Ezek. 7. 6. and were also admitted into publike counsells, as formerly the Prophets were Jer. 26. 11. and held the place of Magistrates, 1 Mac. 5. 42. and 7. 12.

V. 7. What time,] It is likely that the starre did appeare two yeares or there abouts before the birth of Iesus: and that upon the opinion that the Star was risen at the same time as Christ was borne Herod caused the little children from two yeares downward to be slaine.

V. 9. The Starre,] It seemes that it was vanished out of sight, for some time before, and that it did not shew it selfe againe untill such time as the wise men were upon the way going to Bethlehem, stood, this sheweth that it was a meteor neere to the earth

V. 11. Fell downe,] Hence it appeares that they had some divine motion and inspiration.

V. 15. Which was,] That place indeed is not properly and in its litterall sence referred to Christ: but it is referred to him by a certaine concordancie and allusion, grounded not so much upon that Christ is the true everlasting Sonne of God; and that he would take share in the Ægyptian exile in which the people had formerly bin, as upon some secret intention of the H. Ghost, manifested by the Evangelist.

V. 17. was fulfilled,] This application ought to bee understood as the former. See upon Ieremiah 31. 15.

V. 18. Because] Or in so much as they are no more.

V. 22. Did reigne,] Being declared King by the will of his Father Herod; but afterwards Augustus brought him to an inferiour title of Ethnarch, and tooke away halfe his Kingdome from him.

V. 23. By the prophets,] These words are not found any where else, but only Iudges 13. 5. of Samson, who in many passages of his life was a figure of Christ. And it is credible that the Prophets in their Sermons did teach that the Churches true Samson, and Gods true Nazarite should be the Messias, whose perfect sanctification had beene figured by the ancient Nazarites, Num. 6. 2. and because that Christ was mysteriously so indeed, Gods providence would also have him called so, which name was unwittingly, and by equivocation given him by the popular scorne from the name of the most poore Citie wherein he abode.

Chap. III.

Ver. 1. The Baptist,] a name of a religious office, often used by other Iewes superstitiously and without any calling: but by Saint John, holily and with divine calling, to serve for a preparation to Christ, and for a passing over from the Law to the Gospell. In the wildernesse,] it was a place in the land of Iudah, not so frequently inhabited, which was for pastures, Ios. 15. 61.

V. 2. Repent ye,] the Italian, recall your selves,] with sorrow and repentance for your former life, and with a fervent and firme purpose for to amend it, turne to God to crave favour and pardon at his hands: and in this manner prepare your selves to receave the Messias who is already come. Who shall re-establish Gods Kingdome in righteousnesse and peace to bring salvation to such as repent, and finall ruine to obdurate rebels. See Isa 56. 1. and 59. 20. Mal. 3. 2. and 4. 2.

V. 4. Of Camels haire,] whereof was made a course kind of cloth or felt. Now whither Iohn did imitate the rough and shaggie clothing of the ancient Prophets, 2 Kings 1. 8. Zech. 13. 4. Or that by reason he preached repentance, he would use such clothing and foode as were used in fasts, mournings, and humiliations, laying aside all tendernesse and delight, See Matth. 11. 8 Locusts,] which were used for food in former times, and in these dayes also in diverse places of the East. See Lev. 11. 22. Wild, which groweth in the woods, without any art or care of man. See 1 Sam 14. 26.

V. 6. Baptized,] that is to say ducked in the waters for a sacred signe and Seale of the expiation and remission of sins; oft-times represented by the washing of corporall ordures: and of the purification & regeneration of the soules: and of the mortification of sin as drowned by the benefit of the Redeemer who was ready to be revealed: and likewise for a ceremony obligatory on mans side, to endeavour himselfe to holinesse and puritie of life, flying all pollution of sinne. See, Luke 3. 3. Confessing,] to God in the person of Iohn his Minister: though not with a particular enumeration: but yet with a true feeling of compunction, shame, and humble acknowledgement, and with hate and disallowance of sinne, for to implore Gods mercy. See Acts 19 18.

V. 7. Pharisees and Sadduces,] religious sects and orders among the Iewes, the beginning and time of which are very doubtfull. Certaine it is that they begun after the returne from Babylon, and likewise after Antiochus his persecutions. Pharisees signifieth separate; namely from the common manner of living; by their singular studying of the law of God and by profession of holinesse: and distinguished from the vulgar, by abstinences, disciplines, clothing and other the like things. The institution might be laudable, but at last they went astray into superstition, error, hypocrisie, pride, and sedition. The Sadduces had their name from one Sadocke their founder, who wresting the saying of a master of his, that one ought not to serve God for hope of reward, nor feare of punishment, brought in Epicurisme amongst the Iewes, denying the resurrection, and all the state of the life to come, and the immortality of the Soules, and all subsistency of spirits, &c. Who hath,] words of admiration to see such people come, which were so evill disposed to receive that internall baptisme of which they came to take the signe. As if he should say if you come rightly unto it, it is indeed a wonderfull work of Gods grace, but it is fitting that you should verifie it by your works, otherwise it will appeare that it is but a vaine desire of novelty, Iohn 5. 35.

V. 8. Meete for,] the Italian, Worthy of,] which may yeeld a certaine proofe, as proper and naturall effects thereof. Others, befitting repentance.

V. 9. And thinke not] doe not dally with your selves to thinke that because you are issued from Abraham according to the flesh, you are in Gods favour and free from his judgment; for with him, the imitation of Abrahams faith and piety is the onely thing which demonstrates and causeth to bee Abrahams Children and not the corporall generation, Rom. 4. 12. now such children may be brought forth of all nations, yea and out of these stones. Neither doe you perswade your selves, that by your perdition Gods people shall perish: for GODS people shall alwayes subsist in these spirituall children of A B R A H A M towards whom Gods Covenant and promises shall bee verified.

V. 10. Now] from henceforth God will use no more so much toleration as he hath done heretofore with you false Iewes, Mal. 3. 5. hee having proffered his grace to you in his sonne if you refuse it he will sodainely reprove and punish you.

V. 11. I indeed,] I am but a Minister of the externall signe of your spirituall purification by repentance, but Christ shall be the true author and worker of the action by his spirit, which shall operate with the power of fire, whose property is to cleanse perfectly and inwardly all that passeth thorow it, whereas water washeth only the superficies and outside. See Isa. 4. 4. Mal. 3. 2, 3.

V. 12. Whose fan,] hee shall cleanse his Church, from the mixture of all hypocrites and wicked men casting them into hell fire, and gathering all his true beleevers into the Kingdome of heaven.

V. 13. To be] not for any signe of need to be purified from sinne, or in token of Repentance but to fulfill all parts of Gods service, amongst which is also the use of the Sacraments: and also to beare, as one should say, the same ensigne as his Church doth and to recommend to all beleevers, the use of these sacred ceremonies. So he participated of all the Sacraments, as well new, as old.

V. 15. It becommeth us,] obedience to God in all things ought to be observed by me, and all mine to the imitation of me, and particularly the observance of Ecclesiasticall orders, and religious actions.

V. 16. Were opened unto him,] it was some vision created in the aire, and represented unto the senses, or the imagination of Christ, or according to others of Iohn, having the resemblance of the heaven opened, and severed in sunder, see Mar. 1. 10. Acts 7. 56. and 10. 11. Rev. 19. 11. The spirit,] that is to say a signe of the presence, vertue and operation of the H. Ghost in Christ, and in his Kingdome, in perfect innocency, purity, simplicitie, grace, and mildnesse: vertues which are represented in the Scripture by the nature of the Dove: and opposite to the deceits, and dammages of the spirit of Satan who seduced Eve under the shape of the Serpent which is cunning, impure, and venemous.

V. 17. A voice,] this manner of revelation, by heavenly articulate voyces was frequent amongst Gods people after that prophecies ceased whereof there are diverse examples in the Gospell and in Histories, in whom,] whom in the qualitie of mediator, that fulfills my whole will, and satisfies my justice for men I doe perfectly accept of; and in him, and for his sake only, I doe appease my wrath towards men, and participate my grace unto them, Eph. 1. 6.

CHAP.

Chap. IIII.

Ver. 1. Of the ſpirit,] By a vehement motion of the Holy Ghoſt, whereof his humane nature was full, ſee Luke 4.1. Tempted] for an exerciſe of his humiliation, and a tryall of his perfect holineſſe, and righteouſneſſe, and of his victory over the Devill by the power thereof. To give his Church a proofe of aſſured victory againſt all his endeavours and ſubtilties, Hebr. 2.18. and 4, 15. The Devill.] a Greek Word, anſwerable to the word Satan, and ſignifieth calumniator, or malignant accuſer, ſee Zech. 3.1. Rev. 12.10.

V. 2. Faſted] feeling no want, nor diſcommoditie by it: for a tryall of his divine power in bearing up his humanity without any naturall meanes anhungred,] when that divine power gave way to let his humane nature voluntarily feele the want and diſcommodity and ſo to give occaſion to the temptation.

V. 3. If thou be,] he ſhewed that the Devill had two ends in theſe temptations, the one to draw from Chriſt ſome proofes of his Deity, and of the myſtery of his Incarnation, of which he had but an obſcure notice: which was denyed him, as miracles were to unbeleevers, and prophane men. The other was to draw his humane nature to ſinne, either of impatience and diffidencie in his voluntary obedience; or of pride and preſumption, without vocation or neceſſitie; or of rebellion againſt God.

V. 4. By every] not only by things appointed in nature to nouriſh man, but by all ſuch things as he through his free-will doth attribute ſuch power unto: And likewiſe by his only power and will without any meanes at all.

V. 5. Taketh him up,] by ſome ſwift motion, but without any hurt, and that by the permiſſion of God, and of Chriſt himſelfe, the holy] a title very frequently given to the Citie of Ieruſalem, by reaſon of Gods being preſent in his Temple: and becauſe it was a Citie conſecrated to his ſervice, ſee Neh. 11. 18. Iſaiah 48. 2. Matth. 27. 53. a Pinnacle] the Italian, the edge of the roofe,] the roofe of the Temple being flatt according to the faſhion of thoſe times and places, there was round about it a certaine edge or hemme, or corner jetting out, as well for Ornment, as to convey away the raine Water and there it ſhould ſeeme the Devill did ſet the Lord.

V. 8. Sheweth him,] by ſome viſion, or illuſion as it appeares by, Luke 4.5.

V. 10. Get thee,] or according to ſome texts goe behinde me.

V. 12. He departed] by a divine conduct and inſpiration, he went to make his ordinary abode, and to exerciſe his charge of teaching publikely, in thoſe borders, amongſt poore and abject people: to condemne Iudæa and Ieruſalem,] whether hee went but only at feſtivall times.

V. 13. The Sea Coaſt,] namely by the lake of Geneſareth, or of Tiberias.

V. 14. That it,] that Country which had formerly beene deſolated by the Aſſyrians, Iſa. 8. 7. and grew afterwards degenerate in matters of Religion, and was mixed with heathen cuſtomes and Nations; was through Gods Soveraigne mercy choſen by Chriſt for the place of his ordinary abode according to the ſame Prophets propheſie, Iſa. 9. 1. to bring into it the light of life, of grace, and of truth, and to give a beginning to the vocation of the Gentiles.

V. 18. Two brethren,] who had beene John the Baptiſt his Diſciples, & to whom Ieſus had revealed himſelfe even in his time: and therefore this Hiſtory of Saint Matthewes ought to have a relation to their calling to the Apoſtle-ſhip, and that of John 1. 40, 41. To their calling to knowledge, and doctrine.

V. 19. Fiſhers of] inſtruments of converting and drawing men to God, out of the Sea of the world and ſinne; and out of the abyſſe of death and perdition.

V. 23. Synagogues] a Greeke Name, which ſignified the particular aſſemblie of the Iewes for the exerciſes of Pietie, and the places where they were kept ſeverall from the Temple of Ieruſalem where the generall aſſemblie was kept: preaching,] bringing them the happie tydings of the comming and manifeſtation of the Meſſias his ſpirituall Kingdome, in light, juſtice, and life, promiſed to the Fathers, and ſo long looked for.

Ver. 24. Syria,] which bordered upon thoſe places.

V. 25. Decapolis,] it was a little province ſo called, becauſe it contained tenne Cities, and was upon the confines of Paleſtine drawing towards Syria, Marke 7. 31.

Chap. V.

Ver. 3. The poore] an Hebrew phraſe Prov. 16. 19 and 29, 23. Iſaiah 57. 15. to ſignifie the humble and meeke hearted before God, who have confidence in themſelves when they feele their miſeries or Gods viſitations oppoſite to proud, preſumptuous and cruell men. Kingdome,] they only are well prepared and qualified, to receive the Goſpell, and to be members of the Church, which is Chriſts Kingdome in grace and in ſpirit, and that way to enter into the Kingdome of glory in Heaven, ſee Matth. 18. 3. and 19, 14.

V. 4. That mourne,] by a lively diſpleaſure for their ſinnes, and by a voluntary mortification. Or by an humble patience in visitations and tryalls which God sendeth, Psalme 34. 18.

V. 5. For they,] They shall be re-established into the right which Adam had, namelie of being lawfull possessors of all Gods creatures as they are Gods children, the use of which shall be granted them by their heavenly Father, and shall afterwards bee raised up into the everlasting Kingdome above all other creatures. Whereas violent men, though they have, and possesse much, yet they are but usurpers, who shall be dispossessed of all by death, See Rom. 4. 13.

V. 6. which doe hunger.] which fervently desire of God to obtaine the gift of the true Evangelicall righteousnesse which is in Christ and in the operation of his spirit, which is the food necessary for eternall life, Rom. 3. 22, 26.

V. 8. The pure,] The holy, righteous and sincere, not spotted with the love of sinne, of some predominant vice of malice, and of hypocrisie. Shall see,] shall be admitted to the fruition of Gods glory which will appeare at full in the Kingdome of heaven: opposite to the small and obscure participation which beleevers have in his grace in this world, by faith, 1 Cor. 13. 12. 2 Cor. 5. 7. 1 Iohn 3. 2.

V. 10. For righteousnesse sake.] For the love and defence of right, and chiefely for Gods cause his truth, glory, and pure service The Kingdome,] for a reward of their labours, and a Crowne of their fights, according to Gods free promise.

V. 13. Yee are,] Words directed to the Apostles and ministers of Christ. The meaning is, I have conferred my gifts upon you, and have placed you in the office of Pastors of my Church, that by your doctrine & example, the world might be cleansed & preserved from corruption, and seasoned with righteousnesse and holinesse: if that thorow your owne corruption, you lose this power over others, whence shall the amendment of your selves be expected? In such a case all dignities and titles are of no value.

V. 14. The light,] As by the preaching of the word, you are like unto lights in the worlds darkenesse: So by your life you should bee like Candlesticks, to set that light up on high and shew it to all men. A Citie,] the eminencie of your office shall cause all the good and evill that is in you to be manifest to all men either for example and edification in good things, or for scandall and subversion in badd.

V. 16. Glorifie,] By converting and submitting themselves to Gods truth, whose efficacy shall be penetrated into their hearts by your holy examples. See 2 Cor. 14 25.

V. 17. To destroy,] to derogate from their authoritie, to cause them to be thought false or unprofitable, to propound a doctrine contrary to them, To fulfill,] observing the Law in all points my selfe, and bringing to passe all that was foretold by the Prophets, and pulling in force the right and promise of the Law, to give life to them that fulfill it which is effected in me alone for all my Church. And finally causing, by my spirit of regeneration, which I have gotten, and doe communicate to all beleevers; the Law to be by them voluntarily receyved in its spirituall sence, though not in an absolute perfection in this life, Rom. 8. 3.

V. 18. Till heaven,] a proverbiall kinde of speech, as much as to say, never whilest the world lasts, as Iob 14. 12. Psal. 72. 5. till all,] till Gods will revealed in his word be perfectly fulfilled, Isay 40. 8. Romans 3. 31.

V. 19. whosoever therefore,] hereproveth the Pharisees false doctrine who made a difference of Gods Commandements, as if some were great, and some small; the transgressing of which should be of small moment, Mat. 22. 36, and he sheweth that they have all the same character of divine authority: and that they all binde equally, though the degrees of the matter be diverse, shall be called,] though he retaine the good foundation: yet he shall lose much of Gods approbation, and of the good esteeme of true beleevers who shall judge spiritually by my Gospell in the renewed state of my Church; see 1 Cor. 2. 15. He opposeth this to the Scribes and Pharisees dignities which were grounded upon those arbitrary definitions of cases of conscience.

V. 20. The righteousnesse, which was all set upon vaine ceremonies, in arbitrary disciplines, and in false shewes, and in dead works without Gods spirit, enter,] you shall not be true members of my spirituall Kingdome which I have established in my Church, nor attaine to the Kingdome of glory.

V. 21. That it was said,] in the Text of the Law by Moses, and then afterwards in the glosse which hath beene added thereunto by the Doctors which came after according to their owne carnall meaning, whosoever,] in this glosse the Pharisees erred in two points, first in that they only comprehended the full exterior act in the Commandement, and not the inward motions, nor the lesser acts of the same kind. Secondly because they restrained mens consciences only in reverence of humane lawes, and feare of the punishment inflicted thereby, and did not direct them to God and his justice, and so they did set all the observation of the Law in an outside of externall and hypocriticall discipline, without any true pietie or uprightnesse of heart, the judgement,] namely the sentence and punishment of three and twentie Iudges who had the cognizance of all criminall causes amongst the Iewes.

V. 22. But I] Christ doth not bring up a new meaning of the Law but only re-establisheth the internall and spirituall meaning which is eternall, and was forgotten and unknowne. See Rom. 7. 7. Whosoever ver, to ſhew that the very firſt motions of ſinne are deadly in rigour of Law, though there be ſome diverſity in the degrees of puniſhment, hee makes uſe of the diverſe degrees of capitall judgments which were in uſe amongſt the Iewes, and by judgment he meanes that of the three and twentie Iudges, which had the cognizance of ordinary crimes; by the conſiſtory, that of the ſeventie one Iudges, who had the cognizance of crimes of a higher degree which concerned the publike, as of a falſe Prophet, a High-Prieſt, an apoſtaſie or the like, and by hell fire or Gehenna he meanes that great Anathema, by which the Malefactor beſides his corporall death was accurſed, and appointed for the torments of hell, without a cauſe,] that may be approved in Gods judgement, Racha,]a Syriac word which ſignifieth voyd of underſtanding, witleſſe, hell fire, the Italian, the Gehenna of fire, an Hebrew word which ſignifieth the valley of Hinnom, which was a place by Ieruſalem where Idolaters did burne their children to Molech, whereupon by reaſon of the cruelty of this Idolatry, the ſame name was attributed to hell. See 2 Kings 23.10. Iſay 30.33.

V. 23. Ought,] any cauſe of offence for any injury he hath receaved.

V. 24. And go,] to ſhew that mens wrath and hatred are ſo diſpleaſing to God, that he diſallowes of any ſervice done him by any that are ſo diſpoſed. See Iob 42.8.

V. 25. Agree,] as one that hath offended another doth very well to make a friendly compoſition for the injury, giving ſome reaſonable ſatisfaction before the judge gives his ſentence, ſeeing that afterwards he ſhould be forced to pay what he is amerced without any remiſſion, ſo you men make your peace whileſt you are in the world, before God doth give his irrevocable ſentence againſt the obdurate offender.

V. 26. Till thou haſt,] that is to ſay never: for man hath not wherewith to give ſatisfaction to Gods juſtice, Mat. 18. 25.

V. 29 Offend thee,] do intice thee by thy lookes to offend God: pluck it out:] this muſt be underſtood by way of compariſon thus, thou hadſt better pluck it out, then to be thereby induced to offend God, and bein danger of loſing thy ſoule; and therefore ſeeing there is nothing more deere to thee then thine eyes, mortifie thine old man and renounce thy concupiſcences that thou mayeſt ſave both body and ſoule, See Mat. 19.12. Rom. 8.13. 1 Cor. 9.27. Col. 3.5.

V. 30. Thy right hand,] the hand properly doth not induce to ſinne, but doth commit it, and therefore by this ſo neceſſary and deere a part, are meant and underſtood all manner of vehement affections and paſſionate motions, and each deere and inticing reſpect: all which things ought to be cut off rather then to ſin.

V. 31. Let him give her,] this law doth not permit nor approve of divorces, made without a cauſe, but they being already in uſe amongſt the people, God tollerating them or taking no notice of them, he hath in ſome manner ſet downe a rule therein to provide for the credit of the women which were put away by this writing which did cleere them from adultery, and did ſet them at liberty, that the husband breaking the bonds of marriage on his ſide, the poore woman might alſo on her ſide be free to marry againe: ſeeing that the returning to her firſt husband was utterly denied and forbidden her, Ier. 3. 1. which was a curbe to that temerity.

V. 32. To commit.] before God and in reſpect of their conſcience, though not before men, and in the civill and externall judgement.

V. 33. Forſweare,] the Phariſees had falſified the meaning of this law two wayes. First, in reſtraining it to falſe oathes ſworne to harme other men, without comprehending vaine and frivolous oathes, then by reputing ſuch for indifferent, and as nothing, which were not conceaved in Gods owne name, but were ſworne by creatures, ſee Matth. 23.16.18. unto the Lord,] either directly, in performing ſuch things as thou haſt vowed unto him, or indirectly, in all ſuch things as thou haſt promiſed thy neighbour in his name.

V. 34. Not at all,] ſeeing that an oath is an inſtrument of truth, and of proofe, and oftentimes very neceſſaric, we muſt reſtraine this Commandement of Chriſts to voluntarie oathes, not required by them who have authority, vaine, frivolous, vitious, and ill conceived, &c. Seeing thoſe things which are ſet downe here have a relation to ſuch oathes: By heaven,]by way of aſſertion, as in ſaying, ſo ſure as there is a heaven, or as ſure as there is light in heaven. Or by way of execration, as, let heaven blaſt me, the earth abiſme me if it be not ſo. For it is,] this reaſon doth ſhew two evils in ſuch oathes, namely, the impiety of the former, making uſe of the creature in them inſtead of God alone, and the prophaneneſſe in the aime and intent, ſwearing in jeſt without truth or reverence. Againſt the firſt, the Lord ſaith, that theſe creatures are not God, but only inſtruments of his ſervice and his glory. Againſt the ſecond, that every one of them hath ſome ſpeciall relation to God, wherefore the prophane abuſe of them redoundeth to the offence of himſelfe, who is alſo indirectly called upon in theſe oathes, for to puniſh the breakers thereof.

V. 36. By thy head,] affirming any thing and ingaging thy head upon it, which thou doeſt ſubject to a misfortune if thou lieſt, or by ſaying, as true as my head is deere to me. Becauſe thou,] thine head is not thine own for to engage it, or ſubject it by ſuch oathes to ſuch chances as thou pleaſeſt.

V. 37. Let your,] let your ſayings be averred, by a conſtant a constant, plaine, and uniforme truth, and not by rash oathes, of evill, namely from the devill.

V. 38. Ye have heard,] Christ condemnes the Pharisees false expositions, who did extend the laws of equalizing and iustly proportioning publike punishments judicially inflicted, to the facts, to the suffering of private revenges.

V. 39. Resist not evill,] namely offences which shall be proffered unto you thorow the evilnesse of other men others, resist not the wicked: The meaning is, do not require evill for evill, overcome evill with doing good, and do not work your owne revenges. Turne to him,] rather then to transgresse against the law of charity and Christian patience, suffer a double injury.

V. 40. Sue thee in the law,] by violence, or by an unlawfull or fraudulent plea. The meaning is, do thou use no violence, nor interchangeable fraud.

V. 41. Shall compell thee,] according to the custome of those dayes: by which it was lawfull for one that went about publike affaires which required haste, to force any that he met upon the way to go along with him, to serve and aide him. See Matth. 27.32.

V. 43. And hate] this was the false glosse of the Iewish doctors, who did restraine the word neighbour to kinsfolks, friends, and acquaintances only: See Luke 10.29. contrary to the true meaning of the law set downe, Exod. 23.5. Lev. 19.17.18. Iob 31. 29. Psal. 7.4. Prov. 24.17.

V. 45. Ye may be,] that ye may indeed be such, imitating Gods naturall goodnesse.

V. 46. If ye love,] that charity which imitates God, and is by him rewarded, is not that naturall inclination to love those that love us, because that Gods charity extends it selfe even to his enemies. But the spirituall charity to love for the love of him, and as he loveth all those whom he hath commanded us to love, without any respect to our selves. The Publicans,] men which were infamous and execrable amongst the Iewes, not only for their avarice and greedinesse, but especially because they were the instruments of the Roman tyrannie upon the Iewes their brethren.

V. 47. More then others,] namely, more then the Publicans, and the wickedest men in the world.

V. 48. Be ye,] imitate God in his mercy, which in regard of us and of our salvation is the fulnesse of his vertues, and therein endeavour to attaine to perfection. Ephes. 4.13. Phil. 3.12.

Caap. VI.

Ver. 1. Your almes.] Other texts say righteousnesse: that is to say every good work, especially concerning deeds of charitie, and helping of the poore. See Deut. 24.13. Psal. 112.9. Dan. 4.27. Otherwise] for the worke which of it selfe is good, is corrupted by the evill end, of affecting glory from men, in stead of the pure intent to performe the will of God, to his glory.

V. 2. Their reward,] having aspired only to this vaine glory from men, let them content themselves, there with; and not hope for any other reward from God. See Luke 6.24.

V. 3. Let not,] A proverbiall kinde of speech, to signifie a most concealed secret.

V. 4. Openly,] In the cleere light of the resurrection of the just, as Saint Luke saith.

V. 9. Prayye,] Retaine ye alwayes the substance of this briefe formulary and restraine your selves to the heads thereof, and use the simplicitie and sober brevitie of it, hallowed be,] thou who art perfect holinesse and that wouldest reveale thy selfe unto us as it were by a proper name, doe us this favour also that we may in all reverence acknowledge, worship, and glorifie thee in words and deeds.

V. 10. Thy Kingdome,] Establish thy Sons spirituall Kingdome, in the world by thy word and spirit, and destroy the kingdome of the Devill and sin and bring to perfection both these workes, in thy Kingdome of glory, 1 Cor. 5.24.

V. 12. Our debts,] that is to say sinnes, Luke 11. 4. for which we owe a death by thy judgement. As we,] not to give an example to God by our most unperfect one: seeing we all ought to take example by him, Ephes. 4.32. Col. 3.13. Nor to ground our prayers upon the merits of our workes, Dan. 9. 18. but to subscribe to Gods order to pardon, if we purpose to be pardoned our selves, and to shew our good conscience to God, which is a great prop to faith, to obtaine that which is prayed for, if we performe it, and to condemne our selves to receive nothing from God and if we faile in performing it.

V. 13. Lead us not,] Keepe us from all vehement occasion and object of sinne: and suppresse in us all manner of inclination to evill, give us the help, safeguard, and maintenance of thy Spirit, and never deprive us of it, to give us up into the devils hand, and leave us to his accursed inducements. Amen,] so it is, or so be it. An Hebrew word used in the end of prayers to signifie the fervent desire to obtaine that which a man prayeth for: Or to testifie the truth and sincerity where with a man speaks.

V. 14. For if,] this hath an especiall relation to verse 12.

V. 16. Of a sad,] by an hypocriticall and ambitious affectation. Disfigure,] they use art in making themselves look pale and wanne.

V. 17. Annoint,] make no outward shew of fasting, for hypocrisie or vaine glory, but rather make shew to the contrary. This ought to be understood of private fasts: for in publike fasts God appointed there should be outward shewes of repentance, and humiliation humiliation, for to further the repentance of the heart, and for the common edification.

V. 19. Lay not up,] Be not set on fire with a desire of many worldly goods, for if you abound therin, there is great danger that you will set your hearts, your trust, and content upon them, ver. 21. which is a dangerous and hurtfull kinde of Idolatrie, Eph. 5. 5. Col. 3. 5.

V. 20. But lay up,] Contrariwise purchase with great fervency spirituall and heavenly goods, and endeavour to abound in them in this world, and to obtaine the fulnesse of the assurance thereof in the Kingdome of heaven, 1 Tim. 6. 19. 2 Pet. 1. 4.

V. 22. The light,] Even as the eye is the light and the guide of the whole body: So that if it bee pure and cleere, the whole body is well directed: and contrary wise if that be dimme and perished the body is as it were in darknesse. So if mans understanding which is the light of the soule in all its motions be enlightened by Gods spirit, all his actions are well guided. But if it want that light, & be darkened with carnall cares, the whole man lieth, and goeth wandring in the darknesse of ignorance and sin, and at the last falleth into eternall perdition.

V. 23. That darknesse,] Namely the uncleanest, beastliest and most disordinate passions and affections of thy soule.

V. 24. Can serve,] A proverbiall kind of speech, which must be understood according to the subject whereunto it is applyed: namely to that kind of service, which requireth the whole endeavour, strength and heart of man to bee applyed to it, and in which masters are contrary, as God and the world, Iac. 4. 4 Iob. 2. 15. Mammon] a Syriack word which signifieth riches, mony, lucre, as Luk. 16. 9.

V. 25. Is not the life,] God out of his power and goodnesse having granted unto man his being which is the greater, shall he deny him the lesser, which is the preservation thereof. His wisdome certainely shewing us that he made nothing casually, to forsake it after he had made it. See Rom. 5. 8. 9.

V. 32. Seeke,] With an anxious care, because they doe not know God, nor believe in him.

V. 33. Seeke yee,] Desire and seeke before all other things to have part in the Sonne of Gods kingdome, as well in regard of the happinesse thereof in grace, by the Application of his righteousnesse in this life, and in glory in the life everlasting: As in regard of the dutie of beleevers and subjects of this Kingdome, in holinesse and spirituall uprightnesse.

V. 34. The morrow,] You ought to expect how God will dispose of you: which if it bee to your reliefe, contrary to your expectation, it were great folly in you to trouble your selves in caring for that evill as will not come to passe: and if it bee to your affliction and punishment, what good will it do you to anticipate the sorrow of it, before the time? Sufficient,] you must distinguish your cares by severall spaces of times, as God sendeth you your evills: he doth not heape them upon you all in a moment, nor you ought not to overcome your selves in an instant thorough the care and feare for future times.

Chap. VII.

Vers. 1. Iudge not,] he meanes particular evill judgments which men judge of their neighbours, without any uprightnesse, charity, truth, or authority: thorow curiositie, pride, rashnesse, suspition, malice. hypocrisie, &c. Be not,] by God, revenger of this usurpation of power which belongeth to him onely. And oftentimes also by men, by the same vice, seeing God often suffereth one mans sinne to be punished by the sin of another.

V. 3. Beholdest thou,] A Proverb used amongst the Iewes.

V. 6. Give not,] Take heed of rash judgments: But likewise use discretion, and holy spirituall judgment, in not presenting the holy and precious celestiall truth to men that are prophane and openly rebellious least you provoke them to blasphemie and contempt: or aggravate their rage against you. See 1 pet. 4. 15.

V. 7. It shall bee given,] If you aske it of him, who should give it; as you should, and what is fitting to be given.

V. 9. What man,] to shew that we ought to aske of God only such things as are truely good; And if God refuse to grant us that which we desire: judge that it is not good for him that asketh it.

V. 11. Being evill,] Whose naturall affections are much corrupted thorow the ignorance and malice which sinne hath brought in, whereby often times you doe not know what is good for your children. And sometimes also thorow anger, hardnesse or some other vice you deny them that which they aske of you. But you never come to that unnaturall excesse, as to give them hurtfull or deadly things in stead of good ones.

V. 12. Therefore,] To the end that you may obtaine what you aske, doe unto others, as you desire should be done to you by God and men. The Law] the true uprightnesse which is required by the Law expounded and confirmed by the Prophets. Which seemes to be said, to oppose it to the Pharisees vaine ceremonies and observations: and to shew how Christs doctrine was agreeable with the Law, being taken in a right sence.

V. 13. At the straite,] For to come to eternall happinesse, doe not follow the way of pleasures, and ease of the flesh, and follow not the great number, and multitude of men: but make choice of the hard and laborious profession of the Gospell with its

Crosse: and joyne thy selfe to the small sanctified flocke of the Church, by faith and imitation of good men, who are alwayes the smallest number in the world.

V. 14. Of false.] In regard of their erroneous and false doctrine: or of their disloyall and fraudulent intention when they doe utter a truth.

V. 16. Their fruits,] By their doctrine, manner of teaching, spirituall efficacy in their hearers, their life, customes, and intentions, seeing that by some of these wayes hypocrisie will give it selfe the lie, and at the last shew it selfe.

V. 22. In that day,] Namely of the last judgement. In thy Name,] as thy servants by thine authoritie and commission, by calling upon thy grace and power. Wonderfull,] this Title is in the Gospell specially given to the greatest and most glorious miracles.

V. 23. Know you,] I did never accept of you, as my true servants.

V. 24. Therefore,] Seeing the onely externall profession of the Gospell, profiteth not to everlasting salvation, learne whereupon you may build your assured hope namly in the inward power of it receaved by a lively faith, and bringing forth fruits of regeneration and new obedience, which are the twofold end and effect thereof, from whence followes the certainnesse of eternall happinesse, notwithstanding and in the middest of all the temptations, combates, and difficulties.

V. 29. As one,] With a divine and Soveraigne Majestie, with a serious severenesse, and a spirituall power, penetrating the soule by perswasion & conversion: or in conviction. As the Scribes,] the substance of whose doctrine, was more concerning frivolous and unprofitable questions: and their manner of teaching, more remisse, affected and framed for ostentation of themselves, and to please the auditors.

Chap. VIII.

Ver. 4. See thou,] See the like manner of forbiddings, Matth. 9. 30. and 12. 16. the cause whereof seemed to be, that Christ would have men looke after his doctrine rather then after his miracles: And also because that those miracles producing for the most part nothing but vaine effects of admiration, worldly honour and desire of participating of those corporall favours, did rather hinder then further Christ in his chiefe end, which was the eternall salvation of men. To the Priest,] to be searched according to the Law, and being judged cleane to have permission to come againe into the company of men and of the Church. For a Testimony,] that thou mayest witnesse that I am true God: and that during the time of my humiliation, I doe keep, and cause Moses Law to bee kept; which were the two chiefe heads whereupon the Iewes used to contest with Christ.

V. 5. A Centurion,] A Roman and a Heathen but instructed and inwardly enlightned.

V. 9. A man,] And thou God. I am a subject, and thou a supreame Lord: how much more than shall thy command be fulfilled?

V. 10. He marvailed,] He used some externall gesture of wondering to cause the Centurions faith to be so much the more commended and esteemed: not that he was ignorant of the causes of it; nor that it was a faith beyond Christs Capacitie; which are the two ordinary causes of true admiration.

V. 11. Many,] Namely of the Gentiles such as the Centurion was. Sit downe,] shall enjoy the fruits of eternall life with the holy Patriarches, being by faith, and in spirit become their children, heires of the promises made to them, and their posteritie.

V. 12. The Children.] Namely the Iewes, who by the prerogative of Gods Covenant seemed to be the true heires of this Kingdome. Darknesse,] in the extreame misery confusion, horror, and torment of those, who are eternally banished out of the Kingdome of heaven. Gnashing,] the noise, the rage, and the blasphemies, which are alwayes coupled to the everlasting torments of the damned, Rom. 16. 9. 11, 21.

V. 14. His Wives mother,] For Peter had a wife, 1 Cor. 9. 5.

V. 16. With his word,] using no other meanes but only his meere command.

V. 17. It might be fulfilled,] That he might verifie that which Isaiah speaketh in that place. Namely that he is the only Saviour of soules and bodies, according to the charge which he hath taken upon him and by the merit of his voluntary sufferances; by which having appeased Gods wrath, he hath cut off the cause of all our evills: and hath obtained his favour for us, which is the fountaine of all good and happinesse.

V. 18. The other side,] Namely of the lake of Genesareth.

V. 20. The Foxes,] This is spoken either for a tryall of the truth of the Scribes protestation, or for a preparative for him to keepe it; being in time instructed in the condition which is inseparably annexed to the Gospell, namely the crosse: without any constant proprietie of goods and without any peace or rest in the world. Nests] or places to go and shelter themselves in. The Son] Christ calls himselfe so oftentimes in the Gospell, to signifie the truth of his humane nature, and the excellencie of his person above all other men. As who should say. That man which hath in all ages bin foretold expected, desired, and seene by the Prophets in their visions as as particularly, Dan. 7.13. for a prelude of his manifestation in the flesh.

V. 21. Bury] that is to say assist him in his extreame old age, untill the end of his life.

V. 22. Let the dead,] being called to the ministery of my word, leave off these duties belonging to a mortall life, to those that live and have their callings and places therein, that thou mayest readily and without disturbance follow the duties of the spirituall life, which are now at this present incompatible with the duties of a temporall life.

V. 26. Rebuked] A kinde of speech very frequent in Scripture to signifie Gods power to appease the commotion of any of the creatures especially if they rise against his elect whom they ought to serve.

V. 28. Gergasenes] it is thought to be the ancient nation of the Gergashites, Gen. 10 16. which afterwards, were called Gerashites where the Citie of Gadara was, whereupon Saint Marke and St. Luke call this Country of the Gadarenes.

V. 29. To torment us] driving us out of that little light and libertie which is left us to wander up and down the world, working our wills, and shut us up in the darknesse and paines of hell, as it shall be after the last judgment. Before the time] namely of the last judgment, which they might know was not yet come.

V. 32. Into the Sea,] Namely into the lake of Genezareth.

V. 34. They besought him] not for any hatred they bare to him but for feare of that divine power which they only considered in him, Luke 8.37. An ordinary motion of a mans conscience not yet confident in Gods grace, when he feeles his Majestie nigh him. See Deut 5.25. 1 King 17.18. Luk. 5.8.

CHAP. IX.

VER. 1. Into his owne] namely Capernaum where he made his ordinary abode, Mar. 2. 1.

V. 2. Thy sins] which are the cause of thy disease; sinne being the cause of all those evills that befall man.

V. 3. Blasphemeth] attributing unto himselfe the power of pardoning sins which belongeth to God alone.

V. 5. Whether is] according to your carnall judgment it is a higher, and more difficult thing to heale this diseased man by my word, then to forgive him his sinnes: now I will doe that which you judge to be the most difficult, and is sensible; to shew that I can doe that which you esteeme to bee lesse, and is spirituall, and hidden, both depending upon the same divine and supreame power.

V. 8. Unto men] such as they thought Christ to be, being not yet instructed concerning his eternall God-head.

V. 9. Matthew and Levi, also Luke 5. 27.

V. 10. In the house] Namely of Matthew as St. Luke saith.

V. 13. And learne] you hypocrites do set all your pietie and righteousnesse in ceremonies and an externall discipline, and hold them to be prophane, and unworthy of your conversation which doe not follow you: whereas by this saying of the Prophet you might have learned, that the most acceptable service to God is that mercy which I use towards poore sinners, procuring their salvation and amendment by my familiarity with them, seeing that grace by the Gospell, which I am Mediator for and distributer of, is but onely for all Repentant sinners.

V. 15. Of the Bride Chamber,] namely the bridegroomes most intimate friends and companions, Iohn 3 26. The meaning is I will not disturbe the joy my Disciples conceave by reason of my presence, after my departure out of the world they will have afflictions and sorrowes and time enough to feele them.

V. 16. No man] besides this cause, I have also a regard not to oppresse the weakenesse of those which are mine with too rigorous a discipline in these beginnings. New cloth] the Italian rough cloth] as it commeth out of the weavers hand neither dressed nor fulled, and therefore very unfit for any use especially to mend or patch clothes.

V. 18. Ruler] they were certaine superior Ecclesiasticall persons, which did preside in the Iewes particular Assemblies, and there did right according to Law, ended controversies, and punished exorbitancies.

V. 23. The minstrels] they were certaine hired people which did play mournefull tunes at funeralls according to the custome of the Iewes, 2 Chron. 35. 25. and of other Nations.

Verse 24. Is not dead,] In respect of mee and of my Divine power this death is but as sleepe, I will revive her with my meere word, as if she were but a sleep. See Acts 20. 10.

Verse 28. To doe this,] Namely to restore your eye sight unto you, which was all their desire.

V. 30. See that] See upon Matth 8.4.

V. 32. A dumbe] either naturally dumbe, and besides that possessed with an evill spirit, or dumbe onely by the working of the evill spirit which possessed him.

Verse 34. Through the Prince,] Namely by Magicke art, and by a covenant made with the chiefe of Devills, called elsewhere Beelzebub, by whose authoritie and power hee driveth out inferiour Devills.

Verse 36. Moved with compassion,] Not so much for their corporall labour in following of him as because hee knew them desirous to heare Gods Word which was not preached to them by their ordinary Teachers and Pastors.

V. 37. The harvest,] There are many who by the inward operation of the Holy Ghost are as it were already ripe, and disposed to receave the Gospell, and to be gathered into the Church, as it were into the Lords barne.

V. 38. Send forth,] the Italian thrust forth,] a terme which representeth Gods powerfull operation in stirring up and moving men to the painefull worke of the holy ministery. See Jer. 20.7. and also the necessitie which is imposed upon them of preaching the Gospell, 1 Cor. 9. 16. and also the promptitude which is required therein.

Chap. X.

Ver. 2. Apostles] A Greeke word which signifieth sent or deputed to doe some businesse, Ambassadours. So were the twelve called, because they were to have no certaine abode, and that their ministery was to be about the world as in a strange Country out of the Church, to carry the Ambassage of Gods reconciliation, and to gather his Elect together, the first] not onely in the order of the list as eldest, and first called with Andrew, Matth. 4. 18. but also as it should seeme in conduct, and presidencie by the Lords owne disposing, for the time they lived together, for when they were separate, there is no such thing spoken of and all without any superiority in degree, and much lesse in domination, is called] by a sur-name given him by Christ Himselfe.

V. 3. Lebbeus] Who is the same as is called Judas the sonne of James, the sonne of Alphæus, Luke 6. 16. whose the Epistle is intituled of Saint Jude. It is thought that Lebbeus the Hebrew word, and Thaddeus the Syriacke word are of one and the same signification, that is to say a man of heart, or of breast.

V. 4. The Canaanite] which is according to some of the Citie of Cana, according to others, it is the name of a Religion or Sect. Namely of Zelotes, or Zelautes, as it is set downe, Luke 6. 15. Wherewith the Hebrew Word may very well agree. Iscariot] it is not certainely knowne from whence this surname is taken. Some interpret it a mercenarie Apostata. Or the man that doth revolt, or shall revolt for profit, or for reward: It may be he was so named by way of anticipation, for his avarice which did appeare afterward. Others a man of Cheriot] a City of Juda, Ios. 15.25.

V. 5. Goe not] This and those things which follow, are but onely concerning this mission or time they were sent. Samaritans] it was a mixture of Pagan Nations who after the captivitie of the tenne Tribes were brought in, and setled in their Country: where they set up a false worship in the mountaine of Garzim. See 2 King. 17. 24, 29. John 4.20. Whereupon it was but as a bastard Nation, and held as Pagans.

V. 6. The lost] That are in the way of perdition thorow their ignorance, and by meanes of the false doctrines, and evill conduct of their teachers, Isaiah 53.6. Ier. 50.6.

V. 9. Nor purses] The Italian Girdles,] wherein anciently they carryed their money, as in purses.

V. 10. Neither shooes] In Saint Marke, the Lord sufferreth them to take shooes, and a staffe in their hands. Whereby it appeares that the meaning was plainely, that they should speedily and freely take their journey, without any preparation for to furnish themselves; being sure that God would provide for all their wants, being his Ministers.

V. 11. Is worthy] That is to say prepared by Gods inward grace and vertue to receave the preaching of the Gospell, with docilitie, humility and a fervent desire. See 1 Cor. 3.5. There] with such a man: yee goe thence] namely out of that Citie or Castle.

V. 13. Returne] Those desires and well wishings of yours, being unprofitable to the house, let them be as a witnesse before God of your zeale and good will.

V. 14. Shake off] in token that you will have no communion with that Nation, and also that Gods curse and vengeance shall bee powred downe upon them. See Neh. 5.13.

V. 16. As Serpents,] See Gen. 3. 1. the meaning is, mix your simplicity and cleernesse of conscience towards me, with warinesse towards men, to no man wrong, and see that there be none done to you. Provoke ye no man, and keepe your selves from the worlds indignation by milde wayes, retiring your selves and going away. Finally, beware of offering or suffering any violence which is incompatible with the true profession and preaching of the Gospell: and if that both these vertues will not serve you, then remit your selves absolutely to God. Harmelesse,]or sincere and innocent.

V. 17. But beware,] trust not nor associate not your selves with any that are against the Gospell: suspect them alwayes, for the hatred against the Gospell is above all naturall or civill respects. Beware therefore of them so farre as conscience and your vocation will suffer you. Councels,] the Italian, Consistories,] they were the Iewes Courts of judgements, to whom it was permitted by the Romans to proceed against those who offended and did contrary to their law so farre as scourging, but not to any capitall judgement nor punishment, Mat. 23.34. Acts 5.40. and 22. 19.

V. 18. For a testimony,] God shall suffer it and so dispose of it, to the end that the Iewes who shall give you up, and the Gentiles to whom you shall be gi-wrap up my by your free confession of my name and truth, have notice thereof, and so be convinced, and made inexcusable for their obstinacy.

V. 33. Flie ye,] quickly go into another place where you may performe your charge, and doe not think it so be a lost labour to runne so up and down from place to place, for in a short time I shall make the truth of my comming appeare. Till the Sonne,] till it doth cleerely appeare especially to the elect, that the promised Messias is come in the flesh: then shall the power of my Spirit be joyned to your preaching.

V. 25. The maister,] me that am the Lord and true owner of the Church, Heb. 3. 6. Beelzebub,] it was the name of the Idol of the Ekronites, 2. Kings 1. 2. and signifies the god or the Lord of Flies, or according to some the driver away of Flies. The reason thereof is uncert. here: though some other Pagan Idols were so called. Now the Iewes attributed it to the Prince of Devills, Matth. 12. 24. by reason that all the ancient Baals were called devills, Deut. 32. 17. Psalm. 106. 37.

V. 26. Nothing covered] doe your offices freely and bee not affrighted for the worlds oppositions: because that at the last the light of the Gospell shall breake forth, and shall overcome all obstacles.

V. 27. In darknesse] In particular, and as it were in secret, the house toppes] which house toppes in those Countries were made flat like open terraces.

V. 32. Therefore] for a conclusion therefore of the exhortation that I have made unto you to strengthen you against the oppositions of the world, I say thus much more unto you, shall confesse me] shall make an open and free profession of beleeving in me. See Rom. 10. 9, 10.

V. 33. Deny] put him out of the number of mine.

V. 34. But a sword] not by any naturall propertie of Christ or of his Gospell, which contrariwise is the only meanes of peace betwixt God and men, but by an accidentall consequence, the devill and the world opposing themselves against Christ and his Kingdome, and by reason of this deadly hatred violating all naturall and civill duties and respects.

V. 38. That taketh not] that doth not dispose himselfe in a voluntary obedience and patience to beare those afflictions which God shall lay upon him, as it were for his owne part, in imitation of me who shall be crucified for the Church.

V. 39. That findeth] that shall imagine he hath so well provided for the safety of his life, and for his worldly commodities, by renouncing the Gospell, shall fall into everlasting death.

V. 41. He that receiveth] He that thorow a spirit of Christian charity shall doe good to my servants, and those that beleeve in mee, by reason that they are such, and not for any other, civill or naturall or vicious respects, shall be rewarded by me, according to the diversitie of the persons to which hee hath done good, more or lesse profitable, to Gods service, necessary for the Church, and odious to the world, a Prophet.] a minister and speaker of my word, of a righteous man,] of a righteous and holy man, and commendable for his spirituall vertues.

V. 42. Of these little ones,] Out of the ordinary members of the Church, that is not eminent for any publike place, nor noted for any singular qualitie, and therefore contemptible in the worlds eye. See Matth. 18. 6. and 25. 40, 45.

Chap. XI.

VER. 1. In their Cities,] In the Cities of Galile of whence most of the Apostles were.

V. 2. He sent,] not for himselfe, who was very certaine of the truth concerning Christs person, John 1. 29. but to assure his disciples thereof by Christs most effectuall word and presence.

V. 3. Art thou he] namely the Messias which was promised to our fore-fathers.

V. 5. The blind] hee seemes to send them backe to consider upon the prophesies, Isa. 35. 5. and 61. 1. in which these benefits were promised to the Church by the Messias at his comming.

V. 6. That shall not] that shall not have taken occasion to alienate himselfe from me by reason of my person seeming weake, abject, and wretched in the respect of the world. Nor by reason of my doctrine contrary to the flesches understanding, which bringeth tydings, & beareth along with it the crosse and tribulations, 1 Cor. 1. 23. Gal. 5. 11.

V. 7. Into the wildernesse] where John the Baptist preached, A Reed] namely a thing of nought. The meaning is, did you goe by chance, or to behold some worldly greatnesse, or to heare the word of God, from an excellent Prophet of his, such a one as you beleeve John was? if it be so, why doe you not give credit to the witnesse which hee hath boren of me?

V. 10. Before thy face] in Malachy it is my face, but the sence is the same, for the father hath appeared to the world in his sons person.

V. 11. A greater] in dignitie of office, and in clearenesse of doctrine of salvation shewing with his finger Christ already come, and preparing the world to receave him, Luke 1. 15, 16. that is least,] every plaine beleever, or servant of God, in the state of the Church renewed by the Messias, shall have more advantage then Iohn the Baptist hath had, because he shall see the mystery of the redemption accomplished in my person and shall enjoy the fruit thereof by my spirit, spread abroad in greater abundance and vertue.

V. 12. The Kingdome] Iohn hath begun to stirre up the desire of participating of Gods grace in the Gospell, and that encreaseth and shall daily increase more and more by vertue of my ſpirit, which brings forth ſtrength of faith, and fervency of zeale in mine elect in great number to come thronging into my Church, to enrich themſelves with the goods of it: which in this is like unto a city taken by force, where every thing is taken & ſnatched up. See Iſa. 60. 4. 8, 11

V. 13. For all] Johns prerogative above the precedent Prophets is, that they have only foretold, and deſcribed things to come, but hee hath declared the preſent ſalvation, and in him is begun the Evangelicall miniſtery, and the legall and figurative miniſtery is ceaſed.

V. 14. If ye will] know that hee is Elias, whoſe comming was foretold, unleſſe you will refuſe to beleeve the truth.

V. 15. Hee that hath] a frequent admonition in the Goſpell as Rom. 2. and 3. to ſtirre up beleevers that have receaved the gift of faith, which is the eare of the ſoule to make uſe of it in apprehending, and making uſe of thoſe things, which were particularly directed to them by revelation.

V. 16. Unto children] He hath a relation to ſome popular ſong which was uſed in thoſe dayes, to ſignifie that neither Iohns preaching of repentance, accompanied with great auſterity of life, nor the annunciation of Gods grace by Chriſt confirmed with that admirable benignity, in conforming himſelfe to the ordinary courſe of life, and calling unto him the moſt grivous ſinners: could aſſwage the Iews hardnes

V. 18. Neither eating] living almoſt of nothing, not caring for his body, nor giving it thoſe eaſes & delights which commonly men take in their life time. They ſay] eſpecially the Scribes and Phariſees. See Luke 7. 30.

V. 19. Wiſdome,] the beleevers indowed with true ſpirituall wiſdome, have acknowledged, approved of, and maintained againſt theſe calumnies as well the celeſtiall doctrine preached by Iohn and by Chriſt; as alſo Gods wiſdome in appointing each of them their manner of living, befitting their manner of preaching.

V. 21. Tire and Sidon,] prophane Cities, to whom the Prophets had denounced their extreame deſolation, Iſay 23. Ezek 26 and 27. and 28. Repented,] not with a generall, internall, and ſpirituall repentance, which the working of miracles cannot bring forth; but is an effect of Gods Spirit cooperating with his word, but only with an exteriour and diſciplinary kinde of repentance, which is nothing but being diſpleaſed, and a forſaking of thoſe great & grievous ſins which do fight againſt nature, and civill and morall juſtice, and do violate common ſociety, for which ſins the Lord deſtroyed thoſe nations. Now, this was ſufficient to condemne the Iewes inſenſible and inflexible rebellion.

V. 22. But I ſay,] we muſt ſuppoſe thoſe nations are indeed periſhed for their grievous ſins: but at the laſt judgement the malignity of theſe rebels ſhall appear to be more quad, & ſhall be ſeverely puniſhed.

V. 23. Exalted] by that incomparable bleſſing of having bin the place of aboad, and ordinary converſation of the worlds Saviour.

V. 25. I thanke thee] to the glory of thy divine Majeſtie, I acknowledge thy Soveraigne power accompanied with juſtice wiſedome and mercy: in ſo much that thou haſt not wrought upon the minds and hearts of wiſe worldly men, to give them a lively light of the myſteries of eternall ſalvation: but upon ſoules of a weake underſtanding in worldly matters upon ſimple, weake, ignorant, and contemptible people, 1 Cor. 1. 27.

V. 26. Even ſo] I doe not only acknowledge this truth, but do alſo conſent unto it, and approve of it.

V. 27. Are delivered] he meanes the univerſall Kingdome which he hath receaved from God his Father in the qualitie of a Mediator: and eſpecially over his Church to accompliſh the ſalvation of it, according to the Fathers everlaſting decree. No man knoweth,] namely the myſtery of the ſonnes perſon, and conſequently of the Holy Trinity. As likwiſe his Incarnation, and all the properties of his office of Mediator, is onely knowne by God by a proper, naturall and perfect knowledge; And all the men and Angells know thereof, they know it but only of his meere good will: and that which is revealed is done by the Sonne, to whom it onely belongeth to reveale it: as knowne to him by knowledge of nature; and he onely having that property of being the Word of God, Iohn 1. 1. and revealer of his ſecrets, Pſa. 2. 7. Iohn 1. 8. 1.

V. 28. That labour] in your ſoules and conſciences by a lively feeling of your ſins, by the terrour of Gods judgments and the hardneſſe of his ſcourges and puniſhments. And alſo by a painefull and fruitleſſe enquirie how you might ſatisfie Gods juſtice, and obtaine his favour by your own proper works, Iſa. 55. 2

V. 29. Take] Yeeld and ſubmit your ſelves to me by obedience of faith, laying aſide all pride and rebellion, 1 Cor. 7. 22. and 9. 21. 1 Pet. 2. 16 Learne] imitate my example in theſe vertues which are fitting and neceſſary for every Chriſtian.

V. 30. Is eaſie] the Italian is pleaſing] or eaſe: Namely, to thoſe that are regenerate whoſe ſanctified will, enclined by Gods Spirit, doth no more oppoſe Chriſts Law (which in the corrupt man is the only cauſe of the lawes ſeverity towards him) but rather conſents unto it, and ſets his whole delight therin, Rom. 7. 22. and 8. 7. and this yoake of Chriſts is oppoſite to the rigorous yoake of the law, unſufferable without Chriſt, Acts 15. 10. to the intolerable yoke of Phariſaicall orders, Matth 23 4. and to the cruell and tyrannicall yoake of the Princes of the world, Iſa. 9. 3. and 10. 27.

Chap. XII.

Ver. 1. To pluckе,] according to the permiſſion of the Law, Deut. 23. 25.

Ver

V. 2. Is not,] the lave did forbid them to dresse any food upon the Sabbath day, Exod. 16.23. which the Phariſees did ſuperſtitiouſly extend to theſe petty actions of plucking and rubbing of eares of corne.

V. 3. Have ye not,] the meaning is, the rigorous obſervation of ceremonies muſt yeeld to neceſſity, when there is no contempt nor profane rebellion, as David did without being reproved for it.

V. 5. Or have ye not,] Seeing God hath not tied the officers of his Temple to the obſervation of the Sabbath, they doing that day their moſt painfull and laborious ſervices: my ſervants and officers following me and ſerving me may alſo be free from the obſervation of it, ſeeing that I am true God with my father, and that my ſervice ſanctifieth theſe actions, as the ſervice of the Temple ſanctified thoſe.

V. 6. Is one,] namely I my ſelfe, everliving God, Lord of the Temple, and the Meſſias, who really and in truth am all that was figured by the Temple and the ſervice belonging to it.

V. 7. If ye had,] another reaſon which hath a relation to the Phariſees cruell hypocriſie, who thorow an oſtentation of externall diſcipline went againſt charity not pitying the Apoſtles diſtreſſe who did eat ears of corne for meer neceſſity.

V. 8. For the,] he yeelds a reaſon for the Apoſtles innocency, for if there were any ſin in their act, he was to judge of it, being the Soveraigne Lord of all exteriour ſervice, and of the due obſervance of it. And therefore ſince he did not finde fault with it they were not to cavill about it.

V. 10. To heale,] The Phariſaicall tradition did forbid the uſe of artificiall and naturall phiſick upon the Sabbath day, unleſſe it were in caſes of extreame neceſſity: and now they doe ſuperſtitiouſly and malignantly apply the ſame to miraculous cures and healings. See Luke 13.14. Iohn 9.16.

V. 15. Them all,] that had need of being healed.

V. 16. And charged,] See upon Mat. 8.4.

V. 19. Not ſtrive,] he ſhall not ſeek after worldly glory, whereupon ariſe great ſtrifes in the world, hee ſhall proceed in all humility in himſelfe, and mildneſſe towards others.

V. 20. Till he ſend,] till he be entred into poſſeſſion of his everlaſting kingdome to overcome and ſubdue all his enemies. Unto victory,] or everlaſtingly according to the phraſe of the holy language.

V. 22. Blinde,] by the meanes of the devill which poſſeſſed him, as Mat. 9.32. & 17.15. Luke 13.11.

V. 23. The Son,] the Ital. addeth the Chriſt the Son] namely the promiſed Meſſias of Davids progeny.

V. 25. Beelzebub,] See upon Mat. 10.25.

V. 26. If Sathan,] the ground of this reaſon is becauſe the Lord did drive devils out of mens ſouls by his ſaving doctrine, as well as out of their bodies by his Almighty word: wherefore one could not imagine that there was any colluſion with the evill Spirit as Impoſtors often times do, at whoſe inſtance the Devill comes out of a body to gaine any ſoules, by ſeduction, ſuperſtition, falſe doctrine, &c.

V. 27. If I,] You ſhew your malice in judging evill of me, becauſe that having exorciſts of your own nation which make profeſſion of driving Devils out of men, Acts 19.13. and do not condemn them, though you have no more reaſon to condemn mine actions then theirs. Now it is uncertain whether theſe Iewiſh Exorciſts mentioned alſo in other hiſtories did operate by any gift of God, and calling upon his name, or by ſome unlawfull art. Chriſt alſo doth not approve of them nor reprove the, but is content with confuting his adverſaries, by the example of theſe.

V. 28. But if,] if you do plainly perceave that I diſpoſſeſſe the Devill of the tyrannie, which he hath uſurped over ſoules and bodies; Acknowledge that I am that great and onely King of the Church, who onely have power to ſubdue mine enemie, and take away his prey from him, which otherwayes, and to every other man would be impoſſible.

V. 29. Or elſe,] if the kingdome of God were not come, the devill could not be overcome, and conſequently could not be ſpoiled. Enter,] words taken out of Iſay. 49.24.

V. 30. He that,] here Chriſt begins another diſcourſe. The meaning is, all thoſe that are not joyned to me, are mine enemies; there is no mean between theſe two waies; yet ſome ſin through ignorance, and thoſe may be pardoned, 1 Tim. 1.13. others through hatred and malice, againſt the light & motion of the H. Ghoſt: and in ſuch the ſin is irremiſſible. Gathereth not,] he that doth not concurre with me in my work, doth ſpoile and undoe it as farre as in him lieth. Or he that ſeekes his ſalvation any where but in me, ſhall loſe it everlaſtingly.

V. 31. Wherefore,] becauſe that in this contrariety between you & me, you may fall in an extream degree which is irremiſſible, I will give you notice of what nature this ſin is, that you may take heed of it. Forgiven,] may be pardoned by true converſion in faith and repentance. Againſt the,] that is to ſay, againſt his action and proper operation, which is to enlighten inwardly, and to ſeale Gods truth within the heart, giving it ſome reliſh thereof, and exciting ſome motion of Gods grace in it. See Heb. 6.4. & 10.29. Shall not,] the cauſe whereof is Gods will, who hath not appointed two regenerations, or ſpirituall reſurrections. Nor hath not promiſed to begin again the work of his grace which was brought ſo farre as the gift of the Spirit, when it is once deſtroyed by a generall apoſtacy, and utter extinguiſhing of the gift.

V. 32. Speaketh] ſhall out of his ignorance, without illumination of the Spirit have thought or uttered blaſphemy againſt Chriſt. See 1 Tim. 1.13. Againſt the Son,] not only againſt his perſon and his offices, but chiefly againſt that which is his proper operation, namely his word, which he doth outwardly reveal and teach, as being the word and wisdome of God. But whosoever,] that hath loosened the reines to the extreame wickednesse of his heart, in words of blasphemy and outrage against God and his truth, of which he hath had the seale and knowledge in his heart, by Gods Spirit, which is the extreame sinne of the devill and the damned, and the very height of the wickeds malice. Neither in this world,] that is to say never, as S. Mark saith. Or in this world by the effectuall application of the ministery of the Gospell, and by finding the peace of conscience, nor in the other by Christ his sentence at the last judgement. See Acts 3.19. 1 Thess 3.13.

V. 33. Make the,] that is to say put the case, or grant that the tree be good or bad, the fruits will be like it, therefore seeing you are perverse, you can neither thinke nor speak but perversely of me and of my workes.

V. 36. Idle word,] vaine and unprofitable word, which serveth neither for the glory of God, nor for the edifying of ones neighbour, how much more then of blasphemous words?

V. 37. By thy,] this seemes to be taken from such judgements in which malefactors are absolved or condemned according to their answers and confessions. But the Lord doth extend it to a more generall sense, namely, that in Gods judgement man shall be judged by his words as the neerest and most ordinary effects, and signes of what is in his heart.

V. 38. We would see,] a demand for curiosity, or for a prophane cloak for their incredulity. As much as to say, worke some miracle as may be beyond all exception, doubt, or contradiction.

V. 39. Adulterous,] that is to say, disloyall in Gods service, Isay 57.3. or a bastard and degenerate generation. But the signe,] instead of the miracle which you desire, I will give you an instruction by the figure of Ionah. For as he after he had beene three dayes in the fishes belly, went out to preach the will of God to the Ninivites: so three dayes after my death, I will rise againe. Or by my resurrection, Rom. 1.4. I will convince all that shall contradict me, and it shall be an undoubted evidence of the truth of my word.

V. 40. In the heart,] that is to say in the earth: a popular kinde of speech, for Christs sepulcher being hewne out of a rock, was rather above then under ground.

V. 41. Shall condemne it,] that is to say their example shall serve to aggravate this peoples rebellion. See Ier. 3.11. Ezek. 16. 51. Rom. 2 27.

V. 43. when the,] after Christ had confuted his malignant adversaries, upon the occasion of the possessed mans deliverance, he instructeth the people wishing them to beware that the devill have not any occasion to returne, by Gods just judgement upon any new sinne: for in that case the precedent benefit will aggravate the new ingratitude. And under this figure he teacheth all them who have been delivered from the devils spirituall tyranny, to beware lest they fall into it againe, for that he being driven out of his old habitation, will endeavour to come into it againe with greater fury and traine. Now this threatning, set forth to terrifie all men, takes effect in none, but only in such whose faith is but only for a time, not lively nor soundly rooted, as the elects is, in whom Christ dwelleth, and never departeth from them. Dry places,] receptacles of evill spirits which are driven out of heaven, and are not yet shut up in the infernall cloisters. See Isay 13.21. and 34.14. Rev. 18.2. and wandring in this lower part of the world, to tempt, seduce, and hurt men, taking no delight nor rest but in doing evill. See 1 Pet. 5.8.

V. 44. Empty,] Of Christ and of his Spirit, to whom as to the stronger he had yeelded the place. Swept,] figurative tearmes, as much as to say made ready to receive him, all vertues which are hinderances and odious to the devill being rooted out, and vices established there in instead of them.

V. 45. Seven,] that is to say a great number, many spirits often possessing one body. See Mark 5.9. and 16.9.

V. 46. His brethren,] according to some they were his neerest kinsmen. But yet some ancient writers have beleeved they were some of Iosephs children which he had by a former wife; and so commonly held to be Iesus his brethren, seeing that Ioseph was held to be his father: and those followed the holy Virgin, as mother of their family after Ioseph's death. See Mat. 13.55. Mark 6.3. Iohn 2.12. and 7.3. Act. 1.14. 1 Cor. 9.5. Gal. 1.19.

V. 48. Who is,] in mine office, and order of spirituall life. I acknowledge no kindred in the flesh, but onely and equally all true beleevers who are the children of God in spirit, adopted and regenerate by him, and my brethren and allies, that shew themselves to be such by their works.

Chap. XIII.

Mar. 3. IN parables,] this was a kinde of teaching used amongst the Iewes. A meane betweene an enigma, which was a disguising or covering of the truth in a briefe way, which was therefore the more obscure and a plaine similitude inserted in a proper and naturall discourse, and therefore cleere and intelligible. But a parable was a fained narration (and therefore differing from an allegory which takes its figure from a true history, but drawne to a diverse sense, Gal. 4 24.) to represent morall and spirituall things under the shape of common and corporall ones, serving for an insinuation and preparation to know the truth.

V. 8. Some,] the Italian addeth some sinne,]

V. 10.

V. 10. Vnto them,] contrary to that cleere and intelligible way which thou uſeſt to us.

V. 11. Becauſe,] the difference proceedeth from that God will not ſhew the plaine cleerneſſe of his word to this people, to whom he hath not given the inward light of his Spirit for to receave it. For that would no way profit them, but dazle their eyes with ſo much the more contradictions. Let it ſuffice that they have a darke image thereof in theſe parables which may ſerve them for a ſpurre, or for a preparation.

V. 12. Whoſoever,] in ſpirituall things God gives the externall meanes of his word and other things to them that have receaved the inward gift of internall life by his ſecret grace and Spirit, that they may increaſe and ſtrengthen themſelves therein: as if he ſhould ſay, he gives nouriſhment to them that have life. But from them that have not the inward gift he taketh away even the externall light of his word and his other gifts. That he hath,] Saint Luke ſaith, that which he ſeemeth to have: for indeed ſpirituall gifts do not truly belong to a man, if they be not rooted in him, by faith, love, and ſpirit.

V. 19. The word,] namely the Goſpell, which is the doctrine of Chriſts ſpirituall kingdom, by which alſo he gathereth together his elect and governeth them, See Mat. 3. 24. Vnderſtandeth it not,] doth not reciye any lively light thereof in his ſoule, nor doth not receive any deepe impreſſion by vertue of the Spirit, to the end that his heart may be bound to the obedience of faith and to a ſpirituall renewment, Rom. 12. 2. Epheſ. 4. 23. In his heart,] which is come to his heart throrow the externall ſenſes, but could not take root there by reaſon of the hearts hardneſſe. Or plainely in his underſtanding,]

V. 20. But he,] thoſe men which receive the word in a hard heart, ſignified by the ſtony part of the field.

V. 21. Hath he not,] the Goſpell doth not unite it ſelfe to his heart by a lively faith and love. See Heb. 4. 2. Iames 1. 21. Is offended,] growne cold, unwilling, alienated, Mat. 11. 6.

V. 22. Among the,] See Ier. 4. 3.

V. 23. Beareth fruit,] in confeſſion, good works, new obedience, and perſeverance.

V. 25. Tares,] the Italian, Zizanie,] a kinde of bid and hurtfull plant which ſpoyled the corne in Paleſtine, and was great and grew in branches, as appears by verſe 30. and is unknown in theſe dayes.

V. 31. The kingdome,] theſe two enſuing parables are both to one ſenſe, namely, to ſhew that Chriſts ſpirituall kingdome and the ſtate of his Church, groweth up out of ſmall beginnings to a ſupreame greatneſſe and power by the ſecret vertue of the holy Ghoſt. See Ezek. 47. 1. 5. Dan. 2. 34. 35.

V. 32. Becommeth,] this was a ſingularity of that countrey.

V. 34. That it might,] not that this were an expreſſe propheſie concerning the Lords manner o teaching; but the meaning is, that as the Prophets did anciently preach heavenly things unto us, under earthly figures (called Enigmas and Parables) ſo did Chriſt alſo, and to the ſame ends.

V. 37. The Sonne,] who in his proper perſon firſt ſowed the Goſpell, and afterwards continueth the ſowing of it by his ſervants, working in and by them by his onely power and vertue.

V. 38. The children,] namely, the faithfull, adopted, and regenerate by God, and made heires of the everlaſting kingdome of glory. Which are ſowne,] that is to ſay, raiſed and brought forth in the world by the preaching of the Goſpell.

V. 40. In the end,] then all ſcandalous people, hypocrites, and prophane men, ſhall be ſeparated and rooted out of the Church. And that the Lord will not have this done before, ought not to be underſtood of every particular wicked man (for by the order of policy, and of the Church, many wicked men may and ought to be cut off from the one and the other, Pſal. 101. 8. 1 Cor. 5. 7.) but of the generality; becauſe God will not have his Church in this world perfectly purged from all manner of mixture with wicked men: whereof many belonging to his election are converted at their appointed time which the Lord pointed at. V. 29.

V. 41. Things that offend,] all perſons which by their evill example, ſerve for nothing but for offence, hinderance, corruption, and ruine of others.

V. 44. The kingdome,] the meaning of theſe two parables is, that the heavenly glory, and the participation of Chriſts whole ſpirituall kingdome, is a thing of ſuch incomparable value, that for to obtain that, all other manner of good things ought to be laid aſide and forſaken which is the laudable purchaſe pointed at Iſay 55. 1. Rev. 3. 18. He hideth,] not to ſignifie a malignant ſuppreſſion of this knowledge, but the ſecret keeping of it in ones heart. Luke 2. 51.

V. 47. Is like,] the preaching of the Goſpell gathereth together into the externall body of the Church, not onely all the true elect and beleevers, but many hypocrites alſo and wicked men with them, who are never quite ſevered from it, but at the end of the world. Of every kinde,] both good and evill. See Mat 22. 10.

V. 51. Vnto them,] namely to his Diſciples.

V. 52. Therefore,] I have performed my charge in teaching you faithfully, and in this new manner. Now you ought to be faithfull diſtributers of the Goſpell, whoſe doctrine you ought to joyne with the doctrine of the law, and the Prophets: imitating good fathers of families, who having made plentifull proviſion of the old, and new fruits of the earth in their ſtorehouſes, doe happily feed their family mily therewith. See Gant. 7.13. Scribe,] that is to say Doctor of the law. See Mat 2.4. Instructed unto,] to preach it, to do it service, and further it.

V. 54. His owne,] namely to Nazareth, where he was brought up. Mat. 2.23. Mighty workes,] namely his miracles, Mat. 7.22.

V. 57. Offended,] See upon Mat. 11.6. Save in,] a common proverbe grounded upon the ordinary fault in men, which is to make small account of such things as are born by them, and to give but little respect to their owne countrey-men even in divinest things, because that intimate familiarity and acquaintance breedeth contempt.

V. 58. Their unbeleefe,] thorow which they made themselves unworthy of Gods favour, and also did nullifie the chiefe use of miracles, which is the confirmation of the faith to heavenly doctrine. See Mark 6.5.

Chap. XIV.

Ver. 1. Herod,] firnamed Antipas, who was the sonne of the great Herod, Luke 3.1. Tetrarch,] lord or chiefe of the fourth part of a countrey. This sheweth that under Alexanders successors began this division of Iudea into foure parts of which the ancient Iudea made the one, and the other three had been annexed to it, 1 Mac. 10.38. and 11.28, 34.57. See Luke 3.1. Now after the death of Herod the great; Antony, and after him the Emperour Augustus divided also this kingdome into foure parts amongst his children: taking the ancient Iudea away from them, and the title of Kings, though by abuse they yet retained it amongst themselves. Verse 9. and to this Herods lot fell Perea and Galile, whither the ancient partitions were yet observed, or whether there were some alteration.

V. 2. Mighty workes,] the Italian, the powers worke in him,] the Iewes call the Angels so. The meaning is; he is a man wholly divine, and celestiall, and hath Angels to assist him, working in him and by him.

V. 3. Had laid hold,] whether it were that Iohn was Herods subject, as Luke 23.7. Acts 12.1. or that Herod had taken him in his countrey. His brother,] by the father, but not by the mothers side.

V. 5. when he would,] Marke 6.18, this is attributed to Herodias, not to Herod, who contrariwise did keepe Iohn from being put to death for a certaine time. But that which is here spoken is to be referred to some sudden anger, which was tempered by some better thoughts signified by S. Mark.

V. 6. The daughter,] by her first husband called Salome. Before them,] publickly and in the presence of them all.

V. 15. The time,] to be abroad in the fields.

V. 19. He blessed,] that is to say, he prayed; an ordinary action of piety at meales, by which giving God thanks for his good guifts, he was also requested to give them the vertue of nourishing the body, and to sanctifie the use of them to the soule. See Deut. 8.10. 1 Sam. 9.13.

V. 22. Constrained,] for they parted from him very unwillingly, especially to go upon the water so late without him, in whom was all their confidence.

V. 24. Of the sea,] of Genazereth.

V. 25. watch,] the night being divided into foure equall parts wherein they kept a watch upon the City walls. See Mark 13.15.

V. 31. Doubt,] See Iames 1.6.

V. 36. That they might,] through great faith and humility; or by some superstitious weaknesse grounded upon the miracle set downe, Mat. 9.20. and tolerated by the Lord.

Chap. XV.

Ver. 1. Of Ierusalem,] or that were come from Ierusalem.

V. 2. The tradition,] this word, with the addition, your, or of men, or of the elders, or the like, signifieth a doctrine, order, or observance about Gods service instituted by men, and kept from father to sonne, not out of Gods expresse word: whereof some were laudable, concerning the order and decency of the Iewish Church; othersome were superstitious; and othersome wicked and damnable. Of the Elders,] as who should say of the Prelates of the Iewish Church. Or whether he meanes the Elders who made those lawes, Marke 7.3. Or the moderne ones which caused them to be observed. They wash not,] according to the Iewes scrupulous fashions. Whereof see Marke 7.3.

V. 3. Why doe you,] the Lord is content to redargue the Pharisees hypocrisie by a just recrimination without giving them any answer to their question; which he doth nevertheless to his Apostles, verse 17.

V. 5. But ye say,] namely, by a false interpretation in a matter of vowes. It is a,] see of these oaths, Mat. 23.18. By whatsoever,] it appeirs by the Iewes writings, that this must be understood of these words pronounced in manner of an oath by an irreverent sonne, and angry with his father or mother, the meaning whereof is, I sweare that I will never doe thee no good, nor yeeld thee any relieefe, seeing it is not lawfull for me to dispose of consecrated things which are offered to God, to which use I doe by an in expresse vow from henceforth, employ all those things which you might expect from me. And this rash and wicked oath and vow was allowed of by those Doctors, by reason of the respect they did beare to offerings, more then to the law of honouring father and mother which comprehends all the duties of children and against the forbidding of doing them any wrong, whereof this execration was a kinde; and ought to have been disannulled and punished, rather then to have been approved of, and held to be firme and irrecoverable.

V. 6. And honour not,] as Saint Marke expounds it Chapter 7.12. By honouring is meant to serve, and releeve with all manner of respect. Of none effect,] ye are the cause that the Commandement is broken by your Doctrine, which teacheth men to have more respect to their vicious oathes, then to Gods expresse law: and all by reason of the superstitious esteeme in which you hold ceremonies, above true and reall piety, and the duties thereof.

V. 11. Not that,] your corporall uncleannesse, for which your Pharisees have appointed so many washings before meales, for feare least the food should be made uncleane, and defile the man which maketh use of it cannot staine the soule. 1 Corinth. 6. 13. Colos. 2. 22. Titus 1. 15. but so may your vices and sinnes which proceede from the heart by words and deeds: now hee especially mentioneth the words, to make good the opposition, betweene that which commeth in, and that which goeth out of the mouth.

V. 12. We are offended,] that is to say, we are distasted, and alienated from thee.

V. 13. Every plant,] every man that is none of my fathers elect, and hath not received from him the lively root of a true and lively faith, doth wither away soone or late, and is cut off from having any communion at all with me. Mat. 13.21. 1 Iohn 2.19. Iude 12.

V. 15. This parable,] hee speakes thus by a mistake, and Christ reproves him for it. And not perswading himselfe that Christ should speake properly as disannulling the difference of cleane and uncleane meats; which was so strictly commanded by Moses Law. And holding peradventure some harsh opinion touching that which Christ had said of proceeding out of the mouth.

V. 22. Of Canaan.] S. Marke calleth her a Grecian of Syrophenicia, because that Syrophenicia which was in the confines betweene Palestine and Syria, was for the most part inhabited by the reliques of the ancient Canaanites who in those dayes used the Greeke tongue and rites, which were brought into that Countrey by Alexander and his successors, Kings of Syria.

V. 23. Answered her not,] to try and sharpen her faith the more. Send her away,] granting her request.

V. 24. I am not sent,] my fathers will is that whileſt I am in this world, I should direct my ministery, and distribute my favours only upon the Israelites. Rom. 15.8.

V. 26. To dogges,] To prophane and uncleane persons, such as the Pagans were in their false religion and customes in respect of the people of God, which were adopted and sanctified by him.

V. 27. Truth Lord,] a confession of her unworthinesse: not to be quite put off without any hope as the wicked are, when they be convinced, but to come on with a more fervent invocation, joyned with a deepe humility.

V. 29. Vnto the sea,] namely unto the lake of Genazereth.

V. 32. Three dayes,] in which time it is likely they had spent all their provision which they had brought with them.

V. 36. Gave thanks,] by this word is meant the same as by the word blessing, Matth. 14.19. namely the act of piety which was used before meales, as an acknowledgement and praise to God for his benefits.

Chap. XVI.

Ver. 1. Tempting,] not with an upright intention to be instructed and conformed but with a temerary essay to try Christs power, whose ordinary miracles they did vilifie and cavill at, and for to have a pretence for their incredulity if hee denied their request as hee had formerly done. Matthew 12. 39. as if it had beene for want of power.

V. 3. Ye can,] though the conjecture of the future temper of the aire be of it selfe very uncertaine, yet men by long custome have observed certaine naturall signes, which doe seldome faile. Why doe not you then use the same industry to gather the signes of the Messias his comming, which signes are given by the Prophets by the succession and termination of times, and in Saint Iohn Baptists preaching by the properties and circumstances of my person, and of my workes and doctrines? if so bee you doe sincerely desire to bee cleered of it? But all that you doe is nothing but meere hypocrisie.

V. 5. They had,] They found they had forgotten.

Verse 7. They reasoned,] as wondering at it. Or they argued, as laying the blame upon one another by a double errour. First, because they thought Christ had forbidden them to make use of the same bread as the Pharisees did. Secondly, because that they mistrusted they should want food, because they had not then provided any.

V. 13. Philippi,] this is set downe to make a distinction between two Cities of one name; whereof one hath bin built by Herod the Great, and the other by Philip the Tetrarch his son, neere unto Lebanon.

V. 14. Iohn,] risen againe from the dead.

V. 17. For flesh,] that is to say, no humane light, understanding, or vertue, which is in thee or any man else. Thus often times is called all that is in man, and that proceedeth from him, through his own pure naturall beginnings, which without the work of regeneration and of Gods Spirit, are in regard of spirituall things like unto a body without light, understanding, and motion.

V. 18. I say also,] in exchange of that thou hast confessed me I tell thee, that as I have given thee this firname of Peter, Iohn 1.42. for a signe of the stedfastnesse of faith which I will grant thee, Luke 22.32. and of the office of Apostle, accompanied with the infallible light and guide of the holy Ghost, I will cause the doctrine of this selfesame faith to be the foundation of my Church: authenticall truth, worthy to be beleeved without any further proofe, as immediately inspired by God, and the rule of every ones doctrine. Now as Peter had spoken in the name of all the Apostles for a signe and proofe of their unity of faith. So Christs answer belongeth to them all, in regard of their common doctrine and equall Apostleship. See Rom. 15. 20. 1 Cor. 3 10. Ephes. 2. 20. Rev. 21. 14. The gates,] that is to say, according to the phrase of Scripture, the Devils Citty, opposite to the City of God spoken of before, and to the gates thereof, spoken of hereafter, and thereby is meant his kingdome, his endeavours, his deceipts, his plots, and the devices of his whole faction.

V. 19. I will give unto thee,] I will make thee the steward of my Gospell and of the spirituall goods of my house; an office signified by carrying the keyes, Isay 22.22. Rev. 3.7. So is the doctrine of faith called the key of the kingdome of heaven, Luke 11.52. and the Ministers of the Gospell the Stewards. Luke 12.42. 1 Cor. 4.1. Tit. 1.7. 1 Pet. 4.10. Binde,] a similitude taken from masters of great houses, who had authority over their slaves, to punish them with imprisonment, stockes, or any other way to shew the authority of the ministery of the word, Mat. 18. 18. Iohn 20.23. over the members of the Church, for to exercise a reasonable discipline over them, to tye and captivate their consciences, by censures and denunciations of Gods judgements, and exclude them from the externall communion of the Church by excommunication for their errours: or to restore them, and set them free upon their conversion and repentance, and all this ministerially and declaratively, by power of, and according to the rule of their commission, not absolutely and out of a full liberty and power. Others understand the word binding for to declare a thing to be unlawfull; and by the word loosing, to suffer a thing that is lawfull, the conscience being bound by the forbidding, and loosened by the permission.

V. 20. Charged he,] it should seeme he did it because hee would remaine unknowne for that little space of time, untill his death: and to make as it were a pause in manifesting himselfe to the world, to give way to the execution of Gods councell concerning his rejection, and suffering by the Iewes.

V. 22. To rebuke him] driven thereunto by his love to Christ, more carnall than spirituall: and thorow his naturall fervencie, which savoured of rashnesse and presumption: and the false hope he conceaved of Christs worldly kingdom; and being fraught full of the Crosse.

V. 23. Satan] a proverbiall kind of speech used when one would reject an evill and pernicious counsellour, who either wittingly or ignorantly makes himselfe and instrument of the Devill. See 2 Sam. 19.22. An offence] a disturber and hinderance as he was in thee lieth of my vocation. Thou savourest not,] thy judgement and affections are yet but carnall; both groveling as yet upon the earth, and not enlightned by the Spirit of God in divine, and heavenly things.

V. 24. Deny] that is to say let him lay aside all manner of presuming upon his owne understanding and forsake all his owne desires and affections, and having no regard at all of himselfe, subject himselfe wholly to Gods will, and prepare and dispose himself to all manner of sufferings for my sake. And so he reproveth Peter for his two vices, namely his presumption, and feare of afflictions.

V. 26. For what] this is a reason added to the exhortation of ver. 24.

V. 27. Shall come] that is to say, hee shall appeare in his essentiall glory of everlasting Sonne of God, which he hath from his Father by eternall generation; and in the Majesty of King of the Church and Iudge of the world bestowed upon him by his Father as he is Mediatour: and in the exaltation of his humane nature into celestiall glory.

V. 28. Comming] that is to say go up into heaven, and by his glorious going up take possession of his Kingdome, and from thence manifest it, and exercise it here in the world by his word and spirit.

Chap. XVII.

Ver. 2. Transfigured] not in his naturall shape, forme and stature of his body, but in regard of a miraculous splendor with which he was covered as it were for a proofe of his glory.

V. 3. Moses] to signifie the consent and concordancie which was betweene Christ, and the Law and the the Prophets. Now they were knowne to the Apostles, either by mentall revelation, or by their discourses.

V. 4. It is good] words of a man in rapture not knowing what he said, Luke 9. 33. dazeled with the Majestie of this glory, transported with the present joy, contrary to the terror of the death and passion of the Lord whereof Moses and Elias were talking with him, Luke 9. 31.

V. 5. Overshadowed them] Namely those representations of Moses and Elias, which it is very likely was but in vision and vanished away, this cloud covering them: And Iesus remained alone appearing in his true body and reall substance.

V. 9. Tell the vision] See the cause thereof, upon Matth. 16. 20.

V. 10. Why then] Seeing that Elias who appeared even now, hath againe withdrawne himselfe, how can this agree with the common opinion of the Iewish Doctors grounded upon the Prophesie of Mal. 4. 5. (though evill understood) that he must come into the world before the comming of the Messias: shall he come another time, and in another manner. Or seeing thou art already come, and hast revealed thy selfe in thy glory, how doe they say that Elias ought to come before thee.

V. 11. And restore] that is to say hee shall serve to convert Gods people from their evill wayes and corruptions both in doctrine and manner of living, and shall prepare them to receave Iesus Christ, and so shall establish the state of the Church. See Luke 1. 16, 17.

Vers. 15. Lunaticke] that is to say by the meere operation of the Devill or by a naturall disease accompanied with or aggravated by the possession of the Devill. v. 18 See Mat. 9. 32. and 12. 22.

V. 17. O faithlesse] it appeares by Marke 9. 14. that he doth here by reproove the Iewes who contended with the Disciples, and contradicted their doctrine, as if they could not have verified it by this miracle. It might also bee a generall reproofe to the father of the Child and to the Iewes, for their incredulity, and to the Disciples also, because that for want of Faith in Christs speciall promise, Matth. 10. 1. they had made themselves incapable of doing this miracle.

V. 20. If yee have faith] seeing that the command of working miracles, and the promise of Gods assistance to the working of them, was not generall to all beleevers but particular to the Apostles, and other persons of those primitive ages of the Christian Church, to whom God revealed this his will. Therefore by this word Faith, must not bee understood the common faith of all beleevers to the generall promises of Gods grace, but the particular faith in those promises. 1 Cor. 12. 9. and this faith was a condition which God required in that man whom he would assist with his power in the working of that miracle. Ye shall say] if God hath made you any such promise; Or if by secret inspiration it bee revealed unto you that it is convenient and necessary for the confirmation of the Gospell.

V. 21. This kind] It seemes that from hence and, Matth. 12. 45. it may bee gathered, that there are some Devills more malignant, cruell and obstinate then others. And others beleeve that the difference consists onely in the more or lesse power that God doth grant them. By prayer] not by a transistory act of faith; but by a long and persevering exercise of it, to obtaine at Gods hands the victory over so powerfull and rebellious an enemy of faith, desiring Gods power by prayer: and prayer being enflamed and purged by fasting.

V. 24. They that] these it should seeme were the Collectors of the halfe Sheckells, that every Iew above twenty yeares of age did pay yearely after hee was once set downe in the roll of his Nation, Exod. 30. 13. who under the Roman Empire, and in Capernaum a Citie of Galilee, where there was a mixture of Pagans, and many Iewes which were not very religious and libertines, gathered this money onely of those who voluntarily paid it without any enforcement, or authority. For the Romans under AUGUSTUS had assigned this money for the Capitoll: though the most pious kinde of Iewes paid it also voluntarily to the Temple. See Mat. 22. 17. Doth not] that is to say is not your master one of those good and willing Iewes, that of their owne accord pay this dutie to the Temple?

V. 26. The Children] that is to say according to this common reason, I the Sonne of God, and Lord of the Temple should be free. But seeing I am not yet knowen to be such, I will pay it, because that this people shall not take me to be a contemner of Gods order and service.

V. 27. For mee and thee] peradventure because the other Disciples were absent, or because these Collectors had spoken to Peter lonely.

Chap. XVIII.

Vers. 1. In the Kingdome] Namely in the kingdome of the Messias which is called of heaven, that is to say spirituall and divine, by reason of the Lawes and state thereof, and by reason of the quality required in his subjects: and of the last accomplishment of it in heaven. Now the Disciples, thorow ignorance imagined there should bee in it degrees of worldly greatnesse; and from thence proceeded their question.

V. 3. As little] in humility, simplicitie, feare, innocencie docility, &c. See Mat. 11. 25.

V. 4 One such] namely a true Christian that shall have laid aside all worldly pride, whereby hee is become abject in the sight of the world.

V. 6. Offended] despising or wronging him for his simplicity and humilitie, and shall thereby have disturbed him in the course of his heavenly vocation and holy disposition, and caused him to take evill councell, and forsake it: Or to conceave any sorrow therefore, and grow faint therein. A milstone] the Italian addeth, an asse milstone] that is to say a great one, such as Horses and Asses doe turne, opposite to your lesser ones which were in handmills.

V. 7. Woe] infinite evills shall come upon the world because of offences, as well upon the offenders, as those who are offended. It must needs be,] they are inevitable by reason of the malice, weakenesse, inconstancy and other vices of men: and by reason of Gods providence which suffereth them either for judgment or for tryall: and yet mans error shall not thereby bee excusable.

V. 8. Cut them off] See upon Mat. 5. 29.

V. 10. Little ones] that is to say vile, and abject in the sight of the world, for their condition and profession. Their Angels] men ought not to contemne poore beleevers, seeing God hath so farre honoured them, as to give them his own Angels to be guardians and ministers unto them, Heb. 1. 14. who are as it were his household and ordinary servants, which is signified by seeing the face, 1 King. 10. 8.

V. 11. For the] another reason, why those poore beleevers ought to be honoured; namely because God hath made them partakers of his glorious salvation, Iam. 2 5.

V. 12. How thinke ye] he sheweth another cause of the contempt, especially of the Pharisaicall contempt, because that the beleevers are poore converted sinners. Now saith he, that ought not to make them to be lesse esteemed, seeing that Christ came expressely for such, and that Gods glory, and the joy of Angels is the greater therefore Doth he not leave] others have it doth he not leave the ninetie and nine in the mountaines, &c. and goeth to seek that which is gone astray?

V. 15. Shall trespasse] by personall offence, or by offence given secretly betwixt him and thee, Luk. 17. 3. Now Christ having spoken against them that give offence, hee now turneth to them that take offence, teaching them how they should proceed therein. Heare thee] namely thy just complaints, to confesse his fault and amend it. Or to give glory to God, and promise repentance and conversion. Gained] thou hast brought him againe to his duty, and hast bent him to be a good brother to thee. See Sam. 5. 20.

V. 16. Take with thee] that the reproofe may bee of greater weight, these men seconding it, and also because that if hee bee stubborne, the relation which thou shalt make thereof to the Church, may bee the better verified.

V. 17. Vnto the Church] namely to the assembly of those who have the government of the Church in their hands, and are to provide for the order, peace and discipline of it, 1 Cor. 5. 3, 4. and 2 Cor. 2. 6. according to the Iewes custom, who had also their consistory, for the reforming of behaviour and manners. As an heathen] hold him as a prophane man, worthy for his rebellion and hardnesse to bee forbidden the communion of beleevers, as Publicans and heathens were amongst the Iewes, Mat. 5. 46. Luke 15. 2.

V. 18. Ye shall] namely you ministers and governours of the Church, proceeding in knowledge, uprightnesse, and wisdome according to the duty of your office: See Mat. 16. 19.

V. 19. If two] the meaning seemes to bee, that God being called upon in conjunction of spirit, without passion or partiality, though there Ecclesiasticall Iudges bee but few in number, and consequently of little authority and respect in the world, yet he would assist them by his Spirit, that they might doe such things as should be ratified in Heaven. Yet this may likewise be understood generally of the concord and charity necessarily required in all those that pray unto God concerning one and the selfe same thing. See Mat. 5. 23, 24. 1 Pet. 3. 7. Any thing] according to his will, as well in the thing it selfe, as touching the manner of asking it, 1 Iohn 3. 22. and 5. 14.

V. 20. In my Name] by my authority, and by my commission, and calling upon me in Faith. Am I] in grace and spirit.

V. 22. Seventy] that is to say without any limitation.

V. 23. The Kingdome] that is to say Gods spirituall government in his Church, re-established by the Messias.

Chap. XIX.

Ver. 2. Healed them] namely those that were sicke and impotent amongst them as Mat. 12. 15.

V. 3. Tempting him] to catch and accuse him, either for being contrary to Moses and the Law of God if he had absolutly reproved divorces. Or for favouring, and authorizing lasciviousnesse, wickednes and inconstancy amongst men, if hee had approved of them. For every] indifferently at the Husbands pleasure.

V. 4. Made them] the Italian, Made men] that is to say in the first marriage, which he appointed for an example and rule to all subsequent marriages he created but one man to one woman, and one woman to one man to condemne poligamy and appointed that they should be one and the selfe same flesh, to reprove divorces. See Mal. 2. 15.

V. 5. And said] that is to say he inspired Adam, and in aftertimes Moses to give this instruction and Law. Leave] See upon Gen. 2. 24.

V. 8. Suffered] the Law for the indissoluble bond of of matrimony, was the first, and everlasting law, and God altered nothing therein by Moses, only seeing your Nations rebellion in the liberty they tooke in divorcing themselves, he did set down a rule therefore for a time, in regard of some civill order. But I who am the supreame Law-giver will now in the dayes of grace and of the spirit bring all things unto their first forme.

V. 10. If the case] if matrimony have so strict a bond, it is better to abstaine from it, then to come into such a case, of necessitie to suffer so many things by a woman as may cause a man to repent that ever he was married to her. Words of persons which were as yet too carnall, and used to this liberty.

V. 11. Cannot receive] that is to say they have not the gift of continency by Gods special grace that they can be without the use and remedy of matrimony, 1 Cor. 7. 2. 7, 8, 17.

V. 12. Have made] who have a firme resolution grounded upon the feeling & firm perswasion of Gods gift, to abstaine from woman, for to keep an undefiled holinesse, and from the use of matrimony to employ himselfe freely in Gods service either in a publicke, or in a private calling, 1 Cor. 7. 32. That liable] let every one examine himselfe, what gift hee hath from God, and left him do accordingly.

V. 13. Put his hands] that he should blesse them, and recommend them to God by his prayer. Rebuked them] as importune, and respectlesse people, requiring of Christ too base and mean a thing in the Apostles judgments, who were in that deceaved.

V. 14. For of such] so farre are you deceaved in thinking that children by reason of their weakenesse and contemptible qualities, are unworthy to bee presented unto mee; that contrary wise no bodie is capable of my Kingdome, unlesse hee be first by the spirit of regeneration brought into a spirituall estate, to bee like a little Childe in the order of nature.

V. 17. Why callest] the sence wherein thou qualifiest me to be good, is not that in which I ought to bee acknowledged and honoured: humane and morall goodnesse cannot make mee a Law-giver to mens soules, as you desire me to do, and according to that degree wherein you place your Doctors: To attribute that title unto me in that sence as you should do you ought to acknowledge me to be true God. If thou wilt] not to remit him againe to his own workes, by which no man can be justified nor saved, Rom. 3. 20. Ephes. 2. 8, 9. 2 Tim. 1. 9. Tit. 3. 5. but to draw him to the service of God from those traditions: in which the Pharisees reposed most of their righteousnesse and Pietie: and to beate downe his presumption, whereby he thought the Law was easie for him to accomplish: And to bring his conscience to a severe examination, according to the spirituall sence of the Law, by which man comes to have knowledge of his sinne, Romans 3. 20. to learne thereby to seeke his salvation in Gods favour thorow Christ. Rom. 10. 4.

V. 20. All these] words of a lying arrogant hypocrite, and one that was ignorant of the true spirituall sence of the Law, which requireth of man not only the externall discipline of manners and actions: but puritie, and righteousnesse in all his thoughts, internall motions and affections of the heart.

V. 21. If thou] an answer fitted to his vaine boast. The meaning is, if what thou sayest of perfectly observing each commandement be true, shew it in thine obedience to the summary of the Law, which is to love God above all things, and thy neighbour as thy selfe. Performe the first in following of me who am the true God as he had signified, ver. 17. And the second in giving thy goods to the poore. And if thou wilt doe neither, thou shewest thy selfe to bee an Hypocrite in all the rest.

V. 24. For a rich man] for it is very hard for such a man not to put his trust, and settle his heart and affection upon his wealth.

V. 26. This is] without Gods speciall grace no man can be saved, and much lesse rich men, as being full of worldly cares, not feeling the necessity of Gods grace and assistance; enemies to the Crosse, proud, insolent and made drunke with their temporall happinesse and Idolaters to their goods, &c.

V. 27. We have] that is to say we have done that which this young man would not doe, an ordinary defect in the Apostles to have a respect to worldly rewards.

V. 28. In the regeneration] that is to say in the life to come when there shall bee new heavens and a new earth, 2 Pet. 3. 13. Rev. 21. 1. thereby correcting his Apostles for their coveting of worldly greatnesse. Judging] according to your measure, and under mee you shall be made partakers of the glory of my Kingdome: and raised up in glory above the common of my Church, signified by the Twelve Tribes, Daniell 12, 3. Luke 22. 28, 29. 1 Cor. 6. 2. Rev. 2. 26.

V. 29. An hundred fold] in spirituall goods, far more excellent then temporall ones, in true and full contentment of spirit, as it were in ful plenty and also in the charitable communion of beleevers in the Church.

V. 30. But many] do not trust to that you have been the first that followed mee and that you have begun well, you must persevere unto the end, otherwise you shall fall from your prerogatives, Gal. 3. 4. Rev. 3. 11.

CHAP. XX.

VER. 1. THe Kingdome] Gods calling, and the distributing of his grace in the spiritu-

all state of the Church is such that God oftentimes makes equall and preferres in giving rewards those that were called last, to the first called. Whether it bee out of his absolute free-will, or for some other reason which is unknowne to men. And also regardeth not so much the beginning as the ending and the accomplishment: whereby all worldly glory and all contradiction against God is beaten down, and all are tyed to persevere.

Ver. 2. A penny] which was worth a Drachme weighing the eighth part of an ounce.

V. 15. Evill] that is to say envious, Deut. 15. 9. Prov. 23. 6.

V. 16. For many] besides that first reason that every reward dependeth upon Gods free-will, there is this reason also, that is not the externall calling and profession of the Gospel which causeth one to be preferred before the other, but Gods internall election, ratified by true faith and Repentance, 1 Cor. 4. 7.

V. 21. May sit] let them have the first degrees of honour in thy temporall Kingdome which they apprehended and conceaved. See Mat. 18. 1.

V. 22. Are you able] for to arrive to the glory of my Kingdome, you must passe thorow many lets and troubles following mine example. Therefore before you desire the reward, you should examine your selves how you are disposed towards that combate. To drinke] an ordinary terme in Scripture to signifie afflictions and calamities distributed to each one as it were for their portions. Baptized] this kinde of figure is taken from the ancient manner of Christning plunging the whole body in water above the head: So Christ hath beene wholly plunged in anguish and torments, Psalme 69. 2. And it should seeme that Christ had a relation to the two Sacraments of the Christian Church, which are signes and tokens of grace on Gods side, and on mans side bindeth him to imitate Christ, 1 Cor. 12. 13. We are] an ignorant and presumptuous answer.

Verse. 23. Yee shall drinke] Not by your owne strength and power as you presume at this present, but by the help and speciall grace of my spirit. Is not mine] in the quality of mediator in which I do converse here in the world: I have no charge to give degrees of the glory to come, but only to gaine my Churches salvation.

V. 26. Whosoever] Christ speakes to his Apostles as to his Ministers, telling them that their chiefe dignitie and honour consisted not in commanding, as it is in worldly Lordships but in humbly and faithfully serving for the profit and salvation of men, though not to their wills and desires.

V. 28. To be ministred unto] As a King or Prince in this world during his abode there. For many] namely for all Gods Elect, Matth. 26. 28. Rom. 5. 15. 19.

V. 31. Rebuked them] disdaining their condition: or in regard of Christ to whom they imagined them to bee troublesome: or being offended at the glorious name which they gave him.

V. 34. Followed him] they became his followers and Disciples.

Chap. XXI.

Vers. 1. Bethphage] A Castle neere to Ierusalem. Of Olives] a little hill on the East side of Ierusalem planted with Olive Trees. See Zech. 14. 4.

V. 2. Straight way] at the first comming into the Castle without going or seeking farre.

V. 3. The Lord] namely I the Soveraigne Lord of all things, whereof I will imprint the knowledge in the master of the Asse. Now he foretelleth these things which were so farre off, to come, for to confirme his God-Head to his Disciples. And straight way] some referre these words to Christ himselfe, as much as to say that he would send them backe again presently.

V. 7. They set him] which was a signe of honour, and acknowledgement of a new King, 2 Kin. 9. 13.

V. 8. Strewed them] in signe of a publicke rejoycing and honour, as it is yet used in these dayes.

V. 9. Hosanna] an Hebrew word which signifieth save, I pray thee, and is taken out of Psal. 118. 25. Now because the Iewes in the Feast of the Tabernacles, bearing branches according to the Law, Lev. 23. 40. used this word for a joyfull acclamation and prayer to God for the peoples safety and prosperity: they did at the last call the branches themselves Hosanna. And as it was the custome to carry greene boughs, at feastings and publick rejoycings, and 2 Mac. 10. 7. So they likewise cried Hosanna also out of the said feasts of Tabernacles. And that which is added to the sonne of David, signifieth that they did all this for the honour of Christs withing him all manner of happinesse. Is he] this is also taken out of Psalme 118. 26. Now in these acclamations, Christ was by some acknowledged for to be the true Messias sent by God, and accompanied by his power. And by other some for a great Prophet onely. In the highest] the Italian addeth places] that is to say, may this happinesse light upon thee from Heaven, and from God, Eph. 1. 3. or enjoy it one day perfectly in Heaven.

V. 12. That sold] things necessary for offerings and sacrifices: as beasts incense, salt, flowers, oyle, wine, &c. for to have them there ready for Gods service. There were also money-changers that exchanged current Roman money, Matth. 22. 19. into Iewish Shekells, and halfe Shekels, appointed by God

God for amercements, Lev. 5.15. for the tribute of each head, Exod. 30.12. for the redeeming of vowes Lev. 27.3. Now all this was done in the first Court of the Gentiles: and at the first it seemeth it was but onely for commodiousnesse: but afterwards it grew to prophane merchandizing and avarice. See Zech. 14.21. Doves] for offerings, most commonly for poore people. See Levit. 5.7, 11. and 14.22. Luke 2.24.

V. 16. Perfected] the Italian. Established] against all the oppositions and contradictions of the wise and great ones of the world, thou hast appointed an assured praise for thy selfe, out of the mouth of those that believe in thee, who are like unto little children. Others perfected, that is to say the praise of these little ones is sufficient for thee; thou desirest no other praise. Or out of the mouth of little ones, thou hast made up a whole harmony and consort of praise.

Ver. 17 Bethany] A Castle neere to Ierusalem Eastward neere the Mount of Olives. See Iohn 11.18.

V. 19. When he saw] Christ knew well enough that there could be no fruit seeing it was not yet the season, Mar. 11.13. but all this was done to instruct men, to whom many things concerning this representation may be applyed rather then to the Fig-tree. As to have fruits of the Spirit ready at all times, not to be contented with being, and having received the gift of God, but to operate, and yeeld fruit. Not only to abstaine from doing evill, but also to endeavour to do all manner of good: to avoyd Gods last curse, by which all power of wel doing is taken away from man; and the false seemingnesse is discovered and vanished away, as Christ cursed the Fig-tree as well the leaves as the fruit. Said unto it] not thorow any extraordinary anger, but only to give his Disciples instruction.

V. 21. I say unto you] the Lord seeing his Disciples too much fixed upon the miracle of the Figge-trees withering, is likewise content to instruct them concerning the strength of faith in doing of miracles, without going on any further to the other instruction that ought to be drawn out of that action. If ye shall say] See upon Mat. 17.20.

V. 23. The Elders] namely the Magistrates, and Seniors.

V. 24. The Baptisme] that is to say his whole ministery in generall. Now the meaning of this propose question is. Doe you believe that Iohn was a true Prophet sent by God? If you doe believe it, why do you not believe the witnesse he bore concerning me? Iohn 1.15.27. and 5.33. if not: declare your selves openly as you desire I should do. But seeing that either through base feare, or being convinced in your owne consciences, you dare not to doe it, you are not worthy to receive any further instruction. From Heaven] that is to say from God, according to the Iewes manner of speaking. See Dan. 4.26. Luke 15.18. Of men] that is to say of meere humane invention, without any calling or power from God. See 2 Pet. 1.21.

V. 31. The Publicans] of which many after an evill life, and an open rebellion against God, have bin converted at Iohns preaching, whereas you that professe perfect obedience, are but hypocrites, and have withstood Iohns words, who called you to repentance, Luke 7.29, 30. Goe into] that is to say in the spirituall state of the Church restored by me, they have an advantage above you, by vertue of true humility, faith and repentance, in the participation of Gods grace; and in holy praise and esteeme with the Church.

V. 32. In the way] with a manner of living, and a doctrine, so holy and so irreprehensible, that you have had nothing to say against him, as you maliciously doe against me, accusing me for favouring men of an evill life. See Mat. 11.18, 19.

V. 33. Parable] the housholder is God, the vine the Church of Israel, the Husbandmen the Priests, and Governours of that Church, the servants the Prophets, the Sonne Iesus Christ. The meaning is, that God having given the Priests His Church to keepe, governe, and edifie by wholesome doctrine and lawfull administration to reape from thence the fruits of service, honour, and obedience, they had taken all to themselves, making themselves Lords of mens Consciences, and drawing every thing to their owne profit and glory, acknowledging God no longer, nor thinking upon giving him any account troubling and slaying his Prophets, and at last Christ himselfe, who came to recall them to their duety. Digged] in the rocke, or walled and plastered it well, according to the manner of the ancients. And hedged.] See Mat. 25.14.

V. 41. He will] Luke 20.16. their answer seemeth to be contrary to this. But it is likely that they first answered as St Matthew saith here, and that afterwards when they saw the parable aymed at them, they altered their opinion.

V. 43. The Kingdome] that is to say the title of being his people and Church over which he particularly reigneth by his word and spirit, shall bee taken away from you and transferred upon the Gentiles, who shall voluntarily obey him, as sincere and loyall subjects and children.

V. 44. Shall fall] as I shall be the sound foundation of my Church, so will I likewise be an occasion of ruine to all mine adversaries, 1 Pet. 2.7. whom I will destroy, if they assault mee, or undertake to withstand me. Now if the ver. 43. did immediately follow the verse 42. and the 42. after the 43. it seemes that the sequell of the discourse would stand in better order.

Chap. XXII.

Ver. 2. The Kingdome] the sence is God the Father, when he would establish his Sonnes Kingdome in the world, and make him head of his Church, joyned unto him by everlasting covenant, would first call the Iewes to the participation of the everlasting goods in Christ, as those for whom they seemed to bee prepared, by reason of their ancient prerogative, but because they shall refuse them, hee shall punish them with finall destruction and shall receave the Gentiles in their place.

V. 7. His Armies] namely the Romans, executioners of Gods vengeance. See Dan. 9. 26.

V. 10. Both bad] indifferently, worthy, and unworthie, as well by reason of their condition, base, or honourable: as in regard of their goodnes or badnes. To shew that in the assembly of those that are called, which is the externall Church, many hypocrites and wicked men, are gathered together, with the good and true beleevers. See Mat. 13. 38, 47.

V. 11. Had not one] the Italian was not clothed] a frequent figure for the gift of regeneration, by Christ his spirit, without which no man can bee Christs, Rom. 8. 9. 2 Cor. 5. 3. Rev. 10. 8.

V. 14. For many] because that many who are called, doe not answer to Gods calling: and that amongst those also which doe answer, some are rejected appeareth that the eternall election is not of all, but of a few.

V. 16. Herodians] Ancient writers have written that those were a certaine Sect, which referred the Prophecies of the re-establishment of the Kingdom of Israel, that were spoken of the Messias to Herod the great: and as his followers, and partakers, approved of and seconded his tyrannie and wickednesse, by which hee mixed pagan superstitions and Idolatries with Iudaisme: and favoured the domination of the Romans, to the oppression of the people; and were the Sadducees companions in prophanenesse as it appeares by the conferring of Matth. 16. 6. with Marke 8. 15. And this Sect lasted even after Herods death, following and teaching his maximes, celebrating his birth day, and doing many things in honour of his memory. The way] namely his Law and doctrine, according to which every one ought to proceed, and bee guided. The person] the Italian. The qualitie of the persons] whither they be meane or great ones and Princes, because that their insidious question had a relation to the commanding Romans.

V. 17. Is it lawfull] they have a relation to the halfe Sheckell which was imposed upon every Iew yearely, Exodus 30. 13. which the Romans had transferred upon their Capitoll. The payment which of was very grievous to this Nation: as well because it was a signe of slavery, ill beseeming the people of God Iohn 8. 33. as also because they held this imposition to bee a prophane sacriledge. The deceipt which lay hidden under this question was this; that if Christ had answered that it was not lawfull to pay it, they would have accused him and delivered him into the hands of the Romin Governour, for a seditious man, Luke 20. 20. And on the other side if hee had said that it was lawfull they would have disgraced him among the people, as one that consented to the Romans tyrannie, and impiety.

Ver. 19. Shew me] The meaning is. Seeing that God hath subjected you to the Romans, as it appeareth by the stamp of your currant coyne, which is a signe of supreame power, beare it patiently: that doth not any way hinder the service which you owe to God as you are his people. See 1 Corinthians 7. 21. and it is an easie matter to satisfie both God and Cæsar in this payment which consists in a little summe of money. Now it is thought that Christ had a Relation to that the Romans receaved their Tributes in Roman Coyne, and as this pennie was, and not in Iewish Coyne as the Sheckell was.

Verse 21. The things that are] this may have relation as well to the halfe Sheckell which they might pay to God, though they paid as much to the Romans, as also to the true service of the heart, and true Religion, which God requires, Iohn 4. 24.

Verse 29. Yee doe erre] as well in denying of the Resurrection, as also in that you so absurdly discourse of the state of those that rise: as if that by their resurrection they should returne to a civil, and animall life. The Scriptures] whose cleere passages concerning resurrection, the Sadducees wilfully to deliverances from extreame miseries and calamities. See 1 Corin. 15. 34. The power] which is the Soveraigne cause, working in the Resurrection, Phil. 3. 21.

Verse 30. As the Angels] not as concerning their incorporeall substance, but concerning the qualities of their bodies, and the condition of their celestiall life, being therein exempted from all imperfections of the animall life. See 1 Corin. 15. 42. 43.

V. 32. God is not] this reason hath two grounds, the first, the Sadducees held, that the Soule after death was also turned into some corporeal beginnings: and lost all manner of subsistency, Act. 23. the other that God had made his covenants, not only with the soules of the Patriarchs, but with their whole persons: and that their very bodies did bear the sacred signes thereof, participating also in the hope mise of regeneration: whence followed that they should also bee glorified, by meanes of the resurrection: Seeing that when God doth call himselfe the God of any one, that importeth by the true meaning of the covenant, the eternall communication of his grace, life, and glory.

Verse 35. A Lawyer] the Italian. Doctor of the Law] Marke 12.28. he is called a Scribe which was the common name for all the expounders of the Law: but by Luke 11.45. it appeares that there is some difference betweene the name of Scribe strictly taken, and Doctor. The Scribe taught all the people in the Synagogues as a publicke Preacher: and a Doctor in the Schooles as a Reader. Tempting him] to see if hee would agree with the Pharisees doctrine, who determined in this kinde concerning the degrees of Commandements, and of sinnes; to assigne proportionable degrees of satisfaction. Or to take an occasion of extolling themselves as fulfilling that which was most eminent, and singular in the Law.

Verse 39. Is like] that is to say equall in authoritie, and of as great necessitie to be obeyed, of an inseparable connexion with the other, of the same morall, not ceremoniall kinde. See Iames 2.10. As thy selfe] doing him all manner of good as thou wouldest have done to thy selfe, Matth 7.12. Luke 6.31.

Ver. 42. Whose sonne] from whom ought he to descend according to the Scriptures.

V. 43. In spirit] that is to say by divine and prophetick revelation.

Verse. 45. If David then] this name of Lord which David attributes unto him sheweth that the Messias must be somewhat else besides the Sonne of David onely. That is to say the everlasting Son of God also.

Chap. XXIII.

Ver. 2. Sit] they hold the degree of Doctors and ordinary expositors of Moses his Law: though that were but only by humane introduction, for want of Priests and Levites to whom God had given that office.

Ver. 3. Whatsoever they] according to the Law which they instruct you in, Deut. 17.11. for otherwise Christ had warned them to beware of their false doctrines, Matthew 16.6.12. See 1 Thess. 5.21. 1 Ioh. 4.1.

Verse 4. They binde] They tye and binde mens Consciences, to a rigorous and exact observation of the Law, for which they care but little themselves.

Verse 5. Phylacteries] So the Greekes called certaine writings which they did weare about them against witchcrafts and Sorceries: to the resemblance of which, though to a diverse use, were made certaine borders of skinnes or some other such kinde of stuffe, whereupon the Iewes writ certaine passages of the Law and did weare them upon their Gownes, Deut. 6.8. for a remembrance. Now for to make a shew of greater holinesse, the Pharisees did weare these borders, broader then the ordinary sort of people. The borders] See the Law concerning this, Num. 15.38. Deut. 22.12.

V. 7. Rabbi] that is to say Master.

V. 8. Be not yee] avoid this vaine glory of titles, and doe not attribute unto your selves the authority of absolute masters of my Church. But referre the glory to me onely, and teach nothing but that which you have learned of mee. See 2 Cor. 1.24. 1 Pet. 5.3.

V. 9. Call no man] as the precedent commandement was directed to the Pastors: So this teacheth the beleevers not to yeeld that absolute reverence, nor power over their Consciences to any living man which belongeth to God onely, as ignorant people did use to do to the Pharisees. For laying these abuses aside, these titles of honour may bee used in a good sence and meaning. See 1 Cor. 4.15. 1 Thes. 2.11.

V. 12. Shall humble] by a true and sincere humility.

V. 13. Yee shut up] ye hinder, as much as in you lyeth, by your false doctrine, authority and example, men from participating of that salvation and redemption which I bring to the world, and the spirituall re-establishment of my Church, in the grace, conduct, and glory of God. That are] that seemed to have some desire thereunto, and were ready to enter into it.

V. 14. Long] which you make them dearely pay for, either directly, or indirectly, by begging, and other trickes of Covetousnesse. Therefore] because you cover your Covetousnesse with the vaile of pietie.

V. 15. Yee compasse] you bestow a great deale of studdy and labour. Proselyte] a Greeke name signifying a man that commeth home from without. And so were called the Gentiles that embraced the Iewish Religion, and there were of diverse sorts and degrees, some turning to their religion, and living and inhabiting amongst them, and being circumcised. Others turned to their religion, and dwelt amongst them, but were not circumcised. Others turned to their religion, but neither dwelt with them nor were circumcised. Yee make him] teaching him to set his righteousnesse, and ground his salvation upon his works, and not upon me who am the only end of the law. And turning him from the true spirituall sence of the law by your false doctrines and from Gods pure service by your traditions: and infecting him with your hypocrisie and other vices, you cause his conversion to Iudaisme, to serve him for nothing but for his greater condemnation. Twofold more] far more superstitious and fervent in your Sect, as ordinarily the Disciples of false Doctors are worser than they themselves.

Verse 16. By the Temple] See upon Matthew 5. 33. 34.

Verse 17. That sanctifieth] which being holy causeth the Gold which is offered unto it to bee holy also.

Verse 18. By the gift] See upon Matthew 15. 5.

V. 20. who so] all your distinctions are frivolous and false, for the Altar and the gift have an inseparable relation one to the other: the Altar being appointed only for gifts, and they being not holy without the Altar.

V. 21. Shall sweare by] the Temple hath no divinitie in it, whereby one ought to sweare by it. Wherefore either such oathes are vitious and unlawfull, or if sweating by the Temple, man hath a relation to God, who is present in it, they can not bee held for vaine.

V. 23. Pay tithe] pay tithe of the smallest herbs, which is not commanded by God, thorow an affectation of greater devotion.

V. 24. Strains] a proverbiall kinde of speech, as much as to say, you are very scrupulous in small and indifferent things, and very licentious in principall and necessary ones.

V. 25. Extortion] he points out the two chiefe vices belonging to worldly goods, namely the getting and using of them.

V. 26. Cleanse] cause the use of the goods to be cleane from sinne, and sanctified by prayer, thanksgiving, and faith, 1 Tim. 4. 5. Tit. 1. 15. and then thou shalt not need to feare the uncleanesse of the vessell should defile thy conscience.

V. 32. Fill yee up] the meaning is you confessing your selves to bee the sonnes of those, which slew the servants of God and having hitherto imitated them, there remains nothing but that you should accumulate your rage upon me, and upon my servants, to cause the fulnesse of Gods judgments to fall upon you: seeing that according to his justice the wicked children of wicked parents doe oftentimes beare the punishment of both, Genesis 15. ver. 16. Psalme 69. 28.

V. 34. Wherefore behold] because I know that you are wicked and cruell as your fathers were, I doe foretell you that you will persecute my servants to the uttermost. Whereupon shall follow your utter ruine. prophets] by these names are meant all the ministers of the Gospell, some called and inspired immediately, as Apostles, Evangelists, and Prophets: other some meditely as Pastors, meant by wise men; and Teachers, meant by the name of Scribes. See Ephes. 4. 11.

V. 35. All the] namely the punishment for all my servants innocent bloud, Zacharias] it is the same man as is called the sonne of Iehoiada, 2 Chr. 24. 20, 21. and we must imagine that the father had two names according to the customs of the Iewes. Now Christ makes mention of him, not because he was the last of all the Prophets that the Iewes slew, but because he is the last of them that were mentioned in the ancient Scripture.

V. 36. All these things] the accumulated punishments for all the murthers, which had been formerly committed.

Verse 37. How often] seeing that Gods will cannot bee an imperfect will of desire onely, which is a signe of infirmity, Psalme 115. 3. and that his decree is immutable and will suffer no opposition, Isa. 46. 10. Rom. 9. 19. wee must of necessitie understand christo be meant of the dispensation of outward meanes by the word, exhortations, commandements, &c. which are the rules, and the object of mens obedience, and the argument of the condemnation of their rebellion: though oftentimes Gods secret will was not to accomplish the worke, but that all was done either to trie their wickednes, or for some other ends. See Deut. 13.

V. 38. Your house,] God will quickly forsake your City and your Temple, withdrawing his protection and presence from thence, whereby all things will runne into utter ruine.

V. 39. I say unto you,] my corporall presence shall shortly leave you, and soone after that I will take away from you the spirituall presence of my grace and vertue, untill the time come of the conversion of your whole nation. Rom. 11. 25. 2 Cor. 3. 16. which time you shall acknowledge me to be the true Messias according to the meaning of the word, Psa. 118. 26. for the applying of which title unto me, you have reproved the people, Mat. 21. 9. 16. and then in the end of the world you shall see me come in glory to your everlasting happinesse.

Chap. XXIV.

Vers. 1. To shew him,] it seemes that the occasion of this discourse came from that which the Lord had spoken, Mat. 23. 38. concerning the desolation of the Temple whose greatnesse and soundnesse of building seemed to make the prediction to be very unlikely.

V. 3. Of thy comming,] whereof he had spoken in the end of the precedent chapter. Now it should seeme that the Apostles understood that of the manifestation of Iesus Christs temporall kingdom, which they imagined should come, and that they beleeved that the desolation of the Temple and the nation should not happen untill the end of the world.

V. 5. In my name,] usurping my title and dignities.

ples. Now Christ fore-armeth his Disciples and the whole Church against the deceipts of false Christs and Antichrist telling them of their comming, and strengtheneth and instructeth them concerning his true and last comming in glory.

V. 10. Be offended,] see Mat. 11 6.

V. 14. Of the kingdome,] see Mat. 4 23. and 9. 35. The meaning is, you ask me concerning the end of the world and of the Temple together, as if the one could not happen without the other. I tell you that the ruine of the temple shal happen first; & after that the Gospell shall be preached all the world over, and by meanes of it will I enter in o the possession of my spirituall kingdome, gathering together mine elect, and fighting against mine enemies, and after that the end of the world shall come. In all,] generally, to all nations without any difference, even to the Iewes, see Rom. 10. 18. Colos. 1. 6. For a witnesse,] for instruction and perswasion of the elect; and for the conviction and condemnation of the wicked. And then,] namely after that my Gospell hath gone over all the world, and that I have hereby gathered my Church together.

V. 15. When ye,] he gives an answer to the Apostles question concerning the desolation of the Temple. Now by this abomination, it should seeme is meant the military Roman Ensignes or Eagles, they being a prophane nation; and held their said Eagles for gods, and worshipped them, and whersoever they came, they brought desolation along with them, especially to the Iewes, see upon Dan. 9 27. Stand,] the Italian sta,] by the Romans in the Temple.

V. 16. Then let them,] after the Citie is taken, and the Temple profaned, then shall the desolation of the whole nation come, therefore let him that can, save himselfe.

V. 17. To take,] to stand to save his goods or householdstuffe, but let him flye.

V. 20. On the Sabbath day,] because that upon that day they were limited to goe but a very small journey, Acts 1. 12. wherefore a man might not flye farre. And also on that day, being strictly kept holy, it would be hard to provide for many things necessary for the flight. Now Christ in the Apostles persons, speaks to all those who in those dayes should dwell in Iudea, where the Iewish ceremonies should still be observed.

V. 22. Those dayes,] if the Iewes persecution under the Romans were not moderated by Gods providence, and limited within the compasse of a very short time, the whole nation would perish. For the elects sake,] the elect amongst the Iewes whom God would also gather together in the appointed time, see Rom 11. 5.

V. 24. If it were,] see 2 Thess 2. 13. Rev 9 4.

V. 27. As the lightning,] refuse ye all those that shall give you these false impressions of the Messias his comming, for I will come no more to live upon the earth: and as for my comming to judgement it shal be with so much glory and universall splendor, that you shall not need to looke for it in secret places, by the direction of other men.

V. 28. For wheresoever,] this is not a reason for things spoken in the precedent verse, but a confirmation of the exhortation which he had made to them, to avoid the deceipt of them who shall againe looke for Christ upon earth. Whereas true beleevers by the motion of the Spirit ought to looke for him in heaven whither he is gone to feed his Church from thence by the perpetuall application of his death and passion. As Eagles and such like birds do by a naturall instinct or faculty flye a great way to finde out carkases.

V. 29. Immediately,] with God, with whom a thousand yeeres are but as one day, Psal 90. 4. 2 Pet. 3. 8, 9. Or under the foresaid afflictions of the Iewes, we must also comprehend all the afflictions of the Church untill Christs last comming. The Sunne,] the Prophets do often times thus by a figure describe the horror of Gods judgements, Isay 13. 10, Ezek. 32. 7. Ioel 2. 31. and 3. 15. but here it seemes all ought to be understood in its proper signification, see Rev. 6. 12. The powers,] the whole frame of heaven, most strong and immutable in its being and motion, the mighty bodies thereof, most mighty in their substance and lastingnesse, and in the swiftnesse of their motion, and power of their operation.

V. 30. The signe,] there is no particular signe specified here. One may take it to be some glory, or divine light, which shall be about him, or the sound of the trumpet, and voice of the Angell, 1 Cor. 15. 52. 1 Thess. 4 16. Or the appearance of him in his owne likenesse. The Tribes,] the Italian, the nations,] namely which are themselves to, and rebellious against Christ. Mourne,] for horrour of the present judgement, and for despaire. See Revel. 1. 7. and 6. 15, 16.

V. 31. From one end,] a vulgar terme: for to the eye the earth seemes to be bounded with the heavens.

V. 33. That it,] the Italian, that he,] namely Christ comming to judgement.

V. 34. This generation,] the Italian, this age,] that is to say, you shall soone see the effects of these my predictions. And if these evils doe last long, persevere in faith, and be watchfull, to expect my comming every houre, and to prepare your selves for it: for my words shall be fulfilled. I give you no particular signe of the moment of it, for that is a secret which God will not have revealed to men.

V. 36. My father,] Mark 13. 32. The sonne excludes himselfe from this knowledge; not that he wanteth any divine perfections, either of knowledge or any other, Iohn 5 20. but because his office of Doctor of the Church, would not beare him out in the declaring of it.

V. 40. Then shall,] there shall be this dissimilitude betweene these dayes and Noahs dayes, that the distinction of those who shall be saved, and of those who shall perish, shall not be by companies or families, as Noah and Lot saved all their families: but every one shall be saved by his own faith and pure conscience, and shall perish by the vices which are contrary thereunto. See Hab. 2. 4. Matth. 25. 9. Be taken,] gathered up by the Angels into the kingdome of heaven.

V. 41. Be grinding,] according to the custome of those dayes, which was to imploy their bondmen and bondwomen in grinding at handmils, Exod. 11. 5. Isay 47. 2. Now it seems that the Lord would shew that Gods election doth extend it selfe to all sorts of persons, and separates the most joyned.

V. 42. Watch,] be in a perpetuall actuall exercise of faith, and be fittingly prepared to receive your Saviour.

V. 43. What watch,] See upon Mat. 14. 25.

V. 45. Hath made,] these words are directed to the pastors of the Church and teachers of Gods word and ministery of his grace, Matth. 16. 19. whereof the two principall vertues are also pointed at; faithfulneese in the substance of the ministery, and prudency in the manner of exercising of it, to salvation and edifying.

V. 47. Shall make him,] by the figure of the custome of men, in preferring faithfull servants to be overseers of a great household: he points at the state of glory to which faithfull sheepherds shall be exalted in the kingdome of heaven, above the ordinary members of the Church.

V. 48. If that evill,] the Lord seemes to point at some singular particular person that should usurpe a tyrannie over the Church: and should change the spirituall service into a temporall domination and carnall delights, Rev. 18. 7.

V. 51. Cut him asunder,] from all communion of his house, and from his favour. See Deut. 29. 21. With the hypocrite,] who having been till then mixed with the true beleevers, and hidden under faire shewes, like unto that disloyall servant, under the cloak of being Christs minister, shall be punished with eternall punishments. See Mat. 25. 32.

Chap. XXV.

Ver. 1. The kingdome,] namely the state of the Church wherein God reigneth in his Sonnes person. Tenne Virgins,] a similitude taken from the fashion used at weddings, at which anciently the maidens which were the brides kinswomen and acquaintances went forth with Lampes and Lights in great troopes to meet the bridegroome, when hee came to the brides house, to have her away to his owne house, which was commonly done in the night time. Now the bridegroome is Christ: the time of the wedding is at his last comming: the night is the Churches estate in the world, the Virgins are they that make profession of the purity of the Gospell; the wise Virgins are they that are provided in their hearts with instructions in faith and piety, and with the gift of the Spirit, which is the oyle that burneth, not howsoever alwayes in actuall exercise. The foolish ones are they that have neglected to gaine or preserve the foresaid gift of the Spirit in the Church: the lampes are the hearts; the sleeping and slumbering, is the slackning or ceasing from continuall exercises of piety and expecting of Christ which is caused by the infirmity of the flesh thorow Christs long staying.

V. 9. Not so,] whereby is shewed that every one shall live by his owne faith, and not by other mens, Hab. 2. 4. Goe ye,] provide some yet if you can from him that furnisheth every one, namely from God, for every one receaveth onely for his owne share. Not that that minute of time will suffer any such new providing. And buy,] see upon Isay 55. 1.

V. 14. Travelling into,] this voyage is a figure of Christs ascent and abode in heaven, Matth. 21. 33. And delivered,] whereby is showne Christ his distribution of the gifts and graces of his Spirit, 1 Cor. 12, 7. Ephes. 4. 8. to be imployed to the advancement of Gods glory, to the edification of his Church and increase of gifts in him that hath them: whereof at his comming must be given a most strict account.

V. 15. According to,] proportionably according to his calling, accompanied with some speciall gift for to manage it.

V. 21. Into the joy,] namely into everlasting happinesse, Heb. 12. 2.

V. 24. That thou art,] this is spoken onely for the making up and framing of the parable, and cannot be any wise applyed to Christ, unlesse it be to shew that he is a severe judge against those that lose or do not cause his graces to increase, unlesse here be some mark of Gods right in demanding of man, obedience and service, as the fruit of originall justice which was conferred upon Adam in his first creation, which he lost by his owne default: though God do not give it againe to every one as he commeth into the world.

V. 27. Thou oughtest,] this also is only spoken for to make up the similitude.

V. 34. From the,] an ordinary phrase to say from all eternity, before any time was, Ephes. 1. 4. 2 Tim. 1. 9.

V. 35.

V. 35. For I was,] not that workes are indeed the cause of salvation, Rom. 3. 20. Ephes. 2. 9. 2 Tim. 1. 9. Tit. 3. 5. but because they are the true fruit of a lively faith in Christ, the onely author of salvation, in whom and by whom the faithfull are the children of God, and their persons are made acceptable: and their works brought forth by Christs Spirit are approved of and crowned through grace.

V. 37. When saw we,] to shew that the Lord worketh in this reward of grace beyond all humane apprehension and imagination: and how much more beyond the worth of any worke, and without any merit of the person? See Ephes. 3. 20.

V. 40. Vnto me,] for you have done it for my sake, and in regard of me, Mat. 10. 40. 42. and that all beleevers are one and the same spirituall body with Christ their head.

V. 41. For the devill,] from hence as well as from other passages may be gathered, that there is a chiefe of the apostated and evill spirits. See Mat. 12. 24.

Chap. XXVI.

Vers. 3. Assembled together,] in publike Senate or great Councell which judged of the most weighty matters, as of a false Prophet, such an one as they judged Christ to be. And this Senate consisted of seventy Iudges besides the High Priest, and the chiefe Magistrate of the people. Num. 11. 16, 17, 24.

V. 5. The feast day,] in the dayes of unleavened bread, presently after the Passeover, which were no festivall dayes. The Iewes observe in their writings that their noted executions were reserved until those solemne dayes, to cause the greater terrour and example, by reason of the great concourse of people to the feast: but here the Priests advise not to proceed that way for feare of the peoples rising.

V. 6. Bethany,] See Mat. 21. 17. The Leper,] the cause of this surname is unknowne, peradventure he had bin cured of the leprosie by the Lord.

V. 7. There came,] by Iohn the 12. 1, 2. 12. it appeares that this hapned before Christs entrance into Ierusalem. It may be that S. Matthew reserved this history for this place to make a continued narration of Iudas his treason after the first occasion of it, which he took upon the losing of the price of this oile, whereby he hoped to reape some benefit. Powred it,] to honour him according to the custome of those times.

V. 8. His Disciples,] Iohn 12. 4. this is especially referred to Iudas, who it is likely was the author of this murmuring.

V. 11. Always,] the meaning is: you have alwayes opportunity enough to releeve the poore, but as for me who shall shortly dye for you; and my corporall presence shortly after bee taken away from you, will not know how to yeeld me any more humane service, this woman hath done me as it were the last; correspondent to that which they doe to dead bodies imbalming them: which seeing it could not be done after my death (see upon Mark 16. 1.) she hath as one should say anticipated the doing of it in my life time. So Christ doth esteeme of this deed more then the woman her selfe expected, he would.

V. 15. Thirty peeces,] the Italian thirty sheckels,] according to the prophesie of Zech. 11. 12. and because that was the set price for servants that were killed. Exod. 21. 32. it seemes there was some hidden mistery in this number, Christ having taken upon him the forme of a servant.

V. 17. The first day,] namely the fourteenth day of the first moneth, in the end of which they were to eat the Paschall Lambe, Exod. 12. 18. Luke 22. 7. which Christ strictly observed. But the Iewes by an ancient tradition even from that time that they dwelt in Babylon, as it is thought, when a great feast, especially the Passeover was immediately before the Sabbath, as it hapned at our Saviours passion, they rejourned the feast untill the Sabbath, to avoid the great incommodity of having two festivall dayes one after another; and therefore in this Passeover they did eat the Lambe a day after the Lord had eaten it, as it appears by Iohn 18. 28. and 19. 14. wherupon also that Sabbath is called the great day, that is to say the yeerly feast, Iohn 19. 31.

V. 18. My time,] some important affaire urgeth me to celebrate the Passeover before the rest of the people (though peradventure the man did not understand this secret) and it should seeme that it was lawfull for any man that would, to eat the Passeover the proper appointed day if he pleased to burthen himselfe with the observing of two festivall dayes together.

V. 23. That dippeth,] that ordinarily, and now at this present also eateth with me, Marke 14. 18. according to the prophesie of Psal. 41. 9.

V. 24. Goeth,] to his death, or shall shortly die.

V. 26. Were eating,] that is to say, whilest they were yet at table. Others expound it after they had eaten, namely the Paschall Lambe, Luke 22. 20. 1 Cor. 11. 25. Tooke bread,] a part of the bread, or of the unleavened cake, whereof they had eaten with the Lambe. Here Christ ordaineth the new Sacrament of the Christian Church which is the holy Communion, correspondent in its sense and use to the ancient Passeover: which was also cancelled by this. Now as the Iewes divided this Paschall Supper into two parts; in the first they did eat the Lamb, and in the second they did eat all round of an unleavened cake dipt in a sawce made with bitter herbs harbor, and did drinke of the same cup called the cup of praise, Psal. 116. 13. and it is likely that all this was done by our Saviour after that second part, Luke 22. 20. and that the ceremonies were taken from thence. Blessed it,] using the ordinary act of prayer at meales which was done here by Christ, not so much in regard of the food of the body, as in regard of the food of the soule to true beleevers, by himselfe: whereof this corporall bread was to be the Sacrament and seale, Mark 14. 22. Luke 22. 17. 19. Or as Saint Paul saith, 1 Cor. 10. 16. he blessed the bread, that is to say, he changed the ordinary and naturall use thereof into a Sacrament of the soules food: and desired of God that this ceremony might be verified by his grace and spirit in the soules of beleevers, and the true effect produced in them. Brake it,] in remembrance of the breaking of Christs body, 1 Cor. 11. 24. by the piercing of it upon the Crosse; or by his sufferances both in soule and body, all the while that he was man. This is,] this bread which is consecrated by me is the sacrament of my body offered as an expiatory sacrifice for you. So oftentimes the spirituall names are attributed to these corporall parts of the Sacraments as are correspondent to them: as well by the analogie of the signification, as by the vertue of sealing, and by the reality of the spirituall thing given and effected by God, together with the use of the signe in true beleevers. See Gen. 17. 10. Exod. 12. 11. and 40. 15. 1 Cor. 10. 4. 16. Ephes. 5. 26. My body,] that is to say, my flesh. John 6. 53, 54. to which Christ afterwards distinctly addeth his blood: not only to represent himselfe whole by these two parts, as Heb 2. 14. but chiefly to shew that his body in this Sacrament ought to be considered and apprehended by faith, not so much living or glorified, as offered in true sacrifice of expiation, in which the blood was to be spilt, and the thing offered to be cut in peeces, verse 28. 1 Cor. 11. 24. Finally, under these two words Christ comprehendeth his whole person, with his merit, obedience, vertue, and benefits, wherein consists the true pasture of the soul, receaved to a spirituall and everlasting life by the mouth of it, which is faith, which also unites Christ unto it, as food is united to the body.

V. 28. For this,] a reason why he commandeth them to participate of this cup, because that it is the true Sacrament of the blood of the covenant of grace, opposite to the figurative blood of the ancient covenant of the law, Exod. 24. 8. Of the new,] upon which is grounded the everlasting covenant of God with men, manifested and given out in a new manner, more clearly, powerfully, and fully under the Gospell then under the law. See Ier. 31. 31. Heb. 8. 8 Is shed,] that is to say, must be shed, and will shortly be shed indeed.

V. 29. Henceforth,] that is to say behold this is the last meale that I shall make with you in this world, to testifie unto you my boundlesse charity, and leave you a perpetuall pledge of my self, untill I doe receive you into the Communion of mine everlasting goods in heaven, which shall bee new ones, that is to say of another nature and qualitie, though figured by the corporall eating and drinking, Matth. 8. 11. Luke 14. 15. Revel. 3. 20. and 19. 9. Now though Christ did eate sometimes after his resurrection, with his Disciples, yet that was not as being yet in the necessities of an animall life: but by a certaine secret dispensation to certifie his Disciples of the truth of his person, Acts 10. 41.

V. 30. An hymne] which was one or more of Davids Psalmes, as the Iewes write, wherewith ended the Paschall Supper.

V. 31. Offended] See Mat. 11. 6.

V. 36. Gethsemane] it was some place of the mount Olives, the word may signifie in the Hebrew tongue an oyle presse. Or in the Syriack tongue a butter churne.

V. 37. Sorrowfull] in his humane nature, in respect of which he had all the naturall affections like to men, except sinne, Heb. 2. 18. and 4. 15. Now Christs deity did for a while suspend the influence of its joy and comfort, by an unspeakeable dispensation to let his humanity suffer those horrible, & incomprehensible torments, equivalent in weight with the everlasting ones, to give Gods justice satisfaction for the sinnes of all the elect, for which he had made himselfe a curse, Gal. 3. 13. bearing upon himselfe the wrath and curse of God which he overcame and satisfied by his perfect righteousnesse, Isa 53. 6. 10.

V. 38. And watch,] to be witnesse of my sufferings, and to be instructed and strengthned by mine example.

V. 39. O my father,] a purely naturall desire in Christ, meer man: by which for a short moment, he was afraid of death and of the torments, and did shunne them, but was quickly recalled to obedience by a deliberate will to submit himselfe to God. And besides that, this desire was but conditionall, that the will of God accepted of by Christ, from the contemplation of which he was a while diverted by the extremity of horrors. Therefore there was no sinne, but onely a short conflict of nature, presently overcome by reason and a firme will. Or a small suspension quickly overcome by a most strong resolution. This cup,] see Mat. 20. 22.

V. 41. The Spirit,] that operation of Gods Spirit which is in you, is indeed very fervent and vigorous: but it is withstood and counterpoized by the oppositions of your remisse and corrupt nature: wherefore you might easily be overcome, if you did not by prayer to God obtaine new strength: and by your watchfulnesse you did not keepe your selves from the deceipts of the wicked one. See Galat. 5. 17.

V. 45. were heavie] not so much with naturall sleepinesse, as with extreame griefe, Luke 22.45.

V. 45. Sleepe on] an ironicall kinde of speech: as Christ said I could not awake you with my words; here are other people, who will awake you in another manner.

Ver. 46. Let us bee going] not to runne away but to goe meet with mine enemies: And so he sheweth his free-will to offer himselfe to death, after he had overcome and ruled all humane affection.

Ver. 51. One of them] namely Peter, Ioh. 18.10.

V. 52. That take] that is to say have undertaken to shed humane bloud, without any calling.

V. 53 Twelve] which was the compleate number of a Roman army which Christ peradventure thought upon.

V. 60. Found they none] well agreeing, and that had any conformity, betweene two, or three, whereby they might legally condemn him according to the Law, Deut. 17. 6.

61. I am able] they falsifie the words, and subvert Christs meaning, and therefore are called false witnesses.

V. 63. Held his peace] bearing his calumnies patiently and being disposed to not hinder, nor stay the prefixed houre of his death. And to shew that he did voluntarily take upon him the qualitie of guiltie before men; for a signe that he did as such an one appeare before God for them: Yet without wresting or concealing the truth which was necessary to bee known of all men concerning his person and office.

V. 64. Hereafter] in time to come, at my second comming to judgement I will make it plainely appeare what I am, which you now aske me in derision and malice. Of power] the name of God Himselfe, used amongst the Iewes.

V. 65. Rent] to faine great zeale and wrathfulnesse, as against a great blasphemie, as they used to doe when they saw or heard of some cruell act. See Ier. 36. 24.

V. 67. Did they spit] as it were upon a condemned malefactor.

V. 68. Saying] after they had covered his face, Mar. 14 65.

V. 71. Of Nazareth] see Mat. 2. 23.

V. 73. Thy speech] rough, Galileish, Acts 2. 7. the Apostles being most of them of that Country, where the Lord was most frequently conversant, Ioh. 7. 52.

Chap. XXVII.

Ver. 2. Delivered him] for the Romans had left the Iewes the power of judging the crimes of such as were malefactors of their owne Nation, but had reserved the power of condemning them to death, and executing of them to themselves Iohn 18. 31.

Verse. 3. Repented himselfe] with that kinde of griefe and repentance, which proceedeth only from the wound of Conscience, and from the feeling of Gods wrath, without any conversion, faith, or hope in his mercy: which kind of repentance can produce nothing but death, 2 Cor. 7. 10.

V. 6. Treasurie] the Greeke Corbana, a Syriack word, which signifieth the place where they layed up and kept the gifts and offerings which were made in the Temple, and consecrated things.

V. 7. The Potters field] it was some close which was so called for an unknowne cause. Strangers] heathens, from whom the Iewes would be separate even after their death.

V. 9 The Prophet] many Greeke Copies doe adde Ieremie in stead of Zechariah, but it is likely that this change might be slipt into the text, by the error of Coppiers and Scriveners. And they tooke] this is the proper meaning of Zechariah, which the Syriack translation hath also followed, though your Greeke Texts have and they tooke, &c. and they gave, &c. as if Zechariah had set downe the prediction and Saint Matthew the fulfilling of it. Of him that was valued] of him, who though he was a true Israelite, yet the Iewes bought his life at the same rate as by the Law they ransomed a poore slaves life that was a stranger, Exod. 21. 32. See upon Mat. 26. 15.

Verse 12. Hee answered nothing] See upon Matth. 26. 62.

V. 15. At that feast] the Italian. At every feast] at the Passeover as Saint Iohn saith, though peradventure it may also bee understood of the other two solemne feasts of the yeare.

V. 16. They had]-by these words may be meant either simply that Barrabas was a Iew, or that the Iewes had taken him and condemned him according to their Law, and afterwards had put him into Pilates hands as they had done Iesus.

V. 24. That he could] Or that all this would not helpe it. He tooke water] a vaine ceremony, to shew that hee protested himselfe to bee innocent of his death, to which he was forced by the Iewes. See Deut. 21. 6.

V. 25. His bloud be] if there be any injustice in it, we take the guilt and the punishment thereof upon our selves.

V. 26. when hee had] that is to say, having first sought to appease the peoples fury, by this smaller punishment, as for a slight fault, Luk. 23. 16. Ioh 19. 1. Or for a kinde of torture used before execution: to get the whole truth out of the Delinquent. Now amongst the Romans in such cases they used rods or wands for free persons, and whippes for slaves, &c.

which Christ had taken the shape upon him, Phil. 2.7

V. 28. A Scarlet robe] which might be the robe of some Centurion, or Sergeant, who used to weare that colour. Now all this was done in scorne because he had stiled himselfe to bee King of the Iewes. See Luke 23. 11. But Gods secret providence did here note two things: first that Christ presented himselfe before Gods judgement seate in a strange vesture, namely as a sinner, and a pledge for all the sins of the world, Isa. 53. 6. 12. 2 Cor. 5. 21. secondly that he only suffered the bloudy punishment therefore according to the prophesie, Isa. 63. 2.

V. 29. A reed] instead of a Scepter, and herein also there may bee a mistery namely that Christ governeth his Kingdome by very weake meanes, and disperseth the powers of this world, 1 Cor. 1. 25. 28.

V. 31. To crucifie him] the Crosse was a punishment wherewith the Romans punished their slaves, and such as were Authors of sedition, a crime whereof Christ was accused, and had voluntarily made himselfe a servant. See Luke 23. 2. and Isa. 49. 7. Phil. 2. 7.

V. 32. Of Cirene] in Africa. They compelled] See upon, Mat. 5. 41. To beare] the custome of the Romans was that malefactors did carrie their crosse to the place of execution. But Iesus being so faint, that he was not able to beare so great a burthen, this poore contemptible man was joyned to him, to help him to beare it up behinde, Luk. 23. 26. Ioh. 19. 17. for to shew figuratively what communion poore beleevers have with Christ in his sufferings. See Mat. 10. 38.

V. 33. Of a skull] so called by reason of the great company of bones of executed men which were in that place.

V. 34. Vineger] there stood a vessell with vineger there ordinarily, Iohn. 19. 29. for to comfort a little those which suffered, but it should seem that the inhumane Souldiers, thorow an insolent kinde of scorne had mingled gall amongst it. He would not] namely this first time, that this vineger thus mingled was presented unto him, before hee was lifted up upon the Crosse. For it was offered him againe another time, after he was nailed on, Luk. 23. 36. and then he took it, Iohn 19. 30.

V. 35. Casting lots] this must specially be understood of the coat without seame, Iohn 19. 24.

V. 36. They watched] because that delinquents which were put to death by the Crosse, lingered in paine a great while.

V. 44. The theeves] namely one of them, Luk. 23. 39

V. 45. The sixth houre] which was at noone or midday Darknesse] not by any naturall eclipse, the moon being then at the full but by a supernaturall miracle, to shew that the great Sun of righteousnesse and life, was as it were encumbred & overcast with darknes. Luk. 22. 53. being brought unto extremitie. And likewise to shew Christs infinite power, & the grievousnesse of the Iewes fact. Over all the Land] some affirme that it was over all the world, others thinke that it was in Iudea onely, and the Countries thereabouts.

V. 46. Eli] these words of the Psalme are here related in the Syriacke tongue, which in those dayes was most frequent amongst the Iewes. Forsaken] not that the Father, and the Sons God-head had forsaken Christs humanity, neither concerning his personall union, nor the presence and influence of all manner of vertue and love: neither did Christ judge it to be so: seeing that he calleth him father. But because the Father and the Sons God-head, did suspend their effect of joy and comfort, to let his humanity feele all the sorrowes and torments which God had appointed: though the same Deitie did give him strength and sufferance to beare, and overcome them, See Psal. 98. 1. Isa. 63. 5 Heb. 9 14.

V. 47. This man] whither it were in a scoffing manner by reason of the name Eli, or whither they had misunderstood it, or whither they were strangers and did not understand the language.

V. 50. Cried] with the words contained, Luk. 23 46. Ioh. 19 30.

V. 51. The vaile] which separated the holy place from the most holy, in the Temple, see Exod. 26. 31 2 Chro. 3. 4 And this breach was a signe that by the death of Christ all Mosaicall ceremonies were annihilated: amongst which the chiefe was the secret service which was yeelded to God in his sanctuary. And besides to shew that the heavenly sanctuary was open to all true beleevers for to direct their prayers and spirituall service to God, Heb. 9. 8. and 10. 19, 20, 22.

V. 52. That slept] which were dead in certaine hope of a resurrection: an ordinary terme in Scripture. Arose] namely after Christs Resurrection, not to die any more, nor yet to live an animall life, but to accompany the Lord ascending up to heaven, as first fruits of the resurrection of the dead.

V. 54. The Sonne of God] that is to say a divine man: for there is no great likely-hood that these prophane people were illuminated in the knowledge of Christs God-head. See Marke 15. 39. Luke 23. 47.

V. 56. And Mary] some have beleeved that it was the blessed Virgin, as Mother in law to these children of Ioseph borne by another woman. See upon Matth. 12. 46. And indeed the Mother of Iesus stood by the Crosse, Iohn 19. 25. And the mother] called Salome, Mark. 15. 40. peradventure it was the same Mary the wife of Cleophas, Iohn 19. 25.

V. 57. Of Arimathea] this is old Rama, or Ramathaim in the tribe of Benjamin.

V. 62. The preparation] that day which was before the Sabbath, or before any other solemne feast was

was so called, and especially the nine houres, namely the three houres after midday, untill the end of that day after which the feast day was.

V. 65. A watch] of Roman Souldiers, appointed to lie in garrison in a strong hold which was by the Temple, for the securing of it, and for the publike peace: whither the Iewes might call upon them, whensoever they had need, for to assist them, or whether Pilate suffered them upon this occasion to make use of them.

CHAP. XXVIII.

V. 1. The other] namely she that is called the mother of Iames and Ioses, Matth. 27. 56, 61.

V. 2. There was a] namely whilest these women were upon the way, the Lord rising at that instant, and comming out of the monument, for by that time they came thither he was gone: but the Angell remained there, at whose sight the watch fled: and in the meane time, the women came, who were told by the Angell that the Lord was risen: and they went and reported it to Peter and Iohn Ioh. 20. 2. and these two Apostles comming to the Sepulcher, the women came backe with them: but they returning to the Citie, Mary Magdalen stayed by the monument, Iohn 20. 10, 11 and it is likely that the other women staid there with her, and Mary had a new vision of Angels: and the Lord appeared first to her, Mar. 16. 9. Iohn 20. 14. which she related to the other women by the way as they returned to Ierusalem, for to make the second report thereof to the Apostles. The Angell] the first time there appeared but one, the second time two, Luke 24. 4. Iohn 20. 12.

V. 7. I have told you] assure your selves of it, doe it, and doe not faile, as for my part, I have discharged my commission.

V. 9. Iesus] by Marke 16. 9. and Iohn 20. 14. it appeares that hee appeared to Mary Magdalen in some speciall manner before he appeared to the rest.

V. 18. Is given unto me] in qualitie of Mediatour. And in the personall union of the two natures divine and humane, I have received from my Father the universall Kingdome of the world, and the spirituall Kingdome over my Church: and now I enter into the glorious possession and administration of it.

V. 19. Therefore] namely to make knowne what I am, to gather together my subjects, and beleevers, to governe and distribute the effects of my Kingdom unto them, to bring tydings unto them of the judgement of the Nations, which is done by the preaching of the Gospell. See Psal. 110. 2. Isaiah. 2. 3, 4. All Nations] indifferently without any distinction of Iewes or Gentiles. Baptizing] See Mat. 3. 6. for a Sacrament of my grace, in remission and expiation of sinnes, and regeneration to a new life. And likewise for a token that they are bound on their side, to consecrate themselves to me, and give themselves over to the conduct of my spirit, and to confesse my Name perpetually. In the Name] to consecrate them unto the onely true God, revealed in three persons 1 Iohn 5. 7. by the baptisme administred by their power and authority, which are also called upon to ratifie the externall ceremonie thereof, each one by the speciall property of their operation.

V. 20. I am] not in corporall presence, Mat. 26. 11. but in the presence of my God-head, Spirit, and vertue. With you] namely with my beleevers and true Church, whereof ye now represent the body.

The holy Gospell of Our Lord Iesus Christ according to Saint MARKE.

Argument.

BEcause that in the sacred History this name of Marke is often mentioned amongst the Disciples, and followers of the Apostles. There was a doubt made, first whether wee ought in all other places to take it for one and the same person, called Iohn amongst the Iewes, and Marke amongst the Romans, as this diversitie of names was in those dayes very frequent. Then if there were diverse of one name to which of them ought to be attributed the composing of this Gospell? The opinion of the Ancients hath bin, that whether there were one or many, the writer of this book is he who is mentioned, 1 Pet. 5. 13. called by S. Peter his Sonne whither it were because hee was by his meanes converted to the Christian faith.

Or becauſe he had taken him for a conductor and companion in preaching of the Goſpell, as an Evangeliſt, whereby he might have received the gift of the Holy Ghoſt, as it was very uſuall in theſe firſt beginnings of the Church. And as Saint Paul and other Apoſtles, after they had founded a Church by their owne preaching at the firſt, did afterwards employ the Evangeliſts, in the directing and ordering of Churches in ſeverall provinces. So it is thought that S. Peter ſent Marke to give a forme to the Church of Alexandria in Ægypt, and peradventure to all the other Churches of that Country, for to governe them. And from thence alſo proceeded a conſtant opinion, that Saint Peter did dictate this Goſpell unto him, to be as it were the foundation, of the eſtabliſhment, and propagation of Chriſtian doctrine amongſt thoſe Churches. Now there is a great conformitie betweene this Goſpell and Saint Matthewes; but only that Saint Markes is a little briefer, and that there is ſome ſlight diverſitie of order, according to the liberty of the Holy Ghoſt in inſpiring and directing his ſervants.

Chap. I.

Ver. 2. In the Prophets] ſome Texts have it in Iſaiah the Prophet.

V. 10. He ſaw] namely Iohn, Iohn 1. 33.

V. 15. The time] that is to ſay, the time prefixed by God for the comming of the Meſſias, which is therefore alſo called the fulneſſe of times, Gal. 4. 4. Epheſ 1. 10.

V. 25. Rebuked him] refuſing to have the father of lies to beare witneſſe of him, as Luk. 4. 41. Acts 16. 17, 18.

V. 26. Torne him] having ſhaken, and ſtretched him, as if he would have torne him in peeces.

V. 29. They were] namely Chriſt and his Diſciples.

V. 34. To ſpeake] others to ſay that they knew him.

Ver. 38. Came I forth] that is to ſay ſent by my Father, Luk. 4. 43. come from heaven the habitation of my glory, and appeared to the world in the fleſh.

V. 45. To publiſh it] to publiſh many things, and divulge what was done. Could no more] by reaſon of the great multitudes which thronged unto him, and hindered him from uttering his doctrine, which was his principall buſineſſe.

Chap. II.

Ver. 2. The word] of God namely the Goſpell.

V. 8. In his ſpirit] the Italian. By his ſpirit] namely by his God-head and divine power.

V. 14. Levi] called alſo Matthew.

V. 18. And they] namely Iohns Diſciples, Matth. 9. 14.

V. 26. Abiathar] called alſo Ahimelech, 1 Samuel 21. 1.

V. 27. The Sabbath] that is to ſay the Law of the Sabbath was made for the good of man, as well his ſpirituall as his corporal good, for to eaſe him of his labours: And not to ſubject all neceſſary reſpects of man, to an abſolute and ſuperſtitious honour of the day in abſtaining from every act, whereby it appeares that if God commanded mans reſt on the Sabbath day, much more would he have his nouriſhment and ſuſtentation.

Ver. 28. Therefore] that is to ſay, ſeeing that the intent of the Law touching the Sabbath is ſuch, it belongeth to me who am the Soveraigne Lawgiver to know what belongeth to mans neceſſity, and not to you falſe Iudges.

Chap. III.

Ver. 2. And they] namely the Scribes and Phariſees which were there preſent.

V. 3. Stand forth] to the end that the miracle ſhould be manifeſt.

V. 10. Plagues] that is to ſay any corporall infirmitie or diſcommodity ſent by God for a puniſhment or correction.

Verſe 11. Unclean ſpirits] which were in the poſſeſſed.

V. 17. Boanerges] to repreſent the power of the Goſpell which they preached, it being a voyce from heaven, able to affright, and terrifie mens conſciences, for the ſalvation of the elect, and condemnation of unbeleevers. See Ioel 3. 16. Heb. 12. 26.

V. 21. His friends] this is diverſly underſtood: ſome hold that theſe were ſome of Ieſus his kinſfolkes, which did not beleeve in him, Iohn 7. ver. 3, 4, 5. and that here they ſought to take him: either becauſe they imagined really that thoſe divine motions which they ſaw in him, and his manner, [or] manner of proceeding, were effects of some distraction in his minde. Or that they made shew of beleeving him, for to rescue him from the Pharisees persecution. Others hold that they were some of his good friends come to take him out of the throng and presse he was in, which was ready to make him faint: and to this sense they referre the words, he is beside himselfe. But the ensuing calumny of the Iewes seems to confirme the first sense.

V. 26. And he,] others, he is divided and cannot subsist.

V. 30 They said,] contrary to the internall feeling of their conscience which was inlightned and convinced by the holy Ghost which they out of meer malice opposed.

V. 31. His brethren,] this seemes to be a continuation and taking againe of what was spoken, v. 21. and it may be that there were diverse opinions, and severall intentions amongst these friends of his.

CHAP. IV.

VER. 2. In his,] that is to say in his discourse, or in his manner of teaching.

V. 10. They that were,] these were some that followed Christ, besides his ordinary Disciples.

V. 11. But unto them,] namely to those who are strangers to my Church, 1 Cor. 5. 12. Coloss. 4. 5. 1 Thess. 4. 12. 1 Tim 3. 7.

V. 12. They may see,] for a punishment of their wilfull blindnesse and hardnesse, Mat 13. 15. the doctrine of the Gospell is obscurely propounded to them, to convince and condemne them, and not to enlighten them to salvation, whereof they have shewed themselves unworthy and uncapable.

V. 21. For there,] he gives a reason for what was meant by the precedent similitude, that is to say, that one ought to make the gift of faith, and knowledge of the Gospell, to shine forth brightly by a free profession, and by good works; for though it were yet clouded and darkned through the ignorance, hatred, and false judgements of the world, it would notwithstanding very shortly appeare manifestly, even as old ancient prophesies had been cleered by him.

V. 26. The kingdome,] that is to say, the preaching of the Gospell, by which the Church is gathered together, and governed in Spirit under Gods obedience, doth produce its effects, by a secret power of God in the hearts of his beleevers by little and little; that the very servants of God know neither the moments nor the meanes. Let them therefore faithfully do their office, and leave the increase and blessing to God, 1 Cor. 3. 6. 7.

V. 27. Should sleepe,] should go and come, and do his businesses according to his course of life.

V. 33. As they were,] that is to say, accommodating himselfe to the small capacity of the hearers, he used these familiar similitudes, to infuse the truth the more easily into humble and make men, and to hide it from the adversaries and hardened persons.

V. 36. As he was,] at that present having taken neither food nor rest, but had beene teaching all the day, and now there being no provision nor preparation made ready for him.

CHAP. V.

VER. 2. A man,] S. Matthew saith two, but peradventure one was more noted and fiercer then the other.

V. 7. I adjure thee,] an impudent boldnesse of the devill, in using the name of God who is his judge, and irreconcileable enemy, to have him be a meanes and a mediator toward Christ, whereas intercession is alwayes made by some friend.

V. 9. what is,] a question grounded upon the custome of evill spirits, to take upon them proper names, when they doe enter into mens bodies, or when they become their masters or ministers, by wicked covenants. Now Christ asketh his name to make the greatnesse of this mans misery apparent, and to shew the wonder of his deliverance. Legion,] a Roman name for a great company of armed men; though it is very unlikely that there should be just as many spirits as there were souldiers in a legion.

V. 20. Decapolis,] See upon Mat. 4. 25.

V. 23. At the point,] S Matthew saith that she was dead, but it may be that at his first arrivall he told him that she lay at the point of death, and afterwards having further advice by his servants, Verse 35. he might adde, she was deceased.

V. 43. Charged them,] see the reason upon Mat. 8. 4.

CHAP. VI.

VER. 3. The Carpenter,] hence seemes may be gathered, that Christ before he was baptized, used Iosephs trade, who was a Carpenter, Mat. 13. 55. The brother,] see upon Mat. 13. 55. Offended,] see upon Mat. 11. 6.

V. 5. He could,] no for any want of power in him, but for want of disposition in the people, who were faithlesse: which disposition of faith according to Gods appointment is requisite in him that draweth neere unto God to receive any benefit at his hands: as the seed ought to be sowne before the harvest be reaped. Besides that, miracles, being the seale of the doctrine: there was no reason to shew them, where there was no faith in the Gospell. See Marke 9. 23.

V. 9. Sandals,] the Italian Soles,] a Greek word, and it was a kinde of shoes, made with soles only laced or buckled over the foot.

V. 13. Anointed,] certainly this ceremony had been appointed them by Christ, for a token of his grace and (supernaturall) vertue) to do these cures to the body only; having therein no particular relation to the soule, nor the salvation of it. See Iames 5.14.

V. 27. An executioner,] the Italian, A Serjeant,] or one of his guard; others a souldier, according to to the custome of the Romans, that oftentimes employed souldiers in capitall executions, commanded by soveraigne Lords, out of the course of justice.

V. 48. And would,] he did as though he would have passed by them, without staying with them, to excite in them a greater wonder and desire.

V. 51. Beyond measure,] more then they were when they saw him walke upon the water.

V. 52. Considered not,] that is to say, these miracles seemed new and strange unto them, because they had not well considered the former ones.

V. 56. They might touch,] it is likely that this was because they had seene a miracle already done in this manner. Mat. 9.20. See Acts 19.12.

CHAP. VII.

VER. 3. Oft,] the Italian, up to the elbow,] according to the Iewish custome, by a scrupulous superstition. Of the Elders,] namely of the governours of the Church, or of their forefathers.

V. 9. Full well,] an ironicall kinde of speech.

V. 11. By whatsoever,] this is but only the beginning of the Pharisaicall law, which ought to be supplied in this manner. If any one have made any such oath he cannot break it, though he should thereby faile in his duty towards father and mother. See upon Mat. 15.5.

V. 19. Purging,] that is to say, leaving by this separation, the nourishment of the body cleere from the dregs.

V. 22. Evil eye,] that is to say envie. See Mat. 20. 15. Blasphemy,] or slander.

V. 24. would have no man,] avoiding the vanity of applause and concourse. And likewise because he was come thither onely for the good of this woman, according to the motions of his Godhead.

V. 29. For this,] seeing thou hast that disposition which is appointed by God, in a constant and persevering faith, thou shalt receive the benefit which thou desirest.

V. 32. To put his hand,] which was an ordinary signe of the application of Christs divine power.

V. 33. Put his fingers,] gestures, and actions which he used at his pleasure, to shew that he healed beyond all order of humane meanes, by his almighty power.

V. 34. He sighed,] in signe of his fervent charity, and of his zeale in praying: which he did as he was man and Mediator, attributing the glory to God his father; from the exercising and manifesting of which he abstained in the time of his humiliation. See Iohn 11.33.38.

V. 36. Charged them,] See upon Mat. 8.4.

CHAP. VIII.

VER. 7. Blessed,] see upon Mat. 14.19.

V. 12. Sighed,] having compassion upon their obstinate incredulity. See Luke 19.41.

V. 15. Of Herod,] See upon Mat. 22.16.

V. 23. Had spit,] See upon Marke 7.33.

V. 25. He put,] not that the Lord, who as he was true God could doe all things in a moment, had any need to take time, or to go severall times about his miracles, but all this was done as he pleased, to cause (as it is likely) his power to be the more distinctly knowne: and also to instruct men in their degrees and progresses of their spirituall illumination, to give God the glory wholly, both for the beginnings and for the accomplishment.

V. 26. Nor tell it,] See upon Mat. 8.4.

V. 38. Shall be ashamed,] who by reason of the misery and reproach which accompanieth the Gospell will not make open profession thereof. Or having done it, draw back or fall away. See Rom. 1.16. 2 Cor. 4.2. 2 Tim. 1.8. and 12.2. In the glory,] See Mat. 16.27.

CHAP. IX.

VER. 1. With power,] gloriously accompanied with the divine power of the H. Ghost to gaine the world, and convert their hearts.

V. 12. Be set at nought,] this terme, taken, as it should seeme from Dan. 9.26. signifieth the lowest degree of Christs humiliation, Phil. 2.7.

V. 13. As it is written,] this hath a relation to Saint Iohn Baptists comming, which was foretold by the Prophets; and not to his persecutions, whereof we read nothing in them.

V. 16. With them,] meaning his Disciples who were in the same company.

V. 17. A dumbe spirit,] that is to say, a spirit by whose meanes my sonne is become dumbe.

V. 18. Teareth him,] he torments, draweth awry, & stretcheth him, as if he would tear him to peeces.

V. 20. Tare him,] See upon Mark. 1.26.

V. 23. If thou canst,] as much as to say, doubt not thou of my power which is infinite, but see whether for thine owne part thou beest disposed in faith as thou shouldest be. Which faith the Lord so long as he was in the world, did never let passe without effect, and for defect of it he did oftentimes forbeare doing of his miracles. See Marke 6.5.

V. 24.

V. 24. Vnbeleefe,] that is to say, the ſmalneſſe and weakneſſe of my faith, joyned with much doubt, and miſtruſt.

V. 31. For he taught.] it ſeems, that the meaning was, that Chriſt did begin to withdrew himſelfe from the frequent company of men, and from the other parts of his office, and actions of his life, to prepare himſelfe for his approaching death, and to diſpoſe his Diſciples to it.

V. 37. Receyve vs not,] ſeeing that Chriſt as he was mediator, referred all to his fathers glory and ſervice. See Iohn 5.30. and 6.38.

V. 38. Saw one,] it might be ſome one who having imbraced Chriſts doctrin and faith was moved by Gods ſecret inſpiration to do miracles, though he was not one of Chriſts ordinary followers. The Diſciples were moved with jealouſie or raſhneſſe of judgement: and Chriſt without penetrating any further into the action, plainly ſaith, that by this means his truth and his glory might be promoted, and that therefore the Diſciples ſhould forbeare to forbid him, as if this power did belong only to them. In thy name,] calling upon thee, and interpoſing thine authority.

V. 40. Is on our part,] that is to ſay, may be a profitable inſtrument in Gods work, or in this furious hatred which the world beareth me and my Goſpell, you ought to hold it as a favour and gaine, if any one be not againſt us. And if God himſelfe rewardeth ſmall benefits done to his, you likewiſe ought to except of and love thoſe, who make profeſſion of my name, though they be not ordinarily in our company

V 43. Into Hell,] the Italian, Into Gehenna,] ſee upon Mat. 5.22.

V. 49. For every,] he gives a reaſon of the precedent exhortations, of cutting off all occaſion of ſin: for as every offering under the law was to be ſalted, Lev. 2.13. ſo every Chriſtian, to preſent himſelfe unto God in a living Sacrifice, ought to be purged from all corruption by the holy Ghoſt, who hath the operation of fire, Mat. 3.11. 1 Cor. 3.13 and by the ſame ought to be imprinted with holineſſe, as the ſalt ſeaſoneth meat & preſerveth it frō putrefaction.

V. 50. Is good,] namely, for the aforementioned uſes. Chriſt directeth his ſpeech to his Apoſtles and miniſters of his word: as if he ſaid, to you is committed the preaching of the Goſpell, by which the holy Ghoſt fulfilleth his internall operation, Ioh. 17. 17. and if you corrupt this word, or corrupt your ſelves who are the veſſels of it, ſo that the Spirit of God cooperate no more init; from whom ſhall any amendment be looked for? Have ſalt,] imitate ſalt in what it is good, namely, in the wholeſome, pure and pleaſing, ſeaſoning of your doctrine and actions, and not in its evill, in being too tart and auſtere; whereupon ariſe diviſions and ſtrifes; ſeeing there are ſome kinds of ſalt, that are too ſharpe and corroſive. See Iames 3.17.

Chap. X.

Ver. 3. Moſes,] Chriſt hath a relation to the ſeventh Commandement, of not committing adultery, againſt which they ſinned, who broke off lawfull marriages by unlawfull divorces.

V. 11. Put away,] that divorceth himſelfe from her, unleſſe it be for adultery, Mat. 19.9.

V. 12. If a woman,] the law of God makes no mention of divorces undertaken by women: a thing which was unheard of amongſt the people of God, and contrary to all modeſtie: yet in thoſe dayes it was uſed in imitation of the Romans and Grecians. See upon 1 Tim. 5.9.

V. 15. Shall not,] ſhall not ſubmit himſelfe by obedience of faith to the Goſpell, thorow which God re-eſtabliſheth his kingdome amongſt men, and maketh them partakers of the good things thereof. As a little,] laying aſide all pride, malice, preſumption of carnall wiſdome, and putting on the true humility, docility, ſimplicity, and innocency which is in little children. See Pſal. 131.2. Mat. 18.3.

V. 21. Loved him,] he ſhewed him ſome ſignes of favour, as congratulating with him for this outward and diſciplinary holineſſe; not any way approving of his pride and hypocriſie, nor being contented with this outward bark of action. Neither that he diſſembled againſt his thought, but in a kinde of gracefull contempt of his vanity.

V. 32. Amazed,] by reaſon of his frequent predictions, by which he foretold his approaching, ſufferings, and death in Ieruſalem, whither they ſaw him going.

V. 42. Which are accounted] the Italian, that account themſelves,] who though they ought to acknowledge themſelves to be Gods ſervants, for the good & profit of their people, do attribute unto themſelves thorow immoderate preſumption an abſolute power over them, 1 Sam. 18.11. Others which are accounted, &c. that is to ſay, whoſe ſovereignty is only in the falſe figure and appearance of the world, and not in truth, which is only in the kingdome of God.

V. 46. As he went out,] Saint Luke ſaith, that this hapned at his comming thither, and not at his departure; and S. Matthew ſpeaks of two blinde men. But this may be reconciled, ſaying, that the Lord ſtaid ſome time in Iericho, going out and comming in again; & that at one time being gon out, comming in againe he met with two blinde men, whereof this Bartimeus was of moſt note.

Chap. XI.

Ver. 16. Any veſſell] namely that was not wholly for the ſervice of God, but for theſe Merchants and other mens uſes, which was a kinde of prophanation. See Neh. 7. 8. Zech. 14 20. 21.

V. 17. Of all nations,] or for the uſe of all nations, or amongſt all nations.

V. 18. Deſtroy him,] ſecretly, and by cunning. See Mat. 21 46. and 26.4.5.

V. 22.

22. In God,] namely with a faith as he every way requireth in all parts and qualities, and such as one as he ingendreth in his beleevers by his Spirit.

Chap. XII.

Ver. 10. Not read,] the meaning is, That passage of the Psalme hath a reference to you, as this my parable hath.

V. 15. Shall we give,] this repetition seemeth is not superfluous; for the first question may be understood of the rigour of right, and the other of what was expedient or decent, by way of councell and advice.

V. 34. Thou art not,] because he was pliant to be taught by Christ: and that the spirituall meaning of the law, taking off the marke of the hypocrisie of externall Discipline, is that which guideth and prosseth the consciences to flye to Christ, to be saved from the curse of the law, which in this spirituall sense bindeth all men, Rom. 3. 20. and 7. 7. From the kingdome,] namely from Gods grace in the Gospell, by which he re-establisheth his kingdome in salvation and blessing which had beene violated by sin.

V. 38. In his,] See upon Mark 4. 2.

V. 41. The treasury,] the Italian, the chest of offerings,] there were two kinde of offerings offered in the Temple; the one of money for the repairing of the building, to buy the ordinary offerings for sacrifices and other uses; Which in ancient times were put into the Priests hands, and afterwards were by them carried into a chest in the inner courts 2 Kings 22. 9. But it is likely that in insuing times, to avoid all manner of fraud, diverse chests were placed in some place not specified, of the peoples Court, where every one cast in what money he pleased, as it is here said. See Iohn 8. 20. The other kinde was, of other goods, which were laid up in certaine magazines belonging to the Temple, Nehem. 10. 37, 38.

V. 44. Of her want,] of her exceeding small store, as 2 Cor. 8. 2.

Chap. XIII.

Ver. 4. Shall be fulfilled,] namely these things which thou foretellest.

V. 6. I am Christ,] the Italian, I am he,] namely the promised Messias, the King of the Church. See Mat. 24. 5.

V. 27. Of heaven,] a popular terme. For to the eye the heavens seeme to terminate the earth round about, See upon Mat. 24. 30.

Chap. XIV.

Ver. 12. When they] the same day as according to the law they were to kill the Passeover, though the Iewes by tradition did transferre the feast to the day following, Mat. 26. 17. See why the Lambe is called a Sacrifice, upon Exod. 23. 27. 2 Chro. 35. 11, 12.

V. 35. The houre] that is to say that he might not come to that terrible point of his extreame sufferings.

V. 36. Abba] it was a Syriack word which little children used to their fathers, which was afterwards used, in all affectionate prayers to God Himselfe, See Rom. 8. 15. Gal. 4. 6.

V. 41. It is enough] so the Lord doth in earnest correct those words which before he had spoken ironically.

V. 50. They all] namely his Disciples.

Ver. 51. A certaine] there is no certainty either what this young man was, or why hee followed the Lord in this habit. Some conjecture that it might bee some of the servants of the house, where Iesus had eaten the Passeover, who for curiosity or for affection might rise out of his bed, when he saw the Lord goe forth in the night so, to see the issue of the words, which he might heare from himselfe, concerning his apprehension. Others will have it be some one, that did rise sodainly at the noise. A linnen cloth] it might bee his shirt, or some other night raiment. The young men] namely the Souldiers.

V. 55. Agreed not] or were not sufficient.

V. 61. Of the blessed,] namely of God, to whom all glory and praise is due. And this was a name of God very frequent among the Iewes.

V. 62. Of power,] namely of the glorious God, according to the Iewes custome. See upon Mat. 26. 64.

V. 69. A maide,] the Italian, the maide,] in Saint Matthew it is said that it was another: but it may be that the first which was she that kept the doore, Iohn 18. 17. told the other, and she told the standers by.

V. 72. He wept,] or he went out and wept.

Chap. XV.

Ver. 7. In the insurrection,] he seemes to insinuate some new and notable insurrection.

V. 21. Of Alexander,] knowne and famous persons in the Church at that time.

V. 23. Wine,] this should seeme to be another kinde of drinke besides the vineger mingled with gall, Matth. 27. 34. For this wine was given to condemned men in mercy, to dull their sences. The other was given by the souldiers, in mockery and insolency. Vnlesse we should say, that these wicked men mingled all together. Received it not,] as well to preserve and keepe himselfe in his entire senses to the last, to make his sufferings perfectly voluntary: as because he would not abate any thing of his torments: willing to beare them all thorow obedience, ence and overcome them by his onely vertue, uprightneſſe and innocency.

V. 25. The third,] namely, of cleere day. which was divided into twelve even hours, Iohn 11.9. and therefore this third houre was correſpondent to our nine a clock in the morning. See touching the houre of our Lords death, upon Iohn 19.14.

V. 32. And they,] that is as much as to ſay, one of them, Luke 23.39.

V. 39. That he ſo,] the Italian, that after he had cried ſo,] though there were ſome apparent cauſes, to judge, that in this death there was ſome ſupernaturall thing, it being cleere that it was a voluntary death, ſeeing he was yet full of life, yeelding ſo ſtrong a cry, and that he had no other wound but onely the piercing of his hands and his feet: whereupon Pilate alſo marvelled that he ſhould be dead already. Yet for all that we muſt beleeve, that the Centurion had ſome divine inſtinct to beleeve and ſpeake in that kinde.

V. 40. The leſſe,] ſo ſirnamed, either by reaſon of his ſtature, or for ſome other unknowne reaſon to diſtinguiſh him from the other two, Iames of Alpheus, and Zebedeus, the Apoſtles.

V. 43. Becauſe it was,] it ſhould ſeeme that this was the occaſion which moved Ioſeph to make ſuch haſte, by reaſon of nights drawing on; namely, becauſe at the ſelfeſame time he began the preparation of the feaſt, which laſted from nine houres untill the beginning of the day, which was before the feaſt, of which three houres there was at the leaſt one feſtivall. The preparation,] ſee upon Matthew 27.62.

V. 43. Counſellor,] Senator or member of that great Councell of ſeventy two. The kingdome,] namely, the reſtauration of the ſpirituall kingdome of the Church by the Meſſias. See Luke 2.25.38.

Chap. XVI.

VER. 1. Had bought,] namely in the three laſt houres of the day, in which our Lord was crucified, Pſal. 16.9. See upon Iohn 19.40.

V. 4. For it was,] ſo that it was impoſſible to remoove it out of the place without rouling of it. Or we muſt ſuppoſe that they wondered that it ſhould be ſo rolled away, being a very great ſtone.

V. 5. Into the ſepulchre,] cut out in the rock in the manner of a cave. A young man,] an Angell in that wonted forme: to repreſent that this age was the condition of the bleſſed life alwaies equal, like to the ſplendor and glory of the angels, and their vigor and ſwiftneſſe in their ſervice and motion.

V. 7. And Peter,] whether it were to preſerve Peter in the honour of being in the firſt order amongſt the Apoſtles, or to comfort him particularly after his repentance. Or becauſe Peter with Iohn had ſhewed himſelfe moſt zealous of inquiring out the truth of the buſineſſe by comming to the Sepulchre and going into it. Iohn 20.3,6. and that therefore the Angell would free him from his anxiety.

V. 8. Neither ſaid they,] that is to ſay, they ſtayed not to talke with any one, but runne in haſte to relate it to the Diſciples. Mat. 28.8. Luke 24.9.

V. 12. In another forme,] ſeverall from that in which he appeared to Mary Magdalen; or from that which he was in before his reſurrection, or in regard of his habit, Iohn 20.15. or in regard of the ſplendor of his countenance after his reſurrection, or that their eyes were dazled by a divine power, Luke 24.16.

V. 14. At meat,] after their meale in their talke and holy converſation a good while before night, Iohn 20.19.

V. 16. And is baptized,] that is to ſay, hath added himſelfe to my Church being baptized, taking it as a token and ſignall of the open profeſſion of faith, which is neceſſary to ſalvation, Rom. 10.

V. 17. Theſe ſignes,] this promiſe is eſpeciall for thoſe firſt times of the Goſpels preaching; and belonged onely to thoſe who had the gift of working of miracles, either in generall, as the Apoſtles, or in particular, as others of the Church, 1 Cor. 12.7. 8,10,28.

V. 19. Had ſpoken,] ſevetall times, Acts 1. 2,3.

THE HOLY GOSPELL OF OVR LORD IESVS CHRIST ACCORDING TO SAINT LVKE.

Argument.

QVestionlesse the writer of this Gospell is, that Luke, of whom Saint Paul speaketh in diverse places of his Epistles; calling him sometimes the most beloved Physician. Col. 4.14. Sometimes his faithfull companion, who hath not forsaken him in all his labours, 2 Tim. 4.11. Sometimes his fellow labourer, in the Lords work, Philem. 24. Though it be not specified any where, who or whence he was, nor when he was converted to the faith (which notwithstanding seeme to be after our Saviours ascension into heaven) nor what office he hath borne in the Church. But howsoever it is likely that he was one of the Evangelists, whereof the Apostles had always some one under them, to send and imploy for the planting and ordering of Churches in particular Provinces: or to manure, maintaine, and set forward the Gospell, in those places where the Apostles had first sowne the seed of it: for which purpose the Evangelists were endowed with the infallible conduct of the Holy Ghost in their word and writing. Such an one was S. Luke under S. Paul: who also seemeth to have compiled this Evangelicall history, for the use of the Gentile Churches, for which the Apostle was especially appointed: having to that end indited it in a stile which retaineth the character and property of the pure Greek tongue more then the rest of the Evangelists. Now he therein relates by way of summary, the greatest part of the doctrines and notable acts which the other had touched: and addeth thereunto diverse parts which do illustrate and make up the body of the history exceeding well. Especially touching the miraculous birth of Iohn the Baptist, and of Iesus Christ: And many other heads, from which the Church may draw great increase of knowledge and edification.

CHAP. I.

VER. 1. As many,] it is likely that he meanes the holy and true Evangelists, and not the other false ones. The meaning is, seeing that Gods providence would raise up diverse writers of the Gospell. I also moved by the same Spirit do freely undertake the same worke.

V. 2. Of the word,] namely, of the Gospell, or of Christ himselfe called the word, Iohn 1.1.

V. 3. To me,] by divine inspiration. See Acts 15. 19.

19,35,38. 1 Chron. 24.10. Theophilus,] a noted perſonage in the Church, in thoſe dayes, Acts 1.1.

V. 5. Of the courſe,] the Prieſts being divided in ſeverall courſes or turnes to do their miniſtery in the Temple by weekes: 1 Chron. 24.3 Neh 12.1.12. Of the daughters,] namely of their deſcent or lineage.

V. 6. Before God,] in truth and ſincerity of conſcience, anſwerable to God, and to his judgements, and not in ſhew towards men onely.

V. 9. His lot,] this manner of diſtributing the particular ſervices in the Temple, is not ſpecified in Scripture, and therefore is thought to be brought in by tradition. Now that which is ſaid Exod. 30.7. that it belonged to Aaron to burne incenſe, ought alſo to be underſtood of all his children, 1 Chron. 6.49.

V. 10. Without,] namely in the peoples Court.

V. 13. Thy prayer,] which he had made long before for to obtaine children. For it is not likely that he ſought it at that time, being both paſt age. See v. 18.25. Iohn,] that is to ſay, favour or grace of the Lord, to ſhew not onely the abundant favour and grace of the Lord upon his perſon, but alſo the miniſtery of Gods grace in Chriſt, for which he was ordained.

V. 15. In the ſight,] that is to ſay in his ſervice, and in his eſteeme: which is oppoſite to Iohns meanneſſe according to the worlds eſteeme. Neither wine,] being conſecrated to God as a Nazarite. Num. 6. 3. Shall be filled,] that is to ſay he ſhall be abundantly endowed with the gifts of the holy Ghoſt beſeeming his vocation.

V. 16. Shall he turne,] that is to ſay, he ſhall be an inſtrument of their converſion, by his preaching accompanied with Gods power, Acts 26.18. Iames 5.19.20.

V. 17. Before him,] namely, before the Meſſias, who is the true God of Iſrael, as it is cleere by this paſſage. In the Spirit,] that is to ſay, adorned in his perſon, and acompanied in his miniſtery by the miraculous power of Gods Spirit, as Elias was, and for the ſame ends. The diſobedient,] this is added for the explication of the words of Mal. 4. 5,6. to ſhew that the childrens going aſtray from their fathers wayes which Malachy ſpeakes of was nothing but their diſobedience and rebellion; and their going aſtray from the wiſdome and juſtice of their good forefathers.

V. 19. That ſtand,] as his miniſter and meſſenger.

V. 20. Thou ſhalt be,] a miraculous ſigne to confirme the foretold things: and withall for a puniſhment of his incredulity. See Ezek. 3.26. & 24.27. Becauſe thou,] hence it appeares that Zecharias his requeſt, v. 18. did not proceed from a pure and humble deſire of being confirmed in Gods promiſe, as Marie's was, v. 34 but from a vicious diffidency.

V. 23. As the dayes,] which were a whole weeke. 1 Chron. 9.25.

V. 24. Hid her ſelfe,] untill the miracle came to be certaine, becauſe ſhe might not expoſe her ſelfe to the ſcorne of men, which might have moved her faith, and have redounded to the contempt of God.

V. 25. This hath,] words of admiration and joy after ſhe was certain of her conception. My reproach] becauſe that barrenneſſe was accounted a diſhonourable thing amongſt Gods people, Gen. 30.23. as a kinde of curſe of God, or defect of nature.

V. 26. Sixth moneth,] after Elizabeth had conceaved.

V. 28. Favoured,] who art excepted of at Gods hands, and haſt received this ſingular favour, as to be eſteemed worthy of this Soveraigne honour to be the Mother of the Meſſias.

V. 32. Shall be called,] that is to ſay, ſhall be acknowledged to be the true everlaſting and eſſentiall Sonne of God, though manifeſted in the fleſh, which he taketh from thee, and that by reaſon of the union of the two natures. The throne,] that is to ſay, the ſpirituall kingdome of the Church, of which Davids temporall kingdome was a figure.

V. 34. How ſhall,] a queſtion out of pure admiration, and a deſire to be inſtructed in a truth needfull to be knowne, and not to be apprehended by mans underſtanding. Seeing,] the Virgin ſpeaketh thus, becauſe that the Angell had ſpoken to her of Chriſts conception, as of a thing which ſhould ſhortly come to paſſe: and the marriage betweene Ioſeph and her might be deferred for a time, as it appeareth by Mat. 1.18.

V. 35. Overſhadow thee,] a figurative kinde of ſpeech, to ſignifie the ſecret power of the holy Ghoſt in this worke; taken moſt likely from thence that God did anciently appeare wrapped up in a Cloud and miſt, 1 Kings 8.12. Therefore,] that is to ſay, this ſupernaturall conception, and ſanctification of Chriſts humanity, ſhall cauſe the glorious name of Sonne of God, which did from all eternity eſſentially belong unto his Godhead, to be alſo fitly attributed to him in regard of his humanity, by reaſon of the correſpondency of it in perfect holineſſe and other vertues.

V. 36. with her,] of her being with childe.

V. 39. The hill countrey,] it was a part of the land of Iudah. See Ioſh. 15.48. Into a Citie,] namely Hebron, a City appointed for the Prieſts, ſuch as Zacharias was, in the ſame countrey of Iudah. Ste Ioſh. 21.11.

V. 41. Leaped,] for a ſigne of this new power, and motion of the holy Ghoſt, that did at that inſtant ſeaze upon the mother by Propheticall inſpiration. Or to ſhew the ſecret and miraculous correſpondency which was between Chriſt and Iohn, and Iohns joy at Chriſts coming. Was filled,] that is to ſay, was inſpired and fully enlightened by the h. Ghoſt in the knowledge and miſtery of the incarnation of the Sonne of God; and in the knowledge of ſuch things as had hapned to Marie, though abſent and farre off.

V. 45. That beleeveth,] for Mary by faith, which is alſo a gift of God in her, had made her ſelfe capable of this miraculous grace: as that vertue was neceſſary in all miracles.

V. 48. Hath regarded,] that is to ſay, hath taken pity upon the wretched condition and eſtate that I the daughter of David was brought into, and hath not diſdained my poverty, but hath been pleaſed to chuſe me for a veſſell of his grace in this great work. See Pſal. 113. 5. 6. and 138. 6.

V. 51. He hath,] a prophecie of the eſtabliſhment of Chriſts kingdome, to the overthrowing of all the counſels and endeavours of Gods enemies. In the,] the Italian, By the,] as Pſal. 34. 22. and 94. 23. Or thoſe who are proud in the imagination of their hearts. See Iob 5. 12.

V. 54. Hath holpen,] or hath taken into his protection, or hath raiſed up.

V. 55. As he ſpake,] that is to ſay, as he promiſed.

V. 59. They came,] namely, into the place of prayer, or into the Synagogue, according to the cuſtome; or, into the private houſe with an aſſembly of people.

V. 60. Not ſo,] it is likely that Zacharias had given Elizabeth notice, by writing of the name which was appointed by the Angell. v. 13.

V. 66. The hand,] that is to ſay, Gods apparant favour and protection, was with him, and there appeared in him an extraordinary divine vertue and operation.

V. 67. Prophecied,] that is to ſay, he ſpake by divine inſpiration of the miſteries of the Churches ſalvation, which as yet were not fully revealed.

V. 68. Viſited,] that is to ſay, he hath in effect ſhewne the care he hath of them.

V. 69. Raiſed up,] he hath given the Church cauſe to triumph, by reaſon of the ſpirituall victory which the Meſſias hath had over all his enemies. See concerning this manner of ſpeech, 1 Sam. 2. 1. Pſa. 75. 4. and 89. 17.

V. 76. Shalt be called,] thou ſhalt not onely be ſo indeed, but ſhalt be acknowledged to be ſuch by publike teſtimony.

V. 78. Day ſpring,] namely, Ieſus Chriſt the true Sonne of righteouſneſſe, Mal. 4. 2.

V. 79. Of peace,] of perfect happineſſe.

V. 80. In Spirit,] namely in the gifts and graces of the holy Ghoſt, which proportionably to his age manifeſted themſelves to be in him, & wrought daily more powerfully and maturely in him. Of his ſhewing,] that he began to exerciſe his office by Gods expreſſe command.

Chap. II.

Ver. 1. All the world,] a popular kind of ſpeech, that is to ſay, the whole Roman Empire, which as falſely as ambitiouſly was termed univerſall, according to the ſtile of thoſe great Empires, Iſay 13. 5. and 14. 26. Ier. 34. 1. Dan. 2. 39. Taxed,] that the number of perſons, and their wealth, ſhould be ſet downe: as the cuſtome of the Roman Empire was to doe oftentimes.

V. 2. Was firſt,] for under the ſame Cyrenius there was another tax mentioned, Acts 5. 37. Governour,] in this firſt taxation he was not the ordinary Governour, but was extraordinarily deputed with a moſt ample power in that Province, to make this taxation.

V. 3. Into his owne,] this ought to be eſpecially underſtood of the Iewes, who by their ancient diviſions had their Tribes, Nations, and Families, with their inheritances, in certaine ſeverall Cities: in which they held their freedome of being Citizens, though they dwelt elſewhere.

V. 4. Nazareth,] where their habitation was; though they came from Bethlehem, where they were Citizens. Of David,] namely, the City where he was borne, and where the ancient ſeat of his family was, 1 Sam 16. 1. Iohn 7. 42.

V. 7. In a manger,] of the ſtable of that Inne, where they were lodged. In which Inne all other places were taken up, by reaſon of the great concourſe of people, either by ſuch as were firſt come, or ſuch as were of more note and eſteeme.

V. 9. The glory,] namely, an admirable and heavenly light which was wont to accompany the apparitions of Angels.

V. 13. Heavenly hoſt,] an ordinary name of holy Angels.

V. 14. Towards,] or amongſt men.

V. 19. Pondered them,] examining, gathering together, and comparing them one with the other, to ſtrengthen her ſelfe more and more in knowledge and faith. See Acts 17. 11. 1 Cor. 2. 13.

V. 21. For the circumciſing] Chriſt would be circumciſed for the ſame reaſons for which hee would alſo be baptized, and participate of the other Sacraments. See upon Mat. 3. 13.

V. 22. Of her purification,] namely of Marie. Now ſome texts have it of their purification, namely of Ieſus and his Mother: for the infants were reputed to participate of their mothers legall uncleanneſſe.

V. 24. A paire,] which was the offering for the poorer ſort of people, Lev. 12. 8.

V. 25. Devout,] or religious and fearing God. Waiting,] for at that time the mindes of true beleevers, were attentive to look for the comming of the promiſed

Meſſias. See Marke 1. 43. Luke 2. 38. The Holy Ghoſt] that is to ſay he was endowed with the ſpirit of propheſie.

V. 26. Chriſt] the Greeke name, anſwerable to the Hebrew name Meſſias; that is to ſay, annointed and conſecrated for eternall King and Prieſt, Pſal. 2. 6. Iſa. 61. 1. Dan. 9. 24.

Ver. 27. The parents] the Italian. The Father] and mother namely Ioſeph, according to the common opinion. See Heb. 7. 3. After the cuſtome] which was to preſent him to the Lord, and ranſome him, Exod. 34. 20.

V. 29. Lord now] even at this time that thou haſt accompliſhed thy promiſe unto mee, and that I have with mine eyes ſeene the Saviour of the world, I die happie and contented. See Geneſis 46. 30.

V. 31. Prepared] that is to ſay ordained and appointed from everlaſting, to make it knowne in the appointed time to all Nations without any difference to make them partakers of it.

Ver. 32. To lighten] or which muſt bee revealed to all Nations.

Ver. 33. Marveiled] not but that they perfectly knew it by the Angels Revelation: but becauſe they ſaw this light was alſo communicated to others, and and did ſpread it ſelfe abroad.

Verſe 34. This child is ſet] or ſent that is to ſay God hath eſtabliſhed him, to be the fundamentall ſtone of ſalvation, to all thoſe that ſhall receive him by a lively faith, who ſhall by him bee relieved from the fall of ſinne and condemnation. And contrariwiſe to bee a cauſe of a greater and more irreparable ruine, to thoſe who thorow their owne perverſeneſſe ſhall reject him. For a ſigne] as a miraculous perſon, approved by all the infallible ſignes of truth and vertue, to bee as it were a pledge, and ſignall ſet up of ſalvation, Iſaiah 11. verſe 10. whom the world notwithſtanding ſhall oppoſe thorow incredulity and hardneſſe of heart.

V. 35. A Sword] ſuch ſhall the oppoſition bee that thou thy ſelfe who art his mother, muſt prepare thy ſelfe to bee pierced with extreame griefes and anguiſhes. That the thoughts] that is to ſay God ſhall ſuffer and bring all this to paſſe, to the end that by the preaching of the Goſpell may bee diſcovered the impietie and rebellion of Gods open enemies. Which is never ſo fierce as againſt the Goſpell. And the hypocriſie of the falſe Children of Gods houſe: who under the profeſſion of his name and ſervice: doe reject the onely meanes of knowing him to ſalvation, and of ſerving him in truth. And finally to ſhew the internall difference of ſoules, whereof ſome thorow grace beleeve in CHRIST, the others reject him thorow their owne malice. See 2 Corinthians 2. 15, 16.

Ver. 36. Had lived] this ſeemeth to bee added for to commend this womans Chaſtitie and devotion: Who being left a widdow in the flower of her age had continued ſo, to dedicate her ſelfe wholly to workes of piety in the Temple, according to the manner of many holy women in thoſe dayes, Exod. 38. 8. 1 Sam. 2. 22.

Verſe 39. They had] Namely IOSEPH and Mary.

Verſe 40. Waxed ſtrong] whereby is ſhowne, That the fulneſſe of the gifts of the Spirit, ſhewed it ſelfe in him, and brought forth extraordinary good effects, according to the progreſſe of his age, and the increaſe of his bodily ſtrength, hee being every way made like unto man, except ſinne. The grace] that is to ſay, it plainely appeared that GOD did love him, in a ſpeciall manner, directing, keeping, and bleſſing him in all things.

V. 41. Went] carrying Ieſus along with them according to the Law. At the feaſt] the Law appointed all Males to come to the Temple at the three ſolemne feaſts, Exod. 23. 17. Deut. 16. 16. and becauſe here was nothing commanded concerning women. Some have thought that it is here ſpecially ſpoken of the Paſſeover, in regard of Mary; who came thither of free devotion. Others hold that the command of comming to the three feaſts, was reſtrained to the Paſſeover onely, after the people were multiplyed and ſcattered into farre Countries.

Ver. 49. Buſineſſe] namely to doe ſuch things as he had commanded me, and performe his ſervice: beginning at doctrine. Others tranſlate it to look to my fathers houſe.

V. 52. In favour] That is to ſay, Gods gifts, and graces, and his favour to Chriſt did daily appeare more evident and abundant, ver. 40. whereupon hee alſo obtained by a ſecret vertue the love and good will of men. See 1 Sam. 2. 26. Prov. 3. 4. Acts 2. 47. Rom. 14. 18.

CHAP. III.

VER. 1. Being Governour] as a Proctor or overſeer of the Emperours buſineſſes. For there were ſome provinces reſerved for Cæſar: diſtinct from them which belonged to the people of Rome, whoſe Governours were choſen by the people. Herod] Sonne to Herod the great, from whoſe other ſonne called Archelaus the Romans tooke away Iudea, reducing it into a province. Tetrarch] See upon Matthew 14. 1. Iturea] theſe provinces, were Countries of the ancient Paleſtine, which lay beyond Iordan, bordering upon Siria. Abilene] this was alſo a ſmall Country beyond Iordan.

V. 2. Annas] according to the Law there could be but one high Prieſt, namely the firſt of Aarons lineage: But this order was perverted in thoſe dayes by the Iewes practiſes, and the Romans tyrannie: who had depoſed Annas & ſet Caiphas who was his Son in Law in his place, though peradventure they had left Annas the title for honours ſake, Act. 4. 6. or peradventure he was his great deputie, Numb. 3. 32. 2 King. 25. 18. The word] that is to ſay he had an eſpeciall command and revelation, for to begin to exerciſe his office. See Luke 1. 80. In the wilderneſſe] ſee upon Mat. 3. 1..

V. 6. The ſalvation] namely Ieſus Chriſt, in whom conſiſteth the ſalvation of the world, ſhall be manifeſted not onely to the Iewes, as hee was formerly but to all Nations indifferently.

V. 10. Shall we doe] to bring forth ſuch fruits as thou requireſt of us, ver. 8. and to flee from the wrath to come.

V. 11. Let him impart] ſhewing his pietie by acts of pure charity towards his neighbours.

V. 14. Falſly] vexing him by cunning or malice, and accuſing him for falſe crimes, &c.

V. 15. Were in expectation] concerning the comming and the manifeſtation of the Meſſias, that firme beliefe being rooted in the mindes of them who lived in thoſe dayes, that the time of it was come: as well in regard of the prophecies, and the accompliſhment of times, as by reaſon of ſome ſecret inſpiration of God.

V. 23. About] the meaning ſeemes to be, that he was newly entred into his one and thirtieth yeare. Thirtie] at which age the Prieſts began to enter into ſervice. Num. 4. 3. 35, 39, 43, 47. which it ſeems our Lord did imitate, who was the great ſpirituall Prieſt. The Sonne of Heli] the great difference that is betweene the two Genealogies of our Lord in Saint Matthew and in Saint Luke, as well in the names as in the number of the heads ſheweth plainely that they are two ſeverall ones. In that of Saint Matthew, Ioſeph is mentioned in his owne proper name as iſſued by naturall generation from thoſe who are there ſet downe. In that of Saint Luke, he repreſents other perſons, and eſpecially that of the Virgin Mary, whoſe true pedigree is ſet downe by St. Luke. For in the Iewiſh genealogies, women made no heads, but if they were not heires, the brothers only were named in them: and if they were as the holy Virgin was, they paſſed under their Husbands names; who ought to bee of the ſame Nation. And thereupon wee muſt note, that the Ancients by originall tradition have written that Davids line by Salomon failing in Ieconiah the branch of Zorobabel iſſued of David by Nathan, Mat. 1. 12. ſucceeded in the governement of the people. And that one of Zorobabell of Abiud ſet down by S. Matthew, and of Rheſa ſet downe by Saint Luke. And that it happened that Matthan the Grandfather of Ioſeph, iſſued of Abiud, Matth. 1. 15. married a woman called Biſtha, and of her had Iacob: and that after the death of Matthan, Melchi deſcended of the branch of Rheſa, married this woman, and had by her this Heli who is named by Saint Luke. So that Iacob and Heli, were brothers by the mother. And ſo Heli being married and dying without iſſue Iacob married the widdow according to the Law, Deut. 25. 5. and by her had Ioſeph. So that in Saint Matthew Ioſeph is the proper ſonne of Iacob: But in Saint Luke he is reputed the ſurrogate ſonne of Heli, in whoſe name hee was ingendred according to the Law. Then that all the branch of Rheſa being reduced only into the perſon of the bleſſed Virgin, Ioſeph as being her neereſt kinſman was betrothed unto her according to the Law, Num. 36. 8. So that Ioſeph is inſerted into the line of Rheſa by two titles; as engendred to raiſe iſſue to Heli, brother by the mothers ſide to Iacob, and as Husband to Mary, heire to all that line. Whereupon the ancients doe ſay two notable things. The firſt that this Heli was the Sonne of Melchi immediately, without counting Matthat or Levi, which Saint Luke puts in betweene Heli and Melchi. The ſecond that there are but ſeventy two generations in our Saviours genealogie ſet downe by Saint Luke, and yet adding thereunto the foreſaid Matthat, and Levi there would be ſeventy foure. Whereupon may be inferred that Melchi was the father of the Virgin Mary, and that he was the Sonne of Levi, who was the brother of Heli, both iſſued from Melchi. So that theſe two heads Matthat and Levi, were in the Regiſter collaterally joyned to Heli, with whom in reſpect of Ioſeph they were reputed but at one generation. Only to ſhew that as Ioſeph was come into this genealogie by ſurrogation in the name of Heli, ſo he had gotten alſo a ſecond right by eſpouſing Mary who was the heire. And though Ioſeph had no part in the generation of our Lord Ieſus, yet the Evangeliſts have beene pleaſed to ſet downe theſe genealogies as they found them in the Iewiſh records in which queſtionleſſe Ieſus was ſet downe as the ſonne of Ioſeph and Mary, according to the common opinion, corrected by the relation of the hidden truth concerning his miraculous birth.

V. 36. Of Arphaxad] in your common Text Cainan is ſet down betweene Sala and Arphaxad but that being contrary to Moſes his Hiſtory, and being rejected by the beſt antiquity, as a Scriveners error, cauſed by ſome Copies of the Greekiſh tranſlation, this Cainan hath bin here left out.

Verſe 38. Of God] that is to ſay created by him.

CHAP.

Chap. IIII.

Ver. 6. Delivered] so the Devill is constrained to confesse that he hath no power over the world but only by Gods permission, which hee falsly termeth a gift. Whereas indeed it is but only a leasing in to him. See Rev. 13. 2, 7.

V. 13. For a season] untill such time as he openly fell upon him, and assaulted him at the time of his passion. See Luk. 22. 53. Iohn 14. 30.

V. 14. In the power] carryed in this voyage by a divine power, and peradventure by a swift motion. As by the same power he had beene maintained in the desert without any food.

V. 16. And stood up] it was the fashion amongst the Iewes that if any one did come to their Ecclesiasticall meeting, who was knowne to have the gift of understanding the holy Scripture which was read every Sabboth day, Acts 13. 27. and 15. 21. they would intreate him to make them partakers of it for their common edification. See Acts 13. 15. 1 Cor. 14. 29, 30.

V. 17. He had opened] for bookes in those dayes were made of parchment or some such like stuffe rolled up about a stick.

V. 18. That are bruised] with troubles and torments in their slavery and captivity.

V. 19. The acceptable] that is to say the yeare or time of grace and reconciliation in which God hath shewed himselfe propicious, and hath layd open his good will to mankinde.

Ver. 21. is this] this is a summary of the Lords Sermon, shewing that those things which had beene spoken by the Prophet 3 were now accomplished by the Gospell, which hee had begun to preach unto them.

V. 22. The gracious] divinely pleasing, and gracious words, attracting soules by a secret perswasion, as proceeding from the grace of the Holy Ghost, of which hee was full, Iohn 1. 14. and words which brought them tydings of Gods grace, whereof hee was the Mediatour, Psal. 45. 2. Cant. 4. 3. Isa. 50. 4. Iohn 7. 46. See Ephes. 4. 29. Col. 3. 16. and 4, 5.

V. 23. Physician] an ordinary proverb, meaning, respect those that are neere thee more than strangers, thou hast wrought many miracles in other places, and here thou workest none: Whereupon thou art not here so much honoured nor accepted of as thou art elsewhere: Which things they spake because hee wrought never a miracle in Nazareth, Marke 6. ver. 4.

V. 25. I tell you] these examples are to shew that God oftentimes, in the communicating of his graces, preferres strangers and such as are far from him before those that are neerer unto him if they prove unworthy.

V. 30. Passing] having miraculously dazled their eyes: or restrained their power.

V. 36. What a word] that is to say doctrine accompanied with so many miracles? Or this kinde of operative word, which is so effectuall that it presently produceth its effects?

V. 38. They besought] namely his Disciples, or those of Peters houshold.

V. 39. He stood] that is to say he came and stood nigh her, and bowed himselfe over her.

V. 41. Suffered] See upon Mar. 1. 25. To speake] or to say what they knew, &c.

Chap. V.

Ver. 8. Depart] Peter finding in Christ a divine and extraordinary vertue did presently feel within himselfe the naturall terrors of the soule of a sinfull man when he drawes neere to God. Which terrors being overcome by faith in his grace are changed into an humble reverence and adoration. See 1 King. 17. 18.

V. 17. The power] that is to say, God whose actions are free, in a superlative degree would shew his power in delivering them there, thorow Christ; who also told them so. See Acts 11. 21.

V. 39. No man] the meaning is that all manner of change of life, though for the better, must bee done by little and little, and by a deliberate using ones selfe to it. By which meanes those things which seemed very harsh doe grow more pleasing to man. Even as they use to let Wines settle before they pierce them, or make use of them.

Chap. VI.

Ver. 1. The second] as it was commanded, Lev. 23. 14, 15. to count seaven weekes or Sabbaths from the day after the Passeover (at which time corne, especially the first kind of graine did begin to ripen in those places) to Pentecost.

V. 15. Zelotes] See upon, Mat. 10. 4.

V. 19. There went] see Mar. 5. 30.

V. 22. Shall separate you] the Italian. Excommunicate you] namely from the externall communion of Gods people, as prophane, whose names were blotted out of their register. This ought to bee understood of the Iewish persecutions, and those persecutions which were wrought by them who carryed the name of being the Church, and the heads thereof. See Iohn 16. 2.

V. 24. That are rich] that is to say worldly, that doe set all your delight, love, confidence and glory in your riches: which is the false wealth, opposite to poverty in spirit Luk. 12. 21. For ye have] you shall have no other, but temporall happinesse which you have so

ſo much affected and deſired. See Matth 6.1.

V. 26. when all men,] when you ſhall have the generall applauſe and favour of the world, which you cannot obtaine without framing your ſelves to their wicked workes, and to the wronging of Gods ſervice. Iohn 15.19.

V. 27. which heare,] which have the gift of my Spirit, to receive my doctrine into your hearts, by the internall eare of the faith.

V. 30. Aske them not,] namely by unlawfull, violent, and ſcandalous wayes. Suffer the wrong that is done to thee, rather than to tranſgreſſe againſt the lawes of chriſtian charity and equity.

V. 32. What thanke,] what approbation or reward from God; who doth not hold that to be a good work, and done for love of him, which is done for carnall and civill reſpects, and thorow a meer naturall motion.

35. Hoping for,] with intent to loſe whatſoever ye lend, if your neighbours want do require it: and that you cannot get it againe without violating the lawes of charity, and giving ſcandall and offence. Or without any reſpect to your ſelves, to expect a recompence or an equall curteſie for requitall. Ye ſhal be] you ſhall ſhew your ſelves to bee ſuch in effect. See upon Matthew, 5 45. 1 Iohn 2. 29. and 3. 9, 10.

V. 38. Into your boſome] See upon, Pſal. 79.12.

V. 40. Shall be] the Italian, Ought to be] that is to ſay muſt, or ought to content himſelfe to be ſo.

V. 43. For a good] or the Tree is not good which bringeth forth evill fruit. And this is the reaſon of the precedent exhortation. As if he ſhould ſay to beare the fruit of judging thy brother uprightly; cleanſe thy ſelfe from thine owne vices.

Chap. VII.

Ver. 3. He ſent] Saint Matthew ſaith that he came himſelfe. But that which was done in his name was attributed to himſelfe.

V. 5. A Synagogue] a place for our meetings for exerciſes of piety. This Centurion was of the third kinde of proſelites noted upon, Matthew 23. 15.

V. 21. And plagues] ſee Mar. 3.10.

V. 29. Juſtified] namely theſe men acknowledged and defended Gods honour, in the truth of his doctrine of grace preached by Iohn, and confirmed by Chriſt againſt the accuſations and reproofes of the Phariſees and Doctors, after they had embraced it by a lively faith.

V. 30. Rejected] or diſannulled that is to ſay they did by their incredulity cauſe the preaching of Gods grace, by which he determined to ſave man thorow faith in Chriſt, to bee of none effect to them. See Acts 20. 27. Againſt themſelves] to their owne perdition. Others tranſlate it in themſelves.

V. 37. A Woman] all the circumſtances ſhew that this was another woman and another act, beſides that which is ſet downe Mat. 26.7. Ioh. 12.2. A ſinner] that is to ſay a ſtrumpet.

V. 41. A certaine creditor] the Lord telleth this Phariſee, who was none of his adverſaries, yet had not as yet altogether put off the pride of his Sect: that he ought not to deſpiſe this woman ſo much; becauſe he was a ſinner as wel as ſhe, and a debtor to Gods judgment: and had need of his grace in Chriſt to obtaine remiſſion. And that if the woman were more loaden with ſin then he was, Gods grace was likewiſe more abundant towards her; and ſhe exchangeably did render greater love and acknowledgment. Whereupon ſeeing that mans dignity, conſiſteth in receaving and reſtoring much, ſhe had advantage above him.

V. 44. No water] according to the cuſtome in thoſe dayes eſpecially when a man came out of the Country.

V. 47. For ſhe loved] love is not here ſet downe for a cauſe of the forgiveneſſe, as it appeareth by the precedent ſimilitude: but for a certaine proofe, and effect of it.

V. 48. Thy ſinnes] the woman, according to the Lords diſcourſe having ſhewed much love towards him, had already receaved the pardon of her ſinnes, and felt Gods grace in her heart: And therefore that which he ſpeakes here, is but for a declaration, and greater confirmation of the thing.

Chap. VIII.

Verse 10. That ſeeing] See upon Mar. 4.12.

V. 13. Of temptation] namely of afflictions which God ſendeth them, to try who are indeed his.

V. 15. With patience] perſevering to the end, amidſt all their tryalls and afflictions, which is as were the fulneſſe and ripeneſſe of the fruit, Rom. 5. 7. Heb. 10.36.

V. 31. Into the deepe] that is to ſay into hell, out of which the Spirits are as yet ſuffered to wander, in the aire and upon the earth, Epheſ. 2. 2. and 6. 12. untill they be driven away, and ſhut up into the place of eternall torments, Rev. 20.2, 10.

V. 37. Returned] namely beyond the water to Galile.

Ver. 42. Lay a dying] Saint Matthew ſaith that ſhe was then dead: but wee muſt imagine that the father having ſeene her departing imagined ſhee was dead, though ſhee died but whileſt Ieſus was coming to the houſe.

V. 46. That vertue] See upon, Luk. 6.19.

V. 56. They ſhould tell] See upon, Mat. 8.4.

Chap.

CHAP. IX.

Vse. 28. Eight dayes] Saint Matthew and Saint Mark say six, but it should seeme that they reckoned neither the first nor the last day which are here spoken of wherein these things were done: and named only those six dayes which were betweene those two, which two are also included here by Saint Luke.

V. 30. Them] namely Moses and Elias.

Ver. 39. Teareth him] See upon Marke 1. 26. and 9. 20.

V. 46. A reasoning] or a discourse, and argument.

V. 47. The thought] of worldly ambition which did drive them into these discourses.

V. 48. For he] that is to say, I give you these precepts, because that true greatnesse before God, consists in a sincere and innocent humility like unto that of a little child.

V. 51. Stedfastly set] an Hebrew phrase, Ier. 42. 15. Ezek. 4. 3. to signifie a firme resolution to doe any thing.

V. 53. Did not] the Italian, would not] by reason of the extreame hatred which was between the Iewes and the Samaritans. See upon 2 Kings 17. 24. Luke 10. 33. Ioh. 4 9. for the Samaritans had their Temple of false worship in Garizim, opposite to that of Ierusalem, Ioh. 4 20.

V. 55. Yee know not] you doe not judge rightly of this motion of yours, it is but a kinde of hatred and carnall wrath, and you liken it to Elias his zeale. Or you are not enlightned by the Holy Ghost in this, to bee fully perswaded of Gods will, and justice as Elias was for to make this request in faith, and justly.

Ver. 62. Having put] that is to say no man that hath dedicated himself to Gods service in the worke of the Gospell, hath his heart yet turned towards the world, which he unwillingly leaveth, which is meant by the looking back. See Gen. 19. 26. Phil 3. 14. A similitude taken from plough men, who can never plough their furrowes straight, unlesse they alwayes looke before them. See upon 1 Kings 19. ver. 21.

CHAP. X.

Vse. 4. Salute no man] a hyperbolicall terme: which signifieth nothing but this, bee carefull and looke to the Commission which I give you, and bee not drawen away by any Offices of friendship, acquaintance, kinred or civill honesty. See 2 King 4. 29.

V. 6. The Sonne] that is to say some man capable of the blessing which you have pronounced and who is disposed to receive the doctrine of the Gospell, which bringeth tydings of the peace of God with men; which is especially directed to his elect: in whom hee creates a spirit of docile, and peaceable obedience of faith. See Iames 1. 21. It shall] see upon Mat. 10. 13.

Ver. 12. In that day] Namely of the last judgement.

V. 17. Through thy] that is to say as wee are thy Ministers, using thine authority, and call upon thy name for to drive them out.

V. 18. I beheld] the meaning is, do not you stand upon the driving of Devills out of mens bodies: for I have seene another with the eyes of the Spirit, who, now the Gospell is preached, out of the command which he usurpeth over this lower world, having his abode in the aire, Eph. 2. 2. and 6. 12. from thence assaults men with advantage, and troubles the whole world, since hee was driven out of the high heaven of glory, see Rev. 12. 9, 10.

Ver. 20. Your names] because you are chosen by God to everlasting life, Philip. 4. 3. Revel. 20. 12. and 21. 27.

V. 21. Rejoyced] by a motion of the Holy Ghost and a rapture of the soule, he perfectly did relye, and rest himselfe upon his fathers good will and pleasure, by a divine satisfaction, whereby all sorrow and griefe which he might feele or conceave by reason of the worlds contradiction, was swallowed up.

V. 22. No man] See upon, Mat. 11. 26.

V. 25. Tempted him] for if Christ had answered him, that it was to be done thorow faith in him, and in the Gospell, hee would have accused him for being contrary to Moses, and if hee had said that it was by the Law, hee would have replyed, that then his new doctrine, and the means which he propounded of obtaining salvation, were false and to no end.

V. 28. This doe] that is to say, examine thy selfe truely, whether thou doest or canst do it: for surely, if it were so, thou mightest gaine everlasting life by thy works, but thou shalt find that it is not so, Ro. 8. 3. and that the Law can not serve thee for any thing, but onely to discover thy sinne and thy condemnation unto thee, Rom. 3. 20. and 7. 7. Galath. 3. 21. 22. Make use therefore of the Law, to bee by it directed unto mee in whom is the accomplishment of it, and justification to life, Rom. 5. 18. See the like, though not the same History, Mat. 19. 17.

V. 29. To justifie] Namely to shew that hee had kept the whole Law: for if Christ had answered according to the doctrine of the Pharisees, Mat. 5. 43. that by the word neighbour are meant friends, kinsfolkes, neighbours by habitation, or well deserving persons: he would then have replyed that he had fulfilled that Commandement, for his presumption was ſo extreame, that hee made no difficulty of obſerving the firſt Table. And if CHRISTS anſwer had on the other ſide beene according to his Doctine, Matthew 5. ver. 44. hee would have rejected it as contrary to common ſence, and would thereupon have appealed to the Doctors of the Church.

Verſe 30. A certaine man] A Iew. By this parable is ſhewne, that all men, even profeſſed enemies, as the Iewes, and the Samaritans were, Iohn 4. 9 and ſtrangers that knew not one another, as this Iew was to this Samaritan, are comprehended in the Law under this name of neighbour. And beſides that true Charitie conſiſts not in any ſhew and profeſſion of conjunction and affection, but in the reall workes of doing good. And moreover that the ignorance of many Pagans moved by a ſimple naturall affection to doe the workes of the Law did convince the Iewes great knowledge which was joyned with rebellion, and careleſneſſe, Rom. 2. 27.

Verſe 31. Paſſed by] without being moved to compaſſion, or taking any care of him; but going aloofe off with diſdaine. See Pſalm. 38. 11.

Verſe 36. Was Neighbour,] that is to ſay had done that which the Law had commanded; judging truely of the meaning of it, in what toucheth the loving of a neighbour.

Verſe 41. Thou art careſull] Chriſt reprehendeth two things in Martha. One that ſhee was too buſie in receaving and entertaining him too curiouſly according to the world. The other that ſhe had withdrawne her ſelfe from attentively hearing his word: which is the moſt neceſſary entertainment that we ought to give Chriſt.

Ver. 42. Hath choſen] hath addicted her ſelfe to the true duty of receaving mee into her heart where I will remaine everlaſtingly: whereas this my converſation in the fleſh which thou ſo much ſtandeſt upon, will at the laſt bee taken away from thee by my departure out of the world. See 2 Cor. 5. 16.

CHAP. XI.

VER. 1. As alſo taught] giving them ſome expreſſe forme of it.

Verſe 14. And it was] it did not onely ſay nothing within the man who was poſſeſſed, but made him dumb alſo.

Verſe 16. From Heaven] Which might bee without doubt or contradiction. For it is likely they ſaid. Theſe miracles which thou doſt here upon earth, may either be falſe by illuſion: or feigned by ſome colluſion with the evill ſpirit. And howſoever it bee, they are not to be compared with thoſe high miracles which were wrought by Moſes and the Prophets, above whom thou exalteſt thy ſelfe and thy doctrine.

V. 20. With the finger] by Gods Almighty power ſee Exod 8. 19.

V. 21. Are in peace] that is to ſay ſecure againſt all manner of invaſion.

Ver. 30. Was a ſigne] that is to ſay a divine warning, by meanes of the miracle wrought upon his owne perſon, being come forth of the Fiſhes belly againe alive. Which queſtionleſſe Ionas had told the Ninivites of, and was by them believed, whereupon they were moved to Repentance.. Bee ſo] that is to ſay, after my Reſurrection, I ſhall fully ſhew the truth of my perſon, and the power of my word. And whoſoever ſhall not then turne to me, ſhall bee inexcuſable, and condemned without any remiſſion.

V. 33. No man] Chriſt addeth this to his former diſcourſe to ſhew that having in his life time propoſed the doctrine of ſalvation, he would put it in full evidence and power after his reſurrection; but that the light of his word, outwardly preſented, could not be ſaving, if it were not receaved by the inward ſoule, which having no inſight in heavenly things, muſt bee enlightned and purged from all wicked affections, by meanes of the Holy Ghoſt.

Ver. 36. If thy] when thou ſhalt be not onely enlightned by Gods word outwardly, but regenerated alſo by the holy Ghoſt in all the parts of thy ſoule, then ſhalt thou bee capable of enjoying the divine light to ſalvation.

Ver. 38. Waſhed] the Greeke word hath a relation to the Phariſees curious and ſuperſtitious kinds of waſhing; for doubtleſſe Chriſt obſerved all manner of civill honeſtie.

V. 39. Now doe yee] thus doth the Lord peraventure point at the novelty of their traditions beyond that which was written in Gods Law.

V. 40. Hee that] namely God that created both body and ſoule requireth alſo to bee ſerved with the purity of both. Obſerve, that of the body according to the Law, it is ſufficient: but be chiefly careſull of that of the Soule which you moſt impiouſly are careleſſe off: for hypocriſie is likely joyned with the prophaneneſſe of the heart.

Ver. 41. Give] the waſhing of the diſhes is not that which maketh the meate cleane and holy to the conſcience of him that uſeth it; but the right uſe thereof eſpecially in the way of charity.

Ver. 44. Appeare not] which are covered at the top whereby the bones and cartions that are within them can not be ſeene.

Ver. 45. Of the Lawyers] the Italian, One of the Doctors of the Law.] See upon Mat. 22. 35.

V. 48. For they] this proveth not the conſent of their imitation, but a reproach of the wickedneſſe of their their forefathers: Seeing they honoured the Prophets by building them rich Sepulchers, whereby they acknowledged that they had bin holy men, and wrongfully slaine.

V. 49. The wisedome] namely I my selfe who am the everlasting and subsisting wisdome of the Father, Prov. 8.12.

V. 52. Ye have] namely by your arts and usurpations, ye have appropriated unto your selves the power of expounding the Law of God, captivating mens consciences to your opinions, and spoyling them of all liberty of judgment and knowledge.

Chap. XII.

Ver. 2. Nothing] this generall sentence ought in this place to bee restrained to the publicke preaching of the Gospell, which untill that time had been preached but to few, in unfrequented and obscure places: and that secretly and obscurely.

V. 4. My friends] see Iohn 15.14,15.

Ver. 14. Who made] Christ not willing to entermeddle with any part of secular governement; doth notwithstanding herein doe his office, instructing this man and all his hearers, by giving them warning to take heed of covetousnesse, which was the beginning of this contention.

V. 21. That layeth up] namely he that heapeth up wealth to satisfie his unsatiable covetousnes before he makes provision of Gods grace and blessing by faith and good works, which are mans good treasure layd up with God, Mat. 6.20. 1 Tim. 6. 18, 19. Iam. 2.5.

V. 26. For the rest] namely for greater and more important things, that is to say to preserve your whole being, which dependeth upon the pleasure of God alone.

Ver. 33. Sell] this is not spoken to condemne all manner of property and possession; but to shew that charity ought not to be used out of superfluities onely as revenues and fruits are, but that in case of necessity, one ought to lay all out upon it, without any exception: and that this way your goods come to bee secured unto you being deposited in Gods hands, who causeth them to fructifie, both in bodily and spirituall blessings.

Ver. 35. Let your] be alwayes ready, like unto Travailers, for to forsake the world and the desires thereof, whether it be by death, or by my comming to judgement, to aspire to heavenly and everlasting goods: and trouble not your selves with the cares of this world. Lights] the Italian, Lampes] See upon, Mat. 25.1.

V. 37. Shall gird himselfe] figurative termes, the spirituall meaning of which is, that Christ shall with an unspeakeable charity, distribute and dispense his everlasting goods unto them, even as if a master should waite upon his owne servants at Table.

V. 38. In the second] see upon, Matth. 14.25.

V. 41. Peter] it seemes that Peter was moved to aske this question, either thorow presumption, as if it were impossible for them to bee overtaken or surprised. Or thorow ambition, as if it should belong to them onely to receave Christ at his comming, and to be by him exalted to that honour whereof he had spoken, ver. 37. And Christs answer beateth downe these defaults in his Apostles, telling them that the more honour and prerogative they had receaved at his hands, the more they were bound to a faithfull duty without which all their prerogatives would prove to their greater condemnation.

V. 49. What will I] that is to say the proofe of what I speake concerning the fire of divisions, and troubles which will happen in the world by reason of me, is already perceaved in the hatred which the Gospell produceth in the Iewish Nation against me, and shall daily produce more.

V. 50. Baptized with] hee calleth his sufferings and death so, which was like to an abisse or deepe into which he was plunged, according to the ancient manner of baptizing, and by which he was to bee consecrated to be the Saviour of the world. See Mat. 20.22. Heb. 2.10. and 5.9.

V. 58. when thou] that which I say unto you is for your salvation; because that if you neglect the time of Gods patience, in which his mercie is yet open, you must take heed least it befall you as unto a debter who suffereth himself to be imprisoned, after he hath wearied out or deceaved his creditor. Namlie that you shall finde no more grace nor pardon at Gods hands, See Psal. 32.6. Isa. 55.6.

Chap. XIII.

Ver. 1. Of the Galileans] there is no mention made of this action in any other place of Scripture, nor much lesse plainely set down in any Author. Some believe that it was an onset described by Iosephus the Historian, upon the Samaritans gathered together and risen, upon the instant as they were going to offer sacrifice in Mount Garizim: and that this name of Galileans is here improperly taken for any other people within the Land of Palestine, for Pilate had otherwise no power over Galilee: see Luk. 23.6. Others do refer it to some slaughter of some Galileans, come to some Feast in Ierusalem.

V. 2. Suppose ye] these chances ought not to make you run into any manner of rash judgments, Iob 9.2.

V. 3. I tell you nay] the use which you ought to make hereof is quite contrary, namely that you should learne to tremble, and to bee the first to condemne your selves and to make use of Gods patience to repentance, for at the last either soone or late Gods judgment will finde out all impenitent sinners either in this life or in the life to come.

V. 4. The Towre] this Hiſtory is likewiſe no where elſe: it is likely that it was ſome Tower of the walls of Ieruſalem, upon the top of a high precipice, under which was the poole of Siloe.

V. 6. Parable] the meaning of which is to ſhew Gods long ſuffering of the rebellious and unreaſonable Iewes.

V. 7. Three yeares] Some have thought that the Lord meant the laſt three yeares which were after his baptiſme, employed in converting the Iewes by his preaching, for ſo it was ſpoken in the beginning of the fourth yeare. Cumbeth it] it is not onely fruitleſſe in ſelfe, but alſo with its ſhadow, and by drawing unto it the moiſtnesſe of the earth, it ſpoyleth other plants which are neere it.

V. 10. In one] of the City, where he was at that time, for there were diverſe places for ſacred meetings in every City.

V. 11. A ſpirit] namely an infirmity which did ſtraine up her body, and made it crooked: Which infirmity proceeded not from any naturall cauſe, but from the operation of the devill.

V. 14. With indignation] the Italian. Being wroth] See upon, Matth. 20.

Ver. 16. From this bond] namely from this ſickneſſe, wherewith the Devill held her as it were bound, and hindered her in her actions. See Iob 42. 10.

V. 24. Strive] Chriſt according to his wonted cuſtome doth not anſwer directly to that curious and unprofitable queſtion: but ſheweth that indeed there are but few. From whence men ought to draw this uſe, namely to endeavour and ſtrive to be of that little number. Will ſeeke] thorow a blinde deſire of attaining to eternall happineſſe, not keeping the true way, nor uſing the conſtancy and endeavour which is required therein. See Iohn 7. 34. and 8. 21. and 13. 33. Rom 9. 31.

V. 25. when once] having ſpoken of the way, and of the endeavour, wherewith one muſt ſtrive to come to life everlaſting: he ſpeaketh alſo of the time convenient for it, either in regard of Gods grace ſingularly preſenting it ſelfe: or of his patience with men before their death, after which time the doore is ſhut. See Pſalm. 32. 6. Iſaiah 55. 6 And yee] he ſpeakes to the unbelieving Iewes, and all ſuch as were like unto them.

V. 31. Herod] whither the advice were true or falſe it is likely that they would make it ſerve for an inſtrument of their hatred and envie, to affright Chriſt, and make him goe further off. See Amos 7. 12. Ioh. 7. 13.

V. 32. That Fox] a pourtraicture of Herods fraudulent wit, See 2 Tim. 4. 17. I caſt out] the meaning is, I doe not feare any juſt puniſhment from Herod, nor any man elſe, doing nothing but good by my miracles: and as for unjuſt perſecutions, I know when and where they are provided for me by Gods immutable counſell to which I willingly ſubmit my ſelfe. To day] that is to ſay, yet for a ſhort time, after which, by my death at Ieruſalem, I ſhall finiſh the courſe of my life, and accompliſh the worke of my vocation. See Iohn 19. 28, &c.

Ver. 33. Nevertheleſſe] though I tell you theſe things, yet I will not ſtay with you, for I am going to Ieruſalem. Whither I ſhall come within theſe few dayes, and there ſhall be put to death, that being the Citie where the Prophets have continually ſuffered martyrdome.

CHAP. XIII.

VER. 1. Watched him] ſeeking to catch him in ſome error in his familiar converſation.

Ver. 4. Held their peace] not daring to ſpeake againſt their owne ſuperſtitious traditions: nor to contradict Chriſt for working of miracles upon the Sabbath day for feare of incurring the peoples diſpleaſure.

Ver. 7. A parable] this following admonition is ſo called, becauſe that under the barke of a civill precept is contained a ſpirituall doctrine of true humility before God: which hath a promiſe annexed to it, of being certainly exalted.

V. 12. When thou] not that hee condemned theſe honeſt curteſies amongſt kinſfolkes and friends. But to reprove the error of the Phariſees: who thought thereby ſufficiently to fulfill the Lawes of Charity, whereas indeed they were but onely cunning practices of covetouſneſſe, to receave againe as much, or more: Whereas true charity hath only regard to God and his Commandement, which hath alſo the free promiſes of everlaſting goods which ſerve for a ſpur to mens ſlowneſſe.

V. 15. That ſhall eate] That ſhall enjoy eternall goods in heaven.

V. 16. A certaine man] Chriſt calleth him back from that vaine admiration to the ſerious meditation, of the meanes of attaining to the ſaid happineſſe: which ly in the acceptance of GODS grace in Chriſt.

V. 23. Compell them] whereby is ſhewne that ſweete violence which God offereth to his elects ſlowneſſe ſollicking them to receave his grace, by the ſtrong and invincible motions of his ſpirit, and the effectuall inſtances of his word. See Ier. 20. 7. Iohn 6. 44. Acts 9. 5.

V. 26. And hate not] that is to ſay doth not renounce all manner of carnall love which is contrary to me, and to Gods calling. Or doth not love his friends leſſe then me: in which ſence the word hating is ſomtimes taken, Gen. 29. 31. Deu. 21. 15. 17.

Or

Christ, he doth not dispose himselfe to have even his very kinred, in case that their love be incompatible with the love that is due to me.

V. 28. For which] he gives a reason of the meaning of the foresaid speech, which is, prepare your selves for the Crosse: for if you have not strength and constancy to hold out to the last, and to rest all manner of lets and hinderances, all your former endeavours will prove to be a shame to you.

CHAP. XV.

VER. 4. What man] the end of all these similitudes is to shew Gods goodnesse and care in calling sinners to repentance, and the joy which other men ought to conceave therefore. By the first Christ justifieth his owne proceedings, by the other two instructeth the Pharisees, and all men in their duties of co-re joycing at these conversions.

V. 7. Just persons] not sported with any exorbitant misdeed, or such a guilty life as shall require an expresse reconcilation, and an expresse act of repentance. For otherwise if we take this word as large there is no man just, without sin, Eccl. 7. 20. and thus doth not live under a necessity of perpetuall repentance and confession.

CHAP. XVI.

VER. 1. A certaine] the end of this parable is to shew that men being but stewards of the goods which they have received of God, which goods they doe sundry wayes abuse; they ought before they goe out of this world and leave the possession and the administration of them, seeke to make amends, thorow charity to Christs members, for those faults which they have committed, in not employing the foresaid goods in Gods service, who is the onely and supreame owner of them, that so by this meanes they may be known to be Gods children, and bee receaved into the everlasting Kingdome. Now in this narration there are many parts which serve but only for the connexion of the parable; and neither can nor ought to be applyed to the spirituall sence.

V. 6. Measures] the Italian Bates] which was a measure of liquid things, Ezech. 45. 10, 14.

V. 8. The unjust] that is to say disloyall in his office. Wisely] namely in this action. The meaning is, that beleevers ought in time to seeke to cover by charity the errours which they have committed against God, in the obtayning and using of temporall goods, Dan. 4. 27. Luke 11. 41. 1 Tim. 6. 18, 19. For the,] this vertue of providing was found in this man; it being very frequent amongst worldly men: but very rare amongst beleevers in spirituall things. In their,] that is to say, amongst themselves in their manner of living, in their businesses and wayes guided by naturall reason. Then the,] then the elect themselves, supernaturally inspired by Gods Spirit, who for all that do not imploy this light, nor obey it with so much care, as worldly men do their naturall light. See John 12. 36. 1 Thess 5. 5.

V. 9. Make to your,] figurative kindes of speeches accommodated to the similitude. The meaning is, give the poore occasion by your bountifulnesse towards them to pray for you, and in a manner to lay open your charity before God; that he may according to his promises, and in regard of them, reward you therefore in the life everlasting. Which is ordinarily more for poore men then for rich, Luke 6. 20. Iames 2. 5. See Prov. 19. 17. Mat. 25. 40. Of unrighteousnesse,] that is to say, in the gaining, possession, and use of which, men do commit an infinite many errors, and which are the object, baite, and instrument of many sinnes. To faile,] that is to say, when you die, and lose the fruition and distribution of worldly goods and riches.

V. 10. He that is,] the right use of riches in beleevers, is a triall of the loyall use of their spirituall graces, and of the gift of the holy Ghost, which hath been conferred upon them: and contrariwise the abuse of the one sheweth the abuse of the other, and God likewise taketh away his spirituall graces, from them who do not use the temporall ones well.

V. 11. The true,] namely, the spirituall ones, which are the true treasure of man, and makes him happy.

V. 12. Another mans,] he meanes worldly externall goods, which a man at last must leave to others and is tyed to distribute to others. Prov. 3. 27. And by ones own goods, are meant spirituall internall goods which a man receives for himselfe as his own proper inheritance, and having received them, and using them as he ought to do, he never loseth them neither in this life, nor in the life to come.

V. 16. Presseth,] see upon Mat. 11. 12.

V. 17. To faile,] to be in vaine, or not to be accomplished.

V. 19. There was,] this is more likely to be a parable then a true history. In purple,] seeing that these colours white and red were the most magnificent kinde of clothing amongst the ancient. Prov. 31. 21. Rev. 18. 16.

V. 20. Lazarus,] it is the same name as Eliezer or Elizar which signifieth God is my helpe. This name seemes to be specified, not to signifie that it is a true history, but to shew that there is but one kinde of good poore men: such as this was, namely those that put their whole confidence in the Lord: whereas the rich man here hath no name, because there are divers kindes of bad rich men.

V. 21. The Dogges,] using (as one should say) more pity towards him then the rich man.

V. 22. Was carried,] as for the body it had no pompous buriall, as the rich mans had; but as for the ſoule it was gathered up into heaven, into the communion of all true beleevers, of whom Abraham was the titular father, having been as it were the head of the covenant, the depoſitory of all promiſes, and a patterne of faith to all. See Rom. 4. 12. 16. Gal. 3. 7. 9. Boſome,] the geſture of a good father, towards his tender children.

V. 23. Liſt up,] all this ſignifies figuratively the addition of torment which the damned ſhall feele, through the remembrance of their worldly happineſſe, and the conſideration of the beleevers eternall happineſſe, whom they either contemned or afflicted in the world. And it doth alſo point at their deſpaire of ever being eaſed.

V. 25. Sonne,] a vulgar manner or kinde of ſpeaking accommodated to the narration. For otherwiſe Abraham acknowledgeth none for his children but only beleevers and holy men. See Iſay 63. 16. Iohn 8. 39. Gal. 3. 7.

V. 28. He may teſtifie,] the torments which are prepared for the wicked. Or proteſt and admoniſh them ſeriouſly, charging them with their duties.

Chap. XVII.

Ver. 5. Increaſe,] a requeſt good in it ſelfe, but which hath ſome leaven of pride in the Apoſtles thoughts: as if they had enough already, and that they wanted nothing but ſome addition of greater perfection. And the Lord ſheweth them that they had ſcarce as yet the firſt ſeeds of it.

V. 7. which of you,] by this ſimilitude taken from bond-ſlaves, bound to do their maſters all manner of ſervice, without any right of interchangeable requitall from them; he doth reprove the Apoſtles ſecret preſumption, who thought they had done ſo much for Chriſt, that they deſerved great rewards ſuddenly. And Chriſt contrariwiſe teacheth them that they did nothing but what was their duties: and that they ought rather to think upon perſevering in their labour to the end; remitting with all humility the reward to Gods good will, who gives it out of meere grace, and not as a thing due. Romans 4. 4, 5.

V. 9. Doth he thanke,] for to be any way bound unto him for it.

V. 10. Unprofitable,] a title of a ſervant which is remiſſe, and nothing worth. Mat. 25. 30. Rom. 3. 12. Phile. 11. made uſe of in this place; to ſhew a totall incapacity in men to deſerve at Gods hands. Seeing that in all their workes they give God nothing of their owne, but onely reſtore unto him that which is his. And beſides that they have no equality or proportion with him to oblige him: nor with his everlaſting goods to deſerve them. Iob 22. 2. and 35. 6. Pſal. 16. 2.

V. 12. which ſtood,] as uncleane perſons according to the law, which ought to ſegregate themſelves from the ſociety of other men. Lev. 13. 45, 46.

V. 20. When the,] when that earthly and moſt happy kingdome ſhould be eſtabliſhed in the world, which they imagined ſhould be under the Meſſias. With obſervation,] by apparant meanes and occurrencies; which may bee obſerved by ſenſe and diſcourſe, as the originall and beginning of your worldly Monarchies.

V. 21. The kingdome,] that is to ſay, it is a ſpirituall kingdome founded in the hearts and in the converſion of ſouls; and therefore cannot be known but onely ſpiritually by thoſe that have part therein. Others expound it is in the midſt of you, namely, by my comming in the fleſh, and by my preaching.

V. 22. When ye,] by reaſon of the great afflictions which ye ſhall endure after my departure out of the world: you ſhall deſire my bodily preſence for your defence and comfort; which at this preſent you have, Matthew 9. 15. Iohn 17. 12. yet let not this deſire induce you to ſuffer your ſelves to be ſeduced, to receive ſome falſe Chriſt or Saviour, or to ſeeke for me in the world; for I will come no more upon earth, but at the laſt judgement, and that comming ſhall be ſo cleere, and ſo certaine, that there ſhall be no doubt made in it.

V. 31. He which ſhall,] this diſcourſe which in S. Matthew is eſpecially referred to the calamities of Iudea; is here extended to the laſt comming of Chriſt; for the which he warneth thoſe who are his to prepare themſelves that they may then without any diſturbance or diſpleaſure for the deſtruction of the world, receive the Lord with compleat joy.

V. 35. Be grinding,] See upon Mat. 24. 41.

V. 37. Where Lord,] that is to ſay, where will thou appeare at thy laſt comming? whereunto the Lord makes anſwer with a ſentence taken out of Iob, expounded upon Matthew 24. 28.

Chap. XVIII.

Ver. 1. Always,] at all times and ſeaſons; never omitting the ordinary uſe thereof, and keeping alwayes themſelves ſo diſpoſed, as that they may be alwayes able to doe it at any houre and upon any occaſion. 1 Pet. 3. 7.

V. 7. Though he beare,] though he be long before he puniſh their enemies, and doe not execute his judgements ſo ſoone as humane impatience would deſire.

V. 8. Speedily,] in good time, when he himſelfe knoweth knoweth it to be expedient and neceſſary. See Heb. 10.37. 2 Pet. 2.3, 9 Neverthelesse,] the meaning, one ſhall not need to marvell, if in the Churches great troubles, it will ſeeme that God hath forſaken it, ſeeing that faith ſhall be ſo decreaſed in the world, that it ſhall ſeeme to be quite vaniſhed away; and conſequently there will be very little calling upon God.

V. 11. With himſelfe,] the Italian, By himſelfe,] ſhunning the approach of ordinary men, as uncleane, according to the ambition of his ſect. See Iſay 65.5. Others, with himſelfe, that is to ſay, with a low voice, by an affectation of devotion and humility.

V. 12. Twice,] namely, the ſecond and fifth day of the weeke, which are our Monday and Thurſday, according to the Phariſees rule, mentioned by the Iewiſh Writers. Tithes,] as well of things tithe-able according to the law; as of thoſe whereof there is no tithe due, Mat. 23.23. by a ſuperabundant devotion.

V. 13. A farre off,] in ſome remote part of the firſt Court of the Temple, into which all manner of perſons even ſuch as were prophane, as this Publican was, might come, 1 Kings 8. 41. and that, through true humility and feeling of his unworthineſſe.

V. 14. Iuſtified,] that is to ſay, abſolved from his ſinnes before God, and receaved into favour.

V. 18. Ruler,] the Italian, Of the chiefe,] it is likely that it was ſome noted Doctor amongſt the Phariſees. Luke 14. 1. rather then a Ruler of the people, or a head of the Synagogue.

Chap. XIX.

Ver. 8. [Give,] for a proofe of my true converſion, by faith in thee, I doe diſpoſe my ſelfe to do theſe acts of charity and righteouſneſſe. If I have,] ſeeing that indeed I have done it, as I confeſſe before thee. Fourefold,] according to the law for theft, Exod. 22.1. Num. 5.7.

V. 9. For ſo much,] for that by his faith in me, he hath ſhewed himſelfe to be the true ſonne of Abraham in ſpirit, Rom. 4.12. Gal. 3.7. I will alſo make him partaker of the covenant made with Abraham, and reſtore him, to his former ancient degree of being a member of the Church, from which he hath been ſeparated by his hurtfull profeſſion.

V. 11. That the kingdome,] namely that temporall and earthly kingdome, which the Apoſtles dreamed of. Now inſtead of this vaine opinion, the Lord inſtructeth them, how they ought to prepare themſelves, for to have part in the everlaſting kingdome when it ſhould be revealed, namely, by the right uſe of the gifts of the Holy Ghoſt. The Noble man is Chriſt, the journey is his departure out of the world, the kingdome is the celeſtiall glory into which he is gone, unitill his returne to judgement: his ſervants are all beleevers, eſpecially and principally the Paſtors of the Church, the Citizens are the Iewes that have rejected him, the pounds are the gifts of his Spirit, the occupation or traffick is the uſe of them, to the glory of God, and ſalvation of his neighbour.

V. 13. Pounds,] a name of a coine of the value of one hundred Drachmes.

V. 26. For I ſay,] Chriſt his words.

V. 37. The mighty,] the great and tranſcendent miracles.

V. 38. Peace,] that is to ſay, now God is appeaſed and reconciled to men by the Meſſias, for which all the glory is due to him, as his alone is the work and bounty. And alſo the Angels which before were enemies to man, by reaſon of ſinne, ſhall now be friendly and favourable unto him. See Coloſſians 1. 20.

V. 40. I tell you] as much as to ſay, my perſon, my doctrine, my power, and mine actions are now ſo evident, that it is not poſſible to conceale them any longer.

V. 42. If thou,] namely, the people that is within thee, and the chiefe of thee, &c. as this poore troope of mine Apoſtles doth: or as theſe little Cities which have acknowledged and receaved me. In this day,] that is to ſay, at this time in which by an eſpeciall grace of God the accompliſhment of his promiſes is preſented unto thee. Or in this day of my laſt comming to Ieruſalem: after which thy ſinne will be accumulated by my death, and thy puniſhment will become irrevocable. Thy peace,] thy ſecurity and happineſſe both preſent and future.

V. 43. For the,] he gives a reaſon for his precedent lamentation.

V. 44. Of thy,] in which God hath manifeſted himſelfe unto thee in my perſon, to preſent his grace unto thee.

V. 47. The chiefe,] the Elders, Magiſtrates, and ordinary Iudges.

Chap. XX.

Ver. 5. [Him,] namely, Iohn, who did baptize.

V. 20. Iuſt men,] honeſt men, ſincere and zealous.

V. 34. The children,] namely men in this world.

V. 35. They which,] he ſpeakes eſpecially of the elect & beleevers; not but that the wicked ſhal riſe again alſo; but becauſe he would accommodate his anſwer to the Sadduces queſtion, which ſeemed onely to have a relation to the righteous and happy onely amongſt amongst whom they imagined that if there were a resurrection from the dead, the order of this life should be re-established, and not amongst the damned.

Ver. 36. Neither can they] wherefore there is no more need of marriage to preserve mankind, which would otherwise come to nothing. And also because that immortality is accompanied with all the other qualities of a celestiall life, separate from all the conditions and wants of this present life. Equall] in glory and spirituall life. Are the children] their adoption doth then shew it selfe at full, and their regeneration is perfect, by this last degree of re-establishment of Gods Image in them. See Rom. 8. 23. 1 Iohn 3. 2.

V. 38. Of the living] that is to say all those holy Fathers, their soules doe live a celestiall life, which hath no other object but God, to contemplate, love, serve and glorifie him: and is quite separate from the world, and from this animall life. See Rom. 6. 10. And as for their bodies, they are living in Gods mind, to whom their resurrection is present, as well by his everlasting decree: as because they have had the seed of it in this life, in the gift of the H. Ghost.

Chap. XXI.

Ver. 5. And gifts] here ought not to bee understood sacrifices and offerings which were consumed, but ornaments, precious utensils, Iewels, and such like things dedicated in the Temple, by many mens devotions, and hanged up and kept in it.

V. 6. As for these] or are these the things which you look after?

V. 8. I am Christ] the Italian, I am he] namely the promised and expected Messias. The time] of his manifestation in the world, deceitfully imitating Iohn the Baptist his termes, Mat. 3. 2. and Christ his termes, Mat 4 17.

V. 12. For my] for the open profession which you shall make of believing in me.

V. 13. Turne to you] from these events you may be able to draw a certaine proofe of the truth of my predictions: that by those which concerne sufferings you may bee assured of them which concerne victory, and eternall reward. Or these worldly persecutions, shall be a certaine pledge unto you of the recompence prepared in heaven, Phil. 1. 28. 2 Thes. 1. 5. and shall enterchangeably be proofes of your faith, and loyalty towards God.

V. 19. Possesse] that is to say enjoy this present life so long as it shall please God, exercising your selves in perpetuall patience, thereby enduring all these fights.

V. 21. Midst of it] namely of Ierusalem.

V. 24. Untill the times] untill the time prefixed by the Lord for the totall destruction of the Roman Empire doe come. Or that the multitude of the Gentiles being gathered, the Iewes be likewise in their turne re-established in the covenant of grace, Rom. 11. 25.

V. 26. The powers] See upon, Mat. 24. 29.

V. 28. Looke up,] strengthen your selves in God by faith, and by the hope of your approaching introduction into his glory rejoyce in him, and prepare your selves to receive him with an extreame desire. For your redemption,] namely, the full deliverance from all your evils and enemies, and the compleat fruit of the redemption which you have obtained by me. See Rom. 8. 22.

V. 35. As a snare,] a similitude taken from hunters and fowlers.

V. 36. To stand,] the Italian, to appeare,] that is, to say to present your selves securely, as being in his favour, without feare of being condemned, confounded, or overthrowne by his glorious presence. Like the wicked, Psal. 1. 5. Ephes. 6. 13.

Chap. XXII.

Ver. 3. Entred,] did wholly take possession of him, to do with him according to his will, the Spirit of God being quite departed from him, after it had long withstood his hypocrisie and malignity. See 1 Sam. 16. 14. Mat 12. 45.

V. 4. And Captaines,] not of Roman, or Iewish souldiers according to the common opinion, but of the sacred host of Priests and Levites, ministring in the Temple divided into Squadrons and bands, whereof every one had its head, and over all was one or two of the secondary Priests under the High Priest. And therefore they were called Captaines of the Temple, 2 Chro. 35. 8. See v. 52. Acts 4. 1. & 5. 24. 26.

V. 7. Must be,] according to the law, which the Lord observed strictly, whereas the Iewes did transfer the feast unto the next day, for the reason set downe upon Mat. 26. 17. Kill,] for holy use. See upon Mark 14. 12.

V. 12. Furnished,] where there shall be tables, or beds, according to the ancient fashion, and all other things made ready to receive the company, for the Paschall banquet: there being at the time of that great concourse of strangers, houses made ready for that purpose.

V. 13. The Passover,] the Lambe, and whatsoever else was requisite for that feast.

V. 14. The houre,] between the two evenings. See Exod. 12 6.

V. 15. I have,] namely to give you before my death more expresse proofes and pledges of my love; especially in the new Sacrament of your spirituall communion with me, which I now establish in my Church,

Church in the place of the ancient Passeover, whose figure being accomplished by my death, do also distanill the use of it, by the holy Supper which is the publike act of my Testament, by which I give my selfe unto you, together with all my goods, that you may enjoy them to life and salvation.

V. 16. Vntill,] untill my kingdom being come to its fulnesse in the life everlasting, I do make you partakers of my heavenly goods, figured and sealed by this Sacrament. See Mat. 26. 29. Luk. 14. 15. Rev. 19. 9.

V. 17. He tooke,] this first cup, was an addition to the ancient Passeover and the action ended with it, of which cup all the assistants dranke round giving praise and thankes to God: and therefore it ought not to be confounded with the cup of the holy Supper which was ordained afterwards.

V. 18. The Kingdome,] that is to say the accomplishment thereof.

V. 19. Gave thankes,] See upon, Matth. 15. 36. This doe,] observe this sacred and solemne rite, to preserve publickely the memory of my death and passion, and of the benefits which happen unto you thereby, 1 Cor. 11. 26. and also to imprint in every one of you by the power of my spirit a lively remembrance, and apprehension by faith of me, and of my death and sacrifice: and let it be the spirituall food of your soules.

V. 21. But behold,] the Italian, moreover behold,] by the other Evangelists and especially by Iohn it appeares that this was spoken in the second part of the Paschall Supper, from which Iudas went away immediately, Iohn 13. 30. and therefore it is likely that hee did not participate of Christs Sacrament which was ordained after the second part. Others doe judge otherwise and translate it but behold, &c. as it Christ would say, that although this action were a Sacrament of covenant, yet many hypocrites should not be partakers of the mysticall vertue of it: as Iudas at that time: And so that which is said, Iohn 13. 30. of Iudas his departing immediately, should bee understood to have happened some time after, namely in the end of all this action.

V. 22. Goeth,] that is to say shall die shortly. Determined,] by God in his everlasting councell.

Ver. 25. Benefactours,] that is to say magnificent and generous, especially in using great liberality. An ordinary title given by the Hebrewes to Princes and Nobles. See Prov. 19. 6. Isa. 32. 5. The meaning is my servants ought to eschew worldly domination, and all the titles and pompes thereof.

Ver. 26. Greatest,] in gifts authoritie, age and other qualities. Let him bee as,] in respect of true humility and modestie. The younger,] the Italian, The least,] and under this quality are comprehended all other qualities, which make one man inferior to the other. That is chiefe,] the Italian, That governeth, according to the right forme and Government of the Church, without constraint, violence, pride, or ambition not according to the onely will and pleasure, and advantage of him that commands, but in Charitie and milde directions, for the profit and salvation of them that are governed. So it appeares that Christ approves of the order of the Church, which of necessitie requires a superior and an inferiour, and will have some to governe the flocke, and also to preside amongst the Shepheards, and doth only represse the abuse of tyrannie or ambition, Rom. 12. 8. 1 Cor. 12. 28. 1 Tim. 5. 17. Heb. 13. 17, 24. That doth serve,] in the meanest office of the Church, as in looking to the poore, or serving the Pastors. See Ro. 12. 7, 8. 1 Cor. 12. 28.

V. 28. Temptations,] namely travailes, combates, persecutions. See Heb. 2. 18. and 4. 15.

V. 29. Appoint you,] a terme used in testaments: whereof the Lord had made a solemne act in the holy Supper before his death, see Heb. 9. 17.

V. 30 Eate,] that yee may enjoy mee fully, and all my goods, whereof this Sacrament is a signe and pledge, Matth. 8. 11. Luke 14. 15 Rev. 19. 9.

V. 31. Satan.] the Devill desired wholly to subvert you, but he could not obtaine any further, then to shake, and molest you for tryall, which God shall make use of to purge you from your worldly affections. See Iob 1, 11. and 2, 5.

V. 32. Faile not,] totally, and irreparably, though it bee much weakened and diminished. Converted,] from thine approaching denial, See Iohn 21 15.

V. 36. But now,] the meaning is, hitherto I have taken care of your infirmities, and have provided for you all things which were necessary in time of peace, but I give you warning to prepare your selves hereafter to endure the assaults which shall bee made against you. Now under the name of corporall weapons, he meanes all manner of spirituall provisions. He that hath,] provide all such things as according to the spirit are necessary to beare you up, and defend you. Or employ your money, and your clothes to buy swords, which figuratively meanes that they should now think upon nothing, but spirituall wars, and combates: for both I and you after mee, shall be hated and persecuted of all men, as wicked persons and enemies of mankinde.

V. 37. Have an end,] that is to say ought to have an end.

V. 38. Behold,] the Apostles speake this, not understanding, what wars, and weapons the Lord did speak of. It is enough,] a secret reprehension of the Disciples ignorance, who did understand Christs words according to the letter. The meaning is, in this warfare that I speak of, a small number of bodily weapons will serve as well as a great number: my spirit shall hereafter teach you what weapons I meane.

V. 39. Came out,] namely out of Ierusalem towards the evening. See Luke 21. 37.

V. 40. At the place] which he was accustomed to come to, called Gethsemane, Mat. 26.36.

Ver. 41. Withdrawne] that is to say thorow the vehemency of this agony, he was drawne as it were forcibly from his Apostls companies in whom he did take some comfort and joy: to goe and present himselfe alone before God his Father, to make satisfaction for all the sins of the world.

V. 43. An Angell] an incomprehensible degree of humiliation in Christ, receaving comfort in his combates from an Angell that was his servant, not by any communication of power: but by a lively representation made to his humanity (from which in that moment the God-head did hide it selfe, and did not send its influence of joy and light) of the certainty of the approaching victory, and the glories which should follow. And all to shew that he had made himselfe lower then the Angels, Heb. 2.7.

Ver. 44. Great drops] a singular, or at the least a very rare example in nature, being the effect of an extreame anguish.

V. 52. And Captaines] see ver 4.

V. 53. Your house] in which God suffereth you to practice your rage against me: And the Devill who is the Prince of darknesse to doe all his endeavours thorow you, to seeke to destroy and put out mee who am the light of the world, and the sun of righteousnesse.

V. 66. Their counsell] See upon Mat. 26.3.

V. 69. Of the power] that is to say of God, in the glory of his heavenly kingdome, Heb. 1.3. and 8.1.

V. 70. Ye say] a vulgar kind of speech, to consent to what another saith.

Chap. XXIII.

Ver. 2. Forbidding] a false calumnie, our Saviour having taught the contrary, Mat. 17.27. and 22.21. But they drew that by a Malignant consequence from that hee said he was King of the Iewes, of Davids progeny.

V. 11. Gorgeous,] the Italian, White,] the Greeke bright and resplendent, that is to say, which came newly from fulling. For white, as well as scarlet or purple, Mar. 15.17. was a colour for Kings, and great Lords. See Luke 16.19. Others translate it magnificent or splendid.

Ver. 16. Chastise him,] with a scourge, Matthew 27.26.

Ver. 17. One,] namely of the condemned malefactors.

V. 31. If they doe] a proverbiall kinde of speech the meaning whereof is, that if they bee suffered to proceed thus against me that am righteous, and against these my innocent men. What shall Gods horrible judgement bee against themselves who are extreamely wicked, and are the very fuell for the fire of Gods wrath? See Ezech. 21.3. 1 Pet. 4.17.

V. 36. Vinegar,] See upon Mat. 27.34.

V. 40. Dost thou not,] if shame doth not hinder thee from wronging of Iesus, by reason of his punishment, which thou sufferest as well as he, yet the feare of God should keepe thee from doing it. Or hast thou no feare of God, seeing thou sufferest the same punishment? as much as to say, thou art more to be blamed then these people, in scoffing of Iesus, as they doe, because thou art a sufferer.

Ver. 42. Remember me,] namely when thou commest to judgment, to fulfill thy heavenly kingdome, accept of me by thy grace into the number of thine, to give me a share in it. A motion and word inspired by the Holy Ghost.

Ver. 43. Shalt thou be,] namely thy soule shall. Paradice,] this word signifies in Hebrew and in greeke a garden: and by a figure taken from the garden into which Adam was put, when hee was in his estate of innocency, it signifies the place of eternall happinesse, See 1 Cor. 12.4. Rev. 2.7.

Ver. 47. Glorified,] that is to say confessed that which God shewed by externall proofes, and when he did inwardly convince him, to be very true, and did yeeld and submit himselfe to God.

Chap. XXIIII.

Ver. 4. Two men,] namely Angels in the shape of men.

V. 10. And Mary the,] it is thought it was the blessed virgin. See upon Matthew 12.46. Marke 16. ver. 1.

V. 13. Of them,] namely of the Disciples. Furlongs,] whereof eight were a mile.

V. 16. Were holden,] were dazeled by divine power, and kept from their naturall action. See Iohn 20.14. and 21.4.

V. 19. In deed,] namely in miracles, and in divine and supernaturall doctrine, see Acts 7.22. Before,] approved by God for such a one who hath given evident proofes thereof and by men also in their own consciences, Luke 2.52. 2 Cor. 8.21.

Ver. 30. Hee tooke,] according to the manner of the Iewes, which was that the father of the family, or the cheefe man of the company, sitting downe at the Table, did blesse it by prayer, and distributed bread to all those which eate there. Blessed it,] see upon Mat. 14.19 Now it is likely that Christ used some accustomed forme, or some action by which these men knew him.

V. 31. Their eyes,] the free and entire use of their internall and externall sences was restored unto them. See Genesis 21.19. 2 King. 6.17.20. Vanished,] by some miraculous manner hee sodainely with-hide to himselfe out of their sights.

V. 32. Burne,] was it not stirred up, and moved with the fervency of Gods Spirit, in a divine zeale and motion? a signe of the Soveraigne power of Gods word.

V. 38. Thoughts,] strange and perplexed ones doubting of the truth and suspecting it to bee some illusion.

V. 43. Did eate,] not for any necessitie or good that it did him, for his body had cast off all conditions of an animall life: but onely to give the Disciples some greater confirmation, by diverse sences of nature.

V. 44. These are,] my death, buriall, resurrection, &c. were foretold you by me, and by the Scriptures here to fore, and therefore you ought not to thinke them so new and strange. While I was,] whilest I conversed with you in a terrestriall and temporall life. The Psalmes,] the Hebrewes divide the bookes of the old Testament into these three parts: The Law, the Prophets, and Hagiographes that is to say, holy writings, and amongst the last, the Psalmes doe hold the first degree and place.

V. 45. Opened he,] as Acts 16.14.

Ver. 47. In his Name,] that is to say by his commission and authority, as for the act of preaching: and by his worke and bounty, as for the substance thereof, which is the remission of sinnes.

Ver. 49. The promise] Namely the Holy Ghost which I promised you from my Father, Iohn 14.16. and 15.26. wherein also consists the accomplishment and summary of all the promise of grace, Acts 1.4. Endued,] adorned and replenished therewith, and likewise possessed and governed by the divine power of the Holy Ghost See Iudg.6.34.

THE HOLY GOSPELL OF OVR LORD IESVS CHRIST ACCORDING TO SAINT IOHN.

Argument.

SAint Iohn holds the last place amongst the Evangelists, for having lived longer then any of the rest, and longer then any of the Apostles, he set the last hand to this divine structure of the Gospells: adding many heads of doctrine and History necessary for the accomplishment of the Worke, and for the full instruction of the Church not standing to repeat such things as were sufficiently set downe by the other. The ancient and common belief hath bene, that he writ his Gospell, chiefly upon occasion of certaine Heretickes Kerinthians, Ebionites and the like who even at that time did deny the God-Head of the everlasting Sonne of God. Whereupon he also more cleerely and powerfully then the rest, hath taught and established this doctrine, which is the first ground and foundation of the Christian faith and Church. And thereupon he makes his first entrance, with a sublime declaration of the eternall generation of the Sonne of God: whereas others have begun with his humane conception, and birth. And in the sequell hee observes such a stile, that whereas the others doe set downe a great number of our Saviours deeds and actions by way of Narration, hee chuseth out a lesser number of the most noted ones, adding thereunto almost in every place, divine Sermons of Christs, upon severall heads of faith, which have a mysticall correspondency with the said actions. And whereas others have gathered together the most common doctrines of our Saviour, Saint Iohn hath undertaken to unfold the highest and the most mysterious ones. And therefore hee hath beene in comparison of the rest called by antiquity, the great flying-Eagle, Among these mysteries hee sets downe foure principall ones. The first is that of the most holy Trinity, of the unity of the divine essence, and of the distinction of the persons, of the order, property, and operation of each one of them, especially in the worke of redemption. The second is that of the Sonne of Gods Incarnation and assumption of humane nature established in this union of the two natures, head of the Church, and author of the salvation of it, which hee having fulfilled in his owne person, hee applies and communicates it really unto the said Church, by his word and by the sending of the Holy Ghost unto it, to remaine with it for ever. The third is that of the mysticall union and communion, of all his beleevers with him, to bee regenerated by his Spirit, and to live, subsist, grow, and bee nourished, and bring spirituall fruit in him, as lively members of his body: The fourth is that of the blessed resurrection of the bodies of the elect, by vertue of the foresaid union, and to the likenesse of Christs resurrection, to live with him for ever in celestiall glory and happinesse a title which he hath gained for them, and is gone to take possession thereof for them. In the proposing of these doctrines our Saviour hath alwayes met on the one side, With the Iewes malignant and obstinate contradictions; And on the other side with great ignorance, grossenesse, and incredulities of his owne Disciples. But as he hath severely redargued and convinced the first: So he hath lovingly endured and charitably instructed the other; strengthening them by diverse exhortations and promises, especially by the promise of sending the Holy Ghost unto them who would reduce into their memories his doctrine, and enlighten them in all truth, of which they were not as yet capable, and should seale it in their hearts, and make them preachers and faithfull witnesses thereof over all the world. To all these parts Saint Iohn hath added as it were for a conclusion, the most fervent and effectuall prayer of Christ, to God his Father, for the accomplishment of the Apostles, and all the Churches salvation in his person, and for the safeguard, preservation, sanctification, and perfect union of it in him, untill the end of the world. A true portraiture and summary, of the perpetuall intercession which he makes for it in heaven. Finally one may say that this Gospell is as it were the soule and the spirit infused into the body of the history, gathered by the others,

CHAP.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. [In the beginning,] namely before the foundation of the world, when there was neither time nor temporall things, but onely eternity, the Sonne of God had then his eternall being. The word,] a terme proper to S. Iohn, Iohn 1.14.1 Iohn 1.1. and 5.7. Rev. 19.13. to signifie the Sonne of God, either in regard of his being, wherein being one in essence with the Father, and distinct from him in his person, he doth outwardly represent him perfectly; as the word expresseth the thoughts and conception of the soule. Or be it in regard of his personall property of operating, as it were by way of word, laying open the counsell of God, Psal. 2.1. and putting it into execution by his almighty word; that is to say, by the power of his will set forth outwardly. And that as well in the creation of the world as in the law, and in the Gospell: whereas the Father operates by way of hidden councell, far from the worke. And the holy Ghost by way of internall vertue, and resident in the worke. Or be it in regard of his office, being his Fathers interpreter and messenger by the Gospell, Iohn 1.18. Heb. 1.1. whatsoever it be, it appeares that S. Iohn hath taken this name from the custome of the Hebrewes, who by the word of God, did meane God himselfe manifesting himselfe, and comming as it were out of the places where his glory lay hidden, by some notable operation. Was with,] hereby is noted the distinction of the sonnes person from the fathers person. Was God,] that is to say equall with the father in essence and in glory.

V. 2. The same,] that is to say, the Son of God before the creation of the world, did retaine himselfe as it were within the center of his glory, and blessednesse, which he hath common with the Father, Iohn 17.5. without producing himself by works or words.

V. 3. By him,] nor only as by a joynt cause co-operating with the Father, but also according to his personall property, operating by the next and immediate application of his action. Without him,] this seems to be added to shew that the Son creating the world, hath made it in the unity of the essence, and in the communion of the will, councell, and vertue of God the Father, who must alwayes be acknowledged to be the well-spring, and beginning of every thing, operating in his Son, and by him.

V. 4. In him,] that is to say, he hath not onely created all things, but doth also maintaine and preserve them in their being. See Acts 17.28. Col. 1.17. Heb. 1.3. And the life,] that is to say, the same, that is the spring of the being and life in other creatures, had conferd a singular gift upon men in the first creation, namely the gift of reason, of knowledge, and of wisdome to know God, and serve him.

V. 5. The light,] that is to say this first originall light, being ecclipsed, and almost extinguished by sin, the Son of God, who was the author of that light, did not cease from enlightning men many wayes; by workes, and by the word to make himselfe known unto them: but mans inward darknesse, could not comprehend any thing thereby to salvation and life; even as the eye which hath not his inward light, seeth nothing in the outward light.

V. 6. There was,] that is to say, that divine light being so extinguished, the Sonne of God himselfe came into the world to light it againe by the Gospell, whereof Iohn Baptist was the first Preacher.

V. 7. For a witnesse,] to give me a certaine knowledge of it, and to maintaine it against all doubts and contradictions: upon the certainty that one might and ought to have, as well of Iohn the Baptist his person as of his vocation and calling, as well by the prophecies, as by the cleere divine proofes which accompanied him. See Heb. 3.5. Of the light.] namely, of Christ, the spring & author of this celestiall light, Iohn 8.12 & 9.5 & 12.46. Might beleeve,] might be induced and prepared to beleeve the Gospell.

V. 9. That was,] here the discourse concerning Iohn is interrupted untill the 15 vers. for to set down the differences and preheminences of Christ above him, who was but a witnesse and a guide. Lighteth,] that is to say, infuseth and preserveth in men some sparkes of that first light, by the gift of understanding, reason, and knowledge, Rom. 1.19. which Iohn could not doe.

V. 10 He was,] even from the creation he hath alwayes been present in the world in power, and in perpetuall action.

V. 11. He came,] he hath even from the beginning alwayes manifested himself unto his Church, which is as it were his own house; but he hath often times been rejected thorow incredulity and rebellion.

V. 12. As many,] another prerogative of Christs, who hath conferred upon all beleevers, the effect and vertue of the spirituall adoption, of which Iohn did onely administer the signe, and Sacrament in his baptisme. The power,] or dignity and excellency.

V. 13. No: of blood,] they are not such by any naturall generation. Of the will of man,] neither have they made themselves such by any act, disposition or motion of their owne proper humane will. Of God,] by the power of his Spirit, and the image of the heavenly Father.

V. 14. Was,] not by any way changing himselfe, but by assumption in unity of person. See Heb. 2.16. Made,] to shew the difference between his eternall generation as he is the Son of God; and of his creation and framing in time, as he is true man. See Rom. 1.3. Gal. 4.4. Flesh,] that is to say, a humane creature in the state of an animall and corporall life, with all its infirmities & wants, often intimated by the word flesh, 1 Tim. 3.16 Heb. 2.14. and 5.7 And dwelt,] he conversed in the world, and there did accomplish his vocation. We beheld, namely we Apostles have seen many beames of his majestie and divine power, in his workes and miracles, and especially in his transfiguration, Mat. 17. 1, 2. 2 Pet. 1. 16, 17. Of grace,] this may bee understood of the gifts of the holy Ghost, of which Christ was full, as well in the understanding, whose perfections are all comprehended under the truth, as also in the heart and active part, whose endowments go all under the word of grace, Luke 2. 40. Or of his effects towards men, working in all manner of mercy and benignity, and teaching in truth. Or also verifying by the accomplishment, all the ancient promises of grace.

V. 15. Cried,] when Christ presented himselfe before him, and he by divine inspiration knew him. Applying to this particular person all that which he had alwayes spoken concerning the comming of the Messias. He that,] though I was made manifest to the world before him. Yet he is beyond comparison greater then I in dignity, office, and power of operation, being true eternall God.

V. 16. Have all we,] words of the Evangelist, in sequell of the fourteenth verse. The meaning is, he is not onely full of the said gifts in his owne person, but hath been as a spring thereof to all beleevers who participate thereof by faith. And grace,] that is to say, we are received into Gods grace, by the grace and love of the father towards Christ our Mediator, Rom. 5. 15. Ephes. 1. 6. by which also having established him head of the Church he distributes to every one of his members a portion of his gifts.

V. 17. For the law,] Christ alone can bestow the foresaid benefits, for they cannot be obtained, but either by the law, or by Christ. Now Moses and the law doe indeed set downe what the will of God is, and the righteousnesse of man: but they doe not give the power of fulfilling of it for to obtaine Gods grace: and do set forth the figures, but they do not produce the effect, but Christ hath done both the one and the other.

V. 18. No man,] no man of himselfe hath accesse, nor communication of knowledge, nor of grace with God, but onely by his Sonne; who in his person is the lively and perfect pourtraiture of the Father, Iohn 14. 9. 2 Cor. 4. 4. Colos. 1. 15. Heb. 1. 3. and by his merit and intercession makes him propitious and communicable to man. which is in,] who is intimate with him to know him perfectly. And most deere unto him, to be a mediator of grace and pardon.

V. 21. Elias,] who they did imagine should come in his owne proper person; by the passage of Mal. 4. 5. evill understood, Mat. 17. 10. That Prophet,] foretold of by Moses, Deut. 18. 16. whom they beleeved to be some other besides the Messias. See Iohn 6. 14. and 7. 40, 41.

V. 24 The Pharisees,] this seemes to be noted to shew that like great Doctors they were not satisfied when they had done their message, but they did also fall a questioning with Iohn, that did use his time, to the contempt, and as it were in emulation of so many religious washings, appointed and observed by them.

V. 25. why,] by what authority doest thou bring in this new Sacrament? and what vertue can it have, being administred by thee, who hast not so high a calling as those great persons which are foretold in Scripture; that they shall powre out the waters of grace promised by the Prophets.

V. 26. I baptize,] I am the Messias his minister who is already come in the world, though he be not yet manifested, and by his authority I doe that which I do: and upon him depends all the spirituall vertue, whereof I dispence nothing but the outward signes v 33

V. 28. Bethabara,] it is thought to be the place mentioned, Iudges 7. 24. and it should seeme that there was some passage over Iordan there, as the Hebrew name importeth. Others reade it Berhany, but then it must be another besides that of Iohn 11 18.

V. 29. The Lambe,] him whom God hath appointed to make expiation for sinne, and take away the bond and kingdome, and punishment of it; by offering his own person in a sacrifice acceptable to God figured by the daily immolation of Lambes under the law, the signification of all which hath been accomplished by him. And it is more likely that the similitude is drawne from the Lambes of the daily sacrifices, then from the Paschall Lambe, which savoured more of a Sacrament: in application of the expiation made, then of an offering in making of it. Now it should seeme, that this meeting of Christ & Iohn happened after Christs return out of the Desert, where he was tempted by the Devill.

V. 31 I knew him not,] not by sight, before God had revealed him to me, when Christ came to my baptisme, and did afterwards confirme it by the sight of the Dove. The meaning is, there is no collusion between us, seeing that I did not know him but only by divine revelation, which was given me, because that I shou'd make him knowne.

V. 32. Bare record,] namely, after the second manifestation of Christ, by the token of the Dove.

V. 34. Is the Sonne,] whom the Prophets had declared should be the Messias. Psal 2. 7. 12. Hay 9. 6.

V. 39. The tenth,] so that there were but two houres of day more. This seemes to be noted, to shew the short stay that they made with him at that time: and to distinguish this first degree of their vocation from the other, Mat. 4. 18. after which they remained continually with the Lord.

V. 41. First,] it should seeme he meanes that the aforesaid two Disciples being gone to look for Peter, Andrew found him first.

V. 42. Cephas,] a Syriack word which signifieth stone done. See upon Matthew 16.28.

V. 45. Of Nazareth,] namely, that hath his ordinary abode there.

V. 46. Said unto him,] this is grounded upon this, that Nazareth was in Galilee, a countrey much mixed and infected with paganisme. And also, because the Galileans were a more grosse and idiotish people.

V. 49. Thou art the King,] a word proceeding from divine inspiration, joyned to the admiration of that act of Deity: namely, for to see those things which are out of his presence.

V. 51. Hereafter,] that which I have told thee, is but a smal essay of my Godhead, which now after my baptisme, when I shall have entred upon the publike exercise of mine office, I will make to appeare more fully unto you, by the service which the Angels shall do me continually. Mat 4.11. Luke 22.43. Iohn 1.29. And he seemes to allude to Iacobs ladder. Gen. 28.12.

CHAP. II.

VER. 1. The third day,] namely, after the aforesaid discourses, or after his returne out of the wildernesse, Iohn 1.29,43. Of Galilee,] an addition to distinguish this City from another of the same name, which was in the Tribe of Asher. Iosh. 19.28. Surnamed Cana the great.

V. 3. They have no,] this sheweth that the holy Virgin after Christs baptisme, did more cleerely know his divine power: which she desires him to shew in this present case of necessity.

V. 4. What have I,] Christ after his baptisme, being come out of his private life, and entred into the exercise of his sacred office: did no more yeeld such humane submission to his mother, as he did before. Luke 2.51. See Mat. 12.48. and therefore he receives neither prayer nor admonition from her: to shew that in the unfolding of his divine power, he did use his own absolute free will, according to his own wisdome; and also that he is the onely intercessor towards his father, and that none can be an intercessor towards him. Mine hour,] I will doe the miracle which thou requirest, but the moment of time prefixed by my Soveraigne will, is not yet come. See Iohn 7.8.

V. 6. After the manner,] to serve for those frequent washings which were appointed by the law, or were brought in by tradition, Mark 7.3,4.

V. 11. Believed,] that is to say, were confirmed in the faith, which was as yet tender and feeble in them.

V. 12. His brethren,] See Mat. 12.46.

V. 13. Went up,] according to the law, Exod. 23.17. Deut. 16.16.

V. 15. He drove them,] an act like to that, Matth. 21.12. yet not the same.

V. 18. What sign,] shew us thy calling and authority receaved from God, to reforme customes in this kinde, which have hitherto beene approved of. Though indeed it was not a generall law that every Prophet should verifie his vocation by miracles. Iohn 10.41.

V. 19. In three,] Christ will not shew them any miracle, because the doing of it dependeth upon his good will and pleasure; and because that in that act which he had done, it being evidently good and laudible, there needed no extraordinary proofe, and because they thorow their incredulity were unworthy of it. And therefore hee referres them to his resurrection and glorification; by which the truth of his person and office would cleerely appeare. See Mat. 12.40. Rom. 1.4.

V. 20. This Temple,] some referre this to the restauration of the Temple made by Zorobabel, others to the reparations and beautifyings which Herod added to it. A worke which had already lasted six and forty yeares, and lasted a long while after that.

V. 24. Did not commit,] knowing the hypocrisie and inconstancy of many of them, he did not admit them into his ordinary society as he did his trusty Disciples, but did keepe himself from them.

CHAP. III.

VER. 2. By night,] for feare of the Iewes persecution, Iohn 7. 13. and 9.22. and 12. 42. and 19.38.

V. 3. Except a man,] if of the sonne of Adam, corrupt in his own nature, and the sonne of wrath, he doth not become the sonne of God, by adoption of grace, and regeneration of spirit.

V. 5. Of water,] he seemes to intimate two distinct and severall parts of this change, and by water he meanes the expiation and remission of the sinne; and by the Spirit the whole worke of regeneration, and inward sanctification of man. Or he sheweth the ordinary externall meanes of this regeneration, which is baptisme, and the internall power of the holy Ghost, by which it hath all its efficacy

V. 6. That which is,] a man who is naturally engendred by his father and mother, who are defiled with sinne, is also defiled; for all things do participate of the quality of their originall, and therefore hath in him the cause of death, and no disposition to life. Contrariwise man regenerate by the Spirit, being made spirituall; hath the seed of everlasting life in him, according to the order and infallible consequence that the flesh is to death, and the Spirit is to life. Rom. 8. 13. Gal. 6.8. Of the flesh,] this word signifieth here as well as in other places, humane nature in its corruption and sinne. Is flesh,] that is to say, carnall and vitious, and therefore uncapable capable of the kingdome of heaven, 1 Cor. 15. 50. Is Spirit,] that is to say, spirituall in senses, motions, and actions, altogether holy and divine.

V. 7. Marvell not,] do not let this doctrine of regeneration move you to any wonder of doubt or incredulity, Iohn 5.28. for although the nature thereof be supernaturall and incomprehensible, yet the effects thereof are very apparent and sensible, as the winde. See Eccles. 11.5.

V. 10. Knowest not,] though they have been cleerly set forth by the Prophets, Psal. 51.10. Ezek. 11. 19. and 36.26,27.

V. 11. we speake,] namely, I and my Disciples doe teach doctrines that are certaine, and are not of humane invention, as your traditions are. Because that I as I am true God, know all the fathers secrets, and do faithfully manifest them as being sent from him, v. 32. And ye,] he speaks to the Iewes in generall.

V. 12. Earthly things,] which all beleevers ought to know and practise in this world. Heavenly,] namely, the highest mysteries, the knowledge and fruition of which are reserved for the heavenly life.

V. 13. No man,] you ought to beleeve me in both, for no man of himselfe hath knowledge thereof, nor the charge of declaring them, but I alone, who though I have taken humane flesh upon me, and have so farre abased my selfe: yet my Godhead doth still reside in heaven, having the same essence and glory as my father hath, Matth. 11. 27. Iohn 1.18. and 6.46. Rev. 5.5,7. Hath ascended,] to gaine the originall knowledge of these things.

V. 14 And as,] my abasement shall be followed by the exaltation of my humane nature into heaven, that by the sending of my Spirit, and by my word I may set up a cleere signe of the salvation which I shall have obtained, to apply to all by faith. Ephes. 4.9.10,11.

V. 16. The world,] namely, mankinde in its generality, though with a distinction of his elect, according to his good will and pleasure. He gave,] appointed him out of meere grace for a redeemer, sent into the world at the appointed time, exposed to all necessary sufferings; and at the last applied and really conferred, with all his benefits to beleevers, by the inward operation of the holy Ghost, who creates in them the faith for to apprehend him livelily.

V 17. For God,] the proper end for which the Sonne of God was sent, was to save, not to condemne the world: for he needed not, for that effect to have taken humane flesh upon him. True it is indeed that hee doth accidentally aggravate the curse of unbeleevers, who reject the light of his grace, to remaine in the darkenesse of ignorance and sin See Iohn 16. 9 v. 17. Sent not,] that is to say: it was appointed by the Councell of the whole Trinity, that the Sonne should in his owne person, and immediately take humane flesh upon him in the world, and in the same flesh, fulfill the worke of redemption, and so must alwayes these words of sending the Son, and the spirit bee understood, for he complishing that act in their proper person, which was proper to each of them: the councell and advice whereof is common to all the persons together, observing the order of operating.

V. 19. The condemnation,] namely the cause and subject of it. And men,] namely a great part of them, all worldly and unregenerate men. Because,] namely one of the chiefe causes of this incredulity is, because that man delighting in sinne, abhorres the light and power of the Gospell, which discovers the foulenesse of sin, and argues the malignity of it, for to bring man to repentance.

V. 21. Doth truth,] the Italian, Workes of truth,] namely loyall and sincere works, in which the conscience is assured of Gods approbation, whereupon the more they are exposed to light, the more joy and content they doe bring to them as doe them. See Psalm. 37.6. In God,] according to his will, which is as it were the forme and modell of good workes, Romans 6.17. Or the roote and beginning of which, is the communion which man hath with God by his Spirit.

V. 22. Into the land,] namely from Ierusalem, Iohn 2.23. he came into the territories of Iudea. Baptized,] by the ministery of his Disciples, Iohn 4.2.

V. 23. Anon,] it is thought that these two Cities were on this side Iordan, and neere unto it in the halfe tribe of Manasses; and it appears by Iohn 10. 40. that Iohn went away from Bethabara which was beyond Iordan, unto this place which was on this side.

V. 25. There arose,] from that which followeth, it appeares that the question was, which of the two baptismes, Christs, or Iohns, was of greater power, or whether they were both equall, to purifie the soule from sin. Iohns Disciples,] or by some of his Disciples. The Iewes,] which went to Christs baptisme. Some texts have it, with a certaine Iew.

V. 26. They came,] namely Iohns Disciples, moved by jealousie or by a desire they had to be instructed.

V. 27. A man,] the meaning is, I cannot nor ought not to be more then God would make me; he hath made me a servant, and therefore both you and I ought to containe our selves within our degree and measure, and yeeld the soveraigne honour to the Lord, which is Christ. Or I having received what I have by Gods gift, there is no cause of glory for me, nor of ambition for you, 1 Cor. 4.7.

V. 29. He that hath,] Christ in all these things comes in, in the quality of a head, and principall person, as the bridegroome in a wedding solemnity; but but I am there but as necessary, and a servant administrable to others, and therein have I perfect joy, without any disturbance of just cause.

V. 30. Departed,] my person most detested till death, and this my extraordinary and preparing of hearts shall yeild us the full manifestation of Christ and his Gospell.

V. 31. That is of earth,] namely a mortall man for his one part I am cannot adde any thing to his deeds and sayings, above that which he is himselfe. Therefore I cannot give any efficacy to my Baptisme and preaching, for the purification and conversion of the soule. Christ only can do it. He above all,] namely in power and operation which depends all upon him: and therefore hee addes it to the operation of his ministers, according to his pleasure.

V. 32. Testifieth,] the same must bee said of the truth as is spoken of the power, he hath it wholly to himselfe, as it were in his owne spring, his Ministers have it but onely out of his bounty, and by his communication. V. 32. No man,] there is but a very small number of men that beleeve him.

V. 33. He that hath,] that is to say, all true beleevers doe ratifie, and confirme as much as in them lyeth, the truth of Gods word, which Christ teacheth in perfection, because he hath in his humane nature, and in regard of his office of Mediatour, receaved the fulnesse of the Spirit, knowledge and all other gifts, Iohn 1. 14, 16. Col. 1. 19. and 2. 9. and not as each beleever in a certaine limited portion and measure, Romans 12. 3, 6. 1 Cor. 12. 7. 11. 2 Cor. 10. 13. Ephes. 4.

Verse 34. The Sonne,] in the qualitie of Mediatour.

Chap. IV.

Ver. 3. He left,] to not derogate out of time, as it is likely, from Iohns authority by his presence. Or to not give any cause or matter of making comparison, or opposition betweene two baptismes, to the prejudice of both. Or to shunne the occasion of vaine ambition and popular applause.

V. 5. Sychar,] it is thought to bee the same place which is elsewhere called Sichem.

V. 6. Well,] it was some noted well of springing water, which did beare Iacobs name. Yet the Scripture doth no where else make mention of it. Sate thus,] like to a man that was weary: without seeming to stay there a purpose; though in the secret of his divine providence, he had an intent to convert the people of that place. The sixt houre,] namely about noone.

Ver. 7. Of Samaria,] a Samaritan by nation and profession: Or who was borne in Samaria though he dwelt in Sychar.

V. 9. The Iewes,] for the Samaritans were but a mixture of Pagan Nations, 2 King. 17. ver. 24. who after the Captivity had built themselves a Temple upon mount Garizim, and together with some apostated Iewes, had there established a false worship, to imitate that of Ierusalem, Neh 13.28. wherefore they were excommunicated by the Iewes, and did hate one ano her exceedingly.

V. 10 The gift,] namely the Saving grace which God presents to men by me. Living water,] he calleth the grace of God so, and the gift of the Holy Ghost, which are of a continuall lasting nesse and power for to quench the burning of the conscience, scorched by Gods curse: To satisfie them that thirst after eternall goods, and water the barrennesse of the soule, and make it fruitfull in good works.

V. 11. Art thou,] as much as to say, seeing thou canst not give me any of the water of this well, having nothing to draw it and take it up withall, I doe Imagine that thou putteſt mee in hope of some other water more pure and excellent then this: but how can that be, seeing that Iacob, with whom thou art not to be compared, was content with this? Our father Iacob,] for these nations did yet beare, though falsly, the name of Israelites, by reason of some remainder of the ten Tribes, and some mixture of the Iewes which were amongst them.

V. 14. Never thirst,] with that thirst of the soule, which is an entire privation of Gods grace, and of the comfort of his spirit, with a burning and desperate feeling thereof, Isa. 66. 13. Hos 2. 3. Luk. 16. 24. Not of the thirst of feeling his own wants, nor of the fervent desire of enjoying that grace: which the beleever ought to have continually so long as he is in this world: where he is never satisfied nor appaied, Isa. 55. 1. Mat. 5. 6. Revel. 21. 6. and 22. 17. But the water,] that is to say, that spirituall gift, is not like a draught of water, which being dranke up passeth away sodainely: and the effect thereof is not long lasting, but it is a grace residing in the believer, like a provision or store which he hath lying by him, to goe unto, whensoever he needeth, to preserve in himselfe the spirituall life, till such time as it bee compleated in the eternall.

Ver. 16. Goe call,] Christs end was not onely to make this woman know that he was true God, who knew her evill life: but also to awaken her conscience to acknowledge her sinne, and desire pardon from God thorow faith and Repentance, which is the true refreshing and watering of the soule.

V. 20. Our fathers,] namely the ancient Patriarchs as Iacob, Gen. 33. 20. Now being convinced in her conscience, and finding that Christ was a Prophet, she imagineth that Christ being a Iew, would desire nothing of her, but that she should become a Iewesse, and thereupon she frameth this objection. Mountaine,] namely of Garizim. Yee say,] according ding to Gods order, who had restrained that ancient libertie of serving him in other places.

V. 21. when yee shall neither,] that all distinction of places shall be annihilated, as well as the difference of nations, by the preaching of the Gospell: you Samaritans being received into the covenant of grace, and admitted into his service, as well as the native Iewes, Mal. 1. 11.

V. 22. Ye worship,] that is to say, for the present your Samaritan worship is altogether false being contrary to Gods law, notwithstanding all your intentions of serving the true God, whom you do not know seeing you do not follow the light of his word, and doe not serv him according to his wil. Contrariwise the Iews onely have the true God, and his externall service established and approved by him, in which outward service notwithstanding true piety consists not, but in the internall and spiritual service of faith, invocation, conversion, &c. which I will shortly establish in the world. We know,] namely the Iewes, whereof I am one. Salvation,] that is to say, the saving doctrine of the covenant of grace is preserved amongst the Iewes and must be sought out amongst them, Rom. 9 4.

V. 23. In spirit,] spiritually by actions and motions of the soule regenerated by the Holy Ghost: which is the substance and the true body of the shadowes and figures of ceremoniall worship, the use of which shall be disannulled by me to establish the other, see Rom. 14. 18. Vnlesse Christ by the Spirit, do meane the spirituall forme which God had ordained: and by truth, the sincerity and uprightnesse of heart to observe it.

V. 24. Must worship,] to yeeld him a service befitting his nature.

V. 25. I know,] from hence it appeares that the Samaritans themselves expected the Messias which was promised to the Fathers: who they beleeved should fully reveale the will of God, and the doctrine of salvation. Christ,] in the Greek tongue, which was in those dayes commonly used in Palestine.

V. 27. That he talked,] a thing which they thought, was to meane and unfitting for him.

V. 34. My meate,] namely mine only delight is to do mine office, as at this time to convert this woman and these people

V. 35. Say not yee,] earthly harvest indeed is not ready as yet, but the spirituall harvest of the conversion of Nations by the Gospell is, which is as it were ripe fruit of the seed sowne by the Prophets, as you shall soone see by the example of these Samaritans. Foure moneths,] these speeches being spoken presently after the Passeover, Ioh 2. 13. and the harvest being in Iudea at Pentecost: called therfore the feast of harvest, Exod. 23. 16. it seems that by harvest here ought to bee understood the heart of summer, which is all the world over, the time of harvest. Vnlesse one should say that these speeches were spoken the yeare following in some season which is not specified. Look on,] by spirituall contemplation. The fields,] namely the whole world sowne al over with the elect, who are upon the point of being called and converted.

V. 36. He that reapeth,] though it should seeme that the Prophets have bin like the labourers, and sowers, enduring the hardest labour, in respect of you Apostles who come to the harvest which is ready to be reaped: which is the more easie and pleasant work, yet there is a great reward layd up for you, as well as for them in the heavenly happinesse, common to the Prophets, the Apostles, and all Gods true servants. Vnto life,] of which labour the recompence is eternall life.

V. 37. That saying,] it might bee some ordinary proverb, spoken of such men as doe reape the fruits of other mens labours.

V. 42. And know,] by the inward perswasion of the spirit, which went a long with Christs word.

V. 43. Into Galilee,] namely to Cana, v. 46. and not into Nazareth his own Citie out of which hee was driven, Luk. 4 29. nor to Capernaum the place of his ordinary abode, Mat. 4. 13. and 9. 1.

Ver. 46. Noble man,] the Italian, Royall officer,] namely one of Herod the Tetrarchs officers, who yet usurped the title of King: though hee were put by it by Augustus. See upon Matth. 14 1.

V. 48. Except yee see,] a reproofe made to the Galileans because of their incredulity.

V. 50. Liveth,] that is to say he is safe and sound.

Ver. 51. Going downe,] that is to say was pretty wellon ward in his way going homeward.

V. 53. Beleeved,] that is to say made open profession of his beliefe in Christ.

V. 54. The second,] the meaning is after hee was already returned into Cana, where he had wrought his first miracle, Iohn 2. 7, 11. hee wrought this second miracle there also.

Chap. V.

Ver. 1. A Feast,] if Saint Iohn hath exactly followed the order of times, this feast might bee Pentecost, which immediately followed the Passeover, Iohn 2. 13.

Ver. 2. Sheep market,] the Italian. Sheepe gate,] it was one of the gates of Ierusalem which stood neere the Temple, and it is likely was called so: because that thorow that gate cattel were brought into the Citie. See Nehemiah 3. 1. 32. and 12. 39. Others the sheepe-market, but it is all one, for this market was close by the Gate. A poole,] a great place to keepe water in, as there were many of them in Ierusalem: into which the water of Gihon came by pipes under ground, for to bathe themselves, to wash with or water their Cattel in, or the like uses, Nehemiah 2. 14. and 3. 16. Isaiah 7. 3. and 22. 9, 11. and 36. 2. Iohn 9. 7. Bethesda,] that is to say a house or place of pietie, so called by reason of the miraculous healing which was there. Others doe expound this name otherwise, but this seemes to be the likelier sence.

Verse 4. An Angell,] by GODS will and power.

V. 10. It is not.] true it is that carrying of burthens was one of the bodily actions, which were forbidden to be done on the Sabbath day, Neh. 13. 19. Ier. 17. 21. but Christ being the Soveraigne Lord, might exempt them from it, and besides, this act was not contrary to the meaning of the Law, because it was not a labour but a publike signe of the deliverance, to the glory of God, and for the instruction of men.

V. 14. Sinne no more.] turne from those thy sins which had moved Gods justice to so long a punishment, Matth. 9. 2. Or seeing thou hast receaved this favour at Gods hands, yeeld him a perpetual acknowledgement therefore in obedience and service.

V. 17. My Father,] as God is not subject to the Lawes of the Sabbath, but operates inceassantly, though not to create a new world or any new species: so I his everlasting son do operate at all times, without any law or limitation, as well in workes which are purely divine, as in those which I doe in the qualitie of Mediatour.

V. 19. Can doe,] not by reason of any impotency, but by reason of the unitie of the essence, and the perfect union of will and operation which is betweene me and the father, who is the spring, and as it were the first pattern of al the aforesaid actions. what he seeth] a figurative term to shew the unspeakeable communion of wil, wisedom and power, between the Son and the Father, in the internall order of the most holy Trinitie: or the perfect dependencie and conformitie, of the will of Christ as Mediatour, to that of God his Father. And his Fathers perpetuall conduct towards him, Isa. 11. 3. Or the office of fulfilling all Gods secret councel, Isai. 11. Or the office of fulfilling and performing Gods secret councell, which was as it were the model of al Christs actions, see the same order of operation in the holy Ghost, Iohn 16. 13.

V. 22. Judgeth no,] hee doth not governe the world nor his Church immediately, as by the operation of his owne person. but doth doe it in, and by his Son, to whom he hath given all power, and by him doth operate, and manifest all his power, Phil. 2. 10. Col. 1. 18. Heb. 1. 2, 3.

V. 23. As they honour,] he means that religious reverence which is engraven naturally in all men towards the God-head, and which God by his word commandeth to bee yeelded to his Sonne, who is his living subsistent and perfect Image, Philippians 2. 10, 11.

Verse 25. The dead,] namely those which are spiritually dead in sinne, Ephesians 2. 1. Col. 2. 13. That heare,] with a lively faith in the Gospell, Hebrewes 4. 2. Shall live,] in a spirituall life, consisting in the participating of the grace and Spirit of GOD in CHRIST, Rom. 6. 4 Ephes. 2. 4. Col 3. 4.

V. 26. Hath life,] Namely hee is the beginning and spring of all the naturall subsistency and life of every thing. To the Sonne,] as hee is mediatour and head of the Church. To have,] Namely to bee the Author and beginner of a spirituall and everlasting life to all his beleevers, Ioh. 6. 56.

V. 27. To execute judgement,] namely to rule and governe, ver. 22. Because he is,] not onely as hee is true everlasting God, but also as hee is Mediatour, having taken humane flesh upon him, Acts 17. 31. 1 Cor. 15. 28. in which nature also, he is his fathers deputy, Dan. 7. 13.

V. 28. Marvaile not,] Christ proves his power, to work this spirituall resurrection, by the resurrection of bodies, which is an effect of the same power, but more sensible.

V. 30. I can,] See upon, ver. 19. Mine own will,] not that indeed the Son of God, as he was God, had a will severall from his Fathers will: but because it seemed so to men to whom he did speake. See Ioh. 6. 38. and 7. 16. and 8. 50. Vnlesse this be understood of the will of his humane nature; which though it were not the same as his divine nature, yet was it perfectly regulated by it, Matthew 26. ver. 39.

V. 31. If I beare,] If you had no other proofe of the truth of my person and doctrine, but only mine owne word, as I am in your imagination, but onely a meere man. My witnesse,] I grant that you might then have some pretence to hold it to bee false, though in deed it be very true, Ioh 8. 14.

Verse 32. There is another,] Namely GOD the Father who hath borne mee witnesse from Heaven, Matthew 3. ver. 17. and then afterwards by Iohn, who was sufficiently approved to bee his Prophet, and by my workes, verse 36. and by his Scriptures, verse 39. And I know,] I doe condescend unto, and am content with his witnesse. And am certaine that you are convinced thereby, and do withstand it but only thorow malice and obstinacy.

Ver. 34. I receive not,] I have no need of it for my selfe, being the Soveraigne truth but only make use of it to you for your salvation, to whom Iohns person and ministery hath beene more evident then mine, though they both be true enough in the same way of truth, but in different degrees.

Ver. 35. Shining light,] as 2 Pet. 1. 19. Were willing,] you tooke pleasure in Iohns doctrine but without any firme root of faith, see Mat. 13. 20.

V. 37. Hath borne witnesse,] by his Prophets or by his voyce from Heaven, Mat. 3. 17. Yee have neither,] it is no marvaile that my fathers witnesse is of so little esteeme and weight amongst you, for his word is as unknowne and obscure unto you as his glorious face in heaven is.

V. 38. Yee have not,] yee have no light, nor internall habit of true knowledge, nor faith in Gods Word: wherefore like blinde men, you cannot discerne the light of Gods witnessing.

V. 40. And yee,] your ignorance can not be holpen, because it is wilfull, See 2 Pet. 3. 5.

V. 41. I receive not,] this which I speake is not because I am ambitious of being receaved or honored by you: but out of meere zeale to the glory of God, whom you hate in rejecting mee, Iohn 15. 23, 24.

V. 43. In my Fathers name,] sent by him, with commission and authority from him; mine actions having no relation but to obey him, without preceding any thing for my selfe: which should be a sufficient proofe to you of my fidelity. In his owne,] of his owne minde and motion, seeking his owne glory and his owne advantage.

V. 44. How can yee,] the true cause of your incredulity is your hypocrisie, and worldly ambition, in being desirous to appeare holy and perfect before men, which hindereth you from giving glory to God through repentance, and from comming to mee by faith. And those among you which are convinced concerning the truth of me, will not make open profession thereof, for feare of being reviled by the rest, Iohn 7. 13. and 12. 43. Romans 1. ver. 16. 2 Cor. 4. 2.

V. 45. Doe not thinke,] you are sufficiently accused for your incredulity by Moses himselfe, and by his doctrine, and you need not be any more accused by my word and the proofes thereof which you doe not beleeve. See Rom. 2. 12. In whom,] in the observing of whose Law you repose all the trust of your salvation, Rom. 2. 17. and whose name you make a buckler, as if you rejected mee to cleave to him: supposing there is some contrariety between Moses and me, which is not so.

CHAP. VI.

VER. 1. WEnt over,] one bay of the lake long wayes, and not the whole breadth of the lake. The Sea,] Namely the lake of Genezareth.

Ver. 4. The passeover,] this seemes to bee set down not only to shew the circumstance of the time: but also to shew that the Lord did thereupon take an occasion to speake, of the spirituall eating of the true Lambe, figured by the Paschall Lambe, to which end all this discourse and preaching is referred.

V. 6. To prove him,] whither he had any lively feeling and beliefe of his divine power, and any motion to desire the assistance of it in a time of neede.

V. 21. Immediately,] Namely by miracle: the Lord having appeased the wind, and driving the ship to land.

V. 22. When the people,] the meaning is, the people seeing that Apostles goe away alone: beleeved that Christ had sent them about some businesse: but that hee himselfe would stay there, being there was never another vessell there to carry him away. Whereupon the next morning finding themselves frustrate of their opinions they went after Iesus, having gotten some boates which were come from Tiberias.

V. 26. Not because,] not being moved by a lively feeling of my divine power, which appeares in my workes: to bee thereby brought to the obedience of faith, but only drawne by a desire of getting some benefit, and bodily profit, as if I should feed you all without any labour or paines taking.

V. 27. For that meat,] namely, for the doctrine of the Gospell, and for Christ himselfe who is proposed in it; and which is not bodily food that perisheth it selfe, and cannot keepe the body from perishing: but the food of the soule to everlasting life. Sealed,] that is to say, expressly appointed, as by a character of formall propriety: and made him fit for it through the fulnesse of the gifts of the Spirit, which is Gods seale.

V. 28. What shall we doe,] what order hath God established for the gaining of this spirituall food: as he hath appointed bodily labour for to gaine bread for bodily food.

V. 30. What signe,] what solemne and noted miracle from heaven doest thou shew us; whereby we may be induced to follow thee? As by Moses his ministery, Manna was given the people. See Mat. 16. 1. Mark 8. 11.

V. 32. Bread from heaven,] namely the true food of the soule, which comes not out of the aire as Manna did, but from the heaven of glory as I did, abasing my selfe so farre as to take humane flesh upon me for the worlds salvation. See Iohn 3. 13.

V. 34. Give us,] a request made out of ignorance, as Iohn 4. 15.

V. 35. I am,] that is to say, in me, receaved and applied, and ingrafted in the soule by a lively faith, remaines the power to quicken the soule, which is separated from God; who is the spring of life, and is dead in sinne, and to preserve it alive, by a continuall communication and influence of Gods grace. Shall never hunger,] see upon Iohn 4. 14.

V. 36. Beleeve me,] and therefore cannot participate of this benefit of life.

V. 37.

V. 39. All that,] all my fathers elect which he hath given me to save, and to be mine as members of my body, those being drawne by the power of my Spirit, do come and joyne themselves with me by a lively faith, and I lovingly entertaine them, and doe keepe them safe.

V. 39. I should lose,] that I should give to all his elect true everlasting salvation, the perfection of which shall be at the blessed resurrection.

V. 40. And this,] as he hath appointed me to be a Saviour, so he hath appointed faith to be a means to receive me to salvation and life. Which seeth,] that is truly is enlightned by his knowledge.

Ver. 44. No man,] none ought to marvaile that you cannot comprehend these things, nor joyne your selves to me by faith for to enjoy them: for it is a supernaturall motion of Gods Spirit, which you have not. Draw him,] move him by his Almighty power, to unite himselfe to mee by faith against the inclination of his owne corrupt nature. See Cant. 1.4. Iohn 12. 32. And I,] that is to say all those that come to me, the good they finde thereby, is the spirituall life, the accomplishment of which shall bee life everlasting, by meanes of the blessed Resurrection.

V. 45. In the Prophets,] in that volume wherein all their prophecies are contained. All,] not all and every particular person; as it appeares by verse 44. and 65. but all the elect and children of God. That hath heard,] in his Church, by his word. And hath learned,] that is to say, hath received a lively impression of this truth by vertue of the Holy Ghost which engendreth faith, Iohn 14.26. and 16. 13. 1 Thes. 4.9. 1 Iohn 2.20,27.

V. 46. Not that,] that is to say, when I speake of hearing the father, it is not by reason that any one can have accesse to him or communication of seeing or hearing him immediately without me: The Fathers word is that which I propound in his name, and from him, Ioh. 14 9. He which is,] Namely I my selfe, who proceeded from him from everlasting as his proper Son, and also have by him been appointed to be the Saviour of the world.

V. 49. Are dead,] where by it appeares that that foode, though it came out of the ayre, and was purer then any other food: yet it was corruptible in it selfe and could not keepe the body from death, whereas the foode which I present unto you saves the soule from spirituall death, and body and soule both from everlasting death.

V. 50. This is,] Namely this which I propound to you in my selfe.

V. 51. The living,] that hath life in it selfe, and giveth life to them which are partakers of it. Is my flesh,] that is to say, I am the sacred foode of the soule, for as much as in my humanity, I will offer my selfe to death as an expiatory sacrifice for the sins of the world and that it is eaten by the soule, that is to say, applyed to life by the actuall commemoration, lively faith, and inward apprehension, to be rejoyced comforted, strengthened, and sustained in the fruition and feeling of Gods grace which is the spirituall life. And it seemes that Christ hath made use of these termes by reason that in every Religion, the eating of the flesh of the sacrifices, was a signe of the Communion to that Religion, 1 Corinr. 10. 18. Hebr. 13. 10. to shew that every Christian ought to have communion with Christ, to unite him and appropriate him to himselfe by a lively faith, which worketh with Christ, as eating doth upon flesh; and without that, Christ doth man no good, no more than meate which is not eaten nor concocted.

V. 52. Strove,] either being not all of one opinion, as Iohn 7. 43. and 9. 16. or that in a tumultuous manner they contradicted the Lord.

Ver. 53. And drinke,] this is added to teach us that wee ought to participate with Christ, wholly with all his merit, satisfaction, and expiation, made by the shedding of his bloud, as also for that purpose hee hath appointed the two signes in the Lords Supper.

V. 55. Indeed,] according as spirituall things have their truth and reality as much, or more in their own kind then corporall ones have in theirs. See Ioh. 1. 9 and 15. 1. Heb. 8. 2.

V. 56. Dwelleth,] that is to say is inseparably united with me and I with him even as food is with him that eates it.

V. 57. I live,] Namely as Son, by vertue of the eternall generation: and as Mediatour, by the communication and influence of the life, vertue, and Spirit of God. See Rom. 6. 4. 2 Cor. 13. 4. Shall live,] See Iohn 5. 26.

V. 58. Not as,] the vertue of this my bread is not like that of Manna which could not save mens bodies from death.

Verse 60. Heare it,] that is to say beare it with patience, and beleeve it, and receave it with docilitie.

V. 62. Shall see,] from whence you shall have greater cause to wonder, to thinke that you should bee fed by his flesh which is taken up into heaven? therefore because your senses may not transport you to incredulity, leave off all these carnall thoughts: and judge and understand these things spiritually, 1 Cor 2. 14. and all occasion of stumbling shall bee taken away. Ascend,] up into Heaven where the Son of God was before his incarnation in the residence of his glory: and from whence he descended not by change of place, but by manifestation, and by voluntary abasement of condition, taking upon him human flesh; and in it the forme of a servant.

V. 63. The spirit,] doe not grossely stop at my materiall flesh, nor at the corporall manner of eating sing, which are things unprofitable for the soule: but apprehend in my flesh that which is spirituall and quickning therein: namely that it is the flesh of the Sonne of the living God, and that in it he suffered death, expiated sinne, and fulfilled all righteousnesse: and besides that, the onely meanes to be partaker of it to everlasting life, is by the holy Ghost, who engenders true faith in mens hearts. Are Spirit,] ought to be taken and understood spiritually, 1 Cor. 2. 14. and in this manner do bring salvation and life to beleevers, such as al men are not, & those that are so indeed, must acknowledge it to be Gods meer benefit.

V. 66. went back,] scandalized by reason of this doctrine which was so strange & incomprehensible.

V. 68. Of eternall life,] which doe not onely propound and teach the way to obtaine it, but do likewise containe in them a secret seed of life, which is quickned and excited by the power of the Spirit.

V. 96. A devill,] that is to say, is divelish in wickednesse, is wholly possessed and driven on by the evill spirit.

Chap. VII.

Verr. 1. To kill him,] his houre being not yet come.

V. 3. Depart,] it is likely that they were afraid of King Herod, either for their own particulars, or in the behalfe of Christ, Luke 13. 31. Thy Disciples,] which are in Iudea, and receive thy doctrine which here is rejected.

V. 4. To be known,] namely to beare a title and quality of a publick person, as Doctor, Pastor, Ambassador, &c. If thou doe,] seeing thou makest profession of teaching, and doest so many excellent miracles, seek a place more apt to cause all these things to bring forth fruit: in places of more note, as Iudea is.

V. 5. For neither,] these things were spoken by them, not so much for any desire they had to advance his doctrine, as because they did not as yet so firmely beleeve in him. To contemne all dangers and accidents for the love of him and of his Gospell.

V. 6. My time,] as much as to say, you may goe when you please. But I have certaine moments for all mine actions which are determined by my Fathers will and mine, which are not regulated by any humane will, example, or custome. See Iohn 2. 4

V. 7. The world,] you need not be afraid of the world, seeing you doe not fight against it, nor condemne it, as I doe according to mine office, from whence grow up all these worldly persecutions against me.

V. 10. As it were,] namely at the first, to kindle the desire of hearing and seeing him so much the more. Or to discover first whither there were any number, disposed by his first preachings for to receive him, to the end he might not shew himselfe in vaine.

V. 14. Of the feast,] which lasted eight dayes. Lev. 23. 34. 36.

V. 15. Having never,] for it was a thing knowne that Iesus had not frequented the Schooles at Ierusalem, but had been brought up amongst mechanick people. See Mark 6. 3.

V. 16. Is not mine,] he would say two things, the one, My doctrine is not a humane science, which I have needed to learne by teaching, according as you take me to be simply man. It is a perfect knowledge of Gods mysteries, which as I am his Sonne, I have by eternall generation from the Father, and as Mediator in shape of man by voluntary communication. The other is, I doe most faithfully relate it; there being nothing diverse, much lesse contrary between the Father and me.

V. 17. If any man,] the divinity and faithfulnesse of my doctrine is so evident, that it can no way be contradicted, but onely by a wicked rebellion against God: but every soule that is well disposed by the Spirit to the true obedience of faith, and to voluntary humility, may very easily judge of it, 1 Cor. 2. 14, 15. Phil. 1. 17.

V. 18. Of himselfe,] without any vocation: or not conforming his words to his commission. Seeketh,] is moved thorow ambition to bring men to his opinions and will, wherein consisteth the false glory. He that seeketh,] contrariwise the signe of a faithfull minister is to purchase audience and obedience for God only, which is his true glory.

V. 19. Moses,] the meaning is. You do yet beare me malice, since that time as I healed the impotent man, and caused him to carry away his bed on the Sabbath day, Iohn 5. 8. as if I had violated the holinesse of the day. But if we ought to take that Commandement so strictly, how many wayes doe you transgresse it, either by vitious and sinfull actions, as also by common and indifferent actions, Luke 13. 15. & 14. 5. or in religious actions commanded by the law, Mat. 12. 5. Iohn 7. 22.

V. 20. The people,] who knew not what the chiefs intended. Thou hast,] not for to devine, but be frantick, and speak senselesly as a man possessed with the Devill.

V. 21. One worke,] namely the foresaid healing. Marvell,] to see me so freely break the Sabbath.

V. 22. Gave unto you,] as much as to say, If the law of the Sabbath be not violated by circumcision, which is administred on that day, when the eighth day from the birth of the childe fals thereon, Gen. 17. 12. no more is it not by any other action of piety and vertue, such as mine was in healing the man that was sick of the palsie: and the commandement to do good at all times, limits the generall lawe of the Sabbath, as well as that of the Circumcision. Not beeause,] that is to say, though circumcision was appointed and used before Moses by the ancient Patriarchs. Which seemes to be added to correct the Iewes superstitious veneration of the name and person of Moses.

V. 24.

V. 24. According,] by a precipitate and superficiall judgement, without exact enquiry, as it were outwardly and by acceptation of persons, looking more upon some externall qualities (as that I am a Galilean, without degreee, without title, little followed, rejected by the chiefe) then to the grounds of my doctrine, and the truth which you heare from me; which are the two principall vices of a judge, who contrariwise ought to shut his eyes, and open his eares.

V. 26. The Rulers,] of the Iewish nation, who sought to put Iesus to death, by cunning, and secretly. Or to take him to put him into the hands of the Romans, to whom was reserved the execution of capitall punishments.

V. 27. But when,] a false opinion grounded upon that the Iewes expected then, as they doe now, the Messias to come suddenly, and unlooked for, as comming from heaven, according as his comming in the flesh is often described by the Prophets, as Isay 60.1. Mal. 3.1. and 4.2. though for all that they have set downe his descent according to the flesh, and the time and place, and manner of his birth, &c.

V. 28. Ye both,] that is to say, you have sufficient proofes for to know me, and indeed you are convinced in your owne consciences, that I am of divine originall, and that my vocation is from God. Iohn 9.41. but you resist me out of pure malice. Or though you know whence I am, according to my corporall originall, yet nevertheless I am the true Messias approved by the Father. He that sent me,] the proofes which my Father hath given of my sending, Iohn 5.32. are most certaine and infallible: but you being carnall and wilfully putting out all light that is within you, cannot wholesomely judge of them, nor know them, to be perswaded thereby. See Iohn 8.14.

V. 29. But I know him,] I have a cleer knowledge of him, and a most firme approbation within my selfe, which I oppose to all your contradictions.

V. 34. Shall seek me,] namely, after ye have so rejected me as you do, ye shall go seeking the Messias, and the Saviour, and shall finde none; there being none other but I. And as for me, I being gathered up into heaven, you will not know where to finde me; because you know not what it is to seeke me in spirit and that your incredulity excludes you from accesse to my Father, and even from life everlasting.

V. 35. Vnto the,] to the Iewes and Israelites, who were formerly gone amongst the Gentiles, and degenerated in religion, language, and customes, Iac. 1.1. 1 Pet. 1.1.

V. 37. That great day,] this was the eight day of the feast of Tabernacles, a day of solemn assembly, Lev. 23.36. So called by the Iewes, as also the most solemn dayes of other feasts, Ioh. 19.31. Saying,] the Iewes relate in their writings, that in this last day of the Tabernacles, the people by an ancient tradition went and fetched water from the fountaine of Siloe in certaine great vessels, and brought it into the Temple to the Priests, who powred it upon the Altar, singing the third verse of the twelfth Chapter of Isaiah, and from thence it should seeme that the Lord took this occasion of speaking of these spirituall waters.

V. 38. Hath said,] these words formally are not set downe in Scripture, but seeme to be gathered from divers places, as Isay 35.15. and 44.3. in which under the figure of waters, are promised the abundance of the gifts of the holy Ghost, which should be powred upon the Church by the Messias: whereby there should be as it were a living spring of all manner of good works framed in each beleever.

V. 39. The holy Ghost,] namely, this rich abundance of the graces of the spirit, as well those which were common to every beleever under the Gospell, in regeneration, illumination, &c. as the particular ones to certaine persons in the Church, in power of doing miracles, in prophecying, in speaking of strange languages, &c. See Acts 19.2. Because that,] See upon Iohn 16.7.

V. 40. Many,] namely, by a certaine confused and obscure inspiration from God, to judge of Christ, as of a divine person.

V. 42. David was,] where the residence of his fathers household was.

V. 52. Of Galilee,] of whence they judged Christ and his Disciples to be, by reason of their ordinary abode in that place.

Chap. VIII.

Vers. 6. Tempting him,] to overtake him, howsoever he had answered. For if according to his wonted clemency in pardoning penitent beleevers their sins, he had spared the woman: they would have accused him for sparing malefactors, and doing things contrary to the law. And if he had condemned her, they would have taxed him with contradicting his own doctrine, and his ordinary practise. Or that he usurped the publike authority. Wrote,] he seemes to do it, as it were in signe of contemning those things which they alledged, unlesse there be some more secret sense in it. As for to shew that sinne which is written before God. Isay 65.6. and graven, as it were, with a steele. Ier. 17.1. is pardoned and blotted out by Christ by means of faith, and repentance, even as easily as a writing slightly made in the dust.

V. 7. He that is,] Christ here makes no law for the Judges and witnesses, that they should not prosecute malefactors; unlesse they be altogether guiltlesse. But leaving the law of God in its force, the execution of which did not belong to him; hee contents himselfe with doing his office in convincing these hipocrits severe censurers of others, and in the meane time they themselves spotted with many sins, and wicked tempters of Christ, and in corrupting this woman. Cast a stone,] according to the law. Deut. 17.7.

V. 11. Neither do I,] namely for the externall and corporall judgement which did not belong unto him. Insisting only upon the inward condemnation of the conscience to bring her to repentance, wherein he fulfilled the worke of the law and of the Gospell together.

V. 13 Is not,] cannot be held valuable and certaine.

V. 14. Tho' I know,] and a witnesse must speake of certaine knowledge. But ye,] your refusing to receive my witnesse, proceeds from that you maliciously suppresse the notice which I have given you of my divine calling: and of the full accomplishment thereof by my future glorification. And thus ought to be reconciled Iohns saying 7.28 with this.

V. 15. Ye judge,] yee take me with false, or not sufficient witnesse, and I have more and better reason to reprove you for your false and perverse judgements of things belonging to God without any light or guide of his spirit, but only out of your own fleshly understanding, but I doe forbeare; as he saith afterwards. I judge,] in mine office of Mediatour, I doe not proceed against you, nor against any one else, as a rigorous and criminall judge: as mine authority would well extend unto it, mine end is to save by instruction, exhortation, conversion, and not to lose by judgement and condemnation. See Iohn 3. 17.

V. 16. Alone,] that is to say separate from God my Father. Which ought to be understood as well in regard of the unitie of the essence: as of the perfect union of the will of the Father in his glory, and of the Son in his quality of Mediator.

V. 17. Is true,] that it is to say sufficient to be believed in judgement.

V. 18. Beareth witnesse,] namely by his Prophets, but especially by his divine power wherewith hee hath endowed my person, and accompanieth my ministery as well in words as in deeds.

V. 19. Ye neither know,] yee neither have nor will receave, any light nor knowledge of my person, office, and doctrine, by which only you might gaine, the saving knowledge of God, and therefore it is in vaine to speake to you of my Father.

Verse 20. In the Treasury,] See upon Marke 12. 41.

V. 22. Will he kill,] that is to say, will hee goe out of the world? as Iohn 7.35. they had said will he goe into a farre Country.

V. 23. Yee are from,] being worldly by birth, by nature, and affection, you are incapable of raising your selves up to heaven, from whence I am; and vnother I go, directing all my beleevers thither.

V. 25. That I said,] that is to say, even from the beginning of my vocation, I told you that which I tell you still, that I am the Sonne of God, the messias, the Saviour.

V. 26 I have,] I could by many reasons convince your malice, and prove the truth of my word, but because you are unworthy of it by reason of your hardnesse, I will content my selfe with the witnesse my Father beareth of mee, and mine owne proper knowledge.

Ver. 28. When ye,] that is to say after yee have crucified mee: I shall make you finde by the effect what my person and power is, Rom. 1 4.

V. 29. And hee,] hitherto my Father beareth witnesse sufficiently of the office which hee committed to mee, and of my faithfull execution of it.

V. 30. Believed,] with a transitory faith, as for a time, without any lively roote, as appeareth by the Lords ensuing discourses. See Matthew 13, 20, 21.

V. 32. Ye shall know,] yee shall be enlightned by the Holy Ghost, in the lively knowledge of the truth of the Gospell, by which you shall be set free from the bondage of sin, the devill, and death. See Rom. 8. 2.

V. 33. Were never,] wee are of the blessed progeny, to whom liberty, and domination is promised Gen. 25. 23. and therefore no body hath any right to bee Lord over us but only God. The subjection wee now are in, and have bin in at other times, hath always been by oppression and violence, and not by any just title.

V. 34. Is the servant,] you thinke upon nothing but onely upon the right of temporall liberty: but I speake to you of the spirituall liberty, whereof man deprives himselfe, giving himselfe over to sinne, which makes him his slave, and takes away from him the title of Sonne of God: and excludes him out of Gods house and inheritance: as it is from you.

V. 36. If the Sonne,] this title of Sonne doth by nature belong to me alone: you, as all other men, become bondmen by reason of sinne: and in me alone can bee adopted, and enjoy the benefit of children.

V. 37. Seed,] according to the flesh, but not according to the spirit and faith, Rom. 4. 16. and 9. 7. Gal. 3. 7.

V. 38. which ye have seene,] Namely which the devill doth, and inciteth you to doe.

V. 39. Children,] Namely true and lawfull imitatours of Abrahams faith: Father of all beleevers wherein consists the true meaning of this name of Children of Abraham, Romans 4. 16. and 9. 7. Gal. 3. 7.

V. 44

V. 41. Ye do,] namely, spirituall Fathers, for they perceived that Christ did not speak of a carnall father.

V. 42. If God,] if ye were regenerate by Gods Spirit, you would know me, and love me, as the children of the same father, 1 John 3. 1. and cause of your adoption, Gal. 4. 5.

V. 43. Why do,] you cannot pretend ignorance, for your malice onely, which the Devill hath excited and ingendred in you, thorow your voluntary inclination, to follow his suggestions, is that which lets you not learn my doctrine.

V. 44. The Devill,] it is he that hath ingrafted in you as it were the beginning of all your actions, and hath made you like unto himselfe in malice and other vices. A murtherer,] in that thorow his envie and deceit he seduced man, and precipitated him into death; and afterwards incited Cain and all his other instrumentes to cruell and bloody acts. From the beginning,] not from his creation, but from the beginning of the world, after the fall of devils. In the truth,] namely, in the purity and integrity in which all the Angels were created. And the Father,] namely, the first author and introductor of the false-hood in deeds and sayings, which he also soweth, and disperseth abroad amongst men.

V. 47. Of God,] namely regenerate by his Spirit. Seeing it is the propertie of children to know their fathers voice. See John 10. 4.

V. 48. A Samaritan,] that is to say, apostated from the Jewish religion and their deadly enemy, John 4. 9. and transported with a devilish rage.

V. 49. I honour,] that is to say, through a just zelouse of Gods glory, I cannot suffer you to call your selves his children, having the Devils stampe upon you, and not Gods.

V. 50. There is one,] namely the Father glorifying me, John 17. 1. 5. shall revenge the contempt and dishonour which you have done me.

V. 51. Keepe,] that is to say, keeps it in his heart by faith, and observes it in his workes. Death,] namely, everlasting death.

V. 54. That honoureth,] that hath given me a glorious office, Heb. 5. 5. and hath borne honourable witnesse by words and deeds, and at last shall crown my obedience with celestiall glory.

V. 55. Nor know him,] by a lively and spirituall light, which hath imprinted in you a true and resident image of the heavenly glory, to regeneration.

V. 56. My day,] namely, my comming and manifestation in the flesh. He saw it,] by faith, which is a demonstration of things which are not to be seen by the eye, Heb. 11. 1.

V. 58. I am,] namely, a true and eternall God, and Saviour of the world.

V. 59. Hid himselfe.] It is very likely that he miraculously became invisible.

CHAP. IX.

V. 2. Who did,] to avoide the absurdity, which at the first sight appeares in this demand, seeing none can commit sinne before they be borne; we may say that this is spoken in regard of Gods foresight; as if they had said, what sin had God foreseen in this man? unlesse the Disciples were tainted with that phantasticall opinion which reigned amongst the Iewes, namely, that the soules after death did passe out of one body into another; and that in the subsequent body, they suffered punishment for the offences committed in the first.

V. 3. Neither hath this,] either that God indeed in the afflicting of this man had not had any reference to any particular sin of his father or his mother, nor to any foreseene offence of his: or that the meaning plainly be, Leave this curious and unprofitable inquiry, and only reape the fruit of Gods secret providence, who in this blinde man will make you see his wonders, to his glory, and your edification and confirmation.

V. 4. while it is,] whilst the appointed time lasts for me to lay open my power in working of miracles, John 11. 9. The night,] he seemes to mean the time of his approaching passion, at which, that power should be restrained to give way unto his voluntary sufferings. See Luke 22. 53.

V. 5. As long as I,] I doe not measure my actions by the time, as men do by the length of the day, but the time takes his measure from me. For whilest I am in the world, I am the Sun which shineth in it in grace and miracles: when I am gone out of the world, you shall have no light, but shall be given over to the darknesse of your own reprobate sense.

V. 6. Made clay.] as God in his miracles hath often times used actions and matters as he hath pleased, beyond all naturall causes and properties; whereof there can be no reason given; unlesse we say in this place, that Christ would try this mans faith, encreasing his blindnesse to heale it: to teach us, that in the spirituall illumination, we must renounce the light of sence and reason, to receive the heavenly light from God. See Acts 9. 17, 18. 1 Cor. 3. 18.

V. 7. To the poole,] whereof, see Nehem. 3. 15. See upon John 5. 2.

V. 16. A sinner,] a wicked and bad man.

V. 22. Be put out,] that is to say, excommunicate and interdicted by the Church. See John 12. 42. and 16. 2.

V. 24. Give God,] that is to say, humble thy self before him, by a sincere confession of thy disloyalty and collusion. See John 7. 19.

V. 34. Did not beare,] that is to say, did not give eare

care unto it, and beleeve it.

V. 29. From whence,] who hath sent him, or from whom he hath his charge and authority, Iohn 8. 14.

V. 31. God heareth not,] that is to say, wicked men are alwayes hatefull to God, and their prayers and requests are rejected and refused: though sometimes he graunteth them some temporall thing, to their greater condemnation; but in all Christs life, and in all his actions there appears Gods perpetuall assistance and favour.

V. 33. Nothing,] namely, none of these great miracles.

V. 34. Borne in,] namely, of a most perverse nature. Cast him out,] namely, out of the Synagogue, v. 22.

V. 39. For judgement,] to governe justly the kingdome, which my Father hath given me to the salvation of poore and humble sinners, whom I enlighten with the light of truth, and of Gods grace, so they do renounce themselves. And to the condemnation of the proud, who being full of their own understanding, reject my Gospell; whereby they are deprived of all heavenly light, and given over to be more blinded by the devill. See Luke 1. 52, 53. & 2. 34. Iohn 12. 39. Rom. 11. 7, 8.

V. 41. If ye were,] if your sin were a sin of meere ignorance it might be remissible, 1 Tim. 1. 13. but having the knowledge of divine things, Iohn 7. 28. whereof you make profession and shew, and which I have declared unto you, Iohn 15. 22. it can no way be imputed but to wicked obstinacy. And therefore it becomes incorrigible and irremissible. Matth. 12. 32. Mark 3. 29.

CHAP. X.

V. 1, 2. He that entreth not,] in this similitude Christ is the Doore, the Porter and supreame Shepherd altogether; those that come in thorow him, are beleevers, whom he admits into his Church through faith in him: and also all the good Shepherds who have their charge from him, and get themselves an entrance into mens hearts by his pure doctrine. The theeves are the wicked Shepherds who intrude themselves without any lawfull calling, or dog insinuate themselves by false doctrines, and hurtfull deceipts. The Sheepfold is the Church. The sheep are the beleevers, endowed with spirituall light and discretion. The pasture is the word of God, and all the benefits of his grace.

V. 3. calleth,] his care is not only for the generall body of the Church, but it extends it selfe also towards every particular member as need requireth. See Acts 20. 29. 31. 1 Thess. 2. 11. Leadeth,] that is to say, he openeth, unfolderh, and distributs unto them the pasture of Gods word, 1 Cor. 16. 9. 2 Cor. 2. 12. Rev. 3. 8.

V. 4. Goeth before them,] he doth guide, defend, and protect them; and finally he is alwayes present and vigilant upon all occasion of need. Follow him,] the faithfull doe voluntarily adhere unto him, acknowledging him in his word to be their faithfull Shepherd, and therefore loving him with all their hearts.

V. 5. They know not,] this ought to be understood of the knowledge of approbation, and inclination, nor of that of judgement and direction.

V. 7. The doore,] because that by faith in Christ onely, man obtaineth entrance into the communion of Saints, into the favour and grace of God, and into the kingdome of heaven. Iohn 14. 6, 7.

V. 8. All that,] namely, all those that have usurped the right which belongeth to me alone, to abolish religions and meanes for to be reconciled to God. Came before me,] the Italian, That came, as they] namely, being not sent by me. Therefore some run aside, before me. The sheep,] namely, the true beleevers and elect. See 1 Cor. 1. 19. 1. Iohn 2. 19.

V. 9. Shall goe in,] by the going in, he meanes spirituall safegard and security: by the going out, the pasture.

V. 10. Abundantly,] the Italian, That they may abound,] namely, in all manner of true good. Or that they may alwayes have more: that is to say, that the spirituall life may alwayes increase in them, untill it come to its perfection.

V. 12. The Wolfe,] namely, the false Doctors, or other kinde of corruptors, and also the violent persecutors, that seek to subvert the beleevers faith, which every true shepherd ought to endeavour to maintain to the last.

V. 14. And know,] hereby is intimated the election of beleevers, 2 Tim. 2. 19, accompanied with Gods perpetuall care, love, and protection: and ratified by the interchangeable knowledge which he gives him of himselfe, to be by them embraced by faith, loved, followed, and retained.

V. 15. As the Father,] as my Father hath chosen me to be head of the Church, so I likewise resigne my selfe wholly to him, and do adhere unto him by a perfect obedience, which is said according to the proportion which the Scripture sets, between that of the Father is towards Christ Mediator, and that which Christ is towards his beleevers, Iohn 6. 57. & 17. 11. 18. 21. 1 Cor. 3. 23. & 11. 3.

V. 16. Other sheep,] namely the elect amongst the Gentiles, who are to be called by the Gospell, and incorporated into the Church, with the elect of the Iewish nation. I must bring,] for Christ by his spirit fulfilleth all things in all men, 1 Cor. 12. 6.

V. 17. Therefore,] he doth not speak of the eternall and naturall love of the Father to the Son, but of the acceptation of Christs perfect obedience and righteousnesse, as he is man; by which, both his humane nature, and all beleevers in him are accepted to God. See Matth. 3. 17. Ephes. 1. 6.

V. 10. Taketh it from me,] namely, by force, and against my will, for I my selfe am the Priest of this action, though men be the instruments thereof.

V. 22. The feast,] of which see the occasion and ordination, 1 Mac. 4. 59. winter,] for that feast was kept in the moneth of Gaslew, which was the November Moone.

V. 23. Porch] this was the Porch of the Easterne comming in of the Temple, called Solomons Porch, as Acts 3. 11. Peradventure because it was a part of the ancient Temple, which remained more entire then any of the rest, though that also was repaired by Herod.

V. 25. Name,] that is to say, by his commission, authority, and power.

V. 26. Of my,] namely, of my Fathers elect which he hath given me to save, and in whom I create the gift of faith, Iohn 12. 39, 40. Acts 13. 48. As I said,] this ought to bee referred to Christs reproving of them. Or the meaning is, you are none of those good sheepe, which I have before described unto you.

V. 30. I and,] in unity of essence and power, as enabling Sonne. And so the Iewes understood it, v. 33. and Christ approves it, v. 36. And likewise in perfect union of action, and communion of vertue as Mediator; wherefore none can forcibly take my sheep out of my hands, no more then he can out of my Fathers hands.

V. 32. From my Father,] whereof my Father is the first author, by order of subsistency and operation, and which as Mediator I doe by his commission and power.

V. 34. Law,] namely, the holy Scripture, Ioh. 12. 34.

V. 35. If he called,] if the word of God communicates the name of God to those who by a publick calling doe represent him in the world, you cannot tax me with blasphemy, if I call my selfe God: if I were no more but what I undoubtedly shew you that I am: namely, a holy Prophet sent by God. Be broken,] gainsaid, refuted, and reproved as false.

V. 36. Sanctified,] cleansed in my humane flesh, even from my first conception from all contagion of sin, full of the gifts of the holy Ghost: and consecrated to the divine office of being Saviour of the world, Luke 1. 35.

V. 37. Of my Father,] which my Father only, who is the only true God, can do.

V. 38. That the Father,] namely, that all his power dwelleth in me; either by unity of essence, as I am his Son, or by union of will as Man and Mediator, I do subsist, and am as it were founded in him in both respects, and that perfectly and inseparably.

V. 40. Into the place,] namely, into Bethabara. See Iohn 1. 28. & 3. 23.

V. 41. Iohn did,] though Iohn did not confirme his ministery by any externall miracle, yet the event hath verified all that which he hath said of Christ.

CHAP. XI.

V. 1. 2. Anointed,] after all these things were done, Iohn 12. 3.

V. 4. Unto death,] irrevocably, and without reflorishing.

V. 6. He abode,] that he might die of that grievous disease he had; to the end the miracle might be more glorious and remarkable, in raising him from the dead, then if he had but kept him from dying.

V. 9. Are there not,] there is nothing to be feared when a man followeth Gods vocation, which is as the light that illuminates mans steps: and besides, God hath prefixed the times and bounds of exercising it, and it is not in the power of any one to hinder the accomplishment of it. See Iohn 9. 4.

V. 10. In the night,] without the light and safegard of Gods vocation and protection, or after the time of the execution of it is past. He stumbleth,] at many great evils, through Gods curse, or runs into many great dangers and troubles, on mans side, which he must beare with patience, till he have finished his course.

V. 11. Sleepeth,] that is to say, is dead, according to the custome of the Scripture; as well by reason of the rest from the troubles of this world, as by reason of the waking at the blessed resurrection.

V. 16. Didymus,] that is to say Twinne. With him,] namely with Christ, who, he thought, exposed himselfe to a manifest danger of death.

V. 18. Fifteen furlongs,] about two thousand paces. See upon Luke 24. 13. This is added to shew that the neighbourhood of the place had given many men occasion to come to visit them.

V. 22. Even now,] that is to say, now that my brother is dead.

V. 25. I am,] Christ according to his custome; from the benefit of the corporall resurrection which he promised Martha, raiseth her up to the consideration of the spirituall resurrection, by the Spirit of grace, and by the reunion with God, of which he himselfe is the cause, author, and giver.

V. 26. Liveth,] that hath the gift of spirituall life; and doth the principall act of it, which is the act of faith.

V. 33. Groaned,] he was moved therewith, and grieved, through abundance of compassion. See Mark 7. 34. he having put on all humane affections, sinne only excepted.

V. 38. Groaning,] by the same foresaid affection, or with anger, against those unbeleeving cavillers. A cave,] according to the fashion of graves in those places, Gen. 23. 9. Isay 22. 16. Mark 16. 5. A stone,] See Mat. 27. 60.

V. 40. The glory,] namely, a glorious miracle done by me through Gods soveraigne power.

V. 41. Father,] Christ speaks here as man, and as Mediator, after he had in his heart desired Gods assistance in this great work, being secretly certified that he had been heard.

V. 42. Thou hearest me,] that thou doest what I will and desire. I said it,] I have thus particularly thanked thee, as for an extraordinary benefit; to shew a certaine proofe that thou art the author of my vocation, seeing thou sealest and ratifiest it with thy power.

V. 48 The Romans,] giving the name of sedition and revolt unto this concourse of people which followeth Christ: especially, Christ stiling himselfe to be a King of Davids progeny. See John 19. 12.

V. 49. That same yeare,] whither Annas and Caiaphas did undergoe the place of High Priest by turnes; or whether this dignity was but only for a time conferred upon them, at the Romans pleasure, according to the corruption of those times contrary to the first order. See upon Luke 3.2.

V. 50. Nor consider,] you touch the danger, but you do not resolve upon the last remedy, which is to have him put to death, though there were no other reason for it, but onely that the policy of state requires it.

V. 51. This spake he not,] God guided the tongue of the High Priest. So that thinking to utter a speech according to his owne wicked intentions, he unawares pronounced an Oracle according to Gods meaning: for the High Priests had oftentimes divine inspirations, Exod. 28.15. Num. 27.21. For that,] for the redemption of the elect which were amongst the Iewes.

V. 54. Ephraim,] whereof there is no mention any where else.

V. 55. To purifie,] of some legall and ceremoniall uncleanesse, Num 9.6. according to the law of cleansings, Levit. 11 & 12 & 13 & 14. Or to prepare themselves against the feast, by religious acts and ceremonies, according to the custome, Exod. 19. 10. 15. 1 Sam. 16. 5. 2 Chron. 29. 15. and 30. 15. 17.

CHAP. XII.

V. 2. 3. Mary,] the sister of Martha. Luke 10. 38, 39. John 11. 2. The feet,] the other Evangelists say, that she did poure it upon his head; but it may be that there was so much of it, that there might some runne downe to his feet. Or that she anointed both parts.

V. 6. The bagge,] with the common money that was given Christ and his Disciples for their ordinary occasions, and for to bestow almes upon other men.

V. 16. was glorified,] and that the Holy Ghost was sent to them, for to enlighten them in the knowledge of prophesies. See John 7. 39. and 14. 26.

V. 20. Greekes,] whether they were Proselites of the Greekish nation, who came to the feast with the Iewes, 1 Kings 8. 42. Acts 8. 27. Or whether they were Iewes dwelling amongst the Greekes. See John 7. 35. That came up,] ordinarily, for a holy observancy.

V. 23. The houre,] Christ without answering to satisfying these Iewes curiosity, teacheth them the true meanes to know him to salvation, not with the eyes of the body, but by faith in the glory when he should be lifted up into glorie. See Matth. 9. 8. John 20. 17. 2 Cor. 5. 16. Col. 3. 1.

V. 24. Except,] you rest in vaine stand upon my corporall presence, because it must be taken away from you by my death. Otherwise, I who am the seed of the Church, could not bring forth the abundant fruit of the conversion of nations, through their reconciliation with God, and by the sending of my Spirit. See Isay 53. 10.

V. 25. Shall lose it,] he addes all this in regard of that which he had spoken before concerning his death, to dispose his Disciples to follow him to the end of heavenly glory, by the selfe same way of death.

V. 26. Honour,] he will preserve and deliver him from all worldly ignominy, and shall grant him the fruition of eternall glory.

V. 27. Troubled,] through horror of Gods wrath upon those sinnes, for which I am become payment for to his Majestie with my sufferings. See Matth. 26. 38, 39.

V. 28. Glorifie,] shew forth and manifest thy glorious power, giving me the victory in this last combat and triall, over the Devill, and Sin, and Death. A voice,] See upon Mat. 3. 17.

V. 30. Came not,] I had no need of this sensible answer, having a perfect, internall and spirituall communication with God: but this was done onely to induce you to believe in me.

V. 31. Now is,] shortly shall the Devill and all his party do all their endeavours against me, and against my Church, condemning me and delivering me over to death. But therein shall consist my victory, and his condemnation and ruine. For by death I shall enter into possession of my kingdome; to drive him out of his dominion, which he holdeth here in the world, in sin & in death. Rom. 8. 3. 1 Cor. 15. 54, 55, 56. Heb. 2. 14. Of this world,] the Iewes called God the King of this world, 1 Tim. 1. 17. and Christ to shew the devils usurpation in contempt, and by opposition to Gods everlasting Kingdome, calls him the King of this world, as 2 Cor. 4. 4. he is called the God thereof. For his power is bounded within the state of this world, and cannot passe to eternall things. and practiseth upon worldly men, Ephes. 2. 2. by fleshly and wicked meanes, opposite to spirituall and holy meanes, Luke 4. 6. Rev. 13. 2.

V. 32. Lifted up,] he makes an allusion between his being lifted up upon the crosse, and his going up into heaven. The meaning is, I will not onely rather to pacifie the offence of Priest and Prest, then the office of judge which is reserved for the last day.

Vers. 29. I know, &c.] I am not ignorant of it, and the humble acknowledgement of their sins, & their faith which I prepared by his commandment, being received by a lively faith, is the onely most effectuall meanes to obtain everlasting life.

CHAP. XIII.

Vers. 1. Before the Passover, &c.] Because the Passover, having continued to the day following that which was appointed by the Law, whereon Christ did celebrate it the same day (as you see Mat. 26. 19. Luk 22. 7.)

Vers. 2. Supper,] Namely of the legall Passover. After which he made an end of celebrating and performing the Law, the Jewes having washed their feete againe, as they had done at the beginning of the Paschall Supper sate to the Table againe, and did eate every one a bit of unleavened bread dipped in a sauce made of bitter herbs, which was distributed unto them by the Father of the family, and dranke round of one another himself (hence they called the cup of praise: because they did sing certaine holy hymnes, after which the assembly did likewise sup. All this was observed by the Lord, as it appeares by Luke 22. 17, 20. and after that he instituted the holy Sacrament: taking the occasion thereof from this second part of the Paschall Supper of the Jewes. Having loved,] this seemes to be noted for a preparation to that which Christ said and did afterwards to Iudas, ver. 18. 21, 26.

Vers. 3. Knowing,] according to the authority which he had receaved of supreame head of the Church, he ordained the Sacrament of the holy Supper, with the promise of his power, to serve for a lively remembrance, and pledge of him absent, and ascended into heaven. Or he would plainly say, that knowing his death and glorification drew neere hee would establish this Sacrament: wherein he did communicate to his Church the fruit and vertue of both the one and the other.

Vers. 7. Thou shalt know,] by the explication that Christ gave afterwards of it, ver. 12. or by the internall illumination of his Spirit, after his ascent into heaven.

V. 8. If I wash thee not,] namely by the spirituall washing of regeneration, wherewith the Lord would revive the signe given in Baptisme, before hee would admit his Disciples to his Table: to shew the preparation required thereunto, 1 Cor. 11. 27, 28. and that without the Spirit of Sanctification no man hath part in Christ, Rom. 8. 9.

V. 9. Not my feet only,] if thou meanest the washing of the soule, wash me all over.

V. 10. He that is,] that is to say your sins are already forgiven you, and your persons are already sanctified by the spirit: there remaine in you only certaine reliques of vice, by which you participate of the filth of the earth, which also must continually be cleansed, as the foulnesse of the feete belonging to a cleane body. See 1 Cor. 5.7.

V. 12. Set downe againe,] Namely to institute the holy Supper, which having beene largely set downe by the other Evangelists, is here left out by Saint Iohn.

Ver. 14. To wash,] that is to say to humble your selves to doe all deedes of Charity, and the baseest and most abject kinds of service to one another.

V. 18. Chosen, not onely to the charge and calling of being Apostles but also to eternall life, See Iohn 6. 70. and 15.16. 19. That the,] not that Iudas had any intention to fulfill that prophecie: nor that he was by it forced to commit his misdeed: but this is spoken simplie for to free the Apostles from their amazement, the deed having been foreseene and foretold.

Ver. 19. Ye may believe,] yee may be confirmed in believing my God-head, by which I know the secrets of hearts, and things to come. And by this terrible accident, be rather strengthened, then shaken in your faith.

V. 20. Verily,] having stiled his Apostles Messengers; or men sent, vers. 16. and having instructed them by his example to voluntary humility, he now authorizeth and confirmeth them against the contempt which humility doth breed.

V. 21. Was troubled,] as much thorow the lively apprehension of the combates which hee was entring into, as thorow indignation and horrour of Iudas his wickednesse.

V. 23. Was leaning,] according to the custome of those times in solemne feasts, to take their foode lying along and leaning upon their elbow upon a great bed about the table, so that the shoulders of one did meete with his next neigbours bosom, their feete hanging out of the bed, See upon Ezek. 23.41. And that was specially observed in the Paschal Supper, differing from the first Passeover, Exod. 12.11. where every thing was to be done in hast, to signifie the sodaine departure out of Ægypt: instead of which afterwards God suffered, by this diverse ceremony of eating the Passeover lying, the people to have a signe of the peaceable enjoying, which hee had granted them, of the foresaid benefit. Loved,] to whom according to his will and pleasure hee bore some more tender and intimate humane affection then to the rest.

Ver. 25 Saith unto him,] softly speaking in his eare, as Christ also answered him.

V. 26. when hee had dipped,] in the second part of the Iewish Supper, see upon v. 2.

V. 27. Satan entred,] Whether Satan, that being himselfe discovered by this deed of the traitor, did shake off all feare of God, all motive of Conscience, and all respect of men, to give himselfe wholly to the Devills solicitations, by whom he was already troubled, ver. 2. Or whether the Sonne of God by his supreame power did absolutely give him over into the hands of the Devill, taking away from him all manner of stay of his spirit, by which he had, untill that time stayed him. Doe quickly,] that is to say, the time of fulfilling thy malice is come, I doe no more presse it no longer, as I have heretofore done, but now vouch the reines loose. Words not of exhortation, but of a wrathfull grant and abandoning.

V. 30. Immediately,] because the sop was given to Iudas in the second part of the Paschall Supper, you may gather from hence that hee did not communicate of our Saviours Sacrament.

V. 31. Now is the,] I am now entring into my last combates, in the victory of which shall appeare the strength of my deity and righteousnesse, and by my Fathers glory shall bee fully manifested, in the work of Redemption by me his Son, which being accomplished, he will give me a glorious reward for it in his Kingdome.

And God is glorified in him.] V. 32. In himselfe,] not with any forraign & worldly glory, but with his own proper glory: to the fruition of which the Sonne of Gods humanitie hath also beene raised, by the glorious power of God, Rom. 6.4. 2 Cor. 13.4.

V. 33. As I said,] Not to exclude his Disciples out of the Kingdome of Heaven, as the unbelieving Iewes: but onely to shew that their entrance was yet put off for a time, v. 36.

V. 34. A new,] that is to say a renewed one, and re-established into its originall sence by my word, and into its efficacy by my spirit: And a spirituall and internall Law diverse from ancient Ceremonies.

Chap. XIV.

Ver. 1. YEE believe,] or beleeve yee? the meaning is, As in my Father you have all the arguments and grounds of confidence in respect of his power: so you have them also in me, in respect of the righteousnesse and satisfaction, and of your reconciliation with him, and of all the worke of Grace, and the accomplishment whereof is in mee: which are the two objects and foundations of true faith.

V. 2. In my Fathers,] that is to say, the Kingdome of Heaven is not for me alone, but for all beleevers likewise; It is a house wherein there is room for many children, Heb. 2.10. I goe,] I shall shortly die, to the end that by my satisfaction, I may obtaine right to life everlasting, and then I will rise againe, and enter into glory, to make intercession for you for ever, for to bring you into it actually, Heb. 9. 11, 12, 24, and 10. 19, 20.

Receive you.] Namely my whole Church which you represent.

V. 4. You know.] I have told you so often and so plainly that you must needs know it. The way.] Namely the true and onely meanes for to attaine unto it.

V. 6. I am.] In me is the onely meanes to get true life, and that glory which I my selfe goe unto. I doe give the most assured Declaration and direction by my word, and by my spirit I doe confirme that upon men, and the power to hold and follow that same way unto the end. Or I am the way in mine owne person, the truth in my doctrine, and the life in my spirit.

V. 7. From henceforth.] if the fault lie not in you, you may sufficiently know it in me, and by me; considering my person, my workes and my doctrine, which teach you what is needfull to be knowne of the Father to salvation: Namely what he is in himselfe, and especially what he will be towards you.

V. 8. Shew us.] doe not lead us so far about, but reveale unto us fully at once the heavenly Father, and that life, light, and glory, which is hidden with him.

V. 9. Have I been.] Seeing that being as yet carnall as thou art, thou hast not been able to comprehend those mysteries, which I have revealed unto thee; proportioning them to thy capacity, how wouldest thou be able to comprehend that infiniteness of glory? Content thy selfe at this time with the revelation which the Father makes of himselfe in me; so much is sufficient for thee to salvation. Hath seene me,] that hath known me by faith, and by the lively light of the spirit.

V. 10. The words,] God the wrath himselfe present in my doctrine, and in my workes, of which he is the first spring and Author. That dwelleth,] who is inseparably united with me, and that doth work continually in me, and by me.

Verse. 11. Believe me,] upon the word which I speake to you, and upon the assurance which I give you of it, upon the knowledge which you have of me.

V. 12. That believeth,] Christ speakes not of the common sort of beleevers in all ages, but of his Apostles, and other his Ministers, who in the beginning of his Church, should convert the world, cast downe Idols, overthrow all contrary power, obtaine the Holy Ghost by their prayers, workes of more excellency, and of a more excellent nature then those miracles as Christ wrought in the world. Because I,] for by my going up into heaven. I shall obtaine that abundance of the spirit: by which I shall shew forth my power in my kingdome; which at this time is not fitting for my state of humiliation.

V. 13. whatsoever,] though it be never so high and so difficult, so it be convenient and agreeable to your vocation, and to the advancement of my kingdome, of which things he had spoken in the precedent verse, so you desire them in faith. That I may,] by vertue of my intercession, and for the love of me. That the Father,] that obtaining such things as you have desired, you may yeeld him honour, praise and service for it, by my means.

V. 16. And he,] because that the Holy Ghost is distinct from the Son in his personall subsistence, and in the manner of working in beleevers, by way of seale and inward application of Christs benefits. Comforter,] the Greeke word signifies sometimes an Intercessor and an Advocate, and in this sence it is attributed to Christ, 1 John. 2. 1. Sometimes a person who by his discourses encourageth an afflicted one, or a Mediator of Grace and good will, Isaiah 50. 4. and both the one and the other effect is attributed to the Holy Ghost, who doth sweetly bring in the promises of God into beleevers hearts, and maketh in them unspeakable breathings for the of Holy prayers, Rom. 8. 25, 26.

V. 17. Of truth,] Namely the true Author of all divine inspiration, opposite to the lying spirits of false Prophets, and Doctors. Or the Spirit of God which accompanieth the truth of his word to seale it and perswade it. whom the world,] worldly men and unbeleevers, having neither the life nor light of God, cannot receave this continuation nor increase of it by this spirit of comfort, no more than a dead man can bee nourished, Matth. 12. 10. Or plainely he meanes, Neither having in them, nor being willing to receave the sight of knowledge, they can not have any part in the comfort of the spirit, which is not obtained nor made use of, but only by the understanding. To know him,] by all reason you should know him by the effects of his residence and power in you, though you have not yet received that abundance whereof I speake.

Ver. 18. Come to you,] Not by my Resurrection only, but especiallie by the presence of my spirit, which shall be an assured pledge unto you, of my last returne to your full redemption.

V. 19. Ye see me.] The Italian, Ye shall see me,] Namely by corporall sight after my Resurrection: with the eye of faith in my spirituall presence with you, and with an everlasting sight in glory, Iob 19. 27. Because,] Namely as your head having overcome death by my Resurrection: and obtained the fulnesse of the spirit by my going up into Heaven. I will vivifie you with a spirituall life, which at the appointed time I will make full in the eternall life in my owne Kingdome, John 8. 51.

V. 20.

] My commandements,] whereof you shall have received the Holy Ghost, you shall be effectly instructed concerning the truth of my divine person: in regard of which the Father is in mee by unitie of essence and perpetuall beginning of life, and of operation, and I in him by subsistence in the divine essence, which I have from him by eternall generation, without division or distraction of the being, or of the operation. And also concerning the most perfect communion which I have with him as Mediator, by vertue of which hee is in mee by the hypostaticall union of my person, and by the full influence and mold of every grace, life and vertue, and I in him by an entire conjunction and dependencie. And likewise concerning that communion which you have with me, in all my benefits, righteousnesse, life and and spirit, I being in you as beginning, foundation and roote of all your spirituall being: and you in me, by an enjoyment of faith and mysticall incorporation in spirit, Iohn 1.16. 2. Paul desires that they shall have perfect knowledge of all these high mysteries, in Heaven at his last comming.

Ver. 21. He that hath,] the foresaid Communion with mee, begun by light of knowledge, but must be accomplished by love, and the love reciprocall betwixt mee and you, by constancy of obedience on your part: and on my part shall be alwayes recompenced, with new effects of Gods love, and with greater light. Shall bee loved,] shall more, by new increase of graces, for otherwise God loveth first, Romans 5. 8, 10. 1 Iohn 4. 10, 19.

Vs. 22. How is it,] a question very likely not to much out of humanity, as out of some secret presumption, wherewith the Apostles were almost always touched, presuming to have some proper worth above others: of which they desire here of the Lord some assent.

Vs. 23. If a man,] Christ according to his custome leaves the question without any answer, and thereby sheweth sufficiently that it did not deserve any: and so goeth on with his discourse. We will come,] this loyall love of the beleever shall cause the habitation, that is to say the lively and perpetuall operation of the Holy Ghost in his heart, to bee more and more increased and confirmed by my Father and mee, to make the grace and love of my Father, and the righteousnesse, satisfaction, and all other benefits of mee his Redeemer, to be alwayes more present with him, that is to say secure and enjoyable by faith and by feeling his own conscience, Eph. 3. 17. Or plainly it shall cause the communion which he hath with the Father and the Son to be firm and everlasting, 1 Iohn 1. 7. Revel. 3. 20.

V. 24. Loveth me not,] out of this love, there can bee neither true, nor acceptable obedience in man. Is not mine,] I am not the first nor the only author of it. The Father doth propound it by me: I having every thing common with him, and doing nothing without his will and command.

V. 26. But the,] it is true that I teach you outward word, which as yet you doe not very apprehend, but the spirit shall give you a lively and internall understanding of it.

V. 27. Peace,] namely grace and blessing, as the world,] vainely in words without truth or vertue.

V. 28. If ye loved me,] Namely with a true spirituall love aiming at my glory and your own salvation: which two things cannot be obtained but only by my departure out of the world. Greater,] not in his nature nor eternall glory for the Son is equall with the Father, Ioh. 5. 18. Phil. 2. 6. but in the order of redemption, in which the Father holds the degree of party principall, as representing the whole deitie in its glory and majesty, and the Son that of Mediatour of peace and reconciliation. The meaning is: Seeing that I came from the Father, and have beene manifested in the flesh for this worke, my returne to the Father in his glory is a certaine proofe that all things are accomplished: and therefore you ought for to rejoyce fully having so free accesse to God, and large communication of his graces.

V. 29. I have told you,] I have declared unto you the great good which my departure out of the world will produce unto you: to the end that when you finde the effects of it, you may be confirmed in your faith in mee.

V. 30. The Prince,] that is to say the Devill, who is going to bend all his forces, imploying the malice of men against me, to bring me to nothing, Luk. 22. 53. but as hee hath no right in mee that am without sin: so hath he no actuall power to doe with me anything to his will: and my death shall not be through any endeavour of his, but because I voluntarily submit my life to my fathers will about the salvation of the world.

V. 31. Arise,] it should seeme that Christ ended this going out of the house where he had eaten the Passeover, and that hee uttered these following discourses upon the way untill hee came out of the Cities, and went over the brooke Cedron, Iohn 18. 1.

Chap. XV.

Vs. 1. The Husbandman,] Namely hee who in the use of all other things gives the vertue and properties, wherein the Vine beares the figure, being immediately as it were wholly engrafted, and rooted in the love, life, and favour of the Father, who is as it were the ground; I am the prop of the subsistency, and the well spring of the spirituall life

ſe of my beleevers engrafted in mee by faith; to bear the fruits of the ſpirit in good workes. And my Father,] Namely hee is the firſt Author of all this order of grace, having ordained his Son to bee the head of ſalvation and of life, which is correſpondent to the planting of the Vine, uniting unto him all his elect, which in as it were the engrafting of the braunches: and by his ſpirit cutting off and correcting all their vices, and continually ſanctifying them, which hath a relation to the manuring and dreſſing of the vine.

Verſe. 2. Every branch,] Namely every exterior member of the Church, which by profeſſion ſeemes to be ingrafted in mee, though in ſpirit and truth hee is not. See Rom 11.17,20. 2 Pet. 1.8.

V. 3. Cleane,] Namely ſanctified in your perſons by my ſpirit. Through the word,] Namely by my word accompanied with the efficacie of my ſpirit, Ioh. 17. 17. Eph. 5.26. 1 Pet. 1.22. Others according as I have expreſſly told you, Ioh. 13.10.

V. 4. Abide,] perſevere in being united with mee by a lively faith; that by this meanes I may likewiſe continue in communicating my life and my ſpirit unto you.

V. 5. Without me,] being ſevered and cut off from my communion. Doe nothing,] in ſpirituall workes truly good, and holy, and pleaſing to God.

V. 6. Herein,] the good workes of beleevers redound to the glory of God, as being effects of his Grace, repreſenting the holineſſe of the heavenly Father in his Children. See Matth. 5.16. Ephes. 1. 12. Phil. 1.11. Shall yee be,] you ſhall ſhew your ſelves to be truely ſuch, doing acts worthy of ſuch a Title.

V. 9. As the Father,] as the Father loving mee moſt perfectly in the qualitie of Mediatour; I doe unchangeably answer that love of his by my complaiſight continuall, which cauſeth that love to bee ſure and immutable: ſo doe you preſerve the love which I beare unto you, by a true obedience.

V. 11. That my,] have a perpetuall and full feeling of my grace, in conſolation of my ſpirit without interruption or diminution.

Verſe. 14. Yee are,] this friendſhip, ſhall bee knowne to be true, by the effects of a conformitie of will, and correſpondencie of love in ſincere obedience, Ioh 14.23.

V. 15. I call you not,] beſides that great tryall of my love, by the benefits which I have conferred upon you in giving my ſelfe unto you: There is alſo this ſecond tryall, namely, that I have communicated my ſecrets unto you: wherein conſiſts the application of the ſaid benefits, and the fruition of them.

V. 16. that yee ſhould goe] that in all the courſe of your life, and chiefly in your miniſterie, you may perſevere in bearing of good fruits, the uſe whereof may be durable to your ſelves as fruits that are fit to keep; and a ſure proviſion to nouriſh your faith and hope to eternall life. See Ioh. 4. 36. 1 Tim. 6. 19. That whatſoever] the profit of theſe your good works, ſhall redound to your ſelves, ſeeing that by that meanes you ſhall alwayes have free acceſſe to God by prayers, to obtaine alwaies increaſe of grace, and of bleſſing. In my Name,] to ſhew that howſoever good works do take away the hinderance of prayer, which is ſinne, Iohn. 9.31. yet they are not the ground of prayer, which ground is only the merit, and interceſſion of Chriſt.

Ver. 19. If yee were,] if you were on that ſide which is contrarie to my Kingdome, of which ſide the Devill is head, and hath no other end but the world and its owne concupiſcence: nor no other ſence but that of the fleſh, nor no other motion, but earthly and corrupt. His owne,] Namely united to him by likeneſſe and conformity which is the naturall cauſe of love amongſt men.

V. 21. They know not,] they have not, nor will not receave any lively impreſſion of God, concerning the myſterie of redemption by his Son.

V. 22. They had not had,] they might ſeem innocent ſinning thorow meere ignorance, Ioh. 9.41. Or their ſin would bee nothing in reſpect of their volunteare rebellion.

V. 26. But when,] notwithſtanding their hatred againſt my perſon and doctrine, yet at laſt the former ſhall be acknowledged and the other eſtabliſhed in the world; by the moſt efficacious operation of the Holy Ghoſt, and by your miniſterie. From the Father,] I my ſelfe having in the qualitie of Mediatour receaved it in all manner of fulneſſe from the Father, who is the well-ſpring of all grace, to diſtribute it to all my members, Iohn 3.34. Acts 2.33. Of truth,] See upon, Iohn 14.17. Teſtifie,] by his ſecret and interiall inſpirations and perſwaſions, and by his externall works and miracles.

V. 27. From the beginning,] wherefore you ought to be fully informed of my doctrine and converſation, 1 Ioh. 1.1.

Chap. XVI.

Verse 1. Offended,] See upon Matthew 11. 6.

V. 4. Yee may,] to diſpoſe your ſelves to a voluntary patience, and to be prepared as againſt foreſeene, and foretold accidents: and to bee perſwaded that they doe not happen caſually, but by my providence; and to take from part of my prediction concerning your ſuffering, verified by the event, a certaine argument concerning the other part, touching your deliverances and glory to come. I ſaid not,] ſo particularly, not as a thing that ſhould ſo ſhortly come to passe: for otherwise, he had oftentimes discourſed unto them touching the persecutions of this world. I was,] I preserved you by my presence, and put away all dangers, and never put you alone upon any great tryalls. See Mat. 9.15.

V. 5. None of you,] you suffer your selves to be so transported with griefe, that you are careleſſe of being instructed and strengthened by mee in the faith, by my documents concerning my departure out of the world, and the fruit thereof.

V. 7. For if I goe not,] God doth not give the gifts of his spirit, if hee bee not first fully satisfied, which cannot bee but by my death. And besides I being appointed Head of my Church, for to dispence this spirit to all my members, I cannot enter into the glorious possession of my dignity, but by my Resurrection and Ascension into Heaven.

V. 8. Reprove,] by his secret power joyned to the preaching of my word, he shall imprint in mens knowledges, and especially of those who are enemies to my Kingdom, a lively feeling and remorse of sin, and likewise by the example of the Devill their head, already irrevocably condemned, hee shall seale unto them the certaintie of their condemnation. And shall on the other side give unto Gods true children, irreprovable perswasions, of the true righteousnesse and perfect satisfaction, which I have obtained for them by my death. Whereof the most certaine argument shall bee that by vertue of it, I my selfe have passed to the heavenly and glorious life, to take possession of it for me and my whole Church.

Ver. 10. And yee see mee,] that is to say you shall have mee no longer present in this corporall life with you: Which doth no way contradict those transitory appearings after his Resurrection: nor the sight of faith spoken of, Ioh. 14.19.

V. 12. Can not beare them,] comprehend them, nor gather the fruit of them, by reason of the grossenesse of your understanding, and the weakeneſſe of your faith.

V. 13. He shall not speake,] hereby is shewed the order of the Holy Ghosts working in the most holy Trinitie. See Iohn 5.19 and 8.38. and 12.49. and 14.10. and especially in the elect, in whose hearts it is the property of the holy Spirit of grace to imprint only the doctrine of Christ. will shew you,] he shall give you a lively light and apprehension of the life everlasting, and of the glory of my Kingdom, which hitherto you could not apprehend. Or hee shall inspire you with the knowledge of many future things, by the gift of prophecie.

Ver. 14. Hee shall,] that is to say, all that I have done in my state of humiliation, shall then produce its glorious effect, and obtaine its end: which is the redemption of my Church, thorow the application of my righteousnesse, and by the communication of my life, which shall bee wrought by the Holy Ghost, who shall also make mee knowne to be mine for their true head, and everlasting King. And finally shall bee a plaine argument of the excellency of my doctrine above all other doctrines, it only being brought, and rooted in the hearts of men, by a living divine power.

V. 15. Are mine,] that is to say, I, as I am Sonne, have by generation the same essence, glory, and power, &c. that the Father hath. Who hath also deposited in mee, as I am Mediator, the whole treasure of his grace, Col. 2.3.9. Therefore,] though I tell you that hee shall take of mine: yet all grace, and good gifts come originally from my Father: Neither have I any thing severall from him. And I speake it to shew you, that as the Father workes, and communicates himselfe by me, even so do I worke by the Holy Ghost.

V. 16. Shall not see me,] namely not corporally and in ordinary conversation, as ver. 10. Againe a little,] namely after my Resurrection, which shall bee as it were a first fruit and an essay unto you, of seeing me in glory, the time being in Gods presence, and in faith very short, 2 Pet. 3.8. I goe,] my death shall not bee a destruction, or annihilation, but only a change of estate, and of a corporall, and terrestrial life, into a heavenly and glorious life. Whereof you shall also participate by eternall sight.

V. 19. Doe yee enquire,] that is to say doe not you trouble your selves concerning the understanding of my words; the end of my doctrine is the practice, and the exercise, and not speculation and discourse: insist yee therefore chiefely upon this, that as by reason of my corporall absence you shall suffer many calamities: So by my spirituall presence, I will comfort and strengthen you in them, untill such time as by my comming to judgment, I doe perfectly deliver you and gather you up into my kingdome.

Ver. 23. In that day,] namelie in that everlasting glory, yee shall perfectlie know all these mysteries. Verily,] a new discourse of Gods favour and assistance towards them, by meanes of their prayers, and his intercession whilest they yet remaine in the world.

V. 24. Hitherto,] You have not yet well learned, nor made use of grounding all your prayers to God upon my merit and mine intercession as Mediator, by reason of your ignorance, and weakeneſſe of faith. That your joy,] that you may have a solid and compleat fruition of all truely good things.

V. 25. Have I,] I have hitherto taught you as little children, by figures taken from naturall and humane things, which hath often caused obscurities and ambiguities in you, but hereafter I will illuminate you in the cleare understanding of divine things, as men of ripe age.

V. 26. And I say not,] Not that Christ is not everlasting intercessor for his elect in heaven, Rom. 8.34. Heb. 7.

Mat. 7. 25. but the meaning is, that whereas in his life time, hee had incessantly prayed for them: after his ascent into heaven, he would move them, by his spirit of grace, and of supplications, Zach. 12. 10. Rom. 8. 26. to pray for themselves, by the free accesse which he hath obtained for them by the reconciliation which he hath wrought. Or simply there will be no need of any great instance to make you obtaine your holy desires: seeing the heavenly Father will of himselfe bee sufficiently inclined out of his owne love to grant them you. Or the meaning is I need not to replie that unto you, which you may sufficientlie know already, namely that I will be intercessor for you in heaven. Or I will not offer any new sacrifice, but will onely represent unto him that sacrifice which I have already offered, Hebrewes 10. 19, 20.

V. 28. I came forth,] as you have already by faith, apprehended the beginning of my vocation, in my comming in the flesh; so to have the whole sequell of it, conceaved by the same spirit, the accomplishment thereof in mine ascent, and glorious exaltation.

V. 29. Loe now,] it should seeme that the Disciples moved by the Lords last words, commending their faith, presumed they did already understand all things contrary to that which he had said unto them ver. 25. without having need any further to expect the Holy Ghost.

V. 30. Now are we sure,] it is likelie that Christ having prevented them in the question which they would aske him, v. 19. by the divine knowledg hee had of their secret ambiguitie, they took from thence a greater occasion of believing in him.

V. 31. Doe yee now,] that is to say, doe you already presume that you have so much faith.

V. 32. I am not alone,] namely I am not quite deprived of all faithfull company, of all favour, and assistance of every one.

V. 33. These things,] my precedent discourses do not tend, to the putting you presently into the state of perfection but to comfort and strengthen you, in your weakenesses, and combates. Peace,] namely rest of spirit, and secureneese in mee, by faith. I have overcome,] namely I, head of the Church, have for her overcome, what was mortall in the Devills Kingdom: your salvation is now out of danger, follow on freely the remainder of the victorie, Rom. 16. 20.

Chap. XVII.

Ver. 1. Glorifie,] give mee thy power, to overcome by perfect obedience all the combates which I enter into, & then raise me again from the dead gloriously, Ro. 1. 4. & at the last exalt me into the glory of the kingdome which thou hast bestowed upon me, that by the powerful administration of it, I may re-establish thy Kingdome in the world, destroy thine enemies, and save thine elect: which is the work of thy Soveraigne glory. See Isaiah 55. 5. Phil. 2. 11.

Ver. 3. They might know,] that they may enjoy thee by lively faith in this world and by a present sight in thy everlasting glory. The only,] to exclude, not the Son who is the same God with the Father, but Idols and false gods. Or to shew that in the granting of salvation, in the Father ought to be apprehended the absolute and Soveraigne Majestie of the Deitie: and in the Son, the voluntary and subalternate office of Mediator, See Ioh. 14. 28.

V. 4. Glorified thee,] honoured thee by a perfect obedience, and employed my selfe in causing thee to bee acknowledged and worshipped in the truth of thine essence, and in the effects of thy mercie.

V. 5. Glorifie thou,] set my whole person, againe into the manifestation and use of that eternall glory, which I have common with thee: which by an unspeakeable dispensation, I left off in the time of mine abasement: And as for my humanitie, do thou exalt it to the fruition of celestiall glory, above all other creatures.

V. 6. Thine they were,] having taken, and appropriated them unto thee by thine everlasting election. Thou gavest them,] to belong unto me, as subjects of my Kingdom, children of my house, and members of my body, and consequently to defend, & govern them.

V. 7. Now,] I have caused them by my Gospell to know, that all the salvation which they have in mee, and from me, is of thy Soveraigne favour, and that all the glory therefore is due to thee as to the first cause and author, 1 Cor. 1. 30. And so he declares that besides the honour of obedience hee had also glorified him, by the manifestation and direction given to even to yeeld him honour and glory.

Ver. 9. I pray not,] mine effectuall intercession in consequence of my reall redemption and reconciliation is but only for my Church, and not for the other part, whereof the devill is head. For they are,] seeing that by the gift which thou hast made to mee, thou hast lost no part of the right of thy former propriety; but that it is rather more strictly confirmed to thee by me, I do also pray thee that thou wouldst co-operate with me by thy Soveraign power, to the accomplishing of their salvation.

V. 10. And all mine,] whereupon as thou hast made thine elect, members of my body, to the end that I should redeeme them: so have I made all those which beleeve in mee to bee thy children, that thou mightest love, governe and perfectly save them. And I am,] I doe not aske it only for their good, but likewise for my glory, wch is inseparable from thine.

V. 11. And now I am,] seeing that according to my vocation, my corporal presence must leave them, wch presence hath hitherto been as a secure safegard for them. I do remit them into thine hands, that I being exalted to thy glory, thou mayest inviolablie preserve them by my divine presence and power, which I have wholly from thee, Matth. 28. 20. In the world,] exposed to infinite dangers and temptations, and subject to many infirmities. In thy name,] Namely by thy power. Or as such that beare thy Name. That they may bee,] they may be inseparably preserved, in the mysticall and unspeakeable union with me, and with my Church: which is the neerest figure of the unitie of essence, and the union of will that is betweene thee and I.

V. 12. The Sonne,] the lost man, who was destined to damnation. See 2 Thes. 2. 3. That the,] it being impossible that those things which are foretold by the Holy Ghost should not come to passe. Not that he perished to fulfill the Scripture, but the Scripture did foretell it, because that he was to perish thorow his own wickednesse.

V. 13. I speake,] I make this prayer unto thee in their presence, to give them a certaine and perfect comfort, and rest of Spirit: because of the certaintie which they may conceive of thy hearing of mee.

V. 14. Given them,] communicated it unto them, by instructions, and by the impression of my spirit, and also deposited it into their hands to preach and divulge it.

Verse 15. From the evill,] Namely from the Devill.

Ver. 17. Sanctifie them,] purge them more and more from the corruption of sinne and the world by thy Word accompanied with the power of thy spirit Acts 15. 9. Ephesians 4. 24. and 5. 26. 1 Peter 1. 22.

V. 18. Sent them,] to be my Ministers in the execution of the charge which thou hast imposed upon me. Wherefore they have so much the more particularly need of the grace of thy spirit.

V. 19. For their sakes,] being perfectly sanctified in my humane nature, I doe in it accomplish all manner of righteousnesse and holinesse: and doe consecrate my selfe to the sacrifice of the Crosse, to cleanse them from their sins, and to gaine the gift of the holy Ghost for them, which may regenerate them in newnesse of life.

Ver. 21. In us.] Namely in the Communion of my spirit, by which they may bee mistically united to me and by me to thee. May beleeve,] being induced and perswaded thereunto, by the vertue of the Holy Ghost, working powerfully, and evidently in them in words and deeds, Matth. 5. 16. 1 Pet. 2. 12. and 3. 1.

V. 22. The glory,] Namelie the everlasting happinesse into which my humane nature is going, and where the full accomplishment of my Churches union with mee her head shall bee. I have given,] by infallible promise, and by a right title, having for them fulfilled that righteousnesse which hath the promise of life, and besides that by the merits, and the fruits of the spirituall life. In which they are transformed into the glorious Image of the Son of God, 2 Cor. 3. 18. Eph. 2. 6.

Ver. 23. I in them,] by the influence and power of my spirit, as thou art in me by the fulnesse of Godhead, and by the perfect communication of thy heavenly love and vertue. See Iohn 14. 20. Be made perfect,] that is to say perfectly joyned in one, namely in the life everlasting. To attaine to which Christ desires of his Father, that the beginnings may be maintained and furthered in this life.

V. 24. Hath given me,] in my humanitie, as I am head of the Church. Loved me,] didst chuse me and accept of mee, for to conferre this Soveraine dignitie upon me: and didst also approve of my obedience, which thou didst foresee, to appoint this height of glory for me.

V. 25. The world,] Namely that part of men which is not of thine elect nor of my beleevers, but no communication of lively knowledge nor grace with thee. I only have it in perfection, and doe communicate it to beleevers by faith in me: as the only Mediator appointed by thee.

Verse 26. May bee in them,] may come to dwell by the meanes of my dwelling in them by my spirit.

CHAP. XVIII.

VER. 1. Went forth,] Out of the Citie, having come out of the house before. See upon Ioh. 14. 31. Cedron,] which was on the East side of the Citie. See 2 Samuel 15. 23. 1 Kings 15. ver. 13.

V. 3. A band,] Namely a company of the Roman Garrison, which lay in the Rocke neere to Temple: and it is likely it was granted by the Governour, for feare least that by reason of Christ, some popular tumult might arise. See Matth. 27. 65. Pharisees,] whither they did come to publike counsells, as expounders of the Law. Or that many of those which were Councellours were of that sect, as Acts 23. 6.

V. 8. Let these,] a word of command, and likewise of reall hinderance of doing them any harme. A figure and pledge that he would by his being taken set all his free, and by his death bring them to life: and by his sufferances, to everlasting joy.

V. 9. Might bee fulfilled,] that hee might verifie both in soule and body, the care which hee alwayes had of them according to his words, Iohn 17. 12.

V. 13. To Annas,] of whom see Luke 3. 2.

Ver. 28. Unto the hall,] Namely the Roman governours Hall Matth. 27. 27. Be defiled,] Namely if they came into a heathen and prophane mans house. See Acts 10.28. and 11. 3. which was not so peremptorily forbidden by the law; but was observed by a more strict tradition, to shun all manner of forbidden communication and covenant.

V. 30. If he were not,] this they lay, because the romans suffered the Iewes to live according to their laws; and to leave the cognizance of crimes according to it; but not to pronounce sentence of death, much lesse to put it in execution; for that was reserved to their magistrates and governours.

V. 31. Judge him.] that is to say, I give you leave in this particular case to proceed against him to a capitall sentence. Now the Iewes refuse it, for feare of committing an errour, in a pretended crime of treason, which was beyond the bounds of their ordinary politick government.

V. 32. That the saying,] Christ would dye by the hands of Pilate, because hee had foretold that hee should be put into the hands of the Heathen, and that he should be crucified: a kinde of punishment which the Romans used to inflict; and not the Iewes. See Mat. 20. 19. Iohn 12. 32.

V. 34. Sayest thou this,] this thy question in an ordinary and carnall sense, is most absurd; I having no quality nor appearance of worldly King. In a spirituall and divine sence it is most true; but from whence shouldest thou have notice of it?

V. 35. Am I a Iew?] I do not desire to know any thing of the Iewish opinions concerning the Messias or his kingdome; mine office only binder me, to pronounce sentence for such crimes as are by them adjudged according to their law; and that after sufficient examination of the truth of the fact.

V. 36. My kingdome,] so Christ affirmes the truth that he was a spirituall King; but denieth the false accusation that he meant to make himselfe a temporall King.

V. 37. Thou sayest.] see upon Mat. 27. 11. To this end,] seeing that I am appointed by God himself to teach and declare what I am, I will not faile to do it in thy presence. That is of,] that is enlightned by it, and hath the lively impression and habitude of it by the holy Ghost, and followeth it, and makes profession of it. See 1 Iohn 3. 19. Heareth,] receives it, beleeves it, and learneth it.

V. 38. What is,] a word of disdaine, as if he should say, of what truth doest thou speak to me?

CHAP. XIX.

V. 1. Scourged him,] See upon Mat. 27. 26.

V. 2. A purple robe,] see upon Mat. 27. 28

V. 8. More afraid,] fearing on the one side lest there might arise some tumult amongst the people; and on the other side being affrighted with the name of Sonne of God, which Christ tooke upon him. And yet he knew him to be most innocent and righteous.

V. 11. Thou couldest,] thou hast thine office and power of magistrate by Gods appointment, Rom. 13. 1. Thy power to doe me harme doth therefore come likewise by his permission. Therefore the Iewes sin is so much the greater, that do abuse publick power, to revenge themselves, and vent their spleen against me; and that, which God suffers thee their instrument to doe, evill shall be imputed to them for a greater sinne, who are the first authors of it.

V. 13. The pavement,] it was some Terrace or Gallery before the Palace or Hall, which might be paved in squares, or in Mosaick work; where they sat in judgement, and pronounced sentences.

V. 14. The preparation,] See upon Mat. 27. 62. The sixth,] namely, at noone. Now because S. Marke saith, that it was the third houre, which was nine a clock in the morning, and that the other Evangelists agree in saying, That at the sixth houre the darknesse came which lasted all the time that Christ was upon the Crosse; and that between this darknesse, and the time in which he was crucified there must be some time, as about some three houres: it hath been anciently thought that it was some errour of the Scriveners of sixth for third; and indeed some ancient texts have it the third. Others think, that because the Iewes divided the day into quarters, S. Iohn meanes here by the sixth houre all that second quarter, which ended the sixth houre; namely, at noone: and that he meanes, that these things hapned entring into the said quarter.

V. 17. Bearing,] See upon Mat. 27. 32.

V. 19. A Title,] namely, a little table upon which was written the pretended crime. See Mat. 27. 37.

V. 21. The King,] which seemed to involve the nation in the fault or infamy of the punishment.

V. 22. I have,] as much as to say, I will alter nothing: words of contempt of all their respects.

V. 23. His garments,] namely, his outward robe, which was made of foure peeces of cloth, sewed together. His coat,] namely, his inward coat which was covered with the upper garment. Woven,] not cut out of a peece of cloth and sewed together, but made all of one peece, wrought with a needle or otherwise.

V. 25. By the Crosse,] Mat. 27. 55. and Marke 15. 40. it is said that they looked a farre of; but it may be that having stayed some time a farre off they afterwards came neerer. Mary the wife,] the Italian hath it, Mary of Cleophas,] namely his Daughter; as the ancients thought; though it were the same that was called Salome, Marke 15. 40. and so we should expound the precedent word of sister of the blessed Virgin for neer of kindred. For the blessed Virgin was the daughter of Matthat. See upon Luke 3. 24.

V. 26.

V. 26. He ſaith,] as well to comfort his mother, giving her Iohn for a ſonne, as alſo to honour Iohn, ſetting him in his ſtead towards her. woman,] See upon Iohn 2.4.

V. 28. All things,] namely all his ſufferings which were appointed by God, and foretold by his Prophets, were now even accompliſhed, there wanting nothing but the laſt act of death. I thirſt,] an effect of the extreame paine of the body, and a ſigne of the ſouls thirſt; ſcorched by the unſpeakable feeling of Gods wrath upon ſinne, the ſatisfying for which he had taken upon him.

V. 29. And they,] namely, the ſouldiers and other aſſiſtants. Filled,] it is likely, that with the ſponge full of vineger, they alſo tooke a little bundle of Hyſſope, and made a kinde of a bruſh of it. The Spunge was to bring the vineger to his mouth, and the Hyſſope to ſprinkle it in his face, according to the humane office which was done to ſufferers. See upon Mat. 27.34.

V. 31. The bodies,] whereby the ground according to the law would have bin defiled. Deut. 21.23. For that,] he gives the reaſon why the day before that Sabbath was a day of ſolemne preparation, Mat. 27.62. becauſe the feaſt of the Paſſeover fell upon that day, which feaſt was called the great day, as Iohn 7.37. Beſought,] becauſe that executions not lying in their hands, they could not take away the bodies of thoſe who were executed, but only with the permiſſion of the Roman magiſtrate. Might be broken,] to haſten their death, before which they might not be taken downe from the croſſe.

V. 32. with him,] namely, with Ieſus.

V. 34. Pierced,] to be ſure that he was dead: for the place in which the heart is infolded, which is full of a watriſh matter, being opened, man cannot live. Now by this bloud and water, is ſet forth the double benefit of Chriſts death; namely, the ſatisfaction for the ſinne it ſelfe, and the cleanſing from the ſpot of ſinne. 1 Iohn 5.6.

V. 35. He that,] namely, I Iohn, who write theſe things.

V. 36. A bone of him,] this was ordained concerning the Paſchall Lambe, which was the figure of Chriſt in the principall ſenſe, and alſo in this particular circumſtance, ſo guided by Gods will, becauſe Chriſt ſhould die voluntarily, Iohn 10.18. without any hurt at all, which might cauſe his death, as that breaking of bones might have done. This allegation may likewiſe be taken out of Pſal. 34.20. according to the ſecret meaning of the Holy Ghoſt, aiming at Chriſt.

V. 37. They ſhall,] this allegation is to no other end, but to ſhew that Chriſt was to be pierced, and not broken.

V. 39. At the firſt,] at the beginning of Chriſts publike exerciſing of his office.

V. 40. Wound is,] for haſte, becauſe that the Sabbath was comming on, they did nothing but ſtrew over the body with thoſe ſpices, without melting of them, expecting that they might enbalme him perfectly when the Sabbath was paſt: to which purpoſe it ſhould ſeeme the women alſo came, Marke 16.1. who if ſhould ſeeme knew nothing of what theſe men had done. Though indeed Gods providence did hinder this perfect enbalming; for the reaſon touched upon, Marke 16.1. The manner,] which was only to apply the ſpices on the outſide, either dry, as they did here for haſte, or melted in the fire, 2 Chron. 16.14. and 21.19. Ier. 34.5. with linnen clothes dipped therein, as they did purpoſe to do at more leaſure: without opening or emptying the bodies, to fill them with ſpices, as the Egyptians did. See upon Gen. 50.2.

V. 42. Becauſe of,] they made ſo much haſte, becauſe they were afraid of being overtaken by the latter part of the day, properlie called the preparation, at which time they left off all manner of work, at the leaſt for an houre.

CHAP. XX.

VER. 1. Mary,] together with the other women, mentioned by the other Evangeliſts, who either through amazement, or for feare of not being beleeved, did not report that which the Angell had told them, that Chriſt was indeed riſen againe, but turned their words to have the Apoſtles come themſelves; See upon Mat. 28.1.

V. 7. The Napkin,] it was ſome kinde of linnen cloath, wherewith they wrapped up the heads of dead men, when they were buried. See Iohn 11.44.

V. 8. And beleeved,] he began then to beleeve that Chriſt was indeed riſen againe, whereas they ſhould have knowne that before by the Scriptures: but they did not underſtand them yet.

V. 11. Stood,] See upon Mat. 28.2. the concluſion of the diverſitie of the Evangeliſts in this narration; and all the order of it.

V. 14. And knew not,] being dazeled by divine power, as Luke 24.16. 31. and Iohn 21.4.

V. 16. Saith unto her,] and withall reſtored unto her the free uſe of her ſight.

V. 17. Touch me not,] it appeares by Matth. 28.9. that ſhe both touched and worſhipped him: but Ieſus perceiving her too much fixed upon this corporall preſence, and too much aſtoniſhed at his reſurrection, inſtructeth her, that ſhe ſhould not be too much tied to this preſence of the body: nor to beleeve that his reſurrection ſhould be the higheſt pitch of his exaltation: and that he was to aſcend up into heaven, where he was to be ſought and knowne by faith in ſpirit, and worſhipped in the full glory of his kingdom, See Iohn 12.20, 23. 2 Cor. 5.16.

V. 19.

V. 19. At evening,] being darke night, the Disciples met; and after they had supped together, they [illegible] their discourses concerning the Lords resurrection, untill such time as it grew late: and in the meane time the Disciples which were gone to Emmaus came home: and when they had made their relation unto them, the Lord came and stood before them, Luke 24.36. The doores,] speaking after the manner of the Iewes. For it was our Sunday, which it should seeme the Lord did even from that time forward [illegible] appearing on that day: and consecrate [illegible] which it is very likely did open by some miracle, the Disciples seeing it, or otherwise.

V. 20. His hands,] marked with the marks of his wounds, which he had received upon the Crosse; which he retained after his resurrection: as glorious tokens of his sufferings and combate; and to be the proofs of the truth to his Disciples: and to them alludeth S. Paul, Gal. 6.17.

V. 22. He breathed,] for an externall signe of the internall inspiration of his Spirit which he made into them. See Gen. 2.7. The holy Ghost,] namely, a new addition of his gifts for their ministery, whereof the full abundance was conferred upon them at Pentecost.

V. 31. His name,] namely, by him, and by vertue of his merit and intercession.

CHAP. XXI.

V. 1. 2. At the Sea,] where the Apostles were gone from Ierusalem, Matth. 28. 16. then they returned to Ierusalem where Christ was taken up into heaven, Luke 24.51.

V. 3. A fishing,] according to his first trade, which he had not quite given over to imploy himselfe wholly in the work of the Gospell, as he did after Pentecost.

V. 4. Knew not,] partly because of the distance, and partly also it is very likely by some supernaturall impediment of their sight, as Iohn 20.14.

V. 5. Any meat,] the Italian, Any fish,] broiled and made to be eaten.

V. 7. It is the Lord,] whether he conjectured it to be so, by reason of the likenesse of this miracle with the other, Luke 5.5,6. or that the Lord cleered his eyes more then the rest.

V. 9. A fire of coales,] laid there by miracle, as all the rest was.

V. 12. Knowing,] they knew by many signes and circumstances that it was the Lord, and yet they had some scruple, which they durst not make knowne by questioning.

V. 14. The third,] See the other two, Iohn 20.19. 26. To his,] altogether, or to the greatest part of them; for otherwise he had appeared diverse times before to the women, Mat. 28.9. Mark 16.9. Iohn 20.14. then to the two travellers, Luke 24.31. then to Peter, Luke 24.34. 1 Cor. 15.5.

V. 15. Lovest thou me,] the occasion of this question seemeth to be taken from that which Peter had bragged, Mat. 26.33. Feed,] do all that belongeth to the office of a good shepherd toward his sheepe, either young and tender, or strong and well grown. And it seemeth that by this triplicated question, Christ maketh Peter guiltie of his triplicate denial. And that by this commaund he doth wholly restore him to his Apostleship, from which he seemed to be fallen.

V. 18. Verily,] a prediction of the martirdome, which Peter in time should suffer by vertue of the Lords; whereas the feare of it had made him deny him, when he trusted in his own strength. Thou shalt stretch forth,] It is likely that Christ had a regard to the Romans custome, who were wont to lead their condemned men to the death of the crosse, with their armes stretched out & tyed to the crosse beame of it, which they also carried upon their shoulders. Gird thee,] that is to say shall binde thee. Or he hath a speciall regard to that in the death of the Crosse the sufferers were fastened unto it with girts about the loines. Thou wouldest not,] by a meere naturall will, which flyeth from death, and the paines thereof: though that should afterwards yeeld to Gods obedience by a spirituall and deliberate will, as these two motions were also in Christ, Mat. 26.39,42.

V. 19. By what death,] namely a violent and not a naturall death. He should glorifie,] he should bee a glorious witnesse of Gods truth and should shew in himselfe the divine power of his spirit, in contemning and overcomming death for Gods cause, and should honour God by his voluntary obedience.

Ver. 21. What shall this man,] shall hee also die after the same manner?

V. 22. That he tarrie,] alive. I come,] to judgement at the last day. Follow thou me,] dispose thy selfe to obey me, in all parts and actions of thy vocation.

V. 23. The brethren,] namely, amongst the Apostles. But is very likely that the holy Ghost did afterwards cleere them in this, as well as in any other doubt or error.

V. 24. We know,] namely, all true beleevers, which are enlightned by the holy Ghost.

V. 25. Even the world,] a hiperbolicall speech, to shew not onely the number, but the immensity of the understanding and the benefit of Christs works also.

The

THE BOOKE OF THE Acts of the Apostles.

Argument.

THe Evangelists having given to the Church the history of the life, acts, sayings, and sufferances of our Lord, whilest he lived upon earth. The holy Ghost inspired S. Luke to put in writing consequently the chief effects of him glorified, set at the right hand of God; in his sending downe his Spirit upon the Apostles, in the establishment of his everlasting Kingdome, in the gathering together of his Church, out of all nations indifferently: and in the new forme of conduct and government of it: and finally in the light of grace, of salvation, of truth, and of life, spread almost over the whole world. Now the holy Ghost not aiming at the feeding of mens curiosities by many particular narrations, S. Luke hath contented himselfe with laying downe the grounds and generall modell of this great Fabrick of the Christian Church. And to give for ever unto it patterns of instruction to all ages, certaine tastes of the prattise of it, by the labours of two great Apostles S. Peter and S. Paul. First then he relates, how the fall of the traitor Iudas, being repaired by the chusing of Matthias into the number of the Apostles, the Lord did miraculously send downe from heaven upon them all the abundance of the gifts of his Spirit, according to the promise which he had so often made unto them. And how the Apostles, principall members of the body of the Church, and first workemen in this divine worke, having been by him inspired and inlightned in an universall, most certaine, and compleat knowledge of the doctrine of salvation, accompanied with an infallible and perpetuall conduct in the propounding and teaching of it: and with the miraculous gifts of tongues, and of working of miracles, and with heroicall strength and power, and all other qualities and parts necessary for the exercising of their charge; the same Spirit did likewise spread it selfe by meanes of their preaching upon many other persons in faith and conversion; and in miraculous gifts also. Whereupon there was suddenly gathered together amongst the Iewes a body of a Church, resplendent in all vertue and blessing of God; notwithstanding the hatreds, restraints, and persecutions of that rebellious nation, which being ther were gone so farre astray, as to kill S. Stephen: God from thence raised the first occasion of preaching his Gospell to the Samaritans: and afterwards did also begin to communicate the light thereof to some beginnings of the Gentiles, such as Queene Candaces Eunuch, and Cornelius the Centurion were, by the ministery of Philip and S. Peter. But S. Paul being predestinated to this speciall office of the generall conversion of the Gentiles. S. Luke sets downe, how a zealous Pharisee, and cruell fervent persecuter that he was at the first, God miraculously converted him, enlightned him by visions, sanctified him by his Spirit, called him to the office of Apostle, and endowed him with all gifts thereunto belonging, equall to any of the other Apostles; by whom he was acknowledged and approved of. And imployed him in carrying the Gospell to the Gentiles, which was most obstinately rejected by the Iewes. Wherein he had such a marvellous assistance and blessing of God, that in few yeares he founded an innumerable company of Churches, and did appoint the state and government of them, by the miraculous gifts of the Spirit; which by Apostolicall priviledge he did obtaine at Gods hands through his prayers for certaine persons, who in an instant were framed in all parts fitting for the holy ministery, in knowledge, gift of tongues, authority, and wisdome. Which was by him especially done amongst the Gentiles. For they having no precedent light of knowledge of the divine truth, as the Iewes had: could not in a long time have attained to a sufficient degree of capacity and authority, by way of humane and ordinary instruction and preparation. Besides that, these divine vocations joyned to the other miraculous operations, served for a great confirmation, to the weakenesse of the then springing faith of the Gentiles. Shewing likewise in all the course of his ministery, a divine zeale, and indefatigable care, an unbounded charity, and an invincible constancy, not only in enduring perpetuall labours, wants, and journies: but likewise in combats, as well with false brethren and hereticks halfe Iewes, who falsified the purity of the Gospell, and troubled the consciences of converted Gentiles, by imposing of the necessity of Mosaicall ceremonies: as also with the body of his owne nation, which did persecute him in all places, with calumnies, outrages, ambushes, and attempts; overcome by him by a truly heroicall spirit, and dissipated by divine protection; till at Gods appointed time, he was constrained through the Iewes violence to appeale to Cæsar: whereupon he was carried prisoner to Rome, where he lived preaching the Gospell freely, writing Epistles to diverse Churches: and setting forward the worke of Gods kingdome, to the very end of his race; where he sealed up his Apostleship by his glorious martyrdome.

Chap. I.

Vers. 1. The former,] namely, the Gospell, according to S. Luke.

V. 2. Through the holy,] namely, through his power and divine authority, or through the inspiration of the holy Ghost, whereof his humane nature was full: being a most perfect relator of Gods will. Others set downe the words in this sort, after he had given commandements to the Apostles, whom he had chosen by the holy Ghost.

V. 4. And being,] others conversing, or taking food together, or having assembled them together. For the promise,] namely, that soveraigne gift of the sending of the Holy Ghost, from his Father, which was the summary and accomplishment of all his promises.

V. 5. Be baptized,] a manner of speaking taken from the Prophets, who doe liken the sending of the Holy Ghost in the Gospell to a great flood of waters, Isay 44. 3. Ezek. 47. 1. Ioel 3. 18. whereby is signified his power of sanctifying and cleansing.

V. 6. The kingdome,] such an one as they imagined, namely, the earthly kingdome.

V. 7. It is not for you,] Iesus is contented onely with beating back the Apostles curiosity, without inferring that this worldly kingdome shall never be established, in the manner as they meant it. Though peradventure there may be here some track of the establishment of the Iewish nation into the favour and covenant of God, at the appointed time.

V. 9. Received him,] parting in sunder, for to hide him on every side. See Luke 9 34.

V. 11. In like manner,] bodily, appearing clearely.

Stephen: God from thence raised the first occasion of preaching his Gospell to the Samaritans: and afterwards did also begin to communicate the same thereof to some beginnings of the Gentiles, such as Queene Candaces Eunuch, and Cornelius the Centurion were, by the ministery of Philip and S. Peter. But S. Paul being predestinated to this speciall office of the generall conversion of the Gentiles. S. Luke sets downe, how of a zealous Pharisee, and cruell fervent persecuter that he was at the first, God miraculously converted him, enlightned him by visions, sanctified him by his Spirit, called him to the office of Apostle, and endowed him with all gifts thereunto belonging, equall to any of the other Apostles; by whom he was acknowledged and approved of. And imployed him in carrying the Gospell to the Gentiles, which was most obstinately rejected by the Iewes. Wherein he had such a marvellous assistance and blessing of God, that in few yeares he founded an innumerable company of Churches, and did appoint the state and governement of them, by the miraculous gifts of the Spirit; which by Apostolicall priviledge he did obtaine at Gods hands through his prayers for certaine persons, who in an instant were framed in all parts fitting for the holy ministery, in knowledge, gift of tongues, authority, and wisdome. Which was by him especially done amongst the Gentiles. For they having no precedent light of knowledge of the divine truth, as the Iewes had: could not in a long time have attained to a sufficient degree of capacity and authority, by way of humane and ordinary instruction and preparation. Besides that, these divine vocations ioyned to the other miraculous operations, served for a great confirmation, to the weakenesse of the then springing faith of the Gentiles. Shewing likewise in all the course of his ministery, a divine zeale, and indefatigable care, an unbounded charity, and an invincible constancy, not only in enduring perpetuall labours, wants, and journies: but likewise in combats, as well with false brethren and hereticks halfe Iewes, who falsified the purity of the Gospell, and troubled the consciences of converted Gentiles, by imposing of the necessity of Mosaicall ceremonies: as also with the body of his owne nation, which did persecute him in all places, with calumnies, outrages, ambushes, and attempts; overcome by him by a truly heroicall spirit, and dissipated by divine protection; till at Gods appointed time, he was constrained through the Iewes violence to appeale to Cæsar: whereupon he was carried prisoner to Rome, where he lived preaching the Gospell freely, writing Epistles to diverse Churches: and setting forward the worke of Gods kingdome, to the very end of his race; where he sealed up his Apostleship by his glorious martyrdome.

Chap. I.

Vers. 1. The former,] namely, the Gospell, according to S. Luke.

V. 2. Through the holy,] namely, through his power and divine authority, or through the inspiration of the holy Ghost, whereof his humane nature was full: being a most perfect relator of Gods will. Others set downe the words in this sort, after he had given commandements to the Apostles, whom he had chosen by the holy Ghost.

V. 4. And being,] others conversing, or taking food together, or having assembled them together. For the promise,] namely, that soveraigne gift of the sending of the Holy Ghost, from his Father, which was the summary and accomplishment of all his promises.

V. 5. Be baptized,] a manner of speaking taken from the Prophets, who doe liken the sending of the Holy Ghost in the Gospell to a great flood of waters, Isay 44.3. Ezek. 47.1. Ioel 3.18. whereby is signified his power of sanctifying and cleansing.

V. 6. The kingdome,] such an one as they imagined, namely, the earthly kingdome.

V. 7. It is not for you,] Iesus is contented onely with beating back the Apostles curiosity, without inferring that this worldly kingdome shall never be established, in the manner as they meant it. Though peradventure there may be here some track of the establishment of the Iewish nation into the favour and covenant of God, at the appointed time.

V. 9. Received him,] parting in sunder, for to hide him on every side. See Luke 9 34.

V. 11. In like manner,] bodily, appearing clearely, and comming down by a true exchange of place.

V. 12. Journey,] Namely so far as it was lawfull to travaile on a Sabbath day, wherein the law had ordered nothing, but the Ecclesiasticall constitution, had limited to two thousand cubits, which are a mile.

V. 13. Of James,] Iud. 1. to distinguish him from the traitor Iudas: and it is the same as is called Thaddeus or Lebbeus, Mat. 10. 3.

V. 14. The women,] Namely those women who had ordinarily conversed with the Lord or according to others the Apostles wives. His brethren,] See upon, Mat. 12. 46.

Verse 16. This Scripture,] which is rehearsed, vers 20.

V. 17. For he,] in these passages of the Psalmes in ver. 20. there are two things, which in the secret intent of the Holy Ghost speaking by David, had a relation to Iudas. The first that he had received the sacred office of Apostle which hee was dispossessed of the other that with the price of his Treason hee had bought a field, which afterwards was disinhabited and prophaned, being put to be a Church-Yard.

V. 18. Purchased,] Saint Matthew saith that the Priests did purchase it: but it may be that Iudas himselfe had beene bargaining about it, and before hee had laid downe the money, he repented and hanged himselfe: and that after his death the Priests concluded the bargaine. Others by the word purchasing say is meant, that he gave the occasion of purchasing of it. Falling head-long,] that is to say hee was strangled, hanging himselfe in some high place, Matth. 27. 5. Others hold that the halter did break, that hee falling downe upon his face did burst a sunder.

Ver. 20. For it is,] Saint Peter by Revelation, knew, that the Holy Ghost had a secret relation to Iudas in these curses pronounced by David.

Ver. 21. Wherefore,] to restore the breach which happened by Iudas his meanes, and to fill up the number which was chosen by the Lord. Not that there were any absolute necessitie in this member of twelve, which afterwards was encreased by Saint Paul: but onely by reason of Gods will revealed to Saint Peter.

Ver. 22. From the baptisme,] at which time Iesus began to manifest himselfe in the world. A witnesse,] Namely in the degree of Apostle, with the infallible conduct of the Holy Ghost, and with the irreprovable and universall authoritie in the Church meditating the gifts of the Spirit, which Saint Peter was divinely certified, that he that should be chosen should receave as well as the rest. Of his Resurrection,] which was as it were the end of his humiliation, and the beginning of his exaltation, both comprehended under the resurrection which he particularly nameth, because that Christs life was knowne by all men, but not his Resurrection.

V. 24. Which knowest,] that knowest what every man is inwardly, either by his owne nature, or by the working of the Spirit, in gifts and qualities proper for any vocation. Chosen,] not onely destinated by thy will, in thy Councell but also marked, and endowed with proportionable and necessary gifts whatsoever, which are the foundation of a lawfull calling.

V. 25. To his owne place,] Namely of eternall damnation.

V. 26. They gave forth,] inspired thereunto by God Himselfe, that the vocation might come from him that governeth the lots, Prov. 16. 33. for the immediate voeation from God was one of the qualities required in the Apostleship, Gal. 1. 1. Was numbred,] Not to be made an Apostle, but onely to be acknowledged, for such a one.

Chap. II.

V. 1. Pentecost,] a greek name which signifieth the fiftieth day, Namely after the Passeover. For as fiftie dayes after the first Passeover celebrated in Ægypt, God gave his Law for a certaine form of his service, and to governe the people whom he had gotten, Exodus 12. 6. and 19. 1, 11. So fifty dayes after the slaying of Christ the true Lambe of God; the Holy Ghost was sent, to bring in the spirituall service, and to governe the Church, after hee had redeemed it, by the spirit of grace and liberty, disannulling the predanticalnesse of the Law, with its figures, and in its bondage, Gal. 4. 6. Were all,] it seemes this should be restrained to the Apostles only, called to the service of the Gospell, and the use of tongues therein.

Verse 2. There came,] to move them to consider of the comming of the HOLY GHOST, as a divine and miraculous worke and dispose them to receave it in humilitie and reverence, and to shew them the force of it in their owne ministerie, Iohn 3. 8. with some conformitie to that which happened in mount Sina, when the Law was given, Exod. 19. 16.

V. 3. Cloven tongues,] a figure of the office and Talent of preaching the Gospell in diverse languages miraculously infused into the Apostles: and not in one language as anciently under the Law. And that for a remedy to the curse of the division of languages, Genesis 11. 7. by which a great part of the world, was separated from the communion of God, and of the Church, and all in the pureneſſe and power of the Holy Ghost represented by the fire. See Isa. 6. 6, 7. Ier. 5: 14.

V. 4. With the Holy Ghost,] Namely with the gifts and graces of it. Gave them,] not only fra-ing in them the sounds of strange words, but giving them also the understanding of the meaning, 1 Cor. 14. 6. and it should seeme that it was not an habituall and perpetuall qualitie imprinted in them, as in those languages that are learned by studie and practise: but an actuall gift, which shewed it selfe when the motion of the H. Ghost came upon them, sounding their sanctified desire.

Verse 5. were dwelling,] there were come thither, and staid there for the feast. Or were come thither to dwell thorow devotion, Acts 6. ver. 9. and 9. 29. Every Nation,] Namely out of every Countrie, the IEWES being dispersed into diverse provinces though they were all of the very same Nation.

V. 6. Noised abroad,] the Italian, That sound,] Namely the sound mentioned, verse 2. which questionlesse was heard about the Citie. Other the report thereof being noised abroad. were confounded,] that is to say they wondred and were sore amazed.

Verse. 7. Galileans,] Of birth, and ordinarie remaining there, and therefore hold to be simple, and grosse people, Ioh. 1. 46.

Verse 9. Elamites,] people of Persia.

V. 10. Strangers,] dwelling in Rome though Iewes by Nation. Iewes,] it should seeme they did thus divide, all the foresaid Nations into these two generall kindes namely into native Iewes: and proselyte Iewes, which were Iewes by profession, Mat. 23. 15.

V. 11. The wonderfull workes,] the high mysteries of Gods doctrine. See Hos. 8. 12.

Verse 14. Hearken to,] The Italian, Receave,] that is to say give mee audience, and conceave well what I speake.

V. 15. The third houre,] Namely before noone 3 an houre not very convenient for drunkennesse. See Eccl. 10. 16. Isa. 5. 11.

V. 24. Having loosed,] that is to say having delivered him from the dolorous estate of death, in which hee was held as in bonds. For calamities are called bonds or prisons, Iob 13. 27. and 42. 10. Psal. 69. 33. and therefore in the Hebrew there is great affinitie betweene the word paines, and bonds. Because it was not,] Seeing his perfect righteousnesse accomplished in his voluntary death, and his God-head. Whereof the first is the meriting cause, and the second the efficient cause of his life and Resurrection.

V. 27. My soule,] namely my person considered in its mortall part, which is the body. In Hell,] the Italian, In subterraneall places,] by this word is often meant the grave, and the state of the dead. To see,] to suffer that totall destruction of a putrified body, reduced to dust by death.

Verse 28. With thy,] that is to say fully discovering unto mee and communicating unto mee the fruition of the glory of thy Kingdome. Which is called seeing the face of God, Psal. 17. 15. 1 Cor. 13. 12.

V. 29. Patriarch,] that is to say a head of a Nation. So were the chiefe, amongst the ancient Fathers called, Acts 7. 8, 9. Heb. 7. 4. Dead,] therefore those so pregnant termes of the 16. Psalm. can not belong to him in their proper and naturall sence

Ver. 30. According to the,] in his humane nature, whereby wee ought to inferre that in Christ there is another nature, which is his divine nature.

V. 33. By the right hand,] that is to say by his infinite power, this may bee referred either to the full possession of the gifts of the Holy Ghost, in his humane nature glorified, Iohn 3. 34. Or to the power which hee hath obtained in his whole person, after he went up into heaven, to be the giver out or distributer of Gods Spirit. This which,] those gifts and that vertue of the H. Ghost, by which we speake and operate.

Ver. 34. Is not,] bodily, nor to bee established head of the Church, raigning from Heaven over it.

V. 37. They were pricked,] convinced with griefe, and with remorse of Conscience.

V. 38. In the Name,] not only for a signe of the profession of Christians, but also to participate of his spirituall vertue in the washing away of your sins with which he accompanieth, and ratifieth the externall Ceremonie of those who are his. The gift,] that is to say those first motions of the spirit of regeneration, shall bee followed by a great increase of light, and vertue: and also by miraculous gifts which God communicated in those primitive dayes, to those which receaved Baptisme, Acts 4. 31. and 8. 15. and 10. 44. and 19. 6. Ephes. 1. 13.

V. 39. The promise,] Seeing that as you are Abrahams children, you are within Gods covenant. You ought to acknowledge Christ to bee the head, and foundation of this covenant, and by this meanes hope for the benefit thereof; and especially the gift of the Spirit. Shall call,] Namely by his Gospell. So he doth restraine the Israelites to whom the promises are directed, onely to those who by Gods gift beleeve in Christ. See Rom. 9. 8. Gal. 4. 28.

Ver. 40. Save your selves,] quickly joyne your selves to the Church, withdrawing your selves from the corrupt societie of unbeleeving Iewes, that you may not participate of their sinnes and plagues, Rev. 18. 4.

V. 41. Were added,] namely to the body of the Church

V. 42. Doctrine,] in the hearing, publike exercises, and profession thereof. Fellowship,] of holy assemblies, and other sacred actions. And generally in christian societie and all the duties thereof both spirituall and temporall. In breaking,] a phrase taken from that which God did at his last Supper, Matth. 26.26. used to signifie, the celebration of the holy Supper, together with which in those dayes were made certaine feasts of Charity. See Acts 20.7,11. 1 Cor. 11.21. 2 Pet.2.13. Iude 12.

V. 43. Feare came,] they were all dismaied, at this new and miraculous estate, increase, gifts, miracles, and power of the Church, whereupon no man durst to molest or hinder them.

V. 44. Common,] this community was not of all the goods of all beleevers, but of that part which every one would consecrate for the publick necessities, or of those of particular persons, Acts 5.4. and was used only in Ierusalem in those first beginnings. And we doe not reade that it was made a president for other times and places.

V. 47. As should be,] according to the everlasting election. Others, those who saved themselves: namely, those who according to the exhortation of v. 40. did reduce themselves into the Church, there to seek for their salvation.

CHAP. III.

VER. 1. The ninth,] namely, three a clock in the afternoone. Of a prayer,] the Iewes having three houres in the day appointed for prayer. Whereof see upon Psal. 55. 17. and of this ninth houre, Acts 10.3.30.

V. 2. Beautifull,] by v. 11. it appeares that it was the gate which was in the first Court towards the East, where Solomons Porch was. See upon Iohn 10. 23.

V. 4. Looke on us,] a word which questionlesse was accompanied by some internall motion of the Holy Ghost, to kindle in him some spark of faith.

V. 6. In the name,] I speake by his authority and commission; and by his power my word shall take effect.

V. 11. Held,] thanking them, and witnessing his acknowledgement and affection. The Porch,] which was at the comming in of the Easterne gate of the Temple, where the greatest concourse of people was. See Acts 5.12.

Vers. 13. Denied him,] that is to say you refused him for your King, Iohn 18.40. and 19. 14,15.

V. 16. His Name,] that is to say he himselfe, his power, Through faith,] through the faith of us Apostles, and of the lame man himselfe: faith being a disposition and condition necessary in man for to have the work of God take effect in him. See Phil. 3.9. Which is by him,] which is his gift, by his spirit. Or which hath all its being and power from him, who is the true object and foundation of it.

V. 17. Ye did it,] he speakes of the common sort of people: for otherwise a great many had sinned against their owne conscience, Iohn 7.48. and 15. 22. And not altogether excusing their offence: he doth notwithstanding give them hope of pardon, which is altogether denied to those as reject or deny Christ out of pure malice, against the light and internall motion of the Spirit, Matthew. 12. 31. See 1 Tim.1.13.

V. 19. When the times,] not that the remission of sinnes be put off till then, but because it shall be publikely declared, and shall bring forth its eternall effect of life and glory. See upon Mat. 12.32. Of refreshing,] a figurative terme taken from worke-men, who in the evening doe retire into the shade and to rest, after the labours and travails of this life, Luke 16. 25. Revel.7.15.16. From the presence,] Namely that eternall happinesse being granted to all the elect by the full revelation of Gods face, 1 Corin. 13.12. 1 Ioh. 3.2.

V. 20. Shall send,] againe into the world to judgement to gather up all his Church into Heaven. Who preached,] that is to say was set before you, and put as it were into your hands by the preaching of the Gospell.

V. 21. The Heaven,] his humane nature residing in heaven, and no more upon earth. Of restauration,] Namely of the accomplishment of Christs Kingdome, by which all the disorders and ruines which sinne hath brought into the world, shall be repaired and restored. See Rom. 8.20. Since the,] the Greek after the age, which may also be translated from ancient times.

V. 24. Of these dayes,] namely of the Messias his spirituall Kingdome: and especiallie of the accomplishment of it in heaven.

V. 25. The children,] of the stock of the Patriarches, their heires, and fellowes of the covenant made with them for all their posterities.

V. 26. Sent him,] presented him for your salvation by the preaching of the Gospel, To blesse you] the Italian, First to blesse you,] before the Gentiles, Matt. 10. 6. Act. 1. 8 and 13. 46. with that spirituall and heavenlie blessing which was promised to Abraham. Christ being the holy seed, which is the foundation and roote of that blessing which was to be spread over all the earth, Gal 3.9,14.

CHAP. IV.

VER. 1. The Captaine,] the Italian, The chiefe.] See of these chiefes, or Captains of the Temple, upon Luke 22. 4. The Sadducees,] whose sect emulating that of the Pharisees, was by increased in dignitie, that it was admitted into publike judgements, especially in criminall ones wherein they were exceeding severe, whereas contrariwise the Pharisees were very clement, and milde. See Acts 5. 17. and 23. 6.

V. 2.

V. 2 Through Jesus,] propounding him for a Soveraigne example. Or by the power of Iesus: and by whome, as the head being risen againe, all those that believed in him should likewise rise again: 1 Cor. 15. 21. Or by his authoritie and command. The Resurrection] denied by the Sadducees, Mat. 22. 6.

V. 5. Striken,] See upon, Mat. 2. 4.

V. 10. By the Name,] by his power required by our prayers.

V. 12. None other,] any other person or power in all the world.

V. 17. In this name,] namely as for Christ preaching of his doctrine.

V. 20. We cannot,] neither in reason having Gods command for it, nor in effect being driven thereunto by the Holy Ghost.

V. 22. Was above,] and therefore could himselfe relate, with what firmenesse he beheld his age, and set forth all the circumstances thereof. Or having been so long in that misery, hee was knowne by all men, and they all did the more rejoyce at his being healed, because hee had suffered for so long a time.

V. 31. Exalted,] appointed and consecrated King of thy Church, and likewise fulfilled with the gifts of thy Spirit.

V. 32. For to doe,] though they had no knowledge of Gods will, nor no right intention to conforme themselves unto it. Thy hand,] namely thy Soveraign and efficacious providence, by which thou governest and directest all things, and all chances that happen.

V. 33. They were,] by an actuall, new, and evident motion.

V. 33. Great power,] Efficacie of demonstration and perswasion. Or with great courage and freedom. Of the Resurrection,] under which is comprehended all the doctrine of the Gospell. As Acts 1. 22. Great grace,] namely the blessing of God, and good will of the people.

Chap. V.

Ver. 3. Peter,] to whom the fraude was divinely revealed. To lie,] or to deceave the Spirit: because that the consecration might bee by a motion of the spirit, and he had not truely obeyed it. Or it was dissimulate as proceeding from pure Charity a worke of the Holy Ghost, being nothing but hypocrisie: and the declaration thereof was made before the Apostles, Ministers of the Holy Ghost, and enlightned by him, to take notice of the fraude, and to be judges of the misdeed.

V. 4. whiles it remained,] this possession before it was sold was thine: and after it was sold the price thereof was likewise thine, if thou hadst not consecrated it. But after the consecration, thou hadst no more any right at all to it; it was Gods and therefore thou hast committed sacriledge.

Ver. 6. The young men,] which were in the company.

V. 9. To tempt,] to make a prophane tryall, whither he knew your fraud or no, and knowing of it, whither he would punish it. Are at the doore,] returning from burying thy husband.

Ver. 12. They were all,] had their appointed place there to preach to the people.

V. 13. Of the rest,] this as it seemes ought to bee understood of other Doctors, who were also very frequently in the Church.

V. 15. The shadow,] not that there was any vertue inherent to the Apostles bodies, nor much lesse to their shadow or garments: but to shew a most fervent faith, though very simple and ignorant, to which God according as he pleased granted his grace and power, though there ought no consequence to be drawne thence. See Matth. 9. 21. and 15. 36. Acts 19. 12.

V. 17. Of the Sadducees,] See upon Acts 4. 1.

V. 20. Of this life, namely of this saving doctrine, which bringeth life to them that beleeve.

V. 28. To bring,] to cause the people to rise, and revenge his death upon us.

Ver. 32. The Holy Ghost,] by his gifts and miraculous effects, which accompanie our Doctrine.

V. 36. Theudas,] a famous impostor, who lived it should seeme in the dayes of Herod the great: and is not mentioned in the Histories: but there is another spoken off, of the same name: who lived some time after that.

V. 37. Judas,] called by Historians Ganlanite, that is to say borne at Golan in Bashan, but here is called Galilean, because hee raised his tumult in Galilee: by reason of the second taxation made by Cyrenius, after the first made by Augustus himselfe, Luke 2. 2.

V. 38. For if this,] not that wee ought to judge of a doctrine or Religion by the lastingnesse of it, or any other favourably events, which God sometimes grants to the worst of them according to his secret judgements. But he seemes only to dissuade them from the violent and unlawfull ones: and remit all things to Gods providence, who by many other examples having shewed his judgements upon the false Prophets that were amongst his people: it was to bee hoped that in this case also he might doe the like, if so be it were disallowed by him.

V. 40. Beaten them,] which was a kinde of punishment, which the Romans suffered the Iewes to inflict in their Synagogues, but not openly. See Matthew 10. 17. and 23. 34. Acts 22. 5. 2 Cor. 11. 24.

Chap. VI.

Ver. 1. The Grecians,] it is likely that they were Iewes dwelling amongst the Grecians out of their Country; who had taken a habit of the customes, language and doctrine of the Grecians in many things, differing, from those Ierusalem, Acts 9. 29. and 11. 20. Their widdowes,] Namely the Grecians widdowes: held by the true Iewes unequall to theirs in honour, by reason of the foresaid mixture: and by reason of the dignity of the principall Citie of the Nation. Neglected,] either because the were assisted equally with the rest, and with equall honour, in the distribution of the poores goods, Acts 2. 45. and 4. 35. or that they were not admitted into any honourable office of the said distribution, according to the custome of employing therein honourable widdowes, which was afterwards confirmed and regulated, 1 Tim. 5. 9

V. 2. It is not reason,] the Apostles in the beginning by reason of the small number of beleevers had the charge of the poore, Acts 4. 35. But the Church being increased they could not doe that and preach to. Whereupon by divine inspiration they made Deacons, upon whom they disburthened themselves of this ministration: who also had power to provide for these contentions and disorders. Tables,] Namely at those common meales, Acts 2. 42, 46. under which is comprehended all the foresaid ministration.

V. 5. A proselyte,] Namely a Pagan converted to Iudaisme, Mat. 23. 15.

V. 6. They layd,] a most ancient Ceremonie in consecration, in signe that such persons were appropriated to God, Exod. 29. 10. and likewise of blessing, as if the grace and power of God did settle upon them, Gen. 48. 14. Mat. 19. 13.

Verse 7. Increased,] Namely did spread it selfe abroad amongst the people. were obedient.] did voluntarily submit themselves to beleeve the Gospell.

Verse 8. And power,] of divine power and efficacie in all his words and deeds. Or of the power of the Holy Ghost, to worke miracles.

V. 9. Of the Synagogues,] there being in Ierusalem diverse places of Ecclesiasticall meetings, for the reading and expounding of Gods word: and for ordinary prayers, the Temple not being sufficient for these purposes, for all men, and at all times: but it was for the Priests, and for the most Religious actions, sacrifices worship, &c. of the people. Of the Libertines,] it is likely they were Iewes borne of slaves, made free by the Romans: and that they had some assembly a part, being detested by the Iewes, as well by reason of their staine of their servile condition; as because the tooke part with the Romans, and their domination which was abhorred by the Iewes.

V. 14. Shall destroy,] Steven might well have denounced this desolation of Ierusalem, and the disannulling of Ceremonies, by Daniells prophesies, 9. 26, 27. Or by Christs Matthew 24. 2. but yet these witnesses were false: because they witnessed thorow hatred and malice: and besides they concealed part of what was spoken: As that Ierusalem should be destroyed: but in case they were not converted: That the ceremonies should be disannulled, but to give place to a more excellent kinde of service in spirit and truth.

Ver. 15. As it had been:] full grace, Majesty and divine splendor.

Chap. VII.

Ver. 2. Brethren,] he calleth them so, by reason of the degree which they held in the Iewish Church, which was yet not altogether repaired by God, and by reason of the Communion in the same God, nation, and covenant. The God,] the intention of Steven is to declare that God chose Abraham out of meere grace, seeing hee was an Idolater as the rest of the Caldeans were, Ios. 24. 2. and therefore that neither he, nor the Iewes, who were descended from him according to the flesh, had no advantage of merit before God. And that as hee had chosen them. So hee might reprove them if they went against his covenant.

Verse 5. Gave him more,] this seemes to be spoken to shew, the addition of grace which Abrahams posterity had received above him: to bind them so much the stricter to God; and to aggravate their ingratitude.

Verse 8. Patriarches,] See upon Acts 2. 29.

Ver. 9. Moved with envie,] This circumstance seemes to be related to shew the conformitie of the peoples malice, that of their ancient fathers, in the hatred and persecution of Gods servants sent for the correcting of vices, and the salvation of the Church as Ioseph was.

V. 14. Threescore and fifteene,] See upon Gen. 46. 27. the reason of the diversities of the number here and in that place.

Ver. 16. were carried over,] the Scripture makes no mention but only of Iosephs bones being carried into Sichem, Exodus 13. 19. Ios. 24. 32. it may bee it was knowne by tradition, that the bones of the bodies of the rest of Iacobs children, were also carried thither and indeed after Christs time there, monuments were yet to be seene, Abraham,] Gen. 23. 19. it is said that Iacob bought that field were Ioseph was buried, and it is likely that this varietie proceeded from the Coppiers, it may bee by reason of the like act of Abraham, Gen. 23. 16.

V. 21.

Ver. 22. Was mighty,] that is to say, he did and spake great things, and was accompanied with a divine Majestie, height, and power. See Luke 24. 19.

Verse 23. It came into,] by revelation which GOD had made unto him of his vocation, though hee had not as yet declared him the time, nor the meanes of exercising it.

Verse 25. Hee supposed,] it is likely that God had promised him, that hee should bee receaved, followed and obeyed by the people, yet without any prefixing of time: wherein Moses erred. See Exodus 3. 18. and 4. 1, 5. This History hath also a relation to the ordinary refusall the people had made of the instruments of their salvation.

V. 30. In a flame,] Namely in a fiery and flaming bush.

Verse 35. They refused,] whom they had rejected, and with contempt refused to know. By the hands,] Namely by the power, and authoritie and conduct of the Sonne of God. See Exodus 33. 14. and 34. 10. Isa. 63. 11, 12. Hab. 3. 13. 1 Cor. 10. 9. Hab. 12. 25. Who in all ages hath beene the head and Saviour of his people.

Ver. 38. In the Church,] the Italian, In the assembly,] when the people were solemnly assembled for to receave Gods Law. With the,] was a messenger and mediatour betweene the Sonne of God giving his Law, and the people, Gal. 3. 19. The living Oracles,] Namely the Law of God, Rom. 3. 2. made living by the power of the Spirit in the hearts of men, Heb. 4. 12. to produce its effects: which were, not to give spirituall and everlasting life to man. Dead in sinne, Romans 8. 3. 2 Corin. 3. 7, 9. Galath. 3. 21. But to waken the Consciences lively, to binde the hearts, and to represse sinne, &c.

Verse 39. Turned backe againe,] they went astray imitating the Idolatries of Ægypt in worshipping the Calfe. See upon Exodus 32. ver. 4. Other againe referre this to the great desire and designe they had to returne into Ægypt, Numbers 14. 3, 4.

V. 42. Turned,] withdrew his grace love and spirit from them; and gave them over to the Devill, to bee led by him to Idolatrie without any stay. See Psalme 81. 12. Ezekiel 20. 25, 26 39. 2 Thes. 2. 11. As it is,] which Idolatry committed in the desert, Amos pointeth at in this passage.

Verse 43. The Starre,] For BAAL I represented the Planets: and Moloch according to the common opinion was Saturne, called here Rephan. The reason whereof is not certainely knowne, nor the Originall of the name: Vnlesse it were the Arabian Name of that Planet used in those dayes for Rephan in the Arabian tongue signifieth most high and elevated: which belongeth to Saturne more than to any other planet, it being the highest of all the rest. Beyond Babylon,] in Amos it is beyond Damascus: but Steven relates the meaning which is that the people should be scattered and dispersed into the uttermost parts of the world.

V. 44. Of witnesse,] within which the principall thing that represented Gods Majestie was the Arke, wherein were the Tables of the whole Law, called the witnesse, Exodus 16. verse 34. Now it seemes the meaning is, that if the moveable Tabernacle, made by a modell receaved from God and with so much preparation might by Gods appointment bee changed into a firme, and farre more excellent Temple: it was no way beyond reason that God should change that materiall Temple into a spirituall one which is the Church: in which is the truth of all those ancient Fabrickes: and therefore that hee Steven could not be accused for impietie, for foretelling the destruction of the Temple, and the abolishing of the ceremoniall worship of it, Act. 6. 14.

Verse 45. Of David,] who was the first that designed the Fabricke of the Temple, 2 Sam. 1. ver. 1, 2.

V. 46. A Tabernacle,] The Italian, A habitation,] Namely a settled place for the ordinary signes of his presence in grace and power, and for his service and worship.

Verse 48. Dwelleth not,] To bee as it were fast bound unto it, or shut up in it, according to the false opinion of the IEWES. See Ier. 7. ver. 4.

Ver. 51. Uncircumcised,] Namely as prophane and wicked as the Pagans themselves inwardly, though they outwardly bore in their bodies circumcision, a marke of regeneration and the Seale of Gods covenant. The Holy Ghost,] by which Gods truth is not onely propounded: but the truth of it is likewise so effectually demonstrated inwardly, that you cannot contradict it but onely by obstinate malice, Genesis 6. 3. Matthew 12. ver. 31. Heb. 6. 4.

V. 53. By the disposition,] the Italian, The Angels, publishing of it,] the Grecke by the out cries and proclamations of Angels: Namely they being as it were the Sonne of God, the supreame Law-givers publike Criers Galath. 3. 19. Heb. 2. 2. Or in the middest of Angel standing round about them in squadrons Deut. 33. 2. either sence is to shew that if they had contemned the Law given with so much Majesty and terror, it was no marvaile if the rejected the Gospell, propounded unto them, in so meane, simple, and milde manner.

Ver. 55. And saw,] this was a miraculous vision, in which Steven by a supernaturall light and vertue, did see into Heaven, and beheld that splendor and Majestie

Majestie with which Christ is clothed there. Vnlesse one will say that it was but a created image of of it, which was represented to Stevens inward and outward senses. See Acts 10. 11.

V. 58. The witnesse,] who according to the law, Deuteronomie 17. verse 7. were to throw the first stones.

V. 60. Hee fell a sleepe,] he quietly, and sweetely breathed, a Scripture phrase for the assured hope of the blessed Resurrection.

Chap. VIII.

Ver. 1. All scattered,] namely the body of the Church, for the most part.

V. 5. Philip,] it is likely it was the Deacon, Acts 6. 5. rather than the Apostle who remained in Ierusalem with the rest, ver. 1.

V. 9. Bewitched,] the Italian, Seduced,] or astonished and besotted.

V. 10. The great power,] the greatest instrument of Gods power that can be remembred.

V. 12. Were baptized,] renouncing all manner of impietie and superstition especially that of Simon.

V. 13. Believed,] made outward profession of the faith; Or gave some assent to the doctrine; but hypocritically, not giving way to the inward operation of the Holy Ghost to a true conversion and lively regeneration.

V. 15. The Holy Ghost, not only the inward gift thereof in light and grace: but also the externall and miraculous ones, which in those beginning were conferred upon many, after baptisme especially upon those who were by God appointed for the sacred ministerie.

V. 17. Laid they,] See upon Acts 6. 6.

V. 21. In this matter,] Namely in this sacred Office of the Gospell: in which the laying on of hands is required, to obtaine the grace of the Spirit. Or in this faith and doctrine. Or in this businesse.

Ver. 22. If perhaps,] this word sheweth the difficultie of the thing by reason of the grievousnesse of the sinne. Without cutting off the hope of grace: but rather to serve for a greater spurre to the sinner to bring him to repentance. See 2 Tim. 2. 25. That thou art,] that thou art possessed with a most wicked malice, and art a slave to the Devill, for to do all manner of wickednesse.

V. 24. That none,] that the most unhappie estate of the soule which you describe unto mee, may not drive mee into eternall perdition which you threaten me with.

V. 26. which is desert,] this may bee referrred to the Citie of Gaza which at that time was desolate and ruined or to the way which was thorow a disinhabited Country.

V. 27. Queene of,] for amongst the Ægyptians women might raigne. See 1 King. 11. 1. Worshipp,] See 1 Kings. 8. 41. Ioh. 12. 20.

Ver. 29. Said,] by Revelation or secret inspiration.

V. 33. Iudah,] because hee voluntary humbled himselfe even to the death to which hee was condemned, God did deliver him, and hath Soveraignly exalted him, Phil. 2. 8, 9.

V. 37. with all thine,] that is to say sincerely, and firmely, with all thine heart.

V. 39. Caught away,] that is to say carried him away by a swift and sodaine motion. See 1 Kings 18. 12. Ezeck. 3. 12, 14.

Chap. IX.

V. 2. To the Synagogues,] the Romans having taken Iudea suffered the Iewes to live according to their Law and Religion. Whereupon the High Priest as head of the great Councell might inquire of and judge of the quality of a Iewes crime) but had reserved unto themselves the pronunciation of the judiciall sentence, and the publike capitall execution. Of this way,] the Italian. Of this Sect,] or profession of Religion.

V. 5. Whom thou,] in my members, from which I have nothing separate, and in my doctrine scrine and glory. It is hard,] a terme taken from rude Cattell, which the more obstinate they are, the more they cause themselves to bee used, and yet at the last are forced to obey. To signifie unto Saul, that for all his fiercenesse, he could not withstand Gods motion and calling; and that therefore hee ought to yeeld unto it quietly: otherwise he should draw on plagues upon him. See 1 Cor. 9. 16.

V. 7. Hearing,] See Dan. 10. 7. Now Acts 22. it is said that they saw the light but did not hear the voyce. Wherefore we must say that they heard Sauls voyce, but not Christs. Or some confused sound. Or the sound of the Hebrew words which the Lord used, Acts 26. 14. but not the meaning as Matth. 27. 47.

Ver. 8. Hee saw no man,] his eyes being dazled with that heavenly light: which by miracle, or by condensation of the naturall humour of the eye produced those scales which are afterwards spoken of, to shew that he was altogether blinde in spirituall things and that he must renounce all presumption of wisdome, and become a child, and a foole before God, for to be made wise by him. See upon Iohn 9. 6. 1 Cor. 3. 18.

V. 9. Three dayes,] during which time it is likely hee had his raptures, and revelations mentioned 2 Cor. 12. 2.

V. 11. For behold,] by verse 17. it appeares that God revealed unto Ananias the subject of Sauls prayer:

prayer: namely to be enlightened in body and in spirit, to performe Gods will, and that he was sent thither for to fulfill it.

V. 12. And hath seen] God by another vision prepared Saul for the comming of Ananias and for the worke which by his meanes he would do upon him.

V. 15. To beare] to give knowledge of me to preach the doctrine of my person and truth.

V. 16. For I will] We may suppose, Which hee shall freely doe, notwithstanding all persecutions, for I will instruct him, and frame him to a most invincible patience.

V. 22. Proving,] the Greeke word signifieth to conferme a thing by comparing of reasons, and authority and it is like that here is ment the comparing and conferring of prophisies. See Acts. 17. 11 and 28.23.

V. 23. Many,] namely three yeares Gal. 1, 18.

V. 25. The disciples,] the beleevers which were afterwards called Christians.

V. 27. Declared,] some referre this to Saul himselfe, others to Barnabas, who might live at Damascus where this act was well knowne, or might elsewhere certainely have heard of it.

V. 28. with them,] Namely, with Peter and Iames. Gal. 1, 18, 19. For the other Apostles were then absent.

V. 29. The Grecians,] See upon Acts. 6. 1.

V. 31. Edefied,] Going forward in their spirituall estate, with delight, and content, by interchangable instructions, and holy examples, which is the frequent sence of this word opposite to scandals, and in the,] or they were filled with comfort, &c.

V. 32. The Saints,] A common name to all beleevers sanctified by their calling, by Faith, and by the Spirit of regeneration, Lydda,] a city or great Castle in the tribe of Ephraim called also Diospolis.

V. 35. Saron,] another city in the same tribe, neere to Lydda.

V. 36. Joppa,] a Sea Towne neere to those other townes, in these dayes called Japha.

V. 37. Washed,] According to the customes of those dayes to wash and annoynt dead bodies, leaving them afterwards for some time in the house, in all mens sight, that they might come and performe their last duties to them, until they were carried to burying.

V. 39. The Coats,] Which shee gave for almes, which is noted as her praise for a double vertue of indulcy and charity.

Chap. X.

Ver. 1. Of the band,] or Cohort which was a Squadron of Roman footmen to the number of about six hundred, which made the tenth part of a Legion whereof every one as well as the Cohorts had its perticular name.

V. 2. Devout,] namely a proselite in beleife, and religion. Not by circumcision, and open profession, which the Romans were forbidden by their Lawes, see upon Mat. 23. 15.

V. 3. Evidently,] Not in an extasie or rapture of the Spirit, or in a dreame, but waking ocularly, and sensibly. The Ninth,] three a clocke in the afternoone, which was one of the houres of daily prayers. Acts. 3. 1.

V. 4. Are come up,] A kinde of speech taken from ancient sacrifices, See Levit. 2. 2. and 24. 7. Psal. 141. 2. To signifie that these worke of piety in Cornelius, had as one should say kept his memory alive before God, and had excited him to remember him, to conferre his full knowledge and grace upon him by his Gospell, after he had prepared him by those Initiall operations of his Spirit.

V. 9. Upon the House,] made in the manner of a terrace according to the custome See Matth. 10. 27. others take it to be a roome, in the uppermost storie of the house as Dan. 6. 10. the sixth,] at midday which was also an houre of prayer. Psa. 55. 17.

V. 10. Into a trance,] a divine and supernaturall elevation of the minde, and abstraction thereof from the sences, and Organs of the bodie: to be altogether attentive to the revelation which was presented unto him under the following shapes.

V. 13. And eate,] indifferentlie without makeing anie difference of meats cleane or uncleane according to the Law Lev. 11. 2. Deut. 14. 4. Now it should seem that God had caused that hunger ver. 10. in him, as a fitting preparation, to the vision which hee ment to shew him.

V. 14. Common or uncleane,] the Italian Vncleane or defiled,] it should seeme that by these two words, are signified two kindes of uncleanesse whereof one was of all the kinde. the other of some particular, accidentally.

V. 25. Worshipped him,] hee did him an hommage not altogether holie as unto God but yet in some parte Religious, as to one of his ministers with Some notable excesse of humilitie corrected by Peter. See Rev. 19. 10. and 22. 8.

V. 28. To keepe company,] by the Law of God this was understood of everie streight bond of matrimonie societie couenant, or familier conversation. but by tradition it was wrested even to eating with them, Acts 11.3. Gal.2.12. Unto one of,] Namely to a Pagan that was not a Iew. Common or,] in regard of the divertitie of Nations. Now the Apostles and believers knew, as well by the prophecies, as by Christs instructions that the Gentiles should be called, but it appeares that they believed it should be done by being incorporated into the Iewish nation by means of circumcision, of which doubt Peter, and others by him, were now cleared.

Verse 34 Is no respecter,] that is to say, he judgeth of men, for to accept of them to be his, not for outward respects, as of nation, condition, &c. but for the essentiall ground of piety and of uprightnesse of the heart. Now he speaketh not here of that original will and pleasure of God, by which he taketh one into favour, who of himselfe is as unworthy as the other. *Rom.*9.11.1. *Cor.*4.7. but in that consequent degree of his love towards the worke of his grace, in what nation or quality of person soever it be found, to maintaine it, encrease it and make it up.

Verse 36 The word,] the Italian addeth, According to the word,] that is to say, of which indifferency of nations hee hath given the Iewes cleare instructions by the Gospell, which was first preached unto them, revealing in it the bestowing of his grace now, otherwise then he did under the law. Peace,] Namely, the reconciliation of men with God; and the receiving of all nations indifferently into Gods covenant. Isa 57.19. *Ephes.*2.14.16.17. *Col.*1.20 He is,] the Italian Who is?] who, or he, hath bin established universall King of the world, and not of one nation onely, wherefore he will also gather his elects out of them all. See *Rom.*3.30. and 10.12.

Verse 38. Anointed,] hath in his humane nature endowed him with the fulnesse of the gifts of his spirit, and hath consecrated his whole person to the office of mediator, which are the two things signified by the ancient annointment. *Psal.*2.6. Was with him,] in fulnesse of God-head, as he was everlasting Sonne Col.2.9. and in power, grace, and favour, as hee was man, and mediator *Ioh.*3.29. and 16.32.

Verse 42. Of quicke,] as well of them which at his last comming shall bee yet found living, as of them which being dead before, shall bee raised againe. 1. *Thes.*4.15. See *Rom.*14.9.2. *Tim.*4.1.1. *Pet.*4.5.

Verse 43. Through his name,] through him, his vertue, and merit, and for his sake.

Verse 44. The holy Ghost,] his miraculous gifts were in an instant conferred upon some, and that of sanctification, to be of the true elect, and that of common illumination to all.

Verse 45. Of the,] Namely, the circumcised Iewes.

Verse 46. Tongues,] the Italian, Divers tongues,] Namely, strange tongues which before they knew not. See Acts 2.4.

Verse 47. Can any man,] seeing God hath conferred upon them the inward and spiritual grace, who can hinder us who are his ministers from communicating unto them the externall signe, by joyning of them to the body of the Church.

Verse 48 Commanded,] that is to say, he appointed them to receive baptisme at his hands.

Chap. XI.

Ver. 15. As on us,] in like vertue, though not in the same likenesse of fierie tongues, nor in the same degree.

Verse 20. Vnto the Grecians,] See *Act.*6.1.

Verse 21. The hand,] God accompanied their ministerie with the power of his spirit. Luke 1.66. for our coppies after those words. Was with them,] adde these words for to heale them, that is to say, God manifested his power by them, in working of miracles by healing such as were sicke amongst those that heard them Luke 5.17.

Verse 28. By the Spirit,] Namely, by divine revelation. Dearth,] histories make mention of two dearths under Claudius within the space of three yeares. And it is likely that here is meant the first.

Verse 29. The brethren,] as well because they might be in greater want by reason of the Iewes hate and persecution. As also by reason of the respect which Christians bore to the Church of Ierusalem, as to the mother Church of all the rest. See *Rom.*15.26.1. *Cor.*16.1.2. *Cor.*8.4 and 9.1. *Gal.*2.10.

Verse 30. To the Elders,] a generall name for all the guides and ministers of the Church, from which greeke name hath been taken and framed the name of priest.

Chap. XII.

Ver. 1. Herod,] surnamed Agrippa, who was grandchilde to Herod the great, and had received the title of King, from the Emperours Caius and Claudius, together with the government of the temple, in which hee did according to his pleasure, whereupon he also undertooke these executions, as by a generall commission, though capitall judgments were taken away from the Iewes.

Ver.2. He killed,] secretly in prison, for after the triall, hee purposed to make a publike spectacle of Peter.

Ver.3. Then were,] this seemes to be added, to signifie the cause why the punishment was delayed, namely, in reverence of the Passeover, which lasted eight dayes.

Ver 12. Marke,] it is uncertaine whither it bee the same as writ the Gospell, and that seemes to bee named *Col.*4.10.2 *Tim.*4.11.1 *Pet.*5.13.

Ver.15. It is his,] amongst the Iewes, as it appeares by their histories, there were very frequent apparitions of dead persons, and these phantasmes (which last were diabolicall) were thought to be the spirits of the persons whom they represented, and they thought there were some good and some bad, according to the diversity of the persons, and their forespotted life. Now it should seeme that these people amazed as it were at an unlooked for chance, followed the popular opinion: and would thereby infer that Peters death was inviolable, seeing his spirit did already begin to appeare.

question

V. 17. James,] antiquity affirmed, that this is hee, who was called the brother of the Lord, Matthew 13 55. who was also made the first Bishop of Jerusalem. Act. 15. 13. and 21, 18. Gal. 1, 19. and 2. 9, 12 and was surnamed Justus, and Oblia. and was held in great esteeme, even amongst the Iewes. Others take it to be James of Alpheus the Apostle. Matthew 10. 3.

Verse 23. He gave not,] not rejecting nor suspecting, but rather swallowing up and accepting of those impious flatteries.

Verse 25. Their ministery,] Namely, their carrying and delivering the reliefe which was sent by the Church of Antioch.

Chap. XII.

Vse 1. Prophets,] it should seeme that here a remnant such as had the gift of expounding publickly the resolutions of the Christians faith by the infallible conduct of the holy Ghost. 1. Cor. 14 29. 32. and it was an extraordinary degree and singuler for these times of Ecclesiasticall office, yet inferiour to that of Apostles. 1. Cor. 12. 28. Ephes. 4. 11. And so many it was accompanied with divine predictions, Tetrarch,] See upon Matth, 14. 1.

Verse 2. Ministred,] in publick prayers, expounding of the word, administration of the sacraments, and other parts of the evangelicall ministry, Said,] by some prophetick Revelation directed to some or more of them with the consent and approbation of all the rest, Separate me,] to be held in equall degree with the Apostles and to be as they, sent indifferently every where, with equall authoritie, as haveing the same infallible grace of the holy Ghost. Gal. 2. 9.

V. 3. Laid their,] for a signe of consecration to the office of Apostle, and in signe of blessing Acts 14. 16.

V. 4. Seleucia,] a sea towne of Siria, called by authors Pieria.

V. 5. Salamis,] a City of Cyprus, which is thought to be that which in these dayes is called Famagusta. Minister,] not so much to their persons as to the worke of the ministrie. See Acts 15. 37.

V. 7. Deputie,] the Italian Proconsul,] or propretor for Cyprus was not consular but a prætorian province, governed by them, which came out of the yearly office of Prætors, and were called proprætors.

Verse 8. For so is,] Elymas an Arabian name which signifies a magician, or a master of hidden arts and sciences.

Verse 9. Who also,] it is uncertaine whether he alwayes had these two names, whereof Paul is the Roman name, and Saul the Hebrew name, or whither hee tooke the Roman name, after hee was appointed Apostle to the Gentiles.

V. 10. To pervert,] to give bad constructions, and lay false imputations upon the Gospell, which is the way of salvation, and to hinder the worke of Gods grace.

Verse 12. The doctrine,] which he saw accompanied with so much power of God, in perswading, arguing, and doing of miracles, and with so much majestie and holinesse.

Ver. 15. The reading,] which was every Sabbath-day in certaine parcels or portions, See Acts 13. 27 and 15. 21 If ye have,] See upon Luke 4. 16.

Verse 17. The God,] the end is to shew that God after he had governed his people by divers persons and by severall kindes of governement, had at the last established the everlasting Kingdome of the Messias sonne of David, according to the flesh: to whom all Gods promises had a relation: and to whom all other governements had bin referred, Exalted,] first by Iosephs greatnesse, and next by the marvellous increase of the people, and lastlie by their glorious deliverance.

Verse 21. Fourty,] in which ought to bee comprehended the time of Samuels government.

Verse 25. I am not hee,] namely, the Messias, or the great Prophet foretold by Moses, See John 1. 21. 25.

Verse 26. To you,] namely, to the Iewes dispersed into far countries, seeing those of Jerusalem had rejected it, and persecuted the Lord.

Verse 33. As it is,] not that the Son of God was engendred at his resurrection or after it, but because by it all humane weaknesse which hee had put on being put off, hee was gloriously, and undoubtedly declared to be the Son of God. Rom. 1. 4.

Verse 34. And as concerning,] by his resurrection he hath fulfilled this following promise, others to shew that he hath raised him he said, &c. The meaning of this prophecy sheweth that Christ was to rise againe, To corruption,] Namely, to a mortal life, and to death, The sure,] Namely, the effect of the invariable promises of grace, which I made to David concerning the everlasting Kingdome of his progenie. Psal, 89. 4. 19

Ver. 36. For David,] we must suppose that this passage must necessarily have a relation to Christ, for it cannot properly belong to David. He had served,] done that which God hath appointed him to do in his royall and prophetick calling, Fell a sleep,] died, See Acts 7. 60.

Verse 39. From all things,] namely, from all sinnes, pollutions & bonds, justified absolved in Gods judgment, Christ having satisfied for all by his death. Esa 53.6.11. By the law] because that the ceremoniall Law being but figurative, had no power of it selfe over the soule, Heb. 9. 9. and 10. 1. 11 and (out of its relation to Christ) had nothing but signals and seales of sinne and condemnation Col. 2. 14. the moral law also being without force in sinfull man Rom. 8. 3. could not justifie him, but only discouer and condemne his sinne. Rom. 3. 20. and 4. 15. Gal 3. 21, 22.

V. 40. In the prophets,] this is an application of the passage of Habakuk to threaten the rebels which were amongst Gods people, with the like judgments as are set downe in that place.

V. 41. And wonder,] that is to say loose all vigor and councell, be as it were astonished, and hide your selues for shame.

V. 42. The Gentiles,] namely the prosalites in beleife and Religion which were present in the synagogue with the Iewes.

V. 43. In the grace,] namely in the gift of faith receaued by Gods speciall grace, or in the fruition of God and his sonnes loue, by meanes of faith, and holines of life.

V. 46. It was necessarie,] by Christs command Acts. 1. 8. and to yeeld you that honour which was due to first borne children, Iudge your selues,] your selues through your rebellion and incredulitie, make and declare your selves un worthie of it.

V. 48. Glorified,] submitting themselves unto it by true obedience of faith, and declaring in themselves, and preaching unto others the truth and power of it See Mat. 11. 19. were ordained,] by Gods everlasting and most free election, Rom. 11. 7.

V. 50. The deuout,] namely such as had embraced the Iewish Religion.

V. 51 Shooke off,] according to Christs commaund. Mat. 10. 14.

Chap. XIIII.

Vers. 1. Into the Synagogue,] the Italian addeth Likewise into ours] as thay had done at Antioch Acts. 13. 14. Of the Greeks,] namely prosalites, which frequented the Iewes synagogues though they were not circumcised Act. 13. 42. 43.

V. 3. In the Lord,] that is to say being strengthened and sustained by his power.

V. 9. That he had,] the spirit of God, which had infused some seeds of faith in the lame man: revealed his worke to Paul to set him on to doe this miracle upon a subiect which was well disposed; for otherwise the gift of working of miracls was often times hindered by incredulitie. Matth. 13. 58. Marke. 6. 5.

V. 12. Mercurius,] held by the Pagans to be the Gods messenger and interpreter.

V. 13. Garlands,] according to the custome of the heathens, Unto the Gates,] of the Apostles lodging.

V. 15. Passions,] namely of sinne, misery and death, and other naturall conditions of man, all very farre from the nature of God. See James 5.17. From these,] namely, from idols so called in Scripture, because they have no other being, but onely what man maketh them, nor no vertue but what is in the idolaters opinion. See 1 Cor. 8.4.

V. 16. Suffered,] not by approbation, but by a free and most just forsaking of them, without repressing or hindering of them, To walke,] to live according to their owne mindes, following their owne idolatries, superstitions, and other sinnes.

V. 17. Gaue us,] which questionlesse were effects of the soueraigne deities power and goodnes heavenly Glory, and not of Idols made by men upon earth.

V. 19. From Antioch,] namely of Pisidia, and not of Syria, See Acts 13.14.

Ver. 20. He rose up,] either being miraculously preserved from hurt, or having been hurt, being suddenly made whole.

V. 23. When they had ordained,] the Italian, When they had by common votes ordained,] with the approbation and consent of the Churches, to whom this right was anciently preserved even from the Apostles time. for the governement of the Church was not founded upon constraint, nor violence, but upon a voluntary obedience. And had prayed,] this may be referred either to the establishment of pastors, wherein their solemne acts of piety were observed, or to the blessing that followed.

V. 26. To Antioch,] namely, of Syria.

V. 27. With them,] accompanying their ministrie with his power. See Isa. 63. 11. Hab. 3. 13. Hee had,] by the preaching of his Gospell, and by the power of his spirit, hee had brought them into the communion of faith in Christ. See Rev. 3. 8.

CHAP. XV.

Vers. 1. Certaine men,] Who intruded themselves without the APOSTLES commission or approbation. Verse. 24. The brethren,] which were converted to the Faith amongst the Gentiles. Except yee be,] circumcision and other ceremonies, though they were abolished by Christs death. Phil. 3. 3. Col. 2. 11. Were used for a time as things indifferent, to not offend the Iewes, who were habituated in them. But these false doctors, did seeke to impose them upon the Gentiles likewise as things necessary, as an essentiall part of Gods worship, and a supply to the righteousnesse acquired by Christ to salvation, vision, whereupon the Apostles seeing it, did not only breake the peace of the Church, and was a great offence to the Gospell, because the Gentiles abhorred circumcision, but did likewise oppose Christs benefit. Gal. 5.2. 56. They presently applyed a remedy to it.

V.2. That Paul,] not because these two Apostles, who were every way equall to the rest, in the light & conduct of the spirit, and in Apostolicall authority, Gal. 2.6.8. had any need of instruction or of confirmation, but onely to give the weake content, who had more confidence in Peter and James, and in the Church of Jerusalem, and to stoppe false doctors mouthes, and to establish by common votes a generall order in the Church.

V.4. The law,] namely, the ceremoniall law.

V.5. A good while agoe,] namely in the beginning of the preaching of the Gospell.

V.8. which knoweth.] and therefore hath seene that the purity of the converted Gentiles faith and conscience, without the use of ceremonies, was equall to that of the believing Iewes, who by the use of the said ceremonies, were formerly prepared and instructed in it. See Acts 10.34.35.

V.9. Purifying.] having in stead of the external purifications of the law of Moses, made them partakers of the purgation of their sins in the blood of Christ, and of the gifts of regeneration in newnesse of life, by the holy Ghost, which are two benefits that man obtaineth by faith.

V.10. Tempt yee,] make a rash triall without any necessity or command, even with danger of sinister successe, whither God will give them the will to submit themselves to a burthen so odious unto them, and the power of bearing it, without being moved to impatience and revolt. Were able,] not so much for the extreame labour there was in observing of the ceremonies, as because that the observance could never bee so perfect, but that the conscience would be involved in many scruples and anguishes: and besides, because that under them, being understood in the sence of these false Apostles, the necessity of observing the whole law was included, for to finde out ones righteousnesse before God, Gal. 5.3. which being impossible for man to do, the law was as a bond of condemnation to him, and a ministery of death, Rom. 3.20. and 4.15. 2 Cor. 3.7.9.

V.13. James,] See upon Acts 12.17.

V. 14. For his name,] the Italian, In his,] namely that may be subject unto him, bearing his name, and acknowledging, and worshipping him, for their onely true God.

V.17. That the,] there is some diversitie in the text of Amos, this passage being like many others of the new testament, taken out of the greek translation of the Septuagint which was much in use amongst the Grecians in those dayes, which for some cause not very well knowne varieth oftentimes from the hebrew, but it was sufficient to shew by it that there should be other nations, which should be called the Lords. Which is the meaning the of Amos, layd downe as well in the greek, as in the hebrew text.

V.18. Unto God,] this prophecy and other like unto it, about the calling of the Gentiles, sheweth that this was Gods counsell, which hee bringeth to passe in these dayes, therefore wee must not finde it strange, nor be offended at this novelty.

V.19. wherefore,] since it pleaseth God to cal them to his grace and Church, it is not reasonable that wee should in the behalfe of men lay this stumbling block of the necessity of circumcision, which is so much abhorred by them. And besides, seeing God hath taken away the distinction of nations, by the communication of his covenant, we must not any more set up the marke of the former division. See Ephes. 2. 14.16.

V.20 They abstaine,] this is an Ecclesiasticall ordinance, and as they say canonicall, not so much to rule the conscience, and the inward man, as the externall actions, for the peace, comelinesse, and order of the Church of those dayes, in things which of their own nature were indifferent, as the eating of blood or strangled meat: or which the Gentiles by abuse held to be such, as to eat of the flesh which was offered to Idols. v. 29. And committing fornication. See 1. Cor. 6 12, 13 and 10.20. Rev. 2.14.20.

V.21. For Moses.] this is ordained for the Gentiles: for the Iewes are sufficiently instructed, by the reading and exposition of the law in their observances, and to that we doe remand them, untill thorow a greater light and encrease of faith, they leave these of that which is now of no vertue.

V.22. Choosen men,] the greek heads, or conductors, that is to say pastors, who bore office in the Church government.

V.24. Subverting,] stirring them from their faith and quiet, and casting them into feare, perplexities, and scruples.

V.26. Have hazarded,] to innumerable dangers and travells, or have laid aside all care of themselves, to dedicate themselve wholly to Christs service.

V.28. To the holy Ghost,] because they did treate of Ecclesiasticall orders, concerning the quietnesse and order of the Church, wherin Ecclesiastical authority hath place, the assembly used this terme, it seemed good to us, which is not used, neither in the Articles of faith, nor in the commandements which meerely concerne the conscience. And to shew that authority was with holy reason and wisedome, there is added, and to the holy Ghost, who guided the Apostles in these outward things also. 1. Cor. 7. 25.40. The meaning is, as the spirit of God hath dictated it to us, so we doe ordaine it to you by the authority which God hath given us. Necessary,] for the peace & concord.

V. 30. The multitude,] namely the whole body of the Church.

Ver. 31. For the consolation,] for this meanes of concord which was given them by the Apostles. Others have it exhortation.

V. 32. Prophets,] See upon Acts 13. 1.

V. 33. In peace,] in good love. Or with a blessing Unto the Apostles,] namely to Ierusalem, whither the Apostles went after their voyages, and where it is likely some number of them resided continually.

Verse 38. Thought not good,] by discourse of reason for if there had beene any expresse revelation from God, Barnabas who was also a man inspired, would have knowne it, and peradventure Paul had espied some defect in Marke, which was concealed from Barnabas. Or that hee did not judge it reasonable to make him partaker of the reaping and harvest of the Churches, who would not bee with them at the sowing, and that for a milde and just punishment.

Ver. 39. So sharpe,] thorow humane infirmitie, and yet with a good intention in both of them. They departed,] God made use of their separation, to cause the Gospell to fructifie more at large, in diverse places.

Chap. XVI.

Vers. 1. Disciple,] that is to say a Christian, Beleeved,] that had embraced the faith of Christ. A Greeke.] a Gentile proselite, who was not circumcised. For if he had, he would have caused his son to be circumcised likewise. See upon Mat 13.15. Acts 14. 1.

V. 3. Circumcised,] not for a Sacrament of Gods Covenant, wherein circumcision availed nothing. Holy Baptisme having beene substituted for that use, but as for indifferent action, to cause the Gospell to be the more easily accepted amongst the Iewes, who held the uncircumcised in abomination untill greater illumination and confirmation in faith, and in the doctrine of Christian libertie.

V 6. Of the Holy Ghost,] by an internall revelation from him.

Ver. 7. They assayed,] thorow fervencie of zeale they endavoured to overcome all difficulties, but the Holy Ghost revealed unto them, that the will of God was not so for that time as those divine persons were sundry times moved by discourse of reason to undertake many things from which they were diverted by Revelation. See 2 Sam. 7. 3, 4. The spirit,] The Italian addeth. Of Iesus,] which hee only sends and distributes, and by which he moves, and inspires his beleevers Rom. 8. 9. and especially his Prophets and Apostles, to doe his worke, 1 Pet 1. 11.

V. 9. Come over,] crossing the Sea out of Asia in to Europe.

V. 10. Endeavoured,] by ver. 17. it appeares that Luke who writt this booke was then with Paul and Timothy.

Ver. 11. Samothracia,] an Iland and Citie depending upon Thracia, lying betweene Troas and Neapolis, which was a Citie and harbour of Macedonia.

V. 12. A Colonie,] of Romans who had sent thither a plantation of their own Nation.

V. 13. Where, by Statute and publicke authority to defend the Iewes from popular tumults, and likewise to separate them from others Prayer was wont,] they were certaine oratories, where the Iewes met for their quotidian prayers, at the same houres, as they offered the daily sacrifices in the Temple. And for other exercises of pietie. Which places according to some were the same as their Synagogues, and stood likely by some running water, because of the Iewish purifications.

V. 14. Worshipped,] Namely was a devout and religious proselyte. Opened,] he enlightned her by his spirit, and did inwardly incline her to believe, and submit her selfe to the Gospell.

V. 16. A spirit,] it was some devill by which she was possessed; or which served her for a familiar spirit speaking within her, and revealing secret and future things. See upon Lev. 19. 31.

Ver. 18. Grieved,] it not being fitting that Gods truth should receave witnesse from the spirit of lies, which would defile it, and cause it to bee suspected. See Mar. 1. 25, 34.

Verse 20. To the Magistrates,] The Italian, To the Praetors,] who were the chiefe Magistrates of the Roman Colonies, otherwise called Duumviri.

V. 21. Which are not,] by the Law of the Romans, which did forbid all Romans and Greekes to become professed Iewes.

Verse 28. But Paul,] who it is likely was in some Chamber with many other prisoners: and the doores being opened hee might perceave by the Moone shine or otherwise what the prison Keeper did without, but hee having no light could not see within.

Ver. 29. Sprang in,] he being secretly inspired to acknowledge that the miracle happened for the Apostles sakes. Humbleth himselfe before God in their persons, seeking to have part in that salvation, which hee might have heard say, that the Apostles did teach.

V. 35. The Magistrates,] it is uncertaine whence this instinct might come unto them, but peradventure: the earth-quake, and opening of the prison doores was noised abroad in the Citie: whereupon they might have some remorse, perceaving the Apostles to be divine men, and Gods messengers.

V. 37.

Ver. 37. Being Romans,] that have by our birth place the right of being Roman Citizens. Now by the Roman Lawes a Citizen of Rome could have no bodily punishment, or torture inflicted upon him by the Magistrates of Provinces. Let them come,] Paul doth not declineare any satisfaction for himselfe, nor any worldly honour, but a publike acknowledgment, of his innocencie, for the glory of God, and advancement of the Gospell.

V. 39. Besought them,] or did appeare and mitigate them with good words. To depart,] for to avoyd popular tumults

V. 40. comforted,] or exhorted them.

Chap. XVII.

Ver. 4. Devout Greekes,] Proselytes who had embraced the Iewish Religion all but circumcision.

V. 5. Of Iason,] in whose house Paul and Silas lodged.

V. 9. Securitie,] to come and answer whensoever they should be called.

V. 11. More noble,] free and loyall Iewes in following the word of their God, and endeavouring to obtaine the reward of their faith, and the effect of their expectation being not degenerate thorow incredulitie, nor gone astray from right judgment thorow the filthy passion of envie.

Vs. 12. Greekes,] gentile Proselytes.

V. 14. As it were,] and in the meane time going by land to Athens, to avoyd the ambushes, and provide for their owne safeties.

V. 19. Areopagus,] Namely was Mars his Hill, for so was the Palace called, where the Athenians held their Senate. Where Paul was brought, either to be examined concerning this new Religion, or only to feed the curiositie of those people.

V. 21. For all the,] this is intermixed to shew the reason why there was such a great concourse of people came thither by reason of Paul.

V. 22. I perceive,] this is spoken by the way of a milde insinuation, to avoyd offence and obtaine audience: though indeed all your Athenian customs and rites were but only superstitions and Idolatries.

V. 23. An Altar,] many Authors make mention of this inscription, whereof the cause and originall is very uncertaine Peradventure it was to make even the strange Gods propicious to them. Paul makes use of it onely to shew them, that they had no cause thus absolutely to reject his doctrine and the God which he preached unto them, under the pretence of an unknowne Novelty.

V. 24. Dwelleth not.] he is an infinite spirit, and filleth heaven and earth, is not circumscribed & shut up in any certaine place, as Idols are, and is the Author of all good, of which he makes men partakers and receaves nothing of them for himselfe: Nor requires any thing for all their dutie, but that man should acknowledge and worship him in spirit and in truth.

V. 26. Of one blood,] of the same stock and race of Adam, that as God is one, and all the generation of man is but one, all without any distinction of nations, may tend to one end, namely to know him, and serve him. Hath determined,] though hee hath appointed severall times for mens births, and appointed them severall places for their abode, yet are they all of one generation, and therefore ought not to have particular Gods for every nation and province after the Pagan manner, but one only universall one, Creator of all.

V. 27. That they,] the end of man, even since thorow sinne hee lost his first light of the knowledge of God, ought to be to employ that little naturall light which hee hath remaining to observe and take notice of the markes, and trackes of Gods Nature in his workes, to serve him according to it, and not runne a stray after Idolatry. See Rom. 1. 19, 20, 23.

Ver. 28. In Him,] thorow him, and thorow his vertue, which hee continually infuseth into his creatures, for to maintaine them in their being, Col. 1. 17. Heb. 1. 3. As certaine,] Namely as Aratus a Greeke Poet. See 1 Cor. 15. 32. Tit. 1. 12. to shew that by naturall discourse many heathens had knowne Gods Image in their owne soules. Whereby they might raise themselves to that point, to know that hee was an everlasting and infinite spirit: and therefore can not bee represented by corporall and corruptible things, nor be served in them.

V. 30. Winked at,] borne with men, looking not after them to destroy them for their horrible Idolatries.

V. 31. By that man,] namely by Iesus Christ, whom Paul nameth by his humanity, peradventure regarding the Gentiles incapacity to apprehend the mystery of the Trinitie and incarnation, and not to confirme them in the opinion of the multiplicitie of Gods.

Ver. 34. Areopagite,] a Senator or Judge of the Areopagus.

Chap. XVIII.

Vers. 2. Iew,] who was already converted to the Christian faith, whereof notwithstanding wee finde no mention made elsewhere. In Pontus,] a province of Asia. Claudius,] the Roman Emperor.

Ver. 3. Tent makers,] which in those dayes were made of leather.

V. 5. Was pressed,] had an extraordinary and vehement motion of Gods spirit, those holy men having many severall times, and degrees, of divine inspirations and raptures.

V. 6.

V. 6. Your bloud,] let the cause of your perdition be imputed to you alone, See Ezek. 18.13.

Ver. 7. Thence,] Namely out of the Synagogue, And entred,] to preach the Gospell and keepe the assemblies of beleevers: without removing his habitation from Aquila his house, according to Christs Commandement, Matth. 10. 11. Worshipped,] was a Proselyte and a devout man.

V. 13. To the Law,] Namely of Moses, which is the Law of our Nation, according to which Law the Romans permit us to live, and governe our selves and to judge those that are of our Nation.

V. 15. And names,] he seemes to have a relation to that the Romans beleeved that the Iewes worshipped a meere name. Because that having no corporall figures of the Deitie, they held the great essentiall Name of God in great reverence, which therefore they also kept secret, and did forbeare to utter. As if Gallio should say, you Iewes worship one name, and the Christians another, a conceipt and words of an ignorant and prophane man.

V. 17. The Greekes,] Namely the Gentiles, and it is likely that to favour those of their owne Nation who had harboured and protected Paul against the Iewes, they undertooke to bee revenged upon them with deeds, assuring themselves and building upon the Proconsulls connivencie.

V. 18. Having shorne,] Some understand this of Aquila, and other some of Paul neither is it very likely that it should have a relation to the Nazaritish vow, Numb. 6.18. But by the Iewish History it appeares, that it was an Ecclesiastical custome or tradition, by which one in case of any great sicknesse or danger, did make a vow in some part like unto the Nazarites vow, to abstaine from Wine, for a certaine time: and did shave his head, as a preparation to accomplish the principall part of the vow which consisted in sacrifices and offerings. See Acts 21.24. which nevertheless we doe not read that Paul offered: as hee who had no other ayme in all this businesse, but onely to accommodate himselfe in charity and wisdome to the Iewes weakenesse, and not to yeeld God any religious service therein. Cenchrea,] A port, or Sea arsenall belonging to Corinth.

V. 21. By all meanes,] not for any necessitie of observing the ceremoniall Law, from which Paul knew the Church was delivered, but for zeale of preaching Christ to his Nation, in a more frequent assemblie. Or for to obey some expresse revelation, Acts 19.21. Or to fulfill the foresaid vow in Ierusalem in the time of the Feast, to gaine the hearts of the Iewes which were exasperated against him.

V. 24. Borne at Alexandria,] in Ægypt. Mightie,] well instructed and grounded in them, and endowed with a singular power of Gods Spirit, to prop und, and perswade them.

V. 25. Instructed,] had learned the comming of Christ into the world, and His doctrine, which the Baptist had taught obscurely and imperfectly: But had not participated of the cleare and large Declaration which Christ and His Apostles had made of it.

V. 27. Through grace,] this may have a relation to Apollos who by his authenticall ministery called grace, Rom. 1.5. and 15, 15. 1 Cor. 3.10. Or by the grace and blessing of God, did much advance the Christian faith: Or to the beleevers who had beleeved thorow Gods gift, Ephes. 2, 8.

Chap. XIX.

Vers. 1. The upper-Coasts,] Namely of Asia, which is thus divided by Authors into high Coasts which are the Westerne Coasts, and low Coasts which are the Southerne. See 1 Mac. 3.32. and 6.1.

Ver. 2. Have yee received,] hath God endowed any of you with the miraculous gifts of his Spirit, to frame by their meanes some instruments for the ministery of the Gospell amongst you, and the gathering together, and governing of a Church? For without those gifts, it had beene impossible for a man to get so sodainely as it was needfull the knowledge wisdome and other qualities as were required. We have not so much,] it is likelie hee did more plainely expound unto them the meaning of the aforesaid words, and that thereupon they answered, that they did not know that any such gifts were conferred upon the Church. See Iohn 7.39. Acts 8.16. See the like manner of speaking, 1 Sam. 3.7.

V. 3. Vnto what,] What doctrine hath beene taught you, for the confirmation and seale of which yee have beene baptized, Vnto Iohns,] whether they had beene in Iudea in Iohns time, or whither Iohn Disciples were dispersed abroad, and so had learned them, with some slight instructions that the Messias was come. See Acts 18.25.

V. 4. Iohn verily,] if you be Iohns true Disciples, you ought likewise to bee, and in effect are, Christ Disciples also to whom Iohn alwayes directed and sent his owne Disciples.

Ver. 5. When they heard,] after Paul had largely instructed them touching the correspondency of Iohn with Christ, they formally were baptized in the name of Christ, for there was no inconvenience, to confirme Iohns extraordinary baptisme, with the ordinary and more expresse Baptisme of Christ: Seeing that God would have them who had received the old Seale of the covenant, namely Circumcision, to receave likewise the new one of baptisme.

Ver. 6. Prophesied,] by evident divine inspiration, they did propound and declare Gods mysteries. See 1 Cor. 11.4. and 14.1.

V. 8. The

V. 8. The Kingdome,] namely the Gospell by which God giveth to himselfe a new people, and reigneth in a new manner over it in the spirit of grace and power.

V. 9. Tyrannus,] it might be some Rethorician of his name, or some one that taught to reade Rethorick, or some Philosopher that taught a publike Schoole. And Paul made use of this occasion for to spread abroad Gods word after he had Converted (as it is likely) the Master himselfe.

V. 12. Handkerchifes,] which were certaine linnen cloths which they did weare upon their heads Iohn. 11. 44. Or Aprons,] certaine peeces of linnen cloath, or other stuffe, which women wore girded before them, and perdventure men also in those dayes to rubb and wipe their hands, and their faces, when they were sweaty or any way foule.

V. 13. Exorcists,] that is to say conjurers of Divills, whereof some Iewes made a trade, without any divine calling, only for gaine as that word going about signifieth, Mathew 12. 27. And it should seeme they proceeded therein by magick and superstition, and in this place they make use of the name of Iesus, as a new forme of conjuration, which succeeded but evill with them, and therefore this act cannot be judged to be like that of Saint Marke 9.38.

V. 18. Confessed,] That is to say acknowledg in the true God to be there present, they went with all humility to Paul his minister, with remorse of conscience, desiring helpe and consolation, witnessing their hatred and abomination of sinne as Mat. 3.6.

V. 19. Curious arts,] of South-saying, charmes, magick, which were things very common in Ephesus pence,] the Italian pence,] which as it is thought was a kinde of coine of about the same value as the denarius was which was the eight part, or as some imagine the 6 part of an ounce.

V. 21. Purposed,] that is to say determined with himselfe by the motion or revelation of the holy Ghost. Acts. 20.22.

V. 24. Silver shrines,] there were certaine models, or severall bigoesses, with the stamp of the famous temple of Diana of Ephesus, which were bought up by strangers that came to Ephesus for devotion, or remembrance.

V. 27. Craft,] the greeke, part that is to say our trade and worke-man-ship, which is our owne proper goods, as our revenewes.

V. 29. The Theater,] an ordinary place of concourse of people.

V. 31. The chiefe of Asia,] this name is sometimes attributed to certaine publike persons, which were sent from the cities of Asia minor, as procurators in publike businesses, for the Greekish cities in Asia: in Ephesus which was the chiefe of them sometimes also two certaine priests, which did oversee publike playes and sports which were shewn in publick theators in honour of ot the Gods, the first since seemeth to be most convenient for this place.

V. 33. Out of the multitude,] it is likely that the Ephesians were equally animated against the Iewes, and against the Christians, and that the ALEXANDER was brought in by the Iewes, to justifie their nation concerning any occasion of any hatred which might be conceived against them, and to lay all the blame upon the Christians Or that by reason the pagans did often confound the Christians and the Iewes, taking one for the other, this Alexander should shew them the great difference that was betweene them.

V. 35. A worshipper,] the faithfull and devoute Keeper and minister of the image, temple, and worship of Diana. The meaning is there is no danger that Ephesus should renounce it owne proper and tutelar goddesse to follow other dieties, as Demetrius would make yee believe, Which fell downe,] a fabulous conceipt, by reason of the excellent art which was in that statue, or by reason of the oldnesse and lastingnesse of it.

Acts 19.38. Deputies,] that is to say the proconsuls, officers and deputies, the proconsull being but one in chiefe.

CHAP. XX.

VERSE 5. Tarried for us,] namely for Paul and Luke who stayed behind with him.

V. 6. After the dayes,] namely the Seaven dayes of the Passeover, in which it is likely that Paul to give the Iewes no offence, refrained from trayling and rested, Sailed away] because Philippi was not a Sea towne, we must understand it thus, going from Philippi wee embarked our selves in the next harbour.

V. 7. The first,] which is Sunday, 1 Cor. 16.2. Revelations. 1.10. To breake,] namely to celebrate the sacrament of the holy supper, together with the meale of charity. See Acts. 2. 42. Now under this principall part which terminates and ends all the rest we must understand all those parts that went before, namely, prayers. preaching of the word, praises, &c.

V. 8. In the upper chamber,] this seemes to be inserted, to prevent the pagans ordinary slanders, concerning the christians nightly meeting.

V. 10. Fell on him,] signes of Pauls ardent and fervent affection, which put him forward to desire power of God to raise this dead man as 1. Kings. 17 21. 2. Kings. 4.34. His life,] the Italian, His soule] not but that he was dead indeed, but his meaning was he shall surely revive againe, as if he were not dead. Mat. 9. 24. A word shewing an assured faith grounded upon Christs expresse promise Mat.

10. 8. Or Saint Paul said this after that he was already revived, but it was not so presently knowne to them all, and therfore he spake it to appease the noise.

V. 11 Eaten,] namely in the communion feast called in Greeke Agapa, which in those dayes was made together with the holy supper see 1 Cor 11 20. Iude 12.

V. 15. We arrived,] we came neere the land bending our course towards Samos, and taking harbour at Trogillium a head land of the maine of Asia, over against Samos.

V. 16. To Saile by,] Without touching at Ephesus.

V. 17. Miletus,] a city of Asia lower then Ephesus, The Elders,] namely, the Pastors and conductors. v. 28

V. 19. By the lying in wait,] wherewith I have been nigh caught.

V. 21. Testifying,] Touching protesting, and charging them to be converted & beleeve in Christs Gospell.

V. 22. Bound,] that is to say obliged and forced in my conscience, by a strong and inevitable motion of Gods spirit, see Acts 21. 14. Not knowing] plainely and particularly.

V. 23. Witnesseth,] by the prediction of some persons which are inspired by him see Acts 21. 3. 10

V. 24. None of these,] namely evils and troubles of this life.

V. 26. I am pure,] that I have done what lay in me for your salvation, and if any one perisheth, it shall bee onely his fault. See Ezek. 3 18. 20 Acts 17. 6

V. 27. All the,] All that God hath appointed concerning the salvation of the world in Christ, which is perfectly declared in the Gospell. See Luke 7. 30. Ioh. 15. 15.

V. 28 Overseers,] the Italian, Bishops.] a greek word which signifieth, overseer, guardian, procurator, moderator, significations, which all put together, represent the duty of a true pastor of the Church, without any absolute domination, onely for the good and profit of the flock, Of God,] namely; of Christ, both true God, and true man. So that the blood of the humane nature, which he hath assumed in unity of person, may very well be called the bloud of God, being the blood of one who is true God. See Heb. 9. 14.

V. 29. Grievous,] the Italian, Ravening,] the greek terme, that is to say, cruell and harmefull, meaning false doctors, hereticks, Antichristian ministers, or perse cutors.

V. 31. Of three yeares,] though not compleat, as appeares by Acts 19. 10.

V. 32. I commend you,] I pray God to keep you in his holy protection and conduct, working in your hearts by his word, to the advancement of your faith and salvation.

V. 35. To support,] to have a care of them, taking away all matter of offence, and scandal and suspition, as they might have taken in those first beginnings, from the necessity of allowing meanes for their pastors, as if they preached onely for gaine See 1 Cor. 9. 18. and 2. Cor. 11. 12. though laying this candall aside, the thing in it self be just and necessary, It is more blessed,] this sentence is not found expressed in the gospel, peradventure it came to the knowledge of men by traditions.

Chap. XXI.

V. 4. Who said,] Namely, some which were Prophets among them, Through the,] by divine inspiration, they represented unto him the dangers which did hang over his head, and through humane affection and wisedome they dissuaded him from going thither, which the same spirit had revealed to Paul that he should doe, notwithstanding all dangers, Acts 20. 22.

V. 8. The Evangelist,] the name of an ecclesiastical office, appointed onely for a time, next under that of Apostles, who were the instruments of calling the Evangelists to God, and of their being endowed with singular gifts, and with an infallible conduct of the holy Ghost. But in such sort, that their doctrine was to have a relation to the Apostles doctrine, and bee examined thereby; and this ministery to be governed by their authority: to second them in their voyages, in writing and ordaining Churches in particular provinces, whereas the office of an Apostle was higher and more generall. See Ephes. 4. 11. 12. Tim. 4. 5. Tit. 1. 5. Of the seven.] namely of the first deacons appointed at Ierusalem. Acts 6. 5.

V. 9. Did prophecie,] namely, had the gift of foretelling future things by divine inspiration.

V. 13. What meane ye?] you cannot dissuade me from following Gods calling, and the motion of his spirit, I am wholly resolved to doe it, and you by the tenderneſſe of your affections, doe but onely afflict me in vaine.

V. 16. Lodge,] namely, in Ierusalem.

V. 18. The Elders,] namely, the company, or colledge of governours of the Church.

V. 20. Are all,] namely, the greatest part, Zealous,] they doe yet firmely hold the use of Mosaicall ceremonies, by a zeale not sufficiently enlightened in the knowledge of the disanulling of them in Christ, who by his death and resurrection hath accomplished the.

V. 21. To forsake,] an odious and false speech for Paul onely taught to make use of the liberty which Christ had gained, and to passe from the shadowes and figures of the law to the truth and substance of the Gospel. Gal. 5. 2. and to repose all trust and confidence in Christs perfect satisfaction, and all holinesse in the law of the spirit of life, and in new obedience. And as for the rest, either observing, or freely leaving the said ceremonies, as things indifferent in wisedom and charity. Acts 16. 3. and 18. 18. Gal. 2. 3.

V. 22.

V. 22. What is it?] The Church of Ierusalem foretolde by these sinister relations, will surely gather together knowing of thy comming, and therefore that there may no scandall arise, take away the prejudice opinion which they have of thee.

V. 23. We have,] namely there be amongst the brethren of this Church, which have,] See Acts 18. 18. of such kinds of vowes. It is likely that they had in this also some religious intention. But Paul desired nothing by his free and harmelesse condescending to these things, but onely to gaine the weak, and advance the gospell.

V. 24. Them take.] the meaning is, thou hadst made the same vow at Cenchrea. Acts 18. 18. Now thou art in Ierusalem seeme to performe it in the Temple by the offering of sacrifices, before which prepare thy selfe by external purifications, as by abstaining from wine, shaving thy beard, which things were used in such cases by tradition, for some resemblance to the Nazarite-ship, Num. 6. 13. 14. Be at charges,] in the publike having of oblations and other offerings, with them,] offer have it for them, as if they being peradventure poore people, could not be at the charge of accomplishing their vow, And all may,] that by this act it might publikely appeare that thou art no deadly enemy nor contemner of Mosaick ceremonies, as the Iewes lay to thy charge.

V. 26. To signifie,] making it openly knowne in the Temple that such a day hee would offer his sacrifice, that this cry might free him from the common scandall.

V. 27 The seaven,] appointed by tradition without any law, but yet to the resemblance of Nazarite-ship. Numb. 6. 9.

V. 28. Into the,] namely, beyond the court of the Gentiles, which was not lawfull.

V. 31. The chiefe Captaine,] called by the Romanes a Tribune, who was as a Collonell with many Centurions under him, Of the band,] of the Romane garrison, in the rocke called Antonia, neere the Temple.

Chap. XXII.

Ver. 1. Brethren,] See Acts 7. 2.

V. 3. At the feet,] as his hearer and diligent disciple. See Deut. 33. 3. Luke 10. 39.

V. 4 This way,] or religion, Acts 9. 2. and 18 26.

V. 5 Unto the brethren,] namely, to the Iewish Synagogue at Damascus, To be punished.] not with capitall punishment, but to be scourged with rodds, which was a punishment the Romanes suffered the Iewes to inflict in their Synagogues. Matth. 10. 17. and 23. 34. Acts 26. 11. 2. Cor. 11. 24.

V. 9. They heard not.] See upon Acts 9. 7.

V. 11. The glory,] namely the divine and supernaturall splendor.

V. 12. According to,] this is added to distinguish a native Iew a devout man, such a one as Ananias was from the proselyte Gentiles oftentimes called religious, or devout men.

V. 14. And see,] By this passage, and by 1. Cor. 9. 1. and 15. 8. it is cleare that the Lord appeared to Paul in some manner, either by some supernaturall faculty given him, to penetrate into the heavens, or by some created image or representation, as Acts 7. 55.

V. 15. Seene,] not onely in the precedent apparition, but especially in the vision described, 2. Cor. 12. 2. See upon Acts 9. 9.

V. 16. Wash away,] the holy Ghost ratifying thine externall baptisme by the inward application of the blood and satisfaction of Christ, for the purification of thy soule before God, and for regeneration to newnesse of life. Calling on,] that is to say, by meanes of calling upon God in faith, to obtain from him his effectuall cooperation in the Sacrament.

V. 18. Saw him,] the same as had appeared unto me the first time.

V. 19. They know,] the meaning is, this sodaine and miraculous conversion, likely will induce them to acknowledge that it is thy work.

V. 20. Thy Martir,] a greeke word signifying witnesse, and hath bin particularly applyed to those, who by punishments or violent death, did beare witnesse of the truth of the Gospel.

V. 23. Cast off,] a tumultuous act, as preparing themselves to come to violence, Threw dust,] with stamping and violent stirring up and downe.

V. 24. By scourging,] it was a kinde of Roman torture or racke upon which they were laid bound with strong cords, and then scourged with leather lashes, untill they confessed the fact.

V. 25. A Roman,] having the priviledge of being a Roman Citizen: for Tarsus where Paul was borne was a Colonie, and such Cities had ordinarily that priviledge.

V. 30. Downe,] namely from the rock, See Acts 23. 10.

Chap. XXIII.

Ver. 1. I Have lived,] or I have served God according to my charge.

V. 2. The high,] this Ananias is not numbred amongst the High Priests by Iosephus a Iewish Historian, and it is likely by that which is written, v. 5. that it was some surrogate or that hee was brought in by some sinister practices and corruptions, according to the disorders of that time.

V. 3. Whited wall,] false hypocrite in thy fained zeale under which thou hidest the corruption of thine unjustice and cruelty. See Ezek. 13. 10. Matth. 23. 27.

V. 5. I wist not,] as much as to say, all men know well enough that hee is no lawfull High Priest, and therefore may be reprehended for his faults without violating Gods command.

V. 6. Sadduces,] Set upon Acts 4. 1. and 5. 17. I say,] he speakes thus, not to insinuate with the Pharisees or to approve of their doctrine in all points: but to cellargue these false judges in their persecution who seeming to be very zealous for Iudaisme against him, did tolerate the Sadduces heresie, and did them the honour to sit in their consistory: and also to divide them, causing their inward partialities and hatreds to burst forth; and that not so much for the securing of his owne person, as for the Gospells advantage, which was suppressed by this conspiracy. Of the hope,] for the Christian doctrine, by which only the hope of eternall happines in body and soule contrary to the Sadducee doctrine, Matth. 22. 32.) is firmely establisshed by Christs Resurrection.

V. 8. Neither Angell, seeing the Sadducees admitted of Scripture, which speakes directly of Angels, it is likely they did not absolutely deny but that there were Angels: but they did not beleeve they were subsisting and immortall natures, but transitory apparitions created by God to signifie his will to men. Or some divine action and motion to produce some speciall and notable effect. And the same judgment they gave of the soule of man. See upon, Matth 22. 23.

V. 9. The Scribes,] that is to say the doctors, Mar. 2. 4. A spirit,] this word is of a larger signification then the word Angell which followeth after. For it may bee applyed to the Spirit of God speaking to Prophets by internall revelations, or to some spirit or soule of some deceased person, according to the stroue of those times, See upon Acts 12. 15.

V. 10. Out down, out of the Rotte, which was higher then the place where they held their consistory, Acts 22. 30.

V. 11. Stood by him, in a vision.

V. 21. Doe not thou yeeld,] the Italian, Doe not beleeve them,] or do not give consent unto them, or doe not let them perswade thee. Looking for,] or to see what answer thou wilt give them.

V. 23. Speare men,] the Italian Saiettes,] they might be some of the Governours guard or Officers belonging to the Court of Iustice for securing of the high wayes or otherwise.

Chap. XXIV.

Vers. 1. Descended,] to Cesarea.

V. 5. Nazarens,] the name which the Iewes in those dayes gave the Christians, as in contempt; they had likewise named Iesus a Nazarite from the Citie of Nazareth: And afterwards was spetially attributed by the antient Church to Iudaizing Christians.

V. 6. Have iudged,] namely to know the qualitie of his crime: which was by the Romans granted to the Iewes, but not to proceed to publike sentence and much lesse to execution.

V. 8. His accusers,] Namely Paul.

V. 10. Of many yeeres,] wherefore by experience thou knowest their manner of proceeding, and canst not easily bee deceived nor forestalled by their false allegations.

V. 11. There are yet,] and therefore there is no likely-hood that in so short a time, I could make so many tumults and innovations in Ierusalem, as they doe impute unto me.

V. 15. That there shall,] this Article is specified not only to wound the Iewes connivence in allowing of the Sadducees, and persecuting of Paul. See upon Acts 23. 6. but also to shew that his aymes in all his life time, was but to attaine unto the blessed Resurrection, Phil. 3. 11. and therefore aimed to lead his life in all righteousnesse and innocency.

V. 23. Let him have libertie,] to bee kept out of straight prison or hard bonds, and only weare a little chaine about his wrist, according to the Romans stroue in their freest kind of prisons.

Ver. 25. Of righteousnesse,] peradventure hee made choice of these heads belonging to the ordinary course of life, and of which Felix his understanding was capable; as well to not prophane the highest mysteries: as to wound Felix his Conscience, by laying the judgement to come, before him, who was publikely stained with vices contrary to these vertues.

Chap. XXV.

Vers. 11. I appeale,] it was not rightly an appeale, seeing there was yet no judgement given: but a declining from a judge who was notoriously forestalled and pre-occupated, and therefore refusable. Or a having recourse to the Soveraigne protection against a manifest violence.

V. 13. Agrippa,] the son of Herod Agrippa, Ac. 12. 1. Bernice,] Sister to this Agrippa, with whom she lived very familiarly, suspected and publikely infamous for incest.

V. 21. Augustus,] Namely the Roman Emperour which then was Nero, for in memory of the two first Emperours Cæsar and Augustus, all their successors bore these two names.

Chap. XXVI.

Vers. 1. Stretched forth,] a gesture of such as begin to speake in a publicke way. See Pro 1. 24. Isa. 65. 2.

V. 2. I thinke my selfe,] for being a Iew, and having knowledge in the Law and Scriptures, thou wilt not disdaine to iudge of these things: and also because by the grounds I shall be able to prove these things unto thee.

V. 6. Of the promise,] concerning the Messias, and his benefits, and his kingdome.

V. 7.

V. 7. Over two l e,] namely the remnant of the ten: whereof the body was carried into captivity, 2 King. 17. 6. and the three other whole ones of Iudah, Benjamin, and Levi. See Bez. & 17. and 8. 35. Scripture,] according to the discipline of the Law, which was a sufficient guide to Christ, holding their minds full bent to him.

V. 8. Shewed unto,] he toucheth the chiefe point of the Iewes incredulity, namely that Christ was risen againe. Whereof followed the rejection of his person and the remainder of his doctrine.

V. 9. Gathering to themselves,] contrary to his doctrine profession, glory, and authority.

Verse 17. From the people,] Namely from the Iewes.

V. 18. Inheritance,] namely part in the heavenly inheritance, with my faithfull, regenerated by my spirit. Ephes. 1. 11. Col. 1 12.

V. 23. The first,] namely the head of the Church, who being dead for it, is also risen againe first, to give it spirituall and everlasting life. Light,] namely the Gospell, which as it were a light of the new world, and the new life, into which are re-established all Gods children, by vertue of Christs Resurrection. Unto the people,] namely to the Iewes.

V. 26. Knoweth,] being a Iew, and having alwayes dwelt in Iudea, he may know that which is notorious to all men, concerning Christ, his life, and his death, and the proofe of his Resurrection, and likewise how all these things had beene foretold by the Prophets.

V. 27. That thou believest, that thou art perswaded of the truth of their doctrine, and givest full assent unto it.

V. 29. Except these bonds,] according to the custome of the Romans to fasten a little chaine to the prisoners right wrist: the Souldier who was his keeper having the other end made fast to his left arme, Act 28. 20. 2 Tim. 1. 16.

Chap. XXVII.

Ver. 1. Band,] or Roman cohort, which had every one their name, in the legion whereof it was the tenth part. See Acts 10 1.

Ver. 2. Adramyttium,] which was a Citie and Haven in the Mysian Sea.

V. 7. Salmone,] which was the Easterne head of Crete: called by the Authors Salmonian or Samonian.

Ver. 8. Fair Havens,] a place upon the Sea Coast of Crete which yet keepes its ancient name. Lasea,] this name is not mentioned in any Authors.

Ver. 9. The fast,] namely the Iewes anniversary which fell on the tenth day of the seaventh month Lev. 23. 27.

V. 12. Southwest.] it was a gulfe which lay open to those two windes, whereof the one blew in there, and the other backe it.

V. 16. Clauda,] a little Iland belonging to the Cretans, now called Gauda, or Canda. To come by,] namely to draw it up into the Ship, for feare least the waves should breake it.

V. 17. Ungirding,] with strong ropes or cables, for feare least it should split.

V. 24. Hath given thee,] for thy sake, he will save them all with thee.

V. 26. We must,] we cannot avoyd it.

V. 30. Cast Ancres,] carrying them a good way into the Sea in the boat.

V. 31. Except these,] not that Gods will or power, or effect of his promises doe depend upon second causes, but because he who hath determined the end, hath also appointed the meanes. And will not have, man rashly tempting him, disjoyne that which hee hath joyned together by a bond of inseparable consequence.

Verse. 33. Fasting,] without making any set meale.

Ver. 34. This is,] God shall deliver you from this Sea danger. But you must take heed that you do not dye, or weaken your selves with hunger, seeing God gives you the meanes to prevent it, that you may on your part endeavour as much as in you lyeth to escape, expecting the rest from God. Fall from,] a proverbiall terme, as, 1 Kings 1. 52. Matth. 10. 30. Luke 21. 18.

V. 35. Gave thanks,] See upon Matth. 15. 36. 1 Tim 4. 4.

Ver. 40. Rudder,] which were two great Oares hanging on each side of the poope. And it is likely that when they let downe their sailes, and let the ship drive at Sea, they tooke away and made fast the rudders; which now being willing to runne the Ship on shoare they untie to keepe it upright.

V. 41. A place,] some shelfe which was separate from firme land.

The Epistle of Saint Paul the Apostle to the Romans.

Argument.

AS under the Old Testament the H. Ghost moved his Prophets, to set down in writing the summaries of their Sermons, to endure for ever in the Church, not only for instruction, but also for a certaine and immoveable rule of heavenly truth. So did he the like in the New, inspiring his Apostles to write the same doctrine as they had in speech uttered in their life time. And Gods most wise and free providence, hath to this end chosen the formes of Epistles, as most befitting the simplicitie of the manner of teaching, which Christ used; and most apt to joyne the doctrine to the uses of practice in all the parts of a Christian life. And the said Epistles written or subscribed with the Apostles hands, and well verified, were with great reverence reserved and kept in the Churches to which they were written, and were from time to time read and expounded in publike assemblies, and were also communicated to other Churches for the generall edification of them all. And Saint John who out lived all the other Apostles, gathered them together, and added them to the body of the New Testament, setting upon them the Seale of Apostolicall authoritie, as Esdras had done to the bookes of the Old Testament. Now although these Epistles were written upon particular occasions, yet the divine providence directed the Apostles to comprehend in them the necessary explication of all the chiefe heads of Christian doctrine. And Saint Paul who had in speaking laboured more than any one else, hath likewise written more: and more largely and highly unfold all the mysteries of salvation, the duties of Gods spirituall service, and the rules of lawfull governement and discipline of the Church intermixing also excellent Revelations of things to come, which God had manifested unto him. Amongst other Epistles of this great vessell of election, that to the Romans holds the first degree in all kindes: being he doth in a most exquisite order lay open therein each severall part of Christs benefit, and the the duties of enterchangeable acknowledgement and ſervice to which all beleevers are bound. The Romans to whom he writes, were ſuch beleevers amongſt the Gentiles as were aſſem'bled in Rome, where the Goſpell had firſt carried even before the Apoſtles comming thither. And as the Apoſtleſhip of the Gentiles was fallen to his lot ſo did he perform this great duty towards it (after he had for a long time cauſed it to ſhine with inc mparable gifts of Gods grace) to inſtruct and diſcipline with this divine Epiſtle, which may very well be called the great ſea of Chriſt an doctrine. And in it, after he had in the beginning ſet downe his vocation and deſire to contribute to the advancement of the faith of thoſe who beleeved in Rome, he ſheweth that the Goſpell receaved by faith is the only, and moſt powerfull meanes, to obtaine true righteouſneſſe before God, and by the meanes of it, life: Seeing that all men by ſin are ſubject to Gods wrath and curſe: the Gentiles being condemned by the Law of nature imprinted in their hearts, and the Jewes much more by Moſes his Law: Which yeeldeth no man any prerogative to righteouſneſſe, but doth rather aggrevate their judgments, who having the knowledge of it, are not correſpondent thereunto by an entire obedience. And therefore he concludes that all men to ſhun their condemnation, are bound to ſeeke without themſelves that righteouſneſſe which is wanting in them, and have a recourſe to Chriſt in whom this treaſure is laid up, to the remiſſion of ſins, and full juſtification of ſinners. And that as God preſents this righteouſneſſe out of his meere grace, and to all Nations indifferently, ſo the onely meanes to receave it is lively faith: Without any neceſſitie or uſe of circumciſion or other ceremonies of the Law, or any interceſſion of mans owne works as he ſheweth by the example of Abraham, the Father of all beleevers, and generall patterne of faith. Then he goeth on to declare the effects of faith, and of Gods fatherly love in Chriſt, which are peace and quiet of conſcience towards God, ſecurenes, joy, and ſpirituall reioycing in tribulations and aſſured hope of everlaſting glory. And concludes this part, by ſhewing the foundation and ground, of this communication of Chriſt to his beleevers; which is Gods order, who hath eſtabliſhed Chriſt to be the head and ſtocke of his Church; that from him may derive into her the vertue of his righteouſneſſe and juſtification, everlaſting life and happineſſe, as Adam was the naturall head of all men, whereby he incloſed and infolded them all in his ſin, and conſequently into his death and condemnation. Then he commeth to the ſubſequent, and inſeperable bleſſing of ſanctification, brought forth in beleevers by the holy Ghoſt, to the reſemblance of Chriſt their head, by vertue of which the beleever doth not any more fight againſt the law of God, and againe the law is not an inſtigation to ſinne for him, to incenſe and harden him therein, but a loving and friendly guide and rule of holineſſe; to which he willingly and peaceably doth frame and co-order his will and actions, though ſtill with much weakenes and repugnancy of fleſh which God leaveth in thoſe that are his, for a continuall exerciſe, and ſpurr to their ſides, to cauſe them to ſigh after their perfect deliverance and freedome in the heavenly life. And therefore he comforteth them, by telling them that theſe firſt fruits of the holy Ghoſt, and his motions, and ſtrivings, are unto them a ſure earneſt of Gods love, and of their adoption juſtification and future glory, which they at the preſent doe taſte but onely in faith and hope: but yet is infallible being grounded upon Gods everlaſting decree, and immutable election. Whereupon alſo there groweth in them a ſtrong confidence againſt all the aſſaults of the Devill, and the World, either internall or externall. And afterwards becauſe that the grace of the Goſpell had beene promiſed to the Jewes Eldeſt ſonnes of the Family, and naturall heires of the covenant and promiſes, and yet they for the greateſt part did reject it: hee wipes of this ſcandall, ſhewing how that Gods promiſes were nevertheleſſe firme towards them, to whom they were deſtined by him at the firſt in his ſecret counſell namely to all true Iſraelites in ſpirit, created and framed by him to be his true people.

And

And that therein appeared Gods Soveraigne power to be adored with all humilitie, in chusing from everlasting, and saving in his due time those which were acceptable unto him, from amongst the whole masse of humane generation, which was corrupted and lost in Adam. Leaving the rest to the rigour of his justice against their sinne, brought up to a fulnesse in many by a voluntary and obstinate refusall of the remedy of his grace. Whereby the one have no reason to complaine of Gods justice, nor the others to extoll themselves thorow pride: Seeing that lying in the same perdition, they are delivered out of it, thorow meere mercy. And therefore he exhorteth the Gentiles who are called in stead of the Iewes, to a deepe humilitie perseverance and holy use of Gods grace: And on the other side he comforteth the Iewes because that even from that time, God verified his promises towards many of them called and converted to the faith: and would at his appointed time, restore and bring againe the whole body of the Nation together with the Gentiles into the possession of his covenant. Then he goeth on to exhort to Christian duties, as well towards God as in themselves, and towards other men, brethren, or enemies, Princes and Magistrates, weake members of the Church in knowledge and faith especially concerning the use of Mosaicall ceremonies, concerning which there were great contentions and scandalls in the Church in those dayes. And in conclusion he recommends them to the grace of God and himself to their prayers.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 3. Which was made,] namely in his humane nature which is a meere creature, and was assumed by the sonne of God in unity of person, see Ioh 1. 14. Gal. 4.4.

V. 4. declared,] as by a solemne and soveraigne sentence, Psalm. 2. 7. to be the true sonne of God, against all false judgments, calumnies, contradictions and doubts of the world, Luke, 1. 35. 1 Tim. 3. 16. According to,] namely according to his divine nature (called Spirit. 1. Tim. 3. 16. Heb. 9. 14. 1. Pet. 3. 18.) which was before covered under the infirmity of the flesh, but in his resurrection and after it, manifested and shewed in power of divine glorie, by effects which we are in altogither to bee admired.

V. 5. Grace,] namely this singular gift of beeing his Apostle. Or the guifts necessarie for so eminent an office, for obedience to cause the Gentiles to Submite unto; and receive the Gospell by faith, thorow which Gospell Christ raigneth over men; all nations,] namely the heathen ones whose Apostle especially Saint Paul was. acts. 9. 15. V. 6. Called,] manifest ye are partakers of his covenant, and members of his Church, by his word directed to us, and made effectuall by his spirit.

V. 8 Through Jesus Christ,] who is the means of this great good, for which I give thankes, and in whose name all prayers ought to be presented to God if we mened to have them heard and all our thanksgiving if wee mean they shall be acceptable to him, for whole] amongst the church Scattered overall the world

V. 9. With my spirit,] the Italian, in my spirit,] namely in my soul which is as it were the spirituall truth in which God is served by believers, Or with my spirit, that is to say, with mine heart and intire affection.

V. 13. That I might have,] that I might use my ministerie to bring forth fruit amongst you to the advancement of Christs glorie, and the salvation of his Church.

V. 14. Debtour,] namely bound by mine office of Apostle to procure the salvation of all men, and to communicate unto them the talent which for that purpose I have received of God to the uttermost of my power, without any destinction of nations or conditions.

V. 16. The power,] namely the only most effectuall means to save man, so he have faith in Christ, who is therein proposed: whereas man in his owne nature was not sufficient thereunto Rom. 5. 6. and the law of God, it self was weak through the flesh. Rom. 8. 3. to the Iew,] to which nation the Gospell was first to be preached. See acts. 13. 46. to the Greek,] under this name are comprehended all the Gentiles, whereof the greatest part, and neerest and best knowne to the Iews were native Greekes and spake the Greek tongue.

V. 17. For therein is the,] he proves that by the Gospell man obtaines life and salvation: namly because becauſe it preſents unto him the onely meanes, and cauſe of life, namely, the true righteouſneſſe which is Chriſt, imputed to man through grace, and imbraced by him by a lively faith: whereunto Habakuks ſaying hathe relation, who attributing the meanes of obtaining and profeſſing a ſpirituall life unto faith, doth conſequently alſo attribute unto it the meanes of obtaining righteouſneſſe, which is the onely cauſe of the ſaid life. Gal. 3. 26. So that faith vivifieth in ſo much as it juſtifieth. Now this righteouſneſſe is called Godsrighteouſneſſe, becauſe he is the ſupreame Author of it, having appointed his ſonne who was true God, for to fulfill and acquire it, and that hee out of his meere grace beſtoweth it upon his elect, and accepts of it for their abſolution, and that it alone can ſubſiſt before his judgement. Dan. 9. 24. and finally becauſe it is the accompliſhment of all his promiſes Godsrighteouſneſſe being oftentimes taken for his loyalty and mercy. Rom. 3. 26. From faith,] that is to ſay, more and more according as the faith increaſeth and groweth ſtrong, ſo it doth more and more enjoy the benefit of this righteouſneſſe. Or the revelation of his righteouſneſſe is receaved by a conſtant act of faith, which never ought to ceaſe, until it be come, to its fulneſſe and accompliſhment in the life everlaſting.

V. 18. For the] he proves that men have need of this imputed righteouſneſſe, for to bee ſaved, becauſe that of themſelves they are all unrighteous: as it appeareth by Gods evident judgements upon all mankinde. From Heaven,] as from the throne of his juſtice. Seeing the effects thereof can no way have a relation to inferior cauſes, or evidently as comming down from heaven. Ungodlines and unrighteouſneſſe,] theſe are the two kinds of ſin wherof the one is againſt the firſt Table of the Law and the other againſt the ſecond. Who hold,] as being in bondage to their owne perverſitie and malice by which they hinder the truth from having dominion over their actions. The truth,] namely all that light, knowledge of God and of his nature, judgment, and will as hath remained in them after ſinne, ver. 25. See Rom. 2. 8.

Ver. 19. Becauſe,] hee proveth that there is yet truth, that is to ſay knowledge of God in man after ſinne. May be,] namely by the naturall light of humane underſtanding, without the ſupernaturall illumination of the Holy Ghoſt. Is manifeſt,] is evident enough, or plainely knowne. Hath ſhewed it,] miniſtring into the ſoule thoſe naturall lights, and originall knowledge, which are not acquired, but borne with man, Joh. 1. 5, 9.

V. 20. For the,] he ſet downe what things apperteining to God may be knowne, and how they may bee ſo. As for the firſt, they are not his grace and his other gifts of the Goſpell but onely his Godhead, or nature, in it ſelfe ſpirituall eternall infinite, and his power, and other vertues, by which hee operates in the order of nature. As for the ſecond, it is not by revelation of his word, nor much leſſe of his ſpirit, but by his workes: that is to ſay by a diſcourſe which man makes, and a conſequence which he draweth from the creature to the creator, that he is the Author of them all, and that he hath all the good of them in eminencie; not being in them as a part, nor being defiled with their imperfections or vices. From the Creation,] whereby he ſheweth, that this gift of naturall light is generall to all men, being in them by meanes of the generall creation, and not thorow any ſpeciall grace: and beſides, that it remained in man after ſin. Are clearely ſeene,] that is to ſay they are cleare and evident, if man will make uſe of that gift of light and underſtanding. So that they.] This light is not ſufficient to ſalvation, but God hath left in man, that if hee through negligence doe not make uſe of it, or through perverſeneſſe withſtand and violate it, he may be juſtly condemned.

V. 21. When they knew,] namely in the aforeſaid manner. Became vaine,] they have loſt all manner of true conceipt, ſoundneſſe of judgement, and true ayme, forſaking the guide of that light, eſpecially in matters concerning Gods ſervice and true Religion. Fooliſh,] having rejected this light, inſtead of it there came in a thicke darkneſſe, of falſe opinions blind imitations, popular and inveterate errors, of abſolute wills, and ſtraying underſtandings, which are the true beginnings of the introduction and maintaining of Idolatry.

V. 22. Profeſſing themſelves,] though they were puffed up with the conceipt of great worldly wiſedome yet they were really fooles, and men of no underſtanding.

Ver. 23. And changed,] they have at their pleaſures repreſented that glorious God, under baſe and unworthy ſhapes of creatures, attributing unto them divine worſhip and honour. Now the ſinne of Idolatry is here mentioned as common to all Nations.

V. 24. Wherefore,] he goeth on in ſhewing how the ſecond Table hath bin broken by an overflowing of vices, to which God hath given over mankind, to puniſh them for the abuſe of his ſervice. Gave them up,] as they have diſhonoured God by Idolatry, ſo God hath laden them with ignominy, leaving them in the power of the uncleane ſpirit, to drive them onto all manner of filthines. See Pſa. 81. 12. Act. 7. 42. Now he toucheth thoſe grievous ſins of abominable luſt, as being common amongſt the Heathens, and eſpecially amongſt the Greekes, and the Romans, who in outward appearance, had more knowledge and civilitie then other Nations, and yet were drouned in Idolatry, and ſuch kindes of wickedneſſe.

Ver. 25. The truth,] that true light, and naturall knowledge, though it were unperfect and had not any saving power, verse 18. Romans 2. 8. Into a lye,] namely into false opinions, and voluntarie errors.

Ver. 27. Error,] namely of their straying from Gods true worship.

V. 28 To retaine God in,] by pure worship and other religious acts. To a reprobate,] namely to a rage of a straying judgement and an unbridled desire and will to doe evill, as their will is whom God hath quite given over to the evill spirit.

V. 30. Backbiters,] or secret detractors, or talebearers.

V. 32. The Judgement,] Namely his Law according to which hee judgeth man which is partly knowne by naturall understanding, and apprehended the conscience, which are the two parts that have remained most entire in man, since sin. Have pleasure,] that is to say, they approve of them and praise them, Psalme 10. 3. and 49, 18. which is the very fulnesse of sinne, and a malice like unto the Devils malice, who takes a pleasure in sin, as it is sinne, and draweth others unto it: without the baite of a false seeming, goodnesse, and pleasure of the sence, which transporteth, and blindeth man in his owne sinnes.

Chap. II.

Ver. 1. Therefore,] this wickednesse of mankind is universall, and therefore though there be many who are outwardly wise and vertuous, and reprove others: and many Magistrates, and Law-givers, that punish misdeeds; yet they all have the seeds of the same vices in themselves, which do oftentimes breake forth: whereby all their wisdome and righteousnesse serveth for nothing but onely to condemne them, and have as much need as any of the rest, to flie unto the only righteousnesse of the Gospell, seeing their owne righteousnesse, is but a maske, and false outward shew. Doest the same,] though peradventure not so violently nor openly, but more staidly and circumspectly.

V. 2. According to truth,] without any respect of that externall lustre of professing a laudable life, but severely examining the heart, and the workes which proceed from thence.

V. 4. Despisest thou,] that is to say, art thou careless of employing them to their right use, which is to give thee time of repentance? but doest thou contrariwise prophane them, making them an occasion of confirming thee in evill? as if thou shouldest never bee punished because thou art so long forborne. Now being the Apostle, speaketh also of men who are under the Law of nature, and have no light of Gods Word, nor no vertue of the regenerating spirit, without which there can bee no true nor living conversion to God. Wee must imagine this repentance to be spoken only of the disciplinarie repentance, and externall cessation from the most grievous sinnes; and of the change of vicious acts and customes, into such as are morally honest and laudable.

V. 5. wrath,] punishment, which shall bee fully powred out at the last judgment.

Ver. 7. patient continuance,] with an equall and constant tenure of righteousnesse and holinesse according to Gods Commandement, Deut. 27. 26. Which is spoken to taxe those wise and righteous worldly men, who oftentimes runne out into great wickednesse. Now the Apostles intent is not to say that everlasting glory may be obtained by workes after sin, for none doth so persevere in obedience, and therefore they are all under the curse, Gal. 3. 10. but hee would only set downe, what the covenant of the Law is, when it is observed or broken.

V. 8. Contentious,] Kicking, and striving against Gods Iustice, Hosea 4. 4. especially by objecting and alleadging of their own righteousnesse and externall discipline, which is the propertie of hypocrites, of whom the Apostle particularly speakes. The truth,] Namely the knowledge and light, of some morall good imprinted in their soule. See Rom. 1. 18, 25.

Ver. 9. Of the Jew,] without any distinction of nations or persons: but yet in such sort that Gods Iudgement shall begin with his owne household: and that those who have had most knowledge, shall bee most grievously punished. Now the Apostle makes here a sweet digression to the Iewes, to include them also in the universall condemnation of the world, and into the necessitie, of having recourse to Christs righteousnesse, and to Gods grace in the Gospell. The Gentiles,] the Italian, The Gentile,] namely the heathen, Rom. 1. 14, 16.

V. 11. Of persons,] namely to the outward qualities, of Nation, condition or otherwise which make nothing to the cause.

V. 12 without Law,] namely which was written by Moses. Without,] namely without being iudged by Moses his Law, but onely by the inward Law which is imprinted in their hearts.

Verse 13. For not,] as much as to say I speake thus, because that the Law can not bring any salvation to man, by the knowledge or profession thereof as the Iewes beleeve, but by the perfect observing of it, which being performed by them, more than by other Nations, they are also comprehended in the generall curse, and bound to seeke after Christs Righteousnesse. Justified,] that is to say declared iust and worthy of the reward according to the covenant of the Law.

V. 14. For when,] the knowledge of Moses his Law law gives the Iew no great advantage above the Gentiles, for the Gentile hath also his naturall law (though lesse perfect) imprinted in his soule, by which he is instructed, and bound to doe well, and debarred from doing evill, which are the two properties of all lawes.

V. 15. The worke,] namely the two aforesaid properties, bearing witnesse,] for the conscienee is but an answering of a mans spirit unto the law either to bind or unbind him to accuse him or excuse him, to condemne or absolue him, wherefore seeing the pagans have a conscience, they have also a law.

V. 16. In the day it seemes this ought to be added to the 12th verse. the secrets,] he saith this because v. 12. he had spoken of the false Iewes, who hid their wickednesse under the cloake of professing the Law, by Jesus,] to whom God hath given all iudgment. Iohn. 5. 22. Act. 17. 31. according to,] as it is revealed in the Gospell whereof I am a minister.

V. 17. Behold,] hee now falls fully a convincing the Iewes, restest,] thou art confident and groundest the estat of thy conscience before God upon that thou hast his law, and makest profession of serving him according to it. See. Isa. 48. 2. Mic. 3. 11. makest thy boast] thou boastest thou art his people, and that thou art comprehended in his covenant.

V. 18. And approvest the things that are more excellent,] the Italian, and discernest contrarie things,] that is to say canst iudge of what is allowed, and of what is forbiden. Other discernes what is best namely that which in the deliberation of thine understanding thou oughtest to follow as the true good: in stead of the false good which carnall reason or sence presents unto thee.

V. 20. The former of,] namely the perfect modell, not onely of what is concerning Gods true service in it self, but also concerning what thou thinkest and iudgest thereof within thy self.

V. 21. Thou therefore,] the Apostle speakes thus, verily supposing that there was not Iew but was stained with some of these vices or with all of them.

V. 24. For the name,] that is to say, these reproofes wherewith the prophets reprove the Iewes, shew this which I lay to their charge to be true enough.

V. 25. For circumcision,] that is to say O thou Iew, I make therein the number of all other men in sinne and condemnation, not withstanding all the signes thou beareſt of Gods covenant. for seeing thou apprehendest no other covenant but that of workes; I tell thee these signs would be avail able unto thee if thou diddest perfectly observe the covenant: which thou not doing thou art in the sight of God like and vncircumcised and a heathen.

V. 26. Therefore if the,] to shew him unprofitable and vaine without the effects of obedience these signes are. Let us put the case (saith the Apostle) that there were on the one side an uncircumcised heathen, who should observe the law in itd substance and on the other side a Iew that shoul break it, beeing circumcised; who can make any question but that before God the heathen should be accepted and the Iew reproved? And this is spoken by way of supposition, and not for a truth nor absolutly, as if anyheathen could perform that which is here spoken.

V. 27. And shall not,] that is to say such an uncircumcised heathen, working according to his naturall motions, observing the law in this kind would shew how much more thou Iew art to be condemned, who hast received greater gifts and helps at Gods hands for to serve him. See Matth. 12. 4. the letter,] namelie Moses his written law, which represents Gods will more cleerlie and faithfullie, then that light, much obscured and darkned by sinne, which is in man.

V. 28. For he,] that which I say is grounded upon this that before God outward signes and names are of no value, but the inward reality of the heart only. Rom. 9. 6. Gal. 6. 16.

V. 29. Inwardly,] namely in the inward part of his soule which is knowne to God alone, of the heart,] namely the spirituall purification of the soul wherein consisted the true substance of the circumcision of the bodie, in the letter,] namely in the externall signe or cerimonie, like unto a writing or a picture without any vertue life or motion. See, Rom 7. 6. 2. Cor. 3. 6. 7.

Chap. III.

Ver. 1. What advantage,] seeing that he is liable to malediction as much as the Gentile or rather more. what profit,] if so be it be of no efficacie, if it want the perfect observance of the covenant of the law, whereof it is the sacred signe.

V. 2. Chiefly because,] the Iewes anciently received Gods promises in Christ whereof circumcision was the seale according to Gods true order. Rom. 4 11. though the degenerate Iewes did understand it so otherwise. See upon. Rom. 2. 25. whereby that which they had not of them selves, was offered unto them through grace, to be receaued by faith from the promised Messias were committed] like unto a deposited thing, and a precious pawne, which they haue kept for the whole church, untill the accomplishment thereof.

V. 3 For what if,] if it be said that this advantage hath been lost, by the inequalitey of a gret part of the nation. I answere that Gods loyaltie in his promisers and covenant hath alwayes bin verified in his elect, in respect of whom it was made. Notwithstanding their defects, which God through his grace hath alwayes overcome: and therefore his glorie hath been so much the more exalted.

V. 4. Let God be,] let him be acknowledged, and worshipped for such a one.

V. 5 But if our,] an objection put in, upon occasion of what he had said, that the incredulitie of man, serves to illustrate the glory of Gods truth; wherefore then doth hee punish that incredulitie. As a man,] according to humane sence and the judgment of the flesh.

V. 6. For then how,] how is it possible, that any unjustice should bee in God, who is the Soveraigne Lord and judge of the world: whose will is the absolute rule of justice.

Ver. 7. For if,] a continuation of the precedent objection, My lie,] that is to say my disloyaltie. More abunded,] that is to say hath shewed it selfe firme and constant above all ordinary measure of bond or tye in contracts or covenants, as which the breach of one party, freeth the other.

V. 8. And not rather,] the Apostle answereth the foresaid objection in wrath: as saying, if this might take place, those profane scorners, might altogether burst out into their extreame impudencie: let him have then as much cause of glory as may bee given him, by an unbounded number of misdeeds. But there is no soule so desperate as dareth to passe so farre: for the Conscience even of the most wicked telleth them; that they shall be judged according to Gods manifest Law, which is the rule of their actions: and not according to his secret providence which appointeth sin it selfe for certaine ends, quite different from mans ends. Wherefore all that induceth one to this extreame impietie, ought presently to bee rejected. whose damnation,] namely of those prophane slanderers of Gods truth, who doe thus contend with him.

Ver. 9 What then,] to returne to the businesse, have the Iewes of themselves any prerogative of righteousnesse or dignitie, before God, above the Gentiles? No, for all that which were granted them, verse 2. is out of grace: of their owne nature, they are as corrupt as others, as it appeares by their actions.

V. 10. As it is written,] these passages speak of the unregenerate amongst the people, who were alwayes in exceeding great number, and therefore these reproofes might serve at all times: and the Apostle makes use of them to shew that out of Gods grace, and out of the operation of his spirit, all are comprehended therein. And that amongst Gods people, this grace of regeneration, was not common to all, but that the greatest part of them had made themselves uncapable of it.

Verse 12. Unprofitable.] like corrupted Wine, or like putrified stinking flesh which is the similitude used by DAVID in the passage heere alleadged.

V. 16. Destruction,] which they bring unto others.

V. 19. What things soever,] these sharpe and frequent reproofes, which the Lord useth in his word and are directed especially to his people, the use whereof continueth to all ages, doe sufficiently shew that nation to be infected with the same vices that raigne in the world. Who are,] namely, who are comprehended in that external covenant, whereof the Law is as it were the contract, and that are of that nation, which is under the especiall jurisdiction of it. That every mouth,] I doe set forth these things in this kinde, because the Iewes being the nation as hath beene most privileged by God, may humble themselves in the confession of their owne grievous sinnes, and in acknowledging, that all their good consists only in Gods mercy.

V. 20 There shall no flesh,] because that man by sin being altogether unable to fulfil either the naturall or written law, it can no longer bee an argument or meanes of righteousnesse and life unto him, and is no more in force towards him, but onely to discover his iniquity, and seale his condemnation to him.

V. 21. But now,] namely, since Christs comming, God hath clearly revealed the true righteousnesse which hee hath established and given to man for his justification, according to the doctrine of all his prophets, namely Christs righteousnesse imputed to all those who receave it by a lively faith: without any consideration of the workes of the Law either of nature or written; or any difference of Nations.

V. 23, For all,] this remedy is common to all indifferently, for the evill of sinne and privation from eternall glory is likewise common to all.

Ver. 24. Justified,] that is to say absolved from sin, and reputed just before God, by vertue of the satisfaction which Christ hath made, by which all beleevers are redeemed from death as it were by a valuable price.

V. 25. Whom God,] all this hath beene done by Gods appointment, who of his meere will, and full power hath from everlasting appointed Christ to be the onely meanes of expiation and reconciliation. To declare,] to make this meanes of righteousnesse appeare which before was hidden, Rom 1. 17. or to give a most certaine proofe of his benignitie, and truth in keeping his promises and his covenant. For the,] forgiving men their sinnes which had till that time kept them in the snares of condemnation without any true meanes of attonement. See Heb. 9 15. Through the forbearance of God,] The Italian, in the time of Gods patience,] then when God shewed his goodnesse in the meere suspention of his judgements upon the world, not causing it to perish for its sins, though he did not as yet open the treasures of his grace for an entire pardon, which he reserved for the time of the Gospell.

V. 26,

Ver. 26. That he might be,] that is to say, that all may learne to acknowledge receave and worship this new manner of the operation of Gods justice, justifying him who of himselfe is a sinner: by faith in Christs righteousnesse, unlesse just be her taken for true and loyall; or for absolutely just, who would not justifie man without payment and satisfaction. Which believeth,] which is of their side, who renouncing all confidence in their owne workes seeke their life and salvation in CHRIST by faith.

V. 27. Where is,] who can therefore boast of his owne righteousnesse, 1 Cor. 1. 31. Ephes. 2, 9 Nay,] for the Law assigneth unto man the reward of life, for his owne vertue and righteousnesse. By the Law,] Namely by this new order and covenant of God, which takes away all manner of mans owne righteousnesse, and dignitie from him, to cloth him through grace with Christs righteousnesse

V. 29. Is he,] Seeing God doth confer this his grace of justification in Christ, upon the Gentiles as well as upon the Iewes, wee must beleeve that they are all comprehended in the same covenant, and that there is no more difference betweene circumcised and uncircumcised Nations, and that circumcision is no longer the meanes to bee incorporated amongst Gods people but that now one attaineth to it by faith only.

V. 30. The circumcision,] Namely the Iewes. By faith,] it should seeme that the Apostle distinguisheth these two kindes of speeches by faith, and through faith, attributing the first to the Iewes in whom, though they were adorned with many rare qualities above the Gentiles, God only regarded faith for to receave them into grace: And the second to the Gentiles who through faith passed as it were into a new spirituall estate. Others hold that they are both as one, but that the Apostle varieth in this kinde: to shew that the Iewes advantages were as much as nothing. Uncircumcision,] namely the Gentiles.

V. 31. Make voyd,] doe wee take all authoritie, power, and worth from it. Establish,] that is to say we shew by the Gospell how firme and irrevocable it is, seeing that God would have Christ subject to the Law, as well to suffer what it imposed, for to release man from it, as also to doe what it commanded, to gaine a right for him unto that life which it promiseth. See upon Matthew 5. 18. Gal. 4. 4, 5.

Chap.

CHAP. IIII.

VERSE 1. What shall We say?] seeing every man is under condemnation, and cannot be justified but onely by faith without workes. Rom. 3. 28, wee ought to say that Abraham himselfe the head of all such as enter into the covenant of grace, hath not been justified any other way, though hee did farre surpasse his posterity in goodnesse. And that he hath not obtained life and glory by his owne works, and therefore his children cannot have any privilege above him, but that his example is the rule of all their estate towards God, As perteining to,] considered in himselfe, in his own naturall state, out of the grace of pardon and of justification.

V. 2. For if,] that is to say, he hath obteined nothing by his owne proper merrits, for if so be it were so, he would have somewhat whereof to glorie before God, but he had nothing for the justification which Abraham obtained by faith, v. 3. taketh away any glory of his owne from man Rom. 3. 27.

V. 3. Abraham beleived,] See the exposition upon Gen. 15. 6.

V. 4. Now to him,] this passage being well understood sheweth sufficiently that Abraham could have no confidence nor matter of glory in his owne proper works, for he being justified by faith which hath no other object nor foundation, but the grace, and promises of God, workes could take no place therein. Now the Apostle sets downe grace and faith here under one kinde, and the law and works under another, and supposeth that the one cannot be mingled with the other in the causes of mans justification Rom. 11. 6. That worketh,] that goeth after this way of workes, and buildeth thereupon to obtaine the reward of life promised by the law, Not reckoned,] in case hee have performed the condition therein set downe, namely, perfect obedience, But of debt,] not by vertue of any absolute merit, and naturall equivalency, which cannot be betweene God and man, betweene whom there is no proportion, neither in the persons, nor in the actions, nor in goods, but by vertue of that voluntary act of God, doe these things and thou shalt live.

V. 5. That worketh not,] who being unable to performe that condition of works doth not build thereon, but taketh the other way to bee saved, which is that of faith in Gods mercy towards a sinner, by which Christs righteousnesse is given him, to bee cloathed therewith, and by vertue thereof to bee absolved from sinne and condemnation, His faith,] not considered in it self as it is a work that hath any singuler merit or worth but in its own relation to christ and in the action of receaving him, and livelily applying him to himselfe, as eating nourisheth, that is to say the meate that is eaten. See Isa. 53. 11. Rom. 5. 18, 19. 1 Cor. 1. 30.

V.6. Without workes,] which is gathered out of Davids saying by a neceſſary conſequence, for where there is remiſſion, there is ſin, without any ſatisfaction of his owne.

V.8. Impute,] a manner of ſpeech taken from accompts and debts, as much as to ſay hee ſhall not hold him faulty nor guilty, to make him beare the puniſhment in his owne perſon.

V.9. Commeth this bleſſednesse,] there is beſides, this to be conſidered in Abrahams example, that hee having received this noted teſtimonial of his iuſtification whileſt hee was yet uncircumciſed, it apeareth thereby that circumciſion is not neceſſary thereunto; as the greateſt part of the Iewes, even of thoſe that were converted to the faith, believed.

V.10 How was it?] was it by means of circumciſion as the Iewes hold?

Verſe 11. And hee,] the Italian hath it Afterwards hee,] namely, after hee was declared iuſtified by faith. See Geneſis 15. 6. and 17. 10. The ſigne,] ſacraments having theſe two uſes, of ſignifiing by the analogy, and correſpondency there is betweene the bodily and the ſpirituall thing, and to ſeal the promiſe of internall grace correſpondent to the ſignification, and that by vertue of Gods order, mediating the condition of faith therein required, A ſeale,] for circumciſion ordained after Abrahams iuſtification by faith, was but a confirmation of that covenant of grace, by which God promiſed to cleanſe man from his ſinne, forgiving him it in Chriſt, and likewiſe to ſanctifie and renew him by his ſpirit, which are the two benefits repreſented by circumciſion, That hee might,] God would thus beſtow upon Abraham, both the things and the times, to ſhew that as well the Gentiles as the Iewes are reputed to bee ABRAHAMS true children, comprehended within the covenant made with him and his poſterity, ſo that they follow his faith, whither they be circumciſed during the time circumciſion was in no force according to Gods appointment, or whither they be not, after that God in ſtead of it had appointed another Sacrament, which is baptiſme.

V.12. Which are,] that is to ſay, which are corporally circumciſed.

Verſe 13. For the,] that is to ſay, this is proved becauſe man is made the childe of Abraham and partaker of the promiſes which were made to him in the ſame quality, as is noted of ABRAHAM in that ſolemne promiſe Geneſis 15. 6. Now that was not any dignity or merit, by which God was induced to yeeld him a reward, but faith receiving from God a gift freely offered. See Hebrewes 11.8. That hee ſhould,] to bee reeſtabliſhed as GODS childe into the right and degree which Adam had before his fall to bee Lord over all the creatures. Which was figured to Abraham by the poſſeſſion of the land of Canaan promiſed unto him, and to his poſterity: and is in part effected by the juſt fruition which God gives his children of his creatures, as to Chriſts fellowes and members, and ſhall bee perfectly accompliſhed in the Kingdome of heaven. See 1.Cor.3.21 22.1.Timothy 4.3.Hebrewes 1,2. and 2. 5. Was not,] is not ſet downe in ſcripture to have beene made in regard of any righteouſneſſe or proper vertue of Abraham, but by faith imbracing Gods grace, and the promiſed Meſſias, in ſtead of all righteouſnes that can appeare before God to obtain life.

Verſe 14. For if,] if it were not ſo, and that by workes, man might obtaine that inheritance, all faith, covenants, grace, and promiſes, would bee void, which is wicked and moſt abſurd, even to thinke. Now if righteouſneſſe and life is thorough grace, it muſt bee ſo abſolutely, and purely, without any intermeddling of mens righteouſneſſe or the Law, for theſe two meanes cannot agree with one another. Romanes 11. 6. Galatians 3.11,12. The promiſe,] which in theſe paſſages is alwaies taken by the Apoſtle, for the free and Evangelical promiſe, and not the legall.

V. 15. Becauſe,] that is to ſay, it is cleere that theſe two meanes of obtaining life and righteouſneſſe, cannot conſiſt together, for the lawe is altogether rigorous, requiring perfect obedience, or denouncing death and condemnation to the tranſgreſſors, whereas contrariwiſe the promiſe is but a meſſenger of grace and reconciliation, For where,] this is proved becauſe that man doth not truly know his ſinne, nor doth not feele the mortall ſting of it, but only by meanes of the Law, working effectually upon his conſcience.

Verſe 16. Therefore,] becauſe that firſt means of obtaining righteouſneſſe by the law which God hath granted unto men, hath thorough ſinne beene made not onely unprofitable, but even quite contrary and deadly: wee muſt of neceſſity have recourſe unto the other, which is faith: which onely amõgſt other vertues, can in this caſe agree with Gods meere grace, ſeeing that the operation of faith is not to acquire or merit, but only to receive what is given to us. Iohn 1. 12. Bee ſure,] as grounded upon God and his immutable pleaſure, and Chriſts perfect and everlaſting righteouſneſſe, and not upon mens variable will, and inconſtant obedience. See Ezek.16.61. Rom.9 11.& 11.19. To all,] namely, to the ſpirituall ſeed according to the faith, of which God intended to ſpeake in that excellent promiſe, I will bee thy GOD, and of thy ſeed after thee, Geneſis 17. 7. Not to that only,] not onely to the nationall believing Iewes, who have been kept under the Pedagogie of the Law, and under a directour to Chriſt, without truſting therein for their righteouſneſſe and ſalvation.

Verſe 17. Before him,] with a ſpirituall and divine paternity, paternity, which consisteth in example of faith, according to which God can make whom he will Abrahams childe. Matth. 3. 9. as he of nothing created all things and raiseth the dead, and according to his paternity hee judgeth who are Abrahams true children, which he approveth of, whereas in mens judgements the Iewes onely ought to bee so, According to others, the meaning is, that as God is not onely father in grace of those which are alreadie, but of all such likewise as he shall hereafter create by his omnipotent word, Abraham likewise by some correspondency hath beene reputed father of the Gentiles, who had neither spirituall life, nor quality, such as was required for to be his children. Ephes. 2, 12. And calleth,] that is to say, by his word hee makes them to be, and as if one should say, to appeare for that end for which he hath appointed them, as he did in the creation of all things, and in the miraculous resurrections wrought by Christ, Let there be light, Lazarus come forth, &c.

Verse 18. who?] namely Abraham. Now hee sheweth by example of Abrahams beliefe touching the particuler promise concerning Isaack, what the true faith of al his children should be concerning the general promises of grace. Against hope,] against all causes, arguments, and appearances of naturall hope, In hope,] that is to say, concerning a firme spirituall and supernaturall hope, by reason of Gods promises.

Verse 19. Hee considered not,] he stood nor stopped not upon the order of nature according to which all hope of issue was taken away from him. So true faith overcomes all apprehension of a mans owne impotency, thorough the lively perswasion of Gods promise.

Verse 20. Giving,] by acknowledging his Soveraigne truth, and infinite power, above all inferiour order or contrary difficulty, glory being set upon the highest point of eminency, above all other things.

Verse 22. It was.] God by reason of his faith, held him to bee as sufficiently disposed to obtaine the accomplishment of the promises, as if he had had all the righteousnesse, required by the law to receive Gods Benefits.

Verse 23. For his,] as if it had been some peculiar act or privi ledge of Abrahams, whereas it was a document, and an example of iustifying faith, common to all his spirituall children.

Verse 24. On him,] namely in God, who in Christs most glorious resurrection, gave an essay of his power, to raise spiritually all beleivers, and hath in the same resurrection placed all the causes of their resurrections Rom 6. 4.

Verse 25 Delivered,] namely to death, by the will of God, For our,] to make an expiation for them by his death. For our justification,] namely, to shew unto us how wee were absolved as it were by manner of solemne iudgement, CHRIST our surety, being returned to life after hee had made an end of satisfying for us, for a certaine argument, that God was fully reconciled to us, and that life was gained for us, which could not have beene is hee had remained dead, for the continuation of the payment, would alwaies have shewed the imperfection of it. See 1 Cor 15. 17.

CHAP. V.

VER. 1. Wee have,] that is to say, God is made propitious unto us in Christ, who by the faith which hee creates in us, causeth us to enioy this reconciliation, by vertue whereof our conscience is so firmely grounded, that wee doe it as it were by anticipation in this world, by a lively hope, that eternall glory which is prepared for the children of God, without being moved by any temptations, or terren downe by any terrour or confusion.

Verse 3. Not onely.] wee doe not reioyce unspeakably and gloriously. 1. Pet. 1. 8. onely by reason of the hope of future glorie, but also by reason of our present afflictions, which are an assured proofe unto us thereof. 2. Co. 4. 17. Phil 1. 28. That tribulation,] that the holy Ghost doth thorough tribulation frame us to patience, in which God doth from time to time give us assured proofes of his grace and protection, whereby we conceive a sound hope in him grounded upon the love which hee beareth unto us, which he hath given us large cause of feeling, and hath lively sealed it in our hearts, by his spirit of adoption.

V. 5. Maketh not ashamed,] that is to say, doth not deceave one nor prove vaine, nor proveth not to be as an illusion.

V. 6. For when,] the greatnesse of this love of God is shewed therein, that he did shew it when we were deprived of all power of rising againe of our selves, being wholy dead in sinne, In due time,] In the point of the worlds extreamest need, when the misery and curse thereof was come to the up shot when all people, even Gods owne people were altogether corrupted. And even just at the time which God had appointed.

V. 7. For scarcely] a redoubling of the same reason, because that God loved us then when wee were altogether, not onely unable to get salvation, but also utterly unworthy of it.

V 8 Commendeth,] makes it more glorious and sets it in greater esteeme amongst men. Sinners,] that is to say, guilty and culpable, having not as yet received the gift of absolution and pardon, and being yet under the kingdome of sin.

V. 9. By his,] namely by vertue of that satisfaction which he hath made to God by his death. From wrath,] wrath,] namely, from eternall damnation and punishment, Matth 3.7. Rom. 2.5. The meaning is, that as it is more easie to keep a man from execution, that is freed and absolved by the judg, then for to get a guilty man absolved and freed by the iudge, so after we have received pardon, which is the greater, we ought much now to be perswaded that we shal be freed from the punishment which is the lesser and that we shall have all good things. Rom. 8.32.

V. 10. By his life.] namely, by him living and raigning; and communicating his life to all his members. Iohn 6.57 and 14.19. 2. Cor. 4.10.11.

V. 11. And not onely,] besides that we gloriously triumph over all afflictions thorow a certain confidence of the everlasting crowne. Wee have also whereof to boast our selves to bee happy in the whole course of our lives, by the present feeling of Gods grace.

V. 12. Wherefore,] a generall conclusion of the presedent treatie of justification by faith; in which the Apostle breifely running over those things which he had said: doth withall set doune the ground of them, which is that God hath of his owne good will established Christ to be the head of grace and the spring of righteousnesse and life to all his elect, thorow the impution of whose righteousnesse, they are restored into Gods favour and consequentlie sanctified and glorified as Adam was made the naturall head and root of all mankind, whereupon by his sinne imputed to al his Seed, it was all under Gods curse deprived of originall righteousnesse, corruption its whole naturall, and subiect to death.

V. 13. For until,] this originall corruption is verified by the effects of all mens actuall Sinnes, in al ages even before the law of Moises which sheweth that there was before that another generall law namely that of nature the reliques of which doe yet remaine in man Rom. 2. 14. 15. against which Adam having actually sinned, hath enfolded all his posteritie in the same faule and hath propagated originall sinne in it, is not imputed,] that is to say is not reputed to be truely sinne, which is nothing but a transgression of the law. Rom 4.15. 1. Iohn 3. 4. nor man is not called to account upon it, to be therefore condemned to death.

V. 14. Nevertheless,] he doeth moreover shew that there was an universall defect in all mankind, against the said law, which was imputed unto him to condemnation, seeing they are all dead, and that death is the reward of sinne. Rom. 6.23. over them,] namely over little children, who weare not come to the age of iudgment and consequently could not bee guilty, of an actual deliberate and voluntarie sinne, such a one as Adams was and yet for all that they are dead; wherefore wee must conclude that there was in them some other sinne: which is the originall sinne, of him,] namly of Christ, the second Adam, the head of the spirituall off spring of this elect; as Adam was the natural head of all men. Now the conformitie of them both consisteth in this that either of them by the order of God justification, had communicated his estate to all his.

V. 15. But not,] though these two Adam the head of sinne and death, and Christ the head of righteousnesse and life doe agree in this prosperity of communicating their conditions to those who are theirs, yet there is great deale of difference between them. First in that in Christ the power is all divine and therefore infinitely more active and effectuall, and then also in the excellencie, and abundance of gifts and good things which he communicates to his, above all that which man had loss in Adam manie bee,] namely all men the children of Adam. v. 12. The grace,] namely Gods mercie and good will which is the Soveraigne cause, the gift,] namely the application, and free imputation of Christs righteousnesse, which is the meritorious cause, by grace,] for love, and by vertue of that perfect righteousnesse and obedience which Christ yeelded his father in his humane nature, by which he hath merited and possesseth all his grace and love, Matth. 3.17. Iohn 1.16. Ephes. 1.6. Vnto many,] namely, to all believers, Gods spirituall children in Christ, whereof he had spoken before.

V. 16. And not,] there is likewise another difference, namely, that Adam did indeed by his offence make all his posterity guilty, but they have aggravated their iudgement by their owne proper and voluntary sins. But Christ iustifieth not onely from the sin which proceeded from Adam, but likewise from all other personall sins. The judgment,] namely, God proceeding as a iust iudge, hath imputed this one offence of Adams, to all his posteritie, and hath condemned it to lose the state of originall righteousnesse and consequently life, The free gift,] the Italian, The grace, the same God proceeding in his grace, hath absolved all his elect from al their sinnes, for to behold them just and innocent.

V. 17. For if,] this ought not to seeme strange, for God hath infinitely more beene appeased in Christ, then hee was offended and provoked by Adam. Of righteousnesse,] namely, Christs righteousnesse which is given, that is to say imputed out of meere grace to all believers.

V. 18. By the righteousnesse of one,] by Christs perfect obedience, God hath poured out his free mercy upon all men, to absolue them from sinne, and give them right to eternall life, upon all,] to all manner of persons indifferently, though not to all universallie. Or he means all those which belong to Christ. v. 15. 17.

V. 19. Many,] see v. 15 were made,] that is to weare reputed for such, and doe as such, appeare before Gods judgement Shall manie, hencefoorward Christ having ben manifested and his righteousnesse fulfilled,

...] and preached to the world by the Gospell ... who shall receive it shall be reputed righte... before God in him.

V. 20. The Law,] because he had said, v. 13. that before the law of Moses sinne had raigned under the law of nature, he doth now obviate an objection, wherefore then was Moses his Law added? This serveth, because the Law of nature might be restored to its naturall light and vigor, and repaired in the breaches which ignorance, forget fullnesse, evill manners, and erroneous opinions of men had made in it. And that by this light of Gods law reuiued in man, and yet with stood by him, with a greater malice then before, his wickednesse should appeare to be growen up to the height where by he might have no other way of restauration, but onely in the free Gods grace in Christ, whose power ouercommes all the power of sinne.

V. 21. Vnto death,] shewing its pestilent power in the present death, and in the everlasting death, which it causeth in all man. 1. Cor. 15. 56.

CHAP. VI.

VER. 1. Shall we,] shall we continue in corruption and bondage of sinne, without repentance or amendment of life, because we are iustified out of mere grace, and not by works that God may have the greater subiect of exercising his mercie.

V. 2. God so bid,] as that is quite contrarie to all order of Gods grace, and to his nature, so it is abominable to conceive so much as a thought of it, that we should,] that have received togither with the remission of our sinnes in Christ, the gift of the holy Ghost which engendereth in us a new spirituall life according to God, and with all mortifieth the life of corruption, so that we become as dead carkeisses, to the motions of it, and unprofitable and immoueable vnto the actions of it. Whereupon it is impossible that perseverance in sinn, can subsist with the ...ence of the operation of Gods grace.

V. 3. Know ye not,] that is to say the inseparable connection of these two benefits is cleerely demonstrated to us by baptisme, into Jesus,] namely by a testimonie that we are Christians, not onely by profession, but likewise in spirituall truth receiving the grace of the spirit, and then cooperating thereunto with voluntary obedience, and newnesse of life, are baptized into his,] to be partakers in the benefit of his death in the remission of sinnes, and likewise to receive a liuely stampe, and likenesse of him who is our head in the mortification of sinne. See Phil. 3. 10. Col. 2. 12.

V. 4. We are,] in baptisme beeing dipped in water according to the ancient ceremonie it is a sacred signe that sinne ought to be drowned in us by Gods spirit. As that is a seale unto us, of the washing of our souls before God, with him,] namely in the conformitie of his death, by meanes of which we also carrie the image of his resurrection in a spirituall life. Phil. 3. 11. by the glorie,] namely by his glorious power. Iohn. 6. 57. 2. Cor. 13. 4.

V. 5. For if,] he gives a reason of this consequence of Christs death and resurrection with the spirituall one of beleevers, namely because Christ by the internall and spirituall baptisme, is in a manner united in spirit to them as the head is to the members and the graft to the stock, that he communicates unto them of himself not only some effects but also his likenesse. See Iohn. 15. 1. Rom. 11, 24.

V. 6. Knowing this,] this conformitie is made in us, by meanes of the lively Knowledge which the holy Ghost giveth us, and the spirituall discourse which we ought to make namely that Christ is dead not onely to expiate the guilt of sinne but also to take away all its strength and power over us, and to gain us wholly to God, and frame and consecrate us to his service, Old,] hee calleth thus the whole depravation or evil that is in man, which hath its part, namely his life, forces, actions, and motions and is opposite to the renewment which is made by Gods spirit, which is called the new man. 2. Cor. 5. 17. Ephes. 4. 22, 24. Col. 3. 9. 10 the bodie,] not only some actions and parts of it, but the very spring the stock, and whole masse, composed of many vices, passions, and disorders: as a bodie of diverse members. See Col. 2. 11. Should not serve,] that we may no longer be under that unauoydable though voluntary, necessity of sinning without having either light, libertie, strength, or remedie against sinne. v. 16.

V. 7. For he,] a reason taken from humane slaverie which is ended by death. Iob. 3. 19. dead,] namely to sinne. v. 2 See. 1. Pet. 4. 1.

V. 8. with Christ,] namely as hee is likewise dead, and participating of the effect and likewise of his death, as being his members, shall also live,] in a spirituall life in holinesse and righteousnesse: and afterwards in the glorious and everlasting, which is the very height and accomplishment of the spirituall life.

V. 10. Vnto sinne,] to satisfie that necessity which he imposeth of dying, to expiate, and purge it, and also to take away all power from it, either upon him, or upon his, Vnto God,] namely a divine life, whose onely obiect and relation is God.

V. 11. But alive,] that is to say have received the gift of spirituall life, and are bound to exercise it, and put it in practice, in Gods seve, service, and obedience which is the beginning of that blessed life, which beleevers shall live in heaven. See Luke. 20. 38. through Iesus Christ,] by meanes and by vertue of your union with Christ, in whome you subsist, as in the foundation and roote of this life.

Verse 12. In your mortal's,] whilest you l ve this corporall life, which being also subject to death, it appeares thereby, that there are yet some reliques of sin, against which wee must fight, to mortifie and drowne them.

V. 13. Your members,] whereby are meant all the naturall faculties of the soule, exercised by means of the members of the body, See Rom 7.5,23 Col. 3. 5. Ia. 4.1 Of righteousnesse,] holy and fit for Gods service.

V. 14. For sinne,] that is to say, fight on freely, for the victory is assured on your side against sin, for in the Gospell you have not a bare command, which bi ides you without helping you, as in the law, but together with the command, there is an internall power granted you, which fulfilleth that in you which is commanded, if so bee for your owne part you will concurre with your willand endeavour, Phil. 2. 12, 13 Heb 13. 21.

V. 15. Shall we sinne?] an objection grounded upon the false sence which some prophane men might give to these words of not being any more under the Law, as if thereby were meant that a man were freed from all manner of bonds and ties of obeying God, and living well, whereas according to the Apostles meaning they signifie quite the contrary; namely that one is no more before God in quality of a bondman, under the tie of perfect obedience, or condemnation without pardon or release; and without any effectuall help of Gods spirit: which can produce nothing in man but dispaire and an unbounded rebellion, but that on is now in qualitie of a sonne under the mercy of God; who imployeth his law, as a milde and moderate governesse alwaies accompanied with the power of the holy Ghost, to produce the effects of obedience. God forbid,] as much as to say this thought is altogether wicked and abominable.

V. 16 Know ye not,] it is a thing according to common reason, that every one is to serve his Master, though he did willingly put himselfe into bondage, because that by this act he hath deprived himself of liberty. So man is a bondman, either to sin by nature, or to God by grace, with motion, election and consent of his own proper will, wherefore it is no longer in his liberty to depart from it. Matth. 6. 24. Of obedience,] to the law or God, unto righteousnes,] namely to be approved by God under which is also comprehended the reward of life.

V. 17. That ye were,] that having heretofore bin slaves to sin, God through grace hath freed you by the Gospel to which you have willingly submitted your selves, as to the pattern & model of your regenerations like unto a mettal which is melted, or some other soft kind of stuffe, which taketh its forme from the mould into which it is cast.

V. 19. I speak,] this similitude of corporall slavery, doth not perfectly agree with the necessity and ne of serving God, wherein there is no force at all used, and where Gods spirit inclineth the soule to a milde and voluntary obedience, but the weakness of your understanding in well apprehending this liberty, alien from all manner of licence and indifferency, and in well using of it is requireth to have the matter laid open in you under such terms; See 1. Cor. 7. 22. and 9. 21. 1 Pet. 2. 16 your flesh,] namely the naturall vice of ignorance and perversnes of understanding, which remaineth in believers, and makes spirituall things hard for them to apprehend in their own naturall sence, and to make good use of them. unto iniquity,] namely actuall sinning.

V. 20. For when,] you must not divide your studies, for when you were under the yoak of sin, righteousnes had no power over you, therefore likewise now that you are under the kingdome of righteousnesse, you must utterly renounce the tirannie of sin.

V. 21, what fruit,] consider what was the reward of your bondage then, it was nothing but death, therefore by the lamentable and horrible state that you were in then you may judge what a happy state you are now brought into, to cleave unto the one, and altogether flye the other. See Rom. 7. 5.

V. 22. Ye have,] you reap this good by your subjection to God, that you are even in this world sanctified and regenerated to newnes of life, a true beginning and pledge of the everlasting and glorious life.

V. 23. The gift,] namely of these 2. works of Gods grace towards you, and in you; namely of the first justification, and spiritual sanctification, whereof the first is the cause, and the 2. the beginning and introduction into eternal life, thorow Christs benefits, who got you the first by his blood and obedience, and the other by his spirit.

CHAP. VII.

VER. 1. For I speak,] he speaks this to shew that he did specially direct his speech to the Jews, who in all reason should have bin best instructed in all the effects of the law. Now all this is to declare and confirm what he had spoken Ro. 6. 14 that believers are no more under the law; and the effect of justification no more then the benefit of justification, cannot be expected nor hoped for by the law, but only by Gods grace in Christ, The law,] this may be understood of all laws, obligations, or personal covenants, whatsoever whereof ceaseth upon dead men, as the marriage bond doth, which is the strictest of all.

V. 2. From the law,] from the tye of marriage, and from that bond wherein right she was tied to her husband.

V. 4. Ye also,] Christ hath ingrafted us into his mistical body, and hath appropriated us unto himself to be the sole master of our consciences, and the beginning of spiritual life in us, by vertue of his resurrection by which he was really made the head of his Church, & hath received the fulnesse of his spirit, to distribute unto the Church, and produce in it the resemblance of his resurrection, Ro. 6. 4. and so he hath loosed us from the hard command of the law, which only condemns our consciences, and by its inexorable rigor, and impospublike instances did drive men soo desperate rebellious are become,] all this former right which the law had to condemne, and the power of kindling sin, is annihilated in your behalfe even as if you were dead. Ro.

6.4. For when,] it was convenient that wee should be thus appropriated to Christ to obtaine the end of directing our actions to God and to his servi e whilest we were in our naturall corrupted state, having no other guide but the law the perverse affections, which are the roots of sinnes, being pricked forward rather then corrected or represſed by the law, did produce their effects in all the parts of our soule, whereupon there grew nothing elſe but multiplication of causes of death. By the law,] because it did exasperate and inflame that which it could not correct, even as one contrary which is not able to overcome the other contrary, doth strengthen it. 1. Cor. 15. 56.
In our members,] See Rom. 6. 13.

V. 6. Delivered,] freed from that harſhneſſe of the law, by which sinne being brought to diſpaire, did kindle more and more. Wee are,] namely in sin. Ro. 6. 2. whereupon the kingdome of sin being deſtroyed in beleevers, the aforeſaid accidentall effect of the law doth also cease, namely of provoking the malignity of it, and make slaves in us. Should serve,] namely God, in newneſſe, moved and driven thereunto by this new power of the holy Ghoſt, whereas the law did nothing but shew man his duty, as in writing or picture, without giving him any lively and effectual power there-unto, whereupon this old means of righteouſneſſe and holineſſe hath been annihilated as impotent and unprofitable.

V. 7. Is it,] that is to say, is the law cauſe of sin, or hath it any malignity or vice? which of it own nature doth produce any ſuch effect as to exaſperate sin. Nay I had] contrariwiſe the law diſcovers and condemns sin perfectly, even in its firſt and ſmalleſt motions; now the Apoſtle here doth re, preſent himſelfe in his former state of Phariſee, very zealous of the law, and how by all his ſerious meditations and exerciſes, hee could never obtain any victory upon sin, but there alwayes was bred a furious provocation of sin by it.

V. 8. But sin,] that is to say, conſidering the extreme rigor of this commandment which condemned me to death for this concupiſcence, which is unavoidable my natural vice was too far from being corrected or extinguiſhed thereby, that did I through diſpair abandon my ſelf to an indifferent deſire, ſeeing that all my labour to repreſſe ſome part thereof was in vaine, was dead, as it were a ſleep and deaded, if it were not kindled again by the law working lively upon the conſci-ence, for then the oppoſition of it, againſt the evil which reigneth in sin, cauſeth one to grow obſtinate againſt it, and the aforeſaid diſpaire for not being able to give it full ſatisfaction, drives a man to give over all manner of endeavour, and affection of ſtudying to doe it.
V. 9. I was,] namely in the time of my Phariſaiſme, when I conſidered nothing but only the bark and out-ſide of the law, and the outward diſcipline of it, without entring into this profound cogitation of the ſpirituall and internall obſervation. Alive,] I held my ſelfe aſſured of Gods love, and of everlaſting life and ſalvation, by means of mine owne righteouſneſſe, which I thought to have fulfilled, I found my ſelfe ſtrong enough to perform the external works of the law, and my erring conſcience thought it ſelfe to be in perfect health. Without the,] namely when the law did not wound my conſcience, and that I did not repreſent it ſo lively to my ſelf. When the,] namely when I did deeply meditate upon, and applied to my conſcience, that abſolute forbidding of all manner of luſt. Revived,] it was not onely found living, and not put out in me, as I thought it had bin by my Phariſaical diſciplines, but it was rather exaſperated and enraged. And I died,] I did contrariwiſe feel the ſtings and terrors of condemnation I found my ſelf utterly unable, and inſufficient to yeeld perfect obedience, and to be far from Gods love, and from confidence in him, wherein conſiſts the life of the ſoule.

V. 10. I found,] namely I did by experience finde out this effect of the law, which before was unknowne to
mee. Which was ordained,] namely which being kept would bring life and ſalvation to man according to Gods firſt ordinance.

V. 11. For sin,] through my natural corruption I framed to my ſelfe this damnable illuſion: namely that ſeeing I could not with all my works and cares ſatisfie the law, I would then let looſe the raines to all maner of iniquity, and then the law gave me the mortall ſtroke of unavoideable condemnation.

V. 13. Made death,] namely the cauſe of death and perdition. That it might,] that is to ſay, I ſpeak thus of it, to ſhew the malignitie of this naturall vice of man, which gathereth ſtrength from its contrarie, which is the law, moſt juſt and moſt holy, but not powerfull enough of it ſelf, to change or annihilate that vice, that sin by,] as much as to ſay, to ſhew that the law in its moſt powerful operation, can produce no other effect in a corruptee man, but madneſſe for to withſtand it.

V. 14. For we know,] all theſe aforeſaid effects proceed from the contrarietie which is betweene Gods law and mans corruption. Ro. 8. 7. 1. Cor. 2. 14 which contrarietie the Apoſtle comprehends under theſe 2.
terms of ſpiritual and carnal, by the firſt according to his cuſtome, he means all whatſoever is of God, wch lives in him, and is according to his nature and will,
by the ſecond, all whatſoever is not of God, and contrary to his life, and is odious and repugnant to him,

1. Kings 21. 20.

V. 15. For that,] the proofe of this contrariety is ſeen alſo in Gods children, and in regenerate perſons, in whom the reliques of that precedent perversity do yet fight against the spirit as I finde it in mine own person: even now that I am in Gods grace and out of that former damnable state. I allow not.] I am confounded within my selfe, and know not what to judge of my motions, and actions, so mixed and counterpoiled, between these two contraries, the flesh and the spirit. Or I doe not approve of mine owne workes, as perfectly correspondent to the inspiration of Gods spirit, and to his law, See Iob. 9. 21. That doe I not.] namely, I doe not all that good, not in that purity as I should desire according to the motion of the spirit. Or likewise many times I sinne through frailty, though I doe it with griefe and lamentation.

V. 16. If then,] namely by this motion of a regenerate will, which agreeth very well with the law, and by which I doe resist evill, though not alwaies with a full effect, I doe learne to know that the evill effects, whereof I spake, v. 15 doth not proceed from any vicious quality of the law but onely from mans malice, who is repugnant to the law, and likewise by this conformity to the law, which regeneration produceth in the spiritual part of my soule, that wicked effect of desperately rebelling against the law, is no more in me.

V. 17. Now then,] besides that, I doe not feare being rejected by God for these defects which remaine in me; for God judgeth of his children, who are thus divided betweene the flesh and the spirit, by the better and sounder part, which is that of the spirit, which predominates in them, and to which they cleave with heart and will, and which hath a subsistance and root of a durable life, and not by the flesh, which they renounce and resist as a strange thing, which by little & little goeth away from them, and cometh to nothing, That dwelleth,] that is to say, which remaineth yet in me, but disarmed of its mortall sting of condemnation by Christ, and of its vigour and Kingdome by the holy Ghost, and is now but a let to a believing man. Heb 12. 1. So that wee must distinguish of these three things, the Kingdome, the Dwelling, and the opposition of sin: The first is aninhilated and brought to nothing in believers, the other two remaine for their exercise and humiliation.

V. 18. In mee,] namely in my nature, such as it is by its carnall generation, without the gift of regeneration, there is no true spirituall good, by which I can be capable to obey God. For to will,] the certaine proofe that this evill is yet remaining in mee after my regeneration, is, that I finde my selfe unable to answere perfectly those holy motions, which Gods spirit doth oftentimes raise in me.

V. 19. For the,] this ought to bee understood of the errours into which Gods children do oftentimes fal, and of the perpetuall defects which are in their good workes: not that they alwaies sin, or that they never doe any good thing.

Ver. 22. I finde then,] I have a triall of this undeniable necessity.

V. 22. After the,] namely after mine understanding, and mine affections and motions which have generated by the spirit, who hath possessed the inward part, and as one should say, the center of my heart from whence hee hath rooted out sinne, which being driven out of its hold, remaines upon the outsides, and as it were upon the brinkes of the soule, from whence hee yet fights against the spirit, untill such time as by the death of the body it be utterly destroyed.

V. 23. Another law,] namely, a strong contrary naturall inclination, which transportes me in despite of my self. In my members,] namely in my carnall and vicious inclinations and affections of which the members of the body are the instruments, and he seems to use this word members, to signifie the foresaid expulsion as it were to the superficies of the soul. Against the law,] namely against that strong impression of the knowledge of truth and of the will of God, which the holy Ghost hath made in my minde, by which he strictly bindes my conscience, and frames all mine actions to holinesse, for the holy Ghost worketh in the soule of man, by an order suiting to the nature thereof, which is to have the heart governed and directed by the understanding. See Rom. 12. 2. Ephes. 4. 23. Bringing me,] causeth me to bee invitably driven into sinne, whose rootes and seeds are in my nature, and in all parts and faculties of it.

V. 24. O wretched man,] an exclamation out of the feeling of this miserie, namely of being yet under the bondage of sinne; and of a desire to be freed from it. Who shall,] O that I were but out of this animall and terrestriall life, during which sinne doth yet dwell in me, and throw it, I am yet under the necessitie of dying; and that I were transported into the liberty of the glory of Gods children, in the life of happinesse. Rom. 8. 22. Phil. 1. 23.

V. 25. I Thank God,] this is a certaine correction of the former fervent desire, the time whereof is not yet come. The meaning is, though I doe desire to depart this life, yet I submit my selfe to Gods will, and with humble thanksgiving, I contens my self with his grace in Christ, who doth not impute the corruption and imperfection unto mee to condemnation, and shall fulfill my salvation in his appointed time. See 2. Cor. 2 9.

Chap. VIII.

Ver. 1. There is therefore,] a conclusion drawne from all hath beene spoken hitherto, namely that man is justified by grace, and that those who are so justified, are freed from the dominion of the law, and are incorporated into Christ, in whom they subsist, and live by the communication of his spirit, and therefore cannot be judged in themselves. Rom. 7. 4. Gal. 2. 20. Which are,] namely that do give the truth of this unites with Christ by a holy application, according to the inspiration of the holy Ghost, and not according to the motion of the flesh, Gal. 5. 19.

For] he gives a reason why the true members of Christ doe walk according to the spirit, namely, because that being under the most holy government, they are freed from the deadly tyranny of sinne. The law] See Rom. 7. 22. 1 Cor. 9. 21. Gal. 2. 19. Ja. 1. 25.

of life] that is to say living, and quickening, being indeed the cause and author of spirituall life in believers. See 1 Cor. 15. 44. 2 Cor. 3. 6. Hath made me] S. Paul propounds himself for an example of a regenerate man, as Rom. 7. 19. 18.

free] For whats] hee proves this foresaid making free, because that God being reconciled by Christs death, he hath taken away from sinne that power which he had granted it over man, for a punishment of the first transgression. In that it was] Because that thing could not be kept by a corrupted man, it had power to reconcile him to God, whereupon it followed that the aforesaid punishment of the kingdom of sinne remained in its vigour. Sending] that is to say, having appointed that his Son should take upon him humane nature, altogether like unto that of sinfull men, but onely accepted Heb. 2. 17 and 4. 15. For sinne] to bee a propitiatorie sacrifice for it. 2. Cor. 5. 21. Condemned] he hath as it were by his soveraigne authority taken away all command over believers from it, hath crucified and mortified it in them, whilest they lived this animall and corporall life.

Ver. 4. The righteousnesse] all which the said law commands, being just and right. Might bee fulfilled] that is to say, that it may not be commanded in vain, or without effect, as it is in respect of all unbelievers, but may be observed though unperfectly in this world. See the like meaning of this word. Rom. 2. 27 and 4. 2.

For they] he gives a reason why the law is kept only by those who are regenerate: namely because the holy Ghost who possesseth them, hath made them spirituall even as the law is, whereas a carnall man can not agree with it. Rom. 7. 14. That are] namely that are of the carnall traine, that is to say, unregenerate. Or that have no better being but their carnall corrupt being. Doe minde] the greeke word may be referred, to all the faculties and functions of the soule, as wel of the understanding as of the heart, and of the affections.

For to bee] it appeares by the effect which all thoughts bring forth, and the motions of the one and the other, what the causes of them are, for seeing that from the unregenerate mens there proceeds nothing but death, without any helpe or direction to everlasting life, that is a signe there is nothing but sinne and corruption called flesh in the former verse. And contrariwise seeing that regenerate mens thoughts doe direct to life, that is a signe that there is the blossome of the spirit, who is the only author thereof. Peace] namely a manner of blessing and happinesse, the full fruits whereof in this world consist in the sacred rest of conscience.

Because] hee gives a reason why the flesh is the cause of death, namely because it fighteth against God, who is the onely author of life and is incapable not onely thorough weaknesse, but also thorough naturall repugnancie, to submit it selfe to his will.

If the spirit dwelling in you] the presence of God and of his spirit, is where he operates, his dwelling where he operates continually and inseparably: or by a certaine appropriation of the organ, as the soule dwelleth in the body. Of Christ] namely that spirit which Christ as he is head, communicates to all his members.

He shall quicken] by the presence, life, and power of his spirit. The bodies] it is true that you believers are as yet subiect to corporall death, by reason of the reliques of sinne that are in all regenerate men, and shall not bee quite brought to nought, but onely by death. But yet in the gift and presence of the spirit, you have a beginning of spirituall life, which consists in the communion with God, into which Christ hath restablished you by his most perfect righteousnesse, and with all an assurance of everlasting life, and happy resurrection.

If the spirit of him] namely of God. The meaning is, if you be partakers of Gods spirit, the sulnesse of which is in Christ, as this spirit produced in Christ, who is your head the effect of resurrection, by his omnipotent power, and his personall property to bee the nearest cause of life in all things, and in vertue of his holinesse, wherewith hee had replenished his humane nature, and so taken from it all proper cause of death, which is sinne. Psal. 16. 10. Acts 2. 24. So hee shall likewise produce the same effect in you, by his power, and by the meanes of your sanctification which is the resurrection of the soule, which shall be followed by that of the body that hath participated of the same holinesse, hath borne the sacred signes, and produced the effects thereof in this life.

Debters] that is to say, bound by the condition of our spirituall state, by contract of covenant, and by benefits received.

After the flesh] following the motions of your owne naturall corruptions, See Gal. 6. 8. Yee shall dye] namely the everlasting death. Through the spirit] if you make use of the gifts of the holy Ghost and of his exercises, continually desire his assistance, and cooperate with his motions and power, to mortifie the concupiscences, and sins which are practised by the body, and doe yet reside in you during this corporall life. Now he seemes here to oppose that onely effectuall meanes of the spirit, to all humane meanes which are too weake; as lawes, reason, doctrines, disciplines, &c. Ye shall live,] namely in heavenly glory and happinesse.

V. 14. For as many] he gives a reason why the promise of life is made to regenerate men: namely because being made children of God by adoption sealed by the spirit of regeneration, thay are consequently heires.

V. 15. For ye,] he proveth further that they are children, by the holy Ghost who is the seal of their adoption, & imprints the feeling therof in them, and causeth them to feel the effects thereof and bear the fruits, and yeeld the duties thereof contrarie to his operation towards those consciences which are absolutly under the law, servedly tied to work to gain the wages, being in continuall terror of the punishment, without comfort liberty, or confidence: In which manner the spirit of God in some sort had also used the beleevers in the legal discipline under the old testament using them as younger sons under tuition, with much subjection and feare; whereas now the spirit of grace, being fully powredout as upon eldest sonnes, filleth them with confidence and liberty towards God. Gal. 1 3. we cry,] with a holy boldnesse, wee sweetly and tenderly call upon our heavenly father crying out like little children. See upon Marke. 14. 36.

V. 16. The spirit,] as he stirs us on to call upon God our father, so he likewise assureth us on his part and sealeth it in our hearts, that we are his children.

V. 17. Then heirs, having right by this gift of adoption, to the everlasting goods of the heavenly father, in the communion of Christ, essential sonn of the father, and sole heire by nature. See Mat. 28. 18. Heb. 1. 2 if so be,] S. Paul purposing to go on to the effect of the holy ghost, namly to comfort beleevers in their afflictions doth first set down that they are by Gods appointment, a necessary condition to attain to glory, to the imitation of Christ their head, with him,] as he hath suffered for his cause in the communion of his body in manner of an army that fighteth with its head See 2. Cor. 1. 5. 6. 7. Col 1. 24.

V. 18. For I,] we must supply This condition ought to be freely embraced by beleevers, for the good which is promised under that condition, is farre greater then the evil which they can feare therein.

V. 19. For the,] he proves the height of this glory because it is the end of all things, which do aspire thereunto by a naturall instinct but especially beleevers, who have the chief part therein waiteth for,] looks attentively for the time, when it shall cleerely appear, which are the true qualities, rights and privileges of Gods children, in the perfect love of God in his likenesse, in the inheritance and possession of his blessednesse, and in the enjoying of his glory.

V. 20. For the,] he gives a reason of the whole words ayming at this last mark, namely because it hath been by mans sin, put besides its first and naturall establishment into which as one should say it desires to be set again, made subject,] being drawen by man, to serve for an instrument to sinne, and to the vaine end of seeking its good in creatures forsaking the creator, and consequently being enfolded in Gods curse, in the continuall disorder, ruine, and destruction of many of its parts, and finally to the annyhilation of this outward fabrick of the world. Psa 102. 26. not willingly,] according to Gods first institution, who hath given all creatures certain naturall vies, to which they seem voluntarly to incline, whereas seduction seemes to have some resemblance of violence. of him] namely man who was the onely cause of this curse. Gen. 3. 17 in hope,] grounded upon this, that it having suffered part of the curse for mans sin, when he shall be fully reestablished in grace and glorie all tracks of curse shall be also quite extinguished in the world and it set downe Isa. 51. 16. and 65. 17. and 66. 22.

V. 21. Delivered,] it shall be no more subject to any alteration nor corruption as it is this present, nor should not serve for object or instrument of sin but shall according to its degree and nature participate of the glorious estate of Gods children freed from all evills and wants.

V. 22. For we know,] that is to say though the world seem at this present to be in its highest splender and beauty yet it hath an evil which burthens it and sighs it, namely sin, of which burthren it would faine be eased in a maner like a woman that is great with child which not withstanding will not be untill the resurrection.

V. 23. and not only,] that which the world doth by a secret inclination, without any feeling or discerne, we beleevers do it thorow knowledg and spirituall judgment sighing for grief under the burden of sin which we bear, & with a desire to be perfectly freed from it, the first fruits] namely that first degre of regeneration and gifts of the spirit which is conferred in this life, for a pledge of the perfection which shall be in the eternall life. 2 Cor. 1. 22. and 5. 5. Ephes. 1. 14 the adoption,] namely the full manifestation and effect hereof in the delivering of our bodyes from the power of death by the resurrection Psal. 49 15.

V. 24. For we,] it ought not to seeme strange that I say that we waite though wee be saved already, for we are not so as yet but onely by right, and not perfectly in deed which is evident by the nature of the vertue of hope, chief amongst those which the spirit creates in us, which would not take place, if the effect of our salvation were present. See 1. Cor. 13. 13.

V. 25. But if wee,] the Italian, and if wee,] that is hope by which even at this time wee doe apprehend our happinesse which is not as yet revealed, be lively and well grounded it ought to produce in us an invincible patience, for any length of time, suffering of troubles and oppositions, to receive the effect at the appointed time. See 1. Thess. 1. 3. Iam. 1. 4.

V. 26. Likewise,] the same spirit which hath imprinted ingendred these privations and defects in us, doth likewise worke another effect in us, namely to strengthen and beare us up in our weaknesses: and that by the meanes of holy prayer, by which wee obtaine from God, his grace, and strength and whatsoever else is necessarie for our salvation. 2 Cor. 12. 8. 9. maketh intercession,] See Mat. 10. 20 which cannot be,] whose fervour, vehemency and efficicie proceeding from supernaturall motion of the spirit, cannot apprehended nor expressed. Others without speaking, that is to say whose vertue doth not consist in number, or in use of words, as the hipocrites prayers. Matth. 6. 5. but in lively feelings and ejaculations of the spirit. Now and he,]namely God knoweth all these motions of the spirit wondrous well, and doth hear them and accept of them, according,] not onely in desiring just and holy things and according to his will. 1. Iohn. 5. 14. but also in the firmenesse of faith, and in the fervour of zeale which he requires.

V. 28. And we know,]he falleth a speaking of afflictions againe, and sheweth that they are not contrary but rather helpfull and cooperant to everlasting salvation, by diverse holy and profitable properties, that all things,] namely all things that happen unto us in this life are directed by Gods providence to the eternall happinesse of his children and specially afflictions, of which he means to speak more expressely, to them,] his meaning is that God and man must concure in this man in overcomming all oppositions and difficulties for the love of God and God the first author of salvation by his eternall, action, accomplishing of it powerfully by the conduct of his providence, who are the called,]effectually to the participation of his grace in Christ, according to his most free and immutable election.

V. 29. for whom,] he proves that the order and course of the salvation of Gods children, can no way be broken by anie accident, namely because it is all the worke of God who is almighty and immutable, foreknew,] that is to say chosen from everlasting, and as it were marked and accepted from amongst other men, so is the word of knowing taken. Iere. 33. 32. 17. Psal. 1. 6. Ier. 1, 5. Matth. 7. 23. Rom. 11. 2. 1 Cor. 13. 12. 2. tim. 2. 19. 1 pet. 1. 2. predestinate,] that is to say appointed to be conformable, in life and eternall glory, to his sonne their head, and that by the order and sequele of resembling him in many things in this world, but particularly in afflictions. 1. 17. that he,] because he would have his own sonne have many adoptive brethren, whose head it should be as the first borne were in their families. See Col. 1. 15. 18. Rom. 1. 5. 5. 3.

V. 30. Them he also glorified,] that is to say he shall certainly and infallibly glorifie them the cause, ground and pledge whereof is Christs glorification which is already happned, who is their head. Ephes. 2. 6. Col. 3. 1.

V. 32. delivered him,] beeing his perfect dilection and conjunction, he hath made him ours, exposing him to be subject to death, and to all our debts for our sakes.

V. 33. 34. That died,] for them, and in their name and stead, whereby they are absolued, is risen again,] See upon Rom 4. 25. maketh intercession, by continually representing himself, his righteousnes his mercy & love before the face of God to preserve us in his favour and dilection and also by fervently desiring our salvation & finally himself presenting our prayers to God, sanified and made acceptable to him, and by him.

V. 35. Who shall,] what grief or calamity, can make us doubt that Christ hath withdrawne his love from us; and make us cease from loving him.

V. 36. as it is,] nothing can, nor ought to do it yea for love of him wee ought to suffer all manner of extremities, according to the faithfulls protestation in that Psalme.

V. 37. Nay in all,] we ought in all these chances to persevere in Christs love, seeing Christ perseveres in his, giving us, by his power, compleate victorie in all our combates, conquerours,] now the victory consists not, in not suffering, nor fighting; but in overcoming, or in keeping that wherefore we fight, or in overthrowing our enemie, in such sort that he may not hinder our profession and fruition. Now the subject of this worke is Gods grace and glorie, which cannot perish nor be taken away from the elect, that loved us,] namely hath loved us an continueth so loving unto the end. Iohn. 13. 1.

V. 38. I am perswaded Saint Paul speaketh in the name of all beleevers, and by the common spirit of faith 2. Cor. 4. 13. and not by any speciall and personall revelation, neither death,] this enumeration serves but onely for an exaggeration as if he should say nothing shall seperate us, let it be never so great and powerfull, nor length,] namely evill ones. Vnlesse it be conditionally understood of goodnesse also namely if it were possible that they should undertake it as Gal. 1 8. Principalities,]these names are often attributed to Angels. either good or bad, by reason of the degrees and dignities amongst them, or of the glorious estate of the good ones in heaven, or by reason of their goverment over the empires of the world. Dan. 10. 13. Others understand this of the princes of the world.

V. 39 Which is in,] whereof Christ is the foundation, and bond between God and men.

Chap. IX.

Verse 1. I say,] the Apostle having in the former chapter, spoken of eternall election in the person of true beleevers: Now likewise he comes to speak of reprobation in the person of those Iewes, who thorough ineredulitie had rejected the gospel which he propounds by way of commiseration in himself, and by the way of remedying of scandal in the weake, or of instruction to all in Christ] by a motion which is no whit carnall nor humane, but inspired by Christ thorow his spirit. Or like one who is a true member of Christ, and ought to speake nothing but truth, In the,] the Italian by the,] being enlightened, and guided by the holy Ghost to not erre nor lye.

V. 2. That I have great,] namely for the Iewes fall and rejection, thorow their obstinate incredulitie and thus he obviates the slander which was laid upon him, that he was an enemy to his nation.

V. 3. For I,] as much as to say the compassion which I feel extendeth so farre, that if it might bee. I should desire to be as a person condemned to beare upon my self the common punishment of the people to have them freed from it. An impossible wish, conceaved by the Apostle onely to witnesse his charitie towards his brethren, and his zeale of Gods glory, which he supposed would be more illustrated by the salvation of a whole nation, then by his only, were accused the Italian, were anathema,] that is to say held as accursed and execrable: and as such a one cut off from the communion of the church and of the bodie of Christ as they anciently used to doe to such persons. Num. 15. 4. Deut. 21. 23. Ios. 7. 12. 1. Sam. 21. 6.

V. 4. To whom,] namely whom God had chosen, and taken for his children of his meere grace, the glorie,] namely Gods glorious presence in his Temple, and especially in the Ark. See 1. Sam. 4. 21. Psal. 26. 8. and 78. 60. and 96. 10. the covenants,] namely the severall tokens and seales of the covenant of grace. Or the Law of God and the tables thereof. Deut. 9. 11. The promises,] of the Messias, and of the spirituall and everlasting goods.

V. 5. The fathers,] namely those reverend patriarches, Abraham, Isaack and Iacob, and others who have had so many singular privileges, and are perpetuall patternes and lights of the church, over all,] or over all things.

V. 6. Not as though,] here ought to bee supplied. Though I see the body of my nation fallen from their right of being Gods people, which causeth this extreame grief in me, yet will I not inferre thereupon, that God hath failed in his promises of grace which he had made vnto them, because I know that they were directed and are appropriated, to the spirituall Israel onely by faith, and not to the bodyly Israel by corporall generation, of Israel,] namely issued corporally from Iacob, or of the people of Israel.

V. 7. But in,] as the promises which God made to Abraham, to continue his covenant and the blessed seed in his posteritie, did not belong to all his posteritie in differentlie, but unto Isaack alone, excluding Ismael and others, so the promises of Gods grace in the Messias, are not for all those which descended from Israel, but for those who are answering to Isaack in that manner as is hereafter set downe.

V. 8. Of the promise,] namely that are thought and are brought forth by a speciall grace of God which untoldeth it self, first in a singular and voluntarie promise, and then in a powerfull and true effect. As Isaack was born by miracle, whereas Ismael was borne by the accustomed course of nature.

V. 9. For this,] namely this appeares in Isaacks generation, which ought to be the blessed branch for whose generation God made this promise, which he performed by his almighty power Rom. 4. 21. having made none for Ismael.

V. 10. And not only,] because that it might seeme in the example of Isaack and Ismael, that the preferring of the one was, because he was borne of the lawfull wife and the other of a concubine: the Apostle confirmes that which he had spoken by the example of of two twinnes, borne of the same father and mother, and yet distinguished by Gods soveraigne will, in the acceptation of them in his covenant, and in the continuance of the body of the holy Ghost,

V. 11. Neither having done,] God considering them in their naturall state, wherein they were both the sonnes of Adam equally sinners and corrupt, having done no actuall good nor evil one more then the other, which should merit this distinction, that the purpose,] God pronounced this his decree, concerning the preferring of the younger before the elder, whilest they were yet both in the wombe, that it might appeare, it was grounded vpon his absolute pleasure and will, and not upon any merit or desert of theirs, according to the election,] namely by which he had determined to chuse the one, and leave the other, not of workes,] namely not by vertue of any observation of condition, depending upon mans will which might have made the decree wavering and uncertain, being that man is variable in all things which he doth, but of him,] namely Gods power, who in time executs by his calling, that which from everlasting he had determined by his election, that called,] he th t by his almighty power causeth what he pleases to be born, and have being, which of it self is nothing nor cannot make it self. See Rom. 4. 17.

V. 12. Shall serve,] namely, shall lose his right of first borne, in signe that the part and right of being the blessed one shall be taken away from him and his posteritie, and shall be in the world as a servant in the fathers house, in comparison of Iacob, who shall be as the true sonne and heire.

V. 13. As it is,] that word of serving must bee expounded by this other phrase, for a privation from Gods fatherly love.

V. 14. Is there namely] in not shewing equall favor to persons which are equally sinnefull and wretched.

V. 16. For he saith,] by this passage it appeares, that the difference which God makes betweene men, being a worke of meere grace and mercy, is without of obligation & that in it he hath no regard of mans merit. Of whom I will,] of whomsoever I will have it, according to my will and pleasure.

V. 16. It is not,] seeing that the election is of pure mercy, it cannot bee attributed to any will or endeavour of man.

V. 17. For,] the same appeares by the rejection of some persons as of Pharaoh, a professed enemy of God, whom God had determined to leave in his natural malignity, without correcting it by his grace, that so filling to the supreme degree, he might combat him by his power, to the greater manifestation of his glory. The scripture saith,] namely God in the scripture Exod. 9.] willingly suffered thee to bee borne in the world, ordained to the kingdome, and effect thy wickednesse against me.

V. 18. Therefore,] not mollifying his rebellious heart, inclining it to obedience, whereby all those Apostles which God outwardly makes use of, though endued with good and most holy, are by man converted to an occasion of hardnesse and rebellion.

V. 19. Why,] an objection either of a carnall and grosse ignorance, who doth not apprehend the Apostles true meaning in this aforesaid will of God, and blasphemy of man, or of a reprobates rage, who imputes his perdition to God, because hee hath not pardoned him his sinne, which is the onely true cause thereof. Findeth fault,] with those that are hardened by his will, for to punish them.

V. 20. Nay but,] to answere such false opinions, and wicked objections of the reprobate, it is sufficient to say, that the worke of grace is of meere free will: wherefore if he doth deprive some of it, hee doth them no wrong, seeing hee is not bound to it, and that he proceeds against them in justice for their sin, of which this privation is no cause; Made me,] as that God doth indeed make a man a sinner, or that he is author of sin, but by this word of making is meant the appointing of mans last end, according to the state which hee is in, either of grace to life, or of sin, in which God hath left him to death. Ecclesiast. 16. 4.

V. 21. Thee'ay,] which here represents humane nature in its universall corruption, there being no other difference in it, but onely what God makes by his free will and destination. Vnto honour,] for honourable use, as vessells to eat and drinke in, vessells for ornament, &c. which is correspondent to the end of eternall glorie. To dishonour,] namely for filthie and base use, which is correspondent to the reprobates everlasting ignominie, Isa. 66. 24. Dan. 12. 2.

V. 22. What if God] is there any cause of contending with God, seeing that in the most free exercise of his love, one right in saving the one, and punishing the other, hee useth an infinite deale of mildenesse towards the wicked, for to draw them to repentance, which how-ever doth nothing but harden them in evill. Rom. 2. 4. 5. This seemes to have a speciall regard to the Iewish nation, towards whom God had used an infinite deale of patience, before he did utterly reject them. The vessells,] namely those men upon whom he meant to exercise his severe judgment, likned before to vessells of his dishonour. Fitted,] whose state of sinne and corruption, not pardoned nor corrected by Gods grace, is fit for no other use, but onely to be examples, and subjects of Gods justice.

V. 23. That he might.] in that foresaid mildenesse, God hath also had a regard of his elect, of that, and all other nations which he hath not destroyed. Acts 17. 30. Rom. 3. 25, 26. to make those who are of his elect amongst them, at his appointed time, partakers of the abundance of his admirable and glorious mercy in Christ. See Ephes. 1. 18. and 3. 16. Col. 1. 27. The vessells,] namely those men whom hee had by his free will appointed to bee the subjects of his grace. Afore,] namely had chosen them from everlasting, and predestinated them to the soveraigne end of heavenly glorie. Ephes. 1. 4. 2. Tim. 1. 9.

V. 24. whom he,] this most free counsell of God hath appeared at this present time by the manifestation of the Gospell, by which God calleth effectually to his grace whom he pleaseth, without any distinction of nation, or regard of merits; and by his calling causeth them to be what he would have them, which is truely to be children of the promise. v. 8.

V. 27. Esaias,] contrarie to this promise made to the Gentiles, Esaias declares that onely a small number of chosen Iewes shall be saved. Rom. 11. 5.

V. 28. For hee,] for after he shall have used long patience with the body of the nation God shall at the last come to a rigorous and diffinitive judgement, to separate the false and hypocriticall Iewes, and utterly reject them.

V. 29. And as,] Esaias had formerly propounded an example and image of what happeneth at this present to the Iewish nation, whereof the greatest part perisheth, and onely a smal remnant is saved.

V. 30. what shall we say.] what ought we to gather from this example of the Gentiles calling, who formerly lived without any knowledge of Gods will, or any care of fulfilling of it, and from the Iewes reiection who were very well instructed, and verie carefull of the discipline & outward observation of the law? but onlie that salvation is a gift ofmeere grace thorow mercy upon mans greatest unworthinesse as I have said before. The righteousnesse,] namely, the gift of being reputed just before God in Christ in whom they have believed, which is the onely righteousnesse for a man to obtaine life. Rom. 3. 21, 22, 26.

V. 31. To the law,] to the end and fulfilment of the law, which is to pronounce righteous, and give life to him, that hath perfectly observed it. Or to the true establishment of Evangelical righteousnes which only is saving.

V. 32. Because,] because that instead of being guided by the Law to Christ, who is the true end of it, Rom. 10. 4. Gal 3. 24. to embrace his righteousnesse by faith, they have sought righteousnes in themselves by their workes. For they,] so farre have they beene from seeking their righteousnesse in Christ, that contrariwise they have from thence taken matter of scandall to go further from him, and have encountred with him by rebellion and enmity, whereupon he is become to them an occasion of ruine.

V. 33. On him,] namely in Christ, meant here by Iesus umbling stone.

Chap. X.

Ver. 2. For I,] namely the greatest part sinneth thorow ignorance, bearing a generall vehement affection to Gods glory, his word and service, but without the light of Gods Spirit, and without the guide of certaine knowledge.

V. 3. Being ignorant,] that is to say, their naturall sence being not able to comprehend that mans true righteousnesse, by vertue of which he may subsist before God, is a meere gift of God in Christ, and not a work of man, Rom. 1. 17. and 3. 21. and besides striving to maintaine the dignitie of their own workes, they have by that means withdrawn themselves from the true obedience of Moses his Law, the principall end of which was to conduct them to Christ, who alone hath perfectly fulfilled it for men.

V. 5. For Moses, that which I speake of mans free justice in Christ, appeares by this, that whereas the Law commands to do, and labour, to acquire righteousnesse, and by it salvation and life, the Gospell contrariwise presents this righteousnesse as already acquired: which wee need but onely to receave and retaine in our heart by a lively faith, accompanied with free confession.

V. 6. Speaketh on this wise,] Sr. Paul maketh use of this passage, though spoken in another sence, simply, for a pourtraiture of the Evangelicall promises of salvation, which doe not send a man back to much labour, as to gaine a good thing which is yet far from him, but doth present them to him within himselfe, if he will but only bee pleased to receave them. Who shall ascend,] that is to say shall I undertake by mine owne workes to obtaine a right to enter into eternall life. That is,] no indeed, for that would bee renouncing of Christ, and disannulling of his merit, by vertue of which, hee alone hath gotten the entrance and possession of heaven for all beleevers. See Iohn 3. 13.

V. 7. Who shall descend,] shall I try to take upon my selfe the paines of death and hell for satisfaction for mine owne sinnes? That is,] God forbid that I should undertake it, for by that meanes I should disannull the effect of Christs death.

V. 8. The word,] that is to say the thing promised thee by this Evangelicall grace, namely life in Gods grace, is by faith in thy heart, as in a lively spring and in confession, as a continuall respiration.

Ver. 9. With thy mouth,] by this duty is meant all other duties: for all the workes of a Christian are an effect and testimony of his faith, and a perpetuall thankesgiving and acknowledgement. Hath raised him,] this head which is the accomplishment of the worke of redemption comprehends all the rest, and hath a speciall relation, those two foresaid parts, of descending, and going up againe into heaven, for the resurrection presupposeth death, and sets downe the glorious returne from it.

V. 10. For with,] because God hath established this order, and these meanes: namely of faith to be justified: and of confession, and any orderly life for a perpetuall acknowledgement of this admirable benefit, as a man to attaine to the fruition of salvation and hath in a manner coupled them together, so that it is impossible there should bee a true and lively faith, without confession, as there can no life in man without respiration.

V. 12. For there,] hee gives a reason for this universall terme, whosoever, which he hath added in the precedent verse to the passage of Isaiah, where it is not expressed. Lord,] namely Iesus Christ by his death and Resurrection hath gotten him a title to be Lord over all men: and to bee the head of all his Elect a middest all nations, to distribute the graces of his spirit unto them. Yet is it not with him as it is with men, for hee is no whit empoverished by the multitude of them who have part in his goods: neither is there before God any other difference amongst men, but onely of those that acknowledge him and call upon him, and of those that doe not, as it is proved by the ensuing passage.

V. 14. How then,] he proves the said indifferencie of nations, because that the meanes to attaine to salvation, by the true invocation of God hath been made common to them all; and consequently faith, and so from time to time the hearing of Gods Word and preaching, and according as the one is ordained by the other: and at last every thing resolves it self, into the Soveraigne cause of Gods good will and pleasure: Who hath also accompanied these substantiall meanes, with his power, to produce their lively effect of faith and confession. Without a,] because the Gospell is but a publication of Gods secret will, which cannot be knowne, unlesse he reveale it himselfe.

V. 15. And how,] this preaching being an embassage, of grace and peace, presupposeth a sending from God well verified and authorized by himselfe. As it is,] these passages of the Prophets may be referred to this sending or mission of the Apostles, to preach grace which no man knew of nor had any power to bring being tydings of it, without the expreſſe declaration, and commiſſion of the offended Soveraigne.

V. 15. Not all] as there is indifferency of nations, ſo there is a great deale of difference of perſons, ſome believing, and ſome not, as Iſaiah foreſeeth, and ſo making the preaching unprofitable. See Heb. 4. 2.

V. 17. By hearing,] that is to ſay it is not grounded nor doth not reſolve it ſelfe, into naturall principles, nor into diſcourſe of reaſon nor into humane authority, nor into apprehenſion of the underſtanding, but onely into the declaration which is made thereof to man: which alſo hath neither truth nor power, but onely by its faithfull relation and conformity to Gods originall word.

V. 18. But I ſay,] as for the Iewes that have not believed, what can bee ſaid of them? It is becauſe they have heard nothing of the Goſpell? No, for Ver. 6. the ſame Pſal. 19. 4. it hath runne over all the world, Col. 1. 6, 23. ſhall wee then ſay that the defect was in them, who have rejected the light of the bring knowledge of the Goſpell which the Gentiles have accepted? he anſwereth, v. 19. that it cannot be gainſaid ſeeing that Moſes did formerly proteſt the ſame.

V. 20. Very bold and,] with a holy freedome, without bearing ſo much reſpect to this nation, or to the vain of it. That ſought mee not, to ſhew that all the Gentiles advantage was out of eſpeciall grace, and an effect of their free election. But that God did exerciſe the rigor of his juſtice towards the Iewes, upon their hardened rebellion.

Chap. XI.

Ver. 1. HAth God,] ought one therefore to ſay or thinke that God hath taken away his grace, or cut off all his people Iſrael from his covenant, and for ever? God forbid,] that can not bee ſaid, neither of all the people, whereof I am one and others with me choſen by God in whom his covenant is ratified: nor of the body of the people for ever for the time will come that they ſhall bee re-eſtabliſhed, ver. 11.

V. 2. Fore knew,] that is to ſay choſen, and ordained from everlaſting to ſalvation, Rom. 8. 29.

V. 6. And if,] this ſeemes to be inſerted, againſt thoſe Iewes who being become Chriſtians, did notwithſtanding repoſe ſome part of their righteouſneſſe and confidence in the workes of the Law: which Saint Paul ſheweth could by no meanes be done, for thoſe two wayes of righteouſneſſe and ſalvation are incompatible the one with the other, Rom. 4, 4, 5 Gal. 5. 2. 4.

Ver. 7. What then,] my diſcourſe commeth to this that the body of the Iewiſh Nation, ſeeking their righteouſneſſe by the Law, have not obtained of God to bee reputed juſt and to have right to everlaſting life, Rom. 9. 31. and 10. 3. The election,] namely that ſmall number from amongſt them which is choſen by God; by vertue of this election hath bin endowed with the ſpirit of faith in the Goſpel, which propoundeth Chriſts only righteouſneſſ, The reſt,] the common people have taken occaſion to harden themſelves in their rebellion, being ſcandalized at the Goſpel which is contrary to their fleſhly underſtanding. See Rom. 9. 18.

V. 8. Of ſlumber,] the Greeke word ſignifieth the deadly ſlumber of thoſe who have beene ſtung with ſome venemous beaſt.

V. 9. Let their table,] may all bleſſings and chiefly the proffer of the Goſpel, which they have hitherto abuſed prove an occaſion of ruine and perdition to them for a iuſt puniſhment of their ingratitude.

V. 10. Bow downe,] make them unable to lift up the eyes of the ſpirit to thee and to thy Goſpel, or to reſtiſie themſelves by converſion of heart, or to doe any thing that is right or good, and contrariwiſe burthen them with thy curſe like to a heavie burthen: or with fetters of bondage with which the Hebreve terme of the Pſalme which ſaieth make their loynes continually to ſhake, a greeth very well.

V. 11. Iſay,] ſhall it then be ſaid that the body of this nation, hath taken ſuch a falſe ſubiect of ſcandall a gainſt the Goſpel, that it is therby fallen irreparably into a finall apoſtaſie, God ſo bid,] God hath revealed it otherwiſe to me, namly that he will yet on day call the Iewes againe, and reſtore them to his covenant, which in this meane tyme, as upon an occaſion Acts. 13. 42. he will communicate to the Gentiles that in his appointed time he may make uſe of this favour beſtowed upou the Gentiles, as a prick of holy ſealouſy to the Iewes, to prick them on to take part in this everlaſting benefit.

V. 12. Now if the fall,] if God hath made uſe of the Iewes reiection, for an occaſion of powering out the riches of his grace thorow out the world, and if the number of beleeving Iewes being much deminiſhed, a great multitude of Gentils hath bin converted, how much more abundant ſhall Gods grace be, and the number of beleevers increated even amongſt the Gentiles themſelves, when the body of the Iewes, here called fulneſſe, being re-eſtabliſhed in Chriſt, ſhall fill the world with wonder, ſhall raiſe up all mens hearts to God, ſhall induce unbeleevers to believe, ſhall confirme beleevers, and ſhall ſett the Goſple in its full luſtre, and Chriſt into the fruition of his univerſall Empire of the world? He addes this to induce the Gentiles, to deſire and ſeeke after this converſion of the Iewes, without fearing to be therfore reiected as the Iewes had bin for theirs.

V. 13. For I ſpeake,] I ſay that as the fall, ſo the riſing againe of the Iewes, ſhall bee.

for the Gentiles advantage: and in this manner doe I honour, those to whom mine Apostleship hath bin specially destined, not to cause them to grow proud, ver. 17. but to induce the Iewes to a holy concurrencie.

Ver. 14. Them which are,] Namely the Iewes of which Nation I am. And might save,] to bee even from this houre an instrument of their salvation, until God recall the body of the Nation, 1 Cor. 7. 16. and 9. 22. 1 Tim. 4. 16. Iam. 5. 20.

V. 15. For if,] this re-establishment of the Iewes ought to be desired of all beleevers, because that if upon occasion of their rejection, the Gentiles have had part in Gods grace by the Gospell, by their recalling, they shall obtaine a joy and glory, much like to the heavenly one, by the spirituall resurrection of this so noble part, accompanied with a glorious manifestation of CHRISTS Kingdome, and admirable effects.

Ver. 16. For if,] God chusing and sanctifying Abraham for the first fruit, and stocke of the blessed race, hath also out of his free will, given his naturall progenie this priviledge, that they shall never wholly and for ever fall from his grace and covenant, See Iez. 31. 35, 36. and 33. 24, 25. The first fruit,] these similitudes have no relation to the proving of the ground of the foresaid priviledge, which is nothing but Gods free will: but onely to set down the effects of it, as in the Law the use of the fruits of the earth was sanctified and blessed by God, by meanes of the offering of the first fruits which were offered unto him, Lev. 19. 24. Deut. 26. 2. and in the order of nature, the boughes follow the nature of the roote, Matth 7. 17. and 12, 33. So God having consecrated Abraham, did doe it likewise for the benefit of his posterity, to have alwayes some respect of grace towards it, to restore it into his covenant, though he suffer many eclipses and interruptions to happen in it.

V. 17. The branches,] the roote is Abraham, the Olive tree is the Iewish nation and Church, the broken branches are the unbeleeving and reprobate Iewes: the wilde branches which are grafted in, are the Gentiles, grafted into the body of the Church, and admitted into the covenant made with Abraham, the fulnesse and sap, are the blessing and promises made to Abraham and his seed.

V. 18. Boast not,] doe not attribute this benefit to thine owne merits, and doe not insult, over the Iewes, for if thou doest it in respect of thine election, and their reprobation: humble thy selfe rather, seeing that all thy substancie, is but only out of Gods grace: and be instructed to persevere in faith, with holy sollicitude, and diffidencie of thy selfe to crave continuall assistance at Gods hands, 1 Cor. 10. 12.

Ver. 22. To his goodnesse,] Namely in the state of grace in which thou hast beene set, and if thou beest the fruits thereof, and art accordingly thankefull unto the Lord for it. Otherwise,] all this ought to be understood of the externall incorporation into the Church by profession, of which many hypocrites have part, and not of that lively, internall, and perpetually and effectuall, into the mysticall body of Christ, by a lively faith and communion of the spirit, according to Gods election, which is alwayes accompanied with perseverance. See Matt. 22. 14. 15. 13.

Ver. 23. Shall bee grafted,] shall be restored into the communion of the Church.

Ver. 24. Of the Olive tree,] Namely of the brethren race, who were not regenerate by the spirit, nor manured by Gods word, without sweetnesse of grace, or fruit pleasing to God, Ephes. 2, 3, 12. Contrary to,] by the voluntary worke of grace. The naturall,] the native off-spring of Abraham, who is their stocke.

V. 25. Mistery,] namely of the last conversion of the Iewes, obscurely touched by the Prophets, Is. 11. 11. Zech. 12. 10. and more clearely manifested in the Gospell, Matth. 23, 39. Luk. 21. 24. 2 Cor. 3. 16. Rev. 12. 6. and fully revealed to Saint Paul, as well as many other secrets. In part,] in respect of the greater part of the people out of which hath only beene excepted a small number of Elect. ver. 1. 5. The fulnesse,] Namely the great number, opposite to those few Iewes, who then and since, have joyned themselves to the Christian Church.

V. 26. All Israel,] Namely the body of the people in generall shall be put againe into the way of salvation, and re-established in the Church. Others understand this of the whole Church, composed of Iewes and Gentiles. Which seemes to remaine imperfect, so long as the Iewes are excluded out of it. Out of Sion,] Isaiah speaking of the first comming of Christ in the flesh, saith he shall come into Sion. But the Apostle applying that passage, to the second manifestation in grace and power towards the Iewes saith out of Sion, that is to say, out of the middest of the Church, where hee makes his abode in spirit, he shall call and gather together the Iewes.

V. 27. For this is,] the Apostle relates none but the beginning of the 20. ver. of that 59. chap. Isay without setting downe all the rest, which is of the substance of this covenant, and makes more for this present subject. When I shall,] this seemes added out of Isa. 27. 9. very fitt'ngly for this matter.

V. 28. They are,] that is to say, the Iewes for this present time are alienate from God, by reason of their rebellion against the Gospell, which onely can unite soules to God 1 Thes. 2. 15. For your sakes,] Namely for your benefit, because the Iewes apostacie hath gi-occasion for your vocation, ver. 11. and moreover, becaus'e God hath redoubled his grace towards the Gentiles by the fall of the Iewes, as a Father will love one of his children more dearely after the death of the other. As touching the,] God doth yet beare some love to this people, for hee hath freely chosen them: and by a singular privilege above all other people, appointed never to reject them totally, v. 16. Ier. 31. 36. For the Fathers,] for the speciall favour he bore to the ancient Fathers.

V. 29. For the gifts,] God never recalls his grace which by absolute decree hee will communicate to some person or nation to call them to him, and to have right to his covenant. Now the election of this people hath beene such above all others in the world. Who being once called, have and may fall totally and irreparably which this people cannot without repentance,] that is to say irrevocable, of which God never repents, Psal. 110. 4.

Ver. 30. For as,] wee must supply The intervention of the fruition of this gift, by their fall, doth not hinder the foresaid privilege from subsisting. For God shall also recall the Iewes, in his appointed time, making use of his grace bestowed upon the Gentiles, to provoke the Iewes to conversion, verse 11, 14.

V. 32. For God,] the Soveraigne cause of these things which have happened is Gods absolute will, Who hath suffered the Iewes, to fall into the same fact of rebellion against him as the Gentiles were in, because he might likewise shew towards them at the appointed time the same mercy, that it may appeare that all Nations of themselves are in an equall condition before God, and are all equally saved by the only meanes of his grace. Upon all,] Namely to the generality of those two Nations Iewes and Gentiles.

V. 33. Of the riches,] Namely of Gods grace to saves, Rom. 9. 23. Ephes. 1. 7. and 2. 7. Of the wisdome,] is the meanes and times appointed by him. His judgements,] the rule and proceeding of all his actions and government.

Ver. 35. Or who,] this is added to stoppe the mouthes, of all those whom the Lord forsakes, from complaining.

V. 36. Of him,] he alone is the Soveraigne cause of all things; he himselfe creates all and disposeth all the meanes and secondary causes: and finally hee and his glory are the onely ayme of all great things.

CHAP. XII.

VER. 1. I beseech you,] a conclusion drawne from all the precedent doctrine of this Epistle. By the mercies,] even so far as the infinite mercies of God binde you, See 2 Cor. 10. 1. That is,] that in acknowledgement of all the favours ye have receaved from God, in stead of sacrifices of thanksgiving and of praise which were formerly used, and are now disannulled under the Gospell, you will consecrate your whole persons, quickned by the power of the Holy Ghost. A living sacrifice,] namely in a new life in regeneration of spirit, which also hath a correspondencie with ancient sacrifices, in which a beast that was dead or torne by wild beasts, was uncleane and unacceptable, but they were to be presented living to be Lord, and the bloud of them to bee spilt at the foote of the altar. Reasonable,] that is to say spirituall opposite to the sacrifices of brute beasts under the Law. See Hos. 14. 2. Mal. 1. 11. Phil. 4. 18. Heb. 13. 15, 16. 1 Pet. 2. 5.

V. 2. To this,] Namely to the customes inclinations and actions of worldly and corrupt men Transformed,] that is to say regenerated, and changed from your naturall wickednesse, in all the parts of your soule; beginning from the highest which is understanding and reason; by which the spirit of God also worketh upon the inferior. Gods grace following the order of nature in its operation. Ye may prove,] that ye may by this gift of spirituall judgment, discerne and approve, that Gods Law is all good, lovely, and compleate, Psalme 19. 8, 11. Rom. 7. 16. 22. to submit your selves unto it with a free will. Or that yee may prove that, which according to this Law is good & acceptable to God, and rightly correspondent to his will, to doe it. See Phil. 1. 10. and Rom. 2. 18. Ephes. 5. 10, 17. Colos. 1. 9. and 3, 10.

V. 3 For I,] this instruction of having the knowledge of the will of God, for a guide in all our actions, is a very great one for it takes place in all callings, especially ecclesiasticall ones, to not undertake any thing therein, of ones proper minde. Through the grace,] namely the charge and authority of Apostle, guided by an infallible conduct of Gods spirit. Soberly,] that is to say modestly, holily keeping within the bounds of the revelation of Gods Word, the onely rule of faith, and within the measure of the degree of knowledge which others have in it.

V. 4. For as,] he gives a reason, of this diversity of measure: because that there be diverse functions amongst beleevers, and according to those functions God conferreth his gift.

V. 6. Prophecie,] this was one of the extraordinary degrees of Ecclesiasticall ministery in those dayes: in which some persons by speciall inspiration of the Holy Ghost, were enlightned in the knowledge of Gods mysteries, to expound them in the Church: to which was oftentimes joyned the revelation of secret and future things. See Acts 11. 27. and 13. 27. and 13. 1. and 14. 32. and 21, 9. According to,] according to the just measure, of this illumination in the doctrine of faith without adding or changing any thing therein of their owne mind.

Ver. 7. Ministery,] under this word are comprehended all ordinary ecclesiasticall functions: which afterwards are divided into two generall kindes, of the word, and of pious works, that of the word likewise into two, of Doctors and Pastors: that of pious works, into distribution of Almes, into the externall government of the Church, and the relieving of the sicke and afflicted, &c. Let us waite on,] without going beyond the bounds of our vocation, or of the gift of God belonging unto it. He that teacheth,] whose office was to expound the tenents of the Christian faith, in their substance truth and purity, by plaine interpretation, as they doe in the Schooles without an applications to demeanours or any exhortations, or comforts or reproofes, as they use to doe in the Church.

V. 8. He that exhorteth,] namely the Pastor of the Church who addeth the foresaid uses to the doctrine and taketh them out of it: and especially that of exhortation See Acts 13.15. 1 Tim 6 2. Tit. 1.9. and 2. 15. That giveth,] the Italian. He that distributeth,] namely he that hath the office of giving or distributing the publicke almes, which was the Deacons charge, Acts 6. 5. With simplicitie,] without any fraud. Or with an upright affection, without acceptation of persons, without hatred or favour. Or liberally, as a pure and simple gift. See 2. Cor. 8. 2. That ruleth,] he meanes the office of Elders, who together with the graveſt, wiſeſt, and moſt qualified Pastors, made up the Ecclesiasticall Senate, to provide for the occurrent affaires, govern demeanours, pacifie differences, administer discipline in admonitions, censures, &c. 1 Tim. 5.17. That sheweth mercy, the Italian. He that doth pious workes,] as the particular care of the sicke, impotent, Widdowes, Orphans, Prisoners, strangers, &c.

V. 10. Preferring,] the Italian, Preventing,] namely without staying untill it be done to you, and then requiting it: Or goe beyond one another, in honouring one another, that is to say, strive who shall doe most honour to each other, give your selves enterchangeable examples of honour.

V. 11. In businesse,] the Italian, In studie,] which every one is bound to doe in his own vocation to be spiritually carefull of the glory and service of God, the benefit and profit of the Church, and of the salvation of the faithfull. Fervent,] zealous, and burning in spirituall affection. Serving,] that is to say having no other end in all your actions but onely his service.

Ver. 13. Given to,] that is to say with a free will, seeking all meanes and occasions to performe that charitable office toward strangers, putting your selves forward in offering it, as Genesis 18. 2. or striving to doe it.

V. 15 Rejoyce,] be touched with your brethrens good or evill, as if it were your own.

Ver. 16. Of the same minde,] or affection, Of low estate,] to the humble and meane condition and estate of the Church. See 2 Cor. 12. 5, 10.

Ver. 19. Give place,] let it passe, and vanish away, without putting it in practice, or retaining and hatching it within your selves. Others understand it of Gods wrath, in this sence: leave it to God to inflict the punishment himselfe, without preventing him with thy private revenges.

V 21. Be not overcome,] that is to say, be not put besides thy patience or mildnesse by other mens wickednesse. But overcome,] breake and tyer the perversity of others, by thy greater suffering. Or the more they offend thee, the more good doe thou to them.

Chap. XIII.

Verse 1. Highest powers,] Namely to Magistrates established to governe other men. The powers,] God is the Author of this order in the world: And all those who attaine to their dignities, attaine unto them, either by his manifest will and approbation when the meanes are lawfull: Or by his secret providence by meere permission, or toleration, when they are unlawfull. Now it is fitting that man should approve and tolerate, that which God approves and tolerates.

V. 3. For Rulers,] though the power of Rulers, have some terror in it, yet we must not hate them as harmefull persons, and oppose violence to violence, as we doe against theeves, or wilde beasts, for they are a terror but onely to evill men, and are for the good and protection of good men. The Apostle here hath a relation to Gods order, and not to the most wicked vices and abuses of publicke power, which were brought in by men: and he speaketh, because that many Christians, thought themselves to be freed from all humane subjection, by the spirituall liberty of Christs Kingdome. See Cor. 5.10 Iude 8.

V. 4. To thee,] for the defence and quiet of every one that liveth justly and vertuously. A revenger,] appointed to inflict vigorous punishment upon malefactors.

V 5. For wrath.] For feare of receaving bodily punishment from the Prince. For Conscience sake,] by bond of Conscience towards God, because of his Commandement, Eccl. 8.2. 1 Pet. 2.13.

V. 6. For,] hee gives a reason for what hee had said, namely that Princes were Gods Ministers, seeing hee hath inspired that common consent in all Nations to pay them tributes, as tokens of subjection, aides to their office, and recompence of their paines taken for the good of the people.

V. 8. Owe no man,] performe all your duties towards wards men, and after all that, know that there is one dutie from which you can never be freed, namely that of charitie, which hath no certaine limitation of time, nor of actions. For hee,] the Law of Charitie ought to bee the singular estimation with all beleevers: For it is as it were a summary of all the Law, and especially of the second Table. Or doe not beleeve that ever you can be unbound from the command of charitie, no more then you can bee from the observation of the Law, which is comprehended in Charitie, and can not bee fulfilled in any such kinde, that man be absolved from producing the effects of it any more. That loveth,] holily and perfectly according to the true meaning of the Law.

V. 10. Worketh no ill,] doth not suffer any man to doe any harme or offence to his neighbour, but contrary-wise inciteth him to doe him any good.

Verse 11. And that,] these words have a relation, not onely to this last precept of charitie, but also to all other precepts which hee hath given before. The time,] Namely the time of the Gospell, which is as it were the dawning of that great everlasting day which encreaseth and riseth more and more: and therefore is the true time, to forsake the sleepe of sinne and ignorance, in which man was before drowned, with a totall cessation from good workes. See 2 Corinthians 6. ver. 2. Our salvation,] namely the accomplishment thereof in the life everlasting.

Verse. 12. The night,] Namely the time of this worlds lasting, which is but a darke night in respect of the world to come, and is already for the greatest part spent, the everlasting day drawing neere. See 1 Cor. 7. 29. Of darknesse,] Namely dishonest and wicked workes; to doe which men doe shunne the day and the light. Or workes befitting mans naturall wickednesse and ignorance. Put on,] let us bee adorned and furnished with Christian vertues, engendred by the light of GODS Spirit, and becomming the brightnesse of the Gospell; by the meanes of which you may fight against all contrary vices.

Verse 14. Put yee on,] That is say; be possessed and guided by CHRISTS spirit which may adorne you with the true and lively resemblance of him. To fulfill the lusts,] to satisfie the desires of it, which is spoken, to distinguish this vicious desire or curiositie, from the reasonable care, for the necessities and lawfull eases of this mortall life

Chap.

CHAP. XIIII.

VER. 1. Him that is weake,] him that hath not yet a full knowledge, nor is not fully perswaded of the Christian liberty, in the point of meates, dayes, and other Mosaicall observations: the annihilation of which, in those first beginnings could not be beleeved by many. Receave you,] into the communion of the Church into the charitie of your hearts; and into sweete Christian conversation as a true brother. But not,] but beware of disquieting him with troublesome questions, under the pretence of convincing him of his error: which would bee to no purpose considering his present weakenesse and incapacitie: and besides it might endanger the wounding of his conscience, and subverting of his faith. To Doubtfull,] or to ambiguities and perplexities.

Ver. 2. Beleeveth,] is thorowly perswaded, by the doctrine of the Gospell, that his conscience is no more tied to these differences of cleane, or uncleane meates, Matthew 15, 11. Herbes,] in which Moses had appointed no difference, concerning the poreneſſe. Now this was for feare of unadvisedly eating, any uncleane or forbidden foode. See Dan. 1. 12.

Ver. 3. That eateth,] that hath a certaine knowledge of this liberty, and makes use of it. Despise,] as a novice and superstitious person. Judge him,] holding him for a prophane person. For God,] seeing God hath receaved both the one and the other into his church, and accepteth of them for his servants and children, because of their common beliefe in the essentiall heads, man ought neither to contemne the child, nor condemne the servant.

V. 4. He standeth,] this is an anticipation of an objection which these disputers might make concerning such indifferent things, saying. Such a one is weak in his faith, therefore it is fitting to strengthen him, by taking away these scruples otherwise there is some danger that hee may fall. Saint Paul answereth leave the care of it to God to whom hee belongeth, hee knoweth how to provide for it at his appointed time, by augmentation of faith and spirit which he alone can give, and not thou with thy disputing. See Phil. 3. 15.

V. 5. Let every man,] in these diversities above all things one ought to know the will of God clearly, for to conforme himselfe to it. But howsoever, one must also beware of doing any thing, against the feeling of his owne conscience. See verse 14. 1 Cor. 8. 7, 10.

Ver. 6. Hee that] in these particular opinions of other men, concerning such outward things man ought not to entermeddle, neither hath hee any just command from God; the thing belongeth abso-absolutely to God, whose servants they are both the weake and the strong, as it appeares by the acknowledgement which they make of him. See 1 Cor. 8. 8. And giveth,] though hee hath not the use of some kinde of meates, or bodily delights, yet he giveth God thankes as well as the other, who hath a more indifferent fruition of his goods.

V. 7. For none,] Seeing that beleevers belong to God, and seeing they have beene acquired unto him by the death and resurrection of his sonne, whereby they are no more their owne, and much lesse at other mens disposing concerning the state of their soules, no one man hath any right upon the other in these things, for to constraine him or condemne him.

V. 9. Both of the,] of those that beleeve in him, as well during this life, as afterward.

V. 10. But why,] besides that in these contentions Gods right is usurped, by a presumptuous enterprise, the brother-hood which is betweene them is also violated: and therefore let every one rather take care of himselfe, how hee shall give an account of himselfe, at Christs judgment, then trouble himselfe with the state of other men, in these indifferent things.

V. 11. It is written,] this passage is referred to the last judgement, for then it shall be perfectly accomplished.

V. 13. Judge this rather,] that is to say hold this for a certaine and a determined thing amongst you. Or use judgment and discretion therein. That no man put,] that no man give occasion of slakening beliefe, or of causing it to goe astray; nor to give any offence, or grieve the weake brethren.

Ver. 14. By the Lord Iesus,] being enlightned by his word and his spirit, which hee powreth out upon me, as upon a member of his body. Or hee would say that Christ is the cause that all meates are now holy for beleevers, he having purified those who are his from sin, from whence proceeded all the uncleanesse of the creatures: and hath also annihilated the ceremonies of the Law to bring in the true service, and spirituall holinesse, which was figured by them. It is uncleane,] Namely the use thereof is unlawfull to him, because the conscience (though it bee in an errour) holds alwayes the place of divine Law in man; whereby all which hee doth against it, is as much as if hee sinned directly against God. And therefore hee ought before all other things, seeke to informe establish and edifie his owne Conscience well, ver. 3.

V. 15. Bee grieved,] that is to say offended, and angry to see thee who makest profession of the same faith, eate of such kinde of meate as hee holdeth to bee uncleane; by Gods ancient Commandement whereupon hee is grieved that hee is joyned to thee whom he holds prophane in this action. Not charitably,] for charity in these indifferent things, thou oughtest to doe any thing for thy neighbours satisfaction. Destroy not,] take heed of giving this scandall to a weake man, whereby he might be driven to apostate from the faith. For whom,] whom Christ, gathering together of his Church by vertue of his death, hath also incorporated into it. Or whom thou oughtest, by charitable judgement beleeve to bee of the number of those for whom he died: though indeed those whom hee hath redeemed by his death, cannot perish, Ioh. 10. 11, 28.

V. 16. Your good,] all comes to this, that you give no occasion to weake men to speake ill of your liberty, as of a prophane licentiousnesse, which would redound to the dishonour of God Himselfe.

V. 17. The Kingdome.] Namely the forme and government of the Church under the spirituall Kingdome of Christ, consists not in these outward things and observations, but in good and holy workes, in concord and charity, and in spirituall joy and comfort, which every one ought to have in himselfe, and give unto others, by the gift of the Holy Ghost and good example.

V. 18. Of men,] Namely, of beleevers, who in all agree in them: Or of other men also who are not pre-occupated by perverse passions. See 1 Sam. 2. 26. Luke 2. 52. Acts 2. 47.

V. 19. Wherewith one may,] which are for the augmentation, and strengthening of the common faith and salvation.

V. 20. Destroy not,] that is to say trouble not the weake brothers Conscience, that the worke of Gods grace may not in its first beginnings, be either hindered or moved, with danger of having all goe to ruine. With offence,] giving at his pleasure, offence to his neighbour.

Ver. 21. Is made weake,] Namely irresolute wavering whither it bee lawfull or unlawfull before God.

V. 22. Hast thou faith,] Dost thou truely know, and art then certainly perswaded concerning Christian liberty in these things. Have it.] content thy selfe with knowing this liberty, and with thy being freed from all such scruples. That condemneth not,] that doth not make himselfe guiltie of having violated the lawes of charity, and sinning against his neighbour, abusing the gift which he hath received from God, of knowing what is lawfull for him to doe, and what things are forbidden him.

V. 23. And he,] he that is throughly perswaded of the Christian liberty may abstaine from eating of such things as are lawfull, for to condescend to his brethrens frailtie: but hee that is not, can not nor ought not in that kinde please others, against the minde of his own Conscience. See ver. 14. Because he,] seeing hee is not perswaded whither that which he undertaketh bee pleasing to God or no hee tempteth God, and doth not by an upright judgment and will, will, referre the worke to Gods ſervice, as every beleever ought to doe.

CHAP. XV.

VER. 1. Strong,] namely more forward and ſtrong in the Evangelicall doctrine having no ſcruple concerning the aboliſhment of the ceremoniall law, as your novice Chriſtians amongſt the Iewes have. Not to pleaſe] namely doe what wee pleaſe in theſe indifferent things, without any regard of offending other men.

V. 3. As it is written,] he hath not only not offended the weake, but hath moreover patiently ſuffered the injuries and outrages of the wicked.

V. 4. For whatſoever,] a ſmall digreſſion, upon the occaſion of the precedent paſſage, to ſhew the perpetuall uſe of Scripture eſpecially in teaching the vertue of holy patience, which it alſo ſtrengtheneth with comforts, to the end that the hope of beleevers may never faile.

V. 5. Of patience] Namely he who is the onely Author thereof in thoſe who are his. The meaning is may hee that ſtrengtheneth you againſt your outward enemies, unite you inwardly amongſt your ſelves, that you may in both vertues imitate Ieſus Chriſt. Like minded,] or affected.

V. 7. To the glory,] to make us partakers of his glorious grace in this world, Rom. 9. 23. and of his heavenly glory in the life everlaſting.

V. 8. Now I ſay,] in this common gathering together both of Iewes and Gentiles, there is this one difference, that in the Iewes gathering together, God hath ſingularly made the loyalty of his promiſe to appeare: and in that of the Gentiles, his mercy towards enemies, and people which were meere Aliens to him, and therefore there is no reaſon that the Iewes, who were honoured with Chriſts owne miniſtery and with Gods ancient promiſes and covenant, ſhould bee deſpiſed by the Gentiles, nor yet that the Gentiles to whom the Lord hath ſhewed mercy, ſhould be diſpiſed by the Iewes. Was a miniſter,] having taken upon him the ſhape of a ſervant to acquire ſalvation for his Church, hee hath had a ſpeciall care of the Iewiſh nation amongſt whom he hath alſo exerciſed the miniſtery in his owne perſon. See Iſa. 42. 1. and 49. 5, 6. Matth. 20. 28. Luk. 22. 27. Phil. 2 7.

Ver. 9. Might glorifie,] might make his infinite mercy ſhine upon all humane unworthineſſe ſuch as that of the Gentiles was, who were prophane and execrable people. As it is written,] an alluſion rather than a proper expoſition of the ſence of this paſſage, as much as if he ſaid. That which David in regard of his corporall victories ſaid hee would doe namely to cauſe the praiſes of God to ſound all the world over; Chriſt hath perfectly and really effected, having by his benefits given the occaſion for it, and by his ſpirit the motion and will, to celebrate Gods infinite goodneſſe throughout the world.

Ver. 13. Of hope,] namely the onely Author and foundation of all the Gentiles hope, of whom hee had ſpoken in the former verſe. In believing,] the Italian, Believing,] namely in the knowledge and apprehenſion of the truth of the Goſpell. This ſeems to be added becauſe that many abuſed their ſtronger and more forward faith, in giving the weakeſt the foreſaid ſcandalls. Yee may abound,] that your peaceable ſtate, and the joy of your hearts, not troubled with theſe contentions or ſcandalls, may alwayes bee unto you a new pledge and hope of reſt, and eternall joyes.

V. 14. That yee alſo,] even as much as I my ſelfe doe exhort you unto it.

V. 15. The more boldly,] namely with greater vehemencie and authoritie. He hath a particular relation to the exhortations contained in the three former Chapters. Becauſe of the grace,] by vertue of the charge which I have to bee the Apoſtle of the Gentiles, by Gods appointment, and to performe the ſame.

V. 16. Miniſtring the,] figurative termes taken from ſacrifices. The meaning is as in ſacrifices the oblation ought to be pure, and purely offered by the Prieſt. So I the Apoſtle of you Gentiles, labour towards you, to the end that the Holy Ghoſt accompanying my miniſtery, may ſanctifie you more & more: and that as ſuch I may acceptably preſent and conſecrate you to God.

V. 17. I have therefore,] namely having receaved this grace of Apoſtleſhip, and ſuch an abundant bleſſing of God upon it. Through Ieſus Chriſt,] of whom I hold all that I have of his meere goodnes and grace.

V. 18. To make the Gentiles,] to gaine and acquire them to Chriſt, and to reduce them to the obedience of faith.

V. 19. Of the ſpirit,] hee meanes that ſecret and inward vertue of the ſpirit, which enlightens, and enclines, and perſwades the hearts: as the precedent power of miracles, was but only to terrifie convince and prepare. Illyricum,] this is the Country which is now called Slavonia. I have fully preached the,] the Italian, I have accompliſhed the ſervice of the,] this is alſo a terme touching ſacrifices in which there was required a moſt ſtrict obſervance of all the ceremonies which were appointed, the meaning is. I have not omitted any part belonging to mine office. See Col. 1. 25.

V. 20. So have I,] making it mine onely glory to plant new Churches, not ſtanding to manure thoſe which were already planted by the miniſtery of others. Which he ſeemes to touch, to make his zeale and affection towards the Romans Church to appeare ſo much the more, it having bin ſetled and gathered together by others, and yet he fervently deſiring to viſite it, contrary to his ordinary cuſtome towards ſuch Churches.

V. 23. Having no more,] having no place where to found any new Churches, every place being already filled with the Gospell.

V. 25. To minister,] carrying to the beleevers in Ierusalem the collections of the Churches of Macedonia and Achaiah.

V. 27. Their spirituall,] he saith this, because that the preaching of the Gospell and the Ministers thereof, were come out of Iudea, and also because the Iewes were first possessed of the promises of the Messias, and the covenant of God.

V. 28. This fruit,] namely the effect of this charitie, and of the Communion of faith, or this acknowledgement of the receaved benefit. See Phil. 1. 11. and 4. 17. I will come,] this was a designe of the Apostles, well befitting his vocation, but conceaved only out of zeale, and humane sanctified discourse, and not by any revelation, as the event did shew it, being hindered from executing of it by meanes of the Iewes persecution, and by his imprisonment.

V. 29. In the fulnesse,] bringing you more abundance of knowledge, and other spirituall gifts, Rom. 1. 11. Or the meaning is, I trust that God will largely blesse my ministery amongst you.

V. 30. Of the Spirit,] namely that love which he engenders in the hearts of beleevers, and by which he straighly unites them together. Or by the Holy Ghost whose proper effect is love. See Col 1. 8. That yee strive,] namely that with your prayers you helpe me in all my distresses and combates.

Chap. XVI.

Ver. 1. A Servant,] the Italian, A Deaconesse,] it might bee some one of those holy Widdowes, which in the Apostolicall Church, did consecrate themselves, to serve and look to the poore the sicke, &c. 1 Tim. 5. 9. Or plainely some honourable woman, who had no publicke office, but was assisting to the faithfull, with her wealth and services, as Luke 3. 8.

V. 2. In the Lord,] with such charity as all the members of Christ ought to have one towards the other. Or with a duty not simply civill, but Christian and spirituall. A succourer,] the Italian, A protectrix,] the Greeke word signifieth, one that is appointed to entertaine and harbour strangers in his house, and to undertake the care and protection of them. See 1 Tim. 5 10.

V. 3. In Christ,] namely in the ministery of his Gospell.

Ver. 4. Laid downe,] they have exposed themselves to dangers of death and punishments, for to save my life.

V. 5. The Church,] namely their family, which beleeveth generally, and is ordered like a little Church Or the assembly of beleevers, who assemble themselves in their house: for there were diverse small assemblies of beleevers in one and the selfe same Citie. See 1 Cor. 16. 19. Col. 4. 15. Who is the,] who was one of the first that was converted to the Christian faith, 1 Cor. 16, 15.

V. 7. Fellow-prisoners,] peradventure in that imprisonment which is spoken of. Acts 16. 23. 2 Cor. 11. 23. Amongst the,] that is to say are excellent Evangelists the word Apostle being sometimes taken more lagely, 2 Cor. 8. 23. Phil. 2. 25. In Christ,] namely in the communion of beleevers, and in the Church, by professing Christ.

Ver. 10. Approved,] who hath given certaine proofes of his Christian faith, zeale, and constancy.

Ver. 11. In the Lord,] that is to say members of his Church.

V. 12. In the Lord,] namely in the service of his Church both publike, and private, according to their vocation and power, or in the vertue of Christs spirit.

V. 13. Chosen,] who in the communion of Christ and of his Church hath excellent and singular gifts.

Ver. 17. Avoyd them,] that you exclude them as prophane out of your publike assemblies by excommunication: and that privately you shun all voluntary, pleasing, and intimate conversation with them. And that to shame them and keep your selves from their vices, and to testifie to all men the purity of the Church, contrary to their scandalls, which are reproved, and detested of all men.

V. 19. For yours,] these seducers imagine that you are easie to be deceived, as very credulous, having receaved the Gospell with all manner of readinesse. But it lieth in you not to suffer this vertue of simplicity of faith, to degenerate into the neighbouring vice of foolish shallownesse, to beleeve any kinde of doctrine Simple,] without malice or fraud, as having no experience in evill, following that which is good, out of a sincere motion, without any discourse or hollow thought to the contrary.

V. 20. Of peace,] the author and preserver of the true spirituall peace of the Church, which these Schismaticks, and factious persons raised up by the Devil do endeavour to trouble.

V. 22. In the Lord,] namely with a Christian and spirituall Charitie.

V. 23. Mine host,] See upon v. 2.

Ver. 25. Power to stablish you,] to preserve and strengthen you in the spirituall state of grace and faith, according to the Gospell which I preach, the only subject whereof is Christ, and according to that which hee hath revealed unto you of his secret counsell, concerning the salvation of the world, and the calling of you Gentiles, unknowne untill this present time, in which God having by his spirit cleered the meaning of ancient propheties, by them it appeares, that his will and decree hath bin from the beginning

Ver. 26. For the obedience, to bring men to submit themselves to the Gospell, and to Christs kingdome.

The

The first Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the Corinthians.

Argument.

After Saint Paul had founded the Church of Corinth as Saint Luke, saith Acts 18. the Devill soone after did sow the tares of many disorders, divisions, scandalls, and corruptions in it, as well in the doctrine and government of the Church it selfe, as in the manners and common course of life, which moved the Apostles zeale and fatherly providence, to bring a speedy remedy to it by this Epistle. In which at the very beginning he reproves the Corinthians for their divisions, some taking part with one of the Pastors, the other with the other according to the diverse estimation they held their secular eloquence and knowledge in, with which they were besotted by a vaine admiration. And then he goeth on condemning this vaine affectation, and ambition in the Preachers, as the cause of the depravation and division of the Church, of the degenerating of the simple and effectuall truth of the GOSPELL, of the diminution of the Holy Ghosts power, who is the onely Author of faith, and of the contempt of the Apostles holy example, but especially of the abasement of Gods glory, by seeking their own honour and the applause of the World. And because those vaine glorious preachers had made a scorne of the Apostles manner of preaching, as lowly and vulgar, he'e wisheth the Corinthians to examine their owne incapacitie, which had hindered him from unfolding any more sublime doctrine unto them. Yet he maintaines and extolls his degree of Apostle; shewing that, in that qualitie he had laid the true and onely foundation, and given the invariable rule by which they might conveniently advance the Fabricke of the faith, and had shewed a true patterne of the goodnesse of the stuffe which is required thereunto in it, and will stand any tryall. And that for the rest, upon the assurance of Gods approbation, and of the tryalls of his sufferances, and combates in the Worke of the Gospell, he made no accompt of mens false judgements, nor did not feare their contempts. Afterwards he goeth on to reprove them for too much connivencie towards an incestuous person which was amongst them, without making use of the remedy of excommunication, which hee by his Apostolicall authoritie thundreth out against him; and withall teacheth the lawfull use of it against all scandalous members of the Church. And then he reproveth them for their suites, which they had with much scandall commenced and followed in the Courts of heathen and unbelieving Iudges. Then he commeth to treate of free and indifferent things, for which there were yet great controversies amongst them. And first he sets down this point, that fornication was not a thing of that kind, according to the false and inveterate opinion of the Pagans. That every one hath free libertie both for himselfe and his, concerning matrimonie, whither he will enter into it or no, so that the fitting conditions and meanes be used therein; That marriages being once made and contracted, there is no more libertie to dissolve them though one of the parties bee not a Christian, unlesse it separate it selfe of of it own consent. But yet that by reason of the imminent dangers and persecutions, and for to keep one selfe in greater freedome to serve God, it was expedient at that time to keep ones selfe free from the bond of matrimonie, if so be God did grant them the gift so to do: Without which gift they ought to beware of tempting God: and entangling ones Conscience, expose ones selfe to a perpetuall unquietnesse, and an evident danger of the soule. Then he falls a treating of things sacrificed to Idols, which by some were absolutely set downe amongst the number of things indifferent: and grants, that neither the Idoll can pollute the meate, nor the meate the soule. But yet that there were three cases wherein the use of such meates was hurtfull. First when the weake conscience, unresolved concerning Christian liberty wavered therein, or did absolutely contradict it. Secondly, when it was done with the scandall of ones brethren, which must alwayes bee most religiously shunned, as he himselfe had alwayes done in things which of themselves were lawfull. In the third place when by meanes of these meates, which were consecrated to Idols and afterwards eaten in Idolatrous feasts, and in the Idols Temples a man came to participate of Idolatry: The grievousnesse of which sin, is by him highly exaggerated. Then he goeth on in correcting certaine defects in their publicke assemblies in the habits of men and women, in the disorders in their feasts of charity, and in the abuses in the celebration of the Lords holy Supper: which hee brings againe to the purity of its first ordination. Then he treates of the miraculous gifts of Gods Spirit, conferred upon the Church in those dayes: and sheweth that seeing there was but one onely Author of that great variety, namely the Holy Ghost, and one only end, namely the edification of the Church, they all ought to have relation unto that end by a sincere charity; which he extolls above all other gifts and vertues. Teaching likewise that amongst those gifts, those were not to be most esteemed, which excited most admiration, but those which yeelded most profit and edification to the Church: such as amongst the rest was that of propheste, and of expounding the mysteries of the Christian faith: for the publicke exercise. Whereof he also gives some rules and instructions. In the end he establisheth and confirmeth the doctrine of the Resurrection, denied, and opposed, or at least questioned by some Heretickes. And after he had exhorted the Corinthians to contribute almes for the Church of Ierusalem, he concludes his Epistle, with friendly exhortations and salutations.

Chap. 1.

Ver. 1. Sosthenes,] according to some it is the same as is mentioned, Acts 18. Verse. 17.

V. 2. In Jesus Christ,] namely by vertue of their spirituall union with him, by which they have receaved the spirit of sanctification. Called,] which are by Gods calling them to the participation of Gods grace and covenant, severed from the world, purified in themselves from sinne, and consecrated to Gods service: in which three points consists the sanctity of man.

V. 4. By Jesus Christ,] namely by the communion which you have by faith with him, and with the whole Church.

V. 5. In every thing,] he meanes particularly, the miraculous gifts of tongues and of the knowledge of the mysteries of the Christian faith, infused in those dayes by the Holy Ghost into diverse persons, as well for the confirmation of the faith, as for the speedy provision of persons capable either of founding Churches, or continuing to build those which were already founded by the Apostles.

Ver. 6. The testimony,] namely the preaching of the Gospell, by which is declared all that wee ought to know or beleeve of Christ, 1 Cor. 2. 1.

V. 7. The comming,] the Italian, The manifestation,] namely his last comming and appearing in glory, Col. 3. 4. 1 Pet. 4. 13. 1 John 2. 28.

V. 8. Blamelesse,] that is to say conveniently qualified to be approved to bee true Christians, and acceptable. See Iames 2 24.

V. 9. Faithfull,] namely to accomplish his grace by the continuall assistance of his spirit, and by his safeguard and protection against all assaults, &c. according to his most holy promises made to all his Elect, to whom also he giveth grace to be correspondent on their sides, by all duties required.

Ver. 10. By the name,] as the name of Christ which you beare, and whereof you make profession, ought to bee deare unto you. Divisions,] that is to say Ecclesiasticall partialities 1 Corinthians 11. 18.

V. 12. I am,] I take the part of such, or such a Pastor of the Church, against another. Now Saint Paul makes use of his owne name, and of other Apostles names, onely for an example; For the heads of these factions, were of the Pastors of Corinth it selfe, 1 Cor. 4. 6. Of Christ, words of some good men,] which were enemies of these factions, and that would call them selves by no other name but Christs. Or of some who under this holy name would separate themselves from all the rest.

V. 13. Is Christ,] though hee hath diverse Ministers, and instruments, hath he any more than one Church, or one body, or one Kingdome?

V. 14. I baptized,] it is likely that he employed Silas, and Timothy, Acts 18. 5. in the act of baptizing, the great number which beleeved and was baptized, Acts 18. 8. when he was at Corinth.

V. 15. In mine owne name,] as to binde them unto me, to acknowledge me for their head.

V. 16. Any other,] namely in your Church.

Ver. 17. Sent me not,] Matth. 28. 19. the Apostles were sent both to preach, and to baptize. And therefore the meaning is here, that the Apostles charge was chiefly to lay the foundation of Churches by preaching, without being tide to baptize all the beleevers one by one, with a particular instruction and examination, See Heb. 6. 2. which was left to the care of the ordinary Pastors, established by them in the Churches, by meanes of those foresaid miraculous gifts, by which they were in an instant made capable of this calling. With wisdome,] Namely in termes of philosophicall wisdome, or Rethoricall art. Now the Apostle plainely begins to tax the Corinthians other vice, which was the affectation of worldly eloquence, which also peradventure gave occasion to the foresaid divisions. The Crosse,] that the divine meanes of saving the world by Christs crosse, which hath in it all the caracters of humility, may not bee weakened. by an ill beseeming way of propounding it: nor disfigured by a pompous manner of preaching.

Ver. 18. For,] because that notwithstanding the sinister judgements of worldly men, who have no part in eternall salvation; this plaine way of preaching the Gospell is, accompanied with the power of Gods spirit, to lively perswasion, and salvation, but worldly art hath no such promise nor co-operation. The preaching,] the Italian, The word,] namely the doctrine of the Gospell, as well in its owne substance which is Christ crucified, as in its forme fitted to the subject, in simplicitie and humilitie.

V. 19. For it is,] hee gives a reason why this doctrine is so disdained amongst worldly men, namely because according to the Prophets threatning, it hath pleased God to appoint a meanes of salvation, so alien from worldly wisdome, that it is confounded and dazeled at it.

Verse. 20. The wise,] that understands these things by his owne naturall wisdome. The Scribe,] a man of science and understanding, by learning and studdie. The disputer,] the Italian, The searcher,] so they called the most modest kind of Philosophers especially the Socratists. Made foolish,] not onely made it appeare, that it is nothing but meere folly, in respect of divine and everlasting things, and of the Soveraigne and sole end of man: but hee hath also by this object of the Gospell, so absurd in humane understanding, but in it selfe altogether divine; stupified and dulled carnall wisdome: and that by a judgement, against the contempt of his wisdome, shewed in the creation, and in the whole order of nature.

V. 21. In the wisdome,] namely in the frame and Table of this world, which represents the infinite wisdome of God in its creation and conduct. By wisdome,] namely by the right use of reason and discourse. See Iohn 1.5,10. By the foolishnesse,] namely by the Gospell which according to the understanding of the flesh is but a shallownesse: for the Iewes doe not finde therein, the greatnesse of the miracles of heaven, and of the elements, as there was in the Ministery of Moses, Iosua, Elias and others. Nor the Gentiles, the exquisite, and subtile doctrine of Philosophers, nor the eloquence of Orators, by them highly esteemed and admired.

V. 23. A stumbling blocke,] the Italian. A Scandall,] namely a subject of disdaine and of refusall, by reason of the discordancie betweene it and their understanding. See Mat. 11.6.

V. 24. Christ,] in whose person, office, actions, word, and Kingdome, God manifesteth unto men and communicates unto them his Soveraigne wisdom and power opposite to the Grecians worldly wisdom and to the power of miracles required by the Iews.

V. 25. Because,] he gives a reason why the Gospell, though esteemed by men to be foolishnesse, and weakenesse, is never the lesse wisdome and power namely because it is Gods, whose least things (if a man may say so) do far exceed the greatest of mens.

V. 26. For yee see,] the like proceeding God useth in employing such meanes for salvation, as are so contrary to carnall sence; may be also perceaved in the calling of men, amongst which hee often maketh choice of such as are of least esteeme, Matth. 11.25. as he had likewise done by the Corinthians. After the flesh,] that is to say endowed with fleshly wisdome.

Ver. 27. To confound,] the Italian, To shame,] Namely to make it appeare, that before him, all worldly power and wisedome is of no esteeme, and how much it hinders the receaving of Gods grace; and therefore to teach us that wee ought altogether to renounce it, if wee meane to make our selves capable of the glory of Gods Kingdom. See Mat. 18.3.

V. 28. which are not,] thus is shewed the totall annihilation of man before God without worth, merits, strength or disposition, Rom. 4.17. To bring to nought,] namely, to make us see and feele the vanitie and unprofitablenesse there of for the end of life everlasting. Things that are,] namely whatsoever the world holdeth to be greatest, and most excellent.

V. 30. Of him,] having nothing of your owne God hath given you all in Christ according as hee hath made him to bee the spring, and root of all the good things of the Church, namely wisdome in the revelation of the mystery of salvation, righteousnesse in satisfaction, and perfect obedience for the justification of man: sanctification in the gift of his spirit of regeneration, and redemption in the last and glorious resurrection, by vertue of the mysticall union with him, Luke 21.28. Rom. 8.23.

V. 31. He that glorieth,] namely he that thinkes worthily of himselfe, and would in truth have reason to doe it, and raise him selfe by elevation of the spirit above the common sort of men; let him seeke and acknowledge all the cause and matter thereof in God alone, and in his grace, to give him all the honour and glory of it.

Chap. II.

Ver. 1. The testimony,] namely the Gospell, in which God declares, and testifies unto men his councell and will concerning their salvation, 1 Cor. 1.6.

V. 2. Determined not,] I did not judge it fitting for me to know, that is to say, to make profession of any other knowledge or doctrine, or to teach it.

V. 3. In weaknesse,] namely in misery, and in an abject condition, befitting the preaching of Christs Crosse. In feare,] namely of persecution, Acts 18. 12. and so the sence would be, that he had preached the Crosse bearing it himselfe. Now that is the zeal of Gods faithfull servants, which also dissipates all worldly vanities, and ostentations which ordinarily grow from too much ease & rest. Others take these words for the vertues of the reverence of God, humblenesse, and modestie. As 2 Cor. 7.15. Ephes. 6.5. Phil. 2.12.

V. 4. Demonstration,] that is to say in the divine efficacie of the Holy Ghost, with which God doth accompany his word rightly preached, to enlighten the mindes, and perswade the hearts, or at least to dargue and convince them. See 2 Cor. 5.6,7.

V. 5. In the power,] namely grounded upon, and subsisting in that powerfull, and invinsible inward perswasion of Gods Spirit, opposite to all fraile reasons of humane art.

V. 6. How be it we speake.] the doctrine which I speake is nothing but a true wisdome, and a wisdome altogether divine and spirituall. perfect,] namely true beleevers, who only are capable of these mysteries. A terme taken from the Pagans superstition, who admitted none to their most secret ceremonies, but only persons well prepared and purified in many yeares. Or it is meant for men of full and ripe age. See 1 Cor. 14.20. Phil. 3.15. Heb. 5.14.

of the Princes,] namely of that false reason of state, or politicke wisdom of the great ones of the world, which more directly fighteth against Christs kingdome then any else: See Matth. 11.25. That come,] whose persons God sendeth into perdition, and subverteth their councells, so that they are not with all their wisdoms able to maintaine themselves. Which is a certaine proofe that it is vaine, and weake in respect of the Churches, which brings forth everlasting life, and glory.

Ver. 7. In a mystery,] after a divine manner, incomprehensible to the fleshes understanding. Before time,] which hee from everlasting had ordained to reveale and communicate unto us, to direct us thereby to eternall happinesse.

Ver. 8. Of the Princes,] namely meere worldly ones, not enlightned nor regenerated by Gods Spirit. They would not,] he sets forth the chiefe of the Jews, and the other great ones who joyned with them in condemning of Christ, Acts 4.27. under the examples and name of all worldly Princes, who by their obstinate ignorance, doe make themselves their successors, and imitators, in persecuting the Gospell and the Church. The Lord,] namely Christ Jesus, true man, and likewise true everlasting God, and glorious King of the Church, Acts 3. 15.

Ver. 9. As it is,] this passage is alledged more by sense, then according to the Prophets expresse meaning.

Ver. 10. For the spirit,] Namely the Holy Ghost of the true God, with the Father, and the Sonne through Gods most inward secrets: and revealeth so much thereof to beleevers, as is needfull for their salvation.

Ver. 11. For what,] namely none but the spirit can search: for as mans soule and understanding only can know mans secret thoughts; so none can know Gods secret thoughts, but onely his owne spirit, who also revealeth it and perswades it to whom he pleaseth. See Job 11.8. and 3. 11, 32.

V. 12. Not the spirit,] namely the carnall understanding and judgement, whereof worldly men only are capable, and which they doe so much esteeme of and reigneth so amongst them. And hath no proportion but onely with worldly things, and cannot reach to divine and heavenly ones.

Ver. 13. Spirituall things,] termes and wayes of propounding and teaching, divine and spirituall employed both in a spirituall matter and subject.

V. 14. Naturall man,] who hath no other light, but the naturall light of his soule, wanting the gift of the Holy Ghost. See Rom. 8.5, 6. Jude 19. Spiritually,] by a divine light and judgement, according to the principles, and rules of Gods Spirit.

V. 15. He that is spirituall,] namely the man that is enlightned and regenerated by Gods spirit. Judgeth,] hee understands and discernes Gods truth, so much as concernes his salvation, his faith grounded upon Gods word, sealed and rooted in his heart by the Holy Ghost, no way depending upon humane judgement.

V. 16. For who,] seeing that carnall men have no light nor knowledge of Gods secrets, how can they judge of, or confute that which his spirit doth dictate to beleevers, to correct it, or rectifie it? But wee,] namely all true Christians, by meanes of the Holy Ghost, have a certaine and undoubted knowledge, of what Christ did intend to say, and signifie by his word.

CHAP. III.

VER. 1. Could not,] hee goeth on with an objection which the Corinthians made. Seeing that spirituall men are capable of Gods mysteries, why hast thou not revealed them all to us, and preached them in a high and divine stile, but hast given us onely the first rudiments, and that in a vulgar and familiar manner? Whereupon is growne the contempt of thy person, and the affectation to raise them higher by humane wisdome. He answers by a kinde way of grant, and by an oblique recrimination thus. And if it were so, lay not the fault upon me, but upon your owne incapacitie, and to the carnall passions which possesse you. Babes,] opposite to those perfect ones spoken of 1 Cor. 2. 6. In Christ,] namely in the knowledge and faith of Christ, in the state of spirituall life, which beleevers enjoy in the communion of him, which hath its progresses, and encreaseth as mans age doth, untill it come to its perfection in life everlasting. See Ephes. 4.13.

V. 3. Carnall,] following for the most part, the sence and affections of your vicious nature. And walke,] do not ye walk, according to that vice which remaineth in man through sinne, and not according to God.

Ver. 5. Ministers,] to whom that dependency ought not to be attributed, which is due onely to the Lord, namely Christ. By whom,] but not in them, as in Christ. Even as the,] besides that, their externall ministery, which hath beene the meanes of your faith, is not of themselves, nor by any vertue of their owne, but of the Holy Ghosts meere gift.

Verse. 6 Gave the,] hath blessed, and wrought inwardly, to make our preaching lively and effectuall.

V. 7. Any thing,] of himselfe, nor in respect of God and the height of his Action. And absolutely can have no part in the command of the soule, and the conscience, which belongeth wholly to Christ, who is, and worketh every thing in all men, 1 Cor. 12.6. Col. 3.11.

V. 8. Now he,] he points at the Corinthians other error, namely to take an occasion of divisions, from this the number, and diversity of the ministers, chusing as it were each one to make him head of a faction are one,] they have the same office, from the same Lord, and all worke in one and the same externall manner, and neither the one nor the other can make any impression upon the soule, nor infuse any vertue into it, and if their be any difference in the degree of this worke, the reward shall likewise be different in heavenly glory. Dan. 12. 3. and with this they ought to be contented, without desiring any thing of men.

V. 9. Labourers,] namely ministers, and instruments in that whereof God is the supreame author.

V. 10. To the grace,] namely to the office of Apostle, and the gifts which are fitting for it, I have layd,] namely I have taught by the infallible guide of the Holy Ghost, the first and most certaine and undoubted truth of the Gospell, upon which ought to be built, and by which ought to be ruled, all the doctrine of those who come after, as the foundation beares up the building, and by its dimensions gives a rule, for the setting up and rasing of it, and by its soundnesse, and firmenesse, to the matter or stuffe wherewith it is to be built.

V. 12. Build,] that is to say continueth to preach the pure divine sound and precious doctrine of the Gospell, in a way conformable to the substance thereof, and according to mine example? Wood. Hay,] mingling in his preaching, termes of humane art, rethoricall ornaments, philosophicall questions or reasons &c. which though peradventure they doe not falsifie the substance of the Gospell, yet they disfigure the face of it, by an unseemely variation. 1 Cor. 1. 17. 1 Pet. 4. 11. 2 Pet. 1. 16.

V. 13. worke,] though at some times for a time the Church being darkened with ignorance, or with perverse affections, doth not plainly discerne, which is the pure manner of teaching the Gospell, yet God doth at his appointed time, send againe the cleerenes of the spirit, which sheweth beleevers, the truth and vanity of things, and like fire consumes and brings to nought all what is of human invention. Nor can any thing subsist to be continually beleeved by the church unlesse it be truly divine and spirituall.

V. 14. Abide,] as the good mettall in the furnace, which is not consumed like the drosse or other light stuffe.

V. 15. Hee shall suffer losse,] this his labour of preaching the Gospell, with that false annexion of worldly doctrines and artifices being not able to stand that triall of the Holy Ghost, shall not be accepted of, nor rewarded at Gods hands, Yet for his owne person if he have kept himselfe to the faith of Christ, he shal be saved, as by fire,] yet he must be purified by the Holy Ghost, of that mixture, and drosse of worldlinesse, wherewith he hath defiled himselfe and his ministery. Or like unto them who save themselves naked out of the fire, without carrying away any of their goods, so his person shall be saved, but he shall not have the reward of a well qualified minister.

V. 17. Defile,] breaking the union of the church or corrupting the purity of its faith, as the Corinthians did, is holy,] and therefore ought to be inviolable.

V. 18. If any man,] against the affectation of worldly knowledge and the foolish presumption of being wise, wherewith the Corinthians were defiled, he sheweth that contrariwise, to be truly wise and understanding before God, one ought for to renounce his owne understanding, and all manner of good opinion of himselfe, to give way to Gods onely wisdome, which is incompatible with worldly wisdome and with fleshly pride Mat 16. 24. and 18. 3.

V. 19. With God,] seeing God is an adversary to this worldly wisedome, and that it doth not bring forth any fruit of salvation to those that trust in it, wee must conclude that it is but a folly in Gods judgement.

V. 20. Of the wise,] the Psalmist saith only, of men, but Saint Paul to make it the stronger doth restraine it to the wise, and understanding.

V. 21. Let no man,] a generall conclusion, exhorting every one, not to acknowledge any minister for head of a faction, nor to bragge that he is one of his followers: Seeing the Church is not made for them, but they for the Church; at the good and profit of which all things ought to ayme both in life, and in death, in the present, and in the everlasting time it not being subject to any, but to Christ, who is its head; whose office is likewise to be Mediatour to guide and unite men to God his Father, who is the supreame head of Christ, and of his Church, Iohn 14. 28. 1 Cor. 11. 3. and 15. 28. so farre is it from having any Ministers usurpe dominion over consciences.

Chap. IIII.

Ver. 1. So account,] after hee had reproved the excesse of honour done to his Pastor in taking them for heads, now he gives them a right temperature, how farre they should esteeme of them, according to the properties of their office, which doth equally binde them, and their flocke. Stewards,] namely in the communication of knowledge, and in the singular application of the use, for nourishment and Physicke of the soule: all out of Gods goods and not of their owne, and according to his commandement; not according to their owne will and pleasure.

V. 3. But with mee,] if a Pastor hath the witnesse of this loyalty in his owne conscience; he ought not to make any account of mens sinister judgements, who do assigne degrees of honour accord-to their owne minde. Now the Apostle propounds himselfe for example; because that his person and ministery, was fallen into contempt with the Corinthians, by the cunning of corrupt Pastors, 2 Cor. 10. 10. Yea I judge not,] I doe not enter into consideration nor doe not examine, what degree of honour I am worthy of, amongst them, or above them.

V. 4. For I know nothing,] hee gives a reason why he so little cared for mens judgments. Not hereby justified, that is to say esteemed and declared just before God, and worthy of the reward, as having fully accomplished his worke because that even in the holiest there are defects which are hidden even from their owne consciences but manifest to God, Iob 34. 32. Psalm. 19. 12. 1 Iohn 3. 20. And besides that, the person is not received into grace by reason of the workes, but contrariwise, the workes are excused, for love of the person which is already justified. That judgeth me,] to whom it only belongeth to absolve me of my faults, and to assigne me praise and reward for my service, according as out of his grace hee shall bee pleased to accept of it, and esteeme it.

V. 5. Judge nothing,] namely with such kinde of judgments as cannot chuse but be rash; seeing that in examining of men, we ought principally to looke to the heart and to the conscience, which in this world is knowne to God only, who will not make it manifest, but only at the last judgement.

V. 6. Transferred,] in these reproofes of your partialities. I have represented the heads of them under the names of us Apostles, 1 Cor. 1. 12. and 3. 4. but that in deed we had any part therein, but only to frame your guiltie Pastors, and to shew them by our example how to correct the root of evil, which is the affectation of worldly knowledge & eloquence which causeth diversitie of passionate judgments: and draweth on followers by a foolish admiration after it, and to conforme themselves to the perpetuall stile of the Holy Ghost, in Scripture, as all we most conformably doe: whereupon also amongst us there groweth no subject of division. Be puffed up,] that yee doe not grow proud by reason of the excellencie of the Pastor with whom each of you holds, to the depretiating of another Pastor, and his followers.

V. 7. For who,] hee directeth this speech to the Pastors, as saying. Who hath given thee this preheminence which thou affectest? or by whom hast thou beene chosen out of the communitie of the Church, to so excellent a calling? is it not by God, and by his grace, and not by men, containe thy selfe therefore in humility and serve God, and not mens passions.

V. 8. Now ye are.] an ironicall reprehension of the presumption wch raigned in the Corinthian Church. Would to God,] hee continueth in his Ironia. The meaning is: yee are indeed happier, and in better estate then we poore Apostles, who are afflicted persecuted and contemned in the world, wee might indeed have good cause to desire, that wee might bee partakers of your goods, if they were true, and reall: seeing that our life, is like unto the life of wretched malefactors, who doe daily expect their punishment: after they have according to the custome of those times, beene ignominiously lead up and downe, round about the market places, and theators.

V. 9. The Apostles last,] the Italian, The last Apostles,] Saint Paul speaketh of himselfe alone, or of Apollo, also called to the Apostleship after all the rest: which was made matter of contempt against Paul: as it should seeme here implicitly to reproove the Corinthians for. A spectacle,] a solemn example of strange sufferances, and troubles, in the sight of men and Angels, who are as spectators and witnesses of beleevers combates in the theater of the world. See upon Heb. 12. 1.

Ver. 10. We are fooles,] renouncing all humane wisdome, to give way only to the motions of the spirit, and preaching Christ in vertue of it, wee are accounted to bee madde, Acts 17. 18. and 26. 24. See 2 Kings 9. 11. But yee are,] namely mingling worldly wisdome with the Gospell, you hold your selves to bee therefore, very wise and full of knowledge, and doe thereby purchase honour before the world.

V. 11. Are buffeted,] a kind of an ignominious outrage, Acts 23. 2. See Lamen. 3. 30. Mic. 5. 1. Mat. 5. 39. 1 Pet. 2. 20.

V. 14. To shame you,] to scoffe at your vanitie by comparing mine estate with yours.

V. 15. Instructers,] plaine teachers of Christian doctrine, as your Pastors are, without any fatherly bowels or care. Fathers,] namely such as I am, as well by reason, that I have beene the first that have brought you the good tydings of the Gospell as also by reason of my fatherly affection towards you. Begotten you,] that is to say. I have been an instrument of your conversion to the faith; by meanes of which yee are become members of Christ, and of his Church.

17. In the Lord,] namely in his worke and service. Or in the communion of Christ, and by his Spirit: these termes being very frequent in Saint Paul, to distinguish spirituall actions, and motions; from those which are meerely naturall and humane. Of my ways,] namely my proceedings, all my life time and my Christian actions, or my way of preaching of Christ.

V. 18. Puffed up,] they are become insolent, and wilfull, as if I should never come to enlighten them with my presence, nor represse them by mine Apostolicall authoritie.

V. 19. The speech,] namely their vaine ostentation of knowledge and eloquence. The power,] namely the sincere zeale of God, the strength of faith, and the spirituall efficacie of their ministery, a manifest signe of Gods approbation and blessing.

Ver. 20. The kingdome,] that is to say Christ doth not governe the hearts of his by rethoricall art, nor by talke, after the manner of worldly states, but by the strength of his spirit; which gives life unto the Pastors word, and joynes it selfe to a lawfull preaching.

V. 21. With a rod,] namely with severity to chastise you, and to correct your disorders. In Love,] so that you amend of your selves.

CHAP. V.

VER. 1. Amongst the Gentiles,] namely hath not beene used nor tolerated, but hath bin detested by a naturall consent of all men. Fathers wife,] namely his owne mother in Law.

V. 2. Mourned,] you have not shewed any sorrow for such a cruell misdeed: nor not have so much as proceeded to excommunication against the misdoer: in which action, as being very mournefull, they did anciently use to fast, lament, and make a publicke humiliation in the CHURCH. See 2 Corinthians 12. 21.

Ver. 3. For I verily,] you ought to have excommunicated him, for I judge hee hath deserved it: and you having failed therein, I doe pronounce the sentence by Apostolicall authority. In spirit,] in soule, in thought, and in feeling, which I declare unto you by these my words: which ought to bee of the same weight, and strength with you, as if I were present, by vertue of my owne Apostolicall power.

Ver. 4. In the Name,] as his Minister, and by the authority received from him, and according to his order, and calling upon his holy name. When yee are,] he speakes to the Pastors and conductors of the Church. The meaning is, being gathered together in ecclesiasticall judgement, having this my declaration in stead of my vote, as if I were present. So without doing any prejudice to the ordinary ministery of the Church of Corinth hee useth his Apostolicall power modestly, only to excite the other, and strengthen it.

V. 5. To deliver,] this forme anciently used in the greatest kinde of excommunication, seemes to have beene taken from the example of Saul, 1 Sam. 26. 14: for excommunication is a kinde of rejection from God: and in those first days of the Christian Church it was followed, with horrors anguishes of spirit, and torments of body: yet with this temperament, that it was not totall perdition, nor irrevocable, but onely for correction untill true repentance. The destruction.] to macerate, and pull downe the body extreamely, even to death, if God would have it so; as oftentimes by meanes of the foresaid things, death did follow, and at his last passage the sinner shewing a lively repentance, was loosed from those bonds of excommunication, and was reamitted into the peace of the Church and into the grace of God, and so Died with comfort. That the spirit.] Namely the end of this severitie, is not eternall damnation, but the salvation of the soule, so that there bee repentance. In the day,] not that salvation is reserved to the last day, and that the penitent soule doth not enjoy it before: but because in that day, salvation shall be fully revealed and accomplished, 1 Pet. 1. 5.

Verse 6. Your glorying,] Yee have no cause to glory so much as yee doe, of the flourishing estate of your Church because that such a misdeed, doth staine it and drawes Gods judgements upon it, and such a sinner may infect the whole body by his contagion.

Verse 7. purge out,] take away from amongst you by excommunication: this incestuous man, and all such scandalous kinde of people, who might by their infection plunge you againe into the corruption, whereof you had beene cleansed by the Gospell. Yee may bee,] Namely that your Church may bee a pure and cleane body, as you have beene renewed by the gifts of regeneration, which is incompatible, with any such like mixture of reigning sinne: figures taken from the feast of the Iewish Passeover, which was wont to bee celebrated with unleavened bread, Exodus 12. 15. Vnleavened,] See Iohn 13. 10. Our Passeover,] the spirituall state of Christians is the true accomplishment of the Iewish Passeover: whereupon as in that they used no leaven at all: So to participate of Christ who is the true Lambe of God, Iohn 1. 29. we ought to renounce all manner of sinne, that the correspondencie may be entire.

V. 8. Let us keep,] let us lead our life, which ought to be a perpetuall celebration, and remembrance of our redemption by Christ: as the Passeover which lasted eight dayes, was a remembrance of the deliverance out of Ægypt.

V. 9. In an Epistle,] hee seemes to speake of some Epistle written before this, which is lost, as some other, 1 Philip. 3. 1. Colos. 4. 16. yet without any dammage to the perfect fulnesse of holy Scripture. Not to company,] by a voluntary, intimate, and familiar conversation.

Ver. 10. Yet not,] yet I doe not meane that you should wholly sever your selves from all men of evill life, indifferently, for that is impossible, living in the world, amongst heathens, and prophane persons but

But from those, who being members of the Church doe belie their profession, and are spots, ulcers, and leprosie in the body, whereby they must by this punishment, either bee reduced to repentance, or bee quite cut off, for the ease and cure of the whole body.

Ver. 11. No, not to eate,] namely in the common course of life, shunne all manner of voluntary, sweet, and friendly conversation with him: according to the rigour of the ancient Discipline: and most of all in religious acts put him from the LORDS Table, which might bee prophaned by him, 2 Peter 2. 13. Iude 12. Yet still let the necessary duties of humane societie, or the naturall, or civill duties, remaine: not forbidding the healthfull communication, of exhortations and reproofes, &c.

Ver. 12. For what,] hee gives a reason of the precedent limitation to the members of the Church onely, over which God gives his Ministers power and not over strangers. See 1 Peter 4. 15. Doe not yee judge,] is it not a thing notorious and common amongst men, that a judge can exercise his jurisdiction, but onely over those that are within his precinct that are subject to his tribunall.

V. 13. Put away,] purge your Church from this incestuous, and all such vicious and scandalous men; and leave the care of punishing those who are strangers to the faith, to God.

CHAP. VI.

VER. 1. Dare any,] hath hee the heart, and face to doe it. A matter,] Namely a suite in any civill matter. Goe to Law, enter an action against another Christian before unbelieving Iudges: to the scandall of them, the shame of the Gospell, and offence of Christian Charitie. Now Saint Paul speaketh to the Plaintiffes, and not the Defendants, who are bound to stand to tryall. The Saints,] Namely beleevers and members of the Church, chosen and accepted for friendly arbitrators.

Ver. 2. Shall judge,] as assisters to Christ the supreame Iudge: and partakers of the glory of his kingdome, they shall assist at the last judgment, concurring in minde and will with their heads sentence See Psalme 49. 14. Dan. 7. 22. Rev. 2. 26. and 3. 21. and 20. 4.

V. 3. Angels,] Namely the wicked and apostated angels, the devills.

Ver. 4. Set them,] rather there commit this scandall of going to Law before infidels, make them judges betweene you, who are in the meanest state: Seeing that by your proceeding it seemes, that notwithstanding your great presumption of understanding and knowledge: you have not any one capable of knowing your differences.

V. 7. Because yee goe,] the one giving cause for it, thorow iniquitie, and the others undertaking it too lightly thorow impatience for every offence, or damage receaved: though according to Christian wisdome charitie and equitie, they bee not of any such qualitie, as that they should deserve these scandalous instances.

V. 9. The unrighteous,] which persevere in these sins without conversion. Effeminate,] those are they who endure the unnaturall lust.

Ver. 11. Some of you,] whilest you were heathens every one of you were infected with some one of these vices, some with many of them, some with all, Ephesians 2. 3. In the name,] by vertue of CHRIST, and of his obedience, and satisfaction, which hath beene imputed for your absolution and justification before God. By the Spirit,] whose proper action and benefit, is sanctification whereof he had spoken before.

V. 12. All things,] Namely the indifferent ones, which are not forbidden by any command from God. Now being ready to speake of fornication, hee first sets down this rule concerning things indifferent, because that many according to the heathens error, did put fornication amongst the number of them. See Acts 15. 20. Expedient,] Namely for common edification, for charitie, and for the upholding of the weake, and for the peace of the Church. But I will not,] that is to say, my desire of any thing shall not command mee so farre but that I will easily abstaine from it upon some reasonable respect. See Rom. 15. 2.

Verse. 13. Meates,] fornication is not of the number of things indifferent, as eating of all sorts of meates, without distinction, of cleane, or uncleane; for though either action be corporall, the qualitie of the meate hath no morall relation to the soule, neither to the present holinesse, nor to the future happinesse of it, and makes no impression in it of any good or evill, Matthew 15. 11, 17. yea meate is for nothing, but for the sustenance of life, by meanes of the Organs of nourishing: and finally by death, and by the passage to eternall life, all use of meates, and of those Organs is annihilated. But all bodily conjunctions out of wed-locke are forbidden by God, and vicious and contrarie to the end and use of our bodies, which is to belong to Christ as his members, and to be guided by him to serve GOD in all Holinesse, Righteousnesse, and puritie, and by this meanes to bee made partakers of his everlasting glory, at the last and great Resurrection, opposite to the destruction of meates and of the bellie.

Ver. 15. Take the members,] shall I dismember my selfe from CHRIST by an unchaste corporall conjunction, incompatible with the spirituall conjunction which I have with him, taking away the right he hath over my body from him, and from my body it selfe the, happinesse of being governed and quickened by him, and by his spirit. The members,] Namely a body bound, and knited to her, and altogether made use of and possessed by her.

V. 16. Which is joyned,] according to Gods first order, carnall conjunction is restrained within the Lawes of Matrimony: whereby whosoever doth abuse it, entangles himselfe before God in a most strict, though vicious and infamous bond, which is sufficient to untie or breake any other bond though lawfull and holy either corporall or spirituall.

V. 17. He that is joyned,] namely every beleever is united with Christ in body, and in soule, as by a bond of spirituall matrimony, in the communion of the spirit of holinesse, with which the uncleane conjunction of fornication cannot agree.

V. 18. Every sinne,] other sinnes, have not this property and power over mans body to seize it, and put it into anothers power, as fornication doth by which he is made the harlots member, by vertue of Gods first order, which is not annihilated by mans abuse.

Ver. 19. Yee are not,] to abandon your selves to whom you please, and to doe with your bodies what you will.

V. 20. Yee are bought,] Christ][having ransomed you out of the bondage of the devill and sinne, with the price of his bloud, hath gotten an everlasting title in, and dominion over you. Glorifie,] that is to say give him honour therefore, and acknowledge this Soveraigne benefit, by consecrating and using your bodies in his holy service. Which are,] not only by the right of Creation: but chiefly by that of redemption, and voluntary covenant and spirituall conjunction.

CHAP. VII.

VER. 1. IT is good,] namely it would bee more commodious for the instant necessities, and calamities of the Church, ver. 35. 40. which might be more easily boren and overcome being in a free condition: And also now profitable, being not distracted by diverse cares, nor troubled with diverse troubles, which by reason of sinne doe accompany marriage, ver, 28. 32.

Ver. 2. To avoyd,] though for many respects it could be expedient to be without it, yet there is one respect, which being of greater moment, doth emmand the use of it, namely to avoyd lust, by reason of the frailtie of the flesh.

V. 3. Due benevolence,] by this word is honestly signified the duty of matrimoniall cohabitation.

V. 4. Hath not,] by marriage her body is tied to her husband, and his body to his wife.

Ver. 5. Defraud yee not,] namely of that forefaid durie. That yee may give,] namely that you may attend in a more expresse, solemne, and extraordinary manner to the exercises of pietie and humiliation before God, and to the mortification of the flesh, keeping your selves from all manner of delights though they be lawfull and honest, and from all distraction of carnall and earthly thoughes. See Exod. 19. 15. 1 Sam. 21. 4, 5. Ioel 2. 16. Zech. 7. 3.

V. 6. I speake this,] that is to say, I doe not speake this to impose the Law of marriage absolutely upon all, but onely to shew that it is lawfull to use it.

V. 7. Were even as,] namely did live out of the bond of marriage, 1 Cor. 9. 5.

V. 8. It is good,] as ver. 1.

V. 9. If they cannot,] namely if they have not that singular gift from God to preserve themselves in holinesse and pureneſse of body and spirit, without the remedy of marriage. Then to burne,] with a carnall desire: which God doth not give every one the gift to quench without marriage, whereby man is troubled in minde, and hindered in his spirituall actions, which require a tranquillity of all passions.

V. 10. Yet I,] not by a new doctrine or law, but yet by meere councell and advice of wisdome, as ver. 25, 40. but by Christs expresse command, Mat. 5. 32. and 19. 6. 9. Depart,] namely by divorce unlesse it be for the only lawfull cause, which is adultry, which was very frequent amongst the Greekes, and the Romans, and from them this abuse did also partly creep in amongst the Ievves though the law of Moses gave the wife no power at al to be divorced from her husband. See Marke 10. 12. 1 Tim. 5. 9.

V. 11. Let her remaine,] this is not to say, that this separation, without marrying again is lawfull, v. 14. 5. but if the woman can not be induced, or forced to live with her husband, or that there be some invincible lett. The Law of God doth absolutely forbid her to marry another.

V. 12. To the reſt,] spoken of in the letter which you sent to me, namely beleevers married with unbeleevers. Speake I] guided in this mine opinion by the Holy Ghost, ver. 15. 40. though without Gods expresse command in his word.

Ver. 13. The woman,] namely the believing and Christian woman.

Ver. 14. Is sanctified,] though the unbelieving partie be uncleane before God, yet the use of matrimonie with her is holy unto the believing party, throw the mediation of faith and invocation, Tit. 1. 15. and Gods approbation and blessing, no otherwise then if both parties weare holy. So he answereth them, who thought themselves to be defiled by their marriages with infidels, contracted before their conversion, and by reason of this scruple sought for a sepafornication. Your children,] borne of such unequall marriages. Unclean,] that is to say, they would not from their birth bee comprehended within Gods covenant made with the fathers, and with the sons, Gen. 17.7. nor endowed with the spirit of sanctification, and would by the Church be held as profane, not able of baptisme, untill such time as being come to age, they were admitted thereunto by their owne faith. Holy,] namely members of the Church, and partakers of the grace of regeneration, which Saint Paul speakes by Apostolicall declaration: according to which such little children were admitted to baptisme.

V. 15. Depart,] be divorced for hatred to the religion, or that shee marrieth another. Or that all possible and reasonable remedies having beene used; and a convenient time allotted for that purpose, the unbelieving party cannot be induced to a due conjunction. A brother,] namely the beleeving party is loosed from the bond, being thus forsaken by the unbeleeving party. But God,] but the believers, they are bound by Gods commaund to endeavour to maintain by union and concord, the matrimony which they have contracted.

Ver. 16. Thou shalt save,] whither thou staying with him mayest be the instrument of his conversion, edification; by word, holy conversation, example, prayers, &c.

V. 17. But as,] howsoever it be, if the Infidell be not converted, yet let the believer remaine in the state and condition, which his person is in, be it marriage or otherwise, and in that ordinary course of life, which God had appointed him before he called him to be a Christian; because these things may very well stand together.

V. 18. Let him not become,] as some used to doe by Chirurgerie, to cancell in their bodies all signes of Iudaisme, which they had renounced, 1 Mac. 1. 16.

V. 19. Is nothing,] Namely now under the Gospell it is of no force, nor anyway considerable for Gods service, or for mans salvation. But the keeping,] the true Christian and spirituall vertues are not only sufficient, but do likewise disannull and exclude under the Gospell all ceremonies of the Law, Iohn 4. 23. Rom. 14. 17.

V. 20. Abide,] hee may abide therein with a safe Conscience; and ought not rashly to change it, neither through superstition nor by doing another any wrong, but if hee can doe it for any just causes, or through any lawfull meanes, it is then lawfull for him to doe it.

V. 21. Care not for it,] be not grieved at it, nor doe not take it to heart, as if it were a condition unworthy of a Christian, or pernicious, and unlawfull for him: If thou mayest,] by lawfull and honest wayes.

V. 22. For he,] hee confirmeth the exhortation made to servants, to beare their condition mildely, thorow the comfort of their spirituall freeing from sinne, the Devill and death by Iesus Christ. In the Lord,] to the communion of his spirit with all body and Church, and to the participation of his grace. Is Christs servant,] he is not master of himselfe, not of his actions, hee is subject to Christ his Lord. So in Christ all servants and distressed persons, have matter of comfort, and those who are free and live at ease have cause to humble and subject themselves.

V. 23. Be not yee,] if yee bee free, doe not wilfully make your selves servants, but keepe your selves wholly, both body and soule for Christs service: to which, bodily service is a great disturbance, in outward actions. Or in your servitude remember alwayes, that before anyother you are Christs servants & therefore doe not doe any mens service, which may bee contrary to Christs service. Or as concerning your soule, and conscience, let noe living man have any command over you, depend upon Christ onely and upon his word. See 2 Cor. 11. 20. Galath 2. 4. Col. 2. 18.

V. 24. With God,] in the order and degree of service which he hath appointed for every one.

Ver. 25. Vergins,] namely daughters of families, concerning whom the Corinthians had also written to the Apostle, to know whither their Parents were obliged to get matches for them or no. I have no,] God hath not declared any thing expressely concerning it in his word. I give my,] as of a thing which of it selfe is free, and indifferent: I doe advise by wisdome inspired by the Holy Ghost, what is most expedient, according to the circumstances. See 2 Cor. 8. 8, 10. That hath obtained,] being by especiall grace endowed with the infallible guide of the Holy Ghost, not onely in truth, but also in good and loyall councell. See Isaiah 11. 2. 1 Cor. 7. 40. 1 Thes. 4. 8.

V. 26. That this,] this seemes to shew his opinion, concerning the Corinthians question, namely whither it was good to keepe ones daughter at home without marrying? This is good,] See ver. 1. For the] namely for the distresses, and persecutions which the Church is falling into, which are more difficult to be borne then, when one is married, then when one is not. See Ier. 16. 1. and 29. 6. I say that,] because the reason is generall for all manner of persons. To be,] namely free from the bond of marriage.

V. 28. Shall have trouble,] they shall be subject to more troubles and difficulties, especially in these approaching calamities. In the flesh,] in the state of this life. I spare you,] in this advice which I give you to abstaine from matrimony, I doe procure your owne ease.

V. 29. But this I say,] I doe leave every man the freedome of making use of this advice, as hee shall thinke fitting and expedient for himselfe, but here is an advice necessary for all men Namely that considering how neere the accomplishment of Christs Kingdome is, and the end of the world: beleevers should not let their hearts take roote in earthly things, but should alwayes have them raised and extended to heavenly and everlasting things.

Verse 31. Abusing it,] either by the intemperate use thereof, or by fixing their love and affection upon it. For the,] he sheweth how unworthy and unseemely a thing it is, to set ones heart upon these things: Seeing they are but a false and transitory Image, yea but a very shadow of good.

Verse 32. Carefulnesse,] of worldly businesses, as much as you can. Careth for,] may freely, and without any disturbance attend upon CHRISTS service.

Verse 33. Careth for,] oftentimes, and in many parts of his life, hee is troubled with cares, to satisfie the dutie and affection which hee beareth to his Wife and Children, whereby hee cannot so freely addict himselfe to spirituall things, especially if the woman doth not equally give her mind to such things as tend to the same end of pietie and service of God.

Verse 34. There is a difference,] some Texts doe joyne these words with the precedent verse in this sence, and is divided, that is to say, such a man is distracted by diverse cares, Luke 10. 40. A Wife,] The Italian. The woman,] Namely she that is married. Others begin the verse here, the woman, namely the Widdow and the Virgin that is unmarried carrieth for, &c. Careth for,] may wholly give her selfe to workes of pietie without any disturbance or let. How shee may,] that is to say, her studie to gaine or to preserve her husbands love, either by the comelinesse and grace of her body, or by her diligence, and faithfull service, often drives her either to worldly vanities; or to cares, and employments which divert her.

Verse 35. Profit,] See verse 26. 28, 32. A snare,] too strict a Law in a thing which is indifferent, yea oftentimes necessary. Which being not observed may fill your mindes with scruples and perplexities, out of which you may not bee able to free your selves. See Matth. 19. 11.

Ver. 36. If she passe,] without being married. And need so require,] thorow the will or necessitie of the daughter.

Ver 37. Hee that standeth,] that perseveres in his first proposition of keeping his daughters unmarried. No necessitie.] namely on the daughters side, that is to say, if shee bee willing and can consent to her Fathers intention. But hath power,] can lawfully, and without forcing his daughter, execute his designe.

Ver. 38. Doth well,] according to the common order set downe by God, and to provide for the good of his daughter. Better,] in respect of the greater libertie for spirituall things, and the greater ease to beare the Crosse and other tryalls, verse 26, 38, 32.

Ver. 39. In the Lord,] containing her selfe within the communion of CHRIST, and his Church, without Apostating for her marriage. 1 Timothy 5. 12, 15. Or marying a Husband that is a Christian, 2 Cor. 6. 14. or holily, and in the feare of God, as a believing woman, ought to doe.

Ver. 40. Also that,] no lesse then the other Apostles, though some doe vilifie my ministery below theirs, 2 Cor. 11. 5. and 12, 11. The Spirit,] See ver. 25.

CHAP. VIII.

VER. 1. Touching things,] they were meates of heathen sacrifices, whereof some part having beene consecrated, and offered to Idols the rest was sold in open markets, 1 Cor. 10. 25. or made use of at private feasts, without any professed relation to the Idol, 1 Cor. 10. 27. or in publicke feasts, in honour of the Idols, and in their Temples or Chappels, 1 Cor. 8. 10. and 10, 20, 21. and the Apostle being asked whether it were lawfull to eate of such meates, treates of it in this Chapter, only in this respect. Namely, that although it bee a thing indifferent, yet one ought not to doe it, to the scandall of ones neighbour who is weake in faith, for feare of inducing him to doe any thing which may bee against his Conscience, but Chap. 10. 19. hee speakes of it in a more weighty consideration, in respect of communicating with the Idoll. We know,] I know what they that take leave to eate of them alleadge that they are sufficiently instructed about Christian liberty in externall things, and that meate cannot pollute the soule, and that the Idoll, besides the stuffe that it is made of, is but the Idolaters vaine imagination, without being or power, and cannot defile the meates: and therefore they being thus thorowly enformed and perswaded, they think they cannot sinne in it. See Rom. 14, 14. Puffeth up,] This perswasion of Christian libertie, as well as any other knowledge, which is not tempered nor regulated with charitie: gives men for the most part occasion to bee proud, and despise their weake brethren, pleasing themselves, without any regard to others, Romans 15. verse 1. 2. Edifieth,] procures the brethrens salvation, addes to their instruction and confirmation, and keepes men from laying any stumbling blocke in their way; as they did who licentiously made use of such meates, ver. 9. 10.

V. 2. Thinke,] namely by a vaine presumption himselfe. As hee ought,] that is to say humbly for himselfe, and profitable for others.

V. 3. Love,] he referreth all that hee knnoweth or believeth to the true practice of the love of God, of his glory and service, and for Gods cause, to the salvation of his neighbour. Is knowne] that is to say accepted and approved of. The Apostle seemes to use this word, to shew that as the knowledge with which God knoweth those who are his, is not bare, and barren knowledge but accompanied with love, so likewise ought their knowledge to be where with they that are his, doe know him. See 1 Cor. 13.12. Gal. 4.9.

Ver. 4. Is nothing,] that is to say hath no Godhead nor divine power in it selfe, whereby it appeares that these meates can not bee defiled by being consecrated to the Idoll.

Ver. 5. Called Gods,] namely by meere abuse, as Idolls are. Or by some participation of similitude in power and dignitie, as the Angels in heaven, and Kings and Princes on earth are. There bee Gods,] that is to say, as that name is common to God, and to these creatures, though not in an equall sence, but only by some resemblance or proportion.

V. 6. Vnto us,] beleevers, and Christians. But one,] See upon Iohn 17.3. not that the Son is not also true God, Phil. 2.6. as likewise the dominion is not taken away from the father, because the name thereof is appropriated to the Son, but to shew that the Father is represented unto us in Scripture in the pure and naturall glory of his deitie. Whereas the Sonne sheweth himselfe in his office of Mediator, according to which he hath receaved from the Father all power in Heaven and on earth, Matth. 28.18. Are all things,] as of their first spring and cause. In him,] to whose glory and service, all our being doth naturall and supernaturall ought to have a relation, as to its owne last end and ayme, Rom. 11.36. By whom,] Namely as by a coequall joynt, and co-operant cause of the same God-head and power. And we,] hee saith this to shew that in the worke of redemption, the Sonne is in the same order of action in respect of the father, as he is in the creation.

Verse 7. In every man,] namely in all the members of the church, Vnto this hour,] even after there have bin so manie declarations made by the Gospell concerning Christian liberty in case of Meates, that there is no more distinction of pure and impure according to Moses His Law, and that they are sanctified to beleevers in their lawfull use, and cannot of themselves defile the Soule, Matthew 15.17,20. Eate it,] they are often induced by the example of others for to eate of it, and when they doe it, they doe it with scruple of conscience: or with a beliefe that the consecrating of it to the Idoll, and hath imprinted some impuritie in the meate. As a thing,] whose use was strictly forbidden by the law. See Exodus, 34. verie. 15. Numbers, 25. verse. 2. Psalm. 106. verse. 28. Ezekiel. 18. 6. and 22, 9. Weak,] that is to say wavering and unresolved Romans. 14.1. 2. 21. and 15. 1. is defiled,] as beleeving to use a defiled meat now the thing it self, in it self is not the rule of what is lawfull, or unlawfull in these externall things, but the mind and conceipt of the conscience. Rom. 14.5. 14. 23.

Verse. 8. If we eat,] if we indifferently make use of meats, are we the better,] it bringeth no advantage to the soule, for the salvation of it.

Verse. 9. This liberty,] namely this Christian liberty in matter of meates, become,] that it do not drive these irresolute soules, by your example, to attemp any thing against their owne conscience.

V. 10. which hast,] who art fully informed, and perswaded concerning Christian liberty, temple,] or in some chappell be longing to idolls. The Apostles meaning is not that there is no other offence in eating such meates in such places, but the offending of weak consciences. But that if there were no other offence but that one ought for to avoid it for that only and forbeare to doe it because that 1. Cor. 10.20 hee sheweth that by so doing they did participate of idolatry, be emboldened,] induced, perswaded and strengthened by thine example against their owne minde and conceipt.

V. 11. Perish,] shall be in danger of wounding his conscience mortally and whereas before through tendernesse of conscience he abhorred any thing as drew neer to idolatry, he may peradventure use himselfe to it to the shipwrack of his salvation.

V. 12 Against Christ,] who as head, is offended at the hurting of his members, as saviour, at the interrupting of his work, as king at the breach of his chiefe command which is charity, as example of all vertue, at the transgressing of his example.

Chap. IX.

Ver 1. Am I not,] may not I doe those things which by right Apostles may do as well as any other Apostle v. 5.6. and yet have forborn in things which belong to mine owne particular, to avoid scandal and matter of calumnie. See 2. Cor. 12 11. Free,] by that Christian liberty by which beleevers are freed from the ceremonies of Moses his law have I not seen,] namely in the visions Acts. 22 18. Or in extase. 2. Cor. 12. 2. 4. Now he addeth this because his adversaries did vilifie his ministery by reason he had not bin conversant with Christ upon the earth as if he wanted some thing either in the dignitie of his person, or in his Apostolicall authoritie, or in the knowledg of those things which were taught by the Lord,

Lord. My worke,] a Church founded by me, by the meanes of Christs power and grace, working in mee and by mee. Or instructed by mee in the Christian faith, and united in the communion of him, 1 Cor. 4. 15.

V. 2. If I bee not,] if others make a question of mine Apostleship, as having not felt the effects thereof nor seene the tryalls, but you ought to be assured thereof seeing that you have felt the effects and seen the tryall thereof most amply, and powerfully towards you, whereupon your Church is a noble confirmation of my ministery. In the Lord,] namely thorow his power. See 2 Cor. 12. 12.

V. 3. Mine answer,] I doe ordinarily produce your Church for a proofe of my vocation, and my faithfull exercising my selfe in it, to any one that doubts of it, or cavilleth with mee about it. See 2 Cor. 3. 2.

Verse. 4. To eate,] namely to have my diet at the Churches charges. Others hold this to bee spoken of the indifferent use of meates without any Iewish distinctions, from which things hee had also voluntarily abstained, when hee judged it to bee expedient.

V. 5. To lead about,] to live in matrimony, and have a woman with mee whither soever I goe. A Sister,] a beleeving Christian honestly joyned to me in holy matrimony. Cephas,] that is to say Peter who was married, Matth. 8. 14.

V. 6. Forbeare working,] with our hands to gaine our living, Acts 18. 3.

V. 8. As a man,] onely by some humane equitie, reason, or custome.

V. 9. Doth God,] the end of Gods Law is not to shew how cattell should bee fed, but to command equitie to be used in the just rewarding of those who labour for us.

V. 10 Should plow,] it is fitting that when hee laboureth, he should be encouraged by hope of maintaining his life thereby, otherwise hee would never undergoe it.

V. 12. Hinder,] as it might happen, if some to not contribute towards the charge should refuse to receave the Gospell: Or if the adversaries should thereupon take occasion to calumniate us, as if wee should seeke our owne profit onely, and not the salvation of soules, or as if we made traffick of holy things.

V. 13. Minister,] in Gods Temple amongst the Iewes. Live of the,] namely of the offerings which are made there. Are partakers,] by the Law they have certain portions of the same sacrifices, of which the other parts are offered to God, and burnt upon the Altar.

V. 14. Shou'd live,] should bee maintained, for a just reward of their labour, that they may not need to looke after any thing else.

V. 15. Then that any man,] then that I by changing mine intent of preaching unto you freely and without reward, the false Apostles should take away this honour from mee, of not having sought that which was my due, to attribute it to themselves, and by this meanes obtaine grace and credit for their owne false doctrine and defame mine.

Ver. 16. For though,] an answer to an objection which might have beene made thus. And what great glory can there bee in this? is not the charge of preaching the Gospell of it selfe a thing of far greater value, then this scrupulous abstaining from reward? he answers my charge was imposed upon me by an expresse command which I must obey, unlesse I will draw down Gods curse upon me: now there can be no glory in doing of things which are of absolute necessitie, but in those which are of free-will, as in refusing to take any thing of you, to avoid scandall and calumnie.

Ver. 17. For if,] here ought to bee supplied] by preaching the Gospell, I doe howsoever escape the punishment for disobedience, but this is not sufficient for I must doe it of a free will; which onely makes the workeman acceptable to God, and capable of the free reward of eternall glory and not the worke or labour it selfe, to which God oftentimes binds him, and many times drives him thereunto against his will See Isaiah 50. 5. Ieremiah 20. 7. Ezekiel 3. 14 1 Pet. 5. 2.

V. 18. What is my reward,] namely the proper reward of men, of which the Lord hath said the labourer is worthy. That when I preach,] instead of recompence and reward, I have this comfort, that I have taken away all occasion from weake and wicked men of speaking ill of the Gospell and me. That I abuse not,] namely that I make no indiscreet use of it not regarding the consequences, and other mens understandings.

V. 19. Though I be,] though I be not bound to any one, and that no body can impose any Law upon mee by any authority in these things, yet through charitie, I have framed my selfe to the will of others to draw them so much the easilier unto the faith. Rom. 1. 14. Gal. 5. 13. The more,] namely as many as possibly I can.

Ver. 20. As a Iew,] namely in the observing of many externall ceremonies of the Law in which the Iewes who were converted to the faith, did yet believe, and did devoutely observe them, abhorring to keep company with such as did not use them.

Ver. 21. To them that,] namely to the Gentiles Rom. 2. 12, 14. To God,] namely in mine inward parts, and in respect of God, and the obedience due to him, conforming all mine actions and motions, to the rule of his spirituall and everlasting Law. Under the,] this mine obedience to God is not after the Iewish manner, in ceremonies and externall observation tions, but such as Christ appoynts, and inspires into those who are his. Rom. 7. 6. 1. Cor. 7. 22. 2. Cor. 3. 6.

V. 22. Became I,] I condescended to their weaknesse, either in teaching of them according to their capacity, or bearing with their defects, or keeping my self from offending or provoaking them.

V. 23. For the Gospell,] to procure the advancement of the Gospell for the salvation of others and that I likewise, by the faithfull accomplishment of mine office, may obtaine the effect of the promises of it in the life everlasting.

V. 24. Know ye not,] as in your race there are some which fall in the middle of the race, or cannot finish their course or come not time enought to the end, so you following mine example must perseuere and set all our strengths, to the finishing of the race, of your heavenly calling without contenting your selues with hareing begun.

V. 25. Every man,] this other comparison of wrastlers or others that strive upon stages or at publick shewes after the ancient manner serves to shew that Christians vocation is also to fight and ouercome. Now these Kinde of wrastlers or strivers vsed to gaine or to preserue strength, vsed to keep very good diet, in a choice, and certaine quantity of food and great continence and all this they did to obtaine the victory in these publik sports, which victorie was honoured with some garland, of flowers, herbes, or leaves from whence the Apostle drawes these exhortations, to desire beleevers to abstaine from lust, and delights of the flesh: especially in those heathenish feasts, which were joyned with much intemperancie that they might prove the stronger and abler in their spirituall combates and obtaine the crowne of everlasting glorie, in all things,] which may hinder his profession or his end especially in their use of woman for they did use to feed abundantly and upon grosse meates.

V. 26. Not as,] so that I may not be in any danger or doubt of having runne in vaine without obtaining any reward, thorow any default of mine owne for not making use of those meanes as god had appointed, not as on that,] striking and missing as your inexpert beginners doe, who cannot hitt for any right nor certainly.

V. 27. Keep under,] by mortifying my carnall affections and by all manner of pious exercises, I dobring my self in the obedience and discipline of Gods spirit, and to patience and constancie in all travailes and to strength and dexterity requried in these spirituall combates, a cast away,] found unworthy of beeing approved and rewarded as one of Gods bold Champions he hath a relation to that there were certaine colledges or Schooles of these exercises of armes in which those that were entred, if they did not submitt themselves to the rigor of the discipline or did not prove as they should doe were crossed out by the masters: or if they were before knowen to be base or cowardly they were not admitted at all.

Chap. X.

Ver. 1. Our fathers,] namely the ancient Israelites to whom we succeedede in Gods covenant, and title of his Church. The end is to draw the Corinthians away by the example of the ancient people, from all prophanesse Idolitrie and other sines which they might fall into, shortow too much liberty especially by frequentinge, of those idolatrous feasts under pretence of Christiane liberty.

V. 2. were all,] the meaning is as the deliverance out of Egipt was a figure of the redemption by Christ, and the pilgrimage thorow the wilderneſſe, and image of the elects life in the world, and the land of Canaan a shadow of the Kingdom of heaven: So the passage thorow the red Sea was correspondent to Baptisme and Manna and the water comming out of the rock a signe which had some resemblance to the Lords supper. Whence it appeares that our fathers did enjoy the same spirituall benefitts as the Christian church, though in an inferiour degree and yet manie of them were punished rooted out and rejected for their sinnes: So Christians ought to fear the same usage, if they doe prophane their profession by the like acts. See Heb. 4. 2. 1 Pet. 3. 21. Unto Moses,] the Italian in Moses,] namely in or unto the confirmation of the promises of grace preached and administred by Moses and under the forme which God had appointed by him.

V. 3 The same,] namely the same as the christian church doeth, Meat,] namely Manna, which to beleevers was a kinde of sacrament of the true spirituall food which is Christ with his benefits. Iohn 6. 35. 51. though to the wicked and unbeleevers it was onely corporall and corruptible food. Exod. 16. Iohn. 6. 32. 58.

V. 4. Spirituall drink,] namely of the water that issowed out of the rock Exod. 17. 6. Likewise a sacrament of Christ and of his blood, true water of life and spirituall drink Iohn. 4. 14. and 6. 55. Rock,] namely of the water which came out of the rock which Moses had smitten Smitten? a very expresse figure of Christ, who beeing smitten by the father in his death and sufferings hath powred out living springs of redemption grace and life to his whole Church Isa. 53. 4. 5. Heb. 9. 2. That followed them,] this in respect of the signe cannot be referred to the stone, but the waters which came out of it, whereof were framed many running streames in the wildernesse, that way as the people were to passe See Deut. 8.21. Psal. 78.20. and 105.41. though there were some interruptions, either for triall or punishment of the people Num. 20. 2. and 21. 5. 16. but in respect of Christ it is very properly spoken, for not only his benefits are perpetuall, but he himself who is the spring of them, is never separated from his, in whome he dwelleth by his spirit, was Christ,] not substantially, nor materially, but figuratively and sacramentally, which by vertue of Gods order and covenant, hath joyned with it the reall but spirituall fruition of Christ. See upon Matth. 26. 26.

V. 6. Examples,] namly lively representations for instruction.

V. 7. To eate,] this is specified to condemne those prophane feasts, like unto them which the people made after they had sacrificed to the calfe.

V. 9. Christ,] namely the sonne of God perpetuall head of his Church, who in his owne person did lead the people and was present in the middest of them, and is called the Angell. See Exo 23. 20. and 33. 14. Heb. 11. 26 1. Pet. 1. 11.

V. 10. The destroyer,] namely an Angel good or evil executioner of Gods judgments. Exodus, 12. 23.

V. 11. Upon whom,] who are come to that time in which all figures are fulfilled and verified in a supreame degree as well in grace as in punishment.

V. 13. Temptation,] the strong inducements to idolatry are not yet come upon the Christian Church through the prosecutions, and violences of tyrants, as hereafter they will, you are but only allured and enticed hereunto, by these petty human baites which are easie to be resisted: And God will never faile to give grace and strength to his even in their harshest trials, which he will likewise so moderate and qualifie, as well in the grievousnesse, as in the lastingnesse of them, that they shall not be overcome thereby.

V. 16. The cup,] all beleevers have and do professe to have communion with Christ and his benefits in the sacrament of the holy supper. Now as this communion is incompatible with the devills society, so are also the signes thereof incompatible: such as these idolatrous feastes were of the divles, supper, of blessing] which is consecrated in the Church to the use of the sacrament of the blood of Christ, by Solomon prayers and thankes giving to God. See upon Matth. 26. 26. The communion,] namly the sacrament thereof accompanied with its effect, and spirituall reality by vertue of the holy Ghost, which we breake,] namly at the sacred action of the holy supper, to the imitation of Christ: and for a signe of the breaking of his body by sufferances and torments, 1. Cor. 11. 24.

V. 17. For we,] in the holy supper there is yet a certaine signe of the spirituall union of all beleevers amongst themselves into the body of Christ, because they all communicate of one bread, whence it followed that those who were partakers of those idolatrous feasts, which were contrarie to the holy supper, doe likewise renounce all manner of union with the Church. See. 2, Corinthians. 6, 14. 15.

V. 18. After the flesh,] namely the naturall Iewes who yet observed the Mosaicall ceremonies, opposite to the Israel according to the spirit Rom. 4. 11. Gal. 3. 9 and 6. 16. are not they,] in the sacrifices of thanksgiving there was a certain portion burnt upon the altar to God Lev. 3. 3, the other was eaten by him that offered it with his kinsfolkes and friends Lev. 7. 15. who thereby testified that they consented to the thanksgiving and tooke part therein: Likewise saith the Apostle wee must judge, that those who wittinglie doe eat of the heathen sacrifices, in those feasts, doe likewise silently approve of them.

V. 19. Or that which is,] namely that the meat doth receive any evil impression, by the consecration which is made of it to the idols. The meaning is those meates are pure of themselves, yet in those feasts, which are by publick institution appointed, for the celebration and profession of idolatry, they become impure and hurtfull, because that by the making use of them, idolatry is approved of, and others are confirmed in it.

V. 20. But I say,] those meates are not impure in their owne substance but in that way of using them, which hath its whole relation to the devill, who is the head of all idolatry in which his also obliquely served. Lev. 17. 7. Deut 32. 17. Psa. 106. 37. Rev. 9. 20.

V. 21. Drinke,] namely have communion with those two heads, which are altogether contrary, which communion is testified, and ratified by their externall actions, which are signes of covenant and religion true or false. See Deut. 32 38. Psal. 16. 4.

V 22. Stronger,] that We should not fear to provoake him, See. Ezek. 22. 14.

V. 23. All things,] namely externall and indifferent whereof is spoken in this chaper, which are made vicious and hurtfull by the abuse.

V. 24. Let no man seek,] let no man be given to the contenting of his owne desires, without having any regard to what may offend anothers body.

V. 25. That eate,]out of those prophane feasts make no scruple of eating of the flesh of those sacrifices, if they bee carried into the open market to be sold, or if they be made use of at private feasts out of this celebration, instituted by publick order to be in honour of idols.

V. 25.

V. 26. for tho',] seeing that God is the creator and Lord of all things, they are holie and good for men, so hee makes use of them, and acknowledge them, to come from his hands, with faith, invocation, and thanksgiving. 1. Tim. 4. 3. 4.

V. 28. But if any man,] namely any weak beleever do warne you to beware of them, as of unclean meates according to his beleef or some unbelieving waite layer, doe it to trie whither you do perfectly abhorre idolatry, or whither hee may draw you to it, for his sake,] not to scandalize him if hee bee a weake beleever, nor to intice him to do so much, against his owne conscience, 1. Cor. 8. 10. and not to confirme him in his error, nor give him any cause to triumph ouer you if he be an idolater. Se. Gal 2. 4. 5.

V. 29. For why,] should I give an occasion by using Christian liberty indiscreetly in such things, to have this gift of Evangelicall liberty condemned and blamed as a prophane licence.

V. 30. For if I,] if it be a singular benefitt of God to be freed from those burthensome, and anxious ceremonies of the law, we must beware least by a licentious use wee do dishonour the benefactor.

V. 31. To the glory,] giving him all honour your self, and procuring all others to doe the like.

Chap. XI.

V. 2. IN all things,] namely all my doctrines instructions and rules, concerning manners, and the publick ordering of the church. Though there were in both those things great defects in the Corinthians but that evill came rather from some particular persons, the from then whole body, which was yet sound, and dutifull to the Apostle. Others that you would remember me in all things, the ordinances,] he meanes especially the rules concerning the order and governement of the Church.

V. 3. But I,] a new precept or renewed by the Apostle, concerning common civility for habit onely that women in publick assemblies of the church should be covered, and men should have their heads uncovered by reason that in those places and times, the covered head was signe of subjection and an uncovered head contrary wise of liberty, and command wherefor that they might keep in the church that degree amongst sexes which God had established, they were to observe such signes and marke, thereof as were vsed by the common consent of nations. See Gen. 20. 16 and 24. 65. that the head,] that the masculine sexe is immediatly next under Christ appointed by God to be soveraigne Lord of the world; but the female Sex is subject to the masculine, as well in the state of matrimonie, as in the principall parts and actions of life, Christ,] as he is mediator, in which quality he received from the father the empire of the world, distinguished from the eternall and essentiall, which he hath of his owne nature common with the father.

V. 4. Praying,] namely publickly in the church prophecieing,] that is to say expounding and treating of themisteries of salvation in the church, Ro. 12. 4. Or beeing there present as an auditor, covered,] so that his face be covered which was the manner of couering women were wont to use, his head,] namely CHRIST, the representation of whose dignity he obscureth, and vilifieth by this signe of subiection. Or his owne head spoyling it of that signe of superiority.

V. 5. Prophecieth,] being in the church when the foresaid act of preaching is done there fore a woman is forbidden by the law to speak publickely in the church 1. Cor. 14. 34. 1. Tim. 2. 11. 12, her head,] namely her husband, vsurping the badge of his supremacie or to all the masculine sexe, or to her ownhead, takingawayits fiting ornament from it, for that is,] the meaning is, it is fitting that custome should second nature now nature hath given a woman the natural vaile of the haire wherefore she is obliged to make use of the other artificiall vaile to cover her head, which a woman ought to hold to bee as proper for her as her natural vaile of haire.

V. 6. To be shorne,] that is to say to weare no haire at all or to weare it short as men doe.

V. 7. As he is,] representing to the world and especially to woman as it were a pourtraiture, and beame of Gods majesty and command, is the glory,] is a looking glasse of mans dignity, because that the first woman was created like unto him, of him, and for him, wherefore she is as farre inferior to him, as the image or representation is to the originall.

V. 8. Is not,] hee lookes to the womans first creation.

V. 10. To have power,] as who should say to go foorth in publick in a modest and civill manner for this necessity of womens covering the head tooke place but only out of doores, and not within doores. And if they went abroad without a vaile they were repured as desbauched women like runn away servants or souldiers, that have not their masters or captains passe. Others expound it, the marke that she is under anothers power, because of the,] for the woman might say, men are contented that we should go uncovered and they give us way for this slight usurpation of the badge of prehemiuence which he longeth to them? The Apostle answereth, though men would give consent to this disorder, yet the Angels who are continuall guardians of the Church, and assistants in their assembles they would be offended at it.

V. 11. Nevertheless,] this is to moderate those things which were spoken v. 8. and to shew that not withstanding mans preheminenc and yet both in regard of naturall propagation man is engendred by the womans means and likewise in the communion of Christ order of grace, they are both equall receaued into the communion of Christ.

V. 12. for as] The reason there of is, that woman is of man kind, which God will vnite to himself in Christ, seeing that shee came out of the first man, and that consequentlie men are borne for women, according to God the soueraing author of order.

V. 14 Long haire,] as women doe, which hath alwayes bin held an effeminate and shamefull thing.

V. 16. Seeme to be,] the Italian ill seeme to be,] if he will presumptuously undertake to contend against all reason and authority that the thing is in different, we have no,] let there be a repression by our Apostalicall authority, and by the custome of all the Churches, which in such cases ought to serve for law. Or let such an arguer a lone and let every one hold himselfe to the laudable custome. See 1. Cor. 14. 33.

V. 17. In this,] as in other things, wherein you deserve praise. v. 2. Come together,] namely in the Church and in the most solemne acts of the celebration of the Lords supper, not for the,] not to advance your selves any forwarder in faith charity and other vertues, but to nourish and increase contrary vices especiallie divisions, and factions.

V. 19. There must be,] it is a thing unavoidable by reason of the divells malice, mens wickednesses and Gods most Iust iudgement, and most wise councell, and according to the frequent predictions of the holy Ghost, heresies] that is to say Sects and dissensions concerning the tenets and grounds of doctrine, how much more then will there bee discords in the affections and wills? among you,] namelie in the Christians, Church, approued,] as one should say cleare and of good mettle.

V. 20. This is not,] namely then when you celebrate the holy supper, together with your feasts of charity, to make contributions for the members of the Church according to every mans power, acts. 2. 42 2. Pet. 2. 13. Iude. 12. To eate,] lawfully according to the true meaning of this sacred ceremonie which hath its whole relation to unity and charity.

V. 21. In eating,] namely in these feasts of charity (at the end of which they celebrated the Lords supper) you doe not observe the true ecclesiastic all communion, but every one beeing come to the place of the assembly doeth presently sit downe to eate what he hath brought in the company of those of his part leaving the other whereupon this action is not celebrated neither at the same time by al nor in holy concord nor in communion of goods which is contrary to the true vnion of Christian, which is sealed by this sacrament, is drunken,] that is to say filled with wine and meate.

V. 22. what have yet not,] here we ought to supply, there is prophanesse in what you do for you celebrate these religious feasts, like untowordinary meales, though you have your owne house for that end without being tyed to make use of any holy places for that purpose where all things ought to be done religiously, with a respect to the soul and not to the body, shall I praise you,] I praise you not one whit for that.

V. 23. For I have,] because that these abuses are contrary to the Lords institution who hath ordained the holy supper, for a sacrament of his body and bloud, and for a bond of union, and not for a bodily meale nor for occasion of divisions, to which ye you put it.

V. 24. which is broken,] all overthrowen and broken with extreame pains. See Isa. 53. 4.

V. 25. This cup,] even as Gods covenant with his elect is renewed and ratified by my death and passion, so it is sealed to every belever by the Lords cup.

V. 26. For as after,] Saint Pauls words, ye do shew,] that is to say ye shall doe a sacred act, whereby ye shall publish the truth and shall acknowledge and preach the benefit of Christs death, and shall protest to take part thereof by a lively faith.

V. 27. Wherefore whosoever,] namely seeing that this sacred supper is appointed for this sacred use, unworthily,] without being fittingly disposed thereunto according to the dignity of this sacrament but especially having no charity nor reverence, which was he two vices for which the Corinthians were taxed before, the body,] namely of having through his unreverence, prophaned the remembrance of the Lords death, and undervalued the meanes by him appointed to participate of it.

V. 28. Examine,] the Italian, trie,] let every man examine his own conscience, to known whether he be well disposed to participat of this sacrament by faith, repentance, charity, purity of heart &c. For in abstaine from it in case hee bee not so untill such time as by renouncing the contrary vices and by prayers, and conversion to God he have obtained grace to do it.

V. 29. Damnation,] the Italian Iudgement] namely the cause and subiect of a grieveous punishment, from God which the Apostle in regard of believers distinguisheth from the everlasting condemnation of the wicked not discerning,] bearing no greater respect, to the Sacrament of the communion of the body of Christ then to any other corporall and common kinde of food.

V. 30.

V. 30 For this cause,] this prophannesse hath caused amongst you many visitations of popular diseases and mortalities: this the Apostle speakes by divine revelation. sleepe,] that is to say are dead, according to the stile of the Scripture, in hope of the blessed resurrection.

V. 31. would judge,] the Italian did examine truely to acknowledge our faults, and desire pardon and grace at Gods hands thorow repentance, wee should not,] that is to say we should prevent Gods judgments

V. 32. wee are,] namely wee believers.

V. 33 To eat,] namely in the Church, at feasts of charitie, but especially at the Lords table

V. 34. Hunger,] be constrained to take meat, which seemes was their excuse who committed the foresaid error.

CHAP. XII.

VER. 1. Gifts,] namely those miraculous ones, which were in those first times of the Christian church confetred by Gods spirit for the confirmation of the doctrine and for the founding of Churches. See Acts. 2, 38 Ignorant,] of the only author and of the true end of them that you may not abuse them to pride, and to divisions which were the Corinthians chief defects.

V. 2. You know,] the remembrance of what you were may make you acknowledge, that all you have received is out of Gods meere grace, and the worke of his spirit to humble you and cause you to give him all the glory therefore, dumbe,] opposite to the true living God, who speaketh in his word as,] following blindly and like bruite beasts the false customes the inventions and commandements of men.

V. 3. Wherefore,] by your former condition you may conclude, that the holy Ghost alone is he that hath freed you from the heathens blasphemies: and keepes you from Apostasie and worketh in you the sincere confession of the name of Christ and finally by vertue of it alone ye are Christians, and therefore the gloty thereof is due to God and not to you: And if he be the only author of those gifts which are common to all beleevers much more ought we to acknowledge him to be such, in these other singular and miraculous ones, Iesus,] this was a forme of detesting and abiuring of Christianity which was used amongst the Iewes, accursed,] See Romans 9.3.1. Cor. 16.22. Gal. 1.8.

V. 4: But the same,] therefore, his gifts ought not to be drawen to divisions and partialities as the Corinthians did.

V. 5. Administrations,] namely ecclesiasticall offices, Lord,] namely Iesus Christ.

V. 6. Operations,] namely supernatuall gifts and faculties of working diverse great miracles.

V. 7. The manifestation,] namely some singular gift of the holy Ghost shewing it selfe in some person and by him manifesting his power, to profit,] namely for the common good of the Church to which only end all ought to be referred.

V. 8. The word of,] namely the gift of treating of Christian doctrine with the application to all the uses of beleevers, which seemes to have a speciall relation to the pastors charge. Rom. 12.8. Of Knowledge,] namely of the pure and plaine exposition of the said doctrine, without any application, which is the doctors office. Rom. 12.7. Ephes. 4. 11.

V. 9. Faith,] he meaneth not the common gift of Christian faith but the singular and miraculous, referred to the working of miracles. Matth. 17.19. 1. cor. 13. 2. without which it had bin rashnesse to undertake it and the effect would not have followed but he that felt himselt to have this gift might lawfully exercise it, with certainty of successe, by the same,] namely by his power, of healing,[of bodily diseases See Mark. 6.13. and 16,18. Iames. 5.14.

V. 10. Working of miracles,] the Italian, working of powerfull operations,] that is to say some singular gift appropriated to certaine higher and more noted miracles as of the casting out of devills, raising of the dead, changing or staying of the course of nature, prophecie,] that is to say supernatuall revelation either of future and secret things or of the misteries of the heavenly doctrine, with the faculie of expounding of them in the church. 1. Cor. 14, 1. discerning of,] this was gift of knowing by the certaine light of the holy Gost, impostors false prophets fanaticke spirits driven by the devils spirit, counterfeiting divine inspirations, and to distinguish them from true men of God enlightened and moved by his spirit 1 Cor. 14.29. 1. Iohn. 4. The interpretation,] this was also a miraculous gift, by which certain persons had the faculty of setting down in the vulgar language, that which other men prepounded in a strange language, by inspiration not but that they which spoke it, understood it themselves. 1. Cor. 14.4 17. but that the miraculous motion of the spirit it, which was not perpetuall nore equall at all times ceased in them, after they had spoken in a strang languag & came upon the other, to expound their saying in the vulgar tongue, by a divine power, and in a divine and supernaturall manner. And if no body were presented that had such a gift, the other who had the gift of tongues, was to hold his peace 1 Cor 14. 27. 28.

V. 12. Christ,] beeing considered as head, in the union with his church, which is his body.

V. 13. For by one,] by the two sacraments of the Christian Church he proves the union of beleevers in one and the same mistical body, by vertue of the holy Ghost, who alone ratifieth both the sacraments, Baptisme to unite them to Christ, and all together in him. The lords supper to animate and move all this body, and to work in all the members thereof, by diverse gifts and operations to the same end and common use, made to drinke, namely in the cup of the Lords supper, under the which ought also to be comprehended the signe of bread but he seemes to make use of that of wine especially in regard of the spirit for in the nourishing of the body the wine is that part, which most breedes and revives the spirits.

V. 25. If the feet,] the end is to teach that they who have received inferior gifts, must not therefore through envie forbeare to employ themselves for the common good of the Church and they that have received more excellent gifts, ought not to contemne the inferiors and as this diversity is necessary for the furnishing of the Church, entirely so they are all usefull, and therefore ought to be honoured in their degree, and ought all to aime at the same end.

V. 22. Much more,] that is to say the organs of nourishment, though they be not so noble, yet are they more absolutly necessary, then those of the senses, for without them man cannot subsist nor live as he may without eyes, eares, or hands act.

V. 24. Comely,] such as the face and hands are tempered,] hath given man this instinct, to divide this ornament of garments, by a just kind of proportion.

V. 25. There should be,] that all the parts of the body should be united and so exercise their functions for their common and enterchangeable good.

V. 28. Helpes,] namely all the Ecclesiasticall offices which belong to the releaving of the poore, the sick, strangers, or planes etc. governents,] namely those offices which governe and guide the church by an Ecclesiasticall sance composed of those pastors who were called Bishops of which there were oftentimes many in one church Acts. 20. 28. Phil. 1. 1. and of Elders joyned with them. 1. Tim 5 17.

V. 31. Covet,] in stead of these strifes and jealousies for those gifts of greater luster and admiration desire you and seek to obtaine at Gods hand the common gift of charity, and amongst miraculous gifts, those which may be most available for the edification of the church, shew I unto you,] namely to seek cheifly the gift of true charitie. Or by meanes of its other gifts, which God conferres more liberally upon them who thorow charity are disposed to employ, them for the common service.

Chap. XIII.

Vers. 1. And of Angels,] this is added onely for a high kind of exaggeration used amongst the Iewes. See. Ps 78. 25. Charity,] to employ that gift to Gods glory and the edification of the church, I am become,] I am as little pleasing to God, and profitable to men as if I did onely beat the aire with a vaine sound.

V. 2. All faith,] namely a full measure of faith to do all manner of miracles, for this gift of working of miracles was in some persons restrained to certaine operations as it appares by 1. Cor. 12. 9. 30 See Rom. 12. 6. nothing,] namely of no effect before God, to be approved of, and rewarded. See Matth. 7. 22.

V. 3. I bestow,] through vaine glory or some other vicious affection. Matth. 6. 1. 2. or through some meere naturall motion without any true spirituall charity of the heart. Isa. 58. 10. 2. Cor. 8. 5. Finally his meaning is to shew that charity is necessary in all Ecclesiasticall functions, as well pastors as deacons and that without it they have no impression of blessing to be burned,] thorow some feigned zeale or of constancie, without any upright intention of love to God and to his Church.

V. 4. Vaunteth not,] or is not insolent and rash or useth no dissimulation, puffed up,] is not proud and arrogant.

V. 5. Unseemely,] doth not disgrace any body.

V. 7. Beareth all things,] this universall term ought to be restrained to all such things as belongeth to the duties of true charity according to God.

V. 8. Never faileth,] will never be annihilated neither she essence nor the exercise of it, nor in the life everlasting, prophecies,] all these gifts and offices which are conferred upon the church for its edification in this world shall take no more place, nor be of anyuse in the heavenly glory, where God in the immediate communication of himself, shall be all, in all, without employing any ministers, or secondary causes, Knowledge,] namely the gift of understanding heavenly doctrine, by way of study, and meditation and to propound, and teach it Sees. Col. 12. 8.

V. 9. For we,] he gives a reason of the vanishing away of those gifts in the everlasting life namely because they are but small, obscure, rude, and imperfect meanes of illumination in respect of the communion of full light in the celestiall life. Rev. 21. 23. and 22. 5. as at the rising of the sunne all candles and lampes are taken and away 2. Pet 1 19. as the first rudiments are left of, when men have gotten the full habit of Knowledge.

V. 10. Done away,] not the substance which is eternall, but only the imperfect meanes which are used in this life and all manner of presente distribution of them.

V. 12. A glasse,] namely in Gods word and sacraments, and in his workes in which things by re-

ction is revealed the image of those of which we cannot in this world directly see the originall truth and proper essence. 2. Cor. 5. 7. Darkely,] that is to say that cauen in this glasse we can not yet behold this image, but couered ouer with many circumstances of words and corporall significations, accomodated to our manner of speaking, and to our apprehension. this is taken out of numbers 12. 8. Face to face,] openlie, and as it were by direct line we shall have a full light of god, and of all his misteries, agreeable to our perfect happinesse I Know,] I my self. though an Apostle. and so much enlightned shall I Know,] I shall com to the perfect marke and effect of mine eternall election, in acompleate knowledge of God. and full coniunction and communion with him, Knowen, to be chosen, accepted and marked for his. Rom. 8. 29. Gal. 4. 9. 2 Tim. 2. 19.

V. 13. Now,] that is to say even in this life, these three chief Christian vertues, are and doe operate in true beleevers at all times whereas miraculous gifts were to cease presently after the foundation of the churches, the greatest,] for faith and hope shall have no more place in the life everlasting, Rom. 8. 24. 2 Corinthans. 5. 7. Heb. 11. 1. but charity shall, ver. 8. and besides because charity is friend of the other two. Because man receaves by faith, and apprehends by hope, that he may enjoy by perfect love by which he also giveth to the Lord what he hath receaved from him, and in this correspondency consisteth the accomplishment of communion with God, and of mans beatitude.

Chap. 14.

Ver. 1. Prophecy,] that you may receave the miraculous gift of Gods spirit, to be able publikely to expound Gods word, and apply it to the churches use. Num. 11. 25. 29. 1 Sam. 10. 5. 10. which amongst all these other gifts is the most profitable and edifying. Whereas the Corinthians did more desire the gift of tongues, as that which caused more admiration, not regarding what fruit the Church reaped thereby.

V. 2. For,] prophecie is a gift more excellent then that of strange tongues, for by it is communicated light and instruction to the Church, to the end with vnderstanding of it, which ought to be the proper end of speaking, our which, speaking is but an unprofitabel sound vnto God,] who onelie vnderstandeth misteries,] what he propounds of the vnknowne doctrine of salvation, in an vnknowne language, by this gift of the spirit is a incomprehenciable as it it were a hidden secrets neuer reuealed.

V. 3. To edification,] namely, things which serve for the instruction advancement, and confirmation of the faith. even as the two subsequent vses are referred onely to a mans manner and custome of living.

V. 4. Edifieth,] because he only understandeth it See upon 1 Cor. 12. 10.

V. 5. I would,] I say not but that they who have received the gift of tongues may put it in practise so it may be for a holy vse, as to confirme the faithe and not for a vaine ostentation, the church not vnderstanding it, these miraculous gifts beeing often ioyned with personall vices, great,] that is to say he hath a more precious gift, because it profiteth more then that of strang tongue, which without being understood, reduceth nothing but a vaine admiration be interpret,] for in that case he doth the office of a prophet, these two gifts being sometimes ioyned on with the other see concerning this gift of interpreting upon 1. Cor. 12. 10.

V. 6. Now,] that which you admire in others, would you finde it good in mee, who am your Apostle, namely that I should come unto you with the gift of tongues onely, which gift is so largly conferred upon mee by the holy Ghost. v. 18. would you not rather expect from me an understanding sermon more befitting mine office of Apostle, and more profitable for you, by reuelation,] namely if I should propose unto you some particular thing belonging to your faith or salvation which I had learned of God by some immediate reuelation, or apprehended and taken out by discourse and reasoning out of the generall grounds of Gods word, by prophecy &c.] namely by a generall exposition of Gods truth, whither it be by a miraculous gift which is prophecying, or by an ordinary faculty which is learning.

V. 10. Of voices,] that is to say of nations which have differing languages.

V. 11. Therefore if,] as the diversity of languages they being not understood breeds a kinde of alienation amongst men, and makes them one alien to another, hindering their communication to this gift of unknowen tongues, without understanding them, cannot any way do the Church any service in its true communion.

V. 13 That speaketh,] namely by a miraculous gift Pray that,] let him desire of god to grant him the power likewise by such another motion of the holy Ghost, to propound that in the vulgar tongue, as he had propounded in an vnknowen tongue see vpon 1. Cor. 12. 10.

V. 14 For if,] the necessitie of this is most expresse Knowne in publicke praier wherein according to Christs command, common consent is required. Math. 18. 19. which cannot be vnlesse it be vnderstood, and therefore if the motion of the spiret driueth on to make a prayer in an vnknown language, it is necessarie. that it should be interpreted either by him that made it if he have the gift or by some other. My spirit,] Gods spirit frameth in me by way of supernaturall inspiration the conceptions and words of the prayer, and drines me to the utreing of them: but in the meane time, the naturall facultie of the mind, or vnderstanding by which the naturall and ordinarie speechis produced to communicate it self to others, ceaseth in me, and yeelds no edification. Therefore the conclusion is that one was not to vse this gift of tongues publicklie for a vaine ostentation. V. 28. but onlie in a time of need, when They,] were to reproue infidels or conuert nations of an onknowne language, and if that gift were made use of in a Church, which had not the naturall use of his language that did speake, he himself was to interpret it, or some bodie else for him: that the church understanding it might be instructed, and by the miraculous expression confirmed.

V. 16. Else When,] the meaning is. That the praiers made and praises given to God publikelie in the Church, ought to be made by the same spirit motion and affection in all, which is impossible, if all doe not understand the mening. He that,] namelie the common sort of people, which in the holie assemblies sate in places destinct from the pastors and other Ecclesiasticall persons, such as those were who had that gift of tongues Say Amen,] that is to say ioyne his vows assents and intentions to a speech which he vnderstandeth not.

V. 18. Speake more,] hence it appears that this gift of tongues as well as of other miracles was more largelie bestowed upon one then upon another, and that it was generaly bestowed upon all the Apostels who weare to goe ouer all the world.

V. 19. With mine,] see upon v. 14.

V. 20. Children,] to feed your selues with and glorie in, vaine things, as the gift of toungs was out of its right vse: and to preferre them to things which were more usefull and necessarie.

V. 21. In the law,] namlie in the old testament. as Iohn. 15. 25. now that passage which containeth a reproof of the peopls wilfull stupiditie is drawen by a certaine agreeablenesse to this subject, in this regard: namelie that as god did not cease propounding of his word to his people, though they had made themselues vncapable of vnderstanding it to their owne saluation: onlie to reproue, them, and seale their condemnation to them. So when it is taught and brought vnto them, in a language wich they, vnderstand not, it is a signe that god will not make it an instrament of conversion and enlightning, but of conviction, as to hardened vnbeleuers.

V. 22. Wherefore,] this passage may be applied to that which I say namelie that Gods word sett forth by this gift of vnknowen tongues, may well be a miracle to convince and terrifie vnbeleuers, but not to feed and strenghten the faith of beleuers to life and saluation. Prophesying,] namelie the same word of God declared and expounded by the publick ministerie.

V. 23. If therefore,] if you should all obtaine at Gods hands that gift of strange languages, which you so much desire above all other gifts, and that you should abuse it as you doe, consider what would become of it, namely that in stead of teaching the ignorant, convicing of unbeleevers, and edifying of every one the whole action would turn to contempt and mokery, and all,] namely, all those who by reason of any miraculous gift, or by any expresse calling have authority to speake in Church assemblies, unbeleevers,] he meaneth not those unbeleeving strange nations or persons which weare to be converted or convinced by that gift in their owne proper language miraculously infused acts 2. 8. but those of the same nations and language as that Church was of, to whom their languages were unknown, that ye are,] speaking without witt or understanding as frantick persons.

V. 24. He is,] namely by the only word of God intelligibly and lively taught by them who have the charge thereof, his conscience is a wakened to redargue him for his sinne, and by this meanes he is prepared to have recourse to Gods grace in Christ, and to embrace it being presented unto him by the same preaching.

V. 25. The secrets,] that is to say he makes a voluntary confession of his secret sinnes. Matth. 3. 6. Acts. 19. 18. or hee discouers the distresses and anguishes of his heart, to seeke a remedy and comfort for them. Acts 2. 37. See Luke 2. 35.

V. 26. A psalme,] namely some spirituall song dictated and imspired by the holy Ghost, which was a thing very frequent in the primitiue church, revelation,] See upon v. 6.

V. 27. If any man,] if this gift be found in some, I doe no meane it should be supressed, but it ought to be used soberly by 2 or 3, that the time of action may not be lost in things lesse profitable, and regularly one after the other, to avoid confusion, and profitable, with interpretation.

V. 28. Let him speake,] by meanes of that gift let him glorifie God, and edifie and instruct himself, seeing he can doe the Church no good by eleere interpretation v. 2. 4. added by himself, or made by some other.

V. 29. Speake,] for the same reasons, let but two or three of those that have the gift of prophecy speake every time the Church is gathered toge her, the othe,] namely prophets, judge,] let them examine by the gift of discerning of spirits, or by the the rule of Gods word whither that which is spoken be by the motion of Gods spirit, or whither it be human or diabolicall falshood. See 1. Cor. 12 9 and 14

1 Pet. 1. John. 4. 1.

V. 30. To another,] if whilst on of the prophets speakes, the spirit vrgeth another to speake, let the first moderate his speech in such sort, that the other may have time to speake in his turne.

V. 31. Ye may all,] namelie those who have the gift and calling of prophicie, Prophesie,] namely by turnes, and in diuerse or severall assemblies. That all] that by that gift which is equall in all prophets, they may all giue and receaue instruction, and enterchangable comfort.

V. 32. The spirits,] namelie the inspirations and doctrine of everie prophet, ought to be subiect to the examination and censure of other prophets; and therefore everie prophet may speake in publicke, that he may be knowne by the other prophets, and none ought to affect this Superioritie of speaking alwaies and so to keepe himself from being iudged or censured.

V. 33. For God,] a generall reason for all things which have bin said from. v. 26.

V. 34. Keepe silence,] let it not be lawfull for them to conferre publickelie in the Church, nor speak, and teach.

V. 36. The word,] ye are not the first, nor yet the sole Christians, and therefore you ought to follow the precepts of those from whom yee have receaued the Gospell: and the examples of other Churches.

V. 37. Thinke himself,] or make profession of being such Spirituall,] that is to say endowed with any of those miraculous gifts of Gods spirit. Let him acknowledge,] he may, and ought to acknowledge it by that divine light, otherwise his spirit is not the true spirit see. 1. Iohn. 4. 6. are the] by reason that God speakes in me, and guides me infallible by his spirit. see 1. Cor. 7. 25. 40.

V. 38. But if,] the Italian And if,] any one though he haue such expresse proofes of my vocation, and Apostolicall authoritie, will nevertheless be obstinate lie ignorant thereof, let it be athis perill I meane to argue no further with him.

Chap. 15.

Ver. 1. Wherein,] in the proposition of which you yet persevere, perseverance being likened to a man that stands firme and upright and constant to one that falleth.

V. 2. If ye keepe,] the Italian. Do yee keepe] that is to say will ye persevere in it? Or doe ye not find, that there is some change amongst you? Others expound it thus, I declare unto you, that is to say I put you in mind of, & confirm you in the Gospell which, &c. by which yee are saved if ye keep it in that manner, &c. Vnlesse yee,] thinke well upon it unlesse yee will loose the fruit of your former faith. Gal. 3. 4.

V. 3. I Delivered,] that is to say I Declared and taught Received,] that is to say learned of Christ, by the reuelation of his spirit.

V. 5. Of the Twelue,] namelie of the whole companie of the Apostles, which was not withstanding by reason of Iudas. His fall reduced to twelue.

V. 6. After that,] there two following appearings are not mentioned in Scripture.

V. 7. Iames.] manie beleeue this to be him who is called the Lords brother see Acts. 12. 17.

V. 8. As of one,] by an incomparable grace towards me, who was a parson of no worth nor dignitie, but deserved to bee altogether rejected. Or by singular miracle having not beene framed nor prepared before by the Lord, as the other Apostles were, but in an instant advanced to mine office.

V. 9. The least,] namelie concerning that which is in me, and mine owne. Though he elsewhere protest himselfe to be no way inferior to others in gifts, or vocation. 2. Cor. 11. 15. Gal. 2. 6.

V. 10. His grace,] namelie his gift and calling, In vaine,] that is to say vnprofitable to the Church and not imployed by me to the uttermost of my power. But the grace,] not onely the gift it selfe, but also the will and power the occasions, and means to make use of it, all comes from Gods grace. See Matth. 10. 20. 2 Cor. 3. 5. Phil. 2. 13.

V. 12. There is no,] it is likely that it was the same error which is noted. 2. Tim. 2. 18. as if by resurrection so cleerly taught in the whole Scripture, nothing should be meant but the renewing of the world by the Gospell, and the spirituall regeneration of soules by Gods spirit.

V. 13. If there be,] if that be absolutly denied it must also be denied in Christ, & also if it be denied in the faithfull, Christs also is disanntulled taking away the vertue, principall and inseparable effect of it, which is to raise his faithfull to his owne likenesse, Iohn. 11. 25. and 14. 19. Rom. 4. 25. 2. Cor. 5. 15. 1. Thess. 4. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 3.

V. 14. Vaine,] false and unprofitable seeing the ground of it is Christ risen. Now his meaning is that seeing it is impossible that you should have such an opinion of our preaching having undoubted proofes to the contrary, reject likewise any thing as may induce you thereunto by a necessary consequence. Also vaine,] which you will not agree unto, seeing you yet persevere in & glory in the profession of

V. 15. [illegible]we,] which likewise was most absurd, and impossible to perswade the churches unto who were fully assured of the truth of the Apostles doctrine.

V. 17. Ye are yet,] they are not yet purged since the payment is not fully made nor God appeased, if Christ doe yet remaine dead: seeing he cannot deliver others from death, if he himself remaine overcome by it.

V. 18. Are fallen asleep,] namely those beleevers who are dead in Christs faith, of whose salvation it was as unjust as inhumane to doubt.

V. 19. If in this life,] by this false doctrine we make our selves miserly wretched, for seeing it takes away from us eternall happinesse: and that our condition in this world is alwayes most wretched, we shall find our selves deprived of all manner of good both present, and eternall. Now the ground of this is, that the immortality of the soul, and the perfect happinesse of it, is by Gods order inseparable from the resurrection of the bodyes, so that hee which denieth the one annihilates the other. See upon Matth. 22. 32.

V. 20. The first fruits,] not onely the first in order of the resurrection which is in beleevers as it were a waking from death, but also in the quality of chief, the cause, and pledg of it in all his members inseparable united to him by communion of spirit Rom. 8. 11 even as under the law in the first fruites offered to God the people had an assurance of Gods blessing upon all their harvest See upon Rom. 11. 16.

V. 21. For since], he proves that by Christs resurrection, that of his members necessarily followeth for in the order of grace Christ hath bin by God appointed head of all the elect, as Adam had bin of all men in the order of nature: seeing then that Adam hath communicated his sinne and his death to all those who are his, Christ likewise communicates his righteousnesse and his life to his beleevers See. Rom. 5. 14. 15. 17. by man,] the Italian by a man,] by one who being true God is likewise true man, in which regard he is the meritorious cause of resurrection, by this perfect obedience, and likewise gives his beleevers assurance thereof, by the community of human nature, joyned to the communion of the spirit.

V. 22. All die,] all men that are by nature the sonnes of Adam, and are enfolded in his condemnation, shall all,] namely all beleevers whose father is Christ by grace, and in spirit, by vertue whereof being engrafted in his body, they are also partakers of his life and resurrection.

V. 24. The end,] namely of the world, and of temporall things and withall the accomplishment of all Gods promises, of Christs kingdome and the salvation of his elect, when he shall,] namely when the sonne of God who in quality of Mediator hath bin established king of the whole world, and especially of his church, like his fathers great deputy, to gather together governe and bring unto himself all his elect, and to destroy his enemyes shall have brought his work to an end and the father, with the sonne and the holy Ghost in vnitie of essence shall begin to raigne immediatly over his church, in a manner altogether new namely by himself, without any outward meanes, without the work of angels or men, or Ecclesiastical or politick orders as it is in this world, and likewise without adversaries or opposition filling all his with his light love, life, and glory which indeed will not a whit diminish Christs kingdom, but only change the manner of the same into a more sublime and perfect one. See Dan. 2. 44 and 7. 14. 27. Luke. 1. 33. Rev. 11. 15. 17. and. 12. 10.

V. 25. Must reigne,] namely the sonne of God must execise his empire in this manner, and inferior dispensation, by his word, by the established orders in perpetuall oppositions etc.

V. 26. death,] whose power shall be quite annihiliated in Christs members by the resurrection.

V. 27. When he saith,] we must not thinke that the father by bestowing the office of king upon his sonne, hath dispossessed himself of his soveraigne empire: but after the sonne shall have accomplished his worke, the father shall manifest and exercise his kingdome of glory, and essentein all eternity.

V. 28. Also himself,] not in his divine nature, wherein hee is alreadie equall to the father. Philiphans. 2. 6. but in this humane nature and as concerning his church which is his body, and the forme of his government, which then shall give way to the forme which is above described, that God,] may of himself immediately and absolutly worke fully in his elect perfectly united unto him, and may possesse and rule them for ever.

V. 29. which are,] from this manner of speech it appeares that the Apostle meant not an ordinary rite of the church but a particular custome of some whereof antiquity makes mention: and it should seeme that the beginning thereof was if not altogether good and laudable, yet at the least to tollerable. Which was, that when anyone died in Christs faith, before he was christened, some of his kindred or friends, comming to be Christened, would be baptized both in his own name, also in the nam of such a one whom he protested to be dead in Christs faith, that the church might wright him down in the registers which it kept of beleevers who died. This custom was strictly observed by the Corinthians, hereticks who denied the resurrection and presumptuous were authors of this error in the Church of Corinth. Now Saint Pauls meaning is that this custome were very absurd if there were no resurrection seeing that the ground and foundation of baptisme is Christs resurrection, and the end thereof is to seale unto us both our spirituall and corporall one. Rom.

1. Pet. 4. 3. 21. and the end of this particular observation was the profession of the expectation of the blessed resurrection, of beleevers. In following ages this thing came to be an abuse and superstition.

V. 30. why,] for what reason, and upon what hope do we beleevers expose our selves voluntarily to death and to so many dangers, and troubles for the Gospell, if it bringeth us two happinesse after this life, which happinesse according to gods order, cannot be of the soul alone, without any relation to the body, beeing eternally separated from it.

V. 31. By your rejoycing,] the Italian hath it, by the glory,] a kinde of most strong asseveration or attestation in manner of an oath as if he said. As true as mychief joy and glory in this world is in the blessing of God upon my ministery towards you to oblige the Corinthians not to deprive him of that only comfort amongst so many evills, in Christ Jesus,] spiritually in the communion of Christs grace and vertue, I die,] death hangeth over me continually and I do incessantly prepare my self for it. Psa. 119 109.

V. 32. after the manner,] he seemes by those words to make a difference between this danger which escaped with any apparent miracle from death of severall ancient fathers who were relieved by a supernaturall strength and safe gaurd of God as Samson. Judg. 14. 6. David 1. Sam. 17. 34. and Daniel. 6. 22. Heb. 11. 13 I have fought,] this accident is no where remembred in scripture and it may have a relation to the Romans custome, which was to bring in certain malefactors into the theaters and let loose wildbeasts upon them, against which they were suffered to defend themselves, to please the spectators, and if they did over come, their life was saved peradventure when Saint Paul would have entred into the the Acts. 19. 40. some such thing happened unto him, which he did ridd himself of, being without or in the entrance of the theater, To morrow,] as much as to say, if the hope of eternall goods be lost, let us swallow up the present ones while we have the power and time to do it which will shortly be taken from us by death A prophane and abominable thought.

V. 33. Be not deceived,] as beleeving that though you suffer such pestilences of error amongst you yet you shall keep your selves sound in your faith et cetera,] this is a verse of an ancient Greek poet called Menander. See. acts. 17. 28. Tit. 1. 12.

V. 34. To righteousnesse,] the Italian, righteously] by whole zeale of Gods glory, and pureness of his doctrine, take heed of these seducers and beware of them with great care, sin not,] by assenting to their error or by prophanenesse of life which this breedeth some,] he means those hereticks, have not the knowledge,] have no inward light of the holy Ghost or they have willfully put it out. Or they are prophane and doe not beleeve in God. See 1. Sam. 2. 12. Hos. 4. 6. Tit. 1. 16. to your shame,] namely that you tolerate such people among you.

V. 35. How are,] being utterly consumed, and turned to dust, with what,] another obiction of of prophane men. The dead when they rise shall they have the same bodies as they had in this world and shall those bodies have the same qualities?

V. 36. Thou foole,] an answere to the first obiection not by any naturall reason nor common judgment for in deed resurrection is not ground upon that but upon the order of gods will and omnipotencie, the similitude or representation whereof appeareth in the seedes which are cast into the earth which to produce their plant must first be putrefied See Iohn. 12. 24.

V. 37. And that,] answere to the second obiection, that body,] namely the whole plant, with all its parts, and ornaments.

V. 38. As it hath pleased,] namely he hath by his soveraigne will appointed it to be so in natnre.

V. 39. All flesh,] there is great difference amonst beasts whose bodies may truely by called flesh, and likewise amongst celestiall bodies according as it hath pleased God to create them, before it ought not to seeme strange unto us if God gives the same bodies diverse qualities in this life and in the life everlasting.

V. 34. It is sowen,] the bodies of beleevers are laid in the earth, not to perish there but to put of the qualities of corruption and death and by vertue of the spirits budding to put on those of the everlasting and incorruptible life.

V. 44. A naturall,] namely vivified after a naturall manner by the soul onely, which hath need of the helpes of the body in eating, and drinking, breathing and the like as other beasts and produceth in the body but a terrestriall, mutable, and dissoluble life and cannot free the body from diseases, age, wasting, nor death, nor restore it to life when it hath lost it, spirituall,] nost in the substance but in the new qualities which glorifie bodys do obtaine, namely to be (besides that life which they have from the soule) sustained and vivified without any corporall meanes in an everlasting, incorruptible blessed and glorious life, by the supernaturall vertue of the holy Ghost, infused into them by Jesus Christ, and by the full communication and power of God.

V. 45. A living soul,] to be creature that should live this corporall and naturall life by vertue of the soul which is the fountaine of this life while it is united with the body yet cannot of it self conferre the divin and spirituall life nor cause the union of the bod to be indissoluble, nor re joyne it after it is separated, the last,] namely Christ the head and stock of all the elect hath bin appointed by God, to be the fountaine and author of spirituall and everlasting life, by the communication of his spirit, which restoreth life to the dead, & doth inviolably preserve it for ever.

V. 45. Spirituall,] namely that foresaid quality of his spirit which restoreth life to the dead, and preserveth it inviolably for ever.

V. 47. Of the earth,] namely composed of all the elements but principally of the earth. Gen. 2. 19. Eccl 6.10. earthly,] that is to say participant of all the conditions of other earthly and elementall creatures, which are corruptible, mutable, mortall See John. 3 31. from heaven,] of celestiall originall not in the substance of his body but in regard of his God head. John. 3 13. according to which chiefly he is the head of his Church: and also in regard of the state of celestiall life and glory to which he was ordained by God his father, and of which he hath taken possession, from thence to power doune his spirit upon all those who are his.

V. 49. We have borne,] beeing engendered by him we have bin like him in nature and qualities, shall also,] beeing regenerated by him wee shall be also made like him in glory.

V. 50. Now this,] as the vicious nature of of man, signified by these termes of flesh and bloud, ought to be changed by the gift of the holy Ghost, to have entrance into Gods kingdome: so the body ought to be spoiled of its corruptible, mortall and animall qualities, before it can enjoy the everlasting and glorious life. 2, Cor. 5. 1. 4.

V. 51. We shall not all,] those beleevers which shall bee found alive at CHRISTS last comming, shall not die a naturall death which is with sicknesse, sorrow, and perishing of the body but in stead thereof there shall be in them a sodaine change of qualities.

V. 52. we shall be,] namely those beleevers who shall be then living. And the Apostle speakes thus to teach every one to be prepared expecting that day every moment 1 Thess. 4. 15. 17.

V. 54. Swallowed up,] destroyed and brought to nothing Rev. 20. 14. in victory,] that is to say eternally according to the meaning of this phrase amongst the Hebrews, from whom it is taken.

V. 56. The sting,] namely that thing which armeth and gives death and hell strength and victory over us, The strength,] namely that by vertue of which sinne produceth utter condemnation and death upon man, namely in so much as he transgresseth the law. Rom. 4. 15. which besides beeing unable to correct mans wickednesse doth kindle and exasperate it Rom. 5. 20. and 7. 5. 8. 9. 13

V. 57. Through Our Lord,] in as much as through his satisfaction, condemnation is disannulled, and through his spirit of regeneration the kingdome of sinne is overthrowne. Rom. 8. 1. 2. 3. and by his corporall death he freeth vs from the reliques of sinne: and by his resurrection he freeth vs from all manner of subiection to death.

V. 58. In the worke,] in all actions belonging to your heauenly vocation, and to the service of God Not in vaine,] namelie without fruit or reward, seeing there is a resurrection; & eternall happinesse In the Lord,] that is to say in respect of God and of Christ, and according to the manner and order as he vseth in rewarding those who are his with spirituall and everlastling goods, which is spoken in opposition of the world, in which beleevers ought not to looke for there reward.

CHAP. XVI.

VER. 1. Collection,] namelie contribution of almes. For the Saints,] namelie for the Churches of Ierusalem, and Iudea.

V. 2. The first day,] which was the Sunday, which after the Lords resurrection, and his appearings upon that day. Iohn. 20. 19. 26. was dedicated to sacred actions and assemblies, in stead of the ancient Sabbath. Acts 20. 7. Reu. 1, 10. Hath prospered,] as he shall iudge fitting to be done according to reason. Or according to the prospering of his estate.

V. 6. That ye may,] desiring to have some of you to beare me companie in my voyages becaus of the great confidance I have in you; I will stay till the season and time of yeare be fitting, becaus I will not vrge you to any discommoditie.

V. 9. Doore,] namelie an occasion of preaching and advancing the worke of the Gospell, namelie in Ephesus. Acts 19. 1. 9. 23.

V. 10. Come,] to you, because that he had given him aduice to goe theither. 1. Cor. 4. 17.

V. 11. Dispise him,] for his youth 1 Tim. 4. 12. In peace, louinglie, or saiclie, With the brethren,] it seemes to meane other brethren who accompanied Timothie.

V. 15. Addicted themselues,] namelie to the ministrie of the Gospell, as it seemes to be set foorth in the verse following: Or in the office of Deacon.

V. 16. Subiect,] as to lawfull guides of the Church; And laboureth,] in the holie ministrie which is common to vs all.

V. 17. That which was,] namelie the comfort of the spirit, or peradventure bodilie assistance which by reason of your remoteneesse I can not receive from

...you, Philip. 1.30. Philp. 13.

V. 18. My spirit,] namely my soule which is holly yours by a sincere and perfect love.

V. 19. In the Lord,] that is to say with a spirituall affection in the communion of Christ.

V. 21. with mine owne,] The Apostle employing some scribes, for to write his epistles, Rom. 16.22. was wont in the end of them to write something with his owne hand which was well known to the Churches, to prevent supposed epistles, and keep the Church from being deceived. Such are this ver. and the two following in the first of which he excludes the false brethren who are Christs and his churches enemies, not only from these his testimonies of charity, but even from the communion of Saints.

V. 22. Anathema,] a greeke word used in solemne excommunications which signifieth curse and execration. See 1. Cor. 12.3. Maranatha,] A Syriack word which signifie the Lord commeth, vsed amongst Christians in the highest and greatest excommunications, in imitation of other equivalent termes which was alwayes used amongst the Iewes to signifie a sitting of the excommunicate person, before the terrible judgment Seat of God at the last comming of the sonne of God. See Iude 15.

V. 24. My love,] I present my good will unto you, and all mine intimate affections in the spirituall communion of Christ.

The Second Epistle

Of Saint Paule the Apostle to the Corinthians.

Argument.

THe former epistle having brought forth, great fruit of correction in the Church of Corinth: yet there remaining many disorderly persons amongst them who on set purpose and to the utmost of their powers did vilifie Saint Pauls authority to with draw the Corinthians love, respect, and obedience from him he writs unto them this second epistle to exhort them to accomplish the reformation which they had so happily begun. And at the very first beginning he writes unto them, of his troubles, combates, and dangers, and likewise of his deliverances and comforts and desireth to be assisted by their prayers, and to bee by them seconded in his thanksgivings. Excusing himself for that he had not yet in person visited them, according as he had given them hope that he would, which was not by reason of any inconstancie in him, but onely because he would give them time, to sett their Church in such state, that he might not at his comming be forced to use and Apostolicall riger to the common grief of them and him Commending them in the meane time for their obedience in the incestuous mans case: who being become penitent upon the first admontion, he exhorteth them to receive him again into the peace and communion of the Church, giving his Apostolicall vote to the said absolution. And he relates unto them how that he in the meane time had laboured in other Churches with most happy successe: according to Gods mirvailous blessing: Which he doeth not set forth through any vaine glory but to exalt the Gospell, which God made glorious by the admirable profes of his power as it was evident in their Church above any other wherevnto he also contributed all maner of fidelity, sincerity, zeale and humility, amidst all maner of trialls, and xercise of afflictions and persecutions, made easie by vertue of Christ, and by faith in him and by a certain hope of eternall glory to which he continually aspired, and taught all beleevers to aspire unto and prepare themselves for renouncing all carnall affections to answeare to the grace of reconciliation preached and presented by the Gospell and he performed this holy duty especially toward the Corinthians exhorting themselves from all manner of communion with infidels and idolaters. Then at the same time as he was writing this Epistle, Titus beeing returned from Corinth where he had sent him, and having confirmed the report of the good state which that church was putting it self into the Apostle enlargeth himself in testimonialls of joy and comfort, and entire affection. And sending back Titus unto them with other brethren to make a collection of almes for the churches of Iudea, he exhorteth them to contribute liberally and speedily towards it. And to prevent that evill which Titus had reported unto him was occasioned amongst them by false Apostles, he doth highly extoll his owne Apostlesship, especially in those Churches which were founded by him, as that of Corinthians shewing that he was assisted by a terrible power against all adversaries and that he had made use of it in such a kinde, that false Apostles could never take any advantage upon him, nor occasion against him and that he could with the glory of his ministery overshadow all their false lustre yet that he had rather in humblesse towards God and modest charity towards them and all other men to give a proof of his faithfulnesse. So that they did not force him, through their rebellion and impenitencie to shew forth his just riger the power whereof lay in his hand.

CHAP.

Chap. 1.

V. 1. Achaia,] a province of Peloponnesus or Morea, where Corinth was.

V. 4. comforteth us,] It appeares that the Apostle finding himself in great streights in the course of his ministery, had found great comfort in the fruit which his first epistle to the church of Corinth had brought forth by correcting of many defaults.

V. 5. Of Christ,] which wee suffer for his sake as his members, to be conformable, to him our head who participates of them with us, and loves us up in them by his power. Rom. 8. 17. Rev. 1. 9.

V. 6. It is for,] namely that in me you may have an example that God doth in this world exercise even his most faithfull servants to exercise them: that ye may likewise prepare your selves for such trialls: and that seeing God never doth forsake them with his comfort and vertue, and that at the last he doeth deliver them in good time, you should also dispose your selves to faith and patience, by meanes whereof all your afflictions may prove to your salvation and life, is effectuall,] shewveth its vertue and effect in strengthening and bearing you up in the like troubles.

V. 8. which came,] it may bee hee meanes the persecution of Ephesus. acts. 19. 23. 1. Cor. 15. 32.

V. 9. We had,] he was verily perswaded that he should die, that we should,] Gods end in bringing of his into such extremities is to teach them to renounce all manner of presuming upon themselves, and to put no manner of confidence in human meanes and to repose all their trust and beleef in God alone, to whom no deliverance, not even from death is impossible.

V. 11. By many,] namely beleevers having a joynt feeling of my deliverance, to give God thanks therefore as they had a feeling of my dangers, and prayed unto him for me. So he sheweth that his principall end in desiring of these prayers to be made for him, was the glory of God.

V. 12. For our,] he gives a reason of this request namely because his loyaltye towards them in his ministery was worthy to be recompensed by them with their prayers for him, goodly sencerity,] not only in a morall and civil sincerity answereable to the duty and judgment of men: but in a spirituall one, created in the Apostle by God, and approved of by him, not with,] without using any art of human knowledge or eloquence therein: but onely the supernatuall gift of God in light of truth and strength of his spirit.

V. 13. For we write,] we may boldly boast of these things to you who have discerned the truth thereof, and doe know it with an undoubted knowledge.

V. 14. As also,] I hope you will never enter into any diffidence of my sincerity seeing that hitherto, you have esteemed it to be a happinesse and glory unto you, that you had me to be your Apostle and founder of your church, with such abundance of spirituall gifts for you in part,] somewhat, a terme of modest extenuation or silent reprehension of the Corinths for having wavered in this beleef by the inducement of false Apostles, even as,] and so enterchangeable your Church hath bin as a paragon of blessing upon my ministery, and the very heigh of all my labours as I doe also expect to be approved of and crowned by Christ for it at the last judgment.

V. 15. That you might,] that as you were by my first comming unto you converted so by my second you might be confirmed and set up right.

V. 17. Lightnesse,] having not hitherto accomplished my designe to visite you according to,] namly without the guide of the spirit, according to mine own naturall understanding, for worldly respects, which varying in themselves or at least in my conceipt may cause me to alter my mind, there should be,] I should say and promise now one thing and afterwards another.

V. 18. As God,] a kinde of oath by the interposition of Gods truth, who by his spirit did likewise make the Apostles ministery true, our word,] have a care above all other things, that you do no take this change of designe for an argument of instability in my doctrine but beleeve that I have done it for some certaine and sufficient reason.

V. 19. For the,] Christ who is the only object of our preaching have bin taught by us without any variation or contradiction with a perfect uniformity as well between me and my companions, as in all parts of my doctrine among them and the foundation thereof is in Christ himself and the substance of his gospell which is most pure absolute and everlasting truth and in the revelation of his spirit.

V. 20. For all,] Gods will being to be glorified, and to beacknowledged perfect vertue in the accomplishment of all his promises in Christ, preached by us; hath also given us Apostles an infallible conduct of his spirit that the truth of our word, might be wholly correspondent, to the truth of what Christ hath done as he himself in effects hath bin correspondent to Gods promises.

V. 21. Stabli sh,] he giveth us grace and power to preach the Gospell without erring or varying and you firmely to beleeve in it, annointed us,] consecrated us to this high office of Apostles, and endowed us with fitting gifts for it.

V. 2.

V. 22. who hath,] he hath done that in us in regard of our Apostle-ship by vertue of the same spirit, as maketh good in us, and in all his beleevers his vocation, and election by the gift of regeneration, marking us for his own, as it were with a seale, 2 Tim. 2. 19. and as it were by an earnest, or gage assuring us, of the future perfect enjoyment of his goods.

V. 23. Upon my soule,] submitting my person to his judgement if I lie. To spare you,] to give you time for voluntary repentance before my comming to the end that being present, I might not be forced to use any severitie.

Ver. 24. Not for that,] that which I speake of sparing you, is not because that I am Master of your Consciences to give, or take away from you the grace of God at my pleasure. For in this regard you depend upon Christ onely, in believing in whom consists your spirituall life and subsistencie: But because the chiefe end of my ministerie is to comfort you, and not to grieve you without any urgent necessitie, I have stayed my comming, that you might prevent my just rigor and that I might freely performe towards you this pleasing office of comforting you.

Chap. II.

Ver. 1. In heavinesse,] bringing you cause of griefe by my severitie and censures.

V. 2. For if I,] for causing this griefe in you, I doe conceave it yet greater in my selfe by reason of your errors; and there is but one only way to comfort me, namely your amendment.

V. 3. This same,] namely in the contents of my former Epistle. I should have,] least my griefe for your errors, might bee redoubled by your continuance and impenitencie. That my joy,] that the conjunction of our soules is such, that you rejoyce at all that which I rejoyce at, and likewise are sorry for all I am sorry for.

V. 4. Affliction,] for your disorders; and for being forced to deale severely with you. Not that yee,] mine ayme hath not beene to afflict you; as bearing you any harred or evill will: but rather to give you a certaine proofe of my charitie, by gaining your salvation through repentance.

V. 5 If any,] Name y that incestuous person particularly, 1 Cor. 5. 1. Have caused griefe,] have bin the cause of your, and my griefe together. He hath not,] I make no reckoning of the griefe which I have received thereby, in respect of that which my censures have brought upon you. Whereof hee hath beene the cause. But in part,] this is a mitigation of his speech, as if he should say, I will not burthen him, with all the cause of the displeasure which you have received, I doe take part of it upon my selfe.

Ver. 6. To such a man,] it appeares that the Church of Corinth had begun to proceed against the incestuous man, by grave censures, and admonitions, before they went on to excommunication, as the Apostle had appointed, 1 Cor. 5. 5. And these tryalls having brought forth serious repentance in him, it is likely that the Apostle was demanded whither that notwithstanding his said repentance, he were to be cut off from the Church: and he answereth, no. Was inflicted of,] that is to say publikely, in the face of the whole Church, which also gave a generall assent, and yeelded obedience to it. See Matth. 18. 17 1 Tim. 5. 20.

V. 7. Contrariwise,] so far am I from being willing to have him excommunicate. Swallowed up,] that is to say utterly sunck in dispaire.

V. 8 Confirme,] to receave him into the peace and charitie of the Church, and seale him his reconciliation, by the communion of the Sacrament of the holy Supper, by prayers, &c. and by all particular offices of charitie.

V 9. Did I write.] in my former Epistle. Obedient,] to the Holy Ghost speaking by mee. In all things,] namely in amending the faults in your manner of living, as well as in receaving pure doctrine, in seperating your selves from evill livers, as in abstayning from evill doing your selves: in using severitie against enormious scandalous persons, as in shewing clemencie, towards those who are weake and penitent.

V. 10. To whom,] as his will was that the Corinthians should with him condemne the incestuous man, 1 Cor. 5. 4. so he now will have the pardon granted by common advice: offering himselfe thorow an humble modestie to subscribe to what they should first judge to bee reasonable. If I forgave,] his meaning seemes to be. If in the beginning of your Church, before the order of its government was well established, I have at any time alone without any others, receaved some repentant sinner to mercie; I have not done it thorow any ambition, but in meere charitie towards you. In the person,] the Italian hath it, In the sight,] that is to say, I call the Lord to witnesse for it.

V. 11. Least Satan,] Least we give him occasion by any immoderate rigor of ours, to take away, or precipitate any member of the Church: to make the Gospell and the Ministers thereof odious: and to corrupt the holy use of discipline, which consists in the temperature of charitie, and the end whereof is nothing but the saving of sinners:

Ver. 12. A doore,] namely an occasion of advancing Gods work, by his word and vertue.

V. 13. Titus,] whom Paul had sent to Corinth to informe himselfe truely of the state of that Church, and was not as yet returned againe, as hee did afterwards, 2 Cor. 7. 6. Of them,] namely of the Church of Troas.

V. 14. Causeth us to,] maketh our Ministery glorious, by the power of Christ in new conquests and converting of Nations, overcomming all oppositions. Now hee seemes to intimate that this voyage into Macedonia: which hee undertooke beyond his intent (he intending rather to have gone to Corinth of he had beene certified what state they were in) had a happie issue and event.

V. 15. For we are,] wee doe propound Christs pure doctrine not infected with any false-hood, vicious affection, or end. Unto God,] that is to say divinely according to God, and according to the understanding which hee granteth his beleevers by his spirit. Others as God seeth it and judgeth of it. Or to his glory, and for his service. In them that are,] the Gospell is preached indifferently to all manner of persons whatsoever; but it works in them very differently; for being receaved by beleevers, it bringeth forth life and salvation, having all the cause thereof in it selfe, and being rejected by unbelievers, and rebellious persons, it is to them a cause of greater condemnation, and makes their perdition inevitable; according to their sentence which is irrevocable. See Luke 2. 34. Iohn 9. 39. 1 Peter 2. 8. 2 Tim. 2. 7.

V. 17. For wee,] he gives a reason for what hee had said, ver. 15. of the sweete Saviour of his Apostleship. Corrupt,] the Greeke word is taken, from Inglers, Vintners, and Wine Merchants, who adulterate wines and other wares. In the sight,] taking God continually for a witnesse and judge of our actions. In Christ,] in the power of Christ being alwayes guided by his spirit, in whose communion we live; and who worketh in us.

Chap. III.

Vse. 1. Againe,] hee seemes to have a relation to some reproofe of vaine glory given him by his adversaries.

V. 2. Our Epistle,] the meaning is. The state of your Church, such as it is by our working, witnesseth our fidelitie, and answereth our owne consciences, and the judgement of all men.

Ver. 3. For as much as,] all those that have any light of God, may easily perceave that the Lord hath by his spirit imprinted in your hearts the doctrine of the Gospell which wee have preached unto you, whereby hee hath, as one may say, sealed the loyaltie of our ministery, accompanying it with such evident efficacy. In tables of,] as Moses Law was written. Fleshly,] that is to say living and sensitive ones.

V. 4. Such trust,] namely to glory as confident in the effect of our ministerie. Through Christ,] from whom proceeds all the vertue of the worke, and through whom both our persons and our works are acceptable to God. To God-ward,] who is the only Iudge of consciences.

V. 6. Not of the letter,] which consisteth not only in word, and in writing, without conferring any inward or spirituall vertue: to bring to effect in man that which it represents unto him: but hath the vertue of the Holy Ghost joyned unto it which worketh in the heart, and there ratifieth and lively imprinteth, that which it propounderth and promiseth. For the,] he gives a reason of this introduction of a new covenant: namely because that the first covenant of the Law, could not save a sinner, yea served onely to denounce, confirme, and aggravate his condemnation to him, Rom. 3. 20. and 4. 15. and 7. 9. whereas the Gospell, by vertue of the spirit, gives life by faith, and nourisheth it by perpetuall comfort, and communication of grace.

V. 7. If the ministration,] if God by many glorious proofes: and especially by the shining of Moses his face, Exod. 34. 29, 30. would authorize the ministerie of the Law, which of it selfe had no power but to condemne and not to save: it is much more fitting that the ministery of the Gospell, which is all spirituall and effectuall to salvation, should bee made illustrious and admirable by the evident rayes of divine light, as it in in us, and by us Apostles, v. 2. 3. Was to be,] that is to say which glory was not to be perpetuall; whither it were that the beame of divine Majestie was in Moses but for a certaine time. Or that this doing away be meant to have happened by Moses death: to oppose it to Christs face, in which God had eternally manifested his glory, 2 Cor. 4. 6.

V. 9. Of righteousnesse,] Namely of Evangelicall righteousnesse in Christ, given by grace, and applyed to man by faith to the sinners justification, Ier. 33. 16. Daniel 9. 24. Romans 1. 17. and 3. 21. 22.

V. 10. For even that,] that which I speake appeares thereby, that in comparison of the glory of the Gospell, which is full, everlasting, and immutable: that little brightnesse which appeared in Moses his face was as nothing being that all that ministery was to give way to the Gospell, Gal. 3. 2, 25. Heb. 8. 13.

V. 11. Was glorious,] the Italian. Was by glorie,] and afterwards in the same verse, Is glorious,] the Italian, Shall be in glory,] the Apostle seemes to point at that difference of transitorie, and permanent glory, by these two kindes of speech, by glory, and in glory.

V. 12. Hope,] namely a certaine confidence that our ministery is, and shall be alwayes authorized by glorious proofes of Gods vertue. Pleinesse,] the Italian, Libertie,] that is to say holy freedome fully to discover the mysteries of the Gospell, though they be scandall and folly to carnall sence.

V. 13. And not,] namely that we do not hide that divine light as Moses did whose ministery kept the people under the shadowes of ceremonies, without letting them contemplate the mysteries which were figured by them, to the bottome: which was reserved from the time of the Gospell, Heb. 10. 1. wherof was a figure that vaile upon his face, to hide the divine splendor which was imprinted in it. That the children,] not that this was in the end of that act of Moses: but of that which the Apostle saith may be allegorically understood thereby: namely of the obscure dispensation of the Law. To the end,] namly in the accomplishment of those transitory figures See Rom. 10. 4. Gal. 3. 13.

V. 14. But their,] this is an answer to an implied objection, from whence commeth it then, that at this present time the Iewish Nation doth not believe the revelation of the Law made by the Gospel, and seeth nothing therein. The Apostle answers the vaile is not upon the Gospell, but upon their hearts, by a malicious and voluntary hardning, Ioh. 9. 39. and 12, 40. Rom. 11. 7. 25. as who should say; the light shineth, but they that should behold it are blind. The same,] they are as blinde and as ignorant, as if Christ, who hath put away all the shadowes, were not yet come.

V. 16. when it,] the Italian, when Israel,] when the body of the nation shall be brought to receave the Gospell God shall also cause the accomplishment of ancient figures in Christ to be cleerly seene.

V. 17. The Lord,] the Author of this vertue of the Holy Ghost, which displaies it selfe in the Gospell, ver. 8. is the Sonne of God Himselfe, who also produceth in us that holy freedome of preaching the Gospell without feare of refusall, or conjunction of falsehood and vanitie: being assured that he will perswade it to his elect, and will therewith convince his adversaries.

Ver. 18. We all,] now that God hath given his Church the cleere glasse of his Gospell, in stead of the vaile of Mosaicall figures: all beleevers do freely by faith contemplate the glorious light of his mercy, truth, power, &c. and by meanes of it they are made like unto him, in glory of holinesse and newnesse of life, by the spirit of regeneration, which hath its progresses in this life, untill such time as it come to its perfection in the life everlasting.

Chap.

Chap. IV.

Vers. 1. As we have,] namely at the Lords hands, who hath called us to this office of Apostles notwithstanding our unworthines. We faint not,] wee strengthen our selves by faith in our ministery, though it be contemned by some, and hated by others.

V. 2. The hidden things,] namely feares, feignings, and dissimulations, which those men use that are ashamed of what they doe, daring not to appeare in the cleare light, this hath a relation to the contrary. Not walking,] namely to eschew the other evill of hatred, I have not used any dissimulation or craft, to gaine mens favours.

V. 3. To them,] the Italian, Amongst them,] namly those who have no part in eternall salvation; whereof there are two kindes: the one have not knowne the Gospell: the others have had it preached unto them: but they being blinded by the devill who possesseth their hearts, have rejected it through incredulitie, 2 Thes. 1. 8.

V. 4. The God,] namely the Devill, chiefe of the of the reprobates, who in this corrupted world usurpes Gods honour and domination: to whose motions all the faction of the wicked yeelds obedience, as to their god, against the true God: and to whom also all false worships have a relation, 2 Cor. 10. 20. Of the glorious,] wherein is manifested the Majestie of Christs person and Kingdome, the Soveraigne excellencie of his benefits, and the divine vertue of his operations. Who is.] in whose person, works and word, God who is incomprehensible to man, reveales himselfe to salvation.

V. 5. For Jesus sake,] Namely to gaine you all to him, to establish his Kingdome in you and to cause him to bee acknowledged served and glorified by you.

V. 6. For God,] Christ is the only subject of my preaching for the great gift of light and of the love which we Apostles have, was conferred upon us to none other end. Who commanded,] who by his almightie word, created the light whilst all things were yet in darkenesse. In our hearts,] which even as the first masse of the world was naturally deprived of all heavenly light, whereby all matter of glory is taken away from us. To give the light,] sent to us Apostles and then by us, to others. In the face,] namely in Iesus Christ, revealed, and fully made knowne by the Gospell.

Ver. 7. Treasure,] namely of divine light: He seemes to make an allusion to the Historie of Iudg. 7. 16. In earthen,] namely in our persons, which are fraile vessells, and weake instruments,

God hath made choice of for so high an office, to make it appeare that the efficacie of the Gospell proceedeth from him and not from men. See 1 Cor. 2.5. 2 Cor. 12.9.

V. 8. wee are,] by superaddition besides our naturall weakenesse, enduring from men all manner of calamities in which the Lord doth notwithstanding miraculously hold us up.

V. 10. Bearing,] being laden with afflictions and miseries proper to all Christs members, to make them conformable to him their head, by which afflictions their poore life is consumed, and at the last brought to nothing. That the life,] to the end that after wee have suffered with him, and for him, he may also make us partakers of his glorious vertue, at the blessed resurrection.

V. 11. Our mortall,] Namely as it is in this life, which notwithstanding shall put on immortalitie in the everlasting life, 1 Cor. 15. 53, 54.

Ver. 12. So then,] at this time I doe principally alude of the conformitie to Christs death: in the afflictions which I suffer for him: whereas you seeme to be partakers only of his life and glory, being free from all calamities, stored with all manner of blessing and happinesse.

V. 13. The same,] the same faith as you have; created by the same spirit, notwithstanding the distance of our outward state. See Romans 1. 12. 2 Pet. 1. 1. Speake,] wee make free profession of the Gospell, wee preach it openly, and wee glory in God, and call upon him with confidence.

V. 14. Shall prevent us,] the Italian, Shall cause us to appeare.] before his face in the everlasting glory. With you,] in the communion of the same blessed life: though the state of this present life have been very different.

V. 15. For all,] he gives a reason for his assured confidence of being their fellow in glory, after his sufferings. Namely because that labouring in these sufferings for their salvation, there was no reason but that hee himselfe should have part in the benefit thereof.

Ver. 16. For which cause,] Namely upon this firme hope of eternall glory. Our outward,] namely our bodies and our persons in the naturall state of this life, doe faile, and consume, by continuall sufferances. Is renewed,] wee grow young againe, and strong in our soules, and the spirituall state of our life, which can not bee discerned by the eyes of the body, but onely by the light of the spirit.

V. 16. For,] the hope of eternall life which shall follow after our present afflictions, as a certaine reward, is that which keeps us in a perpetuall and untired vigour. Our light,] in respect of the excellencie, the infiniteneſſe and the eternitie of the heavenly glory, Rom. 8. 18. Worketh for us,] that is to say it shall at last be crowned in us with that infinite glory, which wee doe even in this world lively apprehend by faith: which draweth us away from all manner of consideration, love, and esteeme of the things of this world, to settle our heart wholly upon heavenly things.

CHAP. V.

VER. 1. House,] he calleth the body so, in regard of this fraile and transitory life, like a Cabin set up for a short time of use, Iob 4. 19. to which is opposite the heavenly life figured by a firme and everlasting building, Heb. 11. 10.

Ve 2. For,] the groanes of a fervent desire which the Holy Ghost engendreth in us Rom. 8. 23. compell us to aspire to everlasting life, and are unto us a certaine argument, that our true rest and happinesse is in heaven, and not in this world. In this,] others have it in the meane time.

V. 3. If so be,] that change of an earthly condition into a heavenly one requireth first as a necessary condition, that wee should even in this world bee clothed with Christs Righteousnesse, that is to say that we be justified in him, and adorned with nuptiall garments, Namely regenerated and sanctified by his spirit. See 1 Cor. 15. 50. Naked,] that is to say in our naturall filthinesse of sinne, which in it selfe is shamefull, and makes us odious and abominable to God. See Gen. 3. 7.

V. 4. For we,] hee confirmes that beleevers doe sigh through a desire of perfect deliverance, because they lament feeling their present misery, in regard of sinne, and of the evills that proceed from thence. For that wee would bee,] this burthen inducteth us to desire death, not through impatience for to be freed from so many troubles: but through a holy desire to have this naturall and corporall life changed into a heavenly, and everlasting life.

V. 5. Hath wrought us,] namely hath appointed and prepared us for everlasting life, by his election, vocation, and regeneration. Hath given unto us,] even in this world he hath given us the first fruits of that life, and by them assurance of the accomplishment of it in heaven, Rom. 8. 23. 2 Cor. 1. 22. Ephel. 4. 30.

V. 6. Confident,] in all dangers and sufferings, we are assured by this pledge of the spirit, that we can not perish, and that we cannot faile of eternall life. From the Lord,] from his presence, and full communication in his life and glory.

V. 7. For we,] he proves that we are yet absent because that all our spirituall life consists in faith, which he presupposeth that the fruition of the promised good is as yet farre off, Heb. 11. 1.

V. 8. Wee are,] faith notwithstanding createth in us a certaintie of our glorious end, which makes us desire the heavenly life, and likewise to leave the time and meanes thereof to God, reserving unto our selves only a care, that we may both living and dying be in his grace.

Verse 10. In his body.] Namely in this bodily life.

V. 11. Knowing,] that is to say knowing how terrible Gods judgement is, Heb. 10.31. I doe labour in my vocation, to induce men to receave Gods grace by faith, and to flie the judgement to come, Matth. 3.7. 1 Thes. 1.10. and God is the Iudge and you the witnesses of this my zeale.

Ver. 12. For wee,] hee gives a reason why hee comes againe to speake of his ministerie: namely not vainely to glorifie himselfe, nor to gaine favour, or reputation amongst them; but even for their owne profits: that being assured of his fidelitie, they may acknowledge how happie they are to have him for their Pastor and Apostle, to cleave constantly unto him, and to his doctrine against false Apostles, who bragged of their zeale, holinesse and fidelitie; 2 Corinthians 11.12, 13, 15. though their Consciences did convince them of contrary vices.

V. 13. For whither,] though that which I speak in commendation of mine Apostleship, may bee thought folly and vanitie by mine adversaries: yet will I not leave speaking the truth of it, for Gods service and for your profit: for as in my wise and discreet speech, according to the judgment of the world it selfe, I seeke nothing, but the good of the Church, so doe not I care for being held to bee a madd man for Gods service, to whom I referre my selfe, for any thing that I say or speake; and care not for mens judgments, 1 Cor. 4.3.

V. 14. For the,] he gives a reason, why hee had thus utterly renounced himselfe, to dedicate himselfe wholly to the service of God, and of his Church: namely by reason of a lively apprehension, of the infinite love of Christ, who died for believers, which enterchangeablie bindeth them, to love him perfectly: consecrating unto him their whole life, which they hold by his benefit. That if one,] namely Christ, For all,] namely for his whole Church, for all Gods Elect, Iohn 11. ver. 51, 52. Rom. 5.18.

V. 15. which live,] spiritually in the fruition of Gods grace, and the communication of his spirit, Gal. 2.20. Should not henceforth,] may renounce themselves, and consecrate all their actions, and their life to Christ, who hath acquired them to himselfe, and hath bound them to eternall gratitude.

Ver. 16. Know wee no man,] that is to say, I, and we Apostles, beare no more affection, nor carnall and worldlie respect, to any man living, nor to our owne selves; but desire to please Christ alone: towards whom we no longer beare an affection meerly humane, civill, and naturall, as they did who conversed with him in the world: but a divine and spirituall affection, befitting the state of glory, to which he hath been exalted. See Iohn 20.17. This is here touched by the Apostle; to confute the reason, whereby the false Apostles did vilifie his ministerie, making it inferiour to that of the other Apostles, namely because hee had not conversed with Christ in the flesh. Wee have,] may bee the Apostle would signifie that hee had knowne Christ upon earth, or it may as well bee meant by the other Apostles.

Ver. 17. Therefore if,] every true Christian engrafted into the body of Christ by his spirit, is and ought to be changed in all his sences, motions and affections: and therefore hee is freed from vanitie and selfe love: as the generall state of the Church being renewed by Christ, every beleever ought to participate of this newnesse of life.

V. 18. To us,] namely Apostles.

Ver. 19. Committed unto,] hath committed unto us, the ministerie and embassage of the Gospell; with full knowledge of his truth, and certaine conduct of his spirit.

V. 20. Bee yee,] that is to say except by faith the grace which is offered you, and persevere in it, and abstaine from all manner of offence which may alienate God from you.

V. 21. Hath made him.] hath imputed the whole masse of the sins of the world to Christ, most just and innocent of himselfe: and hath imposed the punishment and the curse of it upon him, that all beleevers may bee reputed before God, holy and perfect, as righteousnesse it selfe: by vertue of Christs Righteousnesse which hath beene given them by God, and which can onely subsist before his judgement.

Chap. VI.

Ver. 1. Workers together,] or working therein for our part Receive not,] namely by profession and assent the gift of the Gospell which is the foresaid embassage of grace: without producing in you, thorow your defect, its true fruit, of Righteousnesse, life, and peace with God.

V. 2. For he,] that is to say according to Gods promise in this passage, and the like, he hath revealed his grace, and doth at this present bestow his salvation by the Gospell.

V. 3. Offence,] matter of offence and scandall; or of hinderance to the advancement of the Gospell and salvation of others.

Verse. 5. Tumults,] and popular seditions by which the Apostle was often fallen into great danger,

...Others into troubles and unquietnesses.

V. 6. By the Holy Ghost,] that is to say by words and actions of motion, and inspiration altogether divine and supernaturall, which the Apostles sometimes used. And sometimes also they proceeded by humane discourse and motion, but sanctified. See 1 Cor. 14. 14, 15.

V. 7. By the power,] hee meanes that divine power joyned to his ministerie, by which he perswaded believers, and convinced, condemned, and punished rebellious ones. By the armour,] by all the meanes which a good and upright conscience useth to oppose it selfe, according to God, to evill, and evill men, on which side soever it be assaulted, whether it bee by allurements and faire meanes, which are the right hand. Or by afflictions and persecutions which are the left hand.

V. 9. Well knowne,] giving undoubted proofes of what wee are, namely true servants of God. Whereof believers are clearely perswaded, and the wicked convinced.

V. 10. Making many,] with spirituall gifts and goods, with knowledge, and instruction, &c. 1 Cor. 1. 5. Possessing,] namely as well contented, as if we were masters of all things. Or being by faith heires of all Gods goods in Christ. See Rom. 4. 13. 1 Cor. 3. 21.

V. 11. Our mouth,] I utter so many words unto you, and cannot stoppe, by reason of the boundlesse love which I beare unto you, which makes mee speake thus unto you with an open heart.

V. 12. Yee are not,] I lay mine whole heart open unto you without any restraint; that yee may take full possession of it, and remaine in it at large: but you on your side doe not answer me with entire charitie, 2 Cor. 12. 15.

V. 14. Yoaked,] Namely by fellowship in their sinnes, or by any tye of common life, which may hinder you from serving God in libertie, or may draw you to doe evill: and especially by matrimonie a terme taken from Oxen which are Yoaked together.

V. 15. Belial,] an Hebrew word which signifieth a wicked man, and a man of nought, and is attributed to the Devill the head of all the wicked.

V. 17. Come out from,] withdraw your selves from all manner of intimate conversation and communion with them, which may draw you to the participation or imitation of their sinnes.

Chap. VII.

Ver. 1. Of the flesh,] Namely of the body and the soule. Perfecting,] that is to say going forward more and more, in the state and course of our sanctification untill we attaine to perfection, Phil. 3. 12.

V. 2. Receive us,] open your hearts to our word and exhortation, cast away all prejudicate thoughts suspicious, and false opinions, which shut up the entrance of your hearts. See 2 Cor. 6. 13. Corrupted,] drawne him unto us by sinister practises, or caused him to goe astray from the faith, and from wholesome doctrine, or from any other part of his dutie.

Ver. 3. To condemne you,] to accuse you for any such calumnies against mee. To dye,] an ordinary terme, expressing a perfect friendship and conjunction: as if two friends had sworn never to forsake one another, neither in life nor death: or as if they lived but by one and the selfe same life.

V. 5. Our flesh,] Namely I my selfe in regard of my corporall and outward state. For in respect of the soule towards God, the spirit of peace and comfort, did never forsake him. Without,] namely without the Church, by enemies, and strangers.

V. 6. Titus,] whom he had sent to Corinth, to take notice of the true state of that Church, and to reforme it. Now it appeares by 2 Cor. 2. 12, 13, that Titus returned whilest Paul was writing this Epistle: and knew by some other meanes the good effect which the former Epistle had taken for the Corinthians amendment.

V. 7. By his,] namely not onely in regard of his presence and person, which is so deare, and so usefull to me. Your mourning,] your publike mourning and griefe for your disorders and faults censured by my former Epistle. Your fervent minde,] the Italian, Your zeale,] or jealousie, to see me so calumniated, and defamed by false Apostles, with a fervent desire to defend the innocencie of my person, and dignitie of mine Apostleship. The more,] Namely more than if I had had no cause at all to complaine of you and censure you in my former Epistle.

V. 8. Though I did,] I did grieve for a time, that I had beene forced to use so much severitie, and feared least it should produce some effect contrary to your salvation, which is mine only aime.

V. 9 Not that yee,] not like an enemy or an ill willer, that takes delight in another bodies displeasure: but like a faithfull friend who rejoyceth in the good which befalleth his friend, though it bee with some short smart. After a godly,] the Italian, According to God,] according to his holy will, as he appointeth, or as he worketh by his spirit in his children, for to bring them to repentance. That yee might,] and in this kinde ye have receaved no dammage nor losse at all by mee, but a great deale of profit.

Ver. 10. Not to bee,] whose fruit is alwayes most sweet and saving. Of the world,] Namely which is proper to worldly men, not regenerated by Gods spirit whose griefe is but a sharpe feeling of their miseries, without any sincere Repentance or a remorse and wounding the Conscience for their sins, without faith, amendment, or conversion to God: whereby all that repentance, is an entrance to eternall death, and a beginning of it.

Ver. 11. For behold,] hee proveth the foresaid good effect by all the particulars of a serious Repentance. Carefulnesse,] in readily and carefully putting in execution all that I had appointed for the correction of your errors, especially for the punishing of the incestuous man. [fearing of.] Namely shewing your innocencie concerning that misdeed, having proceeded so severely against the guilty person. Indignation,] moved by a fervent zeale, and justice, to condemne the guiltie, and impose the Ecclesiasticall punishments upon him. Feare,] a holy feare of Gods judgements upon the whole body your Church, for such an abominable misdeed of one of the members of it. Vehement desire,] the Italian. Great affection,] Namely to the glory of God, and to my person and ministerie. Revenge,] a just anger, and punishment. See Romans 13.4.

Ver. 12. I did it not,] Namely my chiefe end hath not beene to doe any act of a Iudge as between adverse parts, but to provide for the generall good of your Church, and therefore having obtained mine intent, I am content therewith, and rejoyce at it. In the sight of,] namely for the discharge of my conscience, in the duty which I owe to God as his minister.

V. 14. Of you,] namely of your pietie, docilitie reverence, and obedience to God, and to me his servant. Ashamed,] that is to say found a lyar, or deceaved in mine opinion.

Verse 15. With feare,] namely with humilitie, Christian devotion, and religious obedience.

Chap. VIII.

Ver. 1. Of the grace,] namely the excellent gift, of charity which God hath put in the heart of those Churches.

V. 2. How that,] amidst great miseries, being as full of cheerfull and willing charitie, as they were extreame poore in wealth, they have largely contributed to the collections for the beleevers of Iudea. Liberalitie,] the Greeke simplicitie, for liberalitie ought to be a pure & simple motion of doing good, without being corrupted by ones proper interests and hope of recompence, intent of making any one beholding, and without any reproaching. See Rom. 12.8. Iam. 1.5.

V. 4. The gift,] namely their liberalitie, which for their part together with other Churches, they do contribute for the reliefe of the foresaid brethren.

Ver. 5. Not as we,] the Italian, Not only as we,] namely giving somewhat according to their possibility. But first,] before they gave their goods, they offered their hearts, and persons to God, and to us his Apostles, which is the very fountaine of charity. See Isa. 58.10. 1 Cor. 13.3.

V. 6. Insomuch that,] being moved by the happie successe of this gathering which was made among the Macedonians we thought that you who are richer and mightier would doe no lesse. As he had,] it appeares that Titus in his first voyage, had the charge to see these gatherings begun, 1 Cor. 16.1. and that after hee was returned to the Apostle and had made his relation unto him, he was sent back to finish them. The same grace,] namely the collection of these almes, and gifts.

V. 7. In faith,] this may be understood of the common faith of those who beleeve in God, and in his truth and grace, or of the faith of working of miracles, Rom 12.3. 1 Cor. 12.9. In all,] Namely in holy zeale and fervencie, and in all other parts of the duty of Christians.

V. 8. By occasion,] rather than absolutely to command you your duty in this, I have chosen to make use of the Macedonians example to induce you to give a reall proofe of your true charitie towards the members of Christ, in acknowledgement of the benefits, receaved from him who is the head.

V. 9. Rich,] in the possession of a perfect happinesse and glory in his divine nature. He became,] he hath taken upon him our nature with all the miseries, wants, and obligements, Philip. 2.7. for to gaine for you the treasures of Gods grace, righteousnesse, and eternall life.

V. 10 I give,] was concerning a thing which is not only of duty, but also for your profit, by reason of the large reward which is promised to charitie. To be forward,] the Italian, To will,] namely the constant will to continue in doing these almes, being once begun, as it appeares by 2 Cor. 9.2, for it is likely that they were gathered by little and little, untill the sum grew to bee such that is was worthy to be carried to those Churches which were in want. See 1 Cor. 16.2.

V. 11. Which you,] according to your power.

V. 12. To that a man,] the meaning is. The quantitie of the gift is not that which maketh the giver acceptable, but the good will accompanied with the effect, according to the means and abilitie. See Luke 21. 2, 3.

V. 13. For I,] in this contribution, the intent is not to impoverish the one, to enrich the other; but onely to make a just temperature and communication amongst beleevers: those that doe abound giving to them that are in necessitie at the same time; that at another time the like may be done to them.

V. 14.

V. 16. The same earnest care,] as I have vsed in this businesse.

V. 17. The exhortation,] whereof ver. 6.

V. 18. The brother,] namely Saint Luke as it appeares by the end of this Epistle. In the Gospell,] namely in the gift and office of preaching it: vnder which hee also meane the Gospell which was written by Saint Luke.

V. 19 To travell,] namely to Ierusalem, to carry those almes which were gathered for the beleevers of Iudea. Declaration,] by delivering of it to them for whom you had gathered it.

V. 20. Should blame us,] should have occasion to suspect any disloyaltie in me, if I alone should have the managing of the businesse.

V. 22. With them,] namely with Titus and with the forenamed brother. Our brother,] who was a third man. Which I have,] namely that you will be willing to be bountifull in your almes, & not shame those who gather them nor frustrate their hopes through scarcitie.

V. 23. Messengers,] the Italian Apostles,] that is to say, more generall Pastors of some Country as the Euangelists were. See Rom. 16,7. Others sent, or deputed by the Churches for this commission. The glory,] namely such in pietie, holinesse, and other gifts of Gods Spirit: that Christ whom they represent as his servants is glorified thereby.

CHAP. IX.

VER. 1. As touching,] I doe insist more in recommending these brethren unto you, then in recommending the contribution it selfe, for I know that you are sufficiently inclined thereunto of your selves.

V. 2. Achaiah,] a province of Peloponnesus, or Morea, whereof Corinth was the chiefe Citie. Your zeale,] the Italian, Your jealousie,] that is to say your example hath stirred up a great emulation in many, who do not desire to be out gone in well doing.

Ver. 4. They of Macedonia,] who accompanied Saint Paul in this voyage. See Acts 20.4.

V. 5. Bountie,] the Italian, Blessing,] that is to say almes and bountie. As a matter,] namely as may deserve the title of liberalitie, both in abundance, and speedie performance; not savouring of scarcity neither in the quantitie nor in the manner of doing it.

Ver. 6. But this,] in this case is verified the common saying according to the Scripture, namely that Gods reward both in this life, and in the other, shall be according to the measure of the bounty, so that there bee in them all upright will and intention, though the effect be in different degree.

V. 7. Every man,] this which I say is not to impose a Law, or to force any one, but to stirre up your wills, without which nothing can bee pleasing to God, in this action.

V. 10. He that,] as God blesseth the increase of the earth so largely that it sufficeth both for the nourishment of man, and also to sow againe: So I beseech him to supply all your wants, and besides grant you meanes to use liberalitie: and that he will bee pleased to reward it abundantly with his grace. Righteousnesse,] namely your almes and bountie. See Matth. 6,1.

Ver. 11. Bountifulnesse,] Greeke simplicitie as 2 Cor. 8.2. Through us,] namely being by us dealt amongst true beleevers: Or being accompanied with our exhortation to acknowledge it all from God, and from the working of his spirit, in their brethren, for the maintaining of the communion of Saints.

V. 12. Service,] almes being a part of the spirituall service under the Gospell. See Phil. 4.18. Heb. 13.16. Unto God,] namely to his honour and glory.

V. 13. Subjection,] because you have voluntarily submitted your selves to the faith and to the sincere profession of the Gospell, and to all the duties of loyall Christians, and especially to communicate to your brethrens necessities.

CHAP. X.

VER. 1. By the meekenesse,] as you desire to bee partakers of the Evangelicall clemencie, of which Christ hath made me steward, Rom. 12.1. Among you,] according to the vaine opinion and saying of the false Apostles mine adversaries and slanderers, who misconster the humblenesse and modestie of my presence, to bee an abjectnesse of minde, and on the other side the severitie and vehemencie of my letters to bee a proud and insufferable kinde of command.

V. 2. I may not,] namely that I may not be bound to exercise mine Apostolicall power in punishing those that contemne my ministerie, without any humane respect or feare, 1 Cor. 4 21. 2 Cor. 13.2. Confidence,] undaunted firmenesse of mind. We walked,] that wee proceeded in our Apostleship by humane and ordinary meanes, without any divine and miraculous power and assistance.

V. 3. We walke,] for though we are men, and live, (so farre as concerneth this life) as other men do, with much weakenesse, and basenesse. Yet in our publicke office and especially against rebellious persons and enemies of the Gospell, we have a divine and invincible power, to represse all presumption, beate down all rebellion and discover and confound all manner of deceipt and machination. All which seems to have a relation to those judgements of God, executed upon the Apostles words, Act. 5.5. & 13.10 11. 1 Tim. 1.20. others understand it of the efficacy of the the Apostolicall word, in denouncing and sealing condemnation to the wicked and in imprinting a feeling thereof in their Consciences, which was followed by notable judgements, Acts 8. 20, 21. and 24, 25. 2 Cor. 13. 3.

Ver. 4. The weapons,] namely the meanes which we employ in defending Gods cause and in fighting against Satan and his instruments. Through God,] the Italian, To God,] who is the great warrior that handleth them, and the author of all strength and motion.

V. 5. Against the,] namely every thing that would hinder God from being knowne or worshipped, and from raigning by his Gospell. Bringing into captivitie,] keeping in Christs obedience by meanes of this terror all those over whom this power is exercised, which are they that are within, and not without the Church, 1 Cor. 5. 12, 13.

V. 6. when your,] I do not as yet ordinarily make use of this power, but use all meekenesse and clemency, to establish the kingdome of Christ well amongst you: which done, all rebellious persons shall be used with all manner of rigor.

V. 7. Doe yee looke,] doe you judge of me and of the power of mine Apostleship, by mine externall, humble weake and vile condition? Christs,] namely his Apostle, guided by his spirit. Of himselfe,] without any other notice given him hee may know the truth of mine Apostleship, notwithstanding my poore externall condition, 1 Iohn 4. 6. He speakes this to convince those false Apostles who did not acknowledge S. Paul for what he was, and therfore shewed that they had not the spirit of Christ, which judgeth of others, by its own proper motions

V. 8. For though,] I am in such sort Christs Apostle, that if I should extoll the power of mine office farre more than I have yet done, ver. 4. 5, 6. I should doe it in all truth, without any feare of being disproved for it. For your destruction,] that is to say I will never use this power in any excessive severitie against you Seeing God gave it me chiefly for the salvation of the Church, and the punishment of the wicked. And so he heartneth beleevers against the terror of that Apostolicall power.

V. 9. Terrifie you,] by terribly representing this my power unto you in wrighting, and not daring to use it when I am present.

V. 10. Say they,] he meanes some of his adversaries, that talked in this kinde, in prejudice of his Apostleship.

V. 12. For,] I may deale so with you, because I am your Apostle, without boasting falsly, as those false Doctors do. We dare not,] an ironicall kind of speech. Measuring themselves,] namely being full of pride, and presumption of themselves without well examining, and knowing themselves, by comparing themselves to others Are not,] they discover their want of understanding.

V. 13. will not boast,] namely of the power of mine Apostolicall office, which though it were not limitted to any certaine places, yea for order and peace sake, every Apostle was contayned to exercise it, over the Churches which hee had founded himselfe. According,] to God having assigned unto me part of labour, in such, and such places, I may truly say that you are part of them; and that therefore I have the right of an Apostle over you, without attributing any right unto my selfe, over Churches founded by others.

V. 14. We stretch not,] I doe not usurpe nor intrude upon other mens rights, when I attribute unto my selfe this power over you: as I should indeed doe, if your Church were not of my founding.

Ver. 15. Not boasting,] not taking upon me an universall authoritie over all Churches, even over them that have beene founded by other Apostles. Having hope,] I content my selfe with the honour of Apostleship which I have amongst those Churches it hath pleased God to found by me, and especially yours which I hope will yeeld me that honour, entire, in good esteeme, beliefe, and obedience: if that your faith now a little moved by false Apostles be reconfirmed.

V. 16. To preach,] that by the re-establishment of your Church, I shall have meanes to passe on forward to preach the Gospell in other places: and not meddle with any place where other Apostles have laboured already, as God hath directed them.

V. 17. But be that,] in all this let every one beware of attributing any thing unto himselfe, or to refer any thing to himselfe. And if God hath given any degree let us all acknowledge it to bee of his grace, and let us use it to his glory and service.

V. 18. For not hee,] for all manner of glorying of GODS grace is vaine and false, as not being approved by him, who is the only Iudge of men: And if it be grounded upon his grace, it must be all yeelded unto him.

CHAP. XI.

VER. 1. You would,] that you would suffer me to set forth mine owne praises without being offended therewith, or contemning me for a vaine glorious foole, 2 Cor. 5. 13. seeing that I doe it out of necessitie, to maintaine the authoritie of mine Apostleship 2 Corinthians 12. 6. yet howsoever you take it, I will doe it chiefely for your good.

V. 2. For I am,] that which I doe is not through desire of glory for my selfe, but for a jealous care of you, that you may not be misled in your faith by the contempt which false Apostles lay upon my person, and ministery. Godly,] a holy jealousie according to

in God. Or for Gods love and glory, Gal. 4. 17, 18. For I have,] he gives a reaſon for his jealouſie, and why he called it godly: namely becauſe he had bin as it were a meanes of their ſpirituall marriage with Chriſt, by enterchangeable promiſes and bonds; and therefore he endeavoured to have them on their ſide, keepe ſpirituall puritie and chaſtitie, that is to ſay a pure & ſincere faith. Others tranſlate it, I have wedded you to a husband namely to Chriſt, for to preſent a chaſte Virgin unto him.

Ver. 3. Simplicitie,] namely the pure and ſincere faith.

Ver. 4. For if,] the meaning is. You know that there is but one Goſpell, one Chriſt, and one ſpirit: which you have learned, beleeved, and receaved by my miniſtery which in gifts, light, and power, hath beene equall to that of other Apoſtles: and therefore you have no reaſon to depart from me, to goe after other Doctors, in hope of learning of them, any other ſaving truth, or more than you have learned of me. He that,] he ſeemes to meane ſome one of the chiefe of thoſe falſe Apoſtles, as 2 Cor. 10. 10. Another Ieſus,] namely if there could bee any other: A condition altogether impoſſible, and abominable even to thinke upon, Gal. 1. 7, 8.

V. 5. Very chiefeſt,] there were ſome of the Apoſtles which were endowed with more eminent gifts then the reſt; though they were all equall in degree of office. Vnleſſe hee meanes the twelve in compariſon of other inferiour Miniſters who were alſo called Apoſtles, Rom. 16. 7. 2 Cor. 8. 23. Gal. 1. 19. Phil. 2. 25.

V. 6. Rude,] without any rethoricall art, as a vulgar and illiterate man. This was the odious terme with which the adverſaries defamed his plaine, but moſt divine, incomparable and moſt effectuall eloquence, for which hee was held by the Pagans as a Mercurie, Acts 14. 12. Made manifeſt,] all my converſation hath witneſſed the gifts which I have receaved of God, befitting mine office of Apoſtle.

V. 7. Have I,] have you any reaſon to blame me for what I have done, having even ſubmitted my ſelf to worke with mine own hands, whileſt I have taught you the Goſpell? Exalted,] above other Churches of which I have taken freely to ſupply my wants: to ſhew you the ſingular eſteeme, in which I hold your ſalvation and edification: having laid aſide all mine eaſe, and part of my worldly honour, to prevent malignant mens calumnies, and the ſcandall of the weake, that they might not ſay or imagine that I preached for my belly, or for gaine.

V. 8. I have robbed,] a pleaſing kinde of ſpeech. The meaning is I have taken reliefe of others, when I have ſerved you and not them.

V. 9. From Macedonia,] namely the Philippians, Phil. 4. 10, 15. but not the Theſſalonians who were in the ſame province, 1 Theſ. 2. 9. and 2 Theſ. 3. 8, 9

V. 10. The truth,] as true as I am Chriſts faithfull Miniſter in his Goſpell: and that in every thing I endeavour to ſpeake truth, being guided by the ſpirit. No man ſhall,] though I ſhould alter my minde and manner of proceeding, and ſhould take a reward, yet ſhould not that ſtopp my mouth, but that I would glory againſt mine adverſaries for they abſtain from taking rewards, diſſimulately and cunningly, and I doe it ſincerely. Achaia,] a province of Greece in which Corinth was.

V. 11. Becauſe I,] and therefore diſdaine to take any thing of you.

V. 12. Occaſion,] namely the occaſion which the falſe Apoſtles ſought after for to calumniate mee. Wherein,] for ſome of them refrained to take their reliefe from the Churches, to get credit & entrance

V. 14. Of light,] that is to ſay good and holy, partaker of the ſplendor of celeſtiall glory, living, and dwelling in it, whereas evill angels are confined into everlaſting darkneſſe, 2 Pet. 2. 4. Iude 6.

V. 25. Of righteouſneſſe,] that is to ſay loyall, and good miniſters.

V. 16. Againe,] See v. 1. The meaning is, I have already ſufficiently proteſted, that it is not for any vaine glory that I publiſh my praiſes, yet you may believe what you pleaſe, onely heare mee firſt, and then judge of it.

V. 17. I ſpeake not,] I doe not ſpeak this as a publike perſon, as an Apoſtle, who ought not to praiſe himſelfe nor ſeek his own glory: but Chriſts glory only. I do here produce my ſelfe as a private perſon imitating mine adverſaries vanity in exalting my ſelfe: but they doe it to blind and ſeduce you: and I to refell their art, and to take away the vaile of admiration from before your eyes: that they may have no advantage above mee in any laudable qualitie, to exalt themſelves by my depreſſion.

V. 18. After the fleſh,] that is to ſay of outward and worldly qualities or peradventure alſo of Gods gifts, and offices belonging to his ſervice, onely to gain credit & honour to their own perſons: which is oppoſite to the glory in ſpirit, which is a joyfull and upraiſed profeſſion of Gods grace, to his glory only.

V. 19. For yee,] an ironicall kinde of biting ſentence, againſt their preſuming of their own wiſdom, as if hee ſaid. I hope you will beare with this deſect in me, which is very innocent and harmeleſſe, ſeeing that for all you are ſo wiſe, you do beare with greater faults in mine adverſaries, who are blemiſhed with theſe following vices.

V. 20. Bring you,] that is to ſay tyrannizeth over you and oppreſſeth you under pretence of Eccleſiaſticall power. Take of you,] by way of preſents, pretending to take nothing by way of recompence.

Ver. 21. I ſpeake,] that which I ſpeake in mine owne praise, is to your shame and reproach: you hauing not knowne, or at the least not been willing to know the expresse signes of Gods power working in me to hold mee in such esteem and degree as is due unto me, wherupon I must in despight of my selfe beg this small prop and stay of my qualities, against mine adversaries whom you favour. St. Paul doth not here speake of the whole body of the Church, of which hee had witnessed otherwise, but onely of some part, which might be of the false Apostles followers. Weake,] base, and wanting courage, to beare up the dignitie of our ministery. Wherein-soever,] whatsoever these men can alledge to put themselves forward, and gaine authority, I can say as much or more, and with better reason.

Ver. 22. Are they,] hence it appeares that those Doctors were of the Iewish Nation, and did insinuate into the Churches, as if they were sent by the Apostles at Ierusalem, to sow a mixture of Iudaisme with Christianitie which was condemned by St. Paul in other Epistles.

V. 23. Are they,] doe they professe themselves to bee ministers of the Gospell. I speake,] if it bee a folly to exalt ones selfe in these holy offices, in which the chiefe vertue is humilitie, I shall seeme more foolish unto you, in boasting my selfe, not of dignities, and greatnesses, but of miseries, and sufferings: which I produce for honourable marks of mine Apostleship. In deaths,] namely deadly accidents, and dangers.

V. 24. Save one,] for the Iewes by tradition not to exceed the number of forty appointed by the law, Deut. 25. 3. gave one stripe lesse to those whom they did beate in their Synagogues by the Romans permission, Mat. 23. 34. Acts 5. 40.

V. 25. With rods,] they were small rods, or wands with which the Romans used to beate malefactors, for here the Apostle seemes to intimate some such punishment of the Romans, as the former was of the Iewes. Thrice,] these shipwrackes of the Apostles are not mentioned in the history, for that of Acts 27. 42. can be none of these seeing it happened afterwards. Night and day,] he seems to meane some shipwrack where he saved himselfe upon some parcell of the wrack. In the deepe,] the Italian, In the deepe Sea,] the Greeke, in the depth: which by some is understood to be some cave, or dungeon, into which the Apostle was let downe as Acts 16. 24.

V. 28. That are without,] it should seeme that the Apostle likeneth himselfe to some Chieftaine of War in a besiedged Citie who is in perpetuall danger of the enemies assault abroad, and of some conspiracie or treason within. And by the things without, he meanes either corporall evills, or enemies which are strangers to the Church, to which he opposeth inward evills.

V. 29. That which commeth,] namely that which keepes me in perpetuall jealousie and feare, like a secret, and inward plot.

V. 29. Weake,] that is to say, wavering in faith, constancie, and patience, and such like vertues. And I,] namely that I doe not tremble for him, and for the danger of his fall. Offended,] that is to say, driven through the folly, rashnesse, or sins of others into danger of falling, which is opposite to the weaknesse of others, who of themselves did strive to keepe themselves upright. Burne,] Namely with griefe and holy indignation.

V. 30. Of the things,] namely of my miseries suffered for Christ, and not of worldly honours.

V. 32. Aretas,] it was a name common to the Kings of Arabia, who after the race of the Seleucides Kings of Syria failed, they of Damascus had taken for their Soveraigne Lords.

Chap. XII.

Ver. 1. It is not,] that is to say it is dangerous for feare, least I exalt my selfe above measure. I will come,] laying open mine own praises, I shall never forbeare the chiefe, which is concerning the glorious revelations which I have had from God: wherein besides that I shall go beyond the will of God, who hath directed them unto mee for mine owne particular use, giving me no permission to publish them, ver. 4 there is danger of some baite of pride in me, v. 7. or of some idolatrous understanding or motion in others, ver. 6. as if I were some Angell or God on earth. See Acts 14. 27.

V. 2. A man,] namely my selfe, who for all this, will be esteemed no otherwise, there a man, and not a God, or an Angell. In Christ,] namely a Christian and beleever, which seemes to be added, to say that hee gloried not of any vertue of his owne, but only of Gods grace in Christ. In body,] whither it happened by Gods framing of the Images of those celestiall things, in my soule without separating it from the body, only by the abstraction, of all sensible and naturall actions, or whither in deed my soule for a time separated from the body were transported into heaven, to contemplate those wonders in their reality. Caught up,] See Acts 9. 12. and 22. 17. and 23. 11. The third,] the place of Gods glory, and the habitation of the blessed spirits is so called in reference of the aire, which is the first heaven, and of the speeres of the stars in generall, which altogether are taken for another second heaven.

V. 4. Paradice,] it is the same place, as the third Heaven. See Luke 23. 43. Heard,] it is not said that hee saw; peradventure God would shew him, that it belongeth to the state of this present life to have revelations by hearing, and not by seeing. See Exod. 33. 22, 23. and 34. 6. 2 Cor. 5. 7. Unspeakable,] which can not be rehearsed. Whither it were because Paul was forbidden to speake them, being revealed to him in particular, and not for the pub-like use of the Church, as his other revelations were or because of the incapacitie of humane nature, to apprehend and expresse them.

Ver. 5. will I glory,] I can indeed boast of this which hath befallen mee: but I will forbeare for that glorious light which was communicated unto me is not proper for the estate of this life, wherein I am as yet serving of God: I was then as another man. But I will rather glorie in God because of my wretched and dejected estate whereunto I and all true beleevers are subject in this world, 2 Cor. 11. 30

V. 6. To glory,] namely of these divine and heavenly things. A foole,] rash and temerary.

V. 7. A thorne,] namely a vexation, or ordinary and very sensible molestation in my body, like a thorne or splinter in my sides, Num. 33. 55. By the uncertainty wherein the Apostle leaves the Reader it is credible that it was some corporall unquietnesse or torment occasioned by the evill spirit. To buffet me,] shamefully to outrage me, or to scoffe mee, to beate downe all manner of pride in me.

V. 9. My grace,] content thy selfe with my favour and good will which neither this, nor any other affliction is taken away from thee, nor diminished and endure this tryall, for the more thou and other beleevers are assaulted, the more doe I confer my grace upon you, to overcome all temptations. Inwakenesse,] namely in misery and calamities. Rather,] then in spirituall dignities and eminencies. May rest upon me,] the Italian, May defend me,] may be mine only safeguard and protection. The Greeke may be upon me, like unto a tent, wherewith a man keeps himselfe from the heate, and other offencivenesse of the aire. See Isa. 25. 4.

Ver. 10. Weake,] wretched and afflicted in mine selfe. Strong,] glorious, and victorious, through the power of Christ which assists and strengthens mee, against as evills doe oppresse me.

V. 11. For in nothing,] as you your selves have by experience found, the degree of gifts, office and power which God hath conferred upon me, equall to that of other Apostles: though mine adversaries doe make me farre below them. I bee,] namely of my selfe without Gods gift, or though I through humilitie make my selfe nothing.

V. 12. The signes,] that is to say the certaine and improvable arguments, of my full office of Apostle, have appeared by the effects of my ministery towards you. In all patience,] namely in all the sufferings which I have endured, and overcome by faith and constancie, which was a signe of the Apostles loyalty, and also of the presence and assistance of Gods spirit,] Mightie,] great and noted miracles. See 2 Cor. 12. 10.

V. 13. Inferior,] namely in gifts, and graces of God, conferred upon you through my ministerie. See 1 Cor. 1. 5, 6. To other,] founded by other Apostles, possesse then whom I am maliciously esteemed. Was not,] not taking from you mine ordinary reliefe, as other Apostles did, 1 Cor. 9. 6. Forgive me,] a pleasant ironia.

V. 14. The third time,] having been twice crossed in this my designe. See 1 Cor. 16. 5. and 2 Cor. 1. 16. But you,] to gaine you to God, and to acquire the treasure of eternall salvation for you

V. 15. Spend,] I will employ not my substance only; but even my life also to procure your salvation, 1 Thes. 2. 8. The lesse,] lesse then by right you should and then my love deserveth of you.

V. 16. But be it so,] he answers some such objection as this might bee: Truely thou hast no way burthened us to maintaine thee: but (will some say) thou hast cunningly gotten our goods from us, by the meanes of other men whom thou hast sent to us.

Ver. 18. I desired Titus,] namely to come unto you, He seemes to meane Titus his first voyage, 2 Cor. 2. 12. and 7. 6. A brother,] the Italian, this brother,] namely Luke 2 Cor. 13. 13. See 2 Cor. 8. 18, 22.

V. 19. Thinke you,] that is to say, in all this, my care is not so much to maintaine my credit by defending mine innocencie; as to increase and confirme your faith and pietie: by preserving mine authoritie and good fame amongst you; for feare least for want of it, my corrections and exhortations being of no force nor effect amongst you, I be not constrained to exercise the rigor which I use against rebellious, and incorrigible people. Before God,] it is a kinde of affertion of what he saith, that in all this he spake in Christ, namely by a motion of his spirit as Rom. 9. 1. and not through any fleshly selfe conceipt or selfe love. Or hee declares that presentin himselfe before Gods terrible Majestie, he puts farre from him all regard of himselfe.

Ver. 20. Such as I,] namely corrected, having amended all those defects that were in you. Such as you,] namely a severe punisher. Swellings,] of pride or discord of minds, and enterchangeable disdaines.

V. 21. Humble me,] that is to say afflict me with shame and griefe for your doings, who are my children, and should be the glory of my ministery, and the joy of my person. Bewaile,] that is to say, least I do with a great deale of griefe and bitternesse exercise the severitie of Christian discipline against them. See 1 Cor. 5. 2.

Chap. XIII.

Ver. 1. I Am comming,] namely that I send you word that I am comming to you 1 Cor. 12. 14. Some beleeve that by these commings, hee meanes the Epistles which he had written to them; whereof the first is that which is mentioned, 1 Cor. 5. 9. and is not now extant, the other two are those which doe yet remaine. Established,] the meaning is. These three warnings of my comming shall bee as so many witnesses, by which (if you do not amend) you shall bee sufficiently convinced of incorrigible rebellion,

rebellion, to proceed to a sentence already penned, 2 Cor. 10 6. Now this is spoken not to the whole body of the Church, of which he had testified better, but to some corrupt part thereof.

Ver. 2. I told you,] namely in this selfe same Epistle, 2 Cor. 10. 2. Which heretofore,] and have not beene corrected by mine admonitions. And to all other,] namely to the whole Church if it connive at other mens sinnes, 1 Cor. 5. 2.

V. 3. Yee seeke,] that is to say by reason of your obstinacie, you will trie whither Christ whose instrument and Minister I am in words and deeds, shall have power to ratifie my threatnings by his judgements. See 1 Cor. 10. 9. Which to you ward,] as he hath powerfully established his spirituall kingdome amongst you, so can he by vertue of that execute judgment amongst you.

V. 4. Through weaknesse,] because that in the humane nature which he had taken upon him, hee had subjected himselfe to all kind of miseries, and even to death it selfe. Hee liveth,] that is to say, hee hath bin raised by the glorious power of God the Father, Rom. 6. 4. which is the same power as his own, Ioh. 10. 18. and now hee lives in heavenly glory, and sheweth that hee lives by divine and miraculous effects. For wee also,] that is to say you may see the example, of what I say to you concerning Christ in us the Ministers of his kingdom, it is true that wee in our persons, doe participate of that first state of misery and death of Christ, but in our ministery towards you, we can (if need bee) shew the similitude of his life and strength in effects of divine and celestiall power. See 2 Cor. 10. 3. 4. In him,] namely in the communion which we have with him in all his states. See Rom. 6. 3.

V. 5. Whether you bee,] for proofe of what I say consider your selves, and take notice (if so bee you have not quenched the gift of Gods Spirit, and are quite forsaken by him) what the life and power of Christ dwelling in your hearts by faith, is in producing the admirable effects of spirituall life in you.

Ver. 6. But I trust,] this examing of your selves, may bring you againe to judge richly of us namely that Christ hath not rejected us, to be no more in us and not to accomplish by us what hee hath begun. Or also that we are no false Apostles, nor disloyall servants.

V. 7. Not that we,] I doe not in this seeke mine own credit, but only Gods glory to your salvation. Which being assured, let me (if any one will) be held a false Apostle; I care not for it.

V. 8. For we,] he gives a reason for this his prayer v. 7. as if hee said, in so doing, you have no reason to feare the power which God hath given me, v. 3. 4 for I do not make use of it against the lovers of the Gospel, which do voluntarily submit themselves unto it, but for their edification and profit, 2 Cor. 10. 8

V. 9. For we are,] he proves that hee did no abuse his power, for hee did not imitate the tyrants of the world, who doe keepe their people low, and in feare, for to use their absolute power alwayes, for hee contrariwise delighted in nothing more than to see beleevers strong, and vigorous in the actions of spirituall life for to have cause to proceed towards them in benignitie, and mildnesse, as disarmed of that terrible power. This also,] besides what he had desired for them.

V. 7. Your perfection,] namely that all things be set in a good and orderly state amongst you. Or your reunion, namely that there may bee no more parties and sects amongst you: but that you may all perfectly consent in Christ, and in his truth.

V. 10. To edification,] namely to a more proper and principall end. See upon v. 8.

V. 11. Of love,] the Italian, Of charitie,] namely the Author and approver of it.

Ver. 14. The communion, namely the gift of the spirit, common to all the Church, whereby all the members thereof are united to Christ their head, and one with the other, as the members of the body, are by the soule.

THE

THE EPISTLE OF SAINT PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE GALATIANS.

THE ARGUMENT.

AFter Saint Paul had founded the Churches of Galatia, a Province of the lesser Asia, it happened that certain false Doctours had troubled them, and had caused many to waver by meanes of a false doctrine; namely, that to be justified before God it was necessary, together with faith in Christ, strictly to observe Mosaicall Ceremonies, as a part of mans righteousnesse appointed by the Law, and to introduce their errour the easilier, they had vilified the person and Ministerie of Saint Paul, as not having the degree and authoritie of Apostle equall with the rest; seeing he had not been called nor chosen by Christ himselfe, as the twelve were, whose calling was therefore authenticall and undoubted, and yet they did still retain the use of those same ceremonies amongst the Iewes: though indeed it was by toleration and for a time, as things indifferent, having lost their ancient sacred character, and to an end altogether different from that, as those false Apostles did teach; Saint Paul therefore watching perpetually for the preservation and advancement of Gods worke which he had begun, writes to the Galatians for to set them again into the right way, and to confirme them in the truth; and at the very first blaming their inconstancie, he sheweth that the Gospell cannot varie in its substance which he had preached unto them by divine revelation, and by a full Apostolicall authoritie received from God, and acknowledged by the chiefest Apostles, by vertue of which he had reprehended Saint Peter himselfe, failing in the same subject which is spoken of in this Epistle, which he doth summarily propound in two Heads; whereof the first is, that man is justified before God by faith in Christ only, without the works of the Law. The other that every man who is justified ought to live a new life, in holines and righteousnesse, as a living member of Christ. He confirmeth the first by the proof of the evident gifts of the holy Ghost conferred upon the Galatians upon the preaching of this pure truth unto them, and for the seale of it; and afterwards by Scripture, which by the example of Abraham, and by the promises of the covenant of grace which were made unto Him, doth declare that man by faith onely obtaineth the true righteousnesse and blessing, acquired to beleevers by Christ, who ſubmitted himſelfe to the curſe of the Law for them, and that the Gentiles ſhould have part therein together with the Iewes, being incorporated together no more by the meanes of Circumciſion and other Ceremonies, but by faith in one onely Chriſt. Then he declares to what end the Law of Moſes was added, after the Covenant of grace made with Abraham, namely to bridle ſin, and to excite and preſerve a true feeling thereof in mens conſciences, and in this manner keep them alwayes attentive to the comming of the promiſed Meſſias; and reſtrained under a childiſh and ſervile diſcipline, which at Chriſts comming hath given way to the ſpirituall libertie of Gods children, come to a riper age, by the abundant powring forth of the Holy Ghoſt. And he doth ſeverely reprehend the Galatians, for having ſuffered themſelves to be thus led away from this libertie, and warneth them to come into it again ſo ſoon as they can, and perſevere conſtantly in it, ſhewing them by an excellent allegorie the difference between the Iewes who were ſervants, and true Chriſtians who were free children and heires, unleſſe they would altogether renounce Chriſts benefit. Afterwards he comes to the ſecond Head, which is of ſanctification and newneſſe of life, to which he doth fervently exhort them, wiſhing them not to transforme the holy libertie of the Goſpell into a prophane carnall licentiouſneſſe; but to endeavour to bear abundant fruites of the Spirit, eſpecially in true and ſincere charitie.

CHAP. I.

VER. 1. Not of men] namely of whoſe calling no man was the author nor meanes, nor inſtrument: and therfore it was not only lawfull, but alſo wholly divine and equall to that of other Apoſtles, contrary to the calumnie of thoſe falſe Apoſtles who vilified S. Pauls miniſtery in reſpect of the other Apoſtles miniſterie, to bring in the neceſſitie of Moſaicall ceremonies, which were yetuſed by the other Apoſtles amongſt the novice Iewes, and were abolished by Saint Paul amongſt the Gentiles.

V. 4. Who gave] that is to ſay, offered himſelfe for a ſacrifice, and voluntarily expoſed himſelfe to death for the payment of our ſinnes, and ranſome of our ſouls. Deliver us] ſeparate us from the ſocietie of the corrupt world, and bring us into the communion of the Church, and of Chriſts kingdom, which is called the new world, and the future age, becauſe of the renewment thereof in grace and righteouſneſſe, and of the everlaſtingneſſe of it, Iſ 65.17. Hebr. 2.5. & 6.5. To the will] namely, according to his eternall election.

V. 6. Into this grace] namely, by his grace to be partakers of the grace of remiſſion of ſinnes, and deliverance from the yoak of the Law.

V. 7. Another] namely true, and ſaving one, of equall holineſſe and truth with him that I have preached unto you, 2. Cor. 11.4. but is onely a depravation of the onely true One.

V. 8. Though we] an impoſſible caſe added onely by way of exaggeration, to ſhew that the Goſpell doth not depend upon the will of any creature. Then that] adding out of his own underſtanding, ſomething unto the ſubſtance of the doctrine, ſome article of faith, ſome ſacrament, or ſome command touching Gods ſervice, binding mens conſciences thereunto.

V. 10. For do I] He gives a reaſon for what he had ſaid, that it was not lawfull to alter any thing in his Goſpell; namely, becauſe it is a doctrine wholly divine, ſet forth by him in all puritie. Pleaſed men] as I did when I was a Phariſee, my whole care being then to conforme my ſelfe to the traditions, and opinions of men who were my doctors, and to purchaſe the glorie and eſteem of the world:

V. 11. After man] namely, of humane art or invention.

V. 14. Profited] I did ſtrive with all care and fervencie to make my ſelfe excellent therein. Traditions] ſee upon Matth. 15.2.

V. 16. In me] by an inward inſpiration, and illumination without any humane meanes. See Hoſ. 1.2. Among the heathen] becauſe the Apoſtle was eſpecially deſtinated to them by God, Acts 9.15. With fleſh] that is to ſay, with any living man, according to the meaning of the Hebrew phraſe. See Epheſ. 6.12.

V. 17. To them] to receive any power or authoritie from them, or any doctrine or inſtruction. Again] namely, beſides the firſt time that he had been there, preſently after his converſion, Acts 9.2.

V. 19. Brother] See upon Matth. 12.46. and it ſeemes to be the ſame, as Acts 12.17. and was Biſhop of Jeruſalem.

V. 21. Which were] which made profeſſion of of Christianitie. See Romans 16. verse 7.

V.24. In me] because of me.

CHAP. II.

VER.1. I went up] it is uncertain to which of the Apostles voyages this ought to be referred, many beleeve that it must be to that of Acts 15.2.

V.2. By revelation] namely, by Gods expresse command, given me in a dream, or in a vision, or by an Angel, or by meer inspiration. To them] namely, to the most renowned amongst the Apostles, v.9. which the false Apostles used as a buckler against S. Paul, but falsly.

V.3. Neither Titus] we ought to suppose the Apostles did not onely approve of my Gospell, and manner of proceeding with the Gentiles to free them from the Jewish ceremonies, but even in Jerusalem they did not constrain Titus to be circumcised, before they accepted him to be their brother.

V.4. Because of] namely, not to give certain false Jewdaizing Christians occasion to say, that I durst not, in the presence of the other Apostles thus free men from circumcision and other ceremonies, and thereupon to frame an argument to presse the necessitie of them to salvation, as part of mans righteousnesse before God. Brought in] by unconverted Jewes, to spie whether Paul observed ceremonies or no, and from thence take an occasion to persecute him: for it seemes their hatred was not so great towards the other Apostles, because they did not as yet depart from the Mosaicall observations so openly as Saint Paul did. Our libertie] with which Christ had freed his Church from the yoak of Moses his Law, see Acts 15.10. A libertie which was most used by Saint Paul, being the Gentiles Apostle, who abhorred circumcision and other ceremonies; whereas it was expedient for the other Apostles for a while to accomodate themselves therein to the Jewes, who were brought up in them, and used to them. In Christ] namely, by his benefit, and by faith in him.

V.5. By subjection] submitting our selves through fear, to their perverse intention, which was to draw a consequence from thence, to force the Gentiles to the foresaid observation contrarie to that for which Paul circumcised Timothie, namely, through wisdom, charitie, and compassion upon the infirmitie of weak ones, Acts 16.3. See Rom. 15.1,2. 1 Cor. 9.19. The truth] namely, that the substance of Christian doctrine might remain pure, and that ye might have no occasion to withdraw your selves from it by reason of this hard bondage.

V.6. Whatsoever they] though they conversed with Christ in the world, and though they were made Apostles before me, yet are they not above me in their Apostleship, as the false Apostles do suggest, for God respecteth not these outward considerations, in the conferring of his gifts and his vocation.

V.7. The Gospell] namely, the charge of preaching the Gospell, especially to the uncircumcised Gentiles, not that I was straightly limited to that, but onely in generall, and for the most part.

V.9. James] See Gal. 1.19. Pillars] chief in order and esteem amongst the Apostles, 2 Cor. 11.5. and 12.11. though indeed all the Apostles were equall in that gift of the infallible conduct of the Holie Ghost, in regard of which they were the pillars of the strong fabricke of the Christian Church, and of the Doctrine of it. See Matth. 16.18. 1 Cor. 3.10. Ephes. 2.20. Rev. 21.14. The grace] namely, the office of Apostle, and the gifts fitting for it, Rom. 1.5. and 12.3. and 15.15. Ephes. 3.8. They gave] they did not only assent to our preaching, but did also acknowledge us, and accept of us for fellowes in office, in equall degree and authoritie.

V.12. That certain] it is likely to be some of those false brethren V.4. From James] namely, from Jerusalem where James the Lords brothers residence was, Acts 12.17. and 15.13. and 21.18. Though they were not any way sent, or imploied by him, Acts 15.24. Did eat] did not hold the Christians which were amongst the Gentiles to be prophane, according to the Jewish institution, which was to abstain from eating with Heathens, Acts 10.28. and 11.3. He withdrew] fomenting therein the error of those false Doctors; namely, that without circumcision man could not be held for just and holie, nor a member of the Church, which on the one side subverted the Doctrine of mans perfect righteousnesse in Christ, who hath disanulled all vertue and use of circumcision by baptisme; and on the other side troubled the Gentiles consciences, who did abhor circumcision. Fearing] whereby it appeares, that in Peters act there was no error of minde, but onely some defect of humane affection, not in the Doctrine, but in outward actions, not by any firme and setled purpose, but by a suddain weakenesse, being overtaken with fear of the hatred, slander, and persecution of his Nation, which was zealous of ceremonies, and by some imprudencie in not throughly knowing the qualitie and intention of these false brethren, who were not weak, for such ought to be pleased in indifferent things; but malicious and ignorant, who ought to be resisted; and in not counterpoising their affected offences, with the scandall of the true brethren which were amongst the Gentiles.

V.13. And the other] namely, those which were turned Christians, and were sufficiently perswaded concerning Christian libertie, and were not superstitious ſtitious nor ſcrupulous concerning ceremonies. Wuh their] or in their.

V.14. The truth] See V.5. Before them] publikely and before the face of the Church; for Saint Peters error was publike, and might have been of conſequence in reſpect of many. See 1 *Tim.*5.20. If thou] if thou in thy conſcience doeſt hold thy ſelfe to be freed from Jewiſh ceremonies, and doeſt ordinarily live in this libertie, why doeſt thou upon this occaſion, wherein thou oughteſt to have oppoſed thy ſelfe againſt theſe falſe Doctors, who ſeek to impoſe this neceſſitie upon the Gentiles, authorize their error, and confirm their deſigne by thine example?

V.15. We] this ſeemes to be a new diſcourſe directed to the Galatians, upon thoſe things which ſpoken to Peter. The meaning is, if we Apoſtles were and other converted Jewes, though borne of the holie race, to whom the Law was eſpecially given; knowing that it cannot juſtifie us before God; have had recourſe to Chriſts onely righteouſneſſe and ſatisfaction; how much more ought the Gentiles to do it, who are laden with faults, and are wholly prophane of themſelves, and by the Law, can obtain nothing but damnation, and an expreſſe curſe?

V.16. Knowing] that is to ſay, being inſtructed by the doctrine of the Goſpell, and by the feeling of our own conſciences after long experience. Of Ieſus] that is to ſay, whereof he is the onely object, and foundation.

V.17. But if] upon occaſion of the ordinarie objection and calumnie, that the doctrine of righteouſneſſe by faith, doth ſlacken mens endeavours to good workes, and brings man to a licentious kinde of ſinning: Saint Paul propoſeth the ſecond benefit; namely, of ſanctification in ſpirit, which is inſeparable from the juſtification by Chriſt. While we ſeek] namely, whileſt we make profeſſion of ſeeking all our righteouſnnſſe in Chriſt by meanes of the faith which unites us to him, and applies his ſatisfaction to us. Are found] namely, that Chriſtians themſelves are prophane and given to evill doing. Is therefore] ought it therefore to be ſaid or thought that the doctrine of Gods grace in Chriſt ſerves for a bait and nouriſhment of ſin?

V.18. If I] if man doth willingly re-eſtabliſh the kingdom of ſin in himſelfe, which he made ſhew that he would diſanull, by having recourſe to Chriſt, who doth not onely cancell the Bond, but mortifieth the ſtrength and livelihood of it, by the ſpirit of regeneration, *Rom.*6.2,6. 1 Iohn 3.8. the fault is not in Chriſt, nor in the doctrine of grace, but in man, who tranſgreſſe the Law of the Spirit, under which all Chriſtians live.

V.19. For I] he proves that there is a formall tranſgreſſion in that which he hath ſaid; namely, becauſe that through Chriſts benefit, every Chriſtian (of whom the Apoſtle gives an example in himſelfe) is in a manner freed from the curſe, and extreme rigor of the Law, and paſſeth under another new Law of the Spirit of life in Chriſt, *Rom.*8.2. 1 *Cor.*7.22. and 9.21. which the milder it is, the faſter it bindeth to holineſſe of life. Am dead to the Law, the Italian, Am dead to another Law] not in regard of the ſubſtance which is alwayes the ſame, but in regard of the manner of commanding, and of the end of the commandment. Of the manner, becauſe that the Law of Moſes gives a man no ſtrength nor helpe towards the accompliſhing of it, and yet doth inexorably require perfect obedience; the Law of Chriſt contrariwiſe worketh in man the power of doing that which it commands: and beſides commandeth with mildneſſe, tempered according to mens weakneſſes and ignorances. In regard of the end, becauſe Moſes his Law is to gain a right to life, or to be condemned by it: the Law of Chriſt, to frame and direct man to the exerciſe and actions of life, which is already given him by grace.

V.20. I am] I participate of his death as well in the expiation of my ſinnes, as in the gift of his Spirit which mortifieth in me the ſtrength of ſin, and ingenders a new life in me of which Chriſt is the Root and Spring; and that by vertue of the communion which I have with him as member of his bodie, the band and tie whereof in this life is faith, *Epheſ.*3.17.

V.21. I do not] that is to ſay, I teach this, that the Doctrine of Gods grace in Chriſt, which is the onely cauſe of ſalvation may remain ſafe and untouched, *Rom.*4.14,16. Righteouſneſſe] namely, the meanes whereby man is juſtified before God. By the Law] either wholly according the Phariſees opinion, or in part according the error of thoſe falſe Doctours; now theſe two meanes of Faith, and of Workes cannot either by Gods order, or by the nature it ſelfe of the things be mixed together in cauſes of juſtification, *Rom.*4.4. and 5.6.11. Wherefore if the leaſt cauſe of righteouſneſſe and life be attributed to Workes, it muſt wholly be attributed unto them, and ſo Chriſt profiteth nothing, *Gal.*5.2,3,4. And ſo likewiſe, whoſoever hath a recourſe to Chriſt muſt abſolutely renounce all confidence in his own proper Workes, *Phil.*3.8,9.

CHAP. III.

VER.1. Set forth] lively repreſented unto you, with his death and paſſion, and with the vertue and uſe thereof.

V.2. Received you] you have not received the ſpirit of regeneration from God, nor the miracu-lou

Jous gifts thereof by meanes of the Jewish doctrine of Workes, nor by your endeavouring to do them, nor your adhering to them, but by meanes of the Gospell embraced by faith; then seeing that God hath ratified this Doctrine onely by this divine seal; you ought not any way to doubt of it, and you do very ill to varie therein.

V.3. Begun] the course and state of your vocation in Christianitie. In the Spirit] namely, by faith, regeneration, and other effects of the Holie Ghost, in which consists the substance and truth of the Gospell, Iohn 4.23. 2 *Cor.*3. 6.8. Made perfect] you let the false Apostles perswade you, that you may receive some addition of perfection, by the observation of legall ceremonies, as by a thing necessarie to mans righteousnesse and holinesse. By the flesh] by externall and corporall things, such as those ceremonies were, especially after their figurative and sacramentall use was nullified by Christ, to establish new Sacraments. See *Phil.*3.4. *Heb.*7.16. and 9.10.

V.4. In vain] namely for a Doctrine which now you renounce for the Jewes sakes, who were the first authours of the Christians persecutions, or without any fruit, for the reward is promised to them which persevere. If it be] and not rather to your greater condemnation; being that the abandoning of the truth after such great progresses therein, and such strong proofes cannot chuse but be imputed for a far greater fault, as there being greater violence and ruine therein, as in a building alreadie raised to a great height, more malignitie & ingratitude towards God, and more scandall towards men.

V.5. Miracles, the Italian, powerfull workes] that is to say, high and noted miracles which in those beginnings were frequent in the Churches. See 1 *Cor.*12.10.

V.7. Know yee, the Italian, yee you know] that is to say, this Doctrine is clear and resolved upon amongst Christians, that the true children of Abraham, comprehended in the covenant which God made with him and his posteritie are not the carnal Jewes, which are borne of him, or joyned to him by circumcision, and by the professing of their ceremonies; but all such as according to Abrahams example, do renounce all confidence in their owne proper Workes, and put it wholly in Gods promises and grace in Christ; as Abraham was made a father, example and paragon of faith to all those to whom the covenant made with him was to appertain. Of faith] namely, of the number, and on that good side of those which follow that onely meanes of salvation. See *Rom.*4.16.

V.8. The Scripture] namely, God speaking by it, *Rom.*9.17. *Gal.*3.22. did formerly reveal his intent to Abraham, to call the Gentiles at his appointed time, through faith in his Son. Preached before the Gospell] namely, he did propound unto him this Euangelicall promise. In thee] namely, in so much as they shall be thy children, and joyned to thee by communion and imitation of faith.

V.10. For as many] seeing there never were but these two meanes of obtaining Gods blessing, but Workes and Faith, and that through sin man hath made himselfe utterly uncapable of the first, and therefore remaines accursed; there is no way for him, but either to remain in perdition without redemption, or to have recourse unto the other meanes, which is Faith. Of the Workes] namely, of the number, of their opinion, and of their side who found the confidence of the righteousnesse and life upon their owne Workes, *Rom.*4.4. and 10.3. For it is] he doth presuppose it as a clear thing, that no man after sin can persevere, that is to say, can accomplish the course of obedience in all its heads.

V.11. But that no man] let no man deceive himselfe in believing that the aforesaid sentence is onely pronounced against wicked men who are altogether given to evill: the most righteous and holie do not live before God, and consequently are not justified but onely by Faith; seeing that righteousnesse is the onelie and perpetuall cause of life. See *Rom.*1.17. as it appeares by this passage of *Hab.*2.4.

V.12. And the Law, the Italian, but the Law] let everie one also beware of thinking to mix both the meanes together; namely, of Workes and of Faith in causes of life and justification; for in this regard, and for this effect, Workes have no communitie with Faith; neither in their own nature, seeing they present to God mans own righteousnesse, and Faith receives Ghrists righteousnesse for a gift; nor by Gods order, which makes these two meanes incompatible one with the other, *Rom.*4. 4,5. and 10.5,6. and 11 6. But the man] that is to say, the substance and sum of the Law consists in mans own proper Workes, contrarie to this reception by Faith in meer gift.

V.13. Christ] now he comes again to shew how a blessing comes upon the spirituall children of Abraham by Faith, v.9. namely, because by the same they receive Christ, who being pay-master for them to God hath borne his wrath and curse for them, to give satisfaction to it, and free them from it, and to obtain Gods grace for them, which is the spring of all blessing, by his perfect righteousnesse, 2 Corinthians 5.21.

V.14. Of Abraham] namely, promised to Abraham, and to his spirituall posteritie onely. The Gentiles, the Italian, the Nations] namely, to all believers, of all nations indifferently. Through Iesus Christ] that is to say, by vertue of him, and through the communion with him by Faith. That we might] that being so restored into Gods grace he might communicate his gifts unto us, and especially that of the holie Ghost to regeneration, which had been ſo often and ſo ſolemnly promiſed by the Prophets, Iſai 32.15. and 44.3. *Ier.*31.33. and 32.40. Ezek. 11.19. and 36.27. Ioel 2.29. *Zech.*12.10.

V.15. After the manner] taking example from that which is by common reaſon obſerved amongſt men in their covenants and contracts.

V.16. The promiſes] he hath a relation eſpecially to that ſolemne forme of covenant which was made with Abraham, *Geneſ.*17.7. long time before the Law was given by Moſes. He ſaith not] upon occaſion of that paſſage he ſheweth, that ſeeing all nations at the appointed time were to have part in that bleſſing as they were Abrahams poſteritie, which is but onely one: the naturall Jewes and the Gentiles who were children in ſpirit, were to be united together: now that is not done by conformitie of ceremonies, nor by them the proſelites which were of the Gentiles were incorporated into one and the ſame carnal nation with the Jewes: but bythe ſpiritual gathering together, which Chriſt as Head makes of all his Believers into one ſole bodie of a Church, which is Abrahams true offſpring. V.7. See *Epheſ.*2.14,15. and 3.6. Chriſt] namely, his whole myſticall Bodie which is the Church, which hath all its life and being from him, and alſo participates of the glorie of his Name, ſee 1 *Cor.*12.12.

V.17. In Chriſt] that is to ſay, of which covenant Chriſt already appointed and promiſed for a Mediatour, was the onely foundation ſhewn and apprehended by the fathers. The Law] namely, Moſes his Law with all its dependencies. The promiſe] namely, that Euangelicall promiſe of bleſſing to all nations, and other ſuch like, which are all free promiſes, *Rom.*4.13,14.

V.18. For if) we ought to ſuppoſe it would make the promiſe of none effect indeed if the inheritance and the bleſſing were by the Law; for theſe two meanes are incompatible one with the other. The inheritance) namely, the heavenly inheritance of which the Land of Canaan promiſed to Abraham and his ſeed was a figure, *Rom.*4.13,16.

V.19. Wherefore) namely, ſeeing the bleſſing and the inheritance are abſolutely given through grace, and are received by faith, the Law being no cauſe thereof neither in whole nor in part. Becauſe of) namely, to regulate mens lives, and to repreſſe the licentiouſneſſe and frequencie of miſdeeds; or to diſcover the horror, and ſeal the condemnation thereof, to drive men to ſeek the remedie of grace in the promiſed Meſſias, Romans 3.20. and 5.20. 1 *Tim.*1.9. Till the) the uſe of this ſervile pedagogie was to laſt ſo long as the Church was yet in its infancie, ſubject to fall eaſily into ſin through weakneſſe or ignorance; but it was to ceaſe at Chriſts coming in the fleſh, who gathering together the whole bodie of his Church from amongſt the Jewes and the Gentiles, and endowing it with abundant graces of his Spirit in knowledge and vertue, hath made it by effects be known to be the bleſſed ſeed of Gods children, V.26. driven to love him and obey him by the ſpirit of adoption and libertie, and not by the ſpirit of terror as it was anciently; ſee *Rom.*8.15. It was ordained, the Italian, it was publiſhed) God in the externall manner which he obſerved in giving his Law did ſhew that thereby man had no acceſſe to his Grace to obtain life and inheritance; for God did then appear extremely terrible, which was a qualitie contrary to a treatie of confederacie, and becauſe that at the peoples requeſt who were not able to endure thoſe terrours, (a ſigne of the guilt of their conſciences) Moſes was fain to come in between as a mediatour of word and communication, *Exod.*20.19. *Deut.*5.5. Acts 7.38. *Hebr.*12.19. he was therein the figure of Chriſt the onely Mediatour of propitiation, by whom we have acceſſe to God in confidence, Hebr. 12.24. By the Angels) who were alſo mediatours on Gods ſide as Moſes was on the peoples ſide.

V.20. A Mediatour) that is to ſay, the Office which Moſes then performed, and which is not uſed but onely amongſt diſagreeing parties, ſheweth that by the Law God and man were contrary to one another, as the delinquent and the Judge. Is one) he doth not varie one jot in his ſoveraigne juſtice which he hath ſet down in his Law, and therefore theſe two parties could not be united, but onely by the full ſatisfaction of Chriſt the Mediatour, as the Apoſtle had ſaid, V.13.

V.21. Is the Law) By the foreſaid things it appeares that God giving his Law by Moſes would not bring in a meanes of acquiring righteouſneſſe and life, which ſhould be contrarie to his covenant of Grace, but onely to guide men thereby to Chriſt For if) he gives a reaſon why the Law hath not been contrarie to the promiſes of Grace; namely, becauſe neither of it ſelfe, nor by any order from God it had any power to reſtore man who was dead in ſin to life, nor conſequently to juſtifie him: whereupon we ought to conclude, that God would not imploy it to any diſproportionable uſe to the prejudice of his Grace, to which he had reſerved that abſolutely.

V.22. But] the Law is ſo far from having been given to juſtifie man, that contrariwiſe it ſhewed and ſealed to the very Jewes (who were Gods people) their condemnation, Rom 3.10,20. and 4.15. The Scripture) namely, God by his Law and Word, *Rom.*9.17. *Gal.*3.8. hath declared that all men generally are ſinners and in ſtate of damnation: to the end that the elect, laying aſide all confidence in their own righteouſneſſe might have recourſe to Chriſt to obtain by faith in him, the bleſſing and inheritance, which are the ſubject of Gods promiſe.

V.23. Faith] namely, the time of the full manifestation, and of the free exercise of Faith under the Gospell. We] namely, the Church, which was then restrained within the Jewish nation onely. Kept under] that is to say, the severitie of the Law and the subjection to so many painfull observances kept us like children at schoole in perpetuall labours and discipline, still attentively expecting Christ, to keep us from going astray, either in religion or in life and conversation, beyond the bounds of Gods covenant.

V.24. Schoolmaster] that is to say, a meanes and instrument to governe our soules and actions, fitting for the Churches childhood with much rigor and servitude. That we might] namely, that looking still upon Christ the Church might even in those dayes receive from him the gifts of righteousnes and life, and that at this present time the effect of free justification might shew it selfe as full by those rigors and labours of the Law.

V.26. For ye] for the Christian Church is at this time come to such an age that childish servitude is taken away, and the light of her adoption is fully revealed, and the use of holy libertie is given unto her by the holy Ghost, Rom.8.15. Gal.4.1,5.

V.27. For as many] Faith in Christ causeth Christ to be effectually applied to all true Believers who are baptized in his Name with internall as well as with externall Baptisme, even as a garment to the bodie, to communicate his righteousnesse, life, rights, and dignitie unto them, that as he is the son of God by nature, they may also be made the like by grace and adoption, and that without any distinction of nations, states or conditions.

V.28. Ye are all] all Believers indifferently are one bodie, enjoy the same rights, and are reputed to be of one and the same condition.

V.29. Christs] his members by faith, and by the communion of his Spirit. Then are ye) then need ye no more be joyned to the blessed nation by circumcision and other ceremonies as the ancient proselites were, and as the false Apostles would tie you to be; for being united with Christ the reall Head of the blessed race, whereof Abraham was but onely the titular father, you are sufficiently incorporated into it.

CHAP. IIII.

VER.1. Differeth nothing) that is to say, he is kept in strict subjection, as concerning his person, and hath neither the entire knowledge, nor the free government and enjoyment of his rights and goods.

V.3. Even so) such hath been under the Law the condition of the Church whereof we are all members, for it was composed of Gods children, who had right to the heavenly inheritance in Christ, Rom.4.13,16. and yet by reason of their minoritie; namely, the small common distribution of Gods Spirit, it was all hidden under a forme of servile conduct. Under the) namely, under the discipline of the Law called elements, because that in comparison of the full and solid doctrine of the Gospell, the Law was but onely as an Alphabet, or tough rudiments, Hebr.5.12. by which the world began to be instructed in the mysteries of redemption; or because the Law made use of many corporeall and earthly meanes which were not so simply and generally spirituall as the Gospell, see Hebr.7.18. and 9.1.

V.4. The fulnesse] which was appointed and ordained by God. Sent forth] he would have him taking upon him humane flesh manifest himselfe unto the world, comming forth, as one should say, out of the everlasting habitation of his glorie, and fulfill in his own person the worke of humane redemption. Made of] having assumed humane nature which he had not before, according to which he hath been true man and a creature, Iohn 1.14. Rom.1.3. Phil.2.7. Borne of the holy Virgin without any worke of man, Gen.3.15. Esai 7.14. Mich. 5.3. Made under] namely, hath taken upon him the forme of a servant, Phil.2.7. subjecting himselfe to the the entire observation and satisfaction of the Law, to acquire by vertue thereof to his humane nature, and to all Believers, the right to eternall glorie; and to free them not onely from the curse of the Law, but also from that hard externall government of it which hath been spoken of before. Instead whereof he hath instituted the strong and free conduct of his Spirit.

V.5. We might) namely, the whole Church of this present time. The adoption) not onely the benefit thereof, but also the use and fruition. See Rom. 8.15,23. Ephes.1.5.

V.6. Because) Because God hath adopted you to be his children in Christ, he would make this gift full by regenerating you by his Spirit, powred upon you by Christ, who hath received the fulnesse of it, Iohn 1.16. for to distribute it to all his members, by which also they being assured that God is their father, they do call upon him as such, with full confidence.

V.7. Thou art no more) Every Believer is freed by Christ, both in right, and in deed, from the curse and servile pedagogie of the Law.

V.8. Howbeit then) that which I have said of the servile discipline of the Law belongeth to the Jewes: but you O Galatians, Gentiles, were under a worser servitude, namely, under a blinde idolatrie: now then seeing it hath pleased God at the very first to bring you into the light, or full libertie of his his Gospell, why do you with foul ingratitude for such a benefit make your selves slaves to observe such things as are now altogether unprofitable and vain?

V.9. Te have known) namely, with that lively, saving and effectuall knowledge which he of himselfe gives by his Word and Spirit. Are known) namely, chosen and accepted of, to be his. To the weak) to Mosaicall, externall, and corporeall ceremonies, by which God formerly instructed his Church in its childhood, as by a rough Alphabet, and which had never any power in themselves to produce any spirituall effects, Heb.9.9. and now under the Gospell, are not so much as of any figurative or sacramentall use. Again, the Italian, going backe) namely, from that degree of forwardnesse in the course of your heavenly vocation, to which you have already attained in Christ. See Galat.5.7. Phil.3.14.

V.10. Te observe) following the false Apostles doctrine, you do bring again the Mosaicall observation of distinction of times into a sacred use, binding your consciences thereunto, as if it were part of your holinesse and righteousnesse, Col.2.16.

V.12. Be as) Be my imitatours, 1 Cor.4.16. and 11,1. 1 Thess.1.6. For I am as) in the state of a Believer and a Christian, I am in the same degree and condition as you are, under the same rule of faith, and of Gods service, that no man may thinke that I have any particular priviledge to exempt me from ceremonies. Te have not) I am not any way exasperated against you for any offence done to my person, I onely desire you to have a care of your own salvation.

V.13. Infirmity) namely, afflictions and bodily miseries, by which God hath tried and exercised me.

V.14. As an Angell) See Zech.12.8. As Christ) not by yielding the honour which is due to Christ onely, unto my person, but by yielding obedience to my word, as being the Word of Christ himselfe, 1 Thess.2.13. 2 Pet.3.2.

V.15. Where is then) that is to say, What is the cause that you so quickly alienate your selves from me, and forsake my doctrine? since at other times you reputed your selves so happy in having me to be your Apostle and teacher, that there was nothing so dear, but you would willingly have given it me for an acknowledgement of so great a benefit; in me there is no change, the inconstancie is in you.

V.16. Am I) Is it fitting for you at this time in recompence of the truth which I have preached to you, to hold me to be your enemie?

V.17. They) namely, those false Apostles make shew of being moved by a singular love towards you, and a care to have you not drawn away from them, but seeing they lead you away from Christ the true Bridegroom and Master, to captivate you unto themselves, that shew of love is but a spirituall dishonestie. See contrariwise concerning godly jealousie, 2 Cor.11.2. Would exclude you) namely, they endeavour to separate you from the love of me, and of all other true Pastours, that you may wholly depend upon them alone.

V.18. It is good) the faithfull are to be commended for being continually carefull of their Pastours love; but you Galatians, contrariwise have forgotten me, so soon as I have been absent from you.

V.19. Of whom I travell) for whom I endure great paines and anguishes, as a woman that is in travell, untill such time as Christs pure Doctrine be re-established amongst you, as I had planted it.

V.20. Change) to have occasion to be glad and rejoyce with you in stead of my former complaints and reproofes. For I stand) this is the reason of the desire he had to see them, namely, because that being not certain what state they were in, he was in great doubt of them.

V.21. Tell me) you that of your own will, without, and contrary to Gods command do put your selves again under ther yoak of the Mosaicall Law: consider in Abrahams familie, as in an allegoricall pourtraiture, what you ought to judge of your act. Hear the Law) namely, this Scripture which is part of those bookes which are called the Law.

V.22. That Abraham) the meaning is, that as in Abrahams familie there were two mothers, and two kindes of issues, the one of bondage, and the other free, and the heir: so amongst those that have the knowledge of the true God, and make profession of serving him, there are two kindes according to the two doctrines or covenants propounded by God unto men, namely, the Law and the Gospell: those which hold themselves to the Law to obtain righteousnesse and life are slaves to sin and to the curse, and are finally excluded from the heavenly inheritance: those that embrace the Gospell are heires and free.

V.23. After the flesh) in a meer naturall way: A figure of them who are out of Christs grace, and do of themselves endeavour to obtain life, and righteousnesse by the Law. By the promise) namely, by a free gift, and by a miraculous operation of God, out of the course of nature. A figure of Believers who are made sonnes and heires of God, by his onely grace and power.

V.24. Are an allegorie, the Italian, have an allegoricall sense) namely, besides the historicall and literall sense, may be taken for a figure of Gods great familie. Are the two) that is to say, they signifie and represent the two, &c. The one) namely, that of the Law which was given in mount Sinai. Gendreth) of it selfe it may make those who are its followers to be part of Gods people by knowledge, profession, and worship; but in the mean time it cannot free them from their naturall bondage, nor bring them into Gods grace, nor obtain the inheritance of heavenly life for them. Which is] namely, this covenant was figured by Agar.

V.25. Agar is] namely, in this similitude of Abrahams familie with Gods familie; Agar first is correspondent to Sinai, because that as Agar was a stranger, not of the blessed progenie, so Sinai was in Arabia in the Ismaelites land, out of the bounds of the Land of Promise. And secondly, to the earthly Jerusalem of this age which makes profession of seeking life and righteousnesse in the Law, whereby all those which follow it do lose all right in the adoption and grace of God, and doe remain subject to sin and malediction.

V.26. But Jerusalem] there is also another bodie which is correspondent to Sara; namely, the Christian Church, which God himselfe hath created by his Word and Spirit, whose state shall also be perfect in Heaven, and that is freed by God from all spirituall bondage; and in it, and by it God gendreth and bringeth up all his true children.

V.27. For it is] he proves by this passage of the Prophet, that there was to be these two mothers, one spirituall, namely, the Christian Church; the other carnall, namely, the Jewish Synagogue, seeing that the great number of Gods true children was to be borne of the first by the calling of the Gentiles, not of the last, which in former times haue enjoyed Gods grace and presence; and finally, that those children should be brought forth by Gods onely grace and power without the worke of man, being the mother of her own nature was barren.

V.28. Now we] namely, all true Christians are and ought to acknowledge themselves to be the children of God, supernaturally engendred by meer grace.

V.29. But as] this singular priviledge hath a condition joyned unto it like unto that which happened unto Isaac who was scorned by Ismael, *Gen.*21.9. that is to say, that all Christians are likewise persecuted by the Jewes; as indeed persecutions began by them. Him that was] namely Isaac, who was not onely Abrahams son according to the flesh, but also was his spirituall issue in Gods adoption, and in the regeneration of the Spirit.

V.30. What saith] namely, as the sacred Historie sets down, that God would have Ismael with his mother driven out of Abrahams familie; so all carnall, unbelieving, proud, and perverse Jewes shall be bainshed out of Gods Church, and out of the Kingdom of Heaven.

CHAP. V.

VER.1. Again] as the Jewes were formerly, *Rom.*3.15.

V.2. Circumcised] as a thing which ought of necessitie to be done, and that is a part of mans righteousnesse, and necessary to salvation, according to the false Apostles meaning, Acts 15.1. For otherwise circumcision might be used as an outward and indifferent thing through wisdom and charitie to gain the Jewes, and cut off the scandall which offended their weakneſſe, Acts 16.3. Christ] for mans righteousnesse before God ought to be be either all by workes, or all by Christ; and these two meanes cannot be mixed: see upon *Gal.*2.21. and therefore he that attributeth one part to workes doth wholly renounce Christ, and to be saved he bindes himselfe to fulfill the whole Law, which being impossible for man to do, all his endeavours are not onely unprofitable but also very hurtfull.

V.4. Christ is] the Greek terme seemes to signifie, you are as dead members upon which by reason of your wickednesse and incapacitie Christ worketh no more. Are justified] namely, that pretend and believe to be partly justified before God by the Law. From grace] from Gods grace, which before you made profession of accepting in Christ.

V.5. For we] that is to say, you separate your selves from Christ, withdrawing your selves from the common meaning and belief of the Church, whose whole hope is to be absolved at the last judgement, and enter into everlasting life by the meanes of One onely Jesus Christ. Through the spirit] namely, taught and inspired by the holy Ghost, or following the spirituall meanes which the Gospell propounds in Christ, and in his Spirit, and not the carnall and elementall ones of the ceremonies of the Law, *Heb.*9.10.

V.6. Which worketh] namely, which is a true and lively faith, and sheweth it selfe to be such by the fruits of a new life, comprehended under the love of God, and of ones neighbour, *Rom.*13.8. of which faith is the roor, because it joyning a man with Christ, drawes his Spirit from him, and this Spirit is the soveraigne cause of all good workes. See Iohn 15.4,5. *Iam.*2.17,26.

V.7. Did run] you were in a good way of faith, and were gone happily forward towards the marke of your heavenly calling. See *Phil.*3.14.

V.8. Of him] namely, of God.

V.9. Leaven] that is to say, a little false doctrine, *Matth.*16.12. doth easily corrupt the good minde of a man in the rest, or a small number of heretickes may infect the whole Church.

V.10. Through the Lord] namely, through his grace and power. No otherwise] than I have at other times taught you, and now confirmed unto you in this Epistle.

V.11. And I] for a personall proof of this truth consider, that if I would retain the Mosaicall ceremonies, I might avoid the persecutions of my nation, which are raised against me onely for that cause; and therefore seeing I do refuse to do it, you may conclude, that my conscience (which may serve for example and rule to your consciences) doth not consent to it. See 1 *Cor.*15.30. The offence] namely, the cessation of the persecutions which do so much offend and alienate the world from the Gospell, is cut off, seeing they are at this time stirred up onely by the Jewes through a false zeal to their ceremonies, see *Gal.*6.12. *Phil.*3.18.

V.12. Cut off] wholly separated and banished out of the communion of the Church, in the bodie of which they are like unto so many plagues and cankers.

V.13. For brethren] the reason of this my desire is, because that they remaining amongst you disguised in sheepes clothing do hinder the course of your vocation, burthening you with the observances of such things as are contrary to Evangelicall libertie, by which the holy Ghost carrieth Believers evangelically on to their supernall end. To the flesh] namely, licentiously to satisfie your fleshly and vicious appetites under pretence that those ancient forbidding Lawes are disannulled. By love, the Italian, for charitie] have a care you do not offend the weak brethren in indifferent things, using your libertie indiscreetly, and unbridledly, Rom. 14.13,15,20. 1 *Cor.*6.12. and 8.9. and 10.24,32.

V.14. The Law] from which though Christ have taken away the power of judging the faithfull before God, yet it is left unto them for a perpetuall rule of true obedience and conformitie to the will of God their father.

V.15. To bite] he hath a relation to the controversies which were bred amongst Christians concerning the Jewish ceremonies, maintained with great instance by some, and by other some violently rejected, *Rom.*14.13. 1 *Tim.*1.4. and 6.4,5. 2 Tim. 2.23. *Tit.*3.9. One of another] namely, that in stead of receiving the Jewish ceremonies, for fear of being persecuted by the Jewes you do not upon the same occasion ruine one another without any persecution.

V.16. Walke in] Order your whole life and actions according to the instructions and motions of the holy Ghost, as well in the spirituall forme of Religion which is proper to the Gospell as in holinesse of life. Not fulfill] that is to say, withstand the reliques of the old man, and the naturall corruption which yet remaineth in you, *Rom.*7.18. &c.

V.17. For the] he gives a reason for what he had said, that following the spirit, one ought to renounce the flesh, namely, because they are two beginnings and motions which are directly contrary in their qualities and actions. So that ye] the Italian, that you may not do whatsoever you will] I speak this concerning the strife between the flesh and the spirit which is in every believer, to the end that under pretence of Evangelicall libertie, or of the presence of the spirit, you do not take leave to do whatsoever you please, seeing that there may be some motion of the flesh therein which is contrary to the motion of Gods Spirit. It may also be translated, so that you do not the things that you would; as much as to say, so that you are hindered from doing good in that perfection as you desire, Romans 7.15,19.

V.18. Under the Law] namely, under the servile and scrupulous pedagogie of the ceremoniall Law, nor yet under the morall Law, which doth severely command and inexorably condemne, but under that milde and most effectuall conduct of the holy Ghost working in you.

V.20. Heresies, the Italian, Sects] or heresies which are also effects of the corruption of sin as well in the affected ignorance of the understanding, as in the perverseneſſe of the will fixed upon its own opinions, lover of singularities and vainglorie, rebellious against the truth, failing in charitie, &c.

V.23. Against such, the Italian, against such things] that is to say, the Law of God that is so harsh and terrible to all men that are in the state of sin, is not so to Gods children, who do no more fight against it of pure malice, nor are not fought against by the curse of it, but do voluntarily submit themselves to it, and it through the spirit of grace becomes to them a milde mistresse of their actions and guide of their life, and is no longer an inexorable forme of judgement against their persons.

V.24. And they] though the root of the foresaid vices be also in believers, and in the members of Christ yet by his spirit, *Rom.*8.13. and by imitating his crosse, *Rom.*6.6. they mortifie it, suppresse the endeavours, and smother the effects of it, *Rom.*6.12.

V.25. In the spirit] being by it regenerated into a new life.

V.26. Provoking] spightings, and purposely doing acts of offence and provocation against other men.

CHAP. VI.

Verse 1. Overtaken] that is to say, discovered to be guilty, or have runne into it inconsiderately, and not out of any deliberate malice. Ye which are] namely the bodie of believers, in whom the worke of the holy Ghost remaineth maineth safe without being spoiled or spotted by any grievous sin. Restore] the Greek word is derived from setting of limbes that are out of joint: he meanes by corrections, reproofes and inducements to repentance, endeavour to settle his conscience again into a good state, as well in regard of Gods pardon as of the amendment of the sinner himselfe, see *Iam.*5.19,20.

V.2. Bear ye] that is to say, have you a fellow-feeling of your brethrens faults wherewith their consciences are burthened, and take care to ease them. Fulfill] put the command of charitie in practise, which Christ by his word and example hath recommended above all other things.

V.3. For if] for to performe this, you ought not to presume of your selves, it being the chief cause of disdain and immoderate rigour towards others.

V.4. And then] that is to say, if he do finde that his conscience approves of his workes as good and loyall, then he shall have cause to hold himselfe in a degree of honour befitting the gift which he hath received from God without begging it by making comparison with other mens defects, see Luke 18.11.

V.5. Shall bear] that is to say, shall give an accompt of his actions before Gods judgement seat.

V.6. In the word] namely, Gods Word publikely preached and taught. In all good] namely, all that is necessary for him that receives, and that he is able to spare, who gives.

V.7. Mocked] as those do who seek pretences and excuses for their avarice and ingratitude.

V.8. He that soweth] he that in this life takes no other care but to please himselfe and his own carnal appetites shall at the last reap no fruit thereby but onely perdition; and contrariwise, he that imployes his whole life, studie, labour, and substance in obeying the motions of the holy Ghost, and seeking to obtain and advancing spirituall things in himselfe and others, shall receive the reward of everlasting life, being that the Spirit in man is the true seed of eternitie, and the flesh of perdition.

V.9. If we faint not] namely, if through impatience or carelessnesse, we do not leave off studying, and persevering in doing good, see *Heb.*12.3,5.

V.10. Opportunitie] namely, so long as God grants us to live in this world, which is the time of working, and gives us opportunitie and meanes to do it, see Iohn 9.4. 11.9. and 12.35. Of the houshold] namely, to those who through communion of faith are members of the Church, which is Gods houshold.

V.12. As many as] to know the qualitie of the false Apostles doctrine, do but marke and observe their intention, which is but onely to obtain the Jewes favours by shewing themselves zealous of their ceremonies, and to avoid the hatred and sufferings which the profession of Christs faith brings along with it, to the likenesse and communion of his own, 2 *Cor.*1.5. and 4.10. See upon *Gal.*5.11. In the flesh] that is to say, falsely, viciously, and dissemblingly. Constrain you] that is to say, they endeavour to put this necessitie of conscience upon you, *Gal.*2.14.

V.13. For neither] their hypocrisie appeares in this, that shewing so much zeal in matters of ceremonies, they are careless and do in their life and conversation transgresse the most essentiall commandements of the Law: an ordinary sin of the Pharisees, *Matth.*23.4.23.25.27. They may glory] they may boast of having perswaded and drawn you to Judaisme, by bodily circumcision, which was held amongst the Jewes to be a most glorious act, *Matth.*23.15.

V.14. In the crosse] namely, in the death and passion of my Saviour by whose spirituall and effectuall communion I have no more affection nor desire to the world, nor the lusts thereof, no more than to a dead thing, neither hath the world any power to worke upon me, or to stir me, no more than the objects of senses can do to a dead man.

V.16. Upon the Israel] namely, upon all the true Israelites in spirit, who through faith are the true blessed seed of Abraham, and the people of God, *Rom.*4.12. *Gal.*3.9.

V.17. Let no man] besides all other reasons I do admonish all believers to regard me, and not to afflict my spirit with false doctrines and contradictions, 1 *Cor.*11.16. and 14.38. after so many sufferings which I have endured for Christ, whereof I bear the markes by which I have verified the loyaltie of my ministerie, 2 *Cor.*6.4.

THE EPISTLE OF SAINT PAUL THE APOSTLE TO THE EPHESIANS.

ARGUMENT.

SAint Paul having founded the Church of Ephesus a famous Citie of the lesser Asia, as Saint Luke relateth, Acts 19. and having also forewarned the conductours of it with good and wholesome instructions and exhortations, Acts 20.18. he would also performe this most laudable dutie towards that Church, namely, to write this Epistle to it from Rome, whither he had been carried prisoner, to confirme it in the truth of the Gospell, and exhort it to the true fruits of its vocation. The summaris of it is, that he gives God thankes for the infinite benefit of eternall salvation and redemption in Christ, communicated out of his meer grace and election, through faith in the Gospell, to the Apostle first, and his companions of the Iewish nation, then afterwards to the Ephesians who were Gentiles, whom to this end he had sealed with the holy Ghost: and consequently he prayeth him, that he would be pleased to enlighten them more and more in the acknowledgement of so great a gift by the same spirit, which gift he extolles by a comparison made of their present with their former state, as well the inward which was subject to sin and malediction, as the outward by which they professed Paganisme: out of which state God had out of his meer grace by his most powerfull vertue saved, vivified, and gathered them into his Church, and incorporated them into the assemblie of believers, by the ministerie of Paul, appointed by God to preach to the Gentiles the mysterie of their vocation in grace, which was before unknown to the world, for which cause he suffered great persecutions by his nation, and was also a prisoner, but howsoever that they ought not from thence to take any occasion of offence or grief. Afterwards he commeth to exhortations, namely, to have them make a right use of so great a gift, and to live a life besitting the heavenly vocation, recommending unto them union above all things, and to refer all Gods divers and severall gifts to one end, namely, the common edification of the bodie of the Church, and likewise all other Christian vertues to the continuall advancement of spirituall regeneration. And particularly he exhorteth husbands, and wives, fathers, and children, masters and servants, to performe their interchangeable duties: and all in common to fight the good fight of faith and perseverance.

CHAP. I.

VERS. 1. IN Christ] namely, that are ingrafted into his bodie by faith, and do live and subsist in their spirituall state by his onely power, and by the communion of his Spirit.

V. 3. In heavenly] that is to say, by giving you not an earthly but heavenly inheritance, and that through Christ who hath taken the possession thereof for all his, and hath in heaven received the fulnesse of the spirit to powre it down from thence upon his whole Church, which is also with him in heaven already by faith, and shall effectually be there with with him for ever, *Ephes.*2.6. *Phil.*3.20. *Coloss.*3.1,2.

V.4. According as] according as God by his election from everlasting framed a new bodie of humane race (opposite to the first whereof Adam was head, in whom all men have sinned and are dead) and appointed Christ to be their Head, that in him it might be all gathered together, and by him made partaker of his grace, life, and glorie: so he bringeth this his decree to passe in his appointed time; bestowing all his favours upon his Church by Christ in his sacred Communion. See *Ephes.*3.11. 2 *Tim.*1.9.

V.5. To himselfe] or by himselfe; namely, for his glorie, as *Rom.*11.36.

V.6. Of the glorie] namely, of his glorious and admirable grace, by which he hath powerfully brought to an end the worke of mans salvation. See *Rom.*9.23. 2 *Cor.*4.4. In ibe] namely, for the love, and in regard of Christ onely who hath all the fathers love, not onely as he is everlasting Son, but also as he is perfectly obedient, and just in his humane nature, and in his qualitie of Mediatour, *Mat.*3.17. Iohn 3.35. and 10.17.

V.10. In the] namely, in the time prefixed by his providence (which is the dispencer of times, and of the whole order of things) for the fulfilling of his promises concerning the Messias, or in the conduct and government of his Church fitting for that time. Both which are] this may be referred to blessed mens spirits which are already gathered up into heavenly glorie, and to believers yet living upon earth, as Luke 1.17. *Ephes.*3.15. *Heb.*12.23. Others do understand it of the holy Angels, with which the faithfull have communion in the same Head, namely, Christ, *Col.*2.10. and in the same glorie. See *Matth.*22.30. *Heb.*12.22.

V.11. In whom] by whose love and benefit, and by vertue of his redemption and intercession, which is the fundamentall cause of the believers vocation. We have] namely, I and all other believers of the Jewish nation. Obtained] we have been chosen and called from amongst the rest to be the proper part of Gods inheritance, *Deut.*32.9. Isai 53.11.

V.12. We] namely, we Jewes, who have alwayes fixed our hopes upon the promised Messias, and have been the first that have believed in him after he hath been revealed.

V.13. Sealed] marked as it were with a character by God, by the gifts of regeneration, illumination, and the power of the Holy Ghost promised by Christ to all believers, Luke 24.48,49. Acts 2.33. *Gal.*3.14. of which is added to the promises of Gods grace in Christ, to confirme them and seal them in their hearts.

V.14 Untill the redemption] the Italian, unto the] this must be understood as following the word sealed, the meaning is, that this seal is given us, that by it we may be known at the last judgement, then to have part in the reall and perfect deliverance from all evils and enemies, Luke 21.28. *Rom.*8.20,21. wherein we have now right through Christ, and have had the first fruits thereof.

V.15. In the Lord] namely, in the communion of his bodie and Spirit.

V.17. The God] namely, the true everlasting God towards whom Christ exerciseth his Office of Mediatour, gaining unto him a peculiar people, whereof he is the Head. See Iohn 20.17.

V.18. The hope] namely, the goods which we ought to hope for as a sequele of his calling, & to the participation of which he calleth us. In the Saints] the Italian, in the holy places] namely, in Heaven, which is as the Sanctuarie of Gods glorie. See *Heb.*9.8. 12,24. and 13.12.

V.19. His power] in accomplishing his worke, and bringing us to the end of our hope.

V.20. In bis heavenly] where his humane nature is resident in glorie, and where his whole person hath as it were the glorious Throne of his Kingdome, *Matth.*19.28.

V.21. All principalitie] not onely worldly but also Angelicall, the Angels being called by such names, *Rom.*8.38. *Ephes.*6.12. *Col.*1.16. *Pet.*3.22. Name] that is to say, dignitie or state, 1 *Cor.*15.24. Which is to come] namely, in Heaven, and in the state of heavenly life, which in regard of those that are living in this world is yet to come.

V.22. Over all] that is to say, hath made Him Head of the Church in a singular and eminent manner, above the domination which he hath over all other creatures, others expound it simply soveraigne.

V.23. The fulnesse] that is to say, the complete structure, and gathering of all the members, whereof Christ is the Head. In all] namely, those that are of this number and bodie, as Iohn 6.4,5. and 12.32. *Ephes.*4.10.

CHAP. II.

VER.1. Hath be] namely, God by the same power as he raised Christ from the dead, *Ephes.*1.20. hath also given you a spirituall life consisting in his grace, and in mans conversion to him, and in the being joyned to him by his Spirit. See Iohn 5.24. Dead] in spirituall death, consisting in the separation from God, and from his grace through sin, whence followeth miserie, and inhabilitie of doing good.

V.2. To the course] to the common manner of worldly mens living, who are not regenerate by Gods Spirit. According to] following the Devils suggestions, and imitating his malignitie, who having been driven out of the high Heaven of glorie,

Luke 10.18. Revel. 12.8. now wandereth up and down, and exerciseth the power which God permitteth him to have in these lower parts of the ayre, untill such time as he be shut up in the prison of everlasting torments. The Spirit] namely, the author of the evill inclination, and motion that is in corrupt men, 1 Cor. 2.12. Worketh] namely, to whom God hath abandoned those who maliciously refuse the Gospell, for to drive them to all manner of evill without any stay. See Iohn 8.41,44.

V.3. We all] not onely you Gentiles but we Jewes also, Rom. 3.9.22. Of our flesh] as well of the sensuall part, as of that which is falsly called reason and understanding; which also hath its corruption; and as the Scripture speaketh, is flesh. Rom. 8.6,7. Col. 2.18. And were] being borne in sin and corruption we were by our birth subject to the wrath and curse of God.

V.6. Hath raised us] because that by reason of the most strict union of Christ the Head to believers who are his members, that which is done to the Head is likewise done and belongeth to all the members, and they likewise in right and in verue of the infallible cause, and in certainnesse of hope are already raised up and glorified, and at the appointed time shall be so in effect, 1 Cor. 15.12,15, 20,22. Through Christ] namely, in the benefit of our redemption through him.

V.8. By grace] which holds the place of principal cause, as faith is the meanes on mans side to receive and apply unto himselfe the feeling and fruition of that salvation which is presented unto him in Christ. Of your selves] of any merit, worth, invention, or worke of yours.

V.10. For we are] He proves that our own workes cannot be the cause of our salvation, for we our selves that do them have been made, that is to say, regenerate and sanctified by his grace, and have been made fit to do them by his Spirit, besides that the use of them is not of merit to acquire right to salvation, but onely a way to come to the fruition of it. Before ordained] to worke them in us, and to be wrought by us, God having by one and the same will and councell ordained the end of salvation, and the meanes to attain to it.

V.11. Wherefore] seeing God hath done us al in generall so many favours, you Gentiles who were furthest off, and most unworthy of them, ought to thinke your selves most obliged for them. In the flesh] wanting the circumcision in your flesh, which was the Sacrament of Gods Covenant, and therefore likewise under the name of uncircumcised; you were abhorred of the Jewes, who for their honour were called the circumcised people, so that you had no part nor communion with Gods Church, neither outwardly nor spiritually, v.12.

V.12. Ye were] ye had neither union nor communion with Christ, Head of the Church, Founder and Mediatour of the Covenant, and Spring of all spirituall and everlasting blessings. Aliens] and therefore separate from the bodie of it, namely, of the Church, to which onely he communicates his grace, and which at that time was restrained within the Jewish nation onely. See Ezech. 13.9. Strangers] Having no interest nor portion in the goods promised in the Covenant of grace which was made with Abraham, and so many times reiterated and confirmed. Of promise] namely, of grace. See Rom. 4.13,14. and 9.8. To hope] of salvation and eternall goods. Without God] without any knowledge or worship of the true God, 1 Corinth. 8.5,6. wherein consists the interchangeable dutie of those who are in this covenant.

V.13. In Christ] not onely by his meanes, but also by vertue of the union which you have with him by faith. Farre off] namely, from God, from his Covenant, and from the Church, as he had said, vers. 12. By the blood] by his death which he suffered for you, and hath been applied unto you by faith, you have been reconciled to God, and reunited into one bodie of a Church with the believing Jewes: this seemes to be added, to shew that the Gentiles were no more engrafted in the Church by circumcision, and by ceremonies, as anciently the proselites were, but by Christs passion shadowed by those figures.

V.14. Our peace] the tie, and foundation of the true union of the Gentiles with the Jewes into one and the same Church. The middle wall] He hath questionlesse a relation to the wall which was in Solomons Temple, between the peoples and the Gentiles court, which hindred all manner of passage, sight, or communication between them, Ezech. 42. 20, the meaning is, that the Gentiles have by the Gospell gotten free accesse to the Church, and the goods thereof, being no more held to be prophane persons.

V.15. In his flesh] namely, in the sacrifice of his bodie, by which he hath disannulled all ancient ceremonies, which were a signe and a meanes of the separation of the two people, Gentiles and Jewes; and the occasion of great hatred betwixt them, the Jewes detesting the Gentiles and their manner of worship, as unclean and prophane; and the Gentiles abhorring the Jewes and all their observations as absurd, and contrary to those of all other nations, Acts 10.28. To make] the Italian, to create] that is to say, to make by a manner of new creation, these two nations regenerated by his Spirit, a new bodie of a Church united in Christ, who is the Head thereof, and the Foundation of all its subsistencie.

V.16. In one] being so united, to shew that none can have part in Gods peace, unlesse he be united to the the Church; seeing that there being but one covenant, and one head thereof, namely Christ, it is impossible it should be made with men that were divided. By the crosse] namely, by his sacrifice upon the altar of the crosse. Slain] having by vertue of his death which was the destruction of the kingdom & life of sin, Rom. 6. 6. Gal. 6. 14. taken away the cause of Gods enmitie with sinfull men, and of the Church with life of unbeleevers and heathens, which is no other but only the uncleanesse of sin; and hath established the true foundation of peace, which is righteousnesse and holinesse, considered in its reall truth of Faith and Spirit, and no more in the ancient outward signes of Mosaicall Ceremonies, Gal. 6. 15. Thereby, the Italian, in himself] namely, in his own death; or in it, namely, in the Crosse.

V. 17. And came] in his own person, by taking upon him humane flesh, and the office of a messenger of peace, and afterwards by sending his Apostles, Luke 24. 47. see 1 Pet. 3. 19. Unto you] namely, to the Gentiles in generall, who were separate from God, from his covenant and salvation. To them] to the Jews, a people joyned to God by a speciall covenant.

V. 18. For through] he proves that peace is truly made with God, because he now admits all nations indifferently unto him, to present their prayers and worship to him. By one] namely, by vertue of the holy Ghost, which is one and the same in all beleevers, and works all the foresaid things in them by the same consent and will.

V. 20. Are built] your faith by which you subsist in the communion of Saints, hath for its foundation & for infallibility & immoveable rule the doctrine of the old and new Testament, the principall subject whereof is Christ, who in his person is the essentiall foundation, & as it were the corner Stone (in which consists the chief strength of a building) binding the two walls together, which are the two nations of the Jews, and the Gentiles whereof the Church is composed, and alwayes bearing and withstanding all manner of dangerous encounters, which are more dangerous at the corners of buildings, then at any other part of them, see Cant. 8. 9, 10.

V. 21. In whom] upon whom, or by vertue of whom, and of the conjunction with him. Groweth] advanceth and raiseth it self, untill it come to its perfection in Heaven, Revel. 21. 3.

V. 22. In whom] this seems to be added to shew, that whileſt the mysticall Temple advanceth it self in this world, God hath on earth an inferiour walking and moveable habitation, which is the Church in travellers estate in this worlds pilgrimage. Such as the Tabernacle in the wildernesse was, being compared to the glorious Temple built by Solomon, in which there was a sound and immoveable firmnesse, and an infinite increase of Gods signes and gifts: ten candlesticks for one, and ten tables for one, though there were but one ark of the covenant in both; and so both in heaven and earth the Church hath but only one God and Redeemer. To] namely, you Ephesians, and all the particular Churches in the world. Through the spirit] that is to say, Spiritually, or by the power of the holy Ghost.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. For Paul] this discourse is interrupted, untill vers. 14. and then it is said, I make what I ought to be supplied in this manner, I Paul bend my knees before God. The prisoner] the Apostle writ this letter from Rome, whither he had been carried prisoner, Acts 27. 1. and 28. 30. Ephes. 6. 20. Of Iesus Christ] for him and for his service in the ministery of the Gospel amongst the Gentiles, for which I am persecuted by the Jews, and have by them been delivered to the Romanes.

V. 2. If ye have] this is a kinde of affirmation, rather then a doubt, as Ephes. 4. 21. the meaning is, seeing it is cleer that you have heard of it.

V. 3. The mystery] namely the sacred doctrine of the Gospell, incomprehensible to humane understanding; if it be not revealed to God, see Mat. 13. 11. Ephes. 1. 9 Coloss. 2. 2. and 4. 3. 1 Tim. 3. 9, 16. others refer this mystery simply to the vocation of the Gentiles.

V. 4. Whereby] as well in the substance of the things that are written, as in the manner and stile, which is altogether divine and spirituall.

V. 5. Was not] namely, by a reall and present effect, nor by any singular declaration of the times and means, for otherwise the Prophets knew it in generall and had declared it: Or he would say, That God, before the Gospell, never had used that indifferency of Nations in the communication of his grace. Prophets] namely, of the new Testament, Acts 11. 27. and 15. 32. Rom. 12. 6. 1 Cor. 12. 10. By the Spirit] namely, by instructions and revelations of the holy Ghost.

V. 6. Fellow heirs] in common with the beleevers of the Jewish nation, and with Christ himself, Rom. 8. 17. Gal. 3. 29. His promise] namely of the goods promised to Abraham and all his spirituall offspring in vertue, and for the love of Christ, who is the true foundation of it.

V. 7. Effectuall working] that is to say, Unfolding in me his divine power, and accompanying my ministery therewith, as well in necessary gifts, as in a miraculous blessing and perpetuall assistance.

V. 9. The fellowship] the Italian, the dispensation, how God will in these dayes reveal this secret councell of his, communicate the grace of it, and cause the effects of it to be felt. Who created] he means the new and spirituall creation of the Church, see Isa. 65.

Isa. 65. 17. 2 Cor. 5. 17. Ephes. 2. 15. all things] namely, the whole state, body, and parts of the Church.

V. 10. Principalities] namely the good angels, see Rom. 8. 38. Ephes. 1. 21. Col. 1. 16. and 2. 15. 1 Pet. 3. 22. May be known] that in the glorious renewing of the state of the world by Christ, not onely men, but even the Angels themselves, who desire to look into the very bottom of this mystery, 1 Pet. 1. 12. may have a new document of Gods wisdom, in an effect divers from what he had shewn at other times, the ways and effects thereof varying, but alwayes for the better according to his will and pleasure.

V. 11. In Christ] establishing in him all the causes and means of the accomplishment of it.

V. 12. In whom] namely by vertue of the union which we have with him in the Spirit through faith. Boldnesse] the Italian, the liberty; namely, that free accesse which is contrary to the terrours of conscience to Gods rejection.

V. 13. Wherefore] seeing God through my ministery hath made you Gentiles, partakers of his grace in Christ, though I be therefore persecuted by the Jews, yet have you no cause to be discomforted thereby, but rather take it for a holy glory, that God will have me suffer for your salvation, and that in my sufferings the faithfulnesse of mine Apostleship is approved and confirmed.

V. 14. For this cause] here the Apostle goeth on again with the discourse which hath been broken off from the first verse. I bow] namely, in humble prayer.

V. 15. Of whom] who being Christs father by nature, and by adoption father of the whole Church, which is as his family, and troop of his children, as well of those which are already glorified in heaven, as of those who are yet living in the world by faith, see Ephes. 1. 10.

V. 16. The riches] namely, the glorious treasures of his spirituall gifts, which he powreth down upon those that are his. Or the abundance of his glorious grace and mercy, as Rom. 9. 23. Ephes. 1. 7. Phil. 4. 19. Col. 1. 27. In the inner man] namely, in the gift of regeneration, and in the state of spirituall life, which is eternall, and not exposed to the senses, but known by God, and felt by the beleever in his soul, see Rev. 2. 17.

V. 17. May dwell] may perpetually be present in vertue, grace, and Spirit, by means of a continuall act of lively faith in him. That ye being] namely, that ye having stayed and planted in your heart a firme, intimate, and invariable charity towards God and men, which is the proper and inseparable effect of a lively faith.

V. 18. Comprehend] namely, to attain to everlasting life, and to the perfection of the knowledge, and fruition of that infinite mystery of which he had spoken, vers. 8. which were riches that were inscrutable in this life: Or to the accomplishment of the spirituall building of the Church, according to all the dimensions of it, whereupon he had said they were founded, Ephes. 2. 20. and 3. 18. see Revel. 21. 16. What is the] a figurative description of the infiniteneſſe every way, by a similitude taken from the dimensions of the Temple, applied to the heavenly Jerusalem, founded in this world and finished in Heaven, as Revel. 21. 16.

V. 19. Knowledge] namely, humane knowledge in this life. That ye might] that ye may come to the height of knowledge, happinesse, and glory, when you shall be filled with Gods presence, and satisfied with the sight of his face, Psal. 16. 11. and 17. 15. and that he shall be all in all, 1 Cor. 15. 28.

V. 21. By Christ] namely, the subject of whose glory is Christ and his benefits. Or as the Father manifesteth and communicateth himself in him alone: so let him be acknowledged and worshipped in him by all beleevers, John 14. 13. 2 Cor. 4. 6. Philip. 2. 11. which is oppoſite to all vain glorifying of God out of Christ, as Infidels do.

CHAP. IIII.

Verſ. 1. Of the Lord] the Italian, prisoner exhort you in the Lord; namely, in his name and authority, or from him. Others, I the prisoner of the Lord exhort you; namely, I that am in this state for his cause as his beleever.

V. 3. To keep] to keep the union of all the members of the Church entire, united together by the holy Ghost in a form of spirituall and mysticall body. In the bond] as the union of the soul with the body is preserved by the good temperament of the body: and by avoiding the outward wounds and hurts of it.

V. 4. One body] namely, mysticall and spirituall, composed of Christ the head, and all beleevers his members. In hope] the Italian, in one only hope; being by your common vocation united in hope of the same goods and eternall life.

V. 6. Who is] who hath the soveraign command and power over all things, and is present every where, but is in an intimate way joyned to his beleevers, residing in them by a perpetuall operation of grace and spirit.

V. 7. Grace] some singular gift dispensed by Christ more or lesse as he pleaseth, of one kinde or another.

V. 8. He saith] namely, the Spirit of God by David, Psal. 68 18.

V. 9. Now that he] because he had said, That all was of Christs gift, he proves it by these words of David, That he that distributeth these gifts unto his his Church, is one that is aſcended; which infereth that he was firſt deſcended; namely, that he had humbled himſelfe by taking humane nature upon him, and the ſhape of a ſervant: now amongſt the perſons of the ſacred Trinitie, that properly is peculiarly Chriſts, who was to be abaſed to be exalted in ſoveraigne glorie, and from thence to diſtribute the gifts of his Spirit, Acts 2 33. 1 *Pet.*1.11.

V.10. Above all] namely, into the higheſt heaven, the ſeat of eternall glorie, above all that which the Scripture cals Heaven. See 1 Kings 8.27. 2 Cor. 12.2. He might fill] namely, that he may powre down the gifts of his Spirit in all abundance upon his believers who are all, that is to ſay, the whole bodie of Chriſt; as Iohn 6.45. and 12.32. *Epheſ.*1.23. or that he might fill all the world with his knowledge and glorie, Iſai 11.9. or that he may ſhew himſelfe preſent every where in divine vertue, in the adminiſtration of the power which he hath received from God in Heaven and Earth, *Matth.*28.18.

V.11. Some Apoſtles] He doth not particularly number up all the gifts, but onely touches the principall publike Offices of the Church, whereof the three firſt were extraordinary for thoſe primitive times, and the two laſt ordinary and perpetuall.

V.12. For the] being the Church is to be conſidered, either as a communaltie of a ſacred common-wealth, or as a ſpirituall Temple, or as a myſticall bodie, the miniſterie of the Word ought likewiſe to be referred to theſe three Heads, namely, that every Believer be prepared and framed by doctrine, diſcipline, &c. to come into and remain in the communion of Saints, without any breach, deformitie, diſturbance, or contrarietie, that the ſervice of God be truely practiſed therein, and that this bodie do increaſe and grow ſtrong in faith and other kinde of vertue.

V.13. Till we] ſo he intimates that the uſe of the holy miniſterie ſhall laſt untill the end of the world, and that then it ſhall be brought to nothing, 1 *Cor.*13.8. All come in] namely, untill we be perfectly united with Chriſt our Head in full knowledge and fruition of preſence, as we begin in this world by faith, 1 *Cor.*13.12. 2 *Cor.*5.7. Unto a perfect] that is to ſay, being come to the ſtate and degree of perfection in the life everlaſting, which ſhall be to the bodie of the Church, as its ripe and compleat age in reſpect of its childhood here in the world, 1 *Cor.*13.10,11. Unto the meaſure] a ſimilitude taken from bodies which are grown to their full growth.

V.14. That we] this depends upon v.12. and ſheweth another uſe of Gods Word, namely, to defend and keep men from falſe doctrines.

V.15. In love] the Italian, in charitie] in ſuch ſort that the knowledge of the truth may be lively, and active in charitie and good workes. Into him] namely, in the communion and vertue of Chriſt, who is as the root of ſpirituall ſubſiſtencie, and the ſpring of the influencie of life, and of the ſpirit, as he ſets it down in the next verſe. In all things] namely, in all the parts of the ſpirituall life which we have from Chriſt, which is alſo taken from living bodies which grow equally and proportionably in all their parts and dimenſions.

V.16. By that which] he ſeemes to mean the divers gifts and callings, eſpecially eccleſiaſticall ones, by which the Church is kept in its unitie, and which according as they are ſtored by Chriſt himſelfe, v.11. do likewiſe ſerve for channels and inſtruments of communication, by which Chriſts life and ſpirit and the ſpirituall nouriſhments are parted and diſtributed amongſt all the members. According to] according to the proportion of the efficacie of the Holy Ghoſt, diſtributed to every believer in a certain meaſure. See *Rom.*12.3. 1 Cor. 12.7,11. Of the bodie] as a living bodie doth which hath a limited time of its growing. Unto the edifying] namely, each part contributing all it hath, and all that it can do for the common good and advancement of the whole bodie, through charitie, which doth not look to it ſelfe onely.

V.17. In the Lord] See v.1. In the vanitie] namely, falſe diſcourſes, which have much ſeemingneſſe in them, but no ground of truth, and are fruitleſſe.

V.18. From the life] namely, from that communication of his Spirit, by which he regenerates his children to his image, *Epheſ.*2.1. and by a continuall influence thereof, he doth bear them up in this ſpirituall life. Through the ignorance] he gives a reaſon of this privation; namely, becauſe of the darkneſſe of their underſtanding, and the untamed malice of their heart, whereby they make themſelves uncapable of Gods working in them, Iohn 1. 5,9,11. and 14.17. *Rom.*1.18,19,28. or he meanes, that they are wilfully ignorant, wilfully refuſing the light of God, which is proffered them, Iob 24. 13. *Ezech.*12.2. Iohn 7.17. and 8.43.

V.19. Paſt feeling] Having loſt all remorſe of conſcience, all fear of Gods judgement, and all juſt feeling of their puniſhments. With greedineſſe] the Italian, with an inſatiable deſire] or as it were ſtriving how to do moſt evill, or with greedineſſe; to ſignifie the two moſt common deſires of men, namely, pleaſures and goods.

V.21. If ſo be that] See upon *Epheſ.*3.2. By him, the Italian, in him] namely, in his truth, faith, and example; or being in him, namely, making profeſſion of your communion with him in faith and ſpirit. As the truth] namely, in the lively and effectuall manner in which the truth is taught in Christs Gospell to be an internall forme of righteousnesse, Rom.6.17. and a lively seed of regeneration, James 1.18.

V.22. Which is corrupt] which is dissolved and putrified in its concupiscences, and by them goeth into eternall perdition. According to the] the Italian, in the concupiscences of seduction] namely, by which he is allured and inticed to sin. See Rom.7.11. Heb.3.13. James 1.14.

V.23. In the Spirit, the Italian, by the Spirit] which hath begun this your regeneration by enlightening your understanding in the knowledge and truth of God, to go on from thence to your entire regeneration in heart and affections; God in the order of his grace, following the order which he hath established in mans nature, which is that reason and judgement should go before and govern the wil. See Rom.12.2. Others, in the Spirit] that is to say, in your minde and reason, and so the other part of regeneration should be comprehended in the following verse.

V.24. Put on] namely, that ye be endowed and adorned with these new spirituall qualities by which God re-establisheth his image in you. True holinesse] namely, a true, sincere, or firme, and constant holinesse.

V.25. For we are] and therefore as none deceiveth himselfe, so ought we to use entire loyaltie towards our brethren:

V.26. Be ye angry] that is to say, if ye be angry, which is a humane & almost unavoidable infirmitie, yet take heed of running into any excess, Ps.37.8

V.27. Neither give place] take heed he enter not into your heart by violence of wrath, nor much lesse remain there by an inveterate wrath, which may turne to hatred.

V.29. Corrupt] the Italian, evill; the Greek word signifieth corrupt or putrified, but the Hebrewes use it for any evill thing. See Matth.7.17. and 12.33. To the use] namely, of the hearers, of the time, and of the occasion. Minister] namely, that Gods grace or any singular gift thereof may be communicated or confirmed in the hearers.

V.30. Grieve not] a terme taken from men, that is to say] be not rebellious unto it, and do not offend it, so that he withdraw his joy and comfort from you, which is the principall effect thereof, and that he do not depart from you as from an unpleasing habitation.

CHAP. V.

VER.2. A sweet smelling] A manner of speech taken from what was anciently spoken of sacrifices which were acceptable to God, the smell whereof, as one might say, he did sent with pleasure, Gen.8.21. Ezo.1.9.

V.3. Let it not be] Abhorre even the name of these vices, let them be unknown and unheard of amongst you.

V.5. An idolater] insomuch as he sees all his affection, and puts all his confidence in riches, and holds them for an universall good, sufficient for all things, as God is; and because he beares a certain respect unto them, that he dares not freely make use of them, and serves them with his heart as some Godhead. See Matth.6.24.

V.6. Vain] not so much by allurements, as by false inducements and perswasions; as that these sinnes are but sleight things, that Gods patience suffereth all things, that his grace pardons every thing, that man cannot be perfect in the world, and the like. The children] namely, upon all the devils part and the worlds, which is rebellious to Gods Law, and believeth not in the Gospell, by reason of its naturall perversenesse.

V.8. Darkenesse] namely, inwardly, being deprived of all light of truth, of grace and of the spirit, having contrary qualities; and outwardly, without any inlightening or instruction. Light] that is to say, you are not onely inlightened outwardly by doctrine, but also inwardly, imprinted by a lively divine Light. In the Lord] in vertue of your communion in spirit with him.

V.9. For the] that is to say, the qualitie of the children of God, which you have acquired by the illumination and regeneration of the holy Ghost, bindes you to do all manner of holy workes, as the fruit ought to be correspondent to the nature and qualitie of the root and seed, Gal.5.22.

V.10. Proving] namely, examining by the rule of Gods Word, what is conformable to his will, and what is not, without suffering your selves to be deceived by opinions or perswasion, verse 6. See Prov.10.32. Rom.12.2.

V.11. Unfruitfull] which cannot bring forth for man that excellent fruit of Life, Rom.6.21. Gal.6.8. Of darkenesse] proceeding from the corruption of man, who hath no light of knowledge, and of Gods Spirit, irregulate and without any certain end, as done by one that walkes in darknesse; shamefull and infamous workes which cannot endure the day: and finally, which are condemned to everlasting darknesse with the devil who is the first author of them.

V.13. But all things] though these things be hidden from men, yet there is the light of Gods universall knowledge and providence that seeth them, and doth thereof convince the consciences, untill such time as at the last judgement they be set forth for a full evidence. For whatsoever] if these things must one day be revealed, it is a signe that God doth even at this time know them, and see them, as clear as noon day. See Psal.139.11.

V.14.

V. 14. Wherefore be ſaith] becauſe that every man ſhall anſwer for what he hath done before Gods terrible judgement-ſeat, they are all called by his word to timely converſion, to awake from the ſleep and ſtupefaction, yea, from the death of ſin, for to be enlightned by the light of the Goſpell, and to walk according to it.

V. 16. Redeeming] ſeeking, and taking any occaſion of doing good: and therefore leaving all worldly imployment and delight. Or regaining the time which had formerly been loſt, with endeavouring to ſupply at this time what you had then loſt. The dayes] there are hard and calamitous times comming upon the Church, in which all means of well-doing will be cut off, or much reſtrained: and therefore we muſt be beforehand in doing good, Eccleſ. 11. 2. Iohn 9. 4. and 12. 9. and 12. 35. Luke 6. 10.

V. 18. With the Spirit] namely, with ſpirituall thoughts, and meditations of divine joy, faith, and zeal.

V. 20. In the name] that is to ſay, Offering them to God, as ſacrifices pleaſing to him, in vertue and favour of Chriſt, high Prieſt and Interceſſour.

V. 21. Submitting] namely, all through charity, yeelding to other mens juſt deſires, neceſſities, and profits; and the inferiours to ſuperiours through obedience and reſpect, 1 Pet. 5. 5.

V. 22. As unto] namely, in all things which belong to the lawfull authority and ſuperiority that Chriſt hath given the husband over his wife, and wherein the husband bears Chriſts image, 1 Cor. 11. 3. ſee Epheſ. 6. 5.

V. 23. And he is] as Chriſts dominion over the Church, which is his body, hath its whole relation to the ſalvation of it, ſo the husbands authority over the wife ought to have the ſame end: and likewiſe the wife ought to reſemble the Church in voluntary obedience and ſubjection.

V. 24. In every thing] that is lawfull and belongeth to her duty according to God, ſee Col. 3. 20, 22. Tit. 2. 9.

V. 26. That he might] he doth ſeverally touch the three parts of the ſalvation acquired to the Church by Chriſt, which are the juſtification or remiſſion of ſins, ſignified by the waſhing, the ſanctification and regeneration in Spirit, and the everlaſting glorification, verſ. 27. Cleanſe it] from all ſpot of ſin, which will not ſuffer God to look graciouſly and favourably upon man. The waſhing] namely, the ſpirituall waſhing, which is nothing but the effectuall application of Chriſts death and blood for an expiation before God, which is called the waſhing of water, as well by reaſon of the ſimilitude of the action, as becauſe of the ſigne and ſeale thereof which is appointed in baptiſme, Iohn 3. 5. Tit. 3. 5. Heb. 10. 22. 1 Iohn 5. 6. By the word] the ground of theſe benefits is Gods free promiſe or appointment; or the outward Baptiſme obtaineth the property of a Sacrament of thoſe two foreſaid benefits by Gods appointment, and is made effectuall to all beleevers by faith in the promiſe of grace.

V. 27. Preſent it] namely, in the celeſtiall glory where the regeneration ſhall be compleat.

V. 28. As their own] becauſe that by the bond of matrimony man and wife become one and the ſelf ſame fleſh, Gen. 2. 24.

V. 30. Of his fleſh] figurative termes, taken from the making of Eve of one of Adams ribs: to the likeneſſe whereof the Church is regenerate by Chriſts Spirit, and by this means enters into the union of ſpirituall matrimonie with him, which conſiſts in the communitie of ſpirituall life, in communion of goods, and in communication of vertue, to bring forth the bleſſed generation of beleevers.

V. 31. For this cauſe] no more for that cauſe onely which is alleaged by Moſes, Gen. 2. 24. but chiefly by reaſon of the new bond which Chriſt impoſeth upon his by his benefit and example.

V. 32. Myſterie] namely, divine doctrine and action, holy, ſpirituall, and not to be comprehended by humane underſtanding, namely, of Chriſts and his Churches union.

V. 33. Let every one] this myſterie is ſo high that it cannot be comprehended; and it is ſufficient that matrimonie is a pourtraiture of it: and that by the comparing of the one with the other, beleevers are taught by Chriſt, the ſpirituall husbands great example, what are the interchangeable duties of corporall matrimonie.

CHAP. VI.

Verſ. 1. IN the Lord] namely, for the love of him and to obey his commandments, whence followeth that this obedience is reſtrained within the limets of ſuch things as are conformable to Gods will.

V. 2. With promiſe] namely, with a proper and ſpectall promiſe.

V. 4. Of the Lord] namely Chriſtian admonition, according to the rules given in Chriſts Goſpell.

V. 5. According to] namely, your corporeall and worldly maſters. As unto] making account of doing Chriſt your Soveraigne Lord ſervice, who hath ſet you in that calling, and will be ſerved by you in it. See upon Epheſ. 5. 22.

V. 6. Eye-ſervice] namely, by outward action, and ſeeming onely without any affection or ſinceritie of heart, or onely whileſt you are in your maſters preſentes.

V. 9. Threatning] all kinde of harſh, and inhumane, and fierce way of commanding.

V. 10. In the Lord] by the communion which you have with him by faith, deſiring and drawing from him all ſuch ſtrength as is needfull for you.

V. 11. Armour] namely, the whole furniture of Chriſtian vertues, all the means which God hath appointed to keep you from the devils temptations. To ſtand] namely, to be Conquerours; the action and poſture of a Conquerour being to ſtand upon his feet, whereas the conquered are thrown upon the ground.

V. 12. Fleſh and blood] namely, againſt any bodily or humane power. Principalities] hereby are meant evil angels, who in the qualitie of their nature, and in the power that God ſuffereth them to have over the world, have alſo ſomething common with the holy Angels in the eminency of theſe titles, ſee Rom. 8. 38. Col. 2. 15. The darkneſſe] namely, of the ſtate of ignorance, of ſin, of death, of confuſion, which reigneth in the world. In high places] the Italian, in heavenly places; this may be underſtood of that region of the air in which evill ſpirits do wander which are driven out of Heaven, and where they lie in wait and aſſault the Church, Epheſ. 2. 2. But it ſeems that it might better have a relation to that Chriſt having obtained a great victory over the devill in Heaven, Luke 10. 18. Rev. 12. 7. the battell may be called heavenly, and the combats of the faithfull are but onely as purſuits and reliques of that battell.

V. 13. Evil day] namely, in the time of greateſt temptation. To ſtand] to be conquerours.

V. 14. Girt about] the girdle which bindes the body and ſtrengthens it, is taken in Scripture for a ſigne of ſtrength and vigour, Job 12. 21. Iſai. 5. 27. and 22. 21. Dan. 5. 6. And in this ſence the Apoſtle means that truth and loialty is that which maketh a man ſound in all his actions, whereas there is nothing more baſe nor remiſſe in a ſtrong triall then hypocriſie. The breaſt-plate] for the onely defence of your heart have an upright conſcience.

V. 15. Your feet ſhod] being by means of meditating upon the Goſpell, which is the doctrine of our peace with God well prepared; and as one ſhould ſay, our legs well armed, and our feet ſtrongly ſhod, ſo that we may be able to paſſe and trample over all the lets of the world, and finiſh the courſe of our heavenly vocation without any ſpirituall hurt.

V. 16. The fiery darts] the moſt dangerous trials of incredulity, diffidence, and deſpair.

V. 17. And take] apply unto your ſelves by faith and hope the ſalvation acquired by Chriſt, by vertue of which ye may alſo be ſaved, and raiſe up your ſelves being Conquerours in the battell which you have yet to fight. Of the Spirit] that is to ſay, The ſpirituall word which the holy Ghoſt hath forged and putteth it into beleevers hands, and is of a divine ſtrength and temper, to pierce and overthrow the enemie, ſee 2 Cor. 10. 4.

V. 18. In the Spirit] by a divine motion being driven by it, Rom. 8. 25.

V. 19. That I may open] namely, with a holy liberty and boldneſſe.

V. 21. In the Lord] namely, in the Lords work: or who in the communion of Gods Church holds this ſacred degree, 1 Cor. 4. 17.

THE EPISTLE OF St. PAUL THE Apoſtle to the PHILIPPIANS.

ARGUMENT.

SAint Paul founded the Church of Philippi, a famous City of Macedonia, as Saint Luke ſaith, Acts 16. 12. And according to his care of all the Churches, being a priſoner at Rome he writes this Epiſtle unto them upon this occaſion. The Philippians, according to their continuall care to provide for the Apoſtles wants, had ſent Epaphroditus their Paſtor to Rome to viſit him, and preſent unto him from them ſome honourable aſſiſtance, whereby Saint Paul having by him underſtood the ſtate of their Church, thanks God for their faith and holy perſeverance, and declares unto them a hearty feeling of it, with prayers unto God that the bleſſing may be firm and perpetuall to them, as he doth firmely hope by reaſon of their former trials. Then he telleth them of his ſufferances and captivity, and the great fruit which proceeded from thence for the advancement of the Goſpel. And his onely griefe griefe for the perverſneſſe of ſome ſmall preachers, who took occaſion through his impriſonment to falſifie the doctrine of the Goſpell, and to withdraw the Churches affections from the Apoſtle; declaring notwithſtanding what his faith, conſtancy, joy, and firme diſpoſition was againſt all events, having nevertheleſſe ſome hope to ſee them again, to take away from them all matter of offence, to comfort, aſſure, and prepare them againſt the time of the like afflictions. Then he exhorteth them to holineſſe of life, and eſpecially to peace and concord, modeſty and humility, by the moſt perfect example of Chriſt, and ſtaying untill ſuch time as he could ſend Timothie unto them, he ſends back Epaphroditus to them, adorned with deſerved praiſes and recommendations. Afterwards he warneth them to beware of falſe Apoſtles, who impoſed the neceſſity of Moſaicall Ceremonies upon them, to gain favour and renown amongſt the Iews, and ſheweth by his own example how much every beleever ought to contemn thoſe carnall and externall obſervations to cleave to Chriſt onely, aiming at the mark of the heavenly vocation in the communion of his life and reſurrection. And at the laſt having again exhorted them to concord, and to the laudable imitating of him, and to all Chriſtian vertues, thanking them for the relief they had ſent him, he bleſſeth and ſaluteth them.

THE EPISTLE OF St. PAUL THE Apostle to the PHILIPPIANS.

ARGUMENT.

SAint Paul founded the Church of Philippi, a famous City of Macedonia, as Saint Luke saith, Acts 16. 12. And according to his care of all the Churches, being a prisoner at Rome he writes this Epistle unto them upon this occasion. The Philippians, according to their continuall care to provide for the Apostles wants, had sent Epaphroditus their Pastor to Rome to visit him, and present unto him from them some honourable assistance, whereby Saint Paul having by him understood the state of their Church, thanks God for their faith and holy perseverance, and declares unto them a hearty feeling of it, with prayers unto God that the blessing may be firm and perpetuall to them, as he doth firmely hope by reason of their former trials. Then he telleth them of his sufferances and captivity, and the great fruit which proceeded from thence for the advancement of the Gospel. And his onely griefe griefe for the perverſneſſe of ſome ſmall preachers, who took occaſion through his impriſonment to falſifie the doctrine of the Goſpell, and to withdraw the Churches affections from the Apoſtle; declaring notwithſtanding what his faith, conſtancy, joy, and ſincere diſpoſition was againſt all events, having nevertheleſſe ſome hope to ſee them again, to take away from them all matter of offence, to comfort, aſſure, and prepare them againſt the time of the like afflictions. Then he exhorteth them to holineſſe of life, and eſpecially to peace and concord, modeſty and humility, by the moſt perfect example of Chriſt: and ſtaying untill ſuch time as he could ſend Timothie unto them, he ſendeth back Epaphroditus to them, adorned with deſerved praiſes and recommendations. Afterwards he warneth them to beware of falſe Apoſtles, who impoſed the neceſſity of Moſaicall Ceremonies upon them, to gain favour and renown amongſt the Iews, and ſheweth by his own example how much every beleever ought to contemn thoſe carnall and externall obſervations to cleave to Chriſt onely, aiming at the mark of the heavenly vocation in the communion of his life and reſurrection. And at the laſt having againe exhorted them to concord, and to the laudable imitating of him, and to all Chriſtian vertues, thanking them for the relief they had ſent him, he bleſſeth and ſalureth them.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. The Biſhops] it ſeemes that by this name ought to be underſtood ſuch of the ſacred Miniſters, whereof the Eccleſiaſticall Senate was compoſed, which had the government of the Church, the cenſure of manners, &c. ſee Acts 20. 17, 28. Rom. 12. 8. 1 Cor. 12. 28. 1 Tim. 5. 17. And by Deacons, not onely thoſe who took care of the poor, Acts 6. 2. Rom. 12. 7, 8. 1 Tim. 3. 8, 12. but alſo the plain miniſters of the Church. Deacons] or miniſters.

V. 3. Upon every] namely, for all the good which I have known in you, which I do moſt pleaſingly keep in my memory. Others, every time I think upon you.

V. 5. Which you] for the holy manner wherein you have participated of the doctrine and grace of the Goſpel ever ſince it was preached to you.

V. 6. Vntill the day] untill Chriſts laſt comming, at which time the ſalvation of all beleevers ſhall be accompliſhed by the bleſſed reſurrection, ver. 10 1 Theſ. 3. 13. and 5. 23. Or he ſpeaks thus, becauſe that every beleever ought to be prepared each moment for the comming of the Son of God, as if he were thereby to finiſh the courſe of his life, ſee 2 Cor. 15. 52. 1 Theſ. 4. 15, 17.

V. 7. Are partakers] have through a ſpeciall favour and honour done you by God, verſ. 29, 30. ſuffered the ſame calamities for the Goſpell as I have done, and have maintained and ſealed it by your faith and conſtancy: or you have joyned with me by open profeſſion, and by all manner of Declarations and communications, as well in my ſufferings as in mine actions and ſpeeches for the maintenance of the truth, ſee Phil. 4. 14. Heb 10. 33.

V. 8. In the bowels] with that intimate and boundleſſe ſpirituall love as Chriſt engenders by his Spirit in all his members towards him, and one towards the other, which hath alſo no other foundation, reaſon, nor end, but onely Chriſt himſelf.

V. 9. Iudgement,] namely a ſound, and ſtedfaſt ſpirituall judgement in the truth of the Goſpell, Heb. 5. 14. or a lively apprehenſion, experience, and ſenſible application thereof.

V. 10. Without offence] namely the offence, which it gives to the ſinner himſelfe, and is a trouble, and hinderance to others in the courſe of their heavenly vocation. Till the day] the Italian, for the day; that you may then be approved of by the Lord, and obtaine the reward promiſed to thoſe who perſevere in faith and holineſſe. Others, untill the day, as Ver. 6.

V. 11. The fruits] namely, holy works and deeds by Jeſus Chriſt, namely, which are brought forth by you and in you, by vertue of the myſticall conjunction that you have with him through his Spirit, which regenerates the perſon, and guids its actions.

V. 12. The things which] namely, mine impriſonment, and all that hath followed to this houre.

V. 13. My bonds] the fame of me a priſoner, hath ſpread it ſelfe abroad not by a popular cry, nor by a human celebration, or applauſe, but by a cleere manifeſtation of Chriſts power which accompanieth me, and worketh in me, and by me. The Pallace] The Italian, the Prætorium, the Roman Emperours Palace, ſee Phil. 4. 22. Or the Prætorian Foſt, where the cohorts or companies of the Emperours ordinary Guard were lodged, as it is likely, that the Souldiers which kept Saint Paul, Acts 28. 16. did publiſh many great matters of him, of his doctrine, acts, and miracles.

V. 14. In the Lord] namely, of that ſpirituall brotherhood, whereof the common faith in Chriſt, and his blessing by his Spirit, are the only tyes Paul binds [namely, by the example of me that am a prisoner, and by the comfort of the Spirit, and by the power of God which sheweth it self in me.

V. 14. Some] he meaneth some adversaries of his, especially amongst the Jewes; who were jealous of the degree which he held in the Church, and were heads of faction against him: who seeing him in prison shewed great zeale in preaching the Gospell, to gaine themselves as much credit as Saint Paul had had; wronging not onely his authority, but even the very truth it self which they preached, Phil. 3.2. 28. Of good will] with a godly, and upright intention, without any passion or proper interest, Or for good will towards me, to comfort me, faithfully seconding my labours, and joyning themselves with me in the cause for which I suffer.

V. 16. Not sincerely] namely, in regard as well of the substance, wherein they were of a different opinion from the Apostle, as of the perverse affection, and intention.

V. 18. In pretence] namely, to cover their owne passions of ambition, jealousie, hatred, avarice, &c. Or upon occasion to make themselves a way of admittance to practice those passions.

V. 19. This shall] namely, that by these tryals God will confirme me in faith, constancy, and perseverance in my vocation, to finish the course thereof for my salvation. Through your] as by a help appointed by God to obtaine the assistance of his Spirit from him, whereby I may obtaine the power of persevering. In Jesus Christ] See upon Rom. 8.9.

V. 20. My earnest expectation] the Italian, mine intent] namely, my care. Assumed] coming to faile in these tryals, against that glorious profession of persevering, which I have alwaies professed, upon the assistance of Gods invincible power. Shall be magnified] laying open in me his divine powers, and verifying his promises. In my body] in me whilst I live in this life: and in regard of my patience in these bodily afflictions.

V. 21. For to me] he gives a reason of this his hope: because that having had no other object, nor imployment for his life, he should at his death receive the reward for it, gayning thereby a glorious and immortall life.

V. 22. I wot not] weighing on the one side mine owne particular profit which would be, to be gathered in to mine everlasting rest: and on the other side, the profit of the Churches, which seemes yet to require my presence.

V. 23. In a strait] perplexed and ambiguous between these two thoughts and desires. To depart] namely, to returne to my proper habitation, 2 Cor. 5.6.8.9. 2 Tim 4.6. Or to be set at liberty, and freed as from a prison, or a keeper.

V. 25. I know] it is likely that the Apostle said this as his first comming to Rome, and that then it was revealed to him, that his life should as yet be prolonged to him, as it was for two yeares, Act. 28. 30. at the end of which, he was divinely warned, that his death was approaching, 2 Tim. 4.6. Others beleeve, that he spake only according to likelihood, by humane discourse, and not by any revelation. Abide] in this world. With you] in the communion of this life, not onely temporall, but spirituall also. And joy] that being borne up by my presence and ministery, your comfort and spirituall joy grounded upon faith in Christ, may be confirmed, & increased.

V. 26. Your rejoycing] the Italian, Your boast, that you may have the greater cause of rejoycing and glorifying your selves in Gods grace which he communicates unto you, by me your Pastor, and that you may for a long time boast of having had me to be your Apostle. By my coming] It is likely that Paul having knowne by revelation that his death was not yet at hand, he did from thence by humane discourse gather this consequence, that he yet hoped once againe to see the Philippians: for it appeares by the following verse, that he spake it doubtfully.

V. 27. In one] namely, by his power. Or in a holy union, whereof Gods Spirit is the author, and bond. Striving] standing to all tryals, assaults, and difficulties, Jude 3.

V. 28. Which is] the opposition wherewith they oppose you, and the assaults which they give you, are unto them a most certaine argument of eternall damnation. Of Salvation] in that, by the community in Christs sufferings, and by his Name, and Truth, they have a certaine pledge of their conformity to his glory: and that he is just before God, in giving rest to those that are afflicted, for his cause, 2 Thes. 1.7. And that] for God hath established the foresaid order. Or not by your own power, but by meanes of Gods grace, who bearing you up in your afflictions, gives you thereby a certaine argument of the accomplishment of your salvation.

V. 30. To see] he seems to mean the persecution which he suffered at Philippi, Act. 16.22.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. IF there be] seeing you have been witnesses of mine affliction: and that the communion of Christs members requires that they should enterchangeably comfort themselves through charity, and be united together by the same spirit, and to have the bowels of affectionate compassion open to one another, doe you shew your selves thus godly affected towards me, comforting me through your holy concord.

V. 2. Fulfill ye] following that which you have happily begun, and continued untill this time.

V. 5. This mind] or affection.

V. 6. Who being] not onely true God coessentiall with his father, but also appearing to Angels and men in no other wise but in divine glory and majesty. Thought it not] that is to say, he was without any usurpation truely equall to God, and had no right by nature. See John 1. 18.

V. 7. Made himself of no] the Italian, Made himself of nothing; that is to say, he brought himself as it were to nothing, hiding his divine glory for a time, and abstaining from the use and manifestation of it: and contrarywise having taken upon him humane nature, and walking himself like unto men. Which nature in comparison of God is nothing: and in that nature also subjecting himself to a most abject and wretched condition. The forme] namely, the apparent quality and condition of a meere servant, obedient to his father, and subject to his Law, John 6. 38. to be judged and rewarded according to the merit of the worke: not for him, or for dignity of the person, Esa. 53. 12. Gal. 4. 4. subject to worldly power, Esa. 49. 7. and wholly devoted to mens benefit and service; having no regard of himselfe, Matth. 20. 28. Rom. 15. 3. 8. In the likenesse] in all things like unto mans nature, sinne onely excepted, Heb. 2. 17. and 4. 15.

V. 8. Being found] that is to say, being shewed himselfe in the world, so farre as could be descried by the senses, as plain man; which is spoken in opposition to that which faith did spiritually judge and see, namely, that he was the everlasting Son of God.

9. Wherefore] as he hath made himself subject to the Law, so because he had perfectly satisfied it, God hath given his humane nature the reward of a glorious life promised by the Law in a most eminent degree, correspondent to that of his abasement: and by meanes of this exaltation, hath installed him in the glorious possession and administration of his heavenly kingdom, in which his divine Majestie, which before lay hidden, doth shine at full, which is expressed by the words following. A Name] that is to say, a dignity, glory, and power.

V. 10. That at the] to bring all creatures either willingly, or to a voluntary obedience and adoration of this Soveraigne King, as trembling to hear him but once named. Things in heaven] this distinction is either more expressly to comprehend all creatures whatsoever: or by the heavenly, he means the Angels, Hebr. 1. 6. By those on earth, men: by those under the earth, the devils, which are abashed in hell, Luke 8. 31. 2 Pet. 2. 4. Jude 6. who are also constrained to tremble at the name of Jesus, and reverence it, see Mark 5. 6.

V. 12. Work out] the Italian, accomplish; bend all your endeavours and strength to come to the marke, and to the accomplishing of your salvation, for 2 Cor. 7. 1. With fear] with holy reverence, humility and care.

V. 13. For it is] he gives a reason why they should so employ themselves, namely, because their labour shall not be in vaine, but God's grace shall assist them, and powerfully cooperate with them. See 1 Cor. 15. 10. 14. or because they ought to doe it with feare, namely, because that being able to do nothing of themselves, but onely through Gods grace, they should not make themselves incapable of it, through carnall security, confidence or presumption. Rom. 11. 20. but be ready and obedient to all Gods motions, whereof they are not onely the instruments.

V. 15. The word] namely, the doctrine of the Gospell of salvation, professed and administred by the Church; whose vertue is set forth and clearely proved, by the life and conversation of it.

V. 17. Yea and if I be] this sheweth that the Apostles, who perhaps had had some revelation of the prolonging of their life, Phi. 1. 25. did also foresee that he should end it by martyrdom. Offered upon] the Italian, poured out upon the Offering and Sacrifice of your faith; a phrase taken from ancient Sacrifices, in which, besides the Offerings here was also added a powring out of some kind of liquor, Sir. Exod. 29. 40. The meaning is, your faith and conversion is like a spirituall sacrifice, for which I have consecrated you to God. Rom. 15. 16. and I will willingly adde mine owne blood to it for an accomplishment, and seale.

V. 18. In the like] namely, though his grace and assistance.

V. 20. For your estate] namely, for things belonging to your salvation, and to the happy estate of your Church.

V. 21. All] manner of people even some of the pastors, doe not employ themselves in Christs service, with so entire an affection, as therefore renouncing his own profits and commodities. See 2 Cor. 11. 30.

V. 22. The proofe] how he hath shewed himselfe to be an approved person by all the effects of fidelity.

V. 25. To send unto you] greatly expecting an opportunity to send Timothy unto you, or to come my selfe. In labour and] namely, in the ministery of the Gospell, and in the combates and persecutions for it, which he hath borne and suffered together with me. Your messenger] the Italian, your Apostle; that is to say Evangelist, which was an office like unto a particular Apostle of a Province. See Rom. 16. 7. 2 Cor. 8. 23. Others expound it, sent by you to bring me that supply which you have been pleased to furnish me with at my need.

V. 27. Mercy] not so much in preserving of him alive, as in restoring him to his perfect health, to finish the course of his service.

V. 28.

V.28. Be the lesse] may receive some comfort and ease through your rejoycing, as 2 *Cor.*1.24.

V.29. In the Lord] namely, with a truly spiritual and Christian affection.

V.30. For the worke] He seemes to mean that this sicknesse proceeded from the toil of his voyage, undertaken for the love of Christ, to assist Paul who was his Minister, whereupon the service was reputed to be done to Christ himselfe, *Matth.*25.40. Not regarding] or being carelesse. Your lacke] namely, to do that which you by reason of your absence and being so farre off could not do to me according to your desires.

CHAP. III.

Vers.1. IN the Lord] namely, in his grace or with a spirituall joy which Christ creates in the hearts of believers, in the communion of himselfe. The same.] as you have heard of me, either by word of mouth or by other letters.

V.2. Of dogges] of prophane and unclean persons, *Rev.*22.15. whether it be meant in generall, or whether it have a particular relation to false Doctours, who led their lives stained with many vices, *Gal.*6.13. *Phil.*3.19. Evill workers] namely, from from false Doctours and Pastours. Of the concision] the Italian, of the cutting off; from seducers who impose the observation of circumcision, as a thing necessary to salvation, and as a part of mans righteousnesse before God, *Act.*15.1. *Gal.*5.2. Now this sect being vulgarly called by the name of circumcision, the Apostle in disdain calls it (concision.) as if he should say, that cutting which they desired was no more a sacrament of Gods covenant, but a meer cutting off from it, *Gal.*5.2.4. and an incision or wound of the consciences, and a rending of the Church.

V.3. For we are] He gives them that hatefull name which they deserve, for the name of circumcision doth not belong to the Jewdaizing Jewes, but to us true Christians, who say, that mans holinesse and Gods service consists in spiritual things, and all our confidence, joy, and honour before God is in the benefit of Christ only, who fulfilde in us by the imputation of his righteousnesse, and by vertue of his Spirit, that whereof circumcision is but a signe in the bodie. See *Rom.*2.28,29. and 4.11. In the flesh] namely, in external and bodily things, or in any humane righteousnesse out of Christ, all which things are called carnal in reproach and contempt, as contrariwise any thing that is, Christs, and in Christ is called Spirit.

V.4. Though] If that I would imitate them, and lay open my glorious titles amongst the Jewes, I should go farre beyond them.

V.5. Circumcised] He seemes to mean that he was a Jew borne, and not a proselite, as his adversaries were. Touching the Law] namely, in regard of the doctrine and exposition of the Law, which was different amongst the Jewish sects, others take the word Law for a religious rule.

V.6. Concerning zeale] namely, for a proof of my fervent affection to the Jewish Religion. Which is in the Law] namely, which a man can obtain without Christ, studying and keeping himselfe to the Law, to be approved of and justified before God, and is nothing but an outward discipline, an imperfect resemblance, a dead picture of righteousnesse before men, and cannot subsist before God, Isaiah 4.2.

V.7. Were gain] which by a false judgement I imagined might much helpe me in things concerning everlasting salvation. I counted] by a spirituall judgement after my conversion and illumination. Losse] dangerous allurements of hypocrisie, and hurtfull illusions of vain confidence. For Christ] namely, to embrace him alone, and set all my righteousnesse and life in Him, who in the effect of justification cannot be mixed with works, and with the Law, *Gal.*2.21. and 5.2.4.

V.8. And I count] I have not onely renounced all manner of confidence, estimation of their works and observances, as they are used amongst the Jewes, which being out of Christ are not only of no value, but pernicious; but I also hold that in Christianisme which I now professe; Christ gives them no vertue of merit nor dignitie, and that now they are onely but a harmefull superstition. For the excellencie] namely, to give place in my heart to this onely and soveraigne meanes of obtaining righteousnesse and life, which is faith in Christ, and cause him onely to raigne in me, by a total and voluntary disannulment of my selfe. Suffered the losse] I have quite given over all manner of confidence and good opinion of these vain things, for to put it all in Christ who is mine onely Treasure.

V.9. Be found] by God in his judgement. In him] ingrafted in him by faith, and united to him by the spirit, and as it were all wrapped up and covered with his righteousnesse. See *Rom.*8.1. By faith] the Greek phrase doth signifie a condition required, as Acts 3.16.

V.10. That I may know] that being justified by faith in Christ, I may feel and prove the vertue of his Spirit, and operation in me, in the mortification of my flesh and of sin, and in the rising again, and vivifying of the new man in holinesse of life by vertue of the conformitie of the death and resurrection of Christ. See *Rom.*6.4,5,6. Others refere this to the last and perfect knowledge and fruition of Christ, which believers shall have in Heaven by the resurrection of the members in vertue, and to the resemblance of Him who is the Head, after we have been partakers of afflictions and death in this world, as Rom. 8. 11. 17. 29. 2 Tim. 2. 11. 12.

V. 11. If by any meanes] this manner doth not imply any doubt, but a strong confidence and desire. Might] i.e. by a constant mortification I could attain to blessed immortalitie, in which I shall be wholly raised up from sin, to live to Godalone, which is as a signe and reward of my spiritual race.

V. 12. Not as though] Let no man believe that I am as a divine man or an Angel, and that I am arrived to the end of my race, and of my conflicts. See 2 Cor. 12. 6. Either were] this other terme is taken from those who amongst the Heathen after many purifyings and preparations, made themselves capable of the sight and participation of certain great idolatrous mysteries. Am apprehended] this other terme is taken from those who run a race, who sometimes did drag after them, and helpe to run some friends of theirs, to make them win the second wager or reward: or from the custome of compelling men which they met by the way, Mat. 5. 41. the meaning is, Christ hath taken me, and possesseth me with his Spirit. See Cant. 1. 4. John 6. 44. and 12. 32.

V. 13. Those things] namely, the world and the concupiscence thereof, and whatsoever is contrary to Gods kingdom, and all Pharisaical righteousnesse, and such like meanes which I heretofore followed, all which I have renounced, to presse with all my strength towards the marke of salvation, by the race of faith in Christ.

V. 14. In Christ Jesus] that is to say, I strive thus by the power which Christ lends me, or Christ being the onely meanes for to attain to this end.

V. 15. Perfect] See upon 1 Cor. 2. 6. Be thus minded] to forsake all other meanes and confidence of salvation to cleave unto Christ onely. Otherwise minded] through weaknesse of faith or unaffected ignorance, there being in those beginnings many believers that did bear great devotion, and did much reverence to those Jewish ceremonies. Reveal] will enlighten and strengthen you in the knowledge of the pure truth of the Gospel.

V. 16. Nevertheless] Let us live peaceably, and regularly, in a well tuned harmonie, notwithstanding this diversitie of mindes in such things agreeing in the rest of the doctrine, of which being fully perswaded, we have gone together thus forward in it.

V. 17. Marke them] take it for an allouted signe of good pastours, when they studie to conforme themselves to mine example in all things.

V. 20. For our] He proves that such as set their hearts upon earthly things cannot chuse but fall into eternal perdition and ignominie; namely, because the propertie and glorie of all believers to whom onely salvation belongeth, is to live in this world as if they lived in Heaven, where they sit with Christ, Ephes. 2. 6. and therefore they do bend all their thoughts and desires that way, Matth. 6. 20, 21. Others reside at Bruxelles, &c.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. And crowne] your faith and confession, and the happy estate of your Church which was founded by me do give me great cause of joy, and my Ministerie is as an ornament behoofull to your Church, and I have reason to glorie in the Lord. Stand fast] as you do at this present, or as I have said before. In the Lord] namely, in all that is conformable to his Truth and will; or not in a civil and worldly concord, but in a Christian and spiritual one.

V. 2. True yoke-fellow] He speakes to the chief Pastour, the Apostles Epistles being directed to them, and afterwards read by them in the publike Assemblie. Which laboured] which have imployed themselves with me in the advancing of the Gospel, having been partakers of the combats and disquietudes which I have suffered at the hands of the enemies of it.

V. 5. Moderation] the Italian, modestia, or equitie or modestie.

V. 7. The peace] the true spiritual and incomprehensible rest and tranquillitie of minde which God creates in the hearts of his, by his Spirit that keep and free you from all terrour, anxietie, and disturbance, to persevere in peace in Christs communion, or shall keep you in Christ, that is to say, by his power.

V. 8. Praise] namely, any praise-worthy action.

V. 10. In the Lord] namely, with a spiritual motion and joy, whereof Christ is the onely Authour, and giveth a cause for it, to those that are his. Hath flourished again] that you have wakened, and are grown vigorous; others, that you have caused your care of me to flourish again.

V. 12. I know how] that is to say, I know how to make use of such vertues, as befit these different estates.

V. 13. All things] namely, that belong to my duetie and calling. Through Christ] by his power grace, and Spirit, which he communicates unto me, by vertue of my spiritual union with Him.

V. 15. Now ye] you are witnesses unto me, how that what I speak is truth. Of the Gospell] when it began to be first preached in your coasts. But ye] As much as to say, ye onely have alwayes had the credit of being my providers, so have you begun, and so you persist.

V. 17. Not because] the cause why I rejoyce so much in your liberalitie, and that I thus accept of it, is not so much in regard of my selfe, as in regard of you: that ye proceeding in the fruits of Gods grace, he may double them unto you, and give you a large and ample reward, according to his holy promises.

V. 18. An odour] namely, an oft most pleasing to God. A terme taken from the ancient Sacrifices. See Gen. 8. 21. Exod. 29. 18.

V. 19. In glory] these words may be annexed to the word riches, as saying, the riches of Gods glorious grace; Rom. 9. 4. and 9. 23. Or with the word shall supply in glory: that is to say powerfully and gloriously. Or in everlasting glory. By Christ Jesus] namely by his intercession. Or by vertue of him.

V. 21. In Christ Jesus] namely, those that are members of Christ. Or salute them in Christ. That is to say with a spirituall affection. Rom. 16. 22.

V. 22. Household] whereof some have been converted to the Christian faith.

THE EPISTLE OF S. PAUL THE Apostle to the COLOSSIANS.

ARGUMENT.

Colosse was a City in Phrygia, neere to the River Lico in the lesser Asia: in which by Epaphras ministery, there had been gathered together, and set up a Church: which was soon after tempted, and troubled by certain seducers, who taught them to restraine Mosaicall ceremonie, as necessary to salvation: and to observe many humane traditions, and doctrines, under colour of greater devotion and holinesse. Therefore Epaphras went to Rome and told Paul, who was a prisoner, the estate and danger of that Church: which though it were not in any great decay, yet had need of being confirmed, and maintained by his authority. S. Paul therefore, to that end writes this Epistle to the Colossians. And after he hath as the first given God thanks for their faith, and charity, according to the Gospell faithfully preached unto them by Epaphras, he prayeth them to encrease his gifts unto them, and strengthen them more and more in the faith, that they might bring forth the true fruits thereof. Then he layeth open and exalteth the excellence of the Person, the Office, and benefit of Christ preached to the Gentiles, whose Apostle he was, and for whom he suffered all these afflictions: And therefore he exhorteth them to perseivere in Christ, and to cleave wholly unto him, and to set all their righteousnesse, life, salvation, and happinesse in him onely; and not suffer themselves to be led away after ceremonies, which Christ hath fulfilled by his death, and annihilated the use of them: nor after humane traditions and inventions, which under a maske of devotion, are but vaine superstition and impiety. But that as they have by baptisme been made partakers of Christs death and resurrection, to the remission of sinnes, and gaining of the everlasting and spirituall life and liberty, they should likewise continually aspire to the accomplishment thereof, by the mortification of the flesh and concupiscences thereof; and by the sanctification of the spirit, whose fruits are piety, humility, charity, peace, and every other Christian vertue; whereof he likewise gives particular precepts, and instructions, to husbands, and wives, parents, and children, masters, and servants: Declaring that in these things consists the true piety and service of God. And finally, having exhorted them to continuall prayers, and holy wisdome, he salutes them in his owne and other brethrens names.

CHAP. II.

Colossi; a City of Phrygia, neere to the River Lico, in Asia minor, which was ouerthrowne by Van earth-quake under Nero. Which is the reason that the ancientest of the late Geographers haue not spoken of it.

V. 5. For the hope] your end being not worldly nor temporall good, but eternall saluation, apprehended by a liuely hope.

V. 6. In all] euery way through the length and breadth thereof. Or in all places where the Gospell is preached, verse 23. Bringeth fruit] namely, in effects of faith and conuersion, and growth in complelate of knowledge and manifestation. In you] namely, as it is preached in all truth in the Gospell and not in shadowes and figures as in Moses his law.

V. 8. Who also] by this place, and by Col. 4 12. and by Philem. 23. It appeares that this Epaphras pastor of Colosse, was come to Rome to visit Saint Paul when he was in prison; In the Spirit] namely your spirituall loue, engendered by the Holy Ghost, who thereby vnites and preserues the communion of Saints See Rom. 15. 30.

V. 10. Of the Lord] of the profession which you make of being children of God, and members of Christ. Or of the grace which you haue receiued of him, and of his calling.

V. 12. Which hath made us] namely, by his free adoption, he hath conferred upon us the right of inheriting his light, namely, his celestiall glory assigned to all his elect and believers. See John 1. 12.

V. 13. From the power] from the hand of Satan Prince of darkenesse. That is to say, head of the State of ignorance, sin, horror, death, and confusion, which raigneth in the world.

V. 15. Who is] in whose Person, Workes, and Word, God who of his owne nature is invincible, reueales himselfe vnto saluation, as 2 Cor. 4. 4. First borne] engendered by the father, of his diuine prouidence, and equall with him, before any thing was created, and brought forth of nothing: that is to say, from everlasting. Or he that is as Gods great Deputy and Vicegerent in the world, as the first borne were in families. See Psal. 89. 27.

V. 16. By him] the Italian, in him; that is to say, he fulfilling already by his eternall generation, the decree hath created all things operateing by him, and in him, as by an equall, joyned, and cooperating cause. So that he, by an inward property of his person, maintaines them all in their being, John 1. 4. and 5. 3. In Heaven] It seemes he meanes the Angels, and all spirituall creatures. Thrones] this name and those which follow, signifie the Angelicall creatures, together with their degrees and dignities, as well amongst themselues, as ouer the lower world, and the guiding of it. See Rom. 8. 38. and therefore it is not for concealing matter the Church, which saith it is saint that God sits as vpon a Throne, by a figure taken from the Cherubins which were vpon the Arke, upon which Gods glory appeared, 1 Sam. 4. 4. 1 Chron. 28. 18. Psal. 80. 1. Ezek. 10. 1. For him] being not moued to create them by any touch of himselfe, but onely by his owne free will, Ephes. 1. 9. Or as he hath been the foundation and cause thereof, so also the last end of it; so that every thing ought to haue a relation to his glory and seruice, Rom. 11. 36.

V. 17. All things] namely, that are created, and therefore he is eternall, John 1. 1. By him] the Italian, in him, comprehending, and as one may say containing them by his infinite power, that they may not be disiolued and dissipated, and hauing them up that they may not sinke, and be ruined. So that he is as it were the foundation and bond of the preseruation of all things.

V. 18. The beginning] namely, the same degree that the Sonne of God hath in the order of nature, he likewise hath in that of grace, and of spirituall creation, being the first that is risen to a glorious power, and being the cause and patterne of the resurrection of all his members. The first borne] so he had named him in the other order of creation, verse 15. The meaning is, That he by his resurrection hath been declared to be the true and euerliuing Sonne of God, and head of the Church, Acts 13. 33. Rom. 1. 4. as by the same the adoption of all his beleeuers should also appeare, Rom. 8. 29, 30, 23. 1 Joh. 3. 2. In all things] as well in the creation and temporall state of the world, as in the redemption and spirituall state of the Church. Others translate it amongst all, namely, the children of God, Rom. 8. 29.

V. 19. All fulnesse] namely, that he should be the very spring of all that power, by which the world was created, and is preserued in its being: and besides of all the grace, righteousnesse, and Spirit, which is dispenced to his whole Church.

V. 20. Through the blood] namely, by his violent and judiciall death upon the crosse. Whether they be] See upon Eph. 1. 10.

V. 21. In your mind] because that in that high part and faculty of the soule lieth the Spring and seat of rebellion against God, Rom. 8. 6, 7. and 12. 2. 1 Cor. 2. 14. Ephes. 2. 3. & 4. 17, 18. By wicked] the Italian, in wicked; here he sheweth wherein consists his enmity, namely, in sinne; and in obstinate disobedience, whereof the rootes and first motions are in mans spirit.

V. 22. Of his flesh] by this word is signified the body not only truely humane, but also subject to the conditions of an animall life, being passible, weake, accessible, mortall, &c. opposite to the spirituall.

small and glorified body. 1 Cor. 15. 24. Holy] fitt by imputation of his righteousnesse, by vertue whereof men are justified, and acquired right to eternall life, and afterward by the regenerating of the Spirit by which he is made capable of entering into the possession of it.

V. 23. To every creature] generally, and indifferently to all people and Nations.

Minister] speakes of Christ and of his Church, as of one of the prime, whose affections are directed by Gods providence. Now Christ is dead having suffered already; it noteth sometimes, that the Church, and every member thereof suffer in their names, and parts, according to his example, though for divers ends, for the sufferings of Christ are a price of infinite worth, and the suffering of the elect serve not only as testimonies, exercises, or trials, but as matter of much examples. Such is my flesh] namely, in my person, in this bodily life.

V. 25. For you] namely, for you Gentiles in generall. To fulfill] to performe the service of preaching of the Gospell as fully. Rom. 15. 19. which is that mystery, namely, that sacred and spirituall action, which was not heard of in former times, when Gods service was either not known at, or altogether employed in Ceremonies, Sacrifices, &c.

V. 27. Is] namely, of which misterie, Christ who is preached amongst you, is the whole subject. Of the hope of glory] and consequently by his Spirit, which in you is a certaine pledge of heavenly glory.

V. 28. We may present] that we may cause believers, even in this world, to be perfectly satisfied from their sinnes, by vertue of Christs righteousnesse applyed unto them by faith; and that by merits of their spirituall union with Christ, they may receive the gift of finall election, which may be accomplished at their departure out of this life, when they shall present themselves before God.

V. 29. Striving] withstanding and putting by all the assaults of the Devill, and the world, and overcomming all troubles and difficulties by the meanes of faith and of the ministery of the Gospell. 2 Cor. 10. 3. Phil. 1. 30. 2 Tim. 4. 7. Heb. 10. 32.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. What great] whether it be in the Jews persecutions, because of the calling of the Gentiles, or in the machinations and contradictions of false doctors and disturbers of the Churches, or in his cares and anxieties for the Colossians salvation. Laodicea] a City neer to Colosse. My face] namely, my bodily presence. The meaning is not, That he did not suffer the like troubles for others also with whom he had been. But the meaning is, That though he had not seen them, yet he suffered persecution for that which was taught in their Church conformable to his doctrine, and made yielding great care for their good and salvation.

V. 2. That their] this is the end, either of the conflicts which he underwent, or of the relation thereof which he made unto them. Comforted] seeing my self as it were in the front in all the assaults, or to encourage them by mine example, or avoiding dangers by my foreseeing their evil] keeping themselves in charity, in the communion of Saints, and by this meanes making themselves capable of being more and more inriched and confirmed in faith, with knowledge and certain perswasion of the Spirit. Of the mystery] namely, of the Gospell, a doctrine of it, self hidden and the meanes invisible to the flesh, the subject whereof is God revealed in his Son, in grace, truth, and with all power, Ephes. 3. 4.

V. 3. In whom] in the true knowledge of whose person, office, and benefit, is contained all the divine and living wisdom, whereof he is the only disperser by his word and Spirit.

V. 4. This I say] I do thus exalt Christ, and the knowledge of him, to the end that quieting your selves perfectly in him, you may stand stedfast in his faith, not suffering your selves to be led away by humane doctrines and false means of salvation, see Rom. 27. 8.

V. 5. For though] he gives a reason of his care for them, because that in charity he partakes of their welfare and prosperity, and also of their evils and dangers.

V. 6. Received] namely, learned and imbraced his doctrine by faith. Walk ye] persevere and go forward in faith, and in all the duties of a Christian life.

V. 8. Spoil you] the Italian, make a prey of you; a terme taken from sheep that are stollen away by theeves, see John 10. 1, 8, 10. Through philosophie] using subtilties and entrapping arguments to ensnare you, in Pharisaicall superstition, which had not other foundation but the traditions of men, Matth. 15. 2. Gal. 1. 14. or in Mosaicall superstition, which yet holdeth with the ancient Ceremonies of the Law, that were the first elements and rudiments of the knowledge of Christ, and are now annihilated by the brightnesse of the Gospell, and by the abundance and power of the Spirit thereof. Not after] the Italian, not according; namely, not according to the purity of his Gospel, whereof the false apostles retained the name, but disanull the power of it, see Gal. 2. 21. and 5. 2, 4.

V. 9. For in him] cleave you fast unto Christ, for in him are all divine and everlasting goods. Fulnesse] the whole masse and gathering together of it, whereof whereof the parcels and streams do issue out upon the Church, John 1. 16. Colos. 1. 19. Of the Godhead] it should seem the Apostle would expresse a certain phrase, which was ordinary amongst the Hebrews, which signifies habitation or residence of the Godhead, by which he may meane Gods residence or presence in the Sanctuary in grace and power, the truth and realitie whereof is in Christ.

V. 10. Ye are] by vertue of your spirituall union with him, you participate according to your measure of all his gifts and graces. Of all] of all angels, Rom. 8. 38. which seems to be added, because the seducers taught that they should through humility worship angels, vers. 18. Now the Apostle saith, that it is impious to joyn with Christ, as companions in his glory, those whose soveraign Lord he is, and a thing undecent for beleevers to humble themselves to servants, being united to the Lord.

V. 11. In whom] by the same reason of the union with Christ, he also rejects the Jewish Ceremonies, as saying, Ye have in Christ the effect and reality of that whereof circumcision was but a signe; namely, the true regeneration in Spirit, and therefore it is an absurd thing to turn after figures, when you possesse the thing it self. The body] namely, the whole masse of sin, which hath as it were its parts and members in severall wicked operations, see Rom. 6. 6. Colos. 3. 5. By the circumcision] namely, by vertue of the gift of regeneration, which is the spirituall circumcision, whereof Christ is the onely worker.

V. 12. Buried] to shew that circumcision could be used no more for a Sacrament to be applied to that gift as it was before; he saith that Baptisme hath bin substituted in stead of that and for that use. With him] see upon Rom. 6. 3, 4. Through the faith] by which Christ, who is risen again, by the power of God for our justification, is made ours, and works in us the spirituall resurrection from sins to the likenesse of his resurrection.

V. 13. The uncircumcision] namely, in your naturall corruption, signified by the uncircumcision which was cut off in the circumcision.

V. 14. Blotting out] the law was the hand-writing, the use of the Ceremonies was the ratification and confession of the debt, Christs blood is the satisfaction by which the hand-writing is cancelled, and all the seals and signes taken away. Of Ordinances] that is to say, as it appeared by the Mosaicall Ceremonies, which (out of Christ) testifie that a man is guilty and worthy of death, seeing that all the use of them had a relation to the purifying of uncleanesse and satisfaction for guilt, see Ephes. 2. 15. Nayling it] annihilating and taking away all the power of it, as if that by him and in him the Law had been fastned and nailed to the crosse, Ephes. 2. 16.

V. 15. Spoiled] taken away from the devill the unjust prey of so many soules, dispossessed him of his tyranny, and confounded and scorned his boldnesse; termes taken from victorious and triumphant captains. Powers] see upon Ephes. 6. 12. In it] the Italian, in him; namely, in Christ crucified. Others, in it; namely, in the crosse. Others, in himself.

V. 16. Let no man] seeing that by Christs death all that was figured by the Ceremonies is fulfilled, and that therefore the use of them is disannulled, let no man attempt to impose Laws upon your consciences concerning them, to condemn you if you do not observe them.

V. 17. A shadow] namely, signes and transitory figures. The body] namely, the substance and spirituall reality of all these mysteries opposite to ancient Ceremonies, as the body is to the shadow.

V. 18. Let no man] suffer no man to usurpe that power over your consciences as to command them, and declare them guilty in these things. Others, let no man get away the goale from you, or the reward due to him that overcommeth at wrestling or running; that is to say, Let him not hinder nor disturbe you in the course of your vocation, so that you may not obtain the reward of everlasting life, see Gal. 5. 7. Philip. 3. 14. Humility] namely, a false and vain humility, used by false Doctors, under a pretence of calling upon Angels as Mediators between God and men, when as Christ is the onely Mediatour. Intruding] rashly undertaking to establish new Doctrines and Laws concerning the service of God, beyond that which is revealed concerning it in his word, 1 Cor. 4. 6. Peradventure he hath a relation to their curious and bold assertions, which they had concerning the offices and degrees of Angels. By his fleshly] namely, by his carnall and corrupt understanding.

V. 19. The head] namely of the Church, which is Christ alone: see the Exposition of all this upon Ephes. 4. 15, 16. Having nourishment] the Italian, being furnished; namely, with life, vigour, nourishment, and all other good things, without desiring any part thereof from Angels, or any other creatures. Knit together] namely, gathered together and united in Spirit, which also seems specified to confute the false doctrine of seducers; namely, that Angels are means of a conjunction between God and men, and between men themselves. Of God] namely, that true spirituall and divine increase whereof God is the Author, in his beleevers, in Christ, and by his Spirit, whereby they come neerest to God, see Ephes 3. 19.

V. 20. If ye be dead] namely, by vertue of your spirituall conjunction with Christ, participating of the benefits of his death to redemption, and the resemblance thereof in the mortifying of sinne:

which are the rare accomplishments of all ancient Ceremonies, the use whereof is also disannulled. Rudiments] the Italian, Elements; see upon Gal. 4. 3. 9. Living in] as though you were yet in the Schoole of these earthly and bodily figures and Ceremonies, wherein under the Gospell you live as it were in heaven, in life, liberty, and power of the Spirit, see Phil. 3. 20. So is the word World used, Gal. 4. 3. 9. Heb. 9. 1.

V. 22. Which all] namely, which Ordinances consist in outward and corruptible things, and of themselves can neither defile nor sanctifie: and the significant vertue which they had under the Law is now utterly disannulled, see Mat. 15. 11, 17. Rom. 14. 17. 1 Cor. 6. 13. Heb. 9. 9. Of men] who of their own authority would re-establish the use of these things, which the Lord hath taken away by his Gospell.

V. 23. Will-worship] namely, Gods service arbitrarily appointed, or with a good intent and will, but without any command or approbation from God. In any honour] namely, these observances of these false teachers, do not aime at the abstaining from fornication and luxurie, wherein consists the true honour and holinesse of the body, Rom. 1. 24, 26. 2 Cor. 6. 18. Thess. 4. 4. but at the abstaining from meats, which are things indifferent, and can neither defile nor sanctifie, see Mat. 15. 11. 1 Cor. 6. 13. To the satisfying] namely, in abstinences and distinctions of meats.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. Seek] endeavour to live the spirituall and Angelicall life, elevating your hearts and minden towards Heaven, after your spirituall resurrection and imitation of Christ, setling no more your affection, nor any opinion of holinesse, upon earthly things.

V. 2. Set your affection upon] the Italian, think upon; See Rom. 8. 5.

V. 3. Dead] namely, with Christ, not onely to sinne, by being freed from it, and by having no more commerce with it, but likewise to the ceremonies of the Law, Col. 2. 20. Your life] you are already made living in Christ in the participation of Gods grace, and in the communion of his Spirit: but yet the perfect state of spirituall life, in the full fruition thereof is not appeared, nor the glorious manifestation thereof: all that is yet in safe custody with God in Christs person. Strive therefore to attaine to that Soveraigne end, by a continuall exercise of holinesse, Phil. 3. 12, 14.

V. 4. Who is our] namely, in the communion of whose Spirit you subsist in this state of spirituall life, whereof Christ is as it were the root and spring, which gives and preserves it.

V. 5. Your members] namely, all the affections, motions, and concupiscences of carnall nature, whereof is composed all that masse of vice, which is called the body of sinne, Rom. 6. 6. Col. 2. 11. Or by members he meanes all the vicious actions of the body, Rom. 8. 13.

V. 6. The children] see upon Eph. 2. 2. & 5. 6.

V. 7. Walked] that is to say, which you sometimes practised. Ye lived] when you see all your heart, and delight in them, and were wholly given to them as men in whom sin raigneth.

V. 10. Which is renewed] the renewing of which is not fulfilled in an instant, but goeth forward by degrees in holinesse; according as the lively enlightening of the Holy Ghost encreaseth, by means whereof, all the remainder of the worke of regeneration is accomplished, Rom. 12. 2. 2 Cor. 3. 18. Eph. 4. 23.

V. 11. Where there is] in which worke of sanctification, all these regards, conditions, and qualities, doe neither availe, nor hurt. And God in producing of it hath no respect unto them. But Christ] Christ alone apprehended by faith, for the remission of sinnes, is the onely spring, and cause of all good and salvation, to all believers; and living and working in them by his Spirit to regeneration.

V. 14. Above all these] the Italian, instead of all these, to the end that you may worke all these particular things: Get you a habit of charity, which is the root of all these vertues. The bond] namely, the only meanes of a true and perfect union, which ought to be between believers, above all humane conjunctions, and which containeth perfectly in it selfe all the duties whereby men are joyned with God, and one with the other.

V. 15. Of God] namely, that holy tranquillity in your Spirits, and that spirituall concord, which God requires, and creates in his believers. Rule] namely, governe and temper all your affections, so that they may all yeeld and have a relation thereunto. In one body] namely, in the communion of the Church, which is Christs body. Thankfull] for the benefits received from God and men.

V. 16. Let the word] namely, the doctrine of the Gospell, have a firme seate in your hearts, and in the middest of your Church: and as the soule dwels in the body to preserve it alive, to cause it to grow, and operate by it: So let this active truth be in you, in abundant fruits of good workes. With grace] in a godly gracious manner, which may allure and edifie the hearers. See Luke 2. 52. Acts 2. 47. Ephes. 4. 29. Colos. 4. 5. In your hearts] by a lively feeling of the soule, and not with the lips onely.

V. 17. In the name] calling upon his holy Name, and according to his command and to his honour and service.

V. 18. In the Lord] namely, as it is fitting for women that are in Christs communion as members of of his Church. Or according to his commandement. Or in reſpect and by vertue of him.

V. 20. In all things] which belong to the right of parents, and wherunto children are lawfully bound Ephe. 5. 24.

V. 21. Leſt they be] leſt they put off all manner of affection, and deſire of being thankfull to you. Deſpairing through your immoderate rigor of obtaining your good wils. Or leſt they loſe all joy of heart, and ſo run into precipitate reſolutions.

V. 22. In all things] as v. 20. According to the] namely, your corporall and worldly maſters. As Eph. 6. 5. Eye ſervice] See upon Eph. 6. 6.

V. 24. Of the inheritance] namely, the heavenly inheritance: which though beleevers doe obtaine meerely by vertue of their adoption, yet it is promiſed unto them likewiſe by the name of reward, and guerdon for to incite them to doe well. The Lord] who being the Soveraigne Lord of all, giveth and appointeth to every one his vocation, and thereby exerciſeth his command in the world.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. EQuall] that is to ſay, all enterchangeable duties of maſters to ſervants.

V. 2. Watch] being alwaies attentive, and ready, and fittingly prepared to preſent them unto him.

V. 3. Unto us] as to other Apoſtles and Evangeliſts who are not priſoners as I am. A dore] namely, that he will give us opportunity, and occaſion to preach his Word being at libertie.

V. 5. Without] namely, infidels, and thoſe that are ſtrangers to the Church, to give them no cauſe of offence, or of hating, perſecuting, and ſlandering the Church, but rather to gaine them to you, and edifie you.

V. 6. With grace] with holie and ſpirituall mildeneſſe, and in a fitting manner. With Salt] namely, with wiſedome and diſcretion, or with good underſtanding, which may excite and pleaſe the taſte of the hearers. See Marke 9. 50.

V. 7. In the Lord] in his worke, or in the communion of his myſticall body.

V. 9. Onesimus] ſome thinke it is the ſame, as is ſpoken of Philem. 10.

V. 11. Of the] that are Jewes, converted to Chriſtianity. Theſe only are] Or mine onely worke-companions. In Gods Kingdome, which have been, &c. That is to ſay, thoſe that are with me, and are worthie workmen. The Kingdome] namely, in preaching the Goſpell, by which God gathers together and governes his Church, and diſtributeth his everlaſting goods.

V. 12. Labouring fervently] the Italian, fighting; aſſiſting you in your troubles and oppoſitions, with his fervent prayers to God. Perfect] being no longer children, but of full age in ſtrength and underſtanding, to know and performe the will of God. See Matth. 5. 48. 1 Cor. 14. 20.

V. 13. Laodicea] theſe two Cities were neere Coloſſe, Col. 2. 1.

16. From Laodicea] it may be underſtood of ſome Epiſtle that the Apoſtle writ to the Laodiceans, which was to be communicated to the Coloſſians, and is now loſt, like divers more, 1 Cor. 5. 9. Phil. 3. 1. yet without any diminution of the perfection of holy Scripture, which conſiſts not in a certaine number of bookes, but in the full revelation of all the doctrine which is neceſſary to ſalvation: and queſtionleſſe hath in other places, the ſame doctrines as were contained in thoſe Epiſtles which are loſt.

V. 17. In the Lord] namely, in his worke and ſervice. Or looke to the degree of ſervice, which thou holdeſt in the communion of his body.

V. 18. Remember] that you may aſſiſt me with your prayers, to confirme you in the faith by mine example; and to give me occaſion of comfort, by your perſeverance and other vertues. Grace] namely, the grace of God in Chriſt.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF S. PAUL the Apoſtle to the THESSALONIANS.

ARGUMENT.

Saint Paul, as Saint Luke reports, Acts 17. had by his preaching converted divers of the Jewes, and many Gentiles in Theſſalonica, a City of Macedonia: But by reaſon of the violent perſecution which was there ſtirred up againſt him by the Jewes, he was conſtrained ſuddenly to depart from thence. Whereupon having a little while afterwards heard, how how that poore infant Church was grievouſly moleſted through perſecutions. He had ſent Timothie to them from Athens to ſtrengthen it, and encourage it to perſevere: and having heard from him of the happy and laudable ſtate it was in, he writes this Epiſtle to it. Wherein at the very firſt, he gives God thankes, and praiſeth the Theſſalonians for their readineſſe and alacrity in receiving the Goſpell; and for their faith, charity, and patience in the profeſſion of it; according as he had taught and preached it to them, with all loyalty, ſtudy, efficacy, and hearty affection. Then he comforteth them in their afflictions by Chriſts example, and by his owne, and that of the Churches of Judea. And tels them, that being hindered from performing his hearty and fervent deſire in viſiting them, he had ſent Timothie unto them, by whoſe relation he had been ſingularly comforted. And againe, gives God thankes, praying him to encreaſe their gifts, and to confirme them unto the end. Then he exhorteth them to holineſſe, charity, and peace, and to beſtow their times in laudable exerciſes, and to forbeare lamenting and grieving exceſſively for the dead. And to comfort themſelves in the aſſured hope of a bleſſed reſurrection, the manner of which he ſets downe, teaching, how that though the time of Chriſts comming to judgement be hidden, yet it ought hourely to be expected with watchfulneſſe and holy preparation, and at laſt, after divers holy exhortations, he ſalutes and bleſſeth them.

CHAP. I.

VER. 1. Silvanus] ſome hold it was the ſame as is called Silas in the Acts of the Apoſtles. Which is] which through faith in Chriſt is in Gods grace and covenant, and is engrafted amongſt his true people.

V. 3. Your worke] namely, the fruits and effects of your lively and working faith, not of a dead and idle faith, Gal. 5. 6. Jam. 2. 17. Labour] namely, the duties of true charity, performed by you, not ſparing your ſelves in troubleſome and dangerous times and occaſions. Patience] namely, your voluntary and conſtant patience in the croſſe, which is maintained by the certaine hopes of everlaſting goods, which are promiſed for it. See 2 Cor. 4. 17, 18. In the ſight] namely, every time that we preſent our ſelves before God, to pray unto him. Or I ſpeake truely as in the preſence of God, 2 Cor. 12. 19. Gal. 1. 20. Or this is added to ſhew the truth and ſincerity of theſe vertues in the Theſſalonians.

V. 4. Knowing] finding and knowing that you are Gods true elect, by this certaine proofe, namely, that the holy Ghoſt hath imprinted in your hearts the Goſpell which I have preached to you, and hath engendered a lively faith in you.

V. 5. In power] with a divine efficacy of the holy Ghoſt.

V. 8. Sounded out] the fame thereof hath by your meanes been ſpread over all the neighbouring Provinces.

V. 9. They themſelves] namely, the believers ſcattered all the world over. What manner of] how our perſons and our miniſtery have been received by you, and how Gods word hath taken place amongſt you.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. In vaine] unprofitable, and fruitleſſe, as it would have been, if we had, for feare of perſecutions, forborne to Evangelize unto you.

V. 2. In our God] namely, truſting in his aſſiſtance and vertue. Contention] namely, oppoſitions, perſecutions, and cares.

V. 3. Uncleannеſſe] namely, from any infamous or vitious affection; as from ſordid avarice, infamous flattery, or diſhoneſt dealing. See 2 Cor. 6. 6. & 7. 1.

V. 4. To be put in truſt] as faithfull Stewards.

V. 5. A cloake] or a pretence, that is to ſay hidden and diſſembled waies, to worke our owne gaine and profit.

V. 6. Burthenſome] taking of you ſuch things as we have need of, which we have not done, vers. 9. 2 Cor. 12. 13.

V. 13. Worketh] bringing forth in you all manner of Chriſtian vertues, and eſpecially conſtancy in ſuffering afflictions for the Goſpell.

V. 14. In Chriſt] that is to ſay Chriſtian, and by faith in Chriſt engrafted into the Church, which is his owne body. As they have] namely, the beleeving Jewes.

V. 16. Fill up] the Italian addeth, fill up the meaſure; namely, ſo full as Gods patience hath limited it ſhould be filled. See Gen. 15. 16 The wrath] as Gods judgement hath been extreamely provoked by them, ſo is it fully fallen upon them. See Job 36. 17.

V. 17. Taking from you] as a father from his children. The more] this ſhort abſence hath not one whit leſſened mine affection, but rather enflamed and encreaſed it.

19. For what] have not I cauſe to love you thus dearely, dearly, ſeeing your converſion is ſuch an excellent fruit of my miniſterie, by which it hath been made glorious; and hope beſides my preſent joy, to be therefore crowned with everlaſting glorie at Chriſts comming? Even ye] As well as other Churches which have been founded and taught by me.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. For bear] Endure the diſcomfort of your abſence, and the deſire I have to ſee you. Were left] It is likely that this hath a relation to what is ſpoken, Acts 17.15. and that after Timothie was come back to the Apoſtle in Athens, he ſent him backe to Theſſalonica.

V.2. Timotheus] to ſupplie in part by him, what we could not performe by our preſence.

V.3. Appointed] And placed by Gods vocation, to be conformable to Chriſt, as well in afflictions as in glorie, *Rom.*8.17.28. A terme taken from ſouldiers that are ſentinels in their watch-houſe, and to other duties belonging to martial diſcipline.

V.8. We live] notwithſtanding all our miſeries, and death which is preſent before us, we are ſafe and ſound, and very chearfull if that ye ſtand firme and ſound in your faith in Chriſt.

V.9. For what] this ſo happeneth unto us, becauſe God gives us in you incomparable cauſe of joy and comfort, for which we cannot thanke him ſufficiently. Before our] that is to ſay, ſpiritually, or with a hearty joy, of which he is a witneſſe, or acknowledging the cauſe thereof to proceed from him onely, and giving him thankes therefore.

V.10. Perfect] Inſtruct and confirme you more fully in Chriſtian doctrine and finiſh the eſtabliſhment of your Church, which ſhortneſſe of time would not ſuffer me to do at my firſt comming.

V.13. Eſtabliſh] that by meanes of the gift of charitie, which is the ſpring of all good workes, you may perſevere in true holineſſe approved by God without any voluntary offence or malice. At the comming] that you may be known to be ſuch by Chriſt himſelfe at the laſt judgement, or untill his comming. With all his] this may have a relation either to the eſtabliſhment in holineſſe in the communion of all believers, as Epheſ. 3. 18. Col. 3,4. or to the laſt comming of Chriſt, accompanied with his holy Angels, *Zech.*14.5. *Matth.*25.31. Jude 14.

CHAP. IV.

VER. 1. BY the Lord] the Italian, in the Lord; in his behalfe, in his name, for the love of him.

V.4. His veſſell] namely, his bodie, in which his ſoul lodgeth, and which is the inſtrument of the operations of it, eſpecially in Gods ſervice, as a veſſell of his Temple. And honour] See upon Col. 2.23.

V.6. In any matter] the Italian, In the affaires of this life; As to contaminate by fornication, perſons who are allied or belonging to others, as wife, or daughter, &c:

V.8. Given unto us] the Italian, put in us; Hath endowed us Apoſtles with the light and conduct of his Spirit, in ſuch meaſure as we do teach Gods truth moſt purely, and certainly.

V.9. Are taught] not onely inlightened, but alſo inwardly moved and framed thereunto by his Spirit.

V.10. Which are in] the charitie which is amongſt you, appeares ſufficiently by that you ſhew towards other believers, who are out of your Citie and Church.

V.11. Your own buſineſſe] Every one according to his calling, without medling with importunitie, or curioſitie with other mens buſineſſe, 1 *Pet.*4.15. With your own] under theſe manual Arts are comprehended all lawfull callings and exerciſes.

V.12. Honeſtly] ſhunning idleneſſe, which leades a man to vices, or brings him to diſhoneſt beggerie. That are without] namely, unbeleivers and ſuch as are ſtrangers to the Church. Of nothing] or of any one, and that through your own ſloath, you be not driven to look for relief of other men.

V.13. Are aſleep] that is to ſay, are dead in hope of a bleſſed Reſurrection, an ordinary terme in Scripture. No hope] of everlaſting life.

V.14. In Jeſus] the Greek terme ſignifies the manner of dying well, as who ſhould ſay, who by Jeſus Chriſt, namely, by faith, and by calling upon his name, have paſſed to death. Will God] that is to ſay, we muſt know and believe that God will bring into that heavenly glorie which his ſon poſſeſſeth, thoſe that ſhall die in his faith.

V.15. By the word] namely, by eſpeciall revelation of God. See 1 Kings 13.17,18. and 20.35. We which are alive] namely, thoſe who ſhall then be alive, as we are now, who ought each moment to expect Chriſt. See 1 *Cor.*15.51,52. Shall not] that is to ſay, ſhall have no advantage above them, but as one ſhould ſay, the dead ſhal have advantage above thoſe which are alive, being they ſhall riſe from the dead before the qualitie of the others be changed, to enter into everlaſting life.

V.16. A ſhout] the Greek word ſignifies ſuch kindes of ſhouts or watch-words as men that row, or vintage-men do uſe to encourage or call upon one another.

V.17. Caught up] After we have been both in ſoul and bodie endowed with ſuch qualities as are fitting for everlaſting life, as amongſt the reſt with agilitie of bodies. See 1 *Cor.*15.52.

CHAP. V.

VER. 1. Ye have no need] Take heed of presuming to be so bold as to enquire concerning the prefixed time of Christs comming to judgement.

V. 2. Know] namely, by the Lords words, which have often been spoken over again by the Apostles. See Matth. 24. 43. As a thief] that is to say, unlooked for, not but that many signes and tokens shall be seen before his comming, Matth. 24. 30, 31. but yet none shall be able to set down the prefixed day or moment.

V. 3. Shall say] namely, worldly men.

V. 4. In darkenesse] of ignorance or blindnesse of sinne.

V. 6. Let us not sleep] through carelessnesse, slacking, or giving over doing acts of pietie, being lulled asleep by worldly delights, cares, and pleasures.

V. 9. Appointed us] He hath not by his immutable decree excluded us from his grace, and given us over to the state of sin and natural corruption, to punish it according to the rigour of his justice.

V. 10. Wake, &c.] these words may be understood either in their own proper sense, or figuratively, for living or dying.

V. 11. Comfort your selves] or exhort one another.

V. 12. To know] to judge well and worthily of them, which is the first degree of honour. Which labour] in the holy ministerie. In the Lord] by his commission and authoritie in his Name, in the service of his Church, keeping within the bounds of his will, and of their own vocation.

V. 18. For this is] As God through his grace in Christ worketh all things to be for your good and salvation, Rom. 8. 28. So he will have you give him thankes for all things, as benefits bestowed upon you.

V. 19. Quench not] do not you suffer through rebellion, impurity, ingratitude, negligence, or contempt, the gift of the spirit of grace, which worketh in you in light of faith, and knowledge, and in fire of power, to depart or to be abolished in you, but preserve it, nourish it, and make use of it. See Matth. 25. 8. A similitude taken from the fire of the Altar, which was to be kept continually alive and burning.

V. 20. Prophesyings] the Italian, profetie, namely, the writings of the Prophets in the old Testament, or the ordinary expositions which are made in the Church, by a singular gift of the Spirit. See Rom. 12. 6. 1 Cor. 14. 1. 6. 29.

V. 21. All things] namely, all the doctrines, opinions, actions, and examples which every believer is bound to examine by the light of the Holy Ghost, according to the rule of Gods Word.

V. 23. Spirit] by his Word here differing from the soul, he meanes either the gift of Gods Spirit, and the spiritual part of a regenerate man, or the understanding, and minde, and by the soul, only the meer animal part.

V. 24. That calleth you] namely, God who hath begun his worke in you, calling you effectually to the participation of his Gospel, is loyall and constant in keeping of his promises which he hath made to those that answer to his call, to bring them to the last period and end of it.

V. 27. I charge you] For these Epistles written by the Apostles were directed to the college of Pastours, by whom they were afterwards read in the publike Assemblies of the Church, and expounded by the Prophets or other Pastours, being laid up, and kept in the Churches treasurie of records.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF St. Paul the Apostle to the THESSALONIANS.

ARGUMENT.

This Epistle is almost of the same subject as the former: for the Apostle having not yet had libertie to visit the Thessalonians, writes this second Epistle unto them, to confirme, exhort, and correct them; and first he commends their faith, charitie, constancie, and patience in persecutions: and strengthens them, praying to God that he will be pleased to accomplish his worke in them: then afterwards upon occasion of a certain opinion which was grown up amongst them, that Christs last coming was at hand, whereupon there grew great disorders in the Church, he declares unto them that that it was falſe, for before that time Antichriſt was to come, whoſe kingdom, peſtilent doctrine, falſe miracles, apoſtaſie, great number of followers, and finall deſtruction he ſets down, encouraging notwithſtanding the Theſſalonians againſt the terrour of this horrible danger, by their well-eſtabliſhed election and vocation, and at the laſt he reproves ſome of them who lived diſorderly and idlely, commanding the Theſſalonians to ſeparate them from the communion of Chriſt, in caſe they ſhewed themſelves diſobedient, untill ſuch time, as they ſhould come to true repentance.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 4. Glorie in you] As in an excellent fruit of our miniſterie.

V. 5. Which is] that is to ſay, which perſecutions for the Name of Chriſt are aſſured and certain Arguments unto you, that God the juſt Judge will give you the reward, and reſt for it in his Kingdom; and to your enemies, on the other ſide eternall puniſhments. Worthy] that is to ſay, conveniently qualified to enter into the poſſeſſion thereof, according to Gods order: that he that muſt be like unto Chriſt in his crowne and glory, muſt alſo be like him firſt in combats and troubles. See Rom. 8. 17. 2 Tim. 2. 11.

V. 7. With his mighty Angels] the Italian, with the Angels of his might; namely, his Miniſters to execute his Almighty power. Or, by whom he is encompaſſed in his glorie and Majeſtie.

V. 9. From the preſence] being condemned by Chriſt himſelfe, who ſhall then appeare in glory and ſoveraigne power.

V. 10. To be glorified] to manifeſt the glorious effects of his promiſes, and of his infinite power, in bringing of his, to his heavenly glory, notwithſtanding all the oppoſitions of their enemies, to be eternally glorified and praiſed in them, and by them. Becauſe] we muſt ſuppoſe amongſt which number I ſurely place you, by reaſon of the credit which you have given to my preaching. Our teſtimony, namely, our preaching, whereby we have truely related and confirmed Gods truth.

V. 11. Of this] namelie, of this laſt ſigne, accompliſhment, and reward of your heavenly calling, by meanes of your perſeverance.

V. 12. In you] as in a mirrour, and ſubject of the manifeſtation of his ſoveraigne power. In him] as in the cauſe, ſpring, and foundation of all your glory.

CHAP. II.

Verſ. 1. BY the comming] as you doe aſſuredly looke for him; and as you deſire that he may appeare to your glory, and that he may gather his whole Church into his Kingdome.

V. 2. In mind] the Italian, from the mind; namely, from your wiſe and ſeiled judgement, and from your quietneſſe of ſpirit; either by ſtraying from things revealed in Gods Word, or by curious enquiring after thoſe ſecret times, which are not revealed. By Spirit] namely, by any doctrine or opinion, raiſed under a falſe pretence of inſpiration of the holy Ghoſt. 1 Cor. 12. 10. 1 John 4. 1, 2. Is at hand] believers are indeed warned to watch continually, as neither knowing the day nor the houre of Chriſts comming, Matth. 24. 42. & 25. 13. Rom. 13. 11, 12. Jam. 5. 8. 1 Pet. 4. 7. but the Apoſtle doth here condemn certain determinations of approaching times; by which mens minds were troubled and drawne away from their callings. And the Goſpel ſlandered; when they were diſapproved by a contrarie event.

V. 3. A falling away] namely, that great and generall revolt of the outward Church, from the faith and profeſſion of the pure truth of the Goſpell. Be revealed] namely, that untill Antichriſt be riſen, and publiquely appeared and exerciſed his tyrannie and wickednelſe, whoſe ſinne is in the higheſt degree; becauſe he is not onely a diſloyall ſervant and open enemie, but alſo an uſurper of the Sonne of Gods Empire. This Name is taken from the name which the Jewes gave to Antiochus. The Sonne of] namelie, he that is condemned to everlaſting perdition, Rev. 19. 20. ſee John 17. 12.

V. 4. Who oppoſeth] the Italian, that adverſary, that great and deadly enemy of Chriſt, and of his truth, and Church. Above] or againſt. This is alſo ſpoken of the reſemblance between Antichriſt and Antiochus, Dan. 11. 36. who did not diſanull all manner of religion, but would onely allow of that which he himſelfe had eſtabliſhed; and Antichriſt was to doe the like. All that is] not onely above the true God, but above Kings, Potentates, and others, to whom the name of God is attributed, for ſome reſemblance, ſee John 10. 34, 35. Sitteth] that is to ſay, raigneth, and commands: this circumſtance is taken from what is ſpoken of the King of Tire, Ezek. 28. 2. In the Temple] namelie, in the middeſt of that aſſemblie, which hath before been the true ſpirituall Temple of God, namelie, his Church: and ſhall yet beare the name, and the markes of it: but with much corruption. See 2 Cor. 6. 16. 1 Tim. 3. 15. Shewing] having made himſelfe abſolute Lord of conſciences, and bringing all things under his obedience, and working them to his owne advantages, not directing them to God alone in Chriſt, by the pure preaching of his truth. That he is] by uſurpation; if not of the outward name, yet at the leaſt of Gods incommunicable qualities, properties, rights, and preheminences.

V. 5. I told you] by a propheticke ſpirit, and divine revelation.

V. 6. Ye know] by that I told you by word of mouth. What Withholdeth] namely, what hindereth and keepes it backe at this preſent time, untill the time which God hath prefixed. According to the opinion of the moſt ancient Doctors of the Church, we muſt underſtand it to be the Roman Empire, whoſe ſubſiſtencie ſtayed the manifeſtation of Antichriſt, he being to build his tyrannie upon the ruines thereof, Revel. 13.1.11. & 17. 9, 10, 11. and therefore the Chriſtians in former times praied for the laſting of the Roman Empire, though it was moſt cruell, becauſe after that they looked for a worſe.

V. 7. For] he gives a reaſon, why he ſaid that it was kept backe: for even in thoſe daies the Apoſtle ſaw in Spirit the firſt roots and foundations of the kingdome of Antichriſt growing up, which notwithſtanding he doth not ſpecifie; peradventure he meanes the exceſſe of reverence given to the great City, even in things belonging to Chriſtianitie, which in time would grow on to meere idolatrie, and ſlavery, See 1 John 4.3. The myſtery] namely, that great deſigne and wicked worke of uſurping Chriſts dignities over his Church, under the maske of piety and Chriſtian Religion, Rev. 13.11. and 17.5.7. yet quite contrary to the Goſpell, which is the true myſterie of pietie, 1 Tim. 3.16 Worke] it begins to frame and inſinuate it ſelfe into the ſpirits and minds of men. He who] namely, untill that the Roman Empire ſucceſſively held by particular perſons, doe fall to decay. It being evident, that the degrees of the falling of the one, have been the degrees of the exaltation and eſtabliſhment of the other.

V. 8. Shall conſume] by the efficacie of his truth, he ſhall overthrow the falſhoods, cunnings and practiſes thereof, and ſhall give it a deadly and incurable wound, which ſeemes to have a relation to what is ſpoken, Rev. 14.6,7,8. Shall deſtroy] of this is ſpoken, Rev. 18.2,3,&c. With the brightneſſe] the Italian, by the appearing; ſeeing that by Rev. 18. and 19. it appeares that there muſt be a long time between the ruine of the ſpirituall Babylon, and the laſt comming of Chriſt. It ſeemes that in this place is meant a powerfull, extraordinary, and moſt cleare operation of God, according to the ſtile of the Prophets.

V. 9. Whoſe comming, Antichriſt ſhall inſtall himſelfe, and gaine authoritie and credit chiefely by miracles wrought by the divels meanes, to confirme his falſe doctrines, and worſhips. Power] namely, high and tranſcendent miracles. Lying wonders] that is to ſay, diabolicall illuſions: Or ſuch effects, as are beyond human, but not evangelicall power. Whereas, to be a true miracle, the worke ought as well in ſubſtance, as in the manner of doing it, exceed the power, and manner of working of any created nature. And therefore all ſuch miracles are falſe, eſpecially becauſe their aime is to authorize a falſe doctrine and worſhip.

V. 10. Of unrighteouſneſſe] proceeding from a wicked deſigne or inducing men to rebell againſt God: In them] it ſhall not worke but only upon the reprobates, 2 Cor. 2.15, & 4.3. and ſhall not take effect upon the elect, Matth. 24.24. 2 Tim. 2.18,19. Rev. 9.4. & 13. 8.

V. 11. Shall ſend them] by his juſt judgement, upon their wilfull and hardned incredulity, he will take away the light and wholſome judgement of his Spirit from them, whereby the cunning and deceits of Antichriſt ſhall infallible have power to perſwade and captivate them, See 1 Kings 22.22. Ioh 12, 16. Ezek. 14.9.

V. 13. From the beginning] that is to ſay, from everlaſting, before the world was, Epheſ 1.4. See Jude 1.1. Through ſanctification] hereby is ſignified the order of ſecondary cauſes, and of the means of the accompliſhment of the everlaſting counſell of Gods election. Which order God hath eſtabliſhed, and executed in his elect, See upon 1 Pet. 1.2.

V. 14. Of the glory] namely, of the life of glory, which Chriſt having acquired, doth, as head, communicate to all his members, See John 17.22.

V. 15. The traditions] the Italian, the inſtructions; Greeke, the traditions, See upon Matth. 15.2.

V. 16. Through grace] the Italian, in grace; namely, wholly founded upon his grace and fatherly good will. Or, by the communication of his grace, which doth at this time comfort us, and giveth us aſſured hope of everlaſting happineſſe.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. Have free courſe] that it may ſpread and enlarge it ſelfe throughout the world without any let Be glorified] that it may bring forth its admirable effects, in the converting of Nations, &c. Or, that it may be known in its divine Majeſtie, to have obedience of beliefe given to it. Or, that it may be honoured by their converſation who make profeſſion of it.

V. 2. Unreaſonable] the Italian, inſolent; the Greek word ſignifieth, men of evill converſation. And it ſeems that here are meant, bold, and encouraged enemies of the Goſpell, as Jewes, heretickes, &c. For] we ought to ſuppoſe. Whereof there will be many in the world: for the preaching of the Goſpell doth not finde obedience of beliefe in all men: And in unbeleevers it doth ſtirre up contrary moti-motions, of impiety, rebellion, and opposition.

V. 3. Stablish you] in faith, and all good things, against the divels snares and plots.

V. 4. In the Lord] namely, by meanes of his grace and power.

V. 5. The patient] or to patience in Christ, that is to say, a truely Christian patience.

V. 6. In the name] from him, and by his authority. To withdraw] not to breake the conjunction of bond and necessitie: but to abstaine from all voluntary, open, and pleasing conversation, and communication, which sheweth a delight, or likenesse of behaviour; and nourisheth and fomenteth vice: and and brings danger of contagion, contrarie to the dutie of all believers: as well towards themselves which is to abstaine from all evill, as towards their neighbours, which is to correct them and direct them to goodnesse.

V. 11. For we] we must supply, I give you warning of this, because that we, &c. Busie bodies] or that live curiously, busying themselves with other mens businesses to carrie tales, or tell news, Act. 17. 21. 1 Tim. 5. 13.

V. 12. By our Lord] that is to say, in his name, by his command. Or, as they desire to doe any thing that is pleasing to him.

V. 14. Have no company] by conversing familiarly with him. Vers. 6. Or by any Ecclesiasticall communion, which must be forbidden him, untill he be amended.

V. 15. Count him not] let this severitie be grounded upon charity, and be used with wilsdome for the sinners amendment, whose vice is to be hated but his person beloved, and endeavoured to be saved.

V. 16. Of Peace] namely, the Authour and approver of holy concord, amongst such as are his.

V. 17. So I write] this may have a relation to the former words of this verse, written with the Apostles owne hand, which was well knowne to the Churches, that they might be markes of his true Epistles. Or, it may have a relation to the following verse.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF St. PAUL the Apostle to TIMOTHY.

ARGUMENT.

TImothy was the sonne of a Greek father, who was likewise a Proselite, and of a Iewish mother; who having learned the Christian faith, had brought up, and instructed this her sonne in it from his childhood; And both their pieties were so abundantly blessed by God, that Timothy in his youth was entertained by Saint Paul, who besides the large instructions which he gave him, did also obtaine the miraculous gift of the holy Ghost for him in knowledge, revelation, strength, and infallible conduct, to be made capable of the Office of Evangelist, which was not much inferiour to that of Apostle: and to supply Saint Pauls absence in divers Churches, which he had newly founded; which is noted to have been alwaies accompanied with a perfect confidence and fatherly love on the Apostles side; and with an entire fidelity, and humble reverence on Timothies side. Now amongst other occasions, in which he was imployed by the Apostle, he was left at Ephesus, where Saint Paul having planted a most noble Church, and being by his calling led away to preach elsewhere, he left Timothy there to make an end of ordering and establishing of it. And whilest he was executing of this charge, he writ this Epistle to him, to instruct, strengthen, and encourage him; and by his meanes to confirme that Church, in which the divell had already sowne much darnell of false doctrines, and curious questions, and especially by the meanes of false Christianized Iewes, perpetuall corrupters of the pureneſſe of the Gospell in those daies. The Apostle then at the first exhorteth them, to root out that evill seed of false doctrine, and to maintain the truth in its purity, and the Church in its unitie, touching some points necessary for the circumstance of those times and places: As of praying for all manner of persons, even for Kings and Princes. Of the decency and modestie of women in their clothing, and of their silence in holy Assemblies. But especially of qualities required of Bishops and other Ecclesiasticall persons. Then he proceedeth to foretell by divine inspiration the horrible corruptions which would befall the Church in insuing ages, as well in doctrine as in manners, exhorting Timothie to forewarn the Church, and cause it to beware of those accidents: giving him also divers particular instructions, as of sincerity and discretion in pastoral censures of abusing men for severall degrees of Ecclesiasticall Offices, of admonishing the rich, that they should not trust nor set their hearts upon riches, but employ them in charity and Christian communication; to redargue false Doctors and their avarice, and to endevour to persevere in all contrary vertues. Finally, this Epistle is a gathering together of Precepts necessary for Pastours, as well to preserve a good forme in the state of the Church in their times, as to leave it well established after them; and withall, to prepare themselves for greater combats, and strengthen them against dangerous scandals, until the end of the world.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 2. MY own] the Italian, my true; whom I have intrusted with a fatherly care in the faith of the Gospel, and who also conformeth himself to my precepts by a loyall profession and observancy, and by an enterchangeable affection and bond towards me, see 1 Cor. 4. 17.

V. 4. Fables] he seems to mean the Jews fabulous histories, which at the first were composed for allegories, and afterwards were beleeved to be true: whereunto that nation hath at all times been much given. Endlesse] whereof there can be no certain nor finall resolution had, as they have no certain foundation, and therefore are like Labirinths without any issue. Genealogies] it is likely that he taxes those curious and scrupulous searchings after Jewish Genealogies, and chiefly after those which concern Christs birth, about which there were great controversies in the Church; for Herod having burnt all the publike Records in which they were preserved, to extinguish all manner of proofs of Davids issue, many, either by tradition, or by their particular memories, did frame some with much uncertainty: And though Saint Matthew and Saint Luke had gathered what was certain thereof, yet these curious persons would not content themselves therewith. Then edifying] rather then instruction, confirmation, or advancement in the knowledge, love, and service of God, the onely foundation whereof is faith in Christ, contrary to all vain and ambiguous questions.

V. 5. The end] against these Jewish disputations, which bred controversies and divisions; the Apostle sheweth the true use of the Law in beleevers and regenerate men. A pure] namely, sanctified by the holy Ghost, by means of a lively faith in Christ.

V. 7. To be] that is to say, to seem so, and to be held for such.

V. 8. Lawfully] according to Gods order and intention, which is, that sinfull man might thereby learn lively to acknowledge his sin and condemnation, to flie unto the remedie of grace in Christ, Rom. 3. 20. and 7. 7. Gal. 3. 24. And that the regenerate man may take it for a rule of all his actions, a curbe to his will, and a guide to his life; and neither of them to found their righteousnesse or subsistencie before God upon it, nor the observation of it, which is in Christ alone.

V. 9. That the Law] he sheweth that contrary to the opinion of those false Doctors, the Law, as it is composed of so many threatnings, forbiddings, and other rigours, doth carry a certain proof with it of mans perversnesse; whereby it is evident, that he hath no naturall disposition, or voluntary inclination to fulfill it: for otherwise he would apply himselfe thereunto of his own proper motion, as beleevers, and those who are regenerate by Gods Spirit do, who having the habit of righteousnesse in themselves, as an inward and living Law, have no need of the terrour thereof, and also being justified in Christ, are freed from the curse of it: seeing that a Soveraigns sentence given in the behalfe of one, slayeth and endeth all Actions of the Law, which tend to accusing or condemning him. Lawlesse] he names certain grievous sins, not but that the Law condemns all others, even the least, but onely to reprove those hypocrites, who were so zealous of the Law and the righteousnesse thereof, and yet were stained with most horrible vices, see Rom. 1. 21, 22.

V. 10. Men-stealers] or plagiaries, namely, such as stole away or received other mens servants. Or bought and sold, or held for slaves such as were so from their Lords] the Italian, Like minded; the Greek word indeed signifieth plain liers; but because the other sins which are here mentioned are of a more grievous kinde; it seems that it must here be taken for such as lie in bearing witnesse, in swearing and publike acts, &c. To sound] namely, to the pure doctrine of the Gospel, which doth not derogate one whit from the rigour of the Law in condemning of sinne, but doth rather authorize and confirm it, Matth. 5. 19, 21. Rom 3. 3.

V. 11. The glorious Gospel] the Italian, To the Gospel of the glory; namely, the Gospel which is altogether glorious and divine, as well in speculation of truth, as in power and efficacy of Spirit, to discover and condemn sin, see 2 Cor. 3. 9, 18. and 4. 4. The end of the Apostle is, to shew that for this use of the Law to condemne wicked men, there was no need to recall the Law of Moses, and the discipline thereof, seeing the Gospell did fully perform that office; and he a true Apostle, more then the false Doctors his adversaries.

V. 12. Inable me] the Italian, strengthned me; that is to say, By whose power and vertue the Gospell worketh so powerfully. He counted me] that is to say, Hath honoured me with a charge, in which faithfulnesse is required above all things, which he knoweth to be in me because he gave it me, and preserves it in me by his grace, 2 Cor. 7. 25.

V. 13. Mercy] my sinne hath not been unremissible, as theirs that sin against the holy Ghost, sinning knowingly and wilfully against divine truth, which is known and sealed in the heart, Mat. 12. 31. Psal. 5. 4. and 10. 28. Ignorantly] by a false zeal without knowledge, see Acts 3. 17.

V. 14. With faith] he opposeth his faith to his former incredulity, and his love to his cruelnie, see 2 Tim. 1. 13. Which is in] this love of mine is spirituall, and an effect of my communion with Christ.

V. 15. Came into] that is to say, Hath taken humane flesh upon him.

V. 16. In me first] namely, before any of those who beleeved through his ministery, or soveraignly, and excellently.

V. 17. Onely wise] he seems to have an especiall relation to Gods providence, who had so miraculously brought to passe the work of his conversion.

V. 18 To the prophecies] they were speciall divine revelations inspired in the Prophets of those times, by which God signified unto his Church the calling of such and such persons to his ministery, as Acts 13. 2, 3. 1 Tim. 4. 14. By them] being by God and them assured of thy calling, and that his grace and blessing will accompany thee. Warre] that is to say, That like a souldier muttered under Christs banners, that mayest carry thy self faithfully and valiantly in thine office, and set upon and destroy the devils kingdom, and advance Christs.

V. 19. Faith] namely, sufficient knowledge, full assurance, and sincere profession of the truth of the Gospell. Which some] because they had a wicked will and heart God hath punished them, taking away the Spirit of light from them, that in the midst of the course of their vocation, they might lose their faith, and be drowned in errour and heresie.

V. 20. Delivered unto] see upon 1 Cor. 5. 5.

Chap. II.

Vers. 1. Therefore] following the exhortation of chap. 1. 18. of fighting the good spirituall warfare, wherein the chiefest action and weapon are prayer, let Gods 21. 13. Supplications] publike ones in the Church. For all men] without distinction of nation, estate, or condition.

V. 2. For Kings] this seemes to be specified, by reason of the erroneous opinion of some men, namely, that all civill order was prophane, and that Kings were as so many enemies to God, 2 Pet. 2. 10. Jude 8.

V. 4. Who will] by as much as appears to us by his will revealed in the Gospell, seeing he hath not by name excluded any nation or condition, Matth. 28. 19. though his secret will do make a distinction of his elect, Matth. 19. 30. Acts 13. 48. Rom. 9. 11. and 11. 7. 1 John 2. 19. All men] all manner of men, of all nations and qualities.

V. 5. For there is] the meaning is not, That the cause of this indifferency under the Gospell is the unity of God the creator and preserver of all things, and the unity of the Mediatour, for the same cause might likewise have been under the Law, for that depends upon Gods absolute will. But the meaning is plainly, That the time is now come, wherein as all men do participate of the title of being Gods creatures, and of the communion with Christs humane nature, so God will have them participate of his grace and of Christs benefit, without any distinction of Nation, or any outward qualities.

V. 6. Testified] namely, as he hath revealed this his Councell by the Gospell, which he will have preached and testified by his servants. In due time] the Italian, reserved by the proper termes; that is to say, which hath not been revealed in former times, but onely now, according to Gods decree.

V. 7. Whereunto] namely, to witnesse which.

In

In faith] namely, in the preaching of the doctrine of the Gospell, and teaching the way to apprehend it, which is faith; or loyall and true.

V. 8. I will] I do appoint it to be so by Apostolicall authority. That men] he means only males, whom he onely permits to speak in holy Assemblies, as well in publike prayers as other actions. Every where] and no more in the Temple of Jerusalem only, as they did formerly. Holy hands] praying with that Ceremonie as was used of holding up the hands, joyned with purity of conscience and works. Without wrath] see Matth. 5. 23. And doubting] the Greek word may be understood, either of contentions between men, or of doubts and irresolutions of the soule for want of faith; whereof the first hinders the exercise of prayer, 1 Pet. 3. 7. the other the effect, Jam. 1. 6.

V. 10. Which becommeth] the Italian, as becommeth. Others, but with good works, as becommeth men who professe piety.

V. 11. Learn] in Ecclesiasticall assemblies.

V. 12. Authority] no publike charge of Pastour or Doctor. Over the man] for it might have happned that the husband might have been of the wives audience, if she had spoken in the Church with censures, severe admonitions, and other acts of the holy ministery.

V. 13. For Adam] the first man was not created for the first woman, nor by her, but contrariwise; and therefore Gods first order must be observed in the Church, where God re-establisheth that which hath been confounded and brought out of order by sinne.

V. 14. Deceived] namely, immediately by the Devill, neither doth the story say, that he was deceived by Eve, but onely that he received the forbidden fruit from her, and did eat of it, see Gen. 3. 6. Was in the] the Italian, was the cause of; that is to say, Induced Adam to sin, whereby for a punishment, she was made the more subject to her husband, Gen. 3. 16.

V. 15. She shall] though in the bringing forth of children, and in the subjection to the husband, God hve imprinted the markes of the punishment imposed upon the woman; whereby it might seem, that amongst women there were no salvation, but onely for them that are married, yet by Christ all condemnation is taken away, and these corporall evils do no way hinder the work of grace. If they continue] namely, women in generall. Sobriety] the Italian, honesty; or modestie, or temperance.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. Desire] namely, if he be moved by a holy and sincere affection to consecrate himself to God in the service of the Church, and thereto employ those gifts which he hath received from him.

V. 2. Blameless] that is to say, Not infamous for any publike or offensive blame or vice, nor stained with any evill qualitie incompatible with that holy office. The husband] that is, Not married to two wives at once, according to the inveterate abuse amongst the Jews; nor hath not a concubine and a lawfull wife, according to the licentiousnesse of the Gentiles; nor hath not married a second woman after he hath put away the first, without any lawfull cause.

V. 3. Not greedy of] or not desirous to make any dishoneſt gain.

V. 4. Gravity] in the father, or reverence in the children.

V. 6. A novice] namely, one newly come into the Church, and not yet sufficiently instructed and confirmed in the Christian faith. He fall into] he make not himself guilty of that sinne for which the Devill hath been condemned and rejected of God, namely, of pride, for having a sacred office and divine dignity, see 2 Pet. 2. 4. Jude 6.

V. 7. He must have] that those who are not members of the Church may have cause to speak well of him, being witnesses of his holy and laudable conversation. The snare] namely, in some occasion of infamy to his own person, of prejudice to his ministery, and of blemish to the profession of the Gospell through the deceits of the Devill.

V. 8. Double tongued] speaking sometimes one thing, and sometimes another, or meaning one thing and speaking another: a vice contrary to the simplicity required in good Deacons, Rom. 12. 8. in whom there ought alwayes to bee a perpetuall agreement of words, and of acts of true christity.

V. 9. The mystery] namely, the sacred Doctrine of the Gospell, which is hidden to flesh and blood, and which God alone can reveale, Matth. 16. 17. and in the exercising of which, consisteth the highest and perfectest service of God.

V. 11. Their wives] namely, Bishops and Deacons wives.

V. 13. Purchase to themselves] they make themselves fitting and worthy to be promoted to higher degrees in the Churches service. Boldnesse] the Italian, Liberty; for a pure life freeth one from the fear of reproaches, and gaineth authority and credit with the hearers; and generally, a good conscience is alwayes bold. In the faith] namely, in the preaching of Christian Doctrine.

V. 15. The pillar] by whose ministery the authority, dignity, knowledge, vertue, and use of the truth of the Gospell ought to be preserved in the world, and maintained against all errours, contradictions and corruptions, whereunto nothing is more more adverse or prejudiciall then the vitious life of those that preach it.

V. 16. And withou] as in the mysteries and most sacred actions under the law; and also in the false mysteries of the Gentiles, there was a most exact purification required before they could be admitted to them: much more is it necessary in the Gospell, which is the onely holy and Soveraigne mysterie. Of godlinesse] not onely of ceremonies, as Moses his Law, nor of prophane superstitions, as the Gentiles mysteries, but a most holy and truely religious mysterie, by which God is served in Spirit and truth. God] namely, the everlasting Sonne of God, true God with his Father, hath taken upon him human nature, and in it hath manifested himselfe unto the world, for to be the true Messias and promised Redeemer, who untill that time, was hidden in Gods counsell, and under his promises. Justified] fullie approved of before Gods judgement Seate, as having perfectly fulfilled all righteousnesse, especially in what belonged to his office of Redeemer: and by that meanes was delivered from death and from all paines, and crowned with deserved glorie, Esay 53.8. and besides, plainely, declared what he is, against all the false judgements, contradictions, and calumnies of the World, by his glorious resurrection, Matth. 11. 19. Luke 7.35: Rom. 1.4. In the Spirit] in the power of his Godhead, by which he hath fulfilled his office, Heb. 9.14. the truth whereof he hath caused to appeare by his resurrection, Rom. 1.4. 1 Pet. 3.18. Seen of the Angels] being risen, he caused the Angels first to behold the accomplishment of Gods promises, and of the Worlds salvation, which they fervently expected, and desired, Matth. 28.2. Marke 16.5. Luke 24.4. John 20.12. Ephes. 3.10. 1 Pet. 1.12.

CHAP. IV:

Vers. 1. THe Spirit] the holy Ghost hath revealed this to the Apostles, and Prophets under the Gospell. In latter times] namely, in the time of Christianity, which is the last age of the World, after which followeth the everlasting estate of the Church, Heb. 1.2. 1 Pet. 1.2. but especially towards the end of the World. Seducing Spirits] to false Doctors, who shall boast of being inspired and sent by God, See 1 John 4.1.

V. 2. Seared] that shall have left all manner of feeling, and motion of conscience: as a cautery applied to some part of the body, deads it, and causeth it to fall, See Rom. 1.28. Ephes. 4.19. Jude 12.

V. 3. Forbidding] not absolutely to all persons, but onely to some, under pretence of greater holinesse, See Col. 2.21, 23. From meats] namely, from certaine kinds of meats. Which beleeve] who onely have, as they are Gods children, right to make use of his goods and creatures, whereas the wicked before God, are onely usurpers of them.

V. 4. For every] he gives a reason why he hath said this forbidding of meats, to be a divellish thing. Is good] that is to say, the use thereof in it selfe is pure and lawfull, as touching the conscience before God.

V. 5. It is] God by his Word and Ordinance hath declared the use thereof to be lawfull, especially for believers, who in Christ have gotten a new right to the creatures. Psal. 8.6. Rom. 4.13. and besides, the said use is actually sanctified by them, by the religious acknowledgement which they make thereof to God by calling upon his Name.

V. 6. Thou shalt be] thou shalt in effect shew thy selfe to be such a one. Attained] or which thou hast carefully followed.

V. 7. Fables] vaine humane imaginations: as if in outward austeritie, in abstinences, fasts, (which he cals disciplines, and exercises of the bodie) did consist true holinesse before God.

V. 8. Little] seeing all the good that it can doe is but to tame the members of the body, and their externall motions and actions, 1 Cor. 9.27. without sanctifying the heart, and the inward part of man, as lively faith, and the love and feare of God doth, See Rom. 8.13.

V. 10. For therefore] of this infallible vertue of Gods promises made to true pietie; the afflictions which I and all true believers doe voluntarily suffer, are a verie good proofe; for it were a great folly to suffer so much without any certaine hope. The Saviour] the preserver of mens naturall and temporall being in generall, and especially of the everlasting and spirituall being of his children.

V. 12. Despise] doe not thou give any occasion of having it despised, but make it venerable by thy vertuous carriage in thine office. In Spirit] in holy zeale and in spirituall, and heroicke motions and actions.

V. 13. To reading] to the study and meditation of the holy Scripture. To exhortation] under this part and the following is comprehended the whole Evangelicall ministery.

V. 14. Neglect not] exercise carefully thy calling of Evangelist, revive, manure, and strengthen the gifts, which thou hast received thereby. Which was given thee] God having declared thy vocation, not by votes of humane or ordinary election, but by propheticke revelation; and expresse oracle, signified to the Church by the Prophets, See Acts 13.1, 2. 1 Tim. 1.18. With the laying on] nor to adde, by mans meanes, any weight to the divine calling; but onely for a signe of consecration, and blessing. Of the Presbyterie] the Italian, Of the Elders; namely, of the pastors, and other guides of the Church.

V. 15. To all] or in all things.

V. 16. Both save thy self] thou shalt avoide the condemnation for not having to the uttermost of thy power procured the salvation of soules, Ezech. 33. 9. and shalt hold on a secure way in thy calling to attaine unto eternall happinesse, Phil. 2. 12. and shalt be an instrument of salvation to thy hearers, Rom. 15 14. 1 Cor. 9. 22.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 3. Honour] have an especiall care of them, as well to relieve such as are in want, as v. 17. as also to employ such as are vertuous in the Deaconship. That are] that have the true qualities of the soule, and vertues befitting Christian widdows, and such as have no other helpe nor assistance, vers. 5. 16.

V. 4. But if] I see the Church from this duty of maintaining widdows that have kindred able for to maintaine them. First to shew] before the Church be burdened therewith, v. 16.

V. 5. That is] worthy of such a name, and of the respect that is due to such.

V. 6. Is dead] in regard of the feelings, motions, and actions of the spirituall life, which hath no vigor, but when the flesh is brought low, and mortified.

V. 7. These things] besides such things as have been spoken of before, ch. 4. 11.

V. 8. But if any] he confirmes that which he had spoken, v. 4. Hath denied] he doth an act utterly incompatible with the Christian faith, of which he makes profession. Infidell] who oftentimes, through a plain naturall light, doe performe these duties, and those which doe faile therein, are more excusable then mercilesse Christians because they are not so well enlightened nor instructed.

V. 9. To be chosen] namely, into the number and colledge of such, as giving over their owne particular affaires, did dedicate themselves to the service of the poore, the sicke, and of strangers, and they themselves were also maintained by publique almes. See Act. 6. 1. Rom. 16. 1. Under threescore] as well to avoid all subject and suspition of scandall, as likewise because that the poore should not want assistance, if the younger widdows chanced to be married on a sudden. Having been the wife] that hath not been divorced from her husband without a lawfull cause, and married another, Marke 10. 12. Others understand it, so that she hath remained a widow after the death of her husband, which was a signe of continencie and mortification, as Luke 2. 36. 37.

V. 10. If she have] if she have shewed care, charity, & patience in bringing up her family after the death of her husband, or according to some if she have given them the breast that suckled. If she have washed] according to the customs of those times and places, when one had been a journey, and under this act of charity are comprehended all the rest.

V. 11. Refuse] exclude them from this office and publique benefit. When they have] after they have renounced the inward mortification of the concupiscences of the flesh, which the Spirit of Christ ingenders in all his true members, and by which the soule is joyned to Christ, as unto her true bridegroome: they doe also pretend to cover this incontinencie with the vaile of matrimonie.

V. 12. Having] they make themselves condemnable beyond excuse in that having of their owne accord consecrated themselves, to the service of the Church, they doe impudently call backe their vow, to satisfie their lust. Or, because that having begun well by spirituall acts of faith and piety, they end by acts of the flesh, and lasciviousnesse, which is the onely cause of these marriages, whereupon they are also prophaned.

V. 13. And withall] besides this first vice of incontinency, there is also that being by their Deaconship freed from the household cares and employments of mothers of families, they bestow their idle time in these following vices.

V. 14. I will] I doe appoint it to be so by Apostolicall authority, 1 Tim. 2. 8. That the younger] this is but onely to shew what is most convenient for that age and condition; yet, not to binde any one absolutely to doe so, but with a lawfull respect to all circumstances, 1 Cor. 7. 8, 9. To the adversary] namely, to the divell, and all his instruments, deadly enemies of the Church, 1 Tim. 3. 7.

V. 15. Are already] by running into luxurie, whereof the divell is the chiefe authour. Or by falling away from Christian Religion, to abandon themselves the more licentiously to their owne lusts.

V. 16. Have widdows] any daughter, mother, sister, or other kinswoman that needeth helpe, but hath not the qualities of Ecclesiasticall widdows.

V. 17. The Elders] whereof some onely looked to the government, and discipline of the Church, the other both to preaching and government. Double] above any other member of the Church, or above the Deacons, and Deaconnesses, vers. 3. and under the name of honour, is also comprehended honest maintenance, as it appeares by the following verse.

V. 18. The labourer] a proverbiall kind of speech, and commonly used by the Lord himselfe.

V. 19. Receive not] doe not lightly give credit to any such accusation, to come suddenly to Ecclesiasticall censure and correction, before the fact be fully verified: for this office is more subject to slanders, and being sacred, ought to be respected more then slight suspitions, or evill reports: and such persons sons ought not prejudicately be thought capable of any grievous faults, without certaine proofe.

V. 22. Them] the fourmes particularly to meane the foresaid Elders. That sinne] namely, that commit any scandalous fault, or notorious offence. Before all] in the full Assemblie of the Governours of the Church, Matth. 18. 17. 2 Cor. 2. 6. Gal. 2. 14.

V. 21. Without] without passion, and without being perfeuted, by any favour or affection, or any disfavour, nor judge according to such passions, but according to the righteousnesse and merit of the cause, without preferring one before the other.

V. 22. Lay hands] doe not easily install any one into any Ecclesiasticall Office, without sufficient examination, and triall of his life and conversation. Neither be partaker] deale not in such sort, that the dammage comming upon the Church by reason of persons indiscreetly promoted, may be imputed to thee. Or if others be the authours of this rashnesse, do not thou consent unto it, but rather oppose thy selfe.

V. 24. Some mens] this is a confirmation of what he had said vers. 22, namely, not to runne headlong in disposing of Ecclesiasticall Offices, for there are some whose former faults and vices ought to exclude them; and in others they are more obscure, and need to have longer time to discover them. And likewise the piety and goodnesse of some is tryed in such sort, that they may presently be received without feare of erring. And some there are who are not so well approved of, and delay will not any way cloud their vertue, but wil cause it to be more manifestly shewen, Psa. 37. 6. Mark 4. 22. Luke 8. 17.

CHAP. VI.

Vers. 1. BE not] as if God by his Gospel were the authour of rebellions, and of the subversion of order, and civill bonds.

V. 2. Brethren] namely, spirituall brethren in Christ, for that doth not disanull the degrees and states of the world. Beloved] of God, and therefore ought to be served not onely through feare and constraint, but for love and good wil. Partakers of] nimely, that have by faith embraced Gods grace in Christ.

V. 3. Wholsome] which are not onely pure and sincere, but doe also bring life and spiritual holinesse to the soule, Psa. 19. 7. 1 Tim 1. 10. 2 Tim. 1. 13. Titus 1. 9. Which is] which is conformable to the true service due to God, and hath its whole relation thereunto, 1 Tim. 3. 16. Tit. 1. 1. Heb. 5. 13. 2 Pet. 2. 22.

V. 4. Doting] the Italian, languishing; as on weake in Spirit, through a kinde of frenzie or violent passion, or that is out of taste, which is opposite to wholsome words. Of words] of things of naught, that have no solid subsistencie.

V. 5. Supposing] that make an art of farce, of the Gospel which is the doctrine of piety. Withdraw] have no communion with them, neither Ecclesiasticall, nor brotherly, hold them to be interdicted and contagious persons.

V. 6. With contentment] namely, which is joyned with a quiet spirit, and contentednesse in the condition wherein one liueth; Phil. 4. 12. Or, with so much as is sufficient to satisfie ones just wishes, which is a thing promised to those who are truely pious, 1 Tim. 4. 8. Gaine] namely, a great purchase, and increase of spirituall goods of the soule, Matth. 13. 44, 45. Phil. 3. 7, 8.

V. 7. For we] he proves that piety alone is the true gaine, and treasure, for all other goods are but onely accessary to man, and perish by death.

V. 8. And having] the poperty of these temporall goods is not ours, we must content our selves with a transitory fruition of them, befitting our necessities, which is an assured remedy against avarice.

V. 9. And a snare] into the divels snares, and into divers occasions, and baits of grievous sins.

V. 10. The root] There is no sinne, but may proceed from avarice. Sorrows] torments, and anguishes of conscience, troubles, and unquietnesse of spirit and body.

V. 11. O man] that is to say, thou servant of God, who oughtest to be, and in effect art guided by his Spirit, See 1 Sam. 2. 27. 2 Tim. 3. 17.

V. 12. Lay hold on] doe in such sort, that endevouring and persevering in thy vocation, thou mayst obtaine the crowne and reward of eternal life according to Gods promises. A good profession] the Italian, A good confession] he meanes the solemne vow which Timothy had made at his Baptisme, or when he was consecrated to the holy ministery, namely, to dedicate himselfe wholly, and employ himselfe to the uttermost of his power, to the service of God.

V. 13. In the sight] namely, in Gods Name, whom I call to witnesse of my fidelity in appointing thee to doe this, and for a maintainer of mine authority which I have from him. See 2 Tim. 2. 14. Quickneth] who gives, and preserves their being to all creatures. Or, that shall raise up all things, namely, all his beleevers into glory, See Ephes. 1. 10. Col 1. 20. Whereas all manner of good, both temporal and eternal, ought to be h ped for from him, especially being a reward of loyal service. Witnessed] namely, confirmed, and Heb. 12. 2. 1 Pet. 3, 21. but did also bind them to the like.

V. 14. This commandement] which is contained in v. 11, 12. or generally, all other commandements which are contained in this Epistle.

V. 16. Hath immortality] is everlastingly subsisting of himselfe, and not by the benefit of others. In the light] in a glory, of the sight and knowledge whereof no creature of it selfe is capeable. God alone of his grace can reveale and communicate it. Power] the Italian, command; that is to say, obedience, service, and glory due to his Majesty. See Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 13. Others power, that is to say, glory, according to the stile of the Scripture.

V. 17. To enjoy] to make use of them, by a moderate fruition, and not to make our selves slaves to them, by loving them, and trusting in them. See Matth. 6. 24.

V. 18. To communicate] ready and willing to communicate their goods to other men. Or sociable, and affable.

V. 19. A good] of certaine and infallible arguments, and matter of hoping for everlasting goods, according to Gods promises to all those that in faith endeavour themselves to good workes. Lay hold on] that they may come unto it, as the end of their race, and obtaine it as the reward which they have sought for.

V. 20. Committed to] namely, the Gospel, which God hath intrusted thee with, 1 Cor. 9. 17. Gal. 2. 7. And withall the talent of the gifts belonging to the preaching of it.

V. 21. Have erred] the Greek terme is taken from Archers, who misse hitting of the marke, to signifie an error in faith, which depriveth them of the fruit and end thereof.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF St. PAUL the Apostle to TIMOTHIE.

ARGUMENT.

THis Epistle is almost upon the same subject as the former; for Saint Paul being a prisoner at Rome, ready to suffer martyrdome, writes againe to Timothy to seale and confirme, as the last time, his former Doctrine, Admonitions, and Exhortations, and strengthen him against the temptation and scandall of his approaching end. Having then in the beginning born witnesse of his faith; in which he had of a child been brought up, he doth lively exhort him to persevere in it, and likewise in the exercising of his Pastorall charge. And because he should not be troubled at the Apostles afflictions, he declares what his faith, comfort, victory, glory, and triumph was in them. He recommends and blesses Onesephorus, from whom he had received reliefe. He admonisheth Timotheus to appoint faithfull Pastors in the Churches, to prepare himselfe for the crosse, shewing what was the happy issue, and most excellent fruit of it; to observe purity and righteousnesse in teaching of Gods truth, avoyding prophane questions and vicious disputations, from whence heresies did spring; as that of Hymeneus and Philetus, who denied the last resurrection of the dead: against which danger he doth hearten beleevers through their election, confirmed by their sanctification, for which they must all endeavour continually; and doth likewise exhort Timothy thereunto, as also to meekenesse and benignity. Then he foretels the great depravations which should happen in the Church, and doth fore-arme him against them by his doctrine, and example: encouraging him to the faithfull exercising of his ministery: and recommends unto him Gods Church, from which his presence should shortly be taken away, by his glorious martyrdome, before which time he appointeth him to come to him, and gives him notice how his estate stands.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. According to] that is to say, Apostle of the Gospel; whose subject is not a word of plaine command or narration, as the Law is, but of a promise of grace and everlasting life, See Tit. 1. 1. Which is] the whole foundation of which is Christ; and which from him derives upon his members by meanes of faith.

V. 3. From my] following the faith and religion of all the true ancient Jewes; who worshipped the onely true God, in hope of the promised Messias, See Acts 24.14.

V.4. Thy teares] shed either through an inward feeling and motion of piety, love of God, zeale, and sorrow for sin. Or, through sorrow for Pauls departure.

V.6. Wherefore] namely, seeing thou hast the gift of faith, which is the root of every good worke, and without which all exhortations are to no purpose; and likewise because by reason of this great gift, thou art so much the more bound to God. I doe admonish thee to excite, increase, and foment this light, and this fire of the gift of the holy Ghost, and especially of those gifts which have a relation to the holy ministery, See 1 Thes. 5.19. 1 Tim. 4.14. By the putting] for God did joyn his grace and power to his sacred Ceremony which was appointed by Christ, & did then likewise begin the miraculous gifts of his Spirit, Act. 8.17. & 19.6. Of my hands] it should seem that by the imposition of St. Pauls hands, Timothy received the miraculous gifts; and by the imposition of the Colledge of Elders hands, 1 Tim. 4.14. he was installed in the ministery, with a publique blessing.

V.7. For God] the meaning is, kindle up Gods gift, and doe not let it goe out, nor be smothered up through bodily feare. For such a kinde of feare is no wise the worke of Gods Spirit, but is quite contrary to it. Which is here said, because that peradventure the Churches afflictions, and especially St. Pauls had terrified and affrighted Timothy. Of love] namely, a holy love of God, and of Christ, with which the beleever being enflamed, doth freely suffer all manner of adversities. Of a sound mind] by which the holy Ghost restoreth the troubled soule to tranquillity, and keepes away such turbulent passions as feare it. Others of moderation, wisedome, and of a sound understanding.

V.8. The testimonie] of the Gospel, or of the free profession and preaching thereof. Be thou partaker] dispose thy selfe to beare couragiously thy part of the crosse, which is joyned to the profession of the Gospell. Or professe them publiquely, that in the Gospels cause, for which I suffer, thou hast all things common with me. According to] being upheld by the strength of his Spirit: or making use of his power therein, and not trusting in thine own strength, nor in worldly means.

V.9. An holy] by a Divine, and Heavenly, and not by a humane calling: or by which we are sanctified. Given us] which hath been used towards us in our everlasting election. In Christ] See upon Eph. 1.4.

V.10. Abolished] hath perfectly freed his from eternall death, so that for them there is no more death; he having abolished the cause thereof, which is sinne: and also taken away from corporall death the sting of curse, and the power of keeping his members and beleevers perpetually under it, 1 Cor. 15.54, 55. Through the Gospel] seeing that in it is set down not onely the knowledge of this spirituall life: but also the fruition of it by faith.

V.12. That which I have committed] that is to say, the right to the crowne of eternal life is already mine, through his grace, though I am not yet possessed of it; but he himselfe keepes it safe for me, to give it me at his appointed time, 2 Tim. 4.8. Or, he meanes, according to the Hebrew phrase the soule, departing out of the body, Psal. 31.5. Against that day] or untill that day, namely, untill Christs comming to judgment.

V.13. The forme] namely, the doctrine which I leave as a patterne, or example, for all men to imitate, as wel in the substance, as in the manner of teaching it, See Rom. 2 20. & 6.17. Sound] See 1 Tim. 6.3. In faith] by these words he signifieth either the two principal parts of Christian doctrine. Or, the two vertues by which the Apostle had taught it, as 1 Tim. 1.14. or by which Timothy was to keepe it. Which is] namely, the spiritual faith and love, which Christ teacheth, and frameth in all the true members of his body.

V.14. By the holy Ghost] namely, by his power and grace, which thou ought'est carefully to employ to this effect.

V.15. Which are in] namely, the Christians of Asia, who until that time had kept company with Paul, See 2 Tim. 4.10, 16.

V.18. Of the Lord] namely, of him himselfe, or of the Lord, for Jesus Christ his sake. Unto me] or generally to the whole Church.

CHAP. II.

Vers.1. IN the grace] in the lively feeling, and firme apprehension of Gods grace by vertue of the reconciliation made by Christ, or in the gifts, and in the power of the holy Ghost, which are bestowed upon all those who are members of his body. Or, in the sacred calling which thou hast in Christs service, as Rom. 1.5. Eph. 3.8.

V.2. The things] namely, the doctrine of the Gospel, and the precepts of the sacred ministery. Commit thou] namely, in teaching and maintaining them in the publique office of Pastors.

V.3. Thou therefore] this is spoken in the sequel of verse 11.

V.4. With the affaires] namely, in other affaires and employments of an ordinary course of life; which might draw him away.

V.5. Strive for masteries] in publique sports and exercises, as Fencing, or Wrestling, &c. Lawfully] namely, according to the laws of the exercise, accomplishing all the actions therein required, even to the last.

V.6. Must be first] as I exhort thee to be faithfull in thy labour, so I do assure thee of thy reward, according to Gods infallible promise.

V. 7. The Lord give thee] he confirms this exhortation, because that Timothie endeavour should not be in vain, but being upheld by the Apostles prayers, it should be blessed by God, with a great increase of lively light and understanding. Or he means, I do desire this of God for thee, do thou therefore likewise endeavour thy self therein, that my desire may not prove vain by thy neglect.

V. 8. Remember] so that by the hope of thine own blessed resurrection, which depends upon Christs, thou mayest be strengthned and born up in all thy troubles, 2 Cor. 4. 13, 14.

V. 9. Wherein] namely, in the preaching and ministery whereof. Is not] cannot be stayed nor hindred. Phil. 1. 12.

V. 10. Therefore] namely, through the faith and hope I have, which is grounded upon Christs resurrection. For the Elects sake] not onely for having preached the doctrine of salvation to them, but likewise to give them a lively example and confirmation in faith, patience, and perseverance, 2 Cor. 1. 6. and 4. 15. Which is] whose foundation and onely cause is Christ, and cannot be obtained by any other means but by the union with him through faith.

V. 11. It is a lawfull] namely, that a Christian ought voluntarily and constantly to suffer for Christ as he hath said before.

V. 13. He abideth] that is to say, this denial on Christs side, doth not make him any way fail in his duty, but in him is an act of loyall righteousnesse which he alwayes performeth, whereas in men it is perfidiousnesse.

V. 14. Before the Lord] calling him to be a witnesse of this command, and a judge against the breakers of it, see 1 Tim. 6. 13. That they strive not] that in matters of faith and religion, all vain, curious, and sophisticate disputations, and all passionate altercations may be avoided, which produce no edification.

V. 15. Dividing] the Greek terme is taken from the laying straight of high wayes, or from drawing the lines of Geographicall Maps. And as Gods word is called a way, so pastors ought not to draw it awry, but to set it forth straight: Others derive it from the distribution of food at a table, or in a house, by a father of a family, to signifie faithfull and wise dispensation or distribution of Gods word, see Matth. 24. 45. Luke 12. 42.

V. 16. Shun] or forbid and suppresse.

V. 17. Will eat] Being once admitted into the soule, it will penetrate to the totall extinguishing of the spirituall life thereof; and having possessed it selfe of one of the members of the Church, it will spread it selfe over all the body, if it be not withstood in time.

V. 18. That the resurrection] it is likely that their doctrine was, That there is no other resurrection but the spirituall resurrection of the soul from death and sinne, or the renewing of the state of the world under the Gospell, the Scripture using this word sometimes in this sense, see 1 Cor. 15. 12.

V. 19. The foundation] Gods eternall election, which is the sure foundation of beleevers salvation, laid by God himself, cannot be moved nor brought to nothing; so have the Elect seduced by such heresies, or to cause them to fall away from the faith, Matth. 24. 24. 2 Thess. 2. 13. Having] this election is sure, and setled by Gods eternall decree: concerning these whom he hath taken to himself, and is guarded by his continuall providence, by which he accomplished his work in them, yet will he have them cooperate by the power which they have received from him, beware of all things that are contrary thereunto both in their life and doctrine, Phil. 2. 12. 2 Pet. 1. 10. Nameth] that is to say, Makes profession of being a Christian.

V. 20. In a great] this is spoken to obviate the scandall of these Apostates who had been in the Church, in which by this similitude he shewes that there are both elect and reprobate, Matthew 13. 47. and 20. 16.

V. 21. Purge himself] working by the grace and power of the holy Ghost dwelling in him, 1 Pet. 1. 22. 1 John 3. 3. From these] namely, from those which are spoken of, vers. 16, 19. Or from these men, namely, keeping himself from the communion and infection of such Reprobates as were spoken of, vers. 17. He shall be] in effect and really, according as he hath been appointed by God to be so: that is to say, Gods councell shall in this manner be fulfilled in man.

V. 24. Patient] in suffering of offences and injuries.

V. 25. That oppose] that are of a contrary minde or inclination, through ignorance, but not through obstinate malice, see Tit. 3. 10, 11.

V. 26. At his will] this may be understood, either of the Devils will, by whom they had been taken, or by Gods will, by whom they had been freed.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. PErillous] or hard and troublesome in regard of the spirituall state of the Church. Shall come] upon the Church.

V. 2. Blasphemers] or slanderers and defamers.

V. 3. Truce-breakers] or irreconcileable and implacable, as Rom. 1. 31. Of those that are good] or of goodnesse.

V. 5. Denying] having quite extinguished in them that inward vertue of piety by which it works in in the house to regenerate and sanctifie it. From such] as from the other, 2 Tim. 2. 16, 23.

V. 6. For of] he gives a reason of this his exhortation, namely, because that even in those dayes there were some such persons, to the great damage and corruption of the Church. Head-captive] holden in slavery by false perswasions, cunning devouts of conscience, and superstitious observances.

V. 7. Ever learning] they make profession of being very studious in sacred things, but without any fruit; either for want of being well disposed inwardly, or because they follow false and frivolous instructions.

V. 8. Jannes and] some of Pharaohs Magicians names, Exod. 7. 11. kept by tradition, or by some ancient writings, wherein they are yet this day to be seen. Reprobate] who by reason of their perverse doctrine are abominable to God, and ought to be rejected of all men; or that have lost all manner of right and sound judgement concerning such things as belong to faith, Rom. 1. 28. Titus 1. 16.

V. 9. They shall proceed] he speaks here particularly of the seducers of his time, but vers. 13. he hath relation to the whole number of them in generall, which in after times should increase and advance themselves exceedingly in the Church, as they did indeed.

V. 10. Manner of life] the Italian, my proceeding; or my government and my wayes: Or my precepts and instructions.

V. 12. In Christ] namely, in the profession of beleeving in him, and in the communion of his Church.

V. 14. Hast been] or which have been intrusted and committed unto thee, see 2 Thess. 1. 10. 1 Tim. 1. 11. Of whom] namely, of me, whom thou hast sufficiently known to be a true Apostle guided by the holy Ghost, and must also be better assured thereof by the holy Scripture.

V. 15. Which is] whose foundation and onely object is Christ with all his benefits: Or which is proper to all his members: Or which is towards him.

V. 16. Profitable] that is to say, appropriated unto, and appointed for these uses. For doctrine] the Italian, to teach; what ought to be known and beleeved. For reproof] to reprove such false doctrines as ought to be rejected. For correction] of vices in mens lives and conversation. For instruction] to instruct them in precepts of holy life and Christian conversation.

V. 17. The man of] namely, the minister of God in his Church, 1 Tim. 6. 11. May be perfect] may be fully endowed, and provided with all parts needfull for his office.

CHAP. IV.

Vers 1. The quick] as well those which shall at that time be found alive, as those who shall be dead before, see Acts 10. 42. Kingdom] namely, in the accomplishment and manifestation of it.

V. 2. Be instant] or apply thy self thereunto continually. Out of season] as fleshly understanding might judge it to be. Exhort] or comfort. Doctrine] with lively perswasions, powerfull reasons, and holy instruction.

V. 3. Heap to themselves] they will continually with new Doctors and Doctrines endeavour to please their corrupt appetites, and their distaste of the onely food of the soul which God hath appointed, which is his pure and meere word, out of which there being nothing found, they shall assemble out of their own minde to supply with a multitude of frivolous things.

V. 4. Fables] vain, undecent, and incredible doctrines and opinions.

V. 5. Full proof] shew and make it appear unto all men by these assured proofs, that thou art Christs true and faithfull Minister.

V. 6. For I am] look to thy self and to thy Ministerie so much the carefuller, because I know that I shall shortly be taken away from thee: namely, I who hitherto have been thy tutor, thy guide, thine example and upholder. The time] or the time wherein my body must be brought to nothing through death.

V. 8. A crown] namely, everlasting glory and happinesse, which God of his grace hath promised, and gives to his servants for a reasonable reward of their righteous and holy works, a terme taken from games and pastimes, wherein they strive in several exercises. The righteous judge] there being in games certain Judges appointed of every one of their actions and carriages, and for to distribute the rewards. That love] namely, that have fixed all their hopes and intentions upon those eternall rewards, and for them have caried themselves with all loyaltie and freedom. Or who trusting in a good conscience have desired the Lords day, and have not been afraid of it as the wicked are.

V. 10. This present] namely, the ease, commodities, and carnall securities thereof.

V. 11. Onely, he onely amongst all the rest of Pauls companions, see 2 Tim. 1. 15.

V. 13. The cloak] according to others the little chest.

V. 14. Alexander] some hold it is the same man, as 1 Tim. 1. 20.

V. 16. Answer] in judgement before Nero for his Officers, to justifie my self against the accusations of the Jews.

V. 17.

V. 17. The preaching] namely, the Gospell preached by me and the other Apostles. Fully known] by that efficacie and demonstration of truth, which accompanied the Apostles words; 1 Cor. 2. 4. Out of the mouth] from Nero's rage and crueltie.

V. 18. From every] that I may not offend him by any evill action.

THE EPISTLE OF S. PAUL THE Apostle to TITUS.

ARGUMENT.

TItus as it appears by Gal. 2. 3. having been converted from Paganisme to the Christian faith, was by Saint Paul appointed to be an Evangelist, and a companion in the work in his voyages, and in the preaching of the Gospel, and was left by him in Creet for to perfect the establishing of the state and government of the Churches which Saint Paul had founded there; and whilest he was there, the Apostle writ this Epistle unto him, to admonish, incite, and strengthen him in the exercise of his charge; and also to authorize him amongst the Cretians. So then at the very beginning he declares what qualities are required in those persons whom he is to chuse for pastors and conductors of the Churches in their life, behaviour, and domestick government, and especially in their Doctrine, it being a most necessary part for to oppose the Iewish false errours and doctrines, whereof the seed was already scattered amongst those Churches: Afterwards he appoints him, in stead of vain observations, wherein false Doctors reposed great holinesse, to teach and recommend the true spirituall sanctification in every ones vocation; and especially to Princes and Magistrates, according to Gods grace presented in the Gospel, and to the regeneration of the Spirit, which he for that purpose exceedingly extols and layes open, and contrariwise adviseth him to forbid and suppresse all vain disputations, and to shun all obstinate heretick.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 2. ACcording to] the end and the substance of mine Apostleship is the preaching of Christian Doctrine, which is known and beleeved of all the true Elect, and engenders in them a lively hope of eternall good, see 2 Tim. 1. 1. Of the truth] namely, of the Gospel, see upon 1 Tim. 3. 16.

V. 2. Promised] hath out of meere grace made a decree thereof, in the behalf of all those that are his. Before] namely, from everlasting, before the beginning of succession of times, which was divided into ages.

V. 3. His word] namely, his foresaid decree.

V. 4. After the] in respect of faith and the spirituall life thereof, of the communication whereof I have been an instrument towards thee: and which is the same in thee and in me, even as a Son is of the same nature with the father, see Rom. 1. 12 2 Pet. 1. 1.

V. 5. That are wanting] namely, which I had not established when I was present. Elders] namely, Pastors and Conductors, where there is a competent number of beleevers.

V. 6. Having faithfull] as well to avoid scandall, as because that in the guiding of children, and of a family, the Church may have a triall of the piety, zeal, prudence, watchfulnesse, and other vertues necessary for a Pastor. Now he means that this condition should be considered in those who are to be promoted to the ministerie, not to those who are so already, to whom such calamities of having evill children may happen without their fault, and and ought not to be therefore rejected.

V. 7. Not self-willed] the Greeke word signifies a proud, intractable, wilfull, scornful, & unsaffable man.

V. 8. Lover of good men] or of goodnesse. See 1 Tim. 3. 3. Sober] or wise, and understanding.

V. 9. The faithfull] namely, the pure and sincere doctrine, which is apt to edifie and holily to instruct.

V. 10. Unruly] the Italian, stubborne; against the reprehensions, admonitions, and orders of the Church. Vaine talkers] all, whose discourses availe nothing towards spirituall edification. They of the] namely, the Christianized Jewes, who would retain Mosaicall ceremonies, together with Christianity, as things necessary to salvation.

V. 11. Must be stopped] that is to say, they must be confuted and reproved, with so much evidence, and reason of authority, that they may not have any thing to reply, with any ground or colour.

V. 12. One] namely, the Poet Epimenides, who was a Southsayer, and false Prophet. See upon Acts 17. 28. 1 Cor. 15. 32. Of themselves] namely, Cretians, or Candiots: Such as those Jewes were that were born there, or dwelt there, though they were of another Nation and originall.

V. 13. Sharply] without any respect, or connivencie.

V. 15. All things] namely, meats, and other of Gods creatures, in which false doctors retained the distinction of cleane and uncleane, appointed by Moses his ceremoniall Law: Which being disannulled by the Gospel, the use of them is pure and holy to believers, who are purified by Christs blood, and sanctified by his Spirit. As contrariwise, the spiritual uncleanesse of unbeleevers, makes even those things which were allowed by Moses to be uncleane unto them. Their mind] those two parts of man which seem to be most pure after sinne, namely, the mind which preserves some light of knowledge: and the conscience, which applies that light, to testifie and judge of mans actions. Now, by that inward corruption of ignorance and perversnesse, every thing is made impure to man: because the first hinders him from knowing how he should conform himselfe to Gods Wil in what he doth, and undertaketh; and the second takes away his wil from doing it. By the first he tempts, by the second he offends God.

V. 16. They professe] namely, these seducers. Reprobates] forsaken of God. So that they can neither judge soundly, nor rightly in any thing. See Rom. 1. 28. 2 Tim. 3. 8.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. Sound] See upon 1 Tim. 6. 3.

V. 2. Temperate] or prudent. Sound] pure and sincere in their beliefe, their understanding being through age confirmed, against the vices of vanity, curiosity, lightnesse in opinions, &c. and their heart being soundly habituated in all active, and passive vertues.

V. 3. In behaviour] under this word is comprehended the habit, behaviour, gestures, and all outward actions.

V. 5. Be not] namely, by unbeleevers, who doe impute the vices of the persons to their doctrine and religion. See Rom. 2. 24. 1 Tim. 6. 1.

V. 8. Sound] not infected with any falshood, corruption, or perverse affection, altogether framed to edifying according to the truth. 1 Tim. 6. 3. He that is of] the Italian, the adversary; that is to say, every enemy of the Gospel, or the divel who is the chiefe of them all.

V. 9. In all things] which belong to the lawful duty of servants. See Ephes. 5. 24. Col. 3. 20.

V. 10. The doctrine] which they professe, which profession is honoured by the good effects which it produceth in them.

V. 11. That bringeth] which is to eternall salvation and redemption. Others, the saving grace of all men hath appeared. To all men] without distinction of Nations as formerly, and of conditions, for as wel may the bondman be happy in the Lord, and the Lord be religious and pious, as wel as the bondman.

V. 13. Blessed] that eternal happinesse, which hath so fervently been desired and hoped for of all the Church.

V. 14. Peculiar] that should be as it were his treasure and jewel.

V. 15. With all authority] in Gods name, according to his Word and Will.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 3. For we] he gives a reason why beleevers should be mild, and loving; namely, because the Lord hath shewed abundance of mercy towards them, being most corrupt and most wretched. Or generally, because that is to the end of their redemption.

V. 5. By the washing] using the meanes of baptisme, made effectual by the inward operation of the holy Ghost, which applieth the blood of Christ for expiation of sinne to the beleevers soule, whereby he is made a new creature, in righteousnesse and holinesse.

V. 6. Through Jesus] who hath acquired all those gifts for his Church, and hath all the fulnesse of them in himselfe, and likewise is the onely dispenser of them, as head of the Church.

V. 7. Being justified] that is to say, absolved from the guilt and punishment of sinne, and reputed righteous, through Christs righteousnesse, imputed unto us by grace. Ascending to] or through the hope, which makes this fruition of happinesse as present to us Rom. 8. 24.

V. 8. Be carefull to maintaine] the Greek phrase signifieth to employ ones selfe carefully in a thing, as if it were his particular worke and charge.

V. 9. Avoid] or suppresse as 2 Tim. 2. 16. About the Law] especially, the ceremoniall Law.

V. 10. An heretike] an obstinate maintainer and sower of erroneous doctrines, contrary to the ground of faith. Admonition] this word comprehends instruction, the resolving of doubts, the necessary confuting of errours: charitable exhortation both publique and private. Reject] take not the paines to dispute with him any more, hearken no more to his replies and objections; and by vertue of thy publique charge excommunicate him, and likewise in ordinary conversation, hold him as one that is prophane, and cut off from the body of the Church, Rom. 16. 17. 1 Cor. 5. 11. Gal. 1. 8, 9. & 5. 12. 2 Thes. 3. 14. 2 John 10.

V. 11. Subverted] desperate, and utterly perverted in understanding and will, as concerning matters of faith, as a building which is ruined from the very foundation. Condemned] convinced by his own conscience.

V. 12. Nicopolis] there were many Cities of this name in divers Provinces, here it is likely, is meant that of Epirus or Albany.

V. 13. Bring] provide that they may have company, and be fitted with all things necessary, when they come away from thee. The Lawyer] namely, of the Jewish law, but converted to be a Christian. See upon Matth. 22. 35.

V. 14. Ours also] namely, the Christians, who ought therein to imitate the Jewes, most carefull observers of these duties towards people of note. Unfruitfull] he calls the workes of charity so, they being fruit and profitable effects of faith, and of the faithfuls regeneration, Phil. 1. 11. Act. 4. 17.

V. 15. In the faith] namely, in the communion of faith in Christ, as members of the same body. Or, loyalty. Of Macedonia] or of Achaia or Epirus, which depended also upon Macedonia, and was comprehended under it.

THE EPISTLE OF S^t. PAUL THE Apostle to PHILEMON.

ARGUMENT.

ONesimus servant to Philemon, who was as it is likely one of the Pastors of the Church of Colosse, was runne away from his Master for some deceit, or theft, and afterwards, upon some unknown occasion came to Saint Paul to Rome, by whom he was instructed and converted to the Christian faith: and had served him some time. And the Apostle sends him backe with this Epistle to his master whom in a most hearty manner he reconciles to Onesimus, and intreats him that he may with his leave and good will, retaine him to be his household servant.

Vers. 2. IN thy house] namely, in Philemons house.

V. 5. Hearing] this is the cause of the thankes which he had given him in the former verse: as in the sixt verse is contained the end of the request. Toward all] this hath a relation to his charity

V. 6. Communication] namely, the faith which thou hast common with other members of Christ, may be lively, and bring forth more and more its true effects, whereby thou Philemon, and all the rest of you to whom I write, may duely acknowledge and give Christ the honour, for all the good things which you professe through his benefit.

V. 7. The bowels] thou hast relieved and assisted the faithfull with such a hearty love, that besides the corporall assistance, their hearts and spirits have been comforted and rejoyced.

V. 8. In Christ] namely, by my apostolicall authority which I have from Christ in his Church.

V. 9. Such a one] namely, an Apostle, and Superiour to all the Ministers of the Church of inferiour degree. The aged] in the quality of a meer pastor of the Church: in which I acknowledge thee to be my fellow-lour vers. 2. and so thou art such, I treat with thee by way of intreaty. A prisoner] which should the rather incline thee to grant my request.

V. 10. My sonne] of whose conversion, and regeneration I have been the instrument, having first instructed him in Christian doctrine, 1 Cor. 4. 15. 1 Tim. 1. 2.

V. 11. Unprofitable] an epithite of an evil servant, Matth. 25. 30. Luke 17. 10. that is to say, negligent, good for nothing, disloyall, an evil liver. Profitable] because that he may by thy consent doe me that service which thou shouldest and wouldest personally do if thou wert present, v. 13.

V. 12. Mine owne bowels] namely, my most deare and most tender child.

V. 13. In thy stead] See 1 Cor. 16. 17. Phil. 2. 30. Of the Gospel] In which bonds I am bound for preaching of it.

V. 14. Thy benefit] namely, of granting me thy servant. Of necessity] as it would have seemed to have been, if I had kept him, whilst he was not in thine hands. But willingly] as it will be, if thou dost send him back againe to me when he is with thee.

V. 15. For perhaps] he confirms the request made v. 10. referring Onesimus his running away, to a secret providence of God, who had from thence taken the occasion of converting him: whereby he was to be reunited to his master, no more in a transitory quality of a servant, but in an everlasting quality of a spiritual brother in Christ.

V. 16. In the flesh] in regard of the bonds, and duties of this life, which were not dismantled by Onesimus his conversion, but were made more loyall and voluntary in him, and therefore more pleasing and acceptable to the master, See 1 Tim. 6. 2. In the Lord] by the spiritual bond of the common faith in Christ.

V. 17. A partner] in the grace of God, and in the office of his service.

V. 19. I doe not say] I might desire thee to remit unto him all this debt, or dammage, in exchange of the spirituall good which thou hast received by my meanes whereby thou art in some sort bound to me for the salvation of thy soule; but I will give up my right in that, and so doe conceive that thou art fully satisfied.

V. 20. Let me have] in the Greeke text there is an allusion to the name of Onesimus, which signifieth a man from whom one receiveth pleasure, or profit. In the Lord] that is to say, no carnall, but a spirituall profit or pleasure. Refresh] comfort me with a Christian joy.

V. 22. Be given] that is to say, be restored to libertie.

V. 23. In Christ Jesus] that is to say, my partner in the faith of Christ, for which I being a prisoner Ephes. 4. 1. he stayes with me, for love of me. Or he salutes you with the rest in Christ, that is to say, with a salutation of Christian charity.

V. 24. My fellow-labourers] all these men are likewise named, Col. 4. 10, 14. whence it is presumed, that Philemon also was a Colossian, See v. 2.

THE EPISTLE OF St. PAUL THE Apostle to the HEBREWS.

ARGUMENT.

EVen in the first ages of the Christian Church, there was some doubt concerning the Author of this Epistle, some attributing of it to Saint Paul, which was the most common, and most probable opinion; others to some other Apostle or Evangelist. Yet notwithstanding it hath alwaies been received without any contradiction for divine, and altogether Canonicall, and is held in high esteeme and reverence by the Church, induced thereunto by the light and secret direction of the holy Ghost, who hath imprinted in it a most certaine perswasion, and a lively knowledge of divine inspiration, by which it hath been endited, for an expresse, and most necessary declaration and confirmation of the highest points of faith. The Hebrews to whom it is directed were Iewes converted to Christ, and especially those of Iudea and Ierusalem, who being habituated in the Mosaick ceremonies, which were as yet for a while tolerated amongst them, by reason of their weaknesse, they continued in having great beliefe in them, and did beare a great deale of devotion unto them, and did repose in them part of their righteousnesse, holinesse and salvation, and of the service of God, and could not be brought absolutely to cleave to Christ, and rest themselves in him alone; and to hold with the Evangelicall service. And therefore the principall end of this Epistle is to shew that as Christ is the end, the foundation, the body, and the truth of the figures of the Law, which of themselves were of no vertue for the soule, so having accomplished them in himselfe, he hath annihilated the use of them, and hath taken away those vailes, and those shaddows, to give way unto the cleare and naked truth of the purgation of sinnes, and of mans full reconciliation with God, by the onely Sacrifice, perfect obedience and continuall intercession of himselfe. So then in the very beginning he sets downe, that Christ the everlasting Sonne of God, being come into the World hath by his Office of Soveraigne Prophet fully manifested unto men, the everlasting will and secret councell of God concerning their salvation. And to induce men to believe, obey, and reverence his Gospell, the Apostle extols his person, as well by the everlasting Essence, Power, and Glory of his Divine Nature, as by the Soveraigne Majesty of the Kingdome which the Father hath bestowed upon him, in the quality of Mediator, above the Angels themselves; beneath the which he had abased himselfe by assuming humane nature, and by his sufferings, and death. Then afterwards for confirmation of the same he compareth him with Moses, the most Excellent of all the ancient Prophets, shewing that Christ is infinitely above him, as well in dignity of person, as in eminency of office; wherefore to avoid farre greater punishments, then those which the despisers of Moses runne into, and likewise to obtaine everlasting happinesse which he could not give: we were to accept of and retaine Christs Words, Promises, and Benefit, by a constant faith, whose chiefe ground and foundation is his Priestly Office, which he hath perfectly accomplished; And consequently he begins very largely to treat of that Office; shewing first, what similitude there was between the Leviticall Priesthood and Christs, to shew that in this, there are all the truths, and essentiall properties of a true Priesthood, and in the other there were but onely figures, and resemblances of this. But before he passeth any further he doth sharply reprove the slacknesse and negligence of the Hebrews in advancing themselves to the full knowledge of the faith and mysteries of Christianity, shewing them the danger of falling into apostacie, to the irrevocable damnation of their soules. Against which notwithstanding he doth strengthen them by the firmnesse of Gods promises, so that on their parts they will worthily cooperate with his grace. Thence he goeth on to shew what difference there was betweene Christs eternall Sacrifice, and the mutable and transitory Leviticall Sacrifice, between the new Covenant grounded upon the first, and the old established upon this latter, between the spirituall vertue of Christs onely Sacrifice, and that of the ancient Sacrifices, which was but figurative and ceremoniall; for those Priests being but mortall men, and the Sacrifices of nothing but bruit beasts, it was impossible that the effects of either should goe any further; and all this to teach, that by the accomplishment of the figures, the use of them is blotted out, and made unprofitable to the conscience. And that without any dammage, yea with great advantage, Christ doth from these externall and corporall things, bring and retaine unto himselfe nothing but the soule, and faith of his beleevers, presenting the spirituall reality in himselfe; a benefit which is rejected as not accomplished, if a man turnes backe to those ancient rudiments; and therefore he doth redouble his exhortations to the Hebrews, for to persevere in the faith of Christ, by by which they are so farre from forsaking the examples of the holy fathers, that contrariwise by that onely they had a true and spirituall communion with them, who by faith were alwayes looking after the Messias, and after the full performance of Gods promises in him, and by vertue of the same faith they had been capable of all the singular benefits of God, had exercised all manner of vertues, and had endured, and overcome all combates: wherefore this so excellent meanes of eternall salvation, and of all temporall deliverances, was not to be rejected as new, but was to be esteemed and made use of as the onely and constant meanes to receive Gods grace, and to yeeld him acceptable service and obedience. Finally, after new exhortations to perseverance in faith, to suffering of afflictions, to constancie, holinesse, gratitude, and respect to God, to charitie, chastitie, and to the true spirituall service, he recommends them to Gods grace, and himself to their prayers.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. Sundry times] The Greek word signifieth by sundry degrees and parts, now more, now lesse, now one thing, and now another. By the Prophets] the Italian, In the Prophets; A manner of speaking very frequent in the old Testament, to shew the internal revelation of Gods mysteries in the soules of Prophets, for them afterwards to reveal them to the Church.

V. 2. In these last] In the accomplishment of times, and in the dayes of the Church, while it is in the world, which shall now suffer no more alteration, nor innouation in its general forme, but after it shall come eternitie. Spoken] Hath fully declared his councel concerning the salvation of mankinde, John 15.15. and sealed and fulfilled the prophecies, Dan. 9.24. and established a perpetuall and invariable forme of governing and instructing his Church by the Gospel. By his Son] the Italian, In his Son; in whom the Deitie inhabits corporally, and in whom are hidden all the treasures of knowledge and wisdom, Col. 2.3.9. Whom] namely, in the qualitie of Mediatour, having taken humane flesh, in which God hath exalted him after his humiliation. Heir] that is to say, Lord and possessour of the whole world, by his eternal Fathers gift, Matth. 28.18. John 3.35. and 5.22. Phil 2.9,10. He made] As by his eternal wisdom, and by way of a joynt-cooperating and equal cause, Prov. 8.27. John 5.17. 1 Cor. 8.6. Now this and the beginning of the next verse hath a relation to Christs divine nature, out of the qualitie of Mediatour, to which belongs that which is spoken in the end of the next verse. The worlds] and all temporal things, subject to the course, divisions, and successions of time, Heb. 11.3. or all the parts of the world, according to the manner of the Hebrewes.

V. 3. The brightnesse] A figurative terme, taken from the luminous bodies which cast forth their beames, to shew that the Son proceeds from the Fathers Essence, and is inseparable from him, and doth manifest him, the Father remaining in his inaccessible glorie, hidden from men, Matth. 11.27. John 1.18. and 4.29. 1 Tim. 6.16. Expresse Image] the Italian, the character; an Image that is not vain, nor composed of a shadow, but a living, expresse, subsisting, and most perfect one; such a Son is imprinted (as one should say) in him by the Fathers person, who is the Fountain of all Deitie. Upholding] upholding them in their being, moving them in their actions, and governing them in all their motions, by his almightie command, and according to his will. Of the Majestie] namely, of God; the Hebrewes using the word Majestie for God himselfe.

V. 4. Being made] by God the Father, in his exaltation, in qualitie of Mediatour, to which belongs that which is spoken in the end of the following verse. As he hath] for the Father hath conferred the command of the whole world upon him, as to his universal Vicegerent, Phil. 2.9,10. and in this power his Godhead is fully manifested, for he could neither bear it nor exercise it if he were not God Almightie, and therefore in regard as well of his eternal generation, Psal. 2.7. as in regard of his royal Office, figured by that of Solomon; 2 Sam 7.14. the title of Son of God is attributed to him, as it said in the following verse.

V. 5. Said he] namely, God, in the Scripture.

V. 6. When he] namely, when God by the Psalmist describes the comming of his everlasting Son into the world, who is his first-borne, that is to say, the Head of the house, his Fathers Vicegerent, and Master over all the other adoptive brethren, to take possession of his Kingdom. See Heb. 10.5.

V. 7. His Angels] See upon Psal. 104.4. the reason of this allegation.

V. 10. Hast laid the foundation] the meaning of this passage, as it is here alleaged, is nothing, but that Christs Kingdom, which is there manifestly spoken of, Psal. 102.28. is eternal, and not mutable, as the state of the world.

V.12. Fold them up] The Greekes have in this manner translated the Hebrew word, Thou shalt change them; for the terme of Folding up, is taken from those garments that are folded and laid up when they are changed. See Isai 34.4.

CHAP. II.

VER.1. Therefore] namely, because of Christs Majestie, and divine Authoritie, who is the everlasting King of the Church. Ought earnestlie heed] by obedience and perseverance. To the things] namely, to the Gospel, which is as it were the Law of this foresaid great King. Let them slip] that is to say, that we may not go away from the communion of Christ and his Church, nor forsake his faith and service, like disbanded souldiers, who forsake their colours and captain, Jude 12.

V.2. If the Word] namely, Moses his Law published by the Ministerie of Angels, Acts 7.53. Gal. 3.19. ministring to the great Angel, which was the Son of God himselfe, Acts 7.38. or all the revelations which were made to the Prophets by the meanes of Angels. Stedfast] was of such authoritie and consequence, that those who violated it could not scape unpunished.

V.3. So great] namely, everlasting redemption, revealed and communicated by the Gospel, and implicitly by the Apostle opposed to the temporal deliverance out of Egypt, for the contemning of which, the Israelites were punished in the wildernesse. Confirmed] by all manner of proofes, of doctrine, of life, and of miracles.

V.4. Miracles] the Italian, powerfull operations; whereby are meant the highest and sublimest kindes of miracles. See 1 Cor. 12.10. According to] See 1 Cor. 12.11.

V.5. For unto] He proves that though our Lord Jesus hath taken upon him humane flesh, yet there is no lesse obedience or reverence due to him, seeing that in this assumption and union of the two natures, the Father hath made him Head of the renewed state of the world: and he seemes to exalt Christ so much above the Angels, because the carnal Jewes did so much magnifie their Law which had been proclaimed by Angels, in contempt of the Gospel, preached by Christ, man, and by the Apostles. The world] he cals the state of the world, so being by Christ restored from its ruine and spoil, which through sin and death had befallen it, as it had been foretold by the Prophets, that it should be under the Messias, the accomplishment whereof shall not be till his last comming, Isai 65.17. and 66.22. Rom. 8.20. Rev. 21.1.

V.6. But one] that is to say, he hath subjected it to man in Christs person, as it appeares by that passage of the Psalmist. What is man? See the Exposition of this upon Psal. 8.4.

V.7. Thou madest him] Though the humane nature which Christ hath taken upon him, of it selfe be inferiour to the Angels, who are spiritual creatures, more sublime, potent, and glorious than man, yet the universall Kingdom is attributed to Christ Man, and not to the Angels. A little] this, if it have a relation to Christ, signifies the time of his humiliation.

V.8. For in that] in this universalitie of things, which are subject to Christs Kingdom, the Angels themselves are comprehended. But now] though for the present we do not yet see the accomplishment of this Kingdom, the Church being as yet not wholly gathered together, nor glorified, nor joyned with God, nor all her enemies beaten down and destroyed, yet Christ reigneth powerfully, and fulfilleth every thing from time to time according to his will and pleasure.

V.9. We see] by the high effects made manifest, and considered by faith. For the] See upon Phil. 2.9. That he] now he proceeds to set down why Christ was made man, namely, that he might suffer death for sinfull men. By the grace] which is the first cause of salvation by Christ, which he gives unto man for the price of his redemption, and likewise accepts of it for satisfaction of his debt. Should taste] should die, and should feel the extreme paines of death, as it is joyned with Gods wrath, and with his curse upon sin, for which he had made himselfe a suretie, and therefore is likened to a bitter cup, Matth. 20.22. and 26.39.42. For every man] namely, for every one of them whom his father hath bestowed upon him, in which is comprehended the universaltie of his bodie, and of his Kingdom, John 6.45. and 10.15. and 12.32. Rom. 5.11.

V.10. It became] it was a thing conformable, and agreeable with his justice, that Christ should make satisfaction for the sinnes of men. Him for] namely, God the Father, who is the soveraigne Authour, and cause of all things, and chiefly of the Elects salvation, to whose glorie all things ought to be directed, and referred as to their last end, Rom. 11.36. whereupon for the glorie of Christ our surelies great righteousnesse, and of his infinite mercie towards men, this meanes of salvation hath been most fitting and convenient. To make] the Italian, to consecrate; namely, to make him perfectly fitting, and sufficient, to be the Authour of eternal salvation to the Elect by the sacrifice of himselfe, Isai 53.10. and by it install him in his Kingdom, a terme taken from the ancient consecrations of Priests, Exod. 29. The Captain] the Italian, the Prince; namely, Christ Jesus, who by his Priesthood hath obtained right to everlasting salvation for Gods children, and by his Kingdom brings them to the perfect fruition of it.

V.11. For] As he had in the former verse declared ned, that it was conveniene that Gods justice should receive satisfaction; so now he further sheweth that it ought to be done by one who was likewise of humane nature, as he was to whom the Law was given. He that sanctifieth] namely, Christ according to the flesh, in whom, and by whom, the guilt of sin hath been expiated, and the corruption purified. And they] namely, Gods elect. Are all] are all come from one father, namely Adam.

V.13. I will put my trust] because David in all that eighteenth Psalme was the figure of Christ, these words of the Psalme also ought to be applied to Christ, to shew that he is not onely become Man, but hath also taken the condition of Man upon him, by being subject to the Law, and bound to fulfill it, upon confidence of the reward promised therefore, *Gal.*4. Or to a man in a lowly estate, weakneſſe, and miserie, who did not for the present enjoy those goods which he expected, and depended upon God, and craved for assistance from his power and rested upon him. And again] in this passage Isai his children were also a figure of Christ, being given by God for a token and assurance of a temporal deliverance, which was the figure of the Everlasting, which is promised together with it, Isai 8.10.

V.14. The children] namely, Isai his children: Are partakers] the Italian, were partakers; were very men, subject to the same chances and dangers, and were tokens & pledges of a deliverance, and not Angels, nor glorified men. He also] that is to say, Christ hath likewise been very man as we all are, to be not onely the signe or token, but also the Authour and Foundation of salvation. Through death] that by it having expiated the elects sinnes, and appeased Gods wrath, he might disannull the devils power over them, which he exerciſes onely to death and destruction, as minister of Gods wrath upon sin.

V.15. Them] the Italian, all them; this must be restrained onely to the elect, as verse 9. *Rom.*11.32. *Gal.*1.20. Through fear] who even in this world carried the devils bonds, and prison in their consciences, by the terrours of everlasting death, the true forerunners of hell torments, which was figured by the besieged Jewes terrour, Isai 7.2. to whom Isai with his children were sent to encourage them, Isai 8.11.18.

V.16. For verily] He confirmes that which he had said verse 14. of Christs communion in the selfe same humane nature, for it is never said in the Scripture, that he took upon him the nature of Angels in a personall union, as he is foretold, and represented true Man, the Son of David, and of Abraham.

V.17. Wherefore] seeing he hath made himselfe true man, to save us, it behoved him also to put on all our conditions, not onely the natural ones, but also those that are come upon us by reason of sin, excepting sin it selfe. That he might be] that being touched with a lively feeling of the miseries of humane nature, he might the rather be induced to free it from them by the sacrifice of himselfe, and by his intercession, wherein he should shew great mercie towards men, and perfect loyaltie and obedience to God in performing the taske which was imposed upon him. Pertaining to] every Priest being a Mediatour between God and men, to offer unto God sacrifices, prayers, and intercessions, and to do all other religious actions, *Heb.*5.1. and to bring men tidings of Gods peace and grace, and to blesse and instruct them in his Name. See *Exod.*18.19.

V.18. For in that] he proves the foresaid things by the event, namely, because Christ doth now shew himselfe to his believers in effect powerfull enough, to free them from temptations, and from the terrors of death and judgement, he himselfe having tried the same agonies for them, and overcome them.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. Wherefore] Let the qualitie of King of the Church which Christ hath, as hath been said before, induce you to respect that of Prophet and Doctor, which he begins to speak of now. Consider] be attentive and give reverence and obedience to Christ, who hath been appointed by God to be the great Prophet, to bring us tidings of the Gospel, of which we all make profession, and high Priest also. Now in this Chapter and the next he talkes of the first, which is the Prophetical Office, and in the fifth of the Priestly Office.

V.2. Who was] the Italian, who; of whom may be spoken in all perfection, and in an higher sense, that which was spoken of Moses, *Numb.*12.7. which seemes to be mentioned by the Apostle, to shew the Hebrewes who were great admirers of Moses, that by extolling of Christ he did not take any thing away from Moses, but did onely teach how proportions should be kept, and the degrees of honour due to each of them.

V.3. For] this is the reason of the exhortation, verse 1. This man] hath been by the Father placed in a degree and office befitting the Highneſse of his Person. In as much] to draw the Hebrewes mildely away from their unmeasurable esteem which they held Moses and his Law in, to the prejudice of Christ, he sheweth that Moses in his person and office is infinitely inferior to Christ; in as much as Moses is man, Christ is God; Moses is in Gods House as a member and servant, Christ is the Builder and Lord of it, as he is the Son; whereupon he concludes verse 7. that Christ ought not to be disobeyed under pretence of any other authoritie, ſeeing that no man is to be compared with Him.

V. 4. For every] this comparion is grounded upon a thing which every one knoweth: namely, that every houſe muſt have a builder, and was not made by it ſelf, and that the Architect is more excellent then the building. So that if Moſes hath been a beleever in the houſe of God, this houſe muſt have had a builder, and that is no man but Chriſt: who therefore is far greater then Moſes, who in his own perſon hath been but a part of this building, nor in his office any more then a ſervant. All things] namely, all the parts of the Church. Epheſ. 1. 10. and 3. 9. as well in framing them by his word and Spirit, as in gathering them together in himſelf. Is God] namely, as he is of divine nature, and not meerly man, as Moſes.

V. 5. For a teſtimonie] truly to relate as a faithfull witneſſe, not his own words, but thoſe which he had heard of Chriſt, Acts 7. 38. whereas Chriſt ſpeaketh nothing but his own word, verſ. 7.

V. 6. Over his own] that is to ſay, He is not in Gods houſe onely as a ſervant and a ſteward, but over it as his own, like the Lord and maſter of it. If we] for perſeverance is the true effect and mark of thoſe who are living members of Chriſt and of his Church, ſee Rom. 11. 22. Coloſſ. 1. 23. Heb. 3. 14. and 6. 11. The confidence and rejoycing] the Italian, the freedom and boaſting of the hope] that is to ſay, The free and conſtant profeſſion of the faith, through which, upon the confidence of eternall goods, you glory and triumph in the croſſe and perſecutions of this world, Rom. 5. 3, 4. He ſpeaks this, becauſe that the greateſt ſtumbling block the Hebrew Chriſtians had, was their Nations perſecution.

V. 8. The provocation] namely, the cruell and exaſperated contention.

V. 13. While it is] while the time is that God calleth us and exhorts us, &c. in the ſame manner as it is repreſented unto us, Pſal. 95. which is the time of grace, patience, and hope, after which time all theſe things are cut off, Pſal. 32. 6. Iſai. 55. 6. John 12. 35. 2 Cor. 6. 2. Be hardned] allured, and ſeduced by his own naturall corruption, or by his carnall concupiſcences, Rom. 7. 11. James 1. 14. that he do not by little and little come obſtinately to refuſe Gods grace, and loſe all manner of feeling of it, and all true judgement of conſcience, and ſo rebell openly againſt God.

V. 14. For we are] the great and chief cauſe which ought to move us to this duty, is the ſoveraign benefit which we have received in the communion of Chriſt by faith. If we] ſee verſ. 6. The beginning] namely, the gift of Gods Spirit and Faith, which is as the root by which we live and ſubſiſt ſpiritually in Chriſt, Rom. 11. 18, 20. Gal. 2. 20. or our firſt firmeneſſe and conſtant expectation.

V. 15. While it is] we ought to perſevere unto the end, for untill that time the word To day, will take place.

V. 16. Howbeit not all] for Caleb and Joſhua are excepted, Numb. 14. 30.

V. 19. We ſee] the event did confirm Gods threatning, as we all know.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. A Promiſe being left] there is yet to day a promiſe left concerning a ſpirituall and everlaſting reſt, of which the Apoſtle ſpeaks afterwards, beſides of the reſt in Canaan, verſ. 9. Others tranſlate it, Leſt that ſome of you, having (namely through incredulity, or by a revolt) forgon the promiſe of entring into his reſt, ſeem to be deprived of it. Should ſeem] not that he is indeed excluded through his own fault: a kinde of ſpeech to mitigate the haindneſſe of the thing, ſee Hebr. 12. 15.

V. 2. For unto us] he confirms the former exhortation (for) unto Chriſtians is made a promiſe of grace, as there was formerly to the ancient Jews. Mixed] the Italian, incorporated; the Apoſtle uſeth a terme which ſeems to be taken from food which is digeſted, and therefore inſeparably united to his body that eateth it: So Gods word is the food of the ſoul which profiteth not, unleſſe it be applied by lively faith, which is in ſtead of the mouth and other organs of nouriſhment, ſee John 6. 35.

V. 3. For we] a continuation of the ſame confirmation. If we have received a promiſe of the ſame kinde, we ſhall likewiſe obtain the like effect of reſt by means of a faith like unto that faith which was required in our Anceſtours. Do enter] that is to ſay, We have all thoſe qualities which are required for to enter into it, and ſhall aſſuredly enter into it; and do already begin to enter into it, even in this world, by reſt of conſcience and by ceaſing from ſinne. As he ſaid] we muſt ſupply, but unbeleevers ſhall not enter into it according to this threatning of the Pſal. 95. Although the] that is to ſay, Gods reſt promiſed to beleevers, is no more the land of Canaan, but a reſt correſpondent unto that of which it is ſaid that God reſteth himſelf, after he had made an end of creating his works; for as after that, God, as one ſhould ſay, did retire himſelf to the quiet enjoying of himſelf, and of his glory and bleſſedneſſe. So beleevers being by death freed from the works of this life, and from all ſinnes and troubles, ſhall live together with God in perfect reſt of glory, Rev. 14. 13.

V. 4. He ſpake] namely, God ſpeaking in the Scriptures.

V. 6. Seeing therefore] ſeeing there is a reſt, like unto unto Gods reſt, and that ſome muſt enter into it, as it appears by the comparing of thoſe two paſſages which cannot be done but onely by faith, ſeeing the others were for incredulity excluded out of it, God would by David admoniſh the Church, that he had appointed a certain time, namely, that of the preaching of the Goſpell, in which he would for the laſt time, and at full propound his promiſe of eternall reſt, inviting men to enter into it by faith, with threatnings to unbeleevers to baniſh them from it for ever. It remaineth] ſeeing this ſtands firme and irrevocable by Gods order, and that this promiſe is not yet performed. Of unbeleefe] or rebellion.

V. 7. Again] beſides his old time of patience with the Iſraelites in the wilderneſſe. In David] namely, in his Pſalms. After ſo long] namely, after the entring into the land of Canaan, which was the reſt out of which the unbeleevers of thoſe dayes were excluded.

V. 8. For if] he proveth that there is another reſt beſides the ancient reſt in the land of Canaan; for if all the promiſe of Gods reſt had been accompliſhed at the entring into the land of Canaan with Joſhua, God needed not to have exhorted them by David, not to harden themſelves againſt his voice, upon pain of being excluded out of his reſt, into which they were gathered long before.

V. 9. A reſt] the Italian, a Sabbaths reſt; namely, a ſpirituall, ſacred, and divine reſt from all works, ſinnes, and troubles of this preſent life, to live wholly to God.

V. 10. For he] he gives a reaſon why he had called an everlaſting reſt a Sabbaths reſt, namely, becauſe in it a man obtains a reſt like unto Gods reſt.

V. 11. Fall] that is to ſay, Periſh, as anciently the children of Iſrael, bodies fell dead in the wilderneſſe, Numb. 14. 29, 32. After the ſame] namely, in imitation of the ſame ſinne: or by ſuch another exemplary puniſhment.

V. 12. For] to draw away the Hebrews from ſinning againſt Chriſt that great Prophets word, he ſhews the terrible power of it againſt Hypocrites and unbeleevers. The word] he attributes that to Gods Word which belongeth to God himſelf, or to Chriſt working by it, and mortally wounding the unbeleevers and rebellious mans ſoul by a true feeling of Gods curſe, and againſt which there is no defence nor remedy, ſeeing it doth penetrate into all parts of man, ſee Iſa. 11. 4. and 49. 2. Revel. 1. 16. and 2. 16. and 2 Cor. 2. 16. To the dividing] namely, ſo far into man, that it divides the very ſoul, &c. Figurative termes, taken from a well ground and ſharpned knife, which doth ſo peece-meal cut out the carcaſe of a beaſt, that it pierceth through every joynt, be it never ſo ſtraight or ſmall. Now the ſoul is here repreſented as a body, whoſe principall parts are the ſoul, that is to ſay, the animall and ſenſuall part: and the Spirit, that is to ſay, the intellectuall and rationall part, and by theſe diviſions and diſmembrings of the inner parts, is meant the totall ſlaying and deſtruction of the ſoul. A diſcerner of] the Italian, Is the judge of; in as much as the conſcience being lively touched, doth redargue thoſe thoughts and intents in man himſelf on Gods behalf, ſee Acts 2. 37. and 19. 18. 1 Cor. 14. 24. man being not able to ſhun this judgement, neither by flight nor by hiding himſelf.

V. 13. Opened unto] the Greek word ſignifieth, a body lying upon the ground with its face upward. With whom we have] the Italian, to whom we muſt give an account; or of whom we ſpeak.

V. 14. That we have] ſeeing we have ſaid, Heb. 3. 1. that Chriſt is the chief Apoſtle and Prieſt of the Church, as by the firſt qualitie, you have heard how dangerous it is, to not beleeve in him, or rebell againſt his word: ſo by the ſecond, of Prieſt, conſider how profitable and ſaving it will be for you to cleave unto him by faith & perſeverance. That is paſſed into] namely, who after he had fulfilled all parts of his prieſtly function upon earth, is entred into Gods moſt inward preſence, there to make interceſſion for the Church perpetually, to the likeneſſe of the high Prieſt under the Law, who went once a yeer into the Sanctuary, Levit. 16. 2. to ſhew that if Chriſt hath accompliſhed his work, and doth make the fruit thereof eternall by his interceſſion: man ought alſo to perform his duty by perſeverance if he means to partake of that fruit. Our profeſſion] the Italian, the confeſſion; that is to ſay, the profeſſion of Chriſtian faith and religion in words and deeds, ſee Rom. 10. 9, 10.

V. 15. Which cannot] that is, incapable of being moved to compaſſion towards us ſinners and afflicted perſons, to relieve us according to his office, either not knowing, or having not tried our miſeries, Heb. 2. 18. or wanting power to aid us, as it would have been if Chriſt himſelf being righteous had not ſuffered for us unrighteous. Tempted] that is to ſay, afflicted, exerciſed, and tried by all manner of torments and troubles. Without ſinne] there being no cauſe of thoſe evils in him, he paying that which he did not owe, Pſal. 69. 4. Iſai. 53. 9. 1 Pet. 3. 18. or without corrupting any of his ſufferances by any act of ſinne, but with a moſt perfect obedience, patience, and charity, which makes his ſufferings meritorious before God to give ſatisfaction for ſinners. Others, except ſin.

V. 16. Unto the throne] that is to ſay, to God, proceeding not as an inexorable Judge, Pſal. 97. 2. but as a Soveraign Prince appeaſed and propitious, granting his grace and pardon to abſolve, ſave, and defend.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 1. [For every] he proves by all the properties of a Priest, that Christ is one indeed, as he had said, Hebr. 4. 15. Taken from] namely, a humane Priest, opposite to Christ who is true God, vers. 5. and likewise true man, vers. 7. For men] namely, to present themselves before God for man, with sacrifices and prayers, and to be a means to work his peace. Gifts] the Italians, offerings; this word set down as different from sacrifices, signifies the offering of things that have no life.

V. 2. Who can have] who by the lively feeling which he can have of other mens miseries, which he taketh in himself, may be capable of being touched with hearty compassion to relieve them by his sacrifices and prayers inflamed with charity and zeal. With infirmity] namely, with sinne, which being referred to Christ, ought to be understood onely of the miseries and punishment of sinne, wherewith he took but the name himself, and not of any guilt in him. He is beset] that is to say, He cannot be a lawfull Priest in the Church, unlesse he have his calling from God, by the wayes and according to the Laws which he hath appointed.

V. 5. Christ] as he is man he did not put himself into this glorious dignity and office: and as he is the Son of God, he hath no will separate from the Fathers, who is the spring and originall of all things. But he] the meaning is, not that the Sonne hath been made high Priest, by these words of Psal. 2. but plainly, that he was so made by the everlasting Father, described by this circumlocution.

V. 7. Who] namely, Christ. In the dayes] whilest he was yet in the world, in the course of his obedience and humiliation, living a terrestriall and animall life, opposite to the glorious and spirituall state of the celestiall life, see 1 Cor. 15. 44. 2 Cor. 5. 16. When he had] this is to shew, that the substance of Christs Sacrifice consisteth not wholly in his corporall death, but much more in the torments and anguishes of the soul, which he in his life time suffered for sinnes, of the curse whereof he drank the cup in the unspeakable feeling of Gods wrath, and in the ineffable suspension of the sweet influence of Gods love upon his humanity. With strong crying] he hath a relation to Christs last agonies and fervent prayers, which are set down by the Evangelists. Unto him] namely, to God the Father, who might have freed him from the passage to death, if his counsell to save the world thereby had not been against it, Matth. 26. 53. Mark 14. 36. and likewise could after he was dead, according to this said order, make him live again by a glorious resurrection. Was heard] God having, according to Christs intention in his prayer, strengthned and born him up in his horrible terrours, conflicts, and agonies, Luke 22. 43. He feared] which in Christ was a meer and plain naturall affection, apprehending an unspeakable future evill and pain, without diffidence, vice, or excesse.

V. 8. Learned he] that is to say, he did shew that he was in regard of his father by his own nature, namely, his everlasting Sonne: he did in own will took upon him the new quality of obedient servant, Philip. 2. and through divers degrees of sufferings, was prepared for the last point of them, which was the death of the crosse. Or he tried in effect, and felt how far that obedience did binde him to which he had subjected himself by his office of Mediatour.

V. 9. Made perfect] the Italian, fully consecrated, namely, by his death, in which he did not onely fulfill all things for us, John 19. 30. but he himself likewise came to the height of his priestly office, having in himself the foundation of the beleevers salvation, by his death and by his resurrection, all the means to apply it unto them, see Luke 24. 32. The obey him] by true faith answerable to Gods calling.

V. 10. Called] being after his death, resurrection, and ascension into Heaven, really invested with his full power, and his Priestly and Kingly dignity joyntly, as Psal. 110. 4. it is said that he was installed in his priesthood, sitting already at Gods right hand, Psal. 110. 1. After the order] of which Priesthood, in its singular properties and circumstances, Melchisedech was a signe, figure, and example. Now even from this place the Apostle begins to shew in what Christs priesthood was different from the Levitical, which he will begin again to treat of more largely, Chap. 7.

V. 11. Of whom] namely, of Christ compared with Melchisedech. And hard] in regard of your dulnesse and incapacity. Dull of hearing] Stolid, and of a dull apprehension in spirituall things, like as for want of exercise the members become benummed and stiffe, see Matth. 13. 15.

V. 12. For the time] namely, since you were first instructed in Christian Doctrine. First principles] that is to say, the first rudiments, and as it were the alphabet of Gods word.

V. 13. For every one] high and profound Doctrine is no fitting er for those who are novices in matters of faith, then solid food is for little children, for that requires a strength equall and proportionable to apprehend and digest it by meditation, wherein a spirituall judgement is necessary, confirmed by much use and practice, which such novices have not. In the word] namely, in the doctrine of the Gospell, whose subject is the true and onely righteousnesse of faith, Rom. 1. 17. Or he knoweth not perfourm to likewise, which is the true pure, and holy doctrine, from that which is not.

not

Vers. 2. Of full age] the Italian ne compiutheti; a word signifying ripe age: and one that is come to be a compleat man, as 1 Cor. 14. 20. we one that is a good proficient in holy matters, as 1 Cor. 2. 6. Byreason of use] by a certaine firme, and permanent quality, and faculty produced in beleevers by the holy Ghost, by reason of a long and continuall practice, and study. Their senses] namely, their judgements, and understandings.

CHAP. VI.

Vers. 1. Leaving] a terme taken from those which runne races, at publike sports, when they inlarge ours. The meaning is, advancing our selves to the utmost of our power, beyond those first principles in the understanding of Christian doctrine. Unto perfection] namely, to the highest degree of knowledge, feeling, and beliefe of these things to which man can attaine in this world; befitting persons whoome of full age in the inward and spirituall man, Eph. 4. 13. Phil. 3. 15. and by this meanes unto the perfection reserved for the Kingdome of Heaven, 1 Cor. 13. 9, 10. Not laying againe] returning no more as from the beginning, to instruct and resolve you in the first grounds of the Christian Catechisme, as in a doctrine which you have forgotten, and is become unknowne, and uncertaine unto you, like a building which is wholy ruined, and must be built up againe from the foundation. Of repentance] these are the heads of Christian doctrine which were taught little children, and novices, in a plaine, lowly and rough manner. From dead works] namely, from all actions of man out of Gods grace (wherein consists spirituall death) who are deprived of the life and light of Gods Spirit: are vicious, and corrupt, and cannot bring forth any fruit of life, Rom. 8. 6, 13. Heb. 9. 14.

V. 2. Of the doctrine] namely, concerning the signification, vertue, and use of the Sacrament of Baptisme, formerly administred generally at certaine times. Or, concerning the more common and necessary arguments of faith; upon which were examined those who were baptized, being of any growne age. Or, the fathers who presented their children to be baptized, and answered for them upon these questions, See upon 1 Pet. 3. 21. Of laying on] which was a ceremonie joyned to baptisme, for a signe of blessing and consecration to God. Some referre it to an ancient custome of laying on of hands, on them who having beene already baptized in their infancie, made confession of their faith, when they were come to the age of discretion; in signe of confirmation in their baptisme. Eternall judgement] when the Sonne of God shall give judgement either to eternall death, or life.

V. 3. This will we do] I hope with Gods grace and help we shall all doe so.

V. 4. For it is] he gives a reason of the exhortation of the verse. 1. the wing that through the neglect and contempt of putting ones selfe forward in the faith, man by little and little will lose it altogether; and will let the gift of the Holy Ghost be altogether extinguished: and fall into universall apostasie, which is a sinne to death, and irremissible. Enlightned] by Gods Word, and by some beame of the holy Ghost, which notwithstanding, through their vice, hath not penetrated so fare as to transforme them and regenerate them wholly to the divine image, as the elect are, 2 Cor. 3. 18. 2 Pet. 2. 20, 21. Have tasted] have felt some transient comfort, sweetnesse and joy of Gods grace offered by the Gospel, and received of them by a certaine shadow of faith for a time, Matth. 13. 20. Mat. 3. 11. Of the holy Ghost] of which all those that are lawfully baptized doe receive some gift, according to Christs promise, Matth. 3. 11. Act. 2. 38. seeing that no man without it can say Jesus is the Lord, 1 Cor. 12. 3. But the elect only receive that of true and entire regeneration.

V. 5. Have tasted] have had a sleight and superficiall participation of it with some delight, but have not wholly digested it, nor are fully nourished and satisfied with it. The good word] namely, the sweet and saving promises of grace in Christ, opposite to the words of the Law, which to a sinfull man are a ministery of death, Rom. 4. 15. 2 Cor. 3. 7, 9. The powers] the wonders, and the glorious power of Christs spirituall raigne, the time of which before his comming was called the World to come, Heb. 2. 5.

V. 6. Fall away] not by some particular sin of humane frailty, but by an intire & voluntary apostasie, and renouncing of the faith, doe returne to the state of spirituall death, and totall separation from God, as they were before their vocation, See Jude 12. Seeing they] he shewes the impossibility of such apostats repentance, for they killing Christ maliciously, and with an ignominious contempt, (as one should say) who began to live in them by his Spirit, Col. 2. 12. & 3. 1. doe make themselves accessary of Judas, and the Jewes sinne, which crucified Christ; which misdeed was by the Lord himselfe declared to be irremissible, Matth. 26. 24. John 8. 21. & 17. 12. To open shame] for this spirituall death, hath this resemblance with Christs Crosse, that as it was accompanied with the derision and scorne of his enemies, so in the other the apostate doth expose Christ to the divels ignominy, as having overcome him, and driven him out of his possession.

V. 7. For the earth] as the earth which is well manured and watered with raine, is answerable thereunto, by fructifying with good plants, and the more it is bettered by art, and care, the more fruitfull it is made by Gods blessing. And contrarywise that whose boldnesse makes the labour which is taken about it, to prove vaine, and the raine that fals upon it to doe no good, is at the last forsaken as desperate Land; and becomes either a heeriz and accursed Wildernesse, condemned to perpetuall drought, or the plants which grow upon it are consumed by the fire, being good for nothing else. So men that is manured by Gods Word, and watered by the gifts of his Spirit, if he doe beare fruits of regeneration, receiveth confirmation, and encrease of Gods graces. And if he doe the contrary, God doth reject him, and takes away his gifts from him, and doth reserve him for everlasting punishment, Matth. 25. 29, 30.

V. 8. It is cursed.] is desperate in its malignity and abandoned as of no value.

V. 9. That accompanie] namely, by which one doth assuredly come to salvation, which make no interruption in the course of meanes thereunto, and are as in the links and sequel thereof.

V. 10. For God] thanks to say, the hope of which I have of you is founded upon God, who according to the truth of his promises, will reward your sich workes, with the confirmation and encrease of his grace and vertue, to keepe you from this danger, and to accomplish your salvation. See Phil. 2. 12, 13. Your worke] namely, all your good workes, brought forth by the roote of a true and lively faith. Toward his name] namely towards himselfe, in the person of those who call upon his Name, and for the love of him, see Matth. 10. 41, 42. & 25. 40.

V. 11. To the full] the meaning is, that as they have begun, so they should persevere unto the end, that they may be fully assured and confirmed in the hope of eternall goods.

V. 12. Of them] namely, of constant beleevers, who by faith have been made the children of God, and in this quality have obtained the heavenly inheritance by meanes of perseverance.

V. 13. For when] he proveth by Abrahams example, who was the father of all beleevers, and the depositary of the promises of grace, that they are indeed most firm, but yet, that the accomplishment of them is obtained by faith and patience. See Rom. 4. 16, 18. Gal. 3. 7, 9.

V. 15. He obtained] namely, he is come to the heavenly inheritance, by the righteousnesse of faith, which is the true blessing of God, Gal. 3. 6, 8. and God hath endlesly encreased his spirituall progeny, Rom. 4. 13, 18. of which things the temporall blessings promised him by God, were but onely figures.

V. 16. For men] he sheweth that Abrahams faith could not be frustrat of its expectation, being grounded upon Gods promises, confirmed by an oath, to which if there be credit given amongst men, because God is called as a witnesse, and a Judge: how much more ought we to beleeve it, when it is made use of by God himselfe, from whom dependes the vertue of all oathes. For confirmation] namely, an oath being taken for a sufficient proofe in a doubtfull and an unknowne case, upon which the Judge groundeth his judgement.

V. 17. More abundantly] besides his Word and promises. Unto the heires] namely to his spirituall children, comprehended in Abrahams holy posterity according to the faith, who were also to be heires of the everlasting goods, as Abraham was, see Rom. 4. 16. Confirmed it] bound himselfe, and gave assurance thereof by himselfe. Or made use of an oath therein.

V. 18. By two] namely, by the word, and the oath. We have fled] who have freely forsaken the world, and the rest of our Nation, Heb. 2. 4d. to come into the Church as a place of safety, as Abraham came out of his Country, and from his kindred.

V. 19. As an anchre] by which in the uncertainty of the Sea of this world, our floating soules are staied in Christ, who is gone up into heaven, and sitteth. Which is the foundation of the hope that we his members have that we shall come likewise there where he is, and be like unto him, by the indissoluble union which we have with him our head, Rom. 6. 5. 1 Cor. 15. 13, 30. Which entereth] as an Ancre firmely fixed in a sound bottome. Within the vaile] namely, of Heaven; figured by the most holy place of the ancient Tabernacle and of the Temple; before which the great Vaile or Curtaine was drawne. Exod. 26. 31. 1 King. 6. 21. and within which the high Priest, image of Christ, entered once a yeere, See Heb. 9. 7. 24.

V. 20. Forerunner] namely, he that hath first ended the race, and that is the head of all those who run the same race, or saile in the same Sea, Heb. 12. 2. See Acts 26, 23. 1 Cor 15. 20. Col. 1. 18. For us] to intercede for us, Rom. 8. 34. Heb. 7. 25. & 9. 24. and also to take reall possession of the heavenly Kingdome for himselfe, and all his John 14. 2, 3.

CHAP. VII.

Vers. 1. King of] the Italian, was King; having set downe chap. 5. that Christ is a true Priest, now he sheweth that he is not of the Levitical Order, but of the Order of Melchisedech, which was laid aside from chap. 5. 10. and sets down how this consists in Christs conformity with Melchisedech in these severall heads. First, in the name of Melchisedech, which signifieth King of Righteousnesse; and King of Salem, that is to say, King of peace, which Christ is really and spiritually, Psa. 85. 10. Secondly, in the eternity of his person; Melchisedech being described by Moses, under a certaine shadow of eternity, without making any mention either of his father or his mother, of his birth, linage, or death. So Christ is truely eternall, without any mother, as touching his Godhead, and without any father as concerning his humanity. Thirdly, in the union of the two Offices, of King and Priest, which in spirituall truth belongeth to Christ alone, Zech 6. 13. Fourthly, in so much that Melchisedech is represented to be greater then Abraham, the father of Levi, (and consequently greater then all the Levites) because he blessed Abraham with a solemne and Priestly blessing, which doth impore superiority, which was acknowledged by Abraham himselfe, paying him tithe, which had alwaies been God and his Ministers right, Gen. 14. 20. And so likewise Christ is greater then all the Leviticall Priests; and the authour even of Abrahams owne blessing, and of all the beleevers who are his true off spring in spirit.

V. 3. But made] being propounded as an image and figure of Christ the everlasting Sonne of God, and likewise described by the narration of Scripture, as if he lived for ever, v. 8.

V. 4. The Patriarch] See upon Acts 2. 29.

V. 5. They that are] whosoever payeth tythe, acknowledgeth himselfe inferiour therein to him, to whom he payeth it; though in other respects he may be equall to him. As the Israelites, and the Levites: whereupon the Apostle inferreth that Abraham for all his dignities and preheminences, paying the tythes to Melchisedech, as to Gods Priest, did acknowledge him to be his Superiour, and that there is as much proportion of difference between Melchisedech tything of Abraham, and the Levites tything the childen of Israel, as there is between Abraham paying tithe to Melchisedech, and his posterity paying to the Levites.

V. 6. But he] namely, Melchisedech a Priest, but not of the see of Levi, which doth also serve for the figure of the ministery in Christ, who was of another Tribe, and yet was a Priest, v. 13, 14. That had] with whom God had made the covenant of grace; as with the father of all the blessed seed.

V. 7. Is blessed] this must not be understood of every ordinary blessing, but of a solemn blessing, which is given with an authority received from God, by persons consecrated by him to be ministers of his blessing.

V. 8. And here] namely, in the present use of the Leviticall Priesthood. But there] namely, in Melchisedechs Priesthood, described in the History of Abraham. Of whom] namely, of whom the Scripture speaketh in such a manner, as if he lived for ever, to represent as by a shadow Christs true eternity, verse 3.

V. 9. In Abraham] that is to say, in Abrahams person, not onely he but also his posterity the Levites (though they were afterwards made Priests) were subject to the Priesthood, which is according to the Order of Melchisedech, more High, and more Excellent.

V. 10. He was] namely, this Tribe of Levi, as also all Abrahams posterity were comprehended within him, who represented it all. Now though Christ likewise according to the flesh was in Abrahams loynes, yet he is not comprehended within this number, for he is likewise a Priest, as he is the Sonne of God, in whom also his humane nature subsists, v. 28. Heb. 9. 14.

V. 11. Perfection] because that Psal. 110. 4. God foretelleth of a another Priesthood according to the Order of Melchisedech, which containeth the properties which were before set downe; it appeares, contrary to the Jewes opinion, that the end of this sacred Office could not be fulfilled by the Leviticall Priesthood, which end is to appease God, and reconcile men to him, blesse them, &c. For otherwise there was no need of bringing in another Priesthood, different from the first, Heb. 8. 7. wherby he wil infer, that the Leviticall Priesthood had no power of it self, but was only a figure, & Sacrament of Christs Priesthood, and a direction to him in whom consists the whole efficacy, and who by his Priesthood hath nullified the other figurative Priesthood, Heb. 10. 9. For under it] he seems to give a reason, why he speakes onely of the Priesthood, and not of all the rest of the Ceremoniall Law: which is because the Priesthood was the foundation of it all: whereupon the one being granted, the other must likewise be granted, and the one being altered, or disanulled, the other must likewise be taken away also.

V. 12. For the] the great consequence of the change of all the Divine service which followeth the change of the Priesthood, may give us cause to beleeve that the holy Ghost had some very good reason to bring in another Order of Priesthood: to shew that the Priesthood, and all the ceremoniall worship of the Tribe of Levi, was in the end to give way to Christs Priesthood, in whom is accomplished all the reality, and the truth.

V. 13. For he] we must supply. Now the Priesthood is truely changed, seeing Christ is no way of the Tribe of Levi.

V. 14. And it is yet] the difference of these two Priesthoods appeares not onely by the difference of the ministring persons, but also (and that much more) by the diverse nature of the Priesthoods, the one being altogether external, and ceremoniall; and the other, altogether spirituall.

V. 16. Who] namely, the other who is Christ. Not after] not after such a Priesthood as the Leviticall Priesthood was, which consisted in ceremonies, and corporall things and actions, which must more it is bettered by art, and care, the more fruitfull it is made by Gods blessing. And contrarywise that whose boldnesse makes the labour which is taken about it to prove vaine, and the raine that fals upon it to doe no good, is at the last forsaken as desperate Land; and becomes either a horrid and accursed Wildernesse, condemned to perpetuall drought, or the plants which grow upon it are consumed by the fire, being good for nothing else: So many that is manured by Gods Word, and watered by the gifts of his Spirit, if he doe beare fruits of regeneration, receiveth confirmation, and encreases of Gods graces. And if he doe the contrary, God doth reject him, and takes away his gifts from him, and doth reserve him for everlasting punishment, Matth. 25. 29, 30.

V. 8. Is rejected] is desperate in its malignity, and abandoned as of no value.

V. 9. Than accompanie] namely, by which one doth assuredly come to salvation, which make no interruption in the course of meanes thereunto, and are as in the linke and sequel thereof.

V. 10. For God] thanksgiving, the hope which I have of you is founded upon God, who according to the truth of his promises, will reward your faith workes, with the confirmation and encrease of his grace and vertue, to keepe you from this danger, and to accomplish your salvation, See Phil. 2. 12, 13. Your worke] namely, all your good workes, brought forth by the roote of a true and lively faith. Towards his name] namely, towards himselfe, in the person of those who call upon his Name, and for the love of him see Matth. 10. 41, 42. & 25. 40.

V. 11. To the full] the meaning is, that as they have begun, so they should persevere unto the end, that they may be fully assured and confirmed in the hope of eternall goods.

V. 12. Of them] namely, of constant beleevers, who by faith have been made the children of God, and in this quality have obtained the heavenly inheritance by meanes of perseverance.

V. 13. For when] he proveth by Abrahams example, who was the father of all beleevers and the depositary of the promises of grace, that they are indeed most firm, but yet, that the accomplishment of them is obtained by faith and patience, See Rom. 4. 16, 18. Gal. 3. 7, 9.

V. 15. He obtained] namely, he is come to the heavenly inheritance, by the righteousnesse of faith, which is the true blessing of God, Gal. 3. 6, 8. and God hath endlesly encreased his spirituall progeny, Rom. 4. 13, 18. of which things the temporall blessings promised him by God, were but onely figures.

V. 16. For men] he sheweth that Abrahams faith could not be frustrat of its expectation, being grounded upon Gods promises, confirmed by an oath, to which if there be credit given amongst men, because God is called as a witnesse, and a Judge: how much more ought we to beleeve it, when it is made use of by God himselfe, from whom depends the vertue of all oathes? For confirmation] namely, an oath being taken for a sufficient proofe in a doubtfull and an unknowne case, upon which the Judge groundeth his judgement.

V. 17. More abundantly] besides his Word and promise. Unto the heires] namely to his spirituall children, comprehended in Abrahams holy posterity according to the faith, who were also to be heires of the everlasting goods, as Abraham was, see Rom. 4. 16. Confirmed it] bound himselfe, and gave assurance thereof by himselfe. Or made use of an oath therein.

V. 18. By two] namely, by the word, and the oath. Who have fled] who have freely forsaken the world, and the rest of our Nation, Acts 2. 40. to come into the Church as a place of safety, as Abraham came out of his Countrey, and from his kindred.

V. 19. As an ancre] by which in the uncertainty of the Sea of this world, our floating soules are staied in Christ, who is gone up into heaven, and sitteth. Which is the foundation of the hope that we his members have that we shall come likewise there where he is, and be like unto him, by the indissoluble union which we have with him our head, Rom. 6. 5. 1 Cor. 15. 13, 30. Which entereth] as an Ancre firmely fixed in a sound bottome. Within the vaile] namely, of Heaven; figured by the most holy place of the ancient Tabernacle and of the Temple; before which the great Vaile or Curtaine was drawne. Exod. 26. 31. 1 King. 6. 21. and within which the high Priest, image of Christ, entered once a yeere, See Heb. 9. 7. 24.

V. 20. Forerunner] namely, he that hath first ended the race, and that is the head of all those who run the same race, or saile in the same Sea, Heb. 12. 2. See Acts 26. 23. 1 Cor 15. 20. Col. 1. 18. For us] to intercede for us, Rom. 8. 34. Heb. 7. 25. & 9. 24. and also to take reall possession of the heavenly Kingdome for himselfe, and all his John 14. 2, 3.

CHAP. VII.

Vers. 1. King of] the Italian, was King; having set downe chap. 5. that Christ is a true Priest, now he sheweth that he is not of the Levitticall Order, but of the Order of Melchisedech, which was laid aside from chap. 5. 10. and sets down how this consists in Christs conformity with Melchisedech in these severall heads. First, in the name of Melchisedech, which signifieth King of Righteousnesse; and King of Salem, that is to say, King of peace, which Christ is really and spiritual, Psa. 85. 10. Secondly, in the eternity of his person; Melchisedech being described by Moses, under a certaine shadow of eternity, without making any mention either of his father or his mother, of his birth, linage, or death. So Christ is truely eternall, without any mother, as touching his Godhead, and without any father as concerning his humanity. Thirdly, in the union of the two Offices, of King and Priest, which in spirituall truth belongeth to Christ alone, Zech 6. 13. Fourthly, in so much that Melchisedech is represented to be greater then Abraham, the father of Levi, (and consequently greater then all the Levites) because he blessed Abraham with a solemne and Priestly blessing, which doth import superiority, which was acknowledged by Abraham himselfe, paying him tithe, which had alwaies been God and his Ministers right, Gen. 14.20. And so likewise Christ is greater then all the Leviticall Priests: and the authour even of Abrahams owne blessing, and of all the beleevers who are his true off spring in spirit.

V. 3. But made] being propounded as an image and figure of Christ the everlasting Sonne of God, and likewise described by the narration of Scripture, as if he lived for ever, v. 8.

V. 4. The Patriarch] See upon Acts 2.29.

V. 5. They that are] whosoever payeth tythe, acknowledgeth himselfe inferiour therein to him, to whom he payeth it; though in other respects he may be equall to him. As the Israelites, and the Levites: whereupon the Apostle inferreth that Abraham for all his dignities and preheminences, paying the tythes to Melchisedech, as to Gods Priest, did acknowledge him to be his Superiour, and that there is as much proportion of difference between Melchisedech tything of Abraham, and the Levites tything the childen of Israel, as there is between Abraham paying tithe to Melchisedech, and his posterity paying to the Levites.

V. 6. But he] namely, Melchisedech a Priest, but not of the see of Levi, which doth also serve for the figure of the ministery in Christ, who was of another Tribe, and yet was a Priest, v. 13, 14. That had] with whom God had made the covenant of grace; as with the father of all the blessed seed.

V. 7. Is blessed] this must not be understood of every ordinary blessing, but of a solemn blessing, which is given with an authority received from God, by persons consecrated by him to be ministers of his blessing.

V. 8. And here] namely, in the present use of the Leviticall Priesthood. But there] namely, in Melchisedechs Priesthood, described in the History of Abraham. Of whom] namely, of whom the Scripture speaketh in such a manner, as if he lived for ever, to represent as by a shadow Christs true eternity, verse 3.

V. 9. In Abraham] that is to say, in Abrahams person, not onely he but also his posterity the Levites (though they were afterwards made Priests) were subject to the Priesthood, which is according to the Order of Melchisedech, more High, and more Excellent.

V. 10. He was] namely, this Tribe of Levi, as also all Abrahams posterity were comprehended within him, who represented it all. Now though Christ likewise according to the flesh was in Abrahams loynes, yet he is not comprehended within this number, for he is likewise a Priest, as he is the Sonne of God, in whom also his humane nature subsists, v. 28. Heb. 9.14.

V. 11. Perfection] because that Psal. 110.4. God foretelleth of a another Priesthood according to the Order of Melchisedech, which containeth the properties which were before set downe; it appeares, contrary to the Jewes opinion, that the end of this sacred Office could not be fulfilled by the Leviticall Priesthood, which end is to appease God, and reconcile men to him, blesse them, &c. For otherwise there was no need of bringing in another Priesthood, different from the first, Heb. 8.7. wherby he wil infer, that the Leviticall Priesthood had no power of it self, but was only a figure, & Sacrament of Christs Priesthood, and a direction to him in whom consists the whole efficacy, and who by his Priesthood hath nullified the other figurative Priesthood, Heb. 10.9. For under it] he seems to give a reason, why he speakes onely of the Priesthood, and not of all the rest of the Ceremoniall Law: which is because the Priesthood was the foundation of it all: whereupon the one being granted, the other must likewise be granted, and the one being altered, or disanulled, the other must likewise be taken away also.

V. 12. For the] the great consequence of the change of all the Divine service which followeth the change of the Priesthood, may give us cause to beleeve that the holy Ghost had some very good reason to bring in another Order of Priesthood: to shew that the Priesthood, and all the ceremoniall worship of the Tribe of Levi, was in the end to give way to Christs Priesthood, in whom is accomplished all the reality, and the truth.

V. 13. For he] we must supply. Now the Priesthood is truely changed, seeing Christ is no way of the Tribe of Levi.

V. 14. And it is yet] the difference of these two Priesthoods appeares not onely by the difference of the ministring persons, but also (and that much more) by the diverse nature of the Priesthoods, the one being altogether external, and ceremoniall; and the other, altogether spirituall.

V. 16. Who] namely, the other who is Christ. Not after] not after such a Priesthood as the Leviticall Priesthood was, which consisted in ceremonies, and corporall things and actions, which must consequently be mutable and transitory, but altogether ſpirituall and effectuall: of an everlaſting life, power, and laſtingneſſe, according to the heavenly and everlaſting nature, and life of the Prieſt. A carnall] ſee upon Gal. 3. 3. Philip. 3. 3. 4. Heb. 9. 10.

V. 17. For he] namely, God ſpeaking in the Scripture.

V. 18. For there is] he gives a reaſon for what he had ſaid, v. 16. that in Chriſts perſon, there hath been appointed a Prieſthood of a new quality, becauſe it was neceſſary it ſhould be ſo, ſeeing the Leviticall Prieſtood had no power in it ſelfe to ſave men. Of the Commandement] of all the Prieſtly ordinations of the Law. Unprofitableneſſe] not but that the ceremonies had their uſe in ſignifying, teaching and ſealing unto beleevers the ſpirituall effects of Chriſts Prieſthood, but becauſe they had no part in the operation of them in the ſoule, for that belongeth to Chriſt alone.

V. 19. Made nothing perfect] it hath but onely directed to, and prepared for Chriſt, and did not perfect that which it ſhewed and ſignified. The bringing in] this deſired accompliſhment is come to paſſe by Chriſts Prieſthood newly brought in: upon which is founded our hope concerning the perfection of our ſalvation in the life everlaſting. Now the Apoſtle calleth this hope better then that of our forefathers under the Law, becauſe that theirs ended at Chriſts comming in the fleſh; ours goeth on to his everlaſting glory. By the which] by which introduction, or Prieſthood brought in. We draw nigh] that is to ſay, we are reconciled to God, and by confidence have acceſſe unto his grace and glorious preſence, which is the true effect of the Prieſthood.

V. 20. And in as much] this is ſpoken as in ſequel of verſ. 15. and is an addition to the difference between the two Prieſthoods. As not without] namely, that God in the 110 Pſalme, bringing in this new Prieſthood, hath added thereunto this ſolemne and expreſſe formalitie, namely, that he hath ſworn and will not repent to cauſe his immutable decree in this action to be the more lively apprehended. Which we read not to have been uſed in the ordination of the Leviticall Prieſthood.

V. 21. But this] namely, Jeſus Chriſt.

V. 22. By ſo much] ſeeing the end and Office of this Prieſt, is to be a Mediator of reconciliation, and union of God with men; from the greater firmneſſe of the Prieſthood, followeth alſo the greater firmneſſe of the covenant, See Heb. 8. 6. A ſurety] in ſo much as he hath given God ſatisfaction for us, and likewiſe in ſo much as he anſwereth us by his Spirit, by which he aſſureth us of his grace.

V. 23. And they] namely, the Leviticall Prieſts. Many] one high Prieſt ſucceeding another which died.

V. 25. Wherefore] the eternity of Chriſts perſon is the cauſe that he onely can accompliſh that which is neceſſary for the ſalvation of Gods children: becauſe that after his death he accompliſheth the other part of his Prieſthood, which is to intercede for them before God. Whereas the other Leviticall Prieſts in their ceremoniall expiations, could not doe it perfectly, nor once for all; and ſtill left their ſucceſſors to do the like. To the uttermoſt] for ever.

V. 26. For ſuch] a generall reaſon for the neceſſity of this difference of Prieſthood which hath been hitherto deſcribed, taken from the neceſſity of the Churches ſalvation. Holy] to be pleaſing to God, and to give ſatisfaction for men. Seeing that if he had been a ſinner, his ſufferances had been but for himſelfe, and alſo to repreſent unto God his moſt perfect holineſſe as head of the Church that God may be ſatisfied therewith, and pleaſed with the whole body. Separate] namely, exempt from all participation of ſinne, which is beyond the common condition of men. Made higher] to apply the benefit of his death to believers by his continuall interceſſion to the Father, and by his Almighty power.

V. 27. Daily] becauſe that the reiteration is a token of imperfection. This] namely, to have offered Sacrifice for the Church.

V. 28. For the law] he proves the two foreſaid points, by the weak, ſinfull, and mortall nature of the ancient Prieſts of the Law; namely, that they could never accompliſh mens reconciliation, & that they did alſo offer for themſelves. And on the other ſide, by Chriſts divine nature, and by the infinite excellencie of his perſon, that he offered onely for others, and not for himſelfe; and that one offering ſufficeth for ever, ſeeing it is of an infinite value. The Word] namely, Gods Word, in the Pſal. 110. pronounced after the Law, to ſhew that this ſecond introduction made with ſo much ſolemnity, diſannulleth the former legall one. The Sonne] not onely inſomuch as in the everlaſting perſon of the Sonne of God, conſiſts alſo the human nature which he hath taken upon him, and therefore the actions which he hath done as man, are attributed unto Chriſt as God, as Acts 20. 28. but alſo inſomuch as many and principall parts of this Prieſthood, and the weight and vertue of the laſt accompliſhment of it, belong unto Chriſts deity, Heb. 9. 14. as the ſame hath been noted in the offices of King, and Prophet, Heb. 1. 5, 8. & 3. 4. Is conſecrated] by his death, he hath been fully inveſted with his Prieſtly dignity, as by the ſame he hath fully ſatisfied for men, See Heb. 2. 10. & 5. 9.

CHAP. VIII.

Verſ. 1. Of the things] the Italian, Beſides the things] this point is likewiſe very conſiderable, that Chriſts Prieſthood is now altogether gether heavenly, and that he doth exercise it continually in Heaven, where He is ascended, whereas the earthly Levitical Priesthood was but a figure thereof, whereby he would infer, that the heavenly Priesthood being established, the earthly one is disannulled.

V.2. A Minister] Administring his sacred Office in Heaven, which was figured by the ancient Sanctuarie, *Heb.*9.12,18,24. which he doth representing his obedience, righteousnesse, and sacrifice to his Father, as the ancient Priest did bring the anniversary expiations of bloud into the Sanctuarie, *Lev.*16.15. And of the true] namely, as it hath also been said of the Tabernacle, that having likewise fulfilled those parts of his Priesthood which were to be fulfilled in this world, in his bodie, which was figured by the outward part of the Tabernacle, or of the ancient Temple, which is here called Tabernacle, and else where in the Scripture, the holy place, *Heb.*9.11. Which the Lord] the meaning is, that God hath in a supernatural and miraculous manner framed, and sanctified Christs humane Nature, and hath appointed it to be as the Temple of his habitation, in which he should accomplish the mysterie of salvation.

V.3. For every] He proves by the end of the Priesthood, that Christ being the high, everlasting, and heavenly Priest, was once to offer a true sacrifice, which is according to that he had spoken verse 2. that he is Minister of the Tabernacle; and besides, that he must have somewhat to offer in Heaven continually to the Father, namely, the infinite price and merit of his death, our prayers, and thankesgivings, &c. which is according to that he is Minister of the Sanctuarie, verse 2.

V.4. For if he] now he proves, that seeing Christ is truely a Priest, he ought to be an heavenly One, (contrary to the Jewes opinion, who apprehended no other Priesthood but an earthly one) for according to Gods most strict order, who appointed the earthly Priesthood onely for the Levites, Christ could not have that Priesthood, being of another Tribe, *Heb.*7.14.

V.5. Who serve] All whose Ministerie was appointed onely to be a figure of Christs spirituall and heavenly Ministerie. As Moses was] this passage is alleadged onely by allusion to shew that as Moses had received a modell from God of all the materials, fabriques, and workes of the Tabernacle, to which modell they were to be conformable, and answerable: so the terrestrial and Levitical Priesthood had Christs heavenly Priesthood for its soveraigne end and modell.

V.6. But now] Christs Priesthood ought to be according to the covenant, which ought to be established upon it, wherefore if this be spirituall and everlasting, the other ought also to be so. A better] the substance of the covenant of grace hath indeed been always the same, *Rom.*4.13,16,24. *Gal.*3.15, 16,17. but under the Gospel it hath been dispenced with greater clearnesse, abundance, and power of the Holy Ghost, and also with more feeling, and fruition of the right of divine Adoption. See *Gal.*4.1.

V.7. For if] He proves that the Euangelicall covenant is more excellent, because God hath established it after the covenant of the Law, which the most wise God, who never altereth those things which he hath first made, but for the better would never have done if that covenant which was under the Law had been suffieient and perfect. See Heb. 7.11. Then should] that is to say, God would not have brought in another.

V.8. For] We must supply, now God brought in another, as it appeareth by this passage of Jeremiah. With them] namely, with the Israelites, whose perfidiousnesse and perversenesse, is not indeed imputed to the ancient covenant, but onely the weaknesse of the forme of it is declared, because it had not overcome nor corrected their said perfidiousnesse and perversenesse which was to be effected under the Gospel, by the power of the Holy Ghost enlightening, and moving more lively, and powerfully, *Rom.*8.3,4.

V.13. He hath made] that is to say, God hath shewed that at his appointed time he would disannull the order of the former, after which must necessarily follow the abolishment of its use and practise.

CHAP. IX.

Vers. 1. THe first] now the Apostle comes again to declare that which he had intermitted from, *chap.*8.5. namely, that the Levitical Priesthood, was a figure of Christs heavenly Priesthood, as well in regard of the places as of the sacred actions, with a singular correspondencie, which he doth particularly lay open. Worldly] that is to say, material and earthly.

V.2. The first] namely, the first and foremost part of the Tabernacle divided with the great vail from the other part, which was called the most holy place, *Exod.*26.1,31,33.

V.3. The second] namely, that great inward vail called the second, to make a difference between it and the hanging which was at the first comming in of the Tabernacle. See *Exod.*26.31,36. The Tabernacle] namely, the most inward part, and as it were the bottome of it.

V.4. Censer] whereof Moses makes no mention. Wherein was] namely, in the second Tabernacle or inward part thereof.

V.5. Of glorie] Above which God appeared as sitting upon his glorious Throne, 1 *Sam.*4.4. Psal. 80.1.

80.1. and 99.1. And as the Arke represented Heaven, so those Cherubims were figures of the Angels, which serve God in the Heaven of his glorie, Psal. 89.7. The mercie seat] See upon *Exod.*25.17.

V.6. Went alwayes] that is to say, it was appointed by the Law, that they should go in, which was also observed at that time this Epistle was written.

V.8. Signifying] namely, that the keeping of the Sanctuarie alwayes shut in this kinde, but onely once a year when the Priest went in, in the day of expiations, did signifie that the sacrifice was not yet fulfilled, nor that bloud spilt by vertue of which believers might have free accesse to God in Heaven, without being any further obliged to seek and worship Him on earth, in the signes of his presence, John 4.23. *Hebr.*10.19,20. See upon *Matth.*27.51. The first] namely, the earthly Tabernacle which was built by Moses, under which also ought to be understood Solomons Temple.

V.9. In which] namely, where the Jewes do yet continue to offer bodily sacrifices whose want of vertue, out of Christ, may now more clearly be perceived under the Gospel. As pertaining to] that is to say, inwardly, spiritually, so that the expiation may be effectuall in Gods judgement, to which the conscience is answerable, and that the conscience may likewise thereby be assured and perswaded to obtain grace.

V.10. Carnall] namely, of ceremonies, and outward, terrestriall, and corporall observances. See *Gal.*3.3. *Phil.*3.4. *Hebr.*7.16, Of reformation] in which all the signification of the foresaid things being fulfilled in Christ, the use was also to be changed into a spirituall and more excellent worship without end, *Heb.*8.7.

V.11. But Christ] now he declares the spirituall substance of the figures which were before described, & likewise the difference which is between the figure and the mysteries which are figured. Of good things to come] namely, the effect and end of whose Priesthood is to dispence unto us the eternall good things, and the life to come. By a greater end] this ought to be continued with that which is spoken, verse 12. that he is entred into the Sanctuarie, namely, into Heaven, the meaning is, having taken humane flesh upon Him, compared *chap.*8.2. to the forepart of Moses his Tabernacle. Not made] that is to say, not made by humane art of dead stuffe, as the ancient Tabernacle was, and all other worldly buildings.

V.12. Of goates] He hath a speciall relation to the sacrifices of the day of expiations, *Lev.*16.3,5. By his own] by the meanes and vertue of the sacrifice of himselfe. Into the holy place] namely, into Heaven, Heb 8.2. and 9.8. Eternall] therefore there is no more need of reiterating the sacrifice at the entrance of the Sanctuarie, as in the Leviticall Priesthood.

V.13. Sanctifieth] namely, if they did according to the Law expiate the outward and corporall defilings which do not penetrate so farre as to pollute the soul, so that man being thus cleansed might be re-admitted to the communion of holy things, *Numb.*19.11,13,16. or it signifies that the sacrifices of the Law could make none but a ceremoniall expiation, which is called carnal, in opposition to Christs spiritual expiation. See verse 10.

V.14. Through the] The consideration of his Deitie concurring in his sacrifice, 1 *Tim.*3.16. 1 *Pet.*3.18. that by vertue of his persons soveraigne dignitie, he might give an efficacie of infinite value to the sacrifice of his Humanitie. See Acts 20.28. Without spot] this is the second foundation of the vertue of the sacrifice, besides his Deitie; namely, the innocencie and perfect obedience of Christ, being man, to which two we must adde the third, which is Gods order and vocation, which makes Christ relative and communicable to all his believers. Purge] shall cause you to be absolved from sin, by the imputing of his righteousnesse and satisfaction, by meanes whereof you shall receive the Spirit of sanctification, and shall be able to serve Him in newnesse of life, *Rom.*6.3,4,5.

V.15. For this cause] seeing that Christ by his death hath fulfilled his Priesthood, and that the end of every Priest is to be a Mediatour of peace, and covenant between God and men, it followeth that He is truely a Mediatour of the new covenant, *Heb.*7.22. and 8.6. which seeing it cannot be ratified, but onely by the death of the suretie, to give satisfaction to Gods justice, is also called a Testament, for the Greek word may signifie either Covenant or Testament. That by meanes] the end of this his Office is the Churches eternal salvation, which Church is composed of men effectually called to the participation of Gods grace, through the Redemption by Christs bloud. Of the transgressions] namely, of the sinnes of all mankinde who were left without any remedie of true expiation, even for Gods people themselves, Acts 13.39. *Rom.*3.25. which must be understood without Christ, and faith in Him being promised; for by this meanes, believers of all ages have been reconciled to God, by vertue of his satisfaction, which was alwayes as present with God. The promise] namely, the everlasting inheritance which was promised.

V.16. For where] He proves by the nature of this covenant, which hath many things like unto a testamentarie disposition, that it was necessary that Christ should die, that his children, and believers might obtain the heavenly inheritance.

V.17. After men are] namely, after the testator is dead, for before his death, he may alter his will, at any time so long as he is alive.

V.18. Whereupon] He proves by the ancient covenant

venant which was a figure of the new, that there can be no covenant of God with man, but by the meanes of satisfaction for sin by death, which was represented by that bloud of beasts. Was dedicated] namely, the first solemne establishment of it.

V.19. According to the] following Gods expresse command to Moses, *Exod.*20.22. and 24.1. Took the] the Apostle mixeth and joyneth together the anniversary expiation of the Sanctuarie, and of the Tabernacle, *Lev.*16.14. with the first powring out of the bloud, set down, *Exod.*24.5,6. With water] this is not specified in Moses, but may be gathered by Similitude and analogie, by *Lev.*14.6.51. The book] this likewise is not set down in Moses, but the holy Ghost revealed it to the Apostle; and hereby seemes to be signified, that Gods covenant was not onely founded upon the Law, but likewise upon the satisfaction which should be given by Christ, and that it was figured by the bloud, seeing the book was like the bond, and the sprinkling like the acquittance, see *Col.*2.14.

V.20. Which God] namely, which God hath commanded, or hath appointed with you.

V.21. The Tabernacle] He sheweth that the meaning is, that by that onely meanes of Christs bloud the Law of God is satisfied, and his wrath appeased, which was pointed at by the sprinkling of the bloud upon the book, and the conscience of the people was purified, which was represented by the sprinkling upon the people, and so all the service which they did to God after that was acceptable to God, the spring of uncleanesse, namely, sin being taken away, which was figured by the sprinkling of the Tabernacle, and all the utensils belonging to the outward service of it.

V.22. Is no remission] the Sacrament and ordinary Signe of all purging of sin, and ceremoniall uncleannesses according to the Law, is the sprinkling of bloud, see *Lev.*17.11.

V.23. Necessary] namely, by the expresse command of the Law, and by the continuall and unavoidable uncleannesses of the people, *Lev.*16.16. The heavenly things] Heaven, though clean from all pollution of sin, is said to be purified by Christs bloud, because that by vertue thereof it is not onely the most noble part of the world, and the treasure of all earthly blessings, but is consecrated to be as it were the open Temple of spirituall service, whither the Church carrieth its prayers, vowes, thankesgivings, faith, and hope. With better sacrifices] not that there were divers sacrifices as formerly, but because Christs onely sacrifice under the New Testament, is in stead of the severall ones in the Old Testament.

V.24. Of the true] namely, of the heavenly, in which is the truth, and realitie of all ancient figures, *Heb.*8.2. and 9.8,12.

V.25. Of others] that was none of their own.

V.26. For then] the meaning is, if the reiteration of Christs sacrifice were necessary for future times, the same reason would likewise prevail for times past, seeing we must suppose that all believers sinnes in all ages, have been purged by vertue of Christs onely sacrifice, present to God, and to their faith, and if it was effectual, before it was fulfilled, much more ought it to be esteemed such, after it is fulfilled. To put away] to blot out the fault, and cancell the bond, as concerning punishment, before Gods judgement, and likewise to destroy, and mortifie the strength of it in his members.

V.27. And as it is] Gods ordinary Law is, that man should once die, after which death followeth his everlasting judgement, either to life or to death; so Christs sacrifice being accomplished by his death, it followeth that he hath once onely offered himselfe, and that upon this death, God hath pronounced the sentence of absolution for all his elect.

V.28. To bear] to take their bond and condemnation off from them, and lay it upon himselfe, and bear it upon the crosse, *Isa.*53.4,6. 1 *Pet.*2.24. Unto them that] A frequent description of true believers, who live in a perpetuall desire and hope of Christs blessed comming, *Rom.*8.25. 2 *Tim.*4.8. Without sin] being no more loaden with mens sinnes, for to satisfie for them, as he was at his first comming, 2 *Cor.*5.21. but onely to bring believers into the possession of the acquired salvation.

CHAP. X.

Vers.1. THe Law] By the opposing of the Law, sacrifices (whose impotencie in purging of sinnes, he sheweth, because they were alwayes to be reiterated) to Christs onely one, he proves that this ought to last for ever, and that the others ought to cease, and give place unto it. A Shadow] A darke and flying representation of Christs sacrifice which was to come, and of its benefits. Not the very] namely, not such an one as the Gospel sets forth in Christ, between which and the Law, there is the same difference, as there is between a rough draught and a picture which is finished, being drawn to the life with all its lineaments and colours. Year by year] He meanes the anniversary sacrifices of the day of expiations, *Lev.*23.26. *Numb.*29.8. which were a speciall figure of Christs sacrifice. Make the commers] the Italian, sanctifie those that come neer; namely, that come neer to God by these sacrifices, to be reconciled to him, and have part in his grace and peace. And the terme of comming neer, was used in things concerning Religion, and sacred acts, *Heb.*7.25. and 11.6.

V.2. Once purged] this is grounded thereupon that the true purging is not onely in regard of sinnes that are past, still leaving way to reiterate the same remedy for sinnes which may follow, but it is a totall reconciliation of man with God, whereby all his former and future faults are before God forgiven him once for all, though the feeling and application thereof be dispensed unto him by degrees and at intermitted times. Should have had] their conscience would have been fully satisfied and certified of Gods grace, without any further remorse or accusation, which was the end and effect of expiatory sacrifices.

V. 3. But in those] believers under the Law in those solemn sacrifices protested, that they did not offer them onely for that yeers sins, but also for all the sinnes of those yeers which were past, though they were ceremonially purged by former sacrifices, to shew that there was no reall nor perfect expiation which they expected in Christ. Now the Apostle, by the inspiration of the holy Ghost, knew Gods intention in this anniversary institution, though the thing had not been plainly unfolded by Moses.

V. 4. For it is not] that is to say, because expiation for sinne cannot be made without a voluntary satisfaction for the punishment due therefore, in the same nature as sinne was committed, and besides this, satisfaction must be made by an infinite merit before God, which cannot be in the offerings of brute beasts.

V. 5. When he cometh] he in Psal. 40. 6. brought in speaking of his obedience opposite to the sacrifice of beasts, see Hebr. 8. 6. according to the holy Ghosts secret intention manifested by the Apostle, and the Psalmists termes being so strong and pregnant, are onely very convenient and fitting for Christ alone, and can no way be applied to David, but onely by a shadow and figure. Hast thou] in the Hebrew text it is, thou hast pierced mine ear: but S. Paul by Apostolicall authority hath alleaged the Greek translation, which in effect agreeth with the original sense, because that the same word which signifieth, To pierce, signifieth also, To prepare meet. Now Christs preparation to be a true sacrifice, hath been nothing else but his voluntary obedience, to which his humane nature hath been framed by the sanctification of the holy Ghost.

V. 9. He taketh away] the Psalmist doth here manifestly point at the disanulling of the Ceremonies, to give way onely to Christs perfect obedience, see Hebr. 7. 11. and 8. 13.

V. 10. By the which will] namely, by Christs obedience to this will set downe in this Psalme, which hath made Christs sacrifice acceptable to God and effectuall for men.

V. 11. And every] having before opposed Christs Sacrifice to the anniversary sacrifices of the high Priests, he now opposeth the same to the daily offerings of inferiour priests. Standeth] namely, in a new action, which is opposite to Christ sitting in Heaven, after he had accomplished his onely sacrifice.

V. 14. Perfected] that is to say, really and effectually purged the sinnes, reconciled to God, and justified all Gods children, whom God justifieth by his vocation, and by the regeneration of his Spirit.

V. 18. Now where] where men hath once obtained the true and perfect end and effect of the sacrifice, which is the forgivenesse of sinnes, and reconciliation with God; we need not reiterate it any more, we ought to have recourse to that onely by faith and repentance.

V. 19. Having] seeing that by means of our reconciliation with God, we have free accesse to him in his heavenly glory shadowed by his ancient Sanctuary, Hebr. 9. 8. 12. to present our selves to him with our prayers, thanksgivings, sighs, lamens, and other acts of divine service, whereas through sinne this entrance was shut up, Gen. 3. 24.

V. 20. A new] that is to say, The onely lasting, and effectuall means opposite to the dead and corruptible blood of beasts, which had no efficacy in it. Consecrated] solemnly appointed and made us of by him in his ascension into heaven. Through the vail] the meaning is, that as anciently there was the great vaile or curtain before the Sanctuary, which served for an entrance into it. So believers, when they would come to God in Heaven, ought by a lively faith to represent unto themselves Christs flesh, that is to say, his humane nature, with all that he hath in it done for them, that so they may enter into the innermost fruition of Gods grace and glory.

V. 21. An high priest] to present our prayers to God, and to sanctifie them by his righteousnesse and intercession, Revel. 8. 3.

V. 22. A true] namely, a sincere and loyall heart. Having our] being purified in body and soul by vertue of the holy Ghost working that inwardly in our hearts, which is signified by the outward Baptisme, John 3. 5. From an evil] namely, from that inward impuritie and corruption whereof every mans conscience is witnesse and judge, see Heb. 9. 14.

V. 25. The assembling] he means the publike congregations of the Church, to hear Gods Word, participate of the Sacraments, pray, give thanks, and perform other Acts of Gods publike service. Teste] by the signes which the Lord had foretold. The day] of Christs comming to judgement in which he shall crown the persevering believers, and punish the disloyall.

V. 26. For if] I exhort you to take heed of the first degrees of impietie, for by them you may fall into the extream, which is the irremissible sinne against against the holy Ghost. Wilfully] by a totall apostacie and extinction of the holy Ghost, done purposely through malice with delight, and against the feeling of your own conscience, not through meere ignorance, inconsiderate, or suddenty, or through a strong temptation. There remaineth] seeing the onely true sacrifice is Christs, when that is quite denied and rejected it can be no more reiterated, neither can there any other be found elsewhere.

V. 28. Despised] turning from Gods covenant and true service, Deut. 17. 6.

V. 29. Trodden under foot] that is to say, fearefully contemned, and through pride defamed him. And hath counted] shall have made no more account of Christs blood, upon which our reconciliation with God is founded, then if it were the blood of some ordinary person, yea, of some wicked and guiltie one. He was] by an outward calling into the body of the Church by Baptisme, 1 Cor. 7. 14. and likewise by some beginnings and motions of inward regeneration, which by his own malignity is not come to its perfection. Done despite] by secret or open blasphemies, with thoughts, deeds, and words against Gods truth which hath been revealed unto him, and the certainty whereof hath been sealed in his heart by the holy Ghost. Of grace] conferred upon beleevers through Gods fatherly grace, and whose proper effect is to breed and confirm the lively feeling of Gods grace in the hearts of his children, see Zech. 12. 10.

V. 32. Call to remembrance] now he doth encourage them to constancy and patience in afflictions, which were the cause of many mens apostacie; the meaning is, Persevere as you have begun: And if in the beginning of your conversion you have shewed so much vertue, a great shame it would be to fail now after you have gotten so much knowledge and experience, and do not now by back-sliding lose the fruit of your former labours, which is promised to none but such as persevere to the end, Gal. 3. 4. 2 John 8. Illuminated] that is to say, Baptized: so Baptisme was anciently called, Illumination; because that with it was conferred the gift of the holy Ghost, which in an instant did illuminate the understanding of those who were baptized, being of a competent age, faith, and knowledge, Acts 2. 38. and 8. 12, 37.

V. 33. Whilest ye became] joyning your selves by open profession, and by all duties of communion with those that were afflicted in their own persons. So used] namely, that were disquieted and troubled in the same kinde.

V. 35. Your confidence] the Italian, Your freedom; that is to say, Your free and couragious profession of the Gospel, which is as it were the bucklet of the soule, Ephes. 6. 16. and it should seem the Apostle hath a relation to the ignominious degradation of the souldier amongst the Romans that threw away his shield.

V. 36. The promise] namely, the everlasting life and glory, which hath been promised us.

V. 37. He that] namely, Christ. Will not tarry] beyond the time which God hath prefixed, and beyond the time as shall be necessary for the Church.

V. 38. The just] He upon whom, &c. Draw back] if he departs from his belief in me, if he becomes carelesse or disloyall in following my vocation. The Apostle followeth the Greek translation somewhat different from the Hebrew text.

V. 39. To the saving] the Italian, to make gain of; to save our soule with losse of all the rest, see Matth. 16. 26.

CHAP. XI.

Vers. 1. It is] he makes things which are hoped for, and consequently are absent and far off, Rom. 8. 24. to be by apprehension of faith as already existent and real. The evidence] an infallible argument and means of certainty and invincible perswasion.

V. 2. For by it] he gives a reason of the first property of faith to seale Gods promises in mans heart, by the example of the Fathers before Christs comming, who by faith did apprehend Christ and his benefit, as already present, and in regard of that are commended in Scripture as beleevers and children of God, and righteous, and thereby are acknowledged to be worthy to receive the promises: wherefore if faith have had this vertue before Christ, it doth much more retaine it after his comming in the flesh, as well in regard of the things which he hath already done, as of those things which he shall hereafter perform for their salvation.

V. 3. Through faith] he touches the other propertie of faith in the firme perswasion of the truth of things, whereof neither sense, nor discourse of reason can give any sound impression, such as the creation of the world is. The worlds] the Italian, the ages; that is to say, the world, see upon Heb. 1. 2. By the word] of nothing, by the onely omnipotency and will of God. Of things] of any pre-existent matter or beginning, but of nothing, which is beyond all naturall understanding.

V. 4. By faith] Abels faith made his sacrifice acceptable to God, as want thereof made Cains to be rejected; now this sacrifice of Abels had two ends, the one to be a Sacrament of expiation promised to Adam in Christ, the other to be an act of worship and of acknowledgement towards God. Abel by his lively faith in Gods promises made the Sacrament effectuall, which otherwise would have been but a dead Ceremonie: and by meanes of the same faith being in Gods favour, and justified, and regenerate, his service was also acceptable, as the fruit of a good tree. He obtained witnesse] in so much as it is said in that place, that God regarded Abel, that is to say, accepted and approved of him as holy and righteous, not for his own worth and merit, as appeared by his Sacrament of propitiation, but by vertue of the onely righteousnesse of all ages residing in Christ, and apprehended by faith. Testifying] being it is also said that God respected his offering. By it] that is to say, Having through faith been the childe of God in his life time, God shewed after his death that his favour towards him did yet last, being it is said, Gen. 4. 10. that Abels blood cried unto the Lord, as calling him to be judge, which ought not onely be understood for revenge against Cain, but also in retribution of life to Abel, being that Gods justice sheweth it self to be Almighty and most perfect, not onely in punishing the offender, as mans justice doth, but also in restoring the innocent to life, and giving him a reward. So in Abel is declared the effect of faith, in alluring the beleever of Gods present grace, and of his life and glory to come.

V. 5. By faith] Enoch having firmly by faith apprehended Gods promises in the Messias, was also set down for an example of the end of faith, which is to be translated out of this naturall and corruptible life, into the heavenly and immortall life, 1 Cor. 15. 51. That he should not] that he should not die a naturall death by the dissolution of his body, but by a neer and sudden change of qualities, 1 Thess. 4. 17. This singularity in Enoch was a signe of the true use of the death of Gods children, which is but onely to put off the old earthly qualities, and in this manner to dispose them to put on the new heavenly ones, 2 Cor. 5. 2. 4. For before] he gives a reason why he hath attributed this transportation to faith, namely, because God having by means of faith adopted him in grace to be his Sonne, did likewise give him a Sons inheritance.

V. 6. Without faith] because it is the onely means appointed by God to receive his grace in Christ, who onely hath made peace with God. For he] he proves that no man is pleasing to God without faith, because that to be in his favour is no work of man, but Gods benefit: Now the benefit is unprofitable unlesse it be received, and this cannot be received but onely by faith, John 1. 12. That commeth to] namely, this he that desires to be in Gods favour and covenant, is partaker of his blessing. That he is] this is the first part of faith, which consists in the understanding and knowledge, and being alone is but an historicall faith, and of bare notice, which is also common with the Devils, James 2. 19. And that he is] namely, that he will really fulfill the promises which he hath made of everlasting goods, to them that enter into this covenant with him. And this is the other part of faith consisting in the apprehension and singular application of the promise of grace to the beleever, which is here called reward and recompence.

V. 7. By faith] in this example and the following, are declared the effects of certain particular promises and words of God, as essaies and trialls of faith, to the generall ones of his grace in Christ, upon which also these particular ones were so fastned, as the branches upon the stock. Moved with] that is to say, His beleefe that he gave to the tidings of the deluge, caused him to yeeld through a pious and obedient fear unto the onely means of saving himself, which was propounded unto him by the Ark, which was a figure of Christ, the onely means of eternall salvation, and object of the justifying faith, 1 Pet. 3. 21. He condemned] not onely by his preaching, 2 Pet. 2. 5. but also by building the Ark, he warned the men of that age to be converted in time, which they refusing to do, were made inexcusable, and their rebellion was aggravated. And became] that is to say, That benefit ought not to be taken in a carnall sense, as if he had received nothing else from God but his bodily deliverance, for he together with that received the gift of eternall salvation, as Sonne of God by right of inheritance promised to the righteousnesse of faith, Gen. 6. 8, 9. Rom. 4. 13. Or by faith he received the gift of Christs righteousnesse, which God bestoweth upon his children, and by vertue of it, all his other goods.

V. 9. By faith] being encouraged and born up by faith in the promise of life and heavenly glory (for a pledge whereof the land of Canaan was given him) he suffered all the troubles of such a long pilgrimage. With Isaac] as those Patriarches did likewise after Abrahams death.

V. 10. A city] namely, Heaven, a firme and everlasting habitation for all beleevers, opposite to those moveable and ambulatory habitations of the Patriaches, see Heb. 13. 14. Rev. 21. 2, 10.

V. 11. Through faith] that is to say, By means of Sarahs faith God wrought that miracle upon her, according to Gods ordinary proceeding in his works of grace, which is to present the promise of a benefit to a man, before he gives him the full effect of it, and if he by faith receives the promise into his heart like seed, then at the appointed time he enjoyes the benefit, otherwise he is deservedly deprived of it, see Matth. 13, 58. Marke 6. 5. and 9. 23.

V. 13. In faith] to shew that the faith of those Fathers had not onely earthly goods for its object, he declares that they died, and never were put in possession of the promised Land; whereupon we must conclude, either that their faith was vaine, or that that Gods promise did extend it selfe to the everlasting goods, into the possession of which they entered by death. Seen them] with the eye of the Spirit, which is faith, v. 27. Embraced them] the Italian, Saluted them; that is to say, having had a short and transitory fruition of the Land of Canaan, as of a person which one saluteth from afar off, or as one goeth by.

V. 14. For they] that is to say, those fathers protesting that they were pilgrimes even when they were in the Land of Canaan, did declare that was not their true Countrey: and if they meant the ancient Country of Chaldea, from whence they were come, they did in vaine labour to seeke after it, seeing they might quickly and easily returne unto it. And therefore we must conclude that their ayme was at the heavenly Country, to which they could not come but onely by death.

V. 16. Wherefore God] if their faith had ended with this life, by their death, they had perished all together, and it had been an unworthy thing for God to have been called their God after their death, as he is Exod. 3. 6. But because after their death, they lived in heavenly glory, it is a thing no way unbeseeming Gods Majesty, See Matth. 22. 32.

V. 17. By faith] nor onely by it overcomming all naturall affections, contrary to this obedience, but even assuring himselfe against all sence and reason, that Isaac though offered in a holocaust, could not perish irrevocably: seeing that according to Gods promise, the holy Seed was to be preserved in him and the Messias at the last was to come of him. That had received] that is to say, had embraced them by a lively faith, resting wholy upon them. The promises] of being head and stemme of the blessed seed, by Isaac and his posterity.

V. 19. From whence] the meaning is, that Isaacs deliverance was a figure of the resurrection, in respect of Abraham, who in his owne conceipt did already account him as dead; and had overcome all the griefe, and naturall motions for him, as if he had been already dead.

V. 20. By faith] that is to say, lively apprehending Gods generall promises, he did by his blessing dispose of the promised goods, as if he had already had them in possession: and by beleeving the particular declaration which God had made, to preferre the younger to the elder, Gen. 25. 23. he gave Jacob that blessing, Gen. 27. 28. & 28. 4. which importeth the continuance of the blessed race, and of Gods covenant.

V. 21. By faith] in this blessing of Josephs children Jacob exercised his faith, because that thereby he made them partakers of the spirituall goods promised to the holy Seed, into which he incorporated them as his owne children, Gen. 48. 16, 20. and of the temporall goods, which were the figure thereof: such as the Land of Canaan was; though the first goods were not yet sensible, and the other not as yet present. Now the Apostle makes mention of the blessing of these children of Joseph, rather then of the rest of Jacobs children, because that they were borne in Egypt of an Egyptian mother, and were rich and powerfull, and yet Jacob laying aside all those false goods, he turns his mind in their behalf to the goods belonging to the holy Seed, whereunto he doth unite them. Leaning upon] the Hebrew text hath it, he worshipped upon the beds head, or toward the beds head, as 1 Ki. 1. 47. but S. Paul in a thing indifferent, by Apostolical authority hath followed the Greek Translation, in which the Jewes that lived amongst the Grecians were more habituated: the meaning is the same, namely, that Jacob having had a promise from Joseph that he would bury him with his fathers, thanked God; and though he were growne impotent through age, that he could not stirre himselfe, nor get out of his bed; apprehending by faith the heavenly goods of the communion of Saints, whereof that company in his grave was a signe and an earnest. The same ought to be understood in the following example of Joseph.

V. 23. By faith] the meaning is that the sight of that divine beauty of Moses, Acts 7. 20. did againe revive in his father and mother, by some divine inspiration, their faith in Gods promises, that he would deliver his people out of Egypt: Whereupon for a time they were imboldned to keepe and bring up the child. Against Pharaohs command, though the same faith afterwards partly decaied againe in them.

V. 24. By faith] Moses apprehending by faith the promises made to Gods people, because he would participate of them, did separate himselfe, from the society of the Egyptians, amongst whom he was brought up in great dignity, to joyne himselfe with the servile and ignominious condition of his brethren.

V. 25. Of sinne] namely, prophane and hurtfull pleasures, joyned with sinne, and alluring a man to forsake God, and his true service.

V. 26. Of Christ] that is to say, of his Church, whereof he hath alwaies been the head, and which he even then made conformable to his future sufferings, see 1 Cor. 10. 9. 2 Cor. 1. 5. Heb. 13. 13. Had respect] through faith and the Spirit. Unto the] to the heavenly reward which the Lord out of his meere grace had promised to his afflicted beleevers in this world.

V. 27. By faith] this must be understood of the last departure out of Egypt, before which, and in which Moses did with an incomparable strength and force of faith, overcome the feare of Pharaohs rage, and threatnings, never swerving from Gods Commandement. As seeing] being in Spirit and through faith assured of Gods aide and protection which was invisible to the sence of seeing, Psal. 16.7.

V. 28. Through faith] when he celebrated the Passeover according to Gods appointment, he did by a lively faith apprehend the benefits which God would signifie and seal by that Sacrament. The sprinkling] upon the lintell and postes of the Israelites doores. Lest he that] that marke being appointed for that purpose.

V. 29. By faith] they adventured to goe thorow the middest of the Sea, being confident in Gods promise. Or Gods promise produced that miraculous effect, by the meanes of faith which is the ordinary condition of such miracles.

V. 30. By faith] namely, by means of faith in Gods promises, joyned with the observation of his order in going about the City.

V. 31. By faith] Rahab because she verily believed that which she heard concerning Gods promises to his people, Ios. 2 9. did convey away the spies, whereupon she was saved from the destruction of the City. With them that] namely, with the Canaanites who had likewise heard of Gods promises and workes, Iosh. 2. 10, 11. and yet through incredulity grew obstinate to resist the Israelites: whereupon they were exterminated.

V. 33. Wrought] did many good and holy workes performing their generall or particular callings, and through faith overcomming, all oppositions and difficulties. Promises] namely, they obtained those things which God had promised.

V. 35. Were tortured] the Italian, Were beaten to death] he meanes, a cruell kind of putting to death, which is yet used amongst your Easterne people, to lay a man all along, and beat him with wandes till he swell all over and die. Now he goeth on in describing the strength of their faith in former times, in suffering of persecutions and torments, especially in Antiochus his time, which are set down in the Books of the Maccabees. Deliverance] which was offered them if they would deny God and his service. A better] namely, the blessed and everlasting deliverance from death, and from all evill, opposite to that temporall evasion, which to the flesh might seem a kind of resurrection.

V. 37. Sawen asunder] an ancient manner of putting to death, 2 Sam. 12. 31. Tempted] that is to say, solicited to apostacie by martyrdomes and torments.

V. 39. The promise] namely, the accomplishment of Gods promises made to the fathers, concerning the Messias his comming, his Kingdome, and the abundant sending of his Spirit.

V. 40. God having] namely, the said accomplishment, having been reserved for our times, under the Gospell, which is therefore called the better covenant, upon better promises, Heb. 7. 22. & 8. 6. seeing the Law which hath made nothing perfect, Heb. 7. 19. having no power to bring the fathers to that last marke and degree of the state of the Church under Christs Kingdome, to which both they which are now in Heaven, and we who are upon Earth, joyned both under one head, Ephes. 1. 10. Col. 1. 20. Heb. 12. 23. have now attained.

CHAP. XII.

Vers. 1. Are compassed about] terms taken from those publike sports of Races, and the like, that were performed in your Circles or Amphitheaters. The beleevers which are already glorified, are the witnesses: as well because their example ought to instruct men in the duties of the Race, and assure them of the end of it: as likewise because they are as it were spectators from Heaven of the Churches Combates, looking after her victories, rejoycing at her constancy which God revealed unto them, by the relation of his Angels, or otherwise, Revel. 12. 10, 11. the burthen or weight are all manner of worldly cares, affections, or desires. Or, vice, and corruption. The Race is the continuall progresse to Heavenly glory, which is also the marke and end of the Race; the length of the Race, is all our life time, See Phil. 3. 13, 14. Which doth so easily beset us] the Italian, Hinder us; the similitude seems to be taken from such long and large garments as were wont to be laid off in such Races, to be so much the freer. Now sinne is often times called a garment, or robe, Ephes. 4. 22. Col. 2. 11. & 3. 9, 10. Other copies have it, sinne which cannot be restrained, like a garment that cannot be girded close enough but that it will hinder one from running, and therefore is better to be laid quite away. Or, sinne which is so close, and therefore a man may so easily slip into, and is opposite to that hard and laboursome spiritual race.

V. 2. Unto Jesus] to take from him a most perfect and lively example of constancy, and so secure us through faith in him, who is the head of this warfare of faith. And who doth likewise by his power beare up our faith, and brings her strivings to a happy period. For the joy] namely, to obtaine in his human nature the Heavenly glory and happinesse; to which according to Gods order and his vocation, he could no otherwaies attaine, but onely by his Crosse and sufferings, Luke 24. 26. Phil. 2. 8, 9. 1 Pet 1. 11.

V. 3. Him that] namely, what the height of his person is, and what the greatnesse of his sufferings hath been, comparing them to the meannesse of your condition, and the smallnesse of your sufferings.

V. 4. Unto blood] namely, unto death and bodily punish-punishments, for the first persecutions of the Church did generally extend no further, then to the taking away of their goods, or in outrages and disgraces, Heb. 10.33,34. Peradventure he hath a relation to the freeing of those Fencers which were not condemned to die in this action: after that they had played so long upō the stage, as that they were come to the losse of blood. Against sinne] namely, against sinnes, and unbeleevers, and against the whole Kingdome of sinne, which is the divels Kingdome. Or against your own corruption, which the Lord would reform by his crosse, and is continually spurne against it.

V. 7. If ye] so the fault be not in you for want of faith and patience; the afflictions on Gods side, are but onely visitations for correction, very well befitting a father, and saving to you.

V. 8. All are] namely, all Gods children, at all times, See Psal 73 14. 1 Pet. 5. 9.

V. 9. Of Spirits] namely, who of himselfe, and immediately hath created mans soule, and given it to him. Or the spirituall father, who hath regenerated our soules to his owne image in Christ. And live] that by our afflictions we may obtaine the fruit and reward of everlasting life.

V. 10. For a few] namely, for the daies of our infancie, for which these corrections are onely fit. He seemes to point at the shortnesse of the time of our afflictions: during our minority in this world: opposite to the full and ripe age of eternity, See 1 Cor. 13. 11. & 2 Cor. 4. 17.

V. 11. The peaceable] namely, a just reformation and instruction, joyned with a spirituall repose of the soule, opposite to all manner of trouble of the flesh in afflictions.

V. 12. Lift up] take heart and strength, knees to runne, and hands to fight, vers. 1. & 4. See Iob 4. 3.

V. 13. Make straight] make the way of the Gospel plaine and easie for you, by your voluntary obedience, and using of it, overcomming all difficulties that you shall meet upon the way: So he will have the believers strength to overcome the roughnesse of the way, and not the nature of the way to be altered, by reason of the Travellers weaknesse. That which is] lest those who have neglected to strengthen themselves in Christian vertues be not through Gods just punishment, put out of the way into apostacie.

V. 15. Failed] See Heb. 4. 1. & 6. 4. & 10. 26. Any root] lest any grievous scandall of heresie or apostacie, growing and spreading it selfe abroad like a venomous plant. Trouble you] like poyson that troubleth the bodies health.

V. 16. Prophane person] or impure and pol'uted person. And under this name are comprehended all those, who for the pleasures of the flesh, do renounce the heavenly blessing, as Esau did.

V. 17. The blessing] when he would have had the holy Seed and Covenant of Gods grace preserved and propagated in him, and his posterity. He was rejected] his request was denied, Isaac telling him that he was excluded from it by Gods decree, Mal. 1. 2. He found] he could not get Isaac to alter his resolution. Or his repentance could not take place, and was of none effect. Sought it] namely, the blessing.

V. 18. For ye] he confirmes the exhortation of vers 15, 16. by the grace of God communicated in all abundance and vertue, by the Gospell, which cannot be rejected nor contemned without grievous sinne. And likewise incites and binds men to fulfill the Evangelicall precepts and exhortations, and also gives the means and power to do it, Rom. 6. 14. And to extoll this grace, he compares the covenant of the Law, full of rigor, threatnings, and terrour (as it was figured by the manner in which it was given) with the spirituall and gracious covenant of the Gospell. That might be touched] namely, Sinai, an earthly mount which God had forbad to be touched, Exod. 19. 12. opposite to the spirituall hill of Sion, v. 22. Gal. 4. 24.

V. 19. They that heard] see the meaning of this upon, Gal. 3. 19. 20.

V. 20. They could not] they were quite cast down at that: God willing to make a covenant with them should keepe them farre off from him with such terrible threatnings, untill such time, as having offered Sacrifices, and being sprinkled with the blood of the Covenant, they were admitted to come to God, Exod. 24. 6. 8, 9, 10. To shew, that not the Law, of it selfe gives accesse to God, but the propitiation in Christs blood onely, v. 24.

V. 21. Moses] though he was a Mediator of this Covenant, and a figure of Christ, Gal. 3. 19. yet he testified, that the confidence of his soule towards God, was not grounded upon the Law, but upon the blood of Christ shadowed by the blood of those beasts. I exceedingly feare] this is not set downe in Moses his History, and we must suppose that the Apostle hath known it, and spoken it by revelation.

V. 22. Ye are come] by the Gospell ye have been called, and by faith you have been received into the communion of the Christian Church figured by Jerusalem, and by Mount Sion, See Galat. 4. 26. Of Angels] which are part of this body of the Church.

V. 23. To the generall] namely, to the universall Church, represented by that generall assembly of the people when the Law was given. And Church of] namely, to the true, and spirituall communion with the ancient fathers, whose names are written in the booke of life, See Exod. 32. 32. Phil. 4. 3. The Judge] not onely, the Law-giver, as when he gave the Law, but as absolute and soveraigne Judge to pardon pardon and absolve whomsoever he pleaseth. To the Spirits] namely, to the company of beleevers soules who have been justified, and afterwards perfectly sanctified and glorified in Heaven.

V. 24. To the blood] namely, to the participation of Christs blood, spilt for the purging of sins, and with which all beleevers have been besprinkled; that is to say, which is actually applied unto them by the gift of faith, to ratifie the new Covenant; as the ancient one was ratified by the sprinkling of the blood of Sacrifices, Exod. 24, 8. That speaketh] which as one should say, presents it selfe before God, not to desire vengeance of the murtherous Jewes, as Abels blood did of Cain, Gen. 4 10. but to obtaine favour and pardon for them, see Heb. 10. 20. 1 John 5.8.

V. 25. Him that] namely, Christ, who is exalted into Heaven, from whence he gloriously speakes to men by his Spirit and Word. If they] namely, the Israelites who were pointed at, vers. 19. Him that] namely, the same Sonne of God, in his owne person, who by his power produced all those terrible effects, when he gave his Law by Moses, Acts 7, 38. According to others, Moses, see Heb. 10. 28. On earth] namely, in the aire (neere the earth, where he appeared, Exod. 19. 18, 20.) which is also called Heaven, Exod. 20. 22. Which by that as the Apostle speaketh here, ought to be distinguished from the Heaven of glory.

V. 26. Shooke the] by an earthquake when he gave the law, Exod. 19. 18.

V. 27. This word] the meaning is, In that passage of Haggai is not meant a shaking of the creatures, such a one as was at the time as the Law was given, but an universall and finall change and annihilation of the state and form of all the creatures, at Christs last appearing in judgement, which shall be the accomplishment of his Kingdome, described by Haggai. As of things] namely, which as they have been created by God, of a corruptible matter and nature, so shall they also by him be brought to nothing. Those things] namely, Christs Kingdome, and the state of a blessed life, which are immutable and everlasting things.

V. 28. Wherefore] seeing that all earthly things must have an end, let us with all our hearts forsake the world, and by faith lay hold on Christs everlasting Kingdome: and keep our selves in the fruition of Gods grace, and of the gift of his Spirit, to yeeld him the true spirituall service, which is onely pleasing to him, Heb. 13. 16. See 2 Pet. 3. 11.

CHAP. XIII.

Vers. 2. To entertaine strangers] the Italian, of Hospitality; that is to say, the readinesse and free will, in entertaining of strangers. Thereby] the meaning is, in this act of charity, we ought not to respect the outward appearance of persons, for oftentimes the worth lieth hidden: as Christ himselfe is included in his members, Matth. 10. 40. & 25. 35. And besides, God honoureth and rewardeth this vertue, sometimes sending such persons, as are instruments of salvation and blessing to those that entertaine them; as the Angels were to Abraham, and to Lot, see 1 Kings 17. 9, 17. & 2 King. 4. 8, 16. 35.

V. 3. In the body] that is to say, members of the body of the Church, which is the great foundation of Christian compassion, Rom. 12. 15. 1 Cor. 12. 26. Or as being yet in this bodily life, wherefore the same chances may befall you also.

V. 4. In all] in all manner of persons, of what quality soever they be. Undefiled] that is to say, lawfull, and holy, not defiled with unchastenesse, fornication, and adultery.

V. 5. For he] namely, God.

V. 7. The end] as they who having persevered in it to the end, have died happily in the Lord, with evident proofes of his grace and favour.

V. 8. Jesus Christ] this may depend from the former verse in this sence. Since Christs grace and power is alwaies the same, without any change or diminution, it shall produce the same effects in you as in them. Or it may have a relation to the following verse in this sence. Seeing that Christ who is the onely object of faith, never changeth his nature, nor quality, in his Person, Doctrine, Office, &c. our faith in him must likewise be firme, and invariable.

V. 9. Strange] as those Jewish doctrines were, of which he speakes afterwards. Is a good thing] mans true salvation consists, not in observing the difference of meats, after the Mosaick manner: but in that the conscience should by faith repose all the confidence of its salvation in the grace of God.

V. 10. We have] that is to say, the Christian Church hath sacred goods and meats (figured by those of the Sacrifices, which were appointed for the Priests) to which none are admitted, and of which none are partakers, but spirituall Christian Priests, & not the Jewish ones. For as these anciently did not eate of the flesh of those sacrifices, of which they carried the blood into the holy place, and into the most holy place in the day of cleansing, but burned them out of the Campe, or out of the City: So Christs blood being to be carried, that is to say, presented in Heaven; he suffered death without the earthly Jerusalem, and excludes from the fruition thereof all the Jewes who did cleave unto the Law, and to the righteousnesse thereof. Now all this is spoken by an allusion and a similitude, and not in a proper sence.

V. 12. That he might sanctifie] that is to say, that he might purge them from their sinnes, by the presenting senting of his blood before God in Heaven, figured by the Sanctuary. Suffered] which is correspondent to the burning of the flesh of the aforesaid Sacrifices without the Camp. Without the Gate] namely, without the gate of Jerusalem.

V. 13. Let us go forth] let us voluntarily separate our selves from the carnall Jewes, and let us with patience suffer our selves to be driven out of their communion, seeing they have rejected Christ, and driven him out of their City to put him to death: and let us looke for him in Heaven, where he is. Bearing] voluntarily partaking of the ignominious persecution which he hath suffered by the Jewes: as the Christian Hebrews were likewise afflicted by their owne Nation, 1 Thes. 2. 14. Heb. 10. 33. His reproach] see Heb. 11. 26.

V. 14. For here are we] because that this earthly Jerusalem, and this carnall Jewish Nation, is not our City, Countrey, nor true place of freedome, but the heavenly one.

V. 15. Let us offer] as anciently after the day of cleansings, the people might offer their Sacrifices for the whole yeere, with assurance that they should be acceptable to God: So now Christ hath performed the great and everlasting cleansing, let us offer to God the Sacrifices of praise and well-doing, by Christ our high Priest, who doth present them, and make them acceptable to him by his intercession. Of praise] that is to say, of continuall celebration, and thankesgiving, figured by the Sacrifices of praise under the Law. The fruit] in Hosea it is, the calves, for the words of fruit; and calves are of great affinity in the Hebrew. But it should seem the Apostle hath followed the Greeke translation which hath it, fruits; to shew that these were no longer expiatory Sacrifices, which required the spilling of blood. But Sacrifices of thankesgiving, which might be of the fruits of the earth. Giving thanks] the Italian, confessing; that is to say, celebrating, and magnifying.

V. 17. That have the rule] namely, the pastors of the Church. Not with griefe] the Italian, sighing; that is to say, with griefe for your disobedience.

V. 18. For we] for you ought not to abhorre our imprisonment, as that of a malefactor or guilty man, but hold it as a persecution of a true and faithfull pastor. In all things] or among all men.

V. 19. Restored to you] being freed from mine imprisonment, See Philem. 22.

V. 20. That brought again] the meaning is, that Christ is risen again by vertue of his death, by which he hath fulfilled his obedience, whereby he hath obtained the reward of life. Or, that he is the great shepheard by his blood, having by it redeemed, saved, and gotten his sheep, which he likewise feedeth unto everlasting life, by the perpetuall application of his death.

V. 21. Through Iesus] that is to say, working in you by his Spirit.

V. 22. Of exhortation] namely, the reprehensions, admonitions, and corrections inserted amongst the doctrine of this epistle. For I have] if there seem to you to be any harshnesse in it, impute it to the brevity of an Epistle, which will not allow a man to use such insinuations, and mitigations, as a rhetoricall discourse will do. see 1 Pet. 5. 12.

V. 23. Know ye] seeing he writes this Epistle by Timothy himself, the meaning is. Ye shal know by himselfe that he is delivered (namely, out of prison where he was with me) and how. If he come] namely, if he returns from the voyage which he undertakes by mine appointment, to come to you. I will see you] I hope, according to all likelihood that I shall see you, see Phil. 1. 25.

THE GENERALL EPISTLE OF S^t. JAMES the Apostle.

ARGUMENT.

THis Epistle, and those which follow, saving the two last of John, have been named Catholick, because they are not directed to any particular Church or person, as those of Saint Paul, but in common to all the Churches gathered out from amongst the Iewes, scattered over all the World: This beares the name of James, it is uncertaine of which, namely, whether it be the Apostle, sonne of Alpheus; or the Bishop of Jerusalem, and Evangelist, often times called the brother of the Lord. The subject is a gathering together of divers doctrines, exhortations, comforts, reproofes, instructions, and sentences, concerning afflictions and trials; to desire of God with faith, wisedome, and all other gifts: Of riches, and of poverty, of the temptation of concupiscence, of true regeneration, and of the fruits thereof; of faith, joyned with true charity, equall towards all men, without any respect of outward qualities, and fructifying in good workes: to flie ambitious superiorities, to bridle the tongue, of contentions, and of fleshly desires, of humility, and turning to God, to eschew evill speaking, and rash judgements, to depend upon Gods providence: of the vanity and wretched end of unjust riches, of patience, of abstaining from unlawfull, and vaine oathes: of the power and force of prayer, and of setting againe in the way such as are strayed from the truth.

CHAP. I.

VER. 1. James] according to some it is James of Alpheus the Apostle: according to others James the brother of the Lord, Act. 15. 13. Gal. 1. 19. Which are scattered] namely, amongst the Gentiles, see Iohn 7. 35.

V. 2. Temptations] that is to say, tryals, and exercises through afflictions, and adversities.

V. 4. Have her] that is to say, let it persevere unto the end, and be accompanied with other Christian vertues. Be perfect] that is to say, furnished with all necessary vertues, though never in a perfect degree in this World.

V. 5. Wisedome] namely, spirituall wisedome to judge rightly of afflictions, of their causes, end, and fruit, &c. to moderate in them the afflictions of the soule, keeping it in an immoveable tranquillity. Liberally] or benignely, the Greeke simply, see 2 Cor. 8. 2. Upbraided not] that is to say, disdainfully rejecting, or upbraiding the asker, with his unworthinesse.

V. 6. Is like a] hath not the constancie of the soule: nor is not perswaded of Gods grace by the Holy Ghost: whereby wanting the first foundation of faith, God doth not build the fabricke of his other gifts in him. According to the saying of the Gospell, that to him that hath, is given Matth. 25. 29.

V. 8. A double minded] the Italian, a double hearted, because that his inward part, doth not agree with his outward profession, whereby his thoughts, motions, and actions, floating continually, he is uncapable of patience, and perseverance, vertues which require a constant and firme posture of the soule.

V. 9. the brother] the meaning is, that Christian patience, ought not onely to beare afflictions, but also to glory in it, see Rom. 5. 3. That he is exalted] spiritually, being the Sonne of God, member of Christ, made worthy of participating of his afflictions, Acts 5. 41. Rev. 2. 9.

V. 10. That he is made low] that is to say, if he does not exalt himselfe in pride for his goods and honours, but containes himselfe in holy humility before God, and modesty towards men: and if acknowledging the vanity thereof he doth with his heart renounce them, as if he possessed them not. He shall passe] namely this his worldly prosperity.

V. 11. In his waies] namely, in this his state and condition.

V. 12. Tried] the Italian, approved] namely, of God for his obedience to his will, order, and condition established by him.

V. 13. Let no man] now he goeth on to the other kind of temptation, which is the inducement, and allurement to sinne, which doth not proceed from God, as the other of afflictions doth. For God] as he hath no inclination, nor taketh no delight in evill; so can he not induce others unto it, as the divell doth.

V. 15. When lust] namely, mans depraved, and corrupted will, which is the first spring of all vicious appetites. Hath conceived] namely, after it hath by the apprehension of some unlawfull object, fixed in it selfe a wicked desire, it doth afterwards bring it to effect: whence followeth the punishment of eternall death.

V. 16. Doe not erre] either in attributing to God the cause of your sins, or not having recourse to him in your wants, as to the authour of all good things.

V. 17. From the father] namely, from God, the authour and fountaine, of all light of knowledge, grace and spirit, without ever changing, or diminishing. Shadow] a terme taken from the celestiall lights, which by reason of their resolutions, and vicissitudes, doe not alwaies shine in the same degree, and some of them do also suffer eclipses, decreases, and failings.

V. 18. His owne will] of his grace, and free will, to oppose this spirituall regeneration of grace, to that of nature, and everlasting, of the onely begotten Sonne. With the word] which is as it were the seed of this new generation, revived by the Spirit, see 1 Cor. 4. 15. 1 Pet. 1. 23. First fruits] namely, a part of the whole masse of mankind, which is consecrated unto him, as the first fruits were under the Law, see Ier. 2. 3. Rev. 14. 4.

V. 19.

V.19. Wherefore] seeing you have receiued from God the gift of ſpirituall regeneration, worke you the true workes, and performe the true duties thereof, keeping your ſelves eſpecially from your moſt common and ſudden ſinnes, which are thoſe of raſh ſpeaking and wrath.

V.20. For the wrath] Though wrath in man be moued naturally with ſome reſemblance of juſtice, againſt a wrong and offence, yet that is not the right way to do the Will of God (wherein conſiſts true righteouſneſſe and juſtice) which contrariwiſe is performed with mildneſſe and patience, &c.

V.21. Wherefore] This is a ſecond conſequence drawn from Verſe 18. The meaning is, that likewiſe alſo becauſe God hath regenerated us, let us put off all vices, even as little children that are newly borne, are waſhed and cleanſed from the pollutions which they brought from their mothers wombe. Receive] Give it more way, authority, and abſolute command over you. Ingrafted] which God hath not onely outwardly propounded unto you, but hath alſo rooted it in your heart by his Spirit, to live and operate in it, ſee *Jer.*31.31.

V.22. Doers] True and real obſervers in heart, and in effect, in faith and obedience.

V.23. If any] that is to ſay, for want of will and zeal to performe Gods Word the knowledge of it becomes unprofitable to ſalvation, making no lively impreſſion, but ſerving onely to repreſent its own deformitie, and contrarietie unto the conſcience, and that ſo fleightly, that man is not thereby brought to Repentance.

V.25. Who ſo looketh] that is to ſay, hath by a deep meditation, and lively Faith, taken hold of Gods Word, to be by it changed into the ſame image, 2*Cor.*3.18. Law] He calleth the Goſpel ſo, which containeth the accompliſhment of what the ancient Law had but onely begun, that is to ſay, Chriſts perfect righteouſneſſe, by which all believers are freed from the curſe and from death, and alſo teacheth and by the power of the Spirit worketh the true perfection of an holy life, conſiſting in a continuall Regeneration to Gods Image, by which the believer ſerves God with a free will, and is no more ſubject to the devil nor ſin, ſee *Rom.*8.2. *Gal.*4.21,31. A doer] by Faith which is the firſt worke of the Goſpel, John 6.29. 1 John 3.23. and the foundation and root of all the reſt, then by new obedience and holineſſe of life.

V.26. Seem to be] or thinkes to be. Deceiveth] doth falſly deceive and flatter himſelfe by this vain ſhew of pietie.

V.27. Is this] that is to ſay, is alwayes joyned with true charitie and holineſſe, and by theſe vertues ſheweth what it is. To viſit] under this kinde are contained all the duties of Chriſtian charitie.

CHAP. II.

Verſ.1. Have not] Let not carnal reſpects darken the ſound judgement of your Faith, but that you retain a true feeling of Chriſts ſpirituall glorie in him, and in his members, and honour the Head in them, of what condition ſoevet they be; take heed of deſpiſing any one, and eſpecially ſuch as Chriſt hath raiſed higher in the honour of true Chriſtian vertues. Others tranſlate it, have not the Faith of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt with reſpect of perſons.

V.2. Aſſemblie] namely, in your holy and Eccleſiaſtical Aſſemblie.

V.4. Are yee not then partial] the Italian, Have yee not made a difference? that is to ſay, do not you ſhew that in ſtead of being ſound in the judgement which you ought to give of perſons belonging to the Church, according to their ſpiritual qualities without any other reſpects you are dazled and buſied after the worldly luſtre. Of evill] Whoſe onely intention is not uprightneſſe, but do counterpoiſe it with other perverſe reſpects, by which they ſuffer themſelves to be tranſported.

V.5. Choſen] doth he not for the moſt part call the poor to his knowledge and grace, rather than the rich, and great ones? and even amongſt believers, doth he not beſtow moſt ſpiritual graces upon thoſe who are needie of temporal goods?

V.6. Do not] This may be underſtood either of the enemies of the Goſpel, who might ſometimes either through curioſitie, or upon ſome other occaſion come into the Chriſtians Aſſemblies; or of rich men that were Chriſtians by profeſſion, and committed ſuch violences which were much uſed amongſt thoſe who were powerfull in the world. Draw you] raiſing unjuſt ſuites againſt you.

V.7. Blaſpheme] If this be underſtood of Chriſtians, the meaning is, that they give occaſion of blaſpheming Chriſts Name by their exceſſes, ſee *Rom.*2.24. By the which] from whence you take, and bear the ſacred and glorious Name of Chriſtians.

V.8. If ye fulfill] the Italian, if ye truly fulfill; if in your honouring thoſe which do you wrong, your onely aime is to obſerve Gods Law, and to love your neighbour in general, you doe a good and holy worke, but if you have any carnal reſpects therein, it is no longer a charitie, but flatterie, or ſome ſuch like vice; and if it be joyned with contempt of the poor, it is partialitie, and want of equal charitie. The royall] that is to ſay, Gods ſoveraigne and ſupreme Law, oppoſite to all lawes of men, who are but onely miniſters.

V.10. For whoſoever] he proves that they do tranſgreſſe the Law, as he had ſaid, though it ſeemed to be but in the leaſt point. Guilty] according to the rigour of the Law he is subject to condemnation, as well as if he had broken all the Commandments one by one, for the Law is but an indivisible total, and requires perfect obedience in each part, *Deut.*27.26. and the same Majestie of God is contemned in one onely sin, as well as in all, and the breach of one precept proceeds from the same cause, as the breach of all, namely, for want of loving God, and from mans corruptnesse.

V.12. By the Law of] that is to say, by the Gospel, which indeed freeth mens consciences from the curse, and from the terrours of the Law, but yet bindeth them to a new obedience, especially in what belongeth to charitie, see 1 *Cor.*9.21. Gal. 2.19.

V.13. Rejoyceth] the Italian, glorieth; that is to say, this mercifull affection in a Christian, is a certain pledge of the mercie which he shall obtain at Gods judgement, whereupon he confides, and triumphs against all terrours and temptations.

V.14. A man say] that is to say, if he boast himselfe, and make an outward profession of a shadow or shew of faith, and not of a true and lively faith, which is inseparable from good workes, because that by it the believer is united to Christ, and Christ by it dwelleth in his heart, Ephes. 3.17. and regenerates and sanctifies him by his Spirit, Rom. 8.9.

V.15. If a brother] As charitie in words without effects is but a false maske, so is Faith without Workes likewise.

V.17. Faith] namely, the bare knowledge and profession of the true God, and of Christ, opposite to heathenish and Jewish superstitions, &c. *vers.*19 and yet not joyned with a lively perswasion of Gods grace in Christ, and with a true union with him, which alwayes brings forth a fervent charitie towards him, Luke 7.47. and makes Christ live in the believer by his Spirit, *Gal.*2.20.

V.18. Yea a man] This hypocritical Faith is not onely dead in it selfe, but may also be known to be such, by comparing it to a believers lively and active Faith, so that the hypocrites conscience cannot rest upon this boast. Thou hast] that is to say, thou boastest much of thy knowledge, and assent to Gods Truth, but shew me that there can be any justifying and saving Faith, separate from good Workes, as I will prove unto thee by all the maximes of Scripture, that he who truly doth good Workes, hath a lively Faith, which is the root and spring of it, even as whosoever hath Christs Spirit is of Christ, Rom 8.9, 10.

V.19. That there is one] that is to say, thou art no idolater nor heathen to believe a plurality of Gods. And tremble] they have not the true Faith, which imprints in the heart the feeling and certaintie of Gods grace, in joy, peace, and comfort, *Rom.*5.1. but with all their knowledge of Truth, they are in a perpetuall terrour and fear of God, as of a judge and an enemie, 1 John 4.17,18.

V.20. Without workes] namely, that Faith which doth not produce this effect, which is proper, perpetuall, and inseparable to a true and lively Faith. Is dead] Having no power to produce the effect of righteousnesse and life, it is but a shadow of Faith, and as it were a root dead in the ground.

V.21. Was not] Seeing that the same Spirit hath spoken by Saint Paul and by Saint James, and that Saint Paul attributes Abrahams justification, and the justification of all believers, to Faith without Workes, *Rom.*3 20,28. and 4.2,5,6. Gal 2.16. and 3.11. We must of necessitie distinguish the meaning of this word Justifie used by Saint Paul, for absolving a man as he is in his naturall state, bound to the Law of God, and subject to damnation for his sin, which God doth by a rigid act of justice, which requireth full satisfaction, which seeing he could not get of man, Rom 8.2. he hath received it at Christs hand, who was the Suretie, imputed to man by Gods grace, and apprehended by a lively Faith. Whereas Saint James takes this word for the approving of man, in a benigne and fatherly judgement, as he is considered in the qualitie of Son of God, and living in the covenant of grace, as having the two essential parts of that covenant joyned together, Faith to receive the grace and benefit of Christ, and Workes to yield him the service and acknowledgement due therefore; and this justication is opposite not to the condemnation of a sinner in general, but to the particular condemnation of an hypocrite, who rending asunder these two inseparable parts, sheweth that he hath neither the one nor the other.

V.22. How Faith] namely, that he had the two essential parts which make up a true believer, which are the benefit of the Son, and the worke of the holy Ghost, which are as inseparable as these two persons of the holy Trinitie, Rom 8.9. Made perfect] obtained its end, and brought forth its true fruit or effect which is voluntary obedience.

V.23. Was fulfilled] as *Gen.*15.6. Faith in Abraham caused him to embrace the promise of the Son, a signe of Gods grace in Christ, so Gen 22.9. it did finish up its full act of yielding it to him, a figure of all the good Workes, by which a believer yields to God by obedience all that which he had received of him by Faith.

V.25. Justified] approved of by God as a true member of his people, not onely because she believed Gods promises which he had made to his people to be true, but also because she put that growing Faith in practise, by an act of charitie and loyaltie towards the spies. Now it seemes that Saint James doth joyne this example of Rahab with that that of Abraham, to shew that there is no degree of Faith, neither high as Abrahams was, nor low and weak as Rahab's was, which ought not, and may not produce its fruits of good Workes.

V.26. So Faith] namely, that knowledge, separate from the Spirit of Regeneration, which onely can animate and vivifie it, to take hold on Christ and his benefit, and withall to produce the effects thereof in good Workes.

CHAP. III.

Vers.1. BE not] Let there not be many amongst you, that attribute unto themselves the authoritie of teaching, reproving, and censuring of others, as thinking themselves more wise, more holy, and more sufficient. That we shall] In case we be found blemished with such defects, as we condemne in other men, or as are contrary to our doctrine and admonition, whereby it appeares that we do not sin by ignorance, and that there is hypocrisie in our proceedings, which are two points that do aggravate sin and condemnation.

V.2. If any man] Suppose that some man might say he were free from other outward sinnes, as those censurers did, yet no man can avoid nor deny the sinnes of the tongue.

V.3. A little] as a bridle or bit is in comparison of the body of the horse, or the rudder in respect of a ship. Boasteth] The tongue emboldeneth man to undertake great things, in evill, through cunning and deceits or by it man will bragge that he can performe and bring to passe great designes.

V.6. The tongue] namely, a false and perverse tongue. A fire] that is to say, a powerfull meanes to kindle divisions, warres, troubles, &c. and to induce men to evill actions, and seduce them, &c. A world] as who should say, a general masse of all sinnes, there being no sin to which the tongue doth not serve for an instrument. The whole bodie] that is to say, man in all his parts. Setteth on fire] is the cause of infinite evils and confusions in the whole course of mans life. Is set on fire] that is to say, is stirred up to evill by the devils suggestions.

V.7. For every] He proves that it is the evill Spirit which stirres up the tongue to excesses, because that no humane art or power could ever finde a remedie against the poyson and offence of it, nor a curbe for the unbridled violence of it, nor way to tame the fiercenesse and wildnesse of it, seeing man thereby exceeds beasts, in crueltie and harmefulnesse.

V.9. Therewith] The wickednesse of the tongue is a most various monster, composed of hypocrisie, in blessing God the Father and Creator of all men, and of maliciousnesse in cursing and wronging of men that bear his Image, which by this offence is injured.

V.12. The fig-tree] the meaning is, in this contrarietie of actions in the Tongue, it is most certain, that evill words are signes and effects of an evill heart, and seeing it is impossible for the heart to be both good and evill, or that contrary effects should proceed from one and the selfe-same heart, we must believe that blessing of God which comes from the mouth, proceeds not from the heart, and that is but a meer vanitie and hypocrisie, see Matth. 12.34,35.

V.13. Who is] He returnes to the discourse of the first verse, the meaning is, if indeed there be any one amongst you that is endowed with sufficient wisdom to instruct and reforme others, let him observe these two things, first, that he practise those things which he teacheth, and shun that which he reprehends. Secondly, that he do reprehend with moderation and benignitie, befitting true wisdom, and not use the imperious roughnesse of Pharisaicall censurers.

V.14. Glory not] falsly attributing to your selves the title of Wise, and teachers of other men, see Rom. 2.17,23.

V.15. Sensuall] not spirituall nor divine, but onely such as may proceed from a man that is not regenerated by Gods Spirit, and therefore vicious, see 1 Cor. 2.14. Jude 19.

V.17. Pure] holy and clean from vice in him that possesseth it, and full of benignitie towards ones neighbour. Easie to be intreated] not headstrong nor wilfull, but pliable to other mens wils and understandings, in things that are lawfull and honest. Without] making no difference between person and person, to contemne the one and esteem the other for outward respects, James 2. or keeping the uprightnesse of judgement, according to pietie and vertue onely, and an equal love towards all men.

V.18. The fruit] that is to say, God hath prepared and preserved for peaceable men the everlasting reward which he hath promised to good Workes, the cause and grounds thereof are already established in Christ and the first seeds are already sowen in their hearts, with spirituall tranquillitie and comfort, see Psal. 97.11. Heb. 12.11.

CHAP. IV.

Vers.1. OF your lusts] from the turbulent desires and passions for the goods and pleasures of this world, which do swell and breed a tumult within you against the Spirit of God, Gal. 5.17. yea even against natural reason, and against one another. Members] namely the internal, and external parts of the bodie and the soul.

V.2. Ye aske not] namely of God, with humble and holy prayers of Faith.

V. 4. Adulterers] namely, ſpirituall ones, which depart from the true love of God, and of Chriſt, the onely Bridegroom of the ſoul to ſettle your affection upon the world, namely, upon the pleaſures, concupiſcences, and ſinnes which reigne in it; ſee Pſal. 73. 27.

V. 5. The Scripture] this paſſage, as well as ſome others are not found in the holy Scripture: it may peradventure be taken out of ſome ancient book of pietie, though not canonical, which may be was in uſe in thoſe dayes. The Spirit] the meaning ſeemes to be, that the devil which worketh in the children of rebellion, Epheſ. 2. 2. doth excite theſe two violent paſſions in men, the one of unſatiable coveteouſneſſe of worldly goods for himſelfe, the other of a malicious envie againſt others, but God in ſuch a great corruption of mankinde, cauſeth his grace to abound in pardoning of ſinnes, Rom. 5. 20. but to be partakers thereof, we muſt humble our ſelves before him by Repentance and calling upon him.

V. 6. Wherefore] namely, to teach men how to make themſelves capable of Gods grace. Reſiſteth] that which is here ſpoken of proud men, Solomon, Prov. 3. 34. ſpeakes it of ſcorners, becauſe that ſcorn proceedeth from contempt of others, and from great pride in ones ſelfe.

V. 8. Draw nigh] by converſion, faith, and prayer, Zech. 1. 3. Will draw nigh] that is to ſay, He will make us finde that he is neer unto us with his favour and bleſſing.

V. 11. Speak not] namely, blame no man, nor ſpeak evill of him, or curſe him. He that ſpeaketh] that is to ſay, Whoſoever ſpeaks evill of his neighbour, or condemneth him according to his own will and ſenſe, and not according to Gods Law, takes upon him a raſh ſuperiority, not onely over his neighbour, but even above the very Law of God. But a judge] becauſe thou doeſt indirectly tax it of imperfectneſſe, and wouldeſt be wiſer and ſeverer then it, and ſo ſheweſt that thou wilt not ſubmit unto it.

V. 13. Go to now] an abrupt kinde of ſpeech, which ought to be thus applied, What doe ye, or what think ye?

V. 16. But now ye] that is to ſay, Though ye be laden with ſo many ſinnes, yet you boaſt that ye are very holy and underſtanding, &c.

V. 17. Therefore to him] in concluſion know ye, that knowledge without obedience doth no way free from ſinne, but doth rather aggravate ſinne before God.

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. Weep] he deſcribes Gods judgement upon evill rich men, as if it were already come.

V. 2. Your riches] you have rather choſen to let thoſe goods which you had laid up be corrupted and ſpoiled, then to uſe any liberalitie therewith, nor employ them in holy and righteous uſes.

V. 3. Shall be a witneſſe] ſhall be an evident proof of your avarice, for which you ſhall be condemned to everlaſting puniſhment. Ye have heaped] whereas you thought to have laid up a great treaſure of goods for the time to come, you ſhall in effect finde that you have laid up Gods wrath againſt the day of judgement, Rom. 2. 5.

V. 4. Cryeth] requires vengeance at Gods hands of you, and calleth upon him for to execute it, ſee Gen. 4. 10. and 18. 20. Exod. 3. 7.

V. 5. Of ſlaughter] the Italian, of ſolemn feaſting; the Greek, of ſacrifice or ſlaughter of beaſts: for in ſolemn ſacrifices of thankſgiving they uſed to make great feaſts with the fleſh of them, ſee Prov. 7. 17. and 17. 1.

V. 7. Be patient] ſeeing the laſt judgement is at hand, when violent men ſhall bee puniſhed, and thoſe that were afflicted, relieved and rewarded, ſee 2 Theſſ. 1. 6. He receive] untill the harveſt be come to maturity in its proper ſeaſon, and by ordinary means.

V. 8. Stabliſh your] namely, in conſtancy and perſeverance.

V. 9. Grudge not] the Italian, ſigh not; do not you require vengeance at the hands of God, that you may obtain pardon from him, who hath promiſed forgiveneſſe to them which do forgive, Matth. 6. 14, 15.

V. 11. We count them] the whole Chriſtian Church with unanimous conſent, doth acknowledge and celebrate them to be happy before God, which is a certain feeling imprinted in our hearts by Gods Spirit, to induce us to imitate them.

V. 12. Other oath] namely, no unneceſſary oath, being not required to ſwear by him that hath power to miniſter an oath. But let your] let your affirmation and negation be ſimple and pure, alwayes grounded upon the plain truth, rather then ſtrengthned with unlawfull oaths.

V. 14. The elders] namely, the paſtors and guides. Over him] this hath a relation to the Ceremonie which was uſed of holding the hands over the ſicke mans head whileſt they were praying, Mark 16. 18. With oil] according to Chriſts own order, Mark 6. 13. for a ſigne of the miraculous grace of healing of bodies, which was in thoſe primitive dayes, Mark 16, 18. In the name] by Chriſts authority, by vertue of his order, beleeving his promiſe, and calling upon him, to have him operate that by his power which is ſignified by the outward Ceremonie.

V. 15. The prayer] that is to ſay, God called upon on in faith, see Acts 3. 16. Sinnes] for punishment and reformation whereof, the Lord hath punished him with sickneſſe.

V. 20. Shall ſerve] that is to ſay, Shall be the inſtrument of another mans ſalvation, and of grace for himſelf, becauſe that the Lord will reward this his charity by a more expreſſe and abundant feeling of his pardon towards him, who peradventure is laden with many ſinnes, ſee Rom. 11. 34. 1 Corinth. 9. 22. 1 Tim. 4. 6.

THE FIRST EPISTLE generall of S^t. PETER the Apoſtle.

ARGUMENT.

THis Epiſtle containeth three principall heads; the firſt is a large repreſentation which the Apoſtle makes to the Iews which were turned Chriſtians, of the ineſtimable benefit of redemption and ſalvation, which having been deſtinated for them from everlaſting, was acquired and accompliſhed by Chriſt, and communicated by the Goſpell, and poſſeſſed by them in the hope of everlaſting life and glory. The ſecond is, a ſtrong perſwaſion to the fruits of faith and holineſſe of life, as well in the generall calling of all beleevers, as in the particular callings of each perſon and condition. The third is, a lively exhortation to patience and conſtancy in afflictions and perſecutions for the glorious cauſe of the faith, and of the Name of Chriſt.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. TO the] namely, to the Iews, diſperſed out of their own countrey into thoſe Provinces, and converted to the Chriſtian faith.

V. 2. Elect] ſeparated from the world by Gods effectuall calling, which is the execution of the eternall election. The foreknowledge] the Italian, preordination; the Greek, foreknowledge; that is to ſay, A decree made by Gods knowledge and judgement, Rom. 8. 29. Through ſanctification] ſanctifying you really by his Spirit, to whom it belongs to make Gods vocation firm and effectuall, 2 Theſſ. 2. 13. Unto obedience] that by faith making you obedient unto the Goſpell, you may be partakers of the benefit of the Lords death for the remiſſion of your ſinnes. Or he declares the two ends of the beleevers vocation, which are the juſtification in the blood of Chriſt; and the new obedience through the ſanctification of the Spirit.

V. 3. Unto a lively hope] namely, to conceive a lively, ſtill growing, and operating hope of celeſtiall goods, by meanes of the ſpirituall regeneration, which is the true ſeed and pledge of eternall glory. By the reſurrection] namely, by vertue of Chriſts reſurrection, which is the fountain of regeneration, Rom. 6. 5, 11. Coloſſ. 2. 12. and likewiſe the foundation of our future glory, 1 Cor. 15. 18, 20, 21. Epheſ. 2, 6.

V. 4. To an inheritance] to gain us the right unto it, and make us capeable thereof, as being made the children of God. Incorruptible] by theſe titles he ſheweth, How that as celeſtiall goods are everlaſting and without any impurity of ſinne, beleevers ought likewiſe to be ſuch by the gift of the holy Ghoſt, which cauſeth them to put off theſe two qualities, namely of ſinne, and finally alſo the weak conditions of a ſenſuall life, ſee 1 Cor. 15. 50.

V. 5. By the power] by his power which onely works effectually in this defence, againſt all aſſaults and deceits of the enemies, John 10. 29. and is lent man by meanes of a true and lively faith. Are kept] that is to ſay, Preſerved againſt all dangers of loſing their ſalvation, John 17. 11, 12, 15. Jude 1. Unto ſalvation] namely, to be made poſſeſſours of the chief end and perfect fulneſſe of it.

V. 6. Wherein] namely, in the certainty of this inviolable ſafegard of God, and in the earneſt which which he hath given you of the promised salvation by means of your regeneration. If need be] whereby the necessity of God will must impose upon you the Law of salvoluntary obedience. Temptations] that is to say, Trials and exercises of afflictions, Iames 1. 2.

V. 7. The triall] namely, your faith well tried and standing to any touch. Might be found] before God.

V. 9. Receiving] having even in this very world the first fruits of the fruition of salvation, after which undoubtedly shall follow the fulnesse thereof.

V. 10. Have enquired] by a fervent desire and expectation. That should come] the Italian, that is come; or that was received for you, or which was to be communicated unto you.

V. 11. Of Christ] which is that Spirit by which all the Prophets were inspired and have spoken, and which proceeds from the Father, and from the Son, and whose gifts, presence, and power, have at all times been dispensed by Christ head of the Church, and supreme Prophet of it, see Eccles. 12. 13. Acts 16. 17. 1 Peter 3. 19.

V. 12. That not] namely, that they foretold and preached the mysteries of the Gospell, the full manifestation and fruition of which should not happen in their times but in ours. With the holy Ghost] that is to say, Being inspired by it. Which things] that is to say, Which things are so admirable and excellent, that the full knowledge thereof is much desired, and is wonderous amiable even to the very Angels, who cannot be satisfied with the contemplation and the height thereof, with extreme wonder and rejoycing.

V. 13. Wherefore] namely, seeing you are come to that holy and so much desired time, see Rom. 13. 11. 2 Cor. 6. 2. Gird up] being continually free from worldly cares and affections, and prepared for the race and voyage of the heavenly vocation; a terme taken from travellers of those dayes, in which they used to gird up their long garments, that they might be the more fitting and ready for travell: but particularly it is taken from the Israelites when they came out of Egypt, Exod. 12. 11.

V. 15. Hath called you] to unite you unto him, which cannot be done unlesse you be holy as he is, Psal. 5. 4.

V. 17. Of persons] namely, of their outward qualities of titles, shew, or condition, but looks onely to the reality of true holinesse and obedience. Of your journeying] namely this present life, which is an absence from our true heavenly countrey. In fear] with all reverence, care, and heavenly humilitie.

V. 18. That ye were not] and consequently that so great a gift requires an equall gratitude. From your vain] from your unfruitfull works of darknesse, Ephes. 5. 11. and from all false doctrines and religions.

V. 19. As of a] namely, who is the substance and the truth of that figure of the Paschall Lamb, by whose blood the Israelites were delivered.

V. 20. For you] namely, for your salvation.

V. 21. By him] Christ manifesting the Father unto us by his word, and creating faith in us by his Spirit, and also he only having made him propitious unto us; that we might put all our confidence in him. That your] he saith so, because that by Christs exaltation, the Father sheweth that he is pleased with us, which would not be if Christ had remained dead, 1 Cor. 15. 14, 17. and also because that being fulfilled in the head, we are certain that it shal likewise be so with the members; and because that Christ ascended into Heaven, he makes intercession for his beleevers, to obtain all manner of grace and the holy Ghost for them, whereby faith is engendred in them, and the conformity of the members with the head is brought forth.

V. 22. In obeying] namely, in beleeving the Gospell, or conforming your selves to the will of God by a sincere and filiall obedience. Through the Spirit] namely, by the power and grace of the holy Ghost, which may have a relation either to the foresaid obedience, or to the purification of the souls, because that both are the work of the holy Ghost. Of the brethren] which is the true end and naturall effect of the purification of the soul by faith, Ephes. 1. 4. 1 John 3. 18, 19.

V. 23. By the word] which is likened to the seed, made actuall and fruitfull by the addition of the holy Ghost. Which liveth] which is endowed with an effectuall and spirituall power, and is established and lasteth for ever, whereby it is likewise apt to bring forth the spirituall and everlasting life in beleevers, opposite to the mortall and transitory life which they had from their parents by the corporall generation, which is described afterwards.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. Laying aside] or casting away. Now this depends from that which is spoken, Chap. 1. 23. for the regeneration which is spoken of there consists in renouncing of those and all other vices.

V. 2. As new born] that is to say, Being newly made Christians, imitate little children in desiring the souls pasture, which is Gods word, which as it is the seed to give the life of the Spirit, it is likewise the food to preserve and increase it. The sincere] namely, the word of God, which is the most sincere truth, apt to purge man from all the foresaid deceits: Or the Word of God not falsified with with erroneous doctrines, 2 Cor. 2. 7. & 4. 2.

V. 3. If so be] he speakes this to signifie that all our desire proceeds from the relish which God hath already given us of his grace by faith: according to that, unto him who hath, is given, if so be he doe aske it, John 4. 10.

V. 4. To whom] that is to say, being united to the Lord Jesus, and made his members by a lively faith. A living stone] namely, as to the foundation of the Church, which hath an everlasting life, and lastingnesse in it, and is also soveraignly active by the communication of a spirituall life and vertue to all such as are built upon him by faith; which is spoken in comparison, or opposition to materiall foundations, which though they be solid and sound, yet can they not communicate their qualities, to the stones which are laid above them.

V. 5. Lively stones] namely, participating of that foresaid life of Christ; and therefore opposite to the dead stones of the materiall Temple. Are built up] or, be ye built up. An holy Priesthood] that is to say, a multitude and company of Priests. By Jesus] whose perfect righteousnesse and intercession gaineth all Gods grace to beleevers, and to their workes.

V. 6. Be confounded] that is to say, he shall not fall from his hopes, nor be deluded in his confidence.

V. 7. He is] the Italian, it is that precious thing; namely, that precious foundation whereof Isaiah speakes.

V. 8. Which stumble] namely, which striving against the doctrine of the Gospell through incredulity and rebellion, are causes of their owne ruine, and yet can no way stirre the Gospell. Whereunto] namely, into which ruine God hath from everlasting and immutably determined to let them fall through their owne fault, see 1 Thes. 5. 9. Jude 4.

V. 9. A royall] that is to say, a company of Priests who are likewise Kings, Exod. 19. 6. Priests to Godward, to whom beleevers doe yeeld spirituall worship, v. 5. and Kings over the creatures, over which Christ their head hath given them the dominion, which they had lost in Adam, and hath made them fellows in the glory of his Kingdome, Matth. 19. 28. 1 Cor. 6. 2, 3. Revel. 1. 6. & 2. 26, 27. & 3. 21. & 5. 10. & 20. 6. A peculiar] which he hath purchased with a price, and made his by a Soveraigne title, to hold them for his owne people.

V. 10. Not a people] namely, Gods people: for the ten Tribes to which the Apostle writes, were formerly fallen away from Gods covenant.

V. 11. Pilgrimes] namely, in this world, a place of travell for us, and not our owne native Countrey: whereby the goods and delights thereof are not our owne proper goods, and the too much staying and fixing our selves upon them hindereth our endeavour, and care which we ought to take in this our voyage to Heaven.

V. 12. In the day] when it shall please God to draw neere unto them, communicating his knowledge and grace over them, see Luke 19. 44.

V. 13. To every] namely, to Princes, Magistrates, Governours, made by men: or amongst men, by the civill conversation and guide of humane society. For the Lords sake] who is the author of governments, and of all publique order, who commands obedience to Magistrates, and binds all mens consciences thereunto, and therein is served and honoured, Rom. 13. 5. To the King] namely, to the Roman Emperour, sometimes called a King by forraigne Nations.

V. 16. As free] spiritually freed from the bondage of sinne, the divell, and the world, and also from the servile pedagogie of the Law: which liberty many did abuse to the licentiousnesse of the flesh, and to the shaking off all kind of yoke of worldly dominion.

V. 18. To the froward] namely, to such as are rough and cruell.

V. 19. Thankworthy] the Italian, pleasing; namely, to God, who esteemes it an act of obedience done to him, and of humble patience under his hand. For conscience] that is to say, to obey him, according to the duty which his conscience tels him of, and bindes him to. Being enlightned by his word, and by his Spirit.

V. 20. Buffeted] the Italian, punished; some translations have it buffeted, which was an ignominious kind of punishment.

V. 21. Called] in that the end of Gods vocation and election is to be made conformable to Christ, as well in his sufferings, as in his glory, Rom. 8. 29.

V. 24. Bore our sinnes] to suffer the punishment of them, to cancell the bond, and annihilate the curse, Col. 2. 14. Heb. 9. 28. In his owne body. namely, in his humane nature. On the Tree] namely, upon the Crosse.

V. 25. And Bishop] namely, Christ, the Soveraigne Guardian, Rector, and spirituall Steward, which are the significations of the name of Bishop.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. Obey not] or beleeve not. Be won] that is to say, disposed and induced to thinke well of the Gospell, to desire the knowledge of it and be converted unto it, see Matth. 18. 15. 1 Cor. 9. 19, 20, 21, 22.

V. 2. With feare] that is to say, in holy modesty, reverence, and humility.

V. 4. The hidden man] namely, the whole state, the vertues and qualities of the soule regenerated by the Holy Ghost; the forme whereof doth not appeare to the outward ſences, but is inward, and knowne by God onely, See Pſal. 45.13. In not corruptible] oppoſite to the corruptible ornaments of the body.

V. 6. Not afraid] growing confident in God, that following your vocation, he will preſerve you from all trouble and danger which you might feare from your unbeleeving husbands.

V. 7. According to] the Italian, diſcreetly; or according to knowledge, being the husband ought by right to be more underſtanding then the woman. Or, according as you are enlightned in the will of God, by the Goſpell. Honour] namely, a certaine reſpect, with a circumſpectneſſe to not offend, contemne, or reject them by reaſon of their naturall infirmities. The weaker veſſell] the Scripture calls all men veſſels, in regard of their body and calling, Act. 1 Theſ. 4.4. 2 Tim. 2.20. Heires together] namely, with the women, who in Chriſt are partakers of the ſame benefit of Gods grace, and of the right to everlaſting life, ſee 1 Cor. 11.11. Be not] as well by the paſſion of wrath, as by diſſenſion: whereas prayer ought to proceed from a quiet ſpirit, and requires the conſent of hearts, and forgiveneſſe of offences, ſee Matth. 5. 23, 24. and 6. 14, 15. & 18, 19.

V. 9. Thereunto] namely, to endure afflictions patiently, 1 Theſ. 3.3. 1 Pet. 2.21. Or, to performe Chriſts command, Matth. 6.14, 15 and to imitate his example, 1 Pet. 2.23.

V. 13. Who will harme you] there is no better, nor more ſecure way, for to mitigate the hearts of them that would injure one, then meere goodneſſe: nor any better defence then innocency: and if notwithſtanding this, a man doe receive any injury, it is no more a true evill, but a triall, and exerciſe, which proves to be for a mans praiſe and ſalvation.

V. 14. Of their terrour] namely, with a carnall feare of worldly men, your perſecuters, which without faith takes away the underſtanding, and deprives man of all good advice and counſell.

V. 15. Sanctifie] that is to ſay, give glory to him truely and heartily confiding in his grace, power, and promiſe, ſee Iſa. 8.13. And feare] namely holy modeſty, and humility.

V. 16. Falſely accuſe] or trouble. In Chriſt] namely, the Chriſtian converſation of ſuch men, as being by faith united to Chriſt, doe live and are governed by his Spirit.

V. 17. It is better] this is ſaid because that mans underſtanding is more impatient at undeſerved then at deſerved evils.

V. 18. Chriſt alſo] who is the moſt perfect example; and in being conformable to whom conſiſts the ſupreame vertue and happineſſe, 1 Pet. 2.21. Bring us] that is to ſay, ſhould reconcile us, and rejoyne us to him againe, and ſhould give us entrance into his glory, Heb. 2.10. Put to death] the Italian, mortified; that is to ſay, overcome with evils, and afterwards really dead, according to his humane nature, which he had taken upon him in his paſſible and mortall condition, but riſen again from the dead by vertue of his divine nature, here called ſpirit, as Rom 1.4. 1 Tim 3.16.

V. 19 By which] the Italian, in which; namely, in which divine nature, he did formerly manifeſt himſelfe to the world, in the daies of Noah, who was by his Spirit driven and inſpired to preach repentance, Heb. 11.7. 2 Pet. 2.5. as all the Prophets ſpake by Chriſts Spirit, 1 Pet. 1.11. Now St. Peters meaning ſeemes to be, that though Chriſt were at all times the great Prophet of the Church, yet the greateſt part of the world was incredulous, and rebellious to him, as it appeared more expreſſely and generally in Noahs time; and therefore it ought not to ſeeme ſtrange if the ſame thing happeneth under the Goſpell: but then ſalvation is likewiſe onely for beleevers, and perdition for all the reſt of the unbeleeving world, as it happened at that time. He went] a figurative kind of ſpeech; becauſe Gods glorious abode is in Heaven: and from thence he is ſaid to come, and deſcend, when he manifeſts himſelfe to the world by ſome ſingular operation. Preached] that is to ſay, he cauſed Noah to preach. Unto the Spirits] namely, to the men of that age whoſe ſoules are now in the infernall priſons, impriſoned, as it were, there againſt the day of judgement, ſee 2 Pet. 2.4.

V. 20. Soules] that is to ſay, perſons. By water] the Italian. By waters of the water] that is to ſay, the water which drowned all the world, carrying and bearing up the Arke.

V. 21. The like figure] that is to ſay, Noahs ſaving by meanes of the Arke, in the middle of the deluge, may be taken for a figure of the beleevers ſalvation out of the abiſſe of everlaſting death, which ſwalloweth up all the world, and from whence they are delivered by vertue of Chriſts reſurrection, applyed and ſealed unto them by baptiſme, ſee upon 1 Cor. 10.2. Not the putting away] that is to ſay, not this corporall waſhing, which is uſed in the action of outward baptiſme, which is of no efficacy for the ſoule, of it ſelfe: but the inward action, wrought by the power of the Holy Ghoſt, whereby the beleevers conſcience is in a manner eaſed, looſed, and purified; ſo that it being tried and queſtioned before God, it anſweres and witneſſeth to it ſelfe by the holy Ghoſt pardon, grace, and peace, Rom. 8.16. 1 Cor. 2.12. which is the foundation, earneſt, and beginning of everlaſting ſalvation. By the reſurrection] by which Chriſt being come out of the abiſſe of death, brings his members after him into everlaſting life, ſee John 14.19. 1 Cor. 15.21, 22.

CHAP. IV.

CHAP. IV.

Vers. 1. Christ] as he had said, chap. 3. 18. The meaning is, seeing Christ hath suffered death and passion for us, of which no man partakes, by faith, to justification and purging, unlesse he have a spirituall conformity with him, in mortifying of the old man, and vivifying of the new one, Rom. 6. 4. looke that you firmely propound unto your selves to imitate him, and that shall be unto you in stead of Armour, or defence against any assault or temptation, see Rom. 6. 6, 7. & 7. 6. Gal. 2. 20. & 5. 24. He that hath] that is to say, the true Christian, that hath been crucified with Christ, in what concerned his old man, or naturall corruption. Hath ceased] that is to say, sinne reigneth no more in him, to cause him to make a continuall practice of it, with a kinde of habit and delight, though indeed it doth yet dwell, and warre within him, so that he cannot choose but as yet commit some act of it, through weaknesse or at unawares, see Rom. 6. 12, 14. and 7. 18, 23. 1 John 3. 6, 9. and 5. 18.

V. 2. In the flesh] namely, in this mortall life, Gal. 2. 20. To the lusts] devoting his life and actions thereunto, like to a servant, busied altogether in his masters businesses. Or, in such sort that you be as it were living instruments of sinne, to fulfill the desires and inclinations thereof, and be wholly possessed by it.

V. 3. May suffice] a vulgar kind of speech: that is to say, We, though we be Jewes, and the people of God, have too much imitated the Gentiles, in the vices and sinnes in which they live, and take pleasure: it is now even time to turne over a new leafe, see Ezech. 44. 6. & 45. 9.

V. 4. Wherein] that is to say, seeing you by the Gospell are quite changed from what you were wont to be. Speake evill] the Italian, blasphemé; in contempt of you, and detestation of the Gospell, as a doctrine contrary to the sence and understanding; and which fighteth against common customes, and religions which are approved of, Acts 13. 45. and 18. 6.

V. 5. The quicke] as well those as shall be still living, when he commeth to judgement, as those which are dead before his comming.

V. 6. For, for this] for we must each moment expect Christs last comming. The Apostles, did put themselves, and those who lived in their daies, in the number of those that should be living in that day, 1 Cor. 15. 51. 1 Thes. 4. 15, 17. Whereupon Saint Peter restraining that which he had spoken (namely that Christ should judge both the living and the dead) unto the Church, as well of the Jewes who were already dead, as of the Christians who should be yet living: he proves it to be so, because they have all been alike under Christs Kingdome, having been partakers of his Gospell, which is as it were the law of his Kingdome, see 1 Cor. 10. 1, 2, 4. Heb. 4. 2. That they might] namely, that the incredulous and rebellious should be condemned, as the rest of carnall men, corrupt by sinne. But live] namely, that those amongst them who believed should be made partakers of Gods life in glory, by meanes of their being regenerate to the Image of God, produced in them by the power of the holy Ghost.

V. 8. Shall cover] God respecting it, shall be favourable to the sinner to give him a more lively impression and feeling of the pardon of his sinnes in Christ, and shall also free him from many corporall punishments.

V. 11. Speake] that is to say, hath the gift and office of teaching publikely in the Church. As the Oracles] namely, with all reverence, purenesse, fidelity, and humblenesse, not atributing any glory to himselfe. And with authority as speaking in Gods Name, and as his Ambassadour, Matth. 7. 29. Tit. 2. 15. Minister] that is to say, is called to the Office of Deacon, to dispence the common goods of the Church, to relieve the poore, and to other uses, Acts 6. 2. Rom. 13. 7, 8. 1 Cor. 12. 28. As of the ability] that is to say, acknowledging that the outward meanes, and also the power of making use of them comes from God: that so making use of that power, as over other mens goods, he may referre, the glory bounderonesse and service therefore to God. Through Jesus] by whom the father distributeth all these gifts and vocations, by whose intercession, and under whose favour all thanksgiving ought to be yeelded to God, for to have it pleasing unto him, Rom. 1. 8. Eph. 5. 20. 1 Pet. 2. 5. Dominion] the Italian, command; or power, 1 Tim. 6. 16.

V. 12. Fiery tryall] of afflictions, see Dan. 12. 10. 1 Pet. 1. 7.

V. 14. For the name] for making profession of him and his Gospell as Christians, as v. 16. Of glory] as much as to say, the glorious Spirit, as well in the divine power of his operations, as in the Impression of Gods Image and heavenly glory, which even in this world he imprinteth in beleevers, 2 Cor. 3. 18. He is] namely, Christ. Glorified] that is to say, his glory is defended by you against the evill speeches of the world. You honour him by the constancie of your faith and service: and by your innocency and holinesse you make it appeare, what manner of one he is, to whose image you are regenerated, and that causeth all these vertues in you.

V. 15. Busie-bodie] the Italian, a Bishop over strangers; that is to say, an indiscreet reformer, and judge of those that are out of the Church, over whom God hath given him neither charge nor authority, see Matth.7.6. 1 Cor. 5.12,13. Others translate it, Busie in other mens businesses. Others, a spie or disturber of the publike peace, an authour of practices and conspiracies against the state.

V.16. Let him glorifie God] that is to say, let him give him humble thankes as for a singular honour and benefit, Acts 5.41. Phil.1.7,29.

V.17. The time is come] The time of the Gospel brings this with it, that God purifies his Church by the fire of afflictions, see Isai 4.4. Matth.3.12.

V.18. If the righteous] that is to say, if believers, though they endevour themselves to be pious and holy, ought (by reason of the reliques of sin which remain in the) to passe through so many difficulties of Gods punishments, and combats of the world, before they can come to eternall salvation: The sinner] namely, the unbeliever, who lieth wholly in sin, and is altogether given to it, and is drowned in it.

V.19. Unto a faithfull] namely, to God who hath not onely created them, but also having out of his meer grace promised them salvation and everlasting life, will infallibly grant it them.

CHAP. V.

Vers.1. THe Elders] namely, the Pastours and guides of the Church.

V.3. Gods heritage] the Italian, the heritages; namely, the particular Churches, which are as parts of the universal, which God holds as his possession and inheritance, Psal.33.12. and 74.2.

V.4. That fadeth not away] like the garlands wherewith the conquerours at games, races and combats were crowned, which were made of herbes, leaves, and flowers. Others translate it of Amaranto, which is a flower that fadeth not away, and wherewith they crowned their idols images.

V.9. The same afflictions] namely, which you suffer; and by which the devill tempteth you to apostasie. Are accomplished] According as God hath appointed his Church its proportion, measure, and lastingnesse of afflictions to the likenesse of Christs, see Col.1.24.

V.10. Of all grace] namely, the Authour of each gift and grace. By Christ] the Italian, in Christ; that is to say, by vertue of his righteousnesse, redemption and intercession, by meanes of your union with him in Spirit, and by Faith. Ye have suffered] or suffered a little.

V.11. Dominion] the Italian, command; or power.

V.12. The true grace] namely, the true doctrine of the Gospel, which is the declaration and ambassage of grace.

V.13. At Babylon] this is, the citie or countrie of Babylon in Chaldea, where there were an infinite number of Jewes dispersed. My son] See 1 Tim.1.2.

V.14. That are] namely, that by Faith are members of his Bodie and Church.

THE SECOND EPISTLE GENERALL OF S. PETER the Apostle.

ARGUMENT.

IN this second Epistle written by Saint Peter being neer his end, he doth at the first magnifie Gods grace communicated by the Gospel and exhorts believers to holinesse of life, and to all the parts and vertues of spirituall regeneration, to establish in themselves the certaintie of their vocation, and put themselves forward to the end thereof: then by the Spirit of God he foretels the horrible corruptions of Doctrine and life which should befall the Church by heretickes, and false teachers; and by lewd prophane contemners of God, and mockers of his Doctrine, whose subtiltie, meanes, followers, impieties, wickednesses, and eternal perdition, he sets down, shewing also that the seeds of these plagues were already sown in the Church, and admonishing believers to beware of them carefully, and comforting them with Gods singular grace and protection towards his. And finally, he exhorteth them to expect in faith, patience, holy desire, and pure conversation, the last comming of Christ, by which all the corruptible state and forme of this world being brought to nothing, and changed, they shall be gathered into the Kingdom of glorie, and rest everlasting, according to Gods promises.

CHAP.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. Like precious] namely, of the same natures vertue, propertie, price, as that of us Apostles, though we have it not all in an equal degree, see Rom. 1. 12. 2 Cor. 4. 13. Tit. 1, 4. Through the] the Italian, in the] whose foundation and object is Christs righteousnesse, which comprehends all that he hath done, and suffered for his, others expound the word Righteousnesse for mercie and goodnesse, or for loyaltie in holding to his promises according to the Hebrew terme.

V. 3. Unto life] namely, to the happy and everlasting life. Of him] namely, of God, who reveleth himselfe in the Gospel to salvation. To glorie] the Italian, or glorie; that is to say, employing his glorious power to convert us, see Ephes. 1. 19. and 3. 16.

V. 4. Whereby] namely, by the foresaid glorie and vertue some copies have: By whose love. Promises] namely, the effects of the promises made to our forefathers. You might be] you may be regenerated to the Image of God in holinesse, righteousnesse, and other vertues, which are originally and essentially in God, and the like: of which are created in the believer, and do increase, untill this conformitie do come to its perfection in heaven. Having escaped] having freed your selves, and withdrawn your selves farre from it, Acts 2. 40. Heb. 6. 18. 2 Pet. 2. 18, 20. Through lust] which corruption consists in the concupiscence or lust which reigneth in the world.

V. 5. Vertue] that is to say, holy and vertuous customes, and an honest life. Knowledge] namely, the progresse and confirmation in the knowledge and mysteries of the Gospel.

V. 7. Brotherly kindnesse] towards believers. Charitie] that is to say, the general and common charitie towards all men, see 1 Thess. 3. 12. and 5. 15.

V. 8. Unfruitfull] namely, in fruits of righteousnesse and holinesse, which are the end of the knowledge and faith which God plants in the hearts of his.

V. 9. But he] the Italian, for he; he proves the same by the contrary, thus; Where these vertues are, the knowledge shewes it selfe true and lively in efficacie; contrariwise, where they are wanting, knowledge appears but as a shadow, without life and vertue, Jam. 2. 17, 20, 26. Cannot see afar] the Italian, Dazeling; he seems to set forth the image of false faith, by the similitude of a blinde mans eyes which are dazled, who can perceive some dim and confused light, but cannot thereby be guided in his motions. Hath forgotten] that is to say, Hath rejected Gods grace, through which he had felt some small sparke, beginning and appearance of, being purged and reformed from his sins, Heb. 10. 29.

V. 10. Your calling] not in it selfe, which hath all its vertue and subsistency from God and from his pleasure, Rom. 9. 11, 16. but in the feeling certainty and apprehension which the beleever ought to have of it. Ye shall never fall] you shall run on the race of your heavenly calling with a sure pace without disturbance or hinderance as in a plain way; and finally, you shall come to the end of it without falling, see 1 John 2. 10.

V. 12. Wherefore] seeing these things are so necessary for your salvation, I will carefully put you in minde of them, because that as I have the charge of procuring your salvation, I have also the will to do it. Though ye] See Rom. 15. 14, 15. John 2. 21.

V. 13. In this Tabernacle] that is to say, in this bodie, as 2 Cor. 5. 1.

V. 16. For we] These things are worthy of perpetual meditation, because they are of a most pure, most certain, most divine Truth. The power] it seemes that these two things must have a relation, to Christs glorie being ascended into heaven, and to his last comming to judgement, whereof his Transfiguration was an essay, Matth. 17. 1, 2. and therein consists the perfection of what he hath done for us, and what he accomplisheth in us.

V. 17. From the Excellent] namely, from God himselfe, in his heavenly glorie.

V. 18. The holy] that is to say, singularly chosen, for this apparition, and by the apparition sanctified for that moment, see Exod. 3. 5.

V. 19. More sure] than those particular revelations which are not the foundation of Faith, but onely props and bearers up thereof; or this is spoken in regard of the greater credit which the believing Jewes gave to the doctrine of the Prophets, than to that of the Apostles, Acts 17. 11. Others have it, Most firme. In a darke place] namely, in your understandings, and in all the Jewish Church, which hath been enlightened by the prophetike word, during the night of Christs absence. Untill the] untill your hearts be fully enlightened by the Spirit of Christ himselfe, who is the Sun of righteousnesse, and the morning-star of the Church, Rev. 2. 2. 28. and 22. 16. without having any more need, of the shadowes, figures, and weak directions of the Law.

V. 20. Knowing] that is to say, in this reading of the Prophets, we must especially beware of understanding or interpreting them according to every mans minde or understanding, but according to the minde of the holy Ghost which revealeth it selfe either by the clear events of the Gospel, or by the divine inspirations and expositions of his Apostles, or by the comparing of the same Prophets, and their continuall consent, Acts 17. 11.

V. 21. For the] because it belongs onely to God, who is the onely author of prophecie, to give the true sence of it. Of God] namely, his chosen servants, who had a calling altogether divine, and the gift of his presence and inspiration in all their ministery.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. The people] of Israel. Damnable] which leading men away from the foundation of faith and everlasting life, doe cast them downe into damnation. Denying] either by a totall apostacie, or through want of sincere obedience, Tit. 1. 16. That bought them] who by the price of his blood, which they had professed by baptisme that they would be partakers of, had gotten the right and title of Lord and master over them, to make them his servants, see Heb. 10 29.

V. 2. Their pernicious waies] the Italian, their lasciviousnesse] namely, their false doctrines and evill examples which loosen the reines to all manner of licentiousnesse of the flesh, under the pretence of Christian liberty, v. 18. Jude 4. Others their perditions, that is to say, their pestilent doctrines. The way] namely, the profession of the Gospell shall be exposed to shame, and to the reproaches of the adversaries, see Acts 19. 9, 23.

V. 3. Through covetousnesse] namely, under a faigned kind of speech, framed to a shew of piety, mildnesse, and charity, they shall endeavour to lay hold on your goods with the ruine of your soules.

V. 4. Cast them downe] the Italian, abissed them; that is to say, having first driven them out of their heavenly habitation into the lowermost parts of the world, he keepes them there like prisoners chained up in horrible darknesse, without any light of grace, joy, and happinesse, untill that they be at the last day driven into everlasting torments, see Matth. 8, 29. Luke 8. 31. Ephes. 6. 12.

V. 5. A preacher] namely, who whiles he was preparing the Arke, exhorted and admonished the world to turne to the Lord, and desire a free forgivenesse of their sinnes, through faith in the promised Messias, which was the true righteousnesse by faith, by which himselfe was righteous, Heb. 11. 7.

V. 9. Knoweth how to deliver] that is to say, shall indeed deliver. Out of temptation] namely, out of all calamities troubles and dangers by which he trieth those that are his, Jam. 1. 2. Rev. 3. 10.

V. 10. After the] flying out into a liberty of committing fornication, and all manner of lust, as those libertine hereticks which did arise in those daies, both did and taught, of which hereticks Jude also speakes. Government] as well the publique government of Magistrates, as the private government of Masters, as a thing unfitting to be endured by beleevers, who are the children of God, guided by his Spirit, and by himselfe freed from the Law. So did these false Doctors turne spirituall liberty which consisted in the free and willing doing of such things as one ought to doe, into a licentiousnesse of doing whatsoever they would, without any respect of honesty, or regard of government.

V. 11. Whereas] this is spoken because that though the Angels were Gods Ministers on earth, to withstand the rage of evill Princes, and to execute Gods judgements upon them, and be also as Gods assistants and messengers, Dan. 4. 13. 17. Zech. 1. 10, 11. Yet we never find in Scripture, that they did raile against powers, or offer them any injury, but did still with all respect leave the judging of their actions to God. Greater] in the excellency of their nature, and height of their office above all the Potentates of the Earth. Railing accusation] that is to say, injurious, which is undecent for any grave and holy action of justice which is by such excesses prophaned.

V. 12. Made to be taken] whose ordinary end is to be taken and slaine by Huntsmen. Which these false Doctors are like, as well in their brutish sensuality, as in their unbridled licenciousnesse, and in their unfortunate end. Of the things] that is to say, they take liberty to speake evill of, and defame such things as they have neither knowledge nor understanding in; especially your unbeleeving Princes and Magistrates, being not able to discerne how that in their office they may be Gods Ministers, though in their persons and abuse of their offices they be his enemies. Corruption] namely, in their wicked and abominable life and conversation.

V. 13. That count it] that doe put their chiefe good and delight, in pleasures of the flesh. Spots] of the Church, and of holy assemblies; in the communion of which they professe themselves to be. Sporting themselves] working in such sort, by their frauds and deceipts, that they through your bounties, doe get meanes to live deliciously; being called to your feasts, and sitting therein the chiefe seats. While they] especially in the ordinary feasts of charity called Agape, see 1 Cor. 11. 20, 21. Jude 12.

V. 14. Having] shewing by their lascivious looks their inward burning lust. That cannot] who doe not onely commit some sinfull act, through weaknesse or inconsiderateness, but have gotten a habit, and make an ordinary practice of it. Beguiling] drawing people that are not well grounded in faith and piety, to be companions in their misdeeds, and to assent unto their doctrines. With covetous] to use all the snares and deceipts of covetousnesse for to gaine wealth.

V. 16. The madnesse] through which, blinded with with madneſſe, he did ſtrive to goe on againſt the will of God: but by the miracle of the Aſſes ſpeaking, his preſumption was abated, and confounded. Of the Prophet] that is to ſay of the Soothſayer, Num. 23.23. or he is called a Prophet, becauſe ſometimes he had true divine revelations, Num. 22.20,38. & 23. 5. & 24.2.

V. 19. Web] that is to ſay, men who in truth and ſubſtance have nothing of that whereof they beare the name and likeneſſe. Carried with] there being certaine clouds which yeeld no raine, but onely bring forth tempeſts and ſtormes: So theſe men carried by the divell, and by their owne paſſions, doe not inſpire the Church with any pure and ſaving doctrine, but diſturbe it with ſchiſmes, partialities, and hereſies. The midſt] namely, the horror of infernall puniſhments, which are oppoſite to the glorious light in which the Lord dwelleth, and of which he makes all thoſe that are his, partakers.

V. 18. When they ſpeake] uſing a lofty and proud kind of ſtile in their manner of teaching, which is nevertheleſſe voyd of truth, and of any vertue of Gods Spirit. Through the luſts] which they ſuffer to be committed under the ſhadow of Chriſtian liberty. Thoſe that were] namely, your novice Chriſtians, who were as yet weake in knowledge, faith, and practice. Cleane eſcaped] the Italian, a little eſcaped; other copies have it, thoſe which were really and truely, &c. That is to ſay, true beleevers, who may be ſhaken by ſuch temptations, but not overthrowne. Or, thoſe who by profeſſing the Goſpell had taken the true way of ſaving themſelves from the perdition of the world.

V. 19. Is he brought] for according to the ancient cuſtome, priſoners in the warres were the Conquerours ſlaves.

V. 20. For if after] he proves that thoſe, who after they have received the light of the Goſpell, doe againe fall into the former ſtate of ſinne, are ſlaves to the divell and ſinne without any redemption, like unto priſoners taken in the warres; becauſe that by the ſaid light and faith they have in ſome manner and for a time fought againſt the divell, and have at laſt been overcome by him, whereby he hath for ever poſſeſſed himſelfe of them, Matth. 12.43. whereas they who are under the divels peaceable and quiet poſſeſſion, without any oppoſition of Gods Spirit, and being out of Gods Church. Matth. 12.29. may be delivered from it.

V. 21. The way] namely, the doctrine and religion which teacheth true holineſſe and righteouſneſſe pleaſing to God, according to which, man ought to lead his life.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 4. The promiſe] that is to ſay, the effect and accompliſhment of it.

V. 5. Willingly] that is to ſay, though they be ſufficiently inſtructed by the holy Scripture, yet either through neglect of thinking well upon it, or through malicious extinguiſhing of this light, they have no lively apprehenſion, or doe utterly caſt off the remembrance of it. Were of old] the Italian, were made of old] and conſequently may be overthrown, as God gave a proof and eſſay thereof in the deſtruction of the primitive world by the floud. Out of the water] for the Scripture placeth the deep of waters under the earth, and the ſea and rivers about it.

V. 6. Whereby] namely, by the waters, under, and about the earth, Gen. 7.11.

V. 7. Which are now] that is to ſay, the world in its elementary parts, high and low, in the ſtate which they have been in ſince the floud, to ſhew by the compariſon of theſe two worlds, that the change which ſhall be made in this laſt world by fire ſhall be onely in the forme and qualities, and not in the ſubſtance, as it was in the firſt by the water.

V. 8. One day] that God everlaſting doth not judge of the laſtingneſſe of time after the ſame manner as men do, who meaſuring it by diviſion and ſucceſſion of ſmall parcels, and beſides referring it unto their own being and laſting, do finde the termes of it to be very long, whereas God comprehending all ages, gathered together in the indiviſible point of his eternitie, and comparing it thereunto, makes no diſtinction therein of ſhort or long.

V. 9. Long ſuffering] that is to ſay, if there be any manner of ſlackneſſe in his comming, as the fleſh fildly conceiveth, that is, not through forgetfulneſſe or ſlowneſſe, but through long-ſuffering, to give his elect time to be converted, and ſo to make up the number, and likewiſe to make the wicked inexcuſable. That any] namely, of us, or of the elect who are his, as we are.

V. 10. Shall melt] not to be brought to nothing, but to be changed in forme and qualitie, ſee Job 14.12.

V. 11. Seeing then] that is to ſay, as well for fear of that terrible ruine of the preſent world, as for deſire of everlaſting happineſſe in the new world, and through an holy diſdain and contempt of the vanity of the preſent ſtate of it, which ought to be changed in this manner.

V. 12. Looking for] that is to ſay, perſevering in patience, untill the time which the Lord hath preſixed. Haſting unto] that is to ſay, advancing your ſelves through a fervent zeal and deſire, in the courſe of your heavenly vocation, to attain unto the perfection which ſhall then be, Phil. 3.12,13.

V. 13. Wherein] in which ſtate of the world, ſinne and the kingdom of it ſhall be altogether brought to nothing, to give place unto the perfect righteouſneſſe ouſneſſe which ſhall then be in the whole body of the Church. Or into which new Heavens, none ſhall come but onely true beleevers, juſtified by Chriſts blood, and ſanctified by his Spirit, Revel. 21. 27. & 22. 14, 15.

V. 25. Salvation] that is to ſay, a ſaving thing for you, and for the whole Church, Rom. 2. 4. Hath written unto you] ſome thinke he meanes Saint Pauls Epiſtle written to the Hebrewes.

THE FIRST EPISTLE generall of S^t. JOHN the Apoſtle.

ARGUMENT.

THis Epiſtle containeth three principall parts, diſperſed up and downe in the Epiſtle, without any ſpeciall diſtinction or order. The firſt, of doctrine of the holy Trinity, of Chriſts Perſon, and of his Office, of the benefit of redemption, regeneration, and glorification of beleevers; and of the gift of the Holy Ghoſt, and of his dwelling in them; and of his power in enlightning their underſtandings, encouraging their hearts, and ſanctifying them to newneſſe of life; and of faith, and of calling upon God, and of his love towards beleevers, and of beleevers towards him. Of the nature, fruit, and end of good workes. Of the comming of Antichriſt, and of the ſinne againſt the Holy Ghoſt. The ſecond is of exhortation to holineſſe, pureneſſe, and obedience; and eſpecially, to true brotherly charity. The third is of admonition, to beware of ſeducers, back-ſliders, hereticks, and Antichriſts; whom the Apoſtle biddeth them to diſcerne with great care by the light of the Holy Ghoſt, and by the rule of Gods Word; guarding and ſtrengthning beleevers, againſt the ſcandal, and danger of ſuch plagues.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. WHich was] namely, the Sonne of God, true, everlaſting God, John 1. 1. who alſo hath taken human nature, in which he hath manifeſted himſelfe; he is the ſubject of our preaching. Which we have heard] of whom we have been fully certified by all manner of prooſes, of ſence, of reaſon, and of Gods Spirit, Luke 1. 2. 2 Pet. 1. 16. Our hands] a figurative ſpeech, the handling being done by an immediate application of the Organ to the object, is the moſt certaine of all the ſenſes, Luke 24. 39. John 20. 25. Of the Word] namely, of the Sonne of God, Iohn 1. 1. who hath not onely life in himſelfe, but is likewiſe the authour of life in men, eſpecially of the ſpirituall life, John 1. 4. & 5. 26. 1 John 5. 11.

V. 2. For the life] the Italian, and the life; namely, he that is the onely ſpring and diſpenſer of life. Was manifeſted] namely, in the fleſh, and the aſſumption of humane nature, John 1. 14. 1 Tim. 3. 16.

V. 3. May have fellowſhip] or be by true faith united to the Church, and Chriſt its head, to be partakers of his goods and life; and are by him perfectly united with God, Iohn 17. 21.

V. 4. That your joy] that is to ſay, that you may be the more confirmed in faith, and by this meanes may have the fruition of that divine joy which conſiſts in the feeling of Gods grace, and in the comfort of the Spirit which may alſo increaſe in you, untill it is come to its perfection, 2 Iohn 12.

V. 5. The meſſage] that is to ſay, the ſumme of the Goſpell conſiſts in this, that we have communion with the father, that is to ſay, that we are by him called to the participation of his grace, life and glory: which cannot be done, but onely by meanes of regeneration to his likeneſſe, in righteouſneſſe, and glory. No darkneſſe] of ignorance, error, falſhood, and ſinne.

V. 6. If we ſay] this verſe and thoſe that follow, are are also concerning that message. We lie] because that the true union with God doth necessarily import a participation of his happinesse, and likenesse of his vertues, see 2 Cor. 3. 18.

V. 7. He is in the] he in his owne proper nature, from everlasting, possesseth the perfection of vertues, which are meant by the light: whereas beleevers doe but onely walke in the light: that is to say, they live and converse, following that light of God which is conferred upon them by grace, and is not their owne by nature: and besides, they can never have the full fruition of it in this life, but do aspire thereunto by continuall progresse. Cleanseth us] this cleansing is shewed, and felt by us by this undoubted triall of regeneration and sanctification, the workes of the Sonne and of the Holy Ghost, being inseparable: and also by this progresse in holinesse, the application of Christs blood is assured unto us for the remission of sinnes, untill the end of our life, Rev. 22. 11.

V. 8. If we say] the Gospell also teacheth us that during this life, we are never quite without sinne: whereby we have alwaies need of Christs blood.

V. 9. Faithfull] for to obtaine the promises of forgivenesse and grace: made unto those who with a true heart and lively feeling of their errors, doe confesse them, and by faith doe flie unto his mercie to aske forgivenesse for them. And just] that is to say, benigne, mercifull, bountifull, or loyall and just in keeping his promises, See Rom. 3. 25.

V. 10. We make him] because that by his Law and word, he redargues the whole world of sinne, and in regard that his promises are but onely of grace, and forgivenesse towards sinners; and that they cannot produce their effect, without confessing the sin: whereby he that doth not confesse it makes them unprofitable, as if they were false.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. The righteous] whose perfect righteousnesse makes him exceeding acceptable to God, to be our intercessor towards him, and being imputed to us doth also gaine us his grace, see Isa. 53. 11. Zeph. 9. 9. Heb. 7. 26. & Eph. 1. 6.

V. 2. The propitiation] namely, the onely meanes and reason of it, which is the other part of the office of Mediatour, and the ground of the intercession. Not for ours onely] namely, ours who beleeve already or those of the present Church. Of the whole] indifferently of all Nations and sorts of people that shall beleeve the Gospell.

V. 3. We doe know] that is to say, we have a certaine proofe, that our faith in him is true, if we be by his Spirit framed to new holinesse and obedience. We know him] namely by that lively and effectuall light, which is nothing but faith, John 17. 3.

V. 5. The love] that is to say, Gods grace comes to its true marke, and produceth its soveraigne effect, as far as it may be in this world, which is mans regeneration: though it never be the absolute decree of perfection. That we are] namely, in the spirituall state of our soules, we doe subsist in his communion, and being united to him by faith, we live by his Spirit.

V. 6. He abideth] namely, that he is united to him in spirit, and is engrafted into his body, see John 6. 56.

V. 7. No new] namely, concerning the holinesse of life. He seemes to have a regard to that which some prophane and ignorant people did oppose, that the first Apostles had more recommended faith, and Christian liberty, &c. and not good workes so much. From the beginning] namely, ever since the Gospell was preached. The meaning is, there was never any contradiction in the Evangelicall doctrin, but according to severall occasions, it hath been diversly dispensed against the Pharisees: faith hath been exalted, and against prophane Christians, good workes have been pressed.

V. 8. A new] that is to say, though it be eternall in its substance, yet it may be called new in respect of Christ who gave it, and in respect of you that receive it: of Christ, in so much as he hath renewed the Law, giving it towards his beleevers a new life, and force by his Spirit to make use of it. of you, in that by him you have gotten, that new quality of sonnes, endowed with the Spirit of adoption, to love the father, and all the brethren, in stead of the old qualitie of servants, possessed with terrour, without any bond of love, neither towards God, nor the one towards the other, see Rom. 8. 15. 2 Tim. 1. 7. The darknesse] there is a new day risen in Christ, by whom all things are made new, in the light of truth, grace, and power of the Spirit, in stead of the former darknesse of ignorance, of sinne, of the curse, and confusion of the divels Kingdome.

V. 9. Is in darknesse] hath no part in this saving light, but lieth still in the darknesse of his naturall corruption.

V. 10. He that loveth] that is to say, by true love the beleever keepes himselfe in the fruition and use of this divine light, without renouncing it, or putting it out in himself: whereby he is alwaies securely guided in the course of his vocation, without any danger of ruine.

V. 11. Is in darknesse] that is to say, he hath forsaken the light, and hath againe engulfed himselfe in his former darknesses, in which he goeth wandring all his life time, after the lusts of it, without any upright end, or any direction of happinesse.

V. 12. Little children, this is ſpoken to all beleevers. Becauſe your] and therefore you are ſo much the more bound to the gratefulneſſe of true obedience, and you have the gift and power of being ſo, by meanes of the remiſſion of your ſinnes. For his Names ſake] even for the love of Chriſt himſelf, ſuch as he hath made himſelf known to be by the Goſpel.

V. 13. Fathers] now he diſtinguiſheth, the beleevers, according to the diverſity of their ages, applying to each age the ſpirituall benefits correſpondent to their properties in this life, as the knowledge of ancient things which are paſt, is befitting old men: the ſtrength for warre is fitting for young men. Young children ſhould know their fathers, and mothers, and cleave to them, and ſhunne ſtrangers. Him that is] namely, the true, everlaſting God. Or Chriſt likewiſe everlaſting, as well in his eſſence as in his office and vertue. Overcome the] by faith which unites you with Chriſt, and ſo makes you partakers of the benefit of his victory upon the divell, John 16. 33. 1 Cor. 15. 57. 1 John 5. 4. and beſides you follow the remainders of this victory in your ſelves, Rom. 16. 20. Eph. 6. 11, 13.

V. 14. Abideth] that is to ſay, is ſtrongly rooted in him by a lively faith.

V. 15. Love not] have not your heart ſetled upon worldly things, and doe not take in them the full content of your ſoule. Love having theſe two properties, the one to unite the lover to the thing beloved; the other to produce in him a content and delight in the poſſeſſing of it, make uſe of them as of inſtruments and be at all times prepared to leave them. Unleſſe by the world, he meane all things which are contrary to Chriſts ſpirituall and heavenly Kingdome. The love] he cannot ſay, that he loves the father, becauſe that Divine love cannot be divided, no more then love in matrimony.

V. 16. Of the fleſh] he ſeemes to meane their irregulate deſires, whoſe roots and provocations are in the nature of man, as gluttony, luſt, &c. Of the eyes] this other kind may have a relation to the deſires of the will, as covetouſneſſe, ambition, &c. and generally to all motions of the ſoule, to ſingular objects, which are preſented unto it by the eyes; the true brokers of concupiſcence.

V. 17. The luſt thereof] namely, all the objects and baits of it: all the delight that man takes therein. Abideth] that is to ſay, hath everlaſting life and happineſſe.

V. 18. The laſt time] not onely the laſt age of the world, which is called time in the Goſpell, Heb. 1, 2. but alſo the beginning of the laſt part thereof, which is foretold by the Scriptures, full of hereſies, apoſtacies, confuſions, and the Kingdome of Antichriſt, which began to be framed even at that time, 2 Theſ. 2. 7. 1 Iohn 4. 3. Have heard] this doctrine being commonly taught by the Apoſtles, 2 Theſ. 2, 5. Antichriſt] that is to ſay, a principall adverſary of Chriſts, and head of the rebellion and apoſtaſie againſt his doctrine and ſpirituall Kingdome, with uſurpation of abſolute command, wherin conſiſts the abſolute property of Antichriſt, above all other falſ Doctors & hereticks. Antichriſt] fore-runners of that chiefe one, who did ſeeke out the way for him, authours of hereſies, and heads of ſects, and ſchiſmes in the Church.

V. 19. They went out] that is to ſay, they have ſeparated themſelves from the communion of the Church, Jude 19. Of us] namely, true members of the Church, by a lively faith, and conſequently, choſen by God, which can never be cut off from Chriſt, nor fall totally from the faith, Matth. 24. 24. John 6. 37. and 10. 28, 29. Rom. 8. 28, 29. 2 Tim. 2. 19.

V. 20. An Unction] that is to ſay, the gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, by which God hath conſecrated, and ſanctified you to himſefe; as anciently Oyle was a ſigne of conſecration, and blood of expiation, Exod. 30. 25. From the holy one] namely, from Chriſt, who hath in himſelfe the fulneſſe of all the graces of the Holy Ghoſt, and is the ſpring, and diſpenſer thereof to his beleevers, Pſal. 133. 2. Dan. 9. 24. Ye ſhall know] the Italian, ye know; you are enlightned and inſtructed in all the parts of heauenly doctrine neceſſary to ſalvation: and in a ſufficient degree to keep you from ſuch ſeducers.

V. 21. Ye know it] and by the knowledge which you have thereof can diſcerne a lie which is quite contrary to it.

V. 22. Is the Chriſt] the promiſed Redeemer, the Sonne of God, come in the fleſh. Is Antichriſt] that is to ſay, his confederate in the ſinne of fighting againſt Chriſt in his owne perſon and office. That denieth] not onely, becauſe that the Father and the Sonne, are one ſimple and pure, and indiviſible Eſſence, but alſo becauſe the Father doth not manifeſt himſelfe to ſalvation, but onely by his Sonne, Matth. 11. 27. John 1. 18.

V. 24. If that which] that is to ſay, by meanes of perſeverance in the pure faith of the Goſpell, you ſhall remaine united to Chriſt, and by him to the Father; the fruit of which union is everlaſting life.

V. 26. That ſeduce you] doe tempt you, and force you to doe it.

V. 27. Of Him] namely, of Chriſt, verſe 20. That any man] namely, that any man give you the firſt lights, and fundamentall beginnings of the Goſpell: the Holy Ghoſt having already imprinted them in your hearts; but you need onely to be warned and exhorted to perſevere. Ye ſhall abide] or, ye will abide; that is to ſay, I am perſwaded that you will perſevere. In him] namely, in Chriſt.

V. 29. That he] namely, God. Is borne] that is to ſay, he ſhews that he is truely regenerate to his Image Eph. 4. 24. 1 Pet. 1. 4. 1 John 3. 7.

CHAP.

CHAP. III.

Verſ. 1. What manner of love] namely, what benefit of pure and infinite love, Rom. 5. 5. That we] namely, that by his adoption and by our regeneration to his image we are made his children, ſo that this title and honour doth truly belong unto us. Knoweth us not] that is to ſay, all the multitude of unbeleevers and enemies of God cannot judge rightly of our ſtate, but reprove, contemn, and hate us.

V. 2. Now are we] even at this time we have right as children of God, John 1. 12. but the full fruition of our ſtate, and of our fathers goods is reſerved for the life everlaſting. When he] namely, Chriſt our head. Be like] namely, in glory and happineſſe, but with a difference between the head and the members. For we] for then he ſhall fully communicate himſelf unto us, and ſhall give us ability to receive him in cleer knowledge, in fruition of preſence, and in perfect apprehenſion, union, love, &c.

V. 3. And every man] becauſe that the onely way to come to this conformity of glory, is the conformity of holineſſe in this life, Mat. 5. 8. Heb. 12. 14.

V. 4. Tranſgreſſeth alſo] makes himſelf guiltie before God as a breaker of his Law, whoſe force remaineth firme for ever by an invariable rule of juſtice, which ſeems to be ſpoken againſt prophane men, who under the ſhadow of being freed from the curſe of the Law by Chriſt, imagine themſelves to be freed from obedience thereunto, and that they ought not to be judged by it, 2 Pet. 2. 19. Jude 4.

V. 5. That he] namely, Chriſt. Take away] not onely he ſhould purge the errour by his blood, and ſhould cancell the bond, but that he ſhould likewiſe anihilate the ſtrength, life, and empire of ſinne by his Spirit, Rom. 6. 6. whereby whoſoever doth again give himſelfe to ſin, renounceth Chriſts benefit, which hath theſe two wholly inſeparable parts. No ſinne] whence follows that he can have no conjunction with the wicked, and that his Spirit is contrary to ſinne, and that to imitate him, we muſt abſtain from ſin.

V. 6. Abideth] is united to him by a lively and ſound faith, and perſeveres in this union, John 15. 4, 5. Sinneth not] reſiſteth ſin, and doth not give himſelfe over unto it, and takes no pleaſure in it, but ſtudieth holineſſe and uprightneſſe, ſee 1 John 1. 8, 9. Hath not] hath no true and lively knowledge, nor apprehenſion of him.

V. 7. Is righteous] doth truly ſhew that he is juſtified in Chriſts blood, and ſanctified by his Spirit, bringing forth the fruits of a new life.

V. 8. Is of the devill] is his childe in ſimilitude of malignity, which the devill hath ſtirred up, and as one ſhould ſay, ingendred in him, and foments, and nouriſheth it up. From the beginning] preſently after his creation, or from the beginning of the world. Deſtroy] that is to ſay, annihilate the kingdom of ſin in his beleevers.

V. 9. Doth not commit] ſee upon verſ. 6. His ſeed] namely, the power of the holy Ghoſt, and the word of God apprehended by faith, which are the means of his regeneration; by which he is alwayes enlightned, governed, and ſtirred up to holineſſe, and ſinne is beaten down and mortified. Cannot ſinne] he cannot abſolutely fall again under the kingdom of ſinne, nor fall away from the grace of God, and from the light of his Spirit, Hebr. 6. 6. and 10. 26. not but that he may fall into acts of ſinne through humane infirmitie, 1 John 2. 1. but he is preſerved from habitude, perſeverance, and from being given over to ſinne, which cannot befall one but onely by the totall extinction of the Spirit of grace. He is born] this gift of God is one of thoſe that is without repentance and irrevocable, Rom. 11. 29.

V. 11. From the beginning] namely, of the preaching of the Goſpell.

V. 12. Becauſe] that is to ſay, Hee ſlew him partly through hatred, occaſioned by the contrariety of their behaviours and wills, and partly alſo through envy, becauſe God was favourable to Abel by reaſon of his pietie.

V. 13. Marvell not] ſeeing the world is ſtill moved by the ſame Spirit as Cain was, and that the ſame cauſes of hatred do laſt ſtill.

V. 14. Becauſe we love] becauſe that true love is the proper effect of a new and ſpirituall life, 1 John 4. 7.

V. 15. Is a murtherer] that is to ſay, He ſinnes againſt the commandement of not murthering, which commandment God hath given, not onely to the hands and outward actions, but alſo to thoughts, and to the will; and beſides, hatred is alwayes joyned with a deſire of taking away the object thereof. Hath] that is to ſay, Hee hath no lively root nor beginning of it in him.

V. 16. Becauſe he] namely, Chriſt. To lay down] that is to ſay, To love our neighbours, even to that height, if need require, and our calling binde us to it.

V. 17. Shutteth up] that is to ſay, Taketh no compaſſion on him, but ſheweth himſelf hard and mercileſſe towards him. Dwelleth] can he ſay that he hath the love of God rooted in his heart? ſeeing that the love of God, and the love of his children are unſeparable, Matth. 22. 38, 39. 1 John 5. 1.

V. 19. That we] that we are ſincere and loyall, and not hypocrites: Or that we truly profeſſe heavenly truth, by which we are regenerated and guided in all our actions, John 18. 37. Shall aſſure] we ſhall make our conſciences confident to appear at

Gods judgement, fearleſſe of being convinced of any hypocriſie, or of the breach of the condition which is annexed to his grace, namely, That we ſhould uſe interchangeable love towards our neighbours, being on the other ſide perſwaded of our union with Chriſt by the effects of his Spirit, Rom. 8. 9, 10. Iam. 2, 13. 2 Pet. 1. 10.

V. 20. If our heart] If our conſcience, though blinde, erring, and inſenſible in many things, doth accuſe us, how much more ſhall God condemn us, whoſe knowledge is infinite, and penetrates even into the leaſt and ſecreteſt motions of the heart and thoughts, Iob 34. 22. Pſal. 19 12.

V. 21. Condemn us not] of hypocriſie and contempt of God and of his law, and of delighting in evill. Have we] that is to ſay, We may with confidence preſent our ſelves before him, being endowed with ſuch qualities as he requires in us, namely, faith and a good conſcience, Heb. 10. 12.

V. 22. Becauſe] this reaſon is not grounded upon the worth of works, but upon the order eſtabliſhed, and the condition annexed to Gods promiſes, and upon his own nature, who cannot favour the wicked, ſee Dan. 9. 18. Iohn 9. 31.

V. 23. On the name] that is to ſay, In his Son, as he hath declared himſelf in the Goſpell.

V. 24. Dwelleth] that is to ſay, As hee holds himſelf united to Chriſt by a lively faith and perſeverance, ſo Chriſt never withdrawes his preſence from him, nor the influence and aſſiſtance of his Spirit.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. Spirit] that is to ſay, The doctrine propounded under the name of inſpiration of the holy Ghoſt, or Doctor that ſhall ſay, he hath any ſuch revelations. But trie] namely, by the rule of Gods word, with all care and diligence, ſee Iohn 5. 39. Acts 17. 11. Rev. 2. 2.

V. 2. Every Spirit] that is to ſay, every Doctrine or Doctor. Confeſſeth] that retains the pure faith and profeſſion of Chriſts office and perſon, which is particularly ſpoken in regard of certain hereticks which were ſprung up even in thoſe dayes.

V. 3. Is it] inſomuch as Chriſts perſon was already contradicted by thoſe hereticks, as the chief Antichriſt was to fight againſt, and uſurpe his kingdom and domination.

V. 4. Of God] regenerate and guided by his Spirit. Have overcome] ye have withſtood thoſe Doctors endeavours and actions, and have perſevered in faith, and have convinced and confuted them. Greater is he] namely, the Spirit of God which dwelleth and reigneth in you, is more powerfull then the Devils ſpirit which worketh in the world, John 12. 31. 1 Cor. 2. 12. Epheſ. 2, 2, and 6. 12.

V. 5. They] as theſe hereticks are altogether ſenſuall and worldly, without any lively light or Spirit of God, 1 Cor. 2. 14. ſuch is their doctrine alſo. And the world] namely, ſenſuall men that are like unto them, John 15. 19. and 17. 14.

V. 6. We are] we Apoſtles are indeed ſent by God, and inſtructed and directed by his Spirit, and all our doctrines and motions proceed from him. That knoweth] that is, truly enlightned by him in faith and ſound judgement in ſpirituall things, ſee 1 Corinth. 14. 37. 2 Cor. 10. 7. Hereby] namely, by holding with Apoſtolicall Doctrine, for the holy Ghoſt never varieth, but is the ſame, and alwayes agreeth in one thing, and hee himſelf hath given that Doctrine for an everlaſting rule to diſcerne true inſpirations from falſe ones, ſee Iſa. 8. 20.

V. 7. Is of God] is a true and proper vertue belonging to all thoſe that are regenerate and governed by the Spirit. That loveth] namely, in God, and according to God. Is born] that is to ſay, doth ſhew himſelf truly to be ſuch, by proper, perpetuall, and infallible effects.

V. 8. Knoweth not] namely, that true and lively knowledge which transformeth a man into his image, 2 Cor. 3. 18. Is love] namely, a God highly and infinitely loving and bounteous, eſpecially towards his elect and beleevers.

V. 10. Herein] Gods love conſiſts not in that we having loved him firſt, hee hath enterchangeably loved us again with the like love; but in that he hath prevented us with his love, when we were his enemies.

V. 12. No man] though God be inviſible and incomprehenſible to man in this life, yet is he preſent and united with his beleevers by means of the Spirit of love which he granteth them, whereby he brings forth in them the Soveraigne effect of his love, which is to transform them to his own image, verſ. 17.

V. 14. And we have] this depends upon, verſ. 6. The meaning is, we Apoſtles are faithfull witneſſes of this fundamentall truth, for wee ſpeak as by ſight, namely, by an undoubted certainty of Gods Spirit in ſpirituall things: And by corporall ſight in ſuch things as could be apprehended by the ſenſes, having ſeen Chriſt in the fleſh, converſed with him, ſeen his works, and heard his doctrine, ſee 1 Cor. 15. 5. 2 Pet. 1. 16. 1 John 11.

V. 15. Shall confeſſe] with his mouth, beleeving it verily in his heart, Romans 10. 9. That Ieſus] under this head of Chriſtian faith, which was contrary to the hereſies of thoſe dayes, are comprehended all the reſt which are inſeparable in their own nature, for if he be the Son of God, all his Doctrine is everlaſting truth.

V. 16.

V. 16. And we] namely, we Apostles, have not onely been enlightned in the foresaid knowledge, but likewise have by faith received a lively feeling of Gods grace towards us: which is firme, and perpetuall, through the gift of love created in us, and therefore we exhort all beleevers to faith and love, vers. 6, 7.

V. 17. Made perfect] it is to come to its height of perfection: seeing we receive not onely the effects, but also a lively impression and likenesse of it. That we may] that is to say, which is a most certaine and sensible proofe unto us of Gods grace, and of the liuely application of it; whereby our consciences are emboldned against the terrors of the judgement to come, Matth. 25. 35. As he is] namely, in holinesse and righteousnesse, love, &c. Luke 6. 36. 2 Cor. 3. 18. Eph. 4. 24. Col. 3. 10. Heb. 12. 10. 2 Pet. 1. 4.

V. 18. No feare] namely, no terrible feare of an unavoydable evill, which causeth trouble of the mind and weakning of the strength. Perfect love] namely, true, lively, and sincere love, which hath all its essentiall parts towards God and men, 1 Joh 3. 18, 19. Casteth out] that is to say, it is towards God, not for feare of his terrible Majesty and judgement, but through a sweet, humble, and reverend apprehension of his grace and goodnesse, by which he hath made and declared himselfe most loving to the soule; whereby is ingendered hope and confidence. As likewise, love towards ones neighbour doth confirme the heart in the certainty of Gods love; it being the worke of the Holy Ghost, and the holy Ghost the Seale of Grace, see 2 Tim. 1. 7. Hath torment] and love contrariwise is nothing but joy, comfort and mildnesse:

V 19. Because he] because he by his love, hath not onely bound and induced us to love him (for love bringeth forth love) but hath also given us the power and facultie to doe it; enlighten our minds in the lively knowledge of him, and moving our hearts to love him.

V. 20. He is a lyer] because these two commandements are inseparable, Matth. 22. 38, 39. and the brother is the Sonne of God bearing the Fathers Image, 1 Pet. 5. 1. and the true love of God, consists in obeying him, John 14. 21. 1 John 5. 3. Whom he hath] he hath a relation to that love springeth from the sight and knowledge. The meaning is, if man by the sences which doe apprehend the communion and similitude of nature, and any thing that is good and comely in another man, is not moved to love him: it is impossible that he should be moved to love God who is invisible, and incomprehensible, seeing he hath no naturall love: and so long as he is such, he is not capable of supernaturall love, which the Holy Ghost inserts in the other, as in his owne subject and vessell, and by it sanctifies and sublimes it, see 1 Tim. 5. 8.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 1. Beleeveth] with a true and firme assent, and with a lively application to himselfe. That Jesus] under this is comprehended the whole substance of Christian Religion. Every one that] whosoever truely loves the father loves the children likewise for love of the father whose they are, and who is by them and in them represented.

V. 2. That we love] namely, that the love of our neighbour is true and holy in us, and that it is regulated as it ought to be. When we] namely, when our conscience witnesseth unto us that we love God above all things, and then our neighbours, under him, in him, and for the love of him.

V. 3. Are not] because that the Holy Ghost gives beleevers the power, and will, to execute them, and to overcome all oppositions of the flesh, Rom 8. 2, 4. Phil. 2. 12, 13.

V. 4. The World] namely, all the temptations, assaults, and deceipts of the divell, working in the world by his instruments. The victory] namely, the onely meanes by which we have already obtained the beginning, and chiefe part of the victory against the divell and his kingdome; and by which also we are assured to overcome the residue. Our faith] by which we apprehend and apply unto our selves the victory of Christ our head, Iohn 16. 33. 1 Cor. 15. 57. Rev. 12. 11. and by which also he works in us, and beats down the divell under our feet, Rom. 16. 20. 1 Pet. 5. 9.

V. 6. That came] who being true glorious God in Heaven, hath taken upon him humane nature on earth, to bring these two benefits to men, namely, satisfaction for sinne by his death, to disannull the guilt and curse of it, which is meant by the name of blood. And next, of purification from the inward corruption, by the spirit of sanctification, which is meant by water. Not by water] that is to say, it was convenient that before he sanctified man in himselfe, he should justifie him before God: for God doth not give his Spirit of grace, but onely to those whom he hath received into grace by meanes of the satisfaction and reconciliation made by Christ. That beareth] outwardly by the word, and inwardly in the heart of every beleever. Because the] the Holy Ghost alone doth this; because that he onely is able and sufficient to doe it, being he is the Spirit of truth and witnesse by sight, and who is of a most intimate communion in Gods secrets, Iohn 14. 17. & 15. 26. & 16. 13. 1 Cor. 2. 10, 11.

V. 7. That beare witnesse] of the same truth by glorious effects, proper to each of the three persons of the holy Trinity. See Iohn 5. 32. & 8. 18. Are one] namely, in essence, and most perfect union of operation, especially in regard of this witnessing.

V. 8. And there are three] there are likewise three things which confirme this truth in the heart of beleevers in this world, spoken of vers. 6. namely, the presence and effects of the Holy Ghost in them, in life, strength, and light, &c. Secondly, the lively feeling of the continuall forgiveneſſe of their sins, see Heb. 11. 24. Thirdly, the worke of their sanctification which continueth and goeth forward in them: which benefits being all divine, not brought forth by any humane art or industry doe testifie that all proceeds from Christs benefit and vertue. Unleſſe the Apoſtle would applie theſe three witneſſings to the three perſons of the Trinity. The water, that is to say, the grace to the Father; the blood, that is to say, the redemption to the Sonne, the Spirit, that is to say, the light and spirituall vertue, to the Holy Ghoſt. In one] namely, to prove the same truth of, v. 6.

V. 9. If we] if in humane affaires we doe believe the uniforme and well agreeing testimony of divers witneſſes, much more ought we to beleeve Gods witneſſe, in which the three perſons doe concurre. For this is] I speake thus, becauſe the whole Trinity hath testified, and doth testifie this truth with is spoken of, v. 6.

V. 10. In himſelfe] that is to say, sounding, and imprinted in his heart, by the Holy Ghoſt, which dwelleth in him, and certifies, and puts him out of doubt, concerning this truth. A lyer] becauſe he doth implicitely reprove him of falſhood, judging him not fit to be believed, though he be convinced in his owne conſcience, that theſe proofes and arguments cannot proceed from any but God.

V. 11. This life] namely, the cauſes, foundation, and originall of it.

V. 12. Hath the Sonne] that is to say, doth apprehend and poſſeſſe him firmely by faith.

V. 13. That ye have] you have a right to it, a beginning and first fruit, an earneſt and aſſurance of the accompliſhment of it. That ye may believe] that ye may perſevere, increaſe, and grow ſtrong in faith.

V. 14. And this is] namely, if we doe truely believe.

V. 15. If we know] that is to say, Gods hearing ones prayer is not in vaine, but alwaies accompanied with its effect.

V. 16. Which is not] that is to say, which shall not by certaine proofes appeare to be a sinne againſt the Holy Ghoſt, by which man fals into everlaſting death, without pardon or remiſſion. And he ſhall give] that is to say, God ſhall pardon him, and ſo free him from everlaſting death.

V. 18. That wicked one] that is to say, he is in a manner defended againſt all his aſſaults, ſo that he cannot give him any deadly wounds.

V. 19. Whole world] namely, the multitude of thoſe that are out of Christs body and Kingdome. Lieth] as it were in a deepe puddle. Or, in a dead ſleepe. Or, under the power and command of the wicked one.

V. 20. That is true] the Italian, that is the true; namely, the true eternall God, John 17. 3. We are] that is to say, all true beleevers, are engraſted into Chriſt by faith, and are borne up, and live in the union of his body Eternall life] that is to say, the onely author, and fountaine of it, and alſo the onely meanes to obtaine it.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF S^t. IOHN the Apoſtle.

ARGUMENT.

SAint John writes this Epiſtle to a Chriſtian woman, of great account, and very vertuous: in which after he hath ſaluted her, and commended her, and her childrens piety, he exhorteth her to perſevere in love, and in the ſincere truth of the Goſpell, bewaring of Seducers, and hereticks, and avoyding all manner of communication with them.

Verſ. 1. THe Elder] a common name to all degrees of Paſtours in the Church. The Elect] namely, a true and beleeving Chriſtian: Or, ſingular for vertue and piety.

V. 2. For the] that is to say, the foundation of which love of mine, is the common faith, lively planted and rooted in us by Gods Spirit.

V. 3. In truth] that is to say, producing in it two proper proper and inſeparable effects, of faith and love, ſee 1 *Tim.*1.14. 2 *Tim.*1.13.

V.4. Walking] namely, who doe conſtantly follow the pure doctrine of faith, and doe lead a life befitting the profeſſion of truth, in all uprightneſſe and ſincerity.

V.5. And now I] the aime and end of this mine Epiſtle is, that you continually joyne true and ſpirituall love unto faith.

V.6 In it] namely, in truth, *v.*4.

V. 8. That we looke not] that our former workes, and whatſoever we have done and ſuffered for the Goſpel, be not debarred of its reward, which is onely promiſed to them which perſevere unto the end.

V.9. Tranſgreſſeth] the Italian, revolteth; the Greeke word is tranſgreſſeth, but this general terme ought in this place to be reſtrained to apoſtaſie from the Chriſtian faith. Hath not] hath no part in his grace and ſpirit, is not guided by him, God is not his God.

V. 10. Receive him not] abhorre, and refuſe to have any converſation with him, for feare of being infected by him. And to ſhew your zeale for the faith of Chriſt, and to reprove the wicked one, hold him for an excommunicate, and interdicted perſon.

V.11. Is partaker] becauſe he doth not condemne and reprove him openly, he doth in part, and by a collaterall way conſent unto him, and therein doth confirme the ſinner, *Eph.*5.11.

V.13. Amen] this word cloſeth and ſealeth up, not onely the ſalutation, but alſo all the exhortations of this Epiſtle.

THE THIRD EPISTLE of S^t. JOHN the Apoſtle.

ARGUMENT.

THe Apoſtle writes to a certaine man called Gaius, whom he ſalutes, and commends his faith, and charity, exhorts him to perſevere, and recommends certaine beleevers unto him. And contrariwiſe blames the ambition, perverſeneſſe, ſlaunders, and inhumanity of Diotrephes; and commends Demetrius.

VER.2. Proſpereth] that is to ſay, is in a proſperous ſpirituall ſtate, in faith, piety, and other gifts of the ſpirit.

V. 3. That is in thee] namely, of thine affection zeale, faith, and loyalty in the profeſſion of heavenly truth.

V.4. My children] namely, my ſpirituall children, begotten by my Goſpel, converted to the Chriſtian faith by my miniſtery, 1 *Cor.*4.15. 1 *Tim.*1.2. Philem. 10.

V.6. Whom if] he meanes ſome beleevers of other Chuches, who going to St. John, had been charitably entertained by Gaius, and now upon their returne he doth againe recommend them unto him. Bring forward] under the name of this duty, is contained all other kind of reliefe and aſſiſtance in their journey. After a godly ſort] the Italian, according to God] that is to ſay according to Gods command, or according as it ought to be done amongſt beleevers, and children of God.

V.7. For his Names ſake] to profeſſe his Goſpel freely, and for his ſervice. Taking nothing] forſaking all their goods and meanes.

V.8. To the truth] for the upholding and advancing of the Goſpel, yeelding all favour and aſſiſtance to ſuch as are converted.

V.9. Unto the Church] namely, to that Church whereof Gaius was a member, or one of the Paſtors. And it is likely, that Saint John had written to recommend the ſame brethren, or ſome other ſuch as theſe were; and that his recommendation tooke no effect, becauſe of Diotrephes his malice, who was one of the Paſtors of it.

V. 10. Caſteth them out] he excommunicates, and baniſheth them out of the company of beleevers, and out of their aſſemblies.

V. 12. That our] that the commendations which we give are not in the vaine way of flattering, but in truth of approbation.

V. 14. By name] the Italian, one by one; that is to ſay, not all in generall, but every one by name.

THE

THE GENERALL EPISTLE OF S^t. JUDE the Apoſtle.

ARGUMENT.

His Epiſtle is a ſummary of the ſecond of Saint Peter, as there are many holy bookes, which ſeeme to be taken out of divers other Writers. The end of it is, to remove a ſcandall, and danger, of certaine heretickes, who were ever in thoſe daies ſprung up in the Churches, who falſified the true doctrine concerning Chriſts perſon, and did turne Gods grace, and the ſpirituall Evangelicall liberty into a certaine carnall liberty, and diſſoluteneſſe, free from all law and ſubjection to politicke government, making ſchiſmes, and diviſions in the Churches. The Apoſtle then, after he hath propounded examples of moſt ſevere judgemens of God, which had formerly fallen upon Apoſtataes, diſſolute, unchaſte, ſchiſmaticke and prophane people, he ſhewes that theſe were ſuch, and bids them looke for the like judgements: But comforts beleevers againſt that ſcandall, and exhorts them to perſevere, and increaſe in faith, and in their ſpirituall regeneration, and to ſeeke by all poſſible and convenient meanes the ſalvation of thoſe that were gone aſtray.

Verſ. 1. BY God] the Italian, in God] namely, by vertue of his grace, by his Word and Spirit which he hath beſtowed upon them. Preſerved] that is to ſay, defended, protected, and ſafeguarded, out of danger of falling from the ſalvation which they had acquired. In Jeſus Chriſt] namely, to the communion of his body: Or by vertue of their ſpiritual union with him.

V. 3. The common] namely, to me, to you, and to all beleevers. That ye ſhould] that ye ſhould imitate the example of all other beleevers that have been before you, in maintaining and advancing the truth of the Goſpel, againſt all the aſſaults and endeavours of the divell, and his followers, and inſtruments. Or: to perſevere in fighting as they had already happily begun.

V. 4 Of old] that is to ſay, from everlaſting. Ordained] the Italian, written, or ſet downe by name, (by Gods decree, likened to a Regiſter) to be given over to their naturall corruption and malice, which alſo he hath determined to puniſh, letting them runne to that height of impiety, to falſifie his truth, and to make themſelves the divels inſtruments, and to reject Gods grace, ſmother up his Word and Spirit which ſhould be proffered unto them. The grace] eſpecially in regard of the Evangelicall and ſpirituall liberty which they wreſt to a moſt falſe ſenſe, of licentiouſneſſe to all manner of vices, under pretence of the eaſineſſe in obtaining pardon, Rom. 6. 1. and that by the ſpirit of liberty the conſcience is freed from all inward remorſe and condemnation, wherein the wicked ſaid the eſſence of ſinne conſiſted, and that without it there was no ſinne whatſoever a man did

V. 6. Which kept not] which did not perſevere in the ſtate of integrity and righteouſneſſe, in which they were created. But left] that is to ſay, were for their Rebellion driven out of Heaven, Luke 10. 18.

V. 7. After ſtrange] the Italian, after other fleſh; a covered circumſcription of the abominable luſt againſt nature, Rom. 1. 27. Of eternall] whereof the materiall fire wherewith they were conſumed was a ſigne.

V. 8. Likewiſe alſo] the Italian, yet theſe; though theſe theſe judgements be ſet before them for an example. Dreams] that is to ſay, Men blinded and void of underſtanding through their damnable paſſions, like a man that dreams or raves:

V. 9. The Archangel] the ſacred Hiſtory makes no mention of all this, Jude might know it by ſome divine revelation, or by ſome ancient tradition which he hath authorized by his relation, or by ſome book which now is not to be had; and indeed there remains ſome tract of this in the Jewiſh books. About the bodie] which being ſecretly buried by the Lord, Deut. 34. 6. it is like that the Devill did ſeek to take it up again, either to ſatisfie his rage in abuſing of it, or to make it an object of idolatry for the people.

V. 10. They corrupt] they defile themſelves by exceſſes, and abuſe in thoſe things, wherein, nature and even the bruit beaſts ſhew them the Lawes and limited uſe of them, as of eating, drinking, and the uſe of woman.

V. 11. They have gone] they follow Cains wickedneſſe, who was the firſt head of them who departed from the true Church and the pure ſervice of God, as theſe men did. Rangreedily after] the Italian, Suffered themſelves to be carried away] that is to ſay, they have been ſhaken from the firmneſſe of faith, and have been carried into theſe errours by the bait of gain and of worldly pleaſures, as Balaam was. And periſhed] imitating Core and his followers in his rebellion againſt Moſes, being they riſe againſt the Apoſtles and true Paſtors of the Church, and do raiſe ſchiſmes and diviſions, and have entangled themſelves in the like unavoidable perdition as thoſe men did.

V. 12. Your feaſts] wherefore ſee 1 Cor. 11. 21. Feeding] prophaning thoſe ſacred feaſts with their gluttonie, without any reſpect to the communion of Saints for the maintaining of which, theſe feaſts were appointed, and for this cauſe were ended and ſealed up by the celebration of the holy Supper. Whoſe fruit witheretb] which have neither life nor ſap to bring forth any good fruit, even like trees after Autumne. Twice dead] he hath a relation to thoſe mens falling again into the ſtate of ſinne and death, after they had begun in ſome ſort to live by the light and grace of the Goſpell. Plucked up] quite cut off from the ſpirituall union with Chriſt, who is the true foundation of life and grace.

V. 13. Raging waves] unſetled, turbulent, and proud ſpirits, which boldly belch out their abominable opinions and doctrines. Wandring ſtarres] he ſeemes to meane thoſe falſe glancing or falling Starres which fall from Heaven, becauſe they were never fixed there, and are but meteors and tranſitory impreſſions in the air.

V. 14. Propheſied] the Scripture makes no mention of this Propheſie of Enoch, threatning the wickedneſſe of his times with the future deluge. Saint Jude may have had it by tradition, confirmed by revelation of the holy Ghoſt, as the Jews have yet at this time ſome reliques of it in their writings. Commeth] the Italian, is come; that is as much as to ſay, He ſhall certainly come. With ten thouſands] the Italian, With his holy thouſands; namely, of Angels.

V. 15. Hard ſpeeches] the Italian, Cruell things; ſee 1 Sam. 2. 3. Pſal. 31. 18. and 75. 5. and 94. 4. Mal. 3. 13.

V. 16. Complainers] which is a ſigne of an ill compoſed, impatient, contentious, and inſatiable ſpirit. In admiration] falſly and flatteringly for to reap profit by them.

V. 19. Separate themſelves] that is to ſay, They do willingly cut themſelves off from the true and ſpirituall communion of the Church, whereby they are deprived of life, grace, and Spirit, ſee Iohn 15. 6.

V. 20. Building up] confirming and advancing your ſelves in your ſpirituall ſtate of grace and regeneration (like a building) upon the onely foundation of faith in Chriſt. In the] the Italian, by the] that is to ſay, By his motion and inſpiration.

V. 21. Keep your ſelves] that is to ſay, Perſevere conſtantly to love God in truth, or take heed you fall not away from his love. Others, keep one another for the love of God, that is to ſay, help one another to preſerve your ſelves from theſe dangers by a true, chriſtian, and divine charity.

V. 22. Of ſome] that is to ſay, Of thoſe that are ſimple, weak, and ſeduced.

V. 23. Others] namely, thoſe that are hardned and perverſe, or the ſeducers themſelves. Save] be, as much as in you lieth, inſtruments of their ſalvation by a profitable ſeverity, Rom. 11. 14. 1 Tim. 4. 16. With fear] namely, of Gods judgements lively repreſented and darted into the conſcience by the ſevere exerciſe of eccleſiaſticall diſcipline. Pulling them out] doing what you can to draw them from perdition, without any vain reſpects or conſiderations, as they draw things out of the fire in any faſhion, or by what way they can. Hating] ſhewing that you extreamly deteſt the participation of ſuch mens uncleanneſſe: A phraſe taken from legall impurities of garments, by touching of which men were defiled.

THE APOCALYPSE, OR REVELATION of St IOHN the Divine.

ARGUMENT.

THis Book hath the title of Apocalypse, a Greek word, which signifieth Revelation, because the whole subject of it is of Propheticall Revelations, by which to Saint John, and by him to all the Church, have been revealed the chief events of it, after Christs first comming in the flesh to his last comming to judgement; wherein, this book is very like Daniels Prophecies, from which also, as well as from many other Prophets, many termes and figures have been taken. The writer hereof was Saint John the Apostle and Euangelist, though he is here set down under the name of Divine, which name was anciently attributed unto him for eminency, because he had more loftily and expresly then any other Apostle taught and established the truth concerning the person and eternall Godhead of Christ, against certain hereticks which were sprung up even in those dayes. Now the three first Chapters are spent in describing a vision, in which Christ appearing unto him, gives him commission to write to the seven principall Churches of the lesser Asia, amongst which Saint John had especially spent his Apostleship, to instruct, confirm, praise, and exhort, and likewise to reprove, threaten, and correct every one of them, as need did require. From thence he goeth on to represent other visions concerning the universall state of the Church untill the end of the world, wherein it seems one may observe this distinction, that from the beginning of the fourth Chapter unto the end of the eleventh, the said state is described as it were in the ideas of Gods heavenly decrees, and in visions altogether Enigmaticall. From the twelfth to the end of the Booke, the executions and principall singularities thereof are more distinctly marked out by visions and descriptions, which are more plain and neerer matched and fitted to the events. In the first, one may finde the description of Christs Kingdom in Heaven, and the glorious administration of it; Gods decrees concerning what should befall the Church in this world, whereof Christ onely is the revealer and interpreter, and the accomplishment whereof hath its limited times, and the end whereof is the destruction of Christs and his Churches enemies, and the present protection and everlasting salvation of the Church. In the second, is first represented the desolation of the Iewish nation by the Romans, after it had brought forth Christ in the flesh, and withall the miraculous preservation of it, for to have it converted in its due time. Then the Roman Empire is summarily touched, its tyranny and persecution against the Church, and afterward its declination and ruine. But the state of the Kingdome of Antichrist is yet more largely described, his beginning, his usurpation under a false vizard of Religion, his blasphemies, false doctrines, deceitfull miracles, persecutions, violences, frauds, pride, and enormities: the blinde consent of Nations and Princes to subject themselves unto him, and to contribute to his exaltation, the beginning of his fall by the

the pure preaching of the Goſpell miraculouſly re-eſtabliſhed in the world, the everlaſting happineſſe of beleevers that ſhall fight with him and overcome him by their faith and patience; and contrariwiſe, the everlaſting torments of his followers, amongſt whom at the laſt the Lord ſhould raiſe moſt grievous alterations to make them become enemies unto him, whereby it ſhould happen that he, and the triumphant City of his Kingdom and State, ſhould go to ruine and be deſtroyed by a ſudden, finall, and horrible judgement of God, eaſing the world of ſo great a plague, glorifying his righteouſneſſe, and giving thoſe who are his, cauſe of triumphant joy, and enfolding his enemies in everlaſting deſpair and ignominie. After this is deſcribed a ſtate of the Church upon earth, very peaceable, holy, and happy, Chriſt reigning in it, and the Devill being repreſſed in his endeavours, untill a certain time, when as by a new kinde of enemies he ſhould renew his aſſaults, but ſhould ſoon bee overcome; and immediately after the end of the world and the laſt judgement ſhould follow, by which the Devill and all the Churches enemies being abyſſed into hell, the Church ſhould be gathered up into heavenly glory, to live and reign everlaſtingly with Chriſt, and to enioy his preſence and his goods in all fulneſſe. Now as amongſt theſe Prophecies, there are ſome ſo cleer by the event, that one cannot be doubtfull nor ignorant of them, but onely through a wilfull blindneſſe; ſo there are other ſome that are yet under Gods ſecret ſeal, the explication whereof is as uncertain, as the undertaking to give it, is raſh; and therefore adoring that which as yet lieth hidden, and meditating upon that which is manifeſt, the Church hath large matter of inſtruction and comfort in this book, looking for the full accompliſhment which ſhall bring to light all the obſcurities.

CHAP. I.

Verſ. 1. WHich God] namely, the Father: See how this ought to be underſtood, Iohn 3. 32. and 8. 26. and 12. 49.

V. 2. Bare record] by his preaching as he was an Apoſtle, ſee Luke 24. 48. Acts 1. 8. and 26. 16. Of the teſtimonie] namely, of what Chriſt himſelf hath declared in the behalf of his Father, ſee 1 Cor. 1. 6.

Others, in the patient expecting of Chriſt. Patmos] an Iland in the Archipelago, in theſe dayes by ſome called Palmoſa, into which Saint Iohn was confined by Domitian the Emperour for the Goſpel and the preaching thereof.

V. 10. In the Spirit] that is to ſay, In an extaſie and rapture of minde, in which all the ſenſes were ſuſpended and bound up by a ſupernaturall power, and the underſtanding fixed and raiſed up to the contemplation of divine objects repreſented in the viſion, ſee Ezech. 11. 24. On the Lords day] the Italian; that is to ſay, The day of the Lord: So was the firſt day of the week called even from the Apoſtles time, becauſe that day the Lord was riſen; whereupon it was conſecrated to exerciſes of piety in ſtead of the Sabbath, ſee Acts 20. 7. 1 Cor. 16. 2.

V. 12. I turned] namely, in viſion. The voyce] namely, him from whom it proceeded.

V. 13. Unto the Sonne, the Italian, unto a Sonne] that is to ſay, unto a man, Dan. 7. 13. and 10. 16. Revel. 14. 14. and was Chriſt himſelf, Revel. 2. 18. who in viſion ſhewed to Saint Iohn a likeneſſe of his humanity which is reſident in Heaven.

V. 15. His feet] see the explication of this upon Cant. 5. 15. Ezech. 1. 7. Dan. 10. 6. Fine brasse] the Italian, Calcolibano; that is to say, a kinde of most fine and bright brasse, see Ezech. 1. 4.

V. 16. Sword] a figure of the most effectuall and penetrant power of Gods word in the destroying of his enemies, and overcomming the world.

V. 18. Amen] that is to say, This is an everlasting truth, which every one ought to acknowledge and worship. The keyes] namely, the absolute power over these things, to condemn unto them, and to free from them at my pleasure.

V. 20. Are] that is to say, do signifie and represent. The Angels] that is to say, the Bishops, or the chiefe ministers honoured sometimes in Scripture with this title, by reason of the resemblance of theirs and the Angels office concerning beleevers salvations, see Eccles. 5. 6. Mal. 3. 1. The seven] by which are meant the particular Churches, because the Lord hath set in them the gift of his Spirit which is in stead of oil, and faith, which is in stead of fire, to carry and hold up before all men the lamp of truth and knowledge of God, and make it to shine before the eyes of the world by works, see Zech. 4. 2. Matth. 5. 15. Philip. 2. 15.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 1. THe Angel] that is to say, The Pastor or Bishop, under whose person ought to be understood the whole Church. That holdeth] who is the soveraign Lord and master of all the Pastors, who have no authority but from him, who onely doth establish them, and likewise can depose them according to their works. Who walketh] that is alwayes present, and working in his Church in the power of his Spirit, to preserve the light of his power and the oil of his grace in it: as anciently the Priests had the charge of the great Candlestick, to make it clean, and keep the lamps lighted in it all the night, see Exod. 27. 20. and 30. 8. Levit. 24. 3.

V. 3. Hast born] the Italian, hast born the burden; namely, those sufferings, and that yoke which I have laid upon thee.

V. 5. Will remove] that is to say, I will deprive thee of every qualitie, title, and property of a Church, transporting my grace and truth elsewhere, Matth. 21. 31, 41, 43.

V. 6. Nicolaitans] most ancient hereticks, who permitted the community of women, and eating of idols sacrifices, it is thought the name came from Nicolas a Deacon, Acts 6. 5. and that the heresie was grounded upon an act and saying of his, misunderstood, if Histories be true.

V. 7. That overcometh] that is to say, that perseveres unto the end against all assaults and temptations by a lively faith in me. Will I give] that is to say, I will cause them to enjoy the everlasting goods of my glory. Figurative termes taken from the earthly Paradise, Gen. 2. 8, 9. see Revel. 22. 2, 14. Paradice] see Luke 23. 43.

V. 9. Rich] namely, in spirituall goods, see Luke 12. 21. James 2. 5. The blasphemie] or slanders and calumnies. And are not] are not the true people of God in Spirit and faith, John 8. 39. 44. Rom. 2. 28. and 9. 6.

V. 10. Dayes] some take these dayes for yeers, as Dan. 9. 24.

V. 11. Second death] which is the everlasting and totall separation of the whole man from God, and from his life, to be abysmed into everlasting torments after the corporall death.

V. 13. Where Satans] namely, where he reigns powerfully, be it by false religion, or by wickednesse of life, or by persecution of the Gospell. My name] namely, the pure profession of my Gospel, in which I have fully manifested my self.

V. 15. Nicolaitans] who by such deceits did lead Christians astray, 2 Pet. 2. 18.

V. 16. Will fight] that is to say, I will destroy them by my judgements pronounced by my mouth, and executed by my power, and withall imprinting the feeling of their condemnation in their hearts by my word.

V. 17. Will I give] that is to say, I will cause him to enjoy the everlasting goods of my heavenly kingdom; tearms taken from the Manna which was kept in the Sanctuary, Exod. 16. 32, 33. Psal. 65. 4. see John 6. 31, 35, 48, 51. A white stone] the figure of the new heart purified and made sound by faith, which God bestoweth upon those who are his, and whereon by his Spirit he engraves and seals the testimonie of their adoption, by which they obtain the new name and right of the children of God, John 1. 12. Revel. 3. 12. the certain judgement and knowledge whereof lieth in the closet of the beleevers conscience, and is not manifested but onely by the effects, Rom. 8. 16.

V. 19. Service] the Italian, ministerie; namely, in alms, assistances, and other duties of charitie.

V. 20. Iezebel] whether this were that womans proper name; or that for the resemblance of the old Iezebel, an impious, dishonest, and wicked Queene of Israel, here be meant some false Prophetesse of the Nicolaitans, or some such like hereticke sects.

V. 21. Fornication] namely, bodily fornication, and likewise the spirituall, of idolatry.

V. 22. That commit adultery] this may likewise bee understood spiritually of the communicating with that womans false doctrine.

V. 24. As have not] as have no way assented to that devilliish doctrine which those hereticks did qualifie with the name of great and deep mysteries of of Gods Spirit, 1 Cor. 2. 10. though indeed it was nothing but a gulph of abominations, and hollow illusions of the divell. Burthen] or calamities, or threatnings.

V. 26. My workes] the faith, and obedience which I have commanded, and brought forth in them that are mine by my Spirit, John 6. 29. 1 John 3. 23. Will I give] I will make him partaker of my Kingdomes glory, and of the fruit of my victories over all mine enemies.

V. 28. I will give him] namely, when that great day of eternity shall appeare, 2 Pet. 1. 19. I will make him partaker of the light of glory, happinesse, and full knowledge which resides in me, and of which I am the distributer, Rev. 22. 16.

CHAP. III.

Vers. 1. That hath] that is to say, he that possesseth the fulnesse of the gifts and graces of the Holy Ghost, John 3. 34. to distribute them to the whole Church. Thou livest] the Italian, Thou art sayd to live; namely, a spirituall life, consisting in faith, and all manner of workes of piety.

V. 2. Perfect] that is to say, entire and correspondent to the duty of thine office, according to Gods order, and judgement, though they seem otherwise to men.

V. 4. Which have not] that have kept themselves pure from the contagion of sinners, see Jude 23. or that have kept the confession of faith in a pure conscience, by which they have put on Christ, Gal. 3. 27. Ephes. 4. 24. Revel. 16. 15. Shall walke] that is to say, shall live with me in my Kingdome, in perfect light, joy, glory, and innocency, all which things are signified by white garments. Worthie] that is to say, they are fittingly disposed thereunto according to Gods order, see Matth. 10, 11.

V. 5. Blot out] that is to say, I will keep and preserve him eternally in the number of my Fathers Elect, and will make it appeare in effect that he is of that blessed society, See Exod. 32, 32. Psam. 69. 28.

V. 7. That hath the key] namely, Christ the Soveraigne Lord, and Governour of his Church, anciently figured by Eliachim Steward under Hezekiah, Isa 22. 22. That openeth] that is to say, whose power is Soveraigne and absolute, not Subject to any contradiction, opposition, or prohibition, see Job 12. 14.

V. 8. I have set] I have maintained the preaching of the Gospel, and the gift of faith in thee, that thou mightest in it have accesse to the Throne of grace: and likewise all other meanes of salvation and hope, see Matth. 25. 10. Thou hast] that is to say, thou hast not altogether fainted, but dost yet beare up so, that thou maiest use some meanes; for unto him that hath nothing, nothing is given, Matth. 25. 29.

V. 9. And worship] that is to say, they shall humble themselves unto thee, and shall aske thee forgivenesse for the wrongs and outrages which they have committed against thee, and they shall yeeld thee that acknowledgement and honour which belongeth unto thee, Isa. 49. 23. & 60. 14.

V. 10. The word] namely, the Gospel, alwaies accompanied with afflictions, to the imitation of me. Or, my command to suffer for my name. Will keepe thee] either by delivering thee, or by strengthening thee that thou mayest not be overcome. Of temptation] of triall and exercise of great afflictions 2 Pet. 2. 9.

V. 11. I come] namely, in judgement. Which thou hast] namely, my grace, and truth, the gift of faith, and practise of these gifts with perseverance. That no man] that thou mayst not finde thy selfe frustrate of the reward of everlasting glory, and see it obtained by others, who shall have kept the faith unto the end of the race. A manner of speaking taken from races, and other games wherein men did strive for superiority, see 1 Cor. 9. 25. 2 Tim. 4. 8. Jam. 1, 12. 1 Pet 5. 4.

V. 12. Will I make] I will establish him eternall and glorious in the triumphant Church. I will write] that is to say, I will glorifie him to the full and make him clearely appeare what he is, namely, a true child of God, a Citizen of Heaven, and member of Christ made like unto him in glory, See Isa. 4. 3. & 44. 5. Phil. 3. 20. 1 John 3. 2. Rev. 14. 1. My new] namely, the lively impression of my glory, which I have obtained after I went up into Heaven, Phil. 2. 9. Rev. 19. 12.

V. 14. The Amen] namely, Christ, who is not onely truth it selfe, John 14. 6. but in whom also all Gods promises are yea and Amen, that is to say, are ratified and firme, 2 Cor. 1. 20. The beginning] namely, he from whom all creatures have their beginning, John 1. 3. Col. 1. 16. O, the beginning of the creation, that is to say he, that is as one may say the foundation of all this new fabricke of the Church, Col. 1. 18.

V. 15. Neither cold] that is to say, thou hast indeed some knowledge and feeling of piety, but without any fervencie of affection to the workes of it, and without zeale in abhorring and rejecting the contrary ones. I would thou wert] that is to say, it were better for thee that thou haddest never participated of my truth, and grace, then to use it thus carelessely; for thy knowledge makes thee inexcusable; and as by it thou art the more bound, so thy sin is the more aggravated by thy contempt and ingratitude, see Luke 12. 47, 48.

V. 16. Spue thee out] that is to say, I will cast thee out of my ſpirituall communion and our of my love. A terme taken from lukewarme drinks, which doe provoke one to vomit.

V. 17. I am rich] namely, in temporall goods, or peradventure in ſpirituall gifts, but not accompanied, nor animated by the principall gift, which is that of the vigour and fervencie of Spirit.

V. 18. To buy] that is to ſay, to obtaine of me, by convenient meanes, which are humility, faith, repentance, zeale, and by meanes of renouncing all confidence in thy ſelfe, all thoſe gifts which are needfull for thee. See of this buying without any price, Iſa. 55. 1. Matth. 13. 44. & 25. 9. Gold] he ſeems to meane the gift of a pure and lively faith, by meanes of which all the reſt may be obtained, Matth. 21. 22. White rayment] this is the gift of free juſtification, by the application of Chriſts innocency, righteouſneſſe, and ſatisfaction, alwaies accompanied with the gift of the ſanctification of the Spirit, ſee 2 Cor. 5. 3. Gal. 3. 27. Rev. 7. 14. Eye-ſalve] a figure of the meditation and ſtudy of holy things; and of all other meanes which are apt to enlighten and ſtrengthen the underſtanding in the knowledge of divine truth.

V. 20. I ſtand] that is to ſay, I exhort, admoniſh, and ſolicite, ſee Cant. 5. 2. for it is not here ſpoken of the firſt act of converſion, but of the conſequences of it; in which, man, who being dead hath been made alive, ought to cooperate with Gods grace, Rom. 6. 13. Gal. 5. 25. Open] that is to ſay, gives way to my exhortations and word, and opens his heart thereunto, by docility, lively apprehenſion and obedience to faith. Will come into him] figurative termes to ſignifie an intimate communication in grace and comfort.

CHAP. IV.

Verſ. 1. Looked] the Italian, I ſaw; that is to ſay, a ſecond viſion was preſented unto me, and at the firſt appearing of it I was raviſhed into a Propheticall extaſie. Now untill the end of the eleventh Chapter, theſe viſions ſeeme to repreſent the heavenly archetypes of Gods counſels, concerning the ſtate and chances of the Chriſtian Church, and from the twelfth forward, the execution of them upon earth.

V. 2. One ſate] by that it is not here ſaid, that he had the likeneſſe of a ſonne of man, and by Revel. 5. 6, 7. & 7. 10. he ſheweth that in this place we muſt underſtand it to be God the Father.

V. 3. A Jaſper] to repreſent his majeſty and glory, but without any image or figure.

V. 4. Foure and twenty] an image or repreſentative of the Church, brought in here, as gathered up into Heaven, and made partaker of Chriſt her heads glory, Revel. 3. 21. and repreſented under the forme of the Rectors and heads of the earthly Jeruſalem, anciently compoſed as the Jewes relate it, of foure and twenty Elders, or heads of the foure and twenty quarters, or high ſtreets of the City, over which was the Governour for the King, who made the five and twentieth, whereof ſome tract is ſeene, Ezek. 11. 1 In white] a ſigne of glory, and moſt perfect heavenly pureneſſe, ſee Rev. 3. 4, 5.

V. 5. Seven] anſwerable to the ſeven Lampes, in the Golden Candleſticke in the Temple, ſee Exod. 25. 37. Zech. 4. 2.

V. 6. A Sea] a figure of the Heaven of glory, repreſented by a Sea for its greatneſſe and plaine extent, and of glaſſe for its purity, and ſplendor. Foure] a figure of the Angels, ſee Ezech. 1. 5. Full of] to ſignifie the perfect light of knowledge, and perpetuall vigilancy in ſervice in the holy Angels, ſee Dan. 4. 13. 17.

V. 8. Within] namely, under thoſe wings.

V. 10. And caſt] in token of acknowledgement that all the glory which they have, is Gods meere benefit, and that they enjoy it onely to exalt his for ever.

V. 11. Thou art worthy] that is to ſay, to thee it belongeth to ſet every thing under thine obedience, as every thing hath its being from thee; which is eſpecially verified in Chriſts ſpirituall Kingdome, Rev. 5. 12. and ſhall be accompliſhed in the Fathers everlaſting Kingdom, 1 Cor. 15. 24.

CHAP. V.

Verſ. 1. A Booke] a figure of Gods everlaſting, and ſecret decrees concerning the ſtate and condition of his Church; which decrees none knoweth but onely the Sonne, who hath the full knowledge of them, as true God with his Father. And likewiſe it belongeth to none to declare them but onely to him who alone hath charge from the Father to reveale them, as Mediator and great Prophet of the Church, ſee Pſal. 2. 7. Iohn 1. 18. & 3. 32. & 5. 19, 20.

V. 3. In Heaven] by this enumeration nothing is meant but all the creatures in generall, ſee Exod. 20. 4. Phil. 2. 10.

V. 5. The Lyon] namely, Jeſus Chriſt deſcended from Judah according to the fleſh, to whom in ſpirituall truth belongeth the title of Lyon attributed to Judah, Geneſ. 49. 9. by reaſon of his ſoveraigne ſtrength to overcome and deſtroy all his enemies. Hath prevailed] the Italian, hath overcome; that is to ſay, hath obtained, as in a triall, more then any other, hath overcome all difficulties, and brought it to paſſe: Or hath obtained, in regard of his humanity, this dignity of knowing all the fathers ſecrets, and to unfold them, by the combats which he hath undergone.

V. 6.

V. 6. In the middeſt] namely, betweene Gods Throne, and the beaſt, and the Elders. A Lambe] who repreſented Chriſt, who by his death hath gotten that foreſaid glorious title. As it had been] the Italian, which ſeemed; that is to ſay who bare in his glorious body the markes of his death and Sacrifice, See *Zech.*12.10. John 20,27. *Rev.*1.7. Seven hornes] a token of Soveraigne power in Chriſt, as King, as the ſeven eyes are ſymboles of perfect knowledge, in quality of Prophet.

V.8. Harpes] Inſtruments of praiſe, which ſeeme more properly to belong to ſoules already glorified, as the Vials full of odour, are better referred to beleevers upon earth, where the true place of prayer is, as in Heaven is the place of thankeſgiving. For the whole Church, as well Militant as Triumphant, is here repreſented, as yeelding her dutys to Chriſt. Which are] that is to ſay, which figure and ſignifie, according to the ancient ſymbole, *Exod.*30.1.

V.9. A new]ſee upon, *Pſal.*33.3.

V.12. Riches] namely, the glory, according to the uſe of the Hebrew tongue, or all the treaſures of wiſdome and underſtanding, *Col.*2.3.

CHAP. VI.

Verſ.1. A White Horſe] by Rev. 19. 11. it appeares that hereby is meant Chriſt carried upon the pure word of the Goſpell conquering and overcomming the Kingdome of the Word, and deſtroying his enemies, Pſal. 45. 4,5. Conquering] beginning his victories even at his firſt comming out, and proſecuting of them to the end.

V. 4. Another Horſe] by this may fittingly be meant the Roman Empire, ſorrell, or red by reaſon of its continuall exerciſe in warres, coveting the univerſall Empire of the world.

V. 5. A blacke Horſe] by this ſeemes to be meant the ſpirituall hunger after the bread of life, which is the pure Word of God, which after the ruine of the Roman Empire, did much afflict the world. A paire of Ballances] as it were to diſtribute the bread by weight and proportion, as they uſe to doe in great dearths, ſee *Lev.*26.26. *Ezech.*4.10,11.

V.6. A meaſure] the Italian, A Chenice; the name of a meaſure which contained about two and twenty Ounces, and the penny is the Drachme whereof eight make an ounce. And ſo is ſignified a great dearth. See thou hurt not] that is to ſay, this ſpirituall hunger ſhall notwithſtanding be accompanied with great fleſhly commodities, and delights repreſented by Wine and Oyle, which are not ſo abſolutely neceſſary for mans life as Bread.

V.8. A pale Horſe] by this may be meant Antichriſt, whoſe Kingdome is the death of the Church, cauſed by violences, privation of true practice, peſtilence of falſe doctrine, perſecutions of Potentates (ſignified by the foure bodily ſcourges) whence unavoydably followeth everlaſting death. Or ſimply are meant Gods judgements upon the World for the contempt of his word. Over the fourth] as indeed the kingdome of Antichriſt ſeems to have taken ſo much part of the world.

V. 9. The Altar] which in this viſion appeared in Heaven before the Throne, like the Altar of Incenſes, which was before the moſt holy place, where Gods glory reſided upon the Arke, *Exod.*30.6. And this repreſentation ſerves to ſhew, that the ſoules of beleevers doe not appeare before God, but onely by the interceſſion of Chriſt, figured by thoſe ancient perfumes. Which they held] having never forſaken it, nor renounced it, 1 John 5.10.

V. 10. How long] a prayer not for any particular vengeance, but of zeale to Gods juſtice, and of deſire of the full comming of his Kingdome, in the totall ruine of the wicked, and in the laſt and finall judgment.

V.11. Were given] that is to ſay, they were admoniſhed to content themſelves with the firſt and moſt excellent part of Gods juſtice, which is to reward thoſe with glory which have ſuffered for him, which is ſignified by theſe robes, *Rev.*3.4,5. expecting till in his appointed time he doth accompliſh the other, which is to cauſe vengeance to come upon the perſecuters, ſee *Heb.*12.13. Should be fulfilled] namely, untill all the elect of all mankind were gathered together, which muſt be before the laſt judgement, ſee 2 *Pet.*3.9.

V. 12. There was] a deſcription of the laſt judgement.

V. 15. And the Kings] namely, the enemies of Chriſt, and proſecuters of his Church.

CHAP. VII.

Verſ.1. S*Tanding*] ready to execute Gods great judgements upon the earth, which notwithſtanding are not ſpecified in this Chapter. Holding] peradventure to intimate the peace, and eaſe, in which God ſuffereth worldly men to live, and be overtaken, even upon the point of his great judgements, 1 *Theſſ.*5.3.

V. 4 Of all the Tribes] excepting Dan left out in this place for ſome unknowne cauſe, as alſo in other places of Scripture. Now by theſe who are marked among the Tribes of Iſrael, are meant the elect in all the externall Church, marked with Gods, and Chriſts Character, *Rev.*14.1.

V. 8. Of Joſeph] that is to ſay, of Ephraim the the Sonne of Joſeph: who having gotten the right of firſt borne above Manaſſeth, Geneſ. 48 13,19. the name of Joſeph is often attributed unto him for precedency.

V.9.

V.9. Palmes] in signe of victory, on the divell and his whole Kingdome, see *Rev.*13.5.

V.10. To our God] the Italian, belongeth to our God; that is to say, as it is his proper worke to save men, so all the honour therefore is due to him.

V.12. Amen] namely, to that which the multitude had said.

V.14. Which came out] namely, that are taken up into Heaven, after they had suffered great afflictions, and persecutions in the world. Have washed] that is to say, preserved themselves in innocencie of life, and in the purity of the profession of the Christian faith, by which having put on Christ with all his righteousnesse and merits, have likewise been adorned by him with the graces of his Spirit in this World, and of his glory in the everlasting life, 2 *Cor.*5.4.

V.15. In his Temple] namely, in Heaven, shadowed by the ancient materiall Temple, *Heb.*9.23,24. Shall dwell among them] the Italian, Shall stretch forth his Tabernacle amongst them; or shall overshadow them: that is to say, shall cover and defend them everlastingly from all evill. A manner of speech taken from the Pillar of Cloud in the Wildernesse.

CHAP. VIII.

Vers.1. THe seven] it is likely that here are meant the chiefe and neerest Ministers of God, as questionlesse there are distinctions in the degrees of Angels, see *Rev.*1.4. & 4.5.

V.3. Angel] the description of a kind of Heavenly service, correspondent to that which was in the Temple, namely, that the people being without at prayer, the Priest offered Incense within upon the Altar, Luke 1.10. to signifie that beleevers prayers have alwaies need to be helped, and sanctified by Christs Intercession, see *Heb.*9.24. and here the Angel holds the place of inferiour Priest, under Christ who is the high Priest. Now the end of all this is to shew, that beleevers doe avoid all the horrible evils of this World by faith, and prayer, *Luk.*21 36. Should offer it] that is to say, should present it in the behalfe of the Saints, or beleevers prayers, and make them to penetrate sweetly before God.

V.11. Wormwood] that is to say, most bitter and deadly, according to the meaning of the Hebrew tongue.

V.13. An Angell] some copies have it, an Eagle.

CHAP. IX.

Vers.1. TO him] according to some, we must understand it to be the Angel himself that had sounded. Others referre it to the starre which was fallen, which may signifie an evill Spirit, Rev. 12.29. Of the bottomlesse pit] namely of Hell. All this is very obscure, and hidden under the Key of Gods secrets.

V.11. Abaddon] both names signifie destroyer, which is the divels title, see *Exod.*12.23.

V.13. Foure hornes] as he had in vision seen the Altar of perfumes, Rev. 6.9. & 8.3. he saw also the foure hornes or pinnes at the foure corners of it, to the likenesse of Moses and Salomons, called the Golden Altar, because it was covered with golden plates, and was set before God: that is to say, before the Sanctuary, the great Curtaine being between, see *Exod.*30.13. 1 *King.*6.20. & 7.48.

CHAP. X.

Vers.1. AN gell] this was the Sonne of God himselfe, as it appeares by Rev. 1.15, 16. & 4.3. Of fire] that it to say, of that exceeding fine Brasse, *Revel.*1.15. bright and sparkling.

V.2. A little Booke] it seemes we must conceive and understand it to be the same booke which the Sonne of God had unsealed and opened, Rev 5.1.7.

V.3. Seven thunders] whereof hath not beene spoken untill now: peradventure he meanes the seven Angels, who strongly sounded with their Trumpets Revel. 8.2. And in all this there are many things known to God onely.

V.4. And write them not] other Copies have it, and thou shalt write them afterwards.

V.6. That there should be] namely, that the end of the world should come in its prefixed time, and that the succession, vicissitudes, and measure of times, and all temporall things should cease, and that all prophesies should be fulfilled.

V.7. The mystery] namely, these singular revelations, of Christs comming to judgement, of the resurrection, of the end of the world, and of Christs everlasting Kingdome with his Father, *Mat.*24 30. 1 *Cor.*15.24,51. 1 *Thess.*4.15. 2 *Pet.*3.10.

V.11. Before many] the Italian, against many; others, concerning many.

CHAP. XI.

Vers.1. WAs given me] this Chapter also contains many very obscure things not yet revealed.

V.3. Will give] commission and authority.

V.7. Their testimony] namely, the time of their preaching, and defending of the heavenly truth.

V.8. Spiritually] resembling in spirituall things the carnall and worldly qualities of Sodom and Egypt, which were the figure of it. Sodom in its abominable impurities, and abominations of Idolatry. Egypt in her tyranny and violence against the Church. Crucified] this also sheweth that it must be underunderstood in a spirituall sence: that is to say, he is there wronged persecuted, and slaine in his Members, Word, Spirit, and Worship, see Heb.6.6.

V.11. Entred] that is to say, that which is to come was shewed me in vision, as if it were present.

V.15. The Kingdomes] that is to say, now God raigneth with his Sonne, and that absolutely, having destroyed all his enemies, 1 Cor.15.24.

V.18. Of the dead] namely, that they ought to rise againe to be judged, some to death and damnation, others to rewards, and everlasting Crownes.

CHAP. XII.

Vers.1. A Appeared] Here begins the second prophetick part of this Book, which containes the executions done upon earth, of those celestiall decrees which were described before. A woman] many circumstances induce us to understand this Vision of the Jewish Nation, and of that which hath befallen it since the Birth of Christ. Clothed] the Italian, environed; that is to say, A Nation honoured with the glorious Title of People of God, environed with his presence, light, and grace. Under her feet] that is to say, whose sight in the world was very variable, in increases, prosperities, decreases, failings, appearings again, &c. even as the Moon. A crown] this is clearly meant by the twelve Tribes, see Gen.37.9.

V.2. With childe] that is to say, having the promises of the Messias, whose comming she had long before conceived by faith, and the time of the accomplishment whereof drew neer. Cried] this may be referred to the dolorous state into which the people of God were brought about the time of Christs comming, being oppressed by the Roman Empire, and sighing after their deliverance by the Messias.

V.3. A great] A figure of the Prince of devils, working by the Roman Empire (described Rev.13.1. with the same heads and hornes) to suppresse Christ at his Birth, which having been first attempted by Herod, made a King by the Romans, was afterwards prosecuted by their Magistrates, induced thereunto by the Jewes, even to his death.

V.4. His tail] A figurative description of the apostasie of one part of the Angels, adhering to the head of it. And did cast them] that is to say, which part he drew after him in the societie of his rebellion, whereupon it was for ever banished out of Heaven, Jude 6.

V.5. A man-childe] namely, Christ Jesus, in respect of his humane nature, Isai 9.6. Was caught up] Though he died, yet was he not devoured by the devill, but did rise again, and was taken up into Heaven in glorie.

V.6. The woman] this seemes to point at the dispersion of the Jewish Nation without any forme of common-wealth of its own, or of any Church, without any grace or blessing of God, or food of the soul, in which miserable state, it is notwithstanding preserved untill the time of its last conversion. A thousand] that is to say, a certain space of limited and prefixed time, as the three yeares and an halfe of Antiochus his persecution were, Dan.7.25. and 12.7.

V.7. There was war] A figurative description of the devils judgement, renewed by Christ glorified, who hath been made the true Michael, and Head of the Angels, see Luke 10.18. John 12.31.

V.8. Their place] that is to say, they were everlastingly banished from it.

V.9. The devill] that is to say, a slanderer of God to men, Gen.3.5. and slanderous, and malicious accuser of men to God, verse 10. Satan] that is to say, adversarie and accuser, Zech.3.1.

V.10. Is come] that is to say, God hath undertaken to save those who are his perfectly, and to reigne powerfully in the person of his Son, having beaten down the tyrannicall usurpation of the devill.

V.11. By the bloud] that is to say, opposing against his accusations, Christs most perfect satisfaction for their expiation, Rom.8.33,34. and persevering untill death in the faith and confession of Christ.

V.12. To the inhabitants of] the Italian hath it, to thee O earth; other Texts have it, To ye that inhabit the earth and the sea. That he hath but] namely, to execute the rest of his rage against Christs Kingdom, before he be eternaly shut up in hell.

V.13. He persecuted] this seemes should be wholly understood of the desolations of the Jewish people, after Christs Ascension into Heaven.

V.14. Two wings] A figurative description of the miraculous meanes by which the remainder of the Jewish Nation was saved from the Romans rage, see Matth.24.22. Of a great] it being a very certain thing, that there is a kinde of Eagles of an unmeasurable and prodigious greatnesse. Nourished] that is to say, maintained in her being. A time] that is to say, A year, two yeeres, and halfe a year, which are the thousand two hundred and sixty dayes of vers.6.

V.15. Cast out of] that is to say, did raise up great persecutions against the Jewes on every side.

V.16. The earth] the meaning seemes to be, that the great commotions in the Roman Empire, did cause them to let the Jewes alone in rest, and that they did not utterly destroy them.

V.17. With the remnant] namely, with those few Jewes which were converted to the Christian faith, upon whom began the first persecution against the Church.

CHAP. XIII.

Verſ.1. Saw] This Viſion hath a plain relation to the Roman, heatheniſh Empire, to which may be applied many qualities of that of Antiochus, *Dan.*7.8,20,21. Out of the ſea] figure of the world, for its vaſtneſſe, confuſion, and continuall agitation. A beaſt] namely, an Empire and ſtate, according to the propheticke ſtile, *Dan.*7.3. and 8. 3,4,20,21. Ten hornes] This is attributed to heathen Rome, conformable to that which is ſaid of the kingdom of the Seleucides and Antiochus, *Dan.*7.7. and is expounded, Revel. 17.9,12. The name] he ſeemes to have a relation to that, there was a Godhead attributed to the Citie of Rome, and it was called, The everlaſting Citie, head of the world, &c.

V.2. A leopard] The three ſeverall figures of the Beaſts which repreſented the Monarchies of the Chaldeans, Perſians, and Grecians, Dan 7.4,5,6, are all put together to deſcribe Rome, as if it were a gathering together, of the tyrannie, crueltie, and ravenouſneſſe of all the former Empires. Gave him] in as much as by Gods permiſſion the devill is prince of the world, and of the adverſe part to God and to his Kingdom, he made this Empire as it were his great Lieutenant, and gave it all the meanes as he himſelfe had, to obtain, maintain, encreaſe, and exerciſe his tyrannie, ſee Luke 4.6.

V.3. One of] it is likely that here is meant one of the ſeven formes of Government of the Roman Empire; namely, that of the People and Senate which was ſubverted by the Emperours, ſee Rev. 17.9. And his] the Italian, but his; that is to ſay, this ſo dangerous alteration, did not for all that overthrow the ſtate of Rome, yea the Monarchie confirmed it, and made it flouriſh, and powerfull as before.

V.4. Worſhipped] that is to ſay, the Roman Empire did greatly confirme and amplifie the worſhip of idols, in which the devill is alwayes worſhipped, *Rev.*9.20.

V.5. There was given] that is to ſay, God by his ſecret Providence ſuffered it to riſe to a great height of commanding and threatning, even to oppoſing it ſelfe, againſt God and his kingdom, and to maintain and eſtabliſh the devils kingdom, *Dan.*7.20,25. To continue] other Texts have it, To war, namely, with the Church, which ſeemes to agree beſt with the figure of Antiochus. Fourty and two] according to the letter, they are the three yeares and an halfe of Antiochus his perſecution, *Dan.*7.25. and 12. 7,11. but being referred to Rome, this terme ſeemes to be indefinite, to ſignifie the whole time of Gods patience in ſuffering of heathen Romes perſecution,

V.6. His Tabernacle] that is to ſay, his Church. And them that] namely, Chriſt, and all his, who were gathered up in glorie.

V.7. Given unto him] that is to ſay, he was permitted. To overcome them] namely, in the world, and corporally for a time.

V.8. Of the Lambe] the Italian, whoſe names are not written from the foundation of the world, in the Book of life of the Lambe, who was ſlain, ſhall worſhip him; namely, of Chriſt, 1 *Pet.*1.19,20. to whom this Booke of life is attributed, whether it be becauſe that in Chriſt all Gods children are choſen, *Epheſ.*1.4. or whether it be becauſe that he is prince and authour of everlaſting life, whereunto they are choſen. Others ſet down the words of the Text in this manner, Whoſe names are not written in the Book of life of the Lambe, who was ſlain from the foundation of the world, that is to ſay, in Gods decree and foreſight, and in the efficacie of his death, which hath been preſent to God from all eternitie.

V.10. He that] A ſummarie and obſcure deſcription of the Roman Empire, through Gods juſt judgement. Is the] that is to ſay, one ought to ſhew and exerciſe it, in perſevering conſtantly in the faith, and in bearing all manner of aſſaults, expecting the time which God hath appointed.

V.11. Another] this can apparently belong to no other but to a power uſed under the Name of Chriſt, which hath brought in and eſtabliſhed it ſelfe, by meanes of and after the ruine of the Roman Empire. Two hornes] that is to ſay, uſurping two powers, Secular and Eccleſiaſticall, even as Chriſt is both King and High-prieſt; or counterfeiting the mildneſſe of Chriſts Kingdom, which proceedeth not with outward force, nor violence of armes, even as the hornes of a lambe are not good to butte with, or to do any harme. He ſpake] that is to ſay, he uſed an abſolute command over the conſciences, raiſed himſelfe through deviliſh pride, and execrable boaſting, *Rev.*18.7.

V.12. Before him] The Roman Empire ſubſiſting yet a long time after the being of this ſecond Beaſt, eſpecially in theſe Eaſterne parts. To worſhip] that is to ſay, to have religious conceits of the place where Rome ſtood, as being conſecrated to a perpetuall preſence of God, and to yield divine honours, and religious obedience to it. Whoſe deadly wound] This ſeemes to be another wound then that of verſe 3. and to have a relation to the deſolations of Rome by the Northerne Nations.

V.13. Fire come] this ſeemes to be meant by thunders darted out, as it were, in God and Chriſt his Name, whereby the world hath oftentimes been ſet on fire with warres, and troubled with terrible confuſions.

V.14. That they ſhould make] namely, that they ſhould ſhould eſtabliſh a new forme of Roman politicke Empire, which ſhould have ſome name and reſemblance of the ancient Empire which was ruined. And did live] namely, by the eſtabliſhment of the univerſall Empire, pretended to be ſpirituall.

V.15. To give life] the Italian, to give ſpirit; that is to ſay, force and vigour to command. Speak] that is to ſay, make Lawes and ſtatutes, with penalties to the diſobedient, and to the contemners of the majeſtie of this new Empire, ſtiled ſacred by its adherents.

V.17. That no man] that is to ſay, forbidding all manner of commerce and communication with thoſe that did not acknowledge this power.

V.18. Count the] This is very obſcure and doubtfull. A Chriſtian Authour of the ancienteſt hath left in writing, or peradventure by tradition, that this was the name Latine, as the Grecians write it; for the Grecians uſing letters in ſtead of cyphers of numbers do out of the foreſaid name make up the number which is here ſet down, and indeed this number can have no relation to yeares, for that as hath been ſaid, *Rev.*15.2.

CHAP. XIV.

Verſ.1. I Looked] It ſeemes that by this Viſion the heavenly glorie is repreſented, wherewith the ancient Martyrs were crowned, who ſuffered death under heathen Rome, or they, who by vertue of their election have not adhered to the falſe dominion of the ſoules, whileſt it reigned in the world without any contradiction, and they are brought in giving God thankes therefore.

V.3. Redeemed] that is to ſay, acquired to God by the price of Chriſts bloud, 1 *Cor.*7.23. 2 Pet. 2,1.

V.4. Which were not] that is to ſay, who have kept themſelves pure from all idolatrie, which is ſpirituall fornication, and have loyally adhered to Chriſt the onely Bridegroom of the Church, ſee 2 *Cor.*11.2. *Epheſ.*5.27.

V.6. Having the] The ſequele of theſe Viſions ſheweth, that this cannot be underſtood of the firſt preaching of the Goſpel by the Apoſtles, and that it muſt be referred to a miraculous renewing of it.

V.8. Is fallen] This firſt crie is the proclamation of Gods ſentence againſt the ſpirituall Babylon, and of the beginnings of the execution thereof, by the ſpirituall ruine of her plots: the other proclamation, Rev 18.2. will be that of the final execution. Made all nations drinke] by her frauds and falſe perſwaſions, ſhe hath in ſuch ſort beſoted mens ſpirits, as with a compounded drinke, that they have thereby loſt their right judgement, and have ſuffered themſelves to be induced to ſpirituall fornication of idolatries and ſuperſtitions, which deceit is nevertheleſſe an effect of Gods juſt judgement upon the world, which hath not entertained the love of Truth, 2 *Theſſ.*2.10,11,12.

V.10. Without mixture] without any temperament of grace and of mercie, with which God moderates the cup of believers afflictions.

V.12. Here are they] that is to ſay, in theſe occaſions they ſhall make themſelves to be known by moſt certain proofes.

V.13. From henceforth] namely, after the doctrine of the Goſpell and faith ſhall be re-eſtabliſhed in the world in its own puritie and vertue by which alone man can die happily, in preſent comfort, and confidence of eternall ſalvation. Their workes] that is to ſay, the reward of them cannot fail them, after their labours and combates.

V.15. Out of the Temple] repreſented oftentimes in this Book in Viſion to be in Heaven; now from this place to the end of the Chapter ſeem to be foretold, the warres and deſolations which were to happen in the world, by reaſon of the Goſpels reeſtabliſhment, as if that after this laſt effect of Gods grace, there were no more any mercie or patience to be expected, but onely a finall deſtruction, as a harveſt or a vintage, when the fruits of the earth are come to full maturitie.

CHAP. XV.

Verſ.1. THe ſeven] namely, the commiſſion of putting them in execution.

V.2. Of God] that is to ſay, divine harpes reſounding the praiſes of God, in a manner altogether heavenly.

V.3. The ſong] that which he ſung after the utter diſcomfiture of Pharaoh in the red ſea, *Exod.*15.1. A figure of the triumphal ſong for Chriſts victories over all his enemies. Of Saints] the Italian, Of nations; other Texts have it, Of ages.

V.6. The ſeven] A more particular deſcription of the plagues of the world, for the refuſing of the Goſpell, touched in general, *Rev.*14.15.

CHAP. XVI.

Verſ.1. TO the ſeven] There is great likelihood, that theſe ſeven Angels with their vials, which repreſent the reiterated executions of Gods judgements upon great Babylon, are correſpondent to thoſe ſeven, *Rev.*8.6. who had with their trumpets pronounced the ſentence thereof: in all theſe plagues there is a great deal of obſcuritie, impenetrable to any humane underſtanding; clear it is, that part of them are expreſſed under the figure of the ancient plagues of Ægypt by Moſes.

V.5. Of the waters] namely, that had commiſſion to change the water of the rivers into bloud.

V.12. The water] it ſeemes that to deſcribe the preparations for the laſt ruine of the ſpirituall Babylon, he takes this circumſtance from the taking of the ancient Babylon by Cyrus, who turned away the waters of the river Euphrates, and came into the City through the drie channell of it, ſee *Jer.*50.38. and 51.32.

V.13. Of the falſe Prophet] according to ſome, this may have a relation to Mahomet, but moſt likely it is to be underſtood of that particular perſon that ſhall poſſeſſe the throne of the Empire, intimated, *Rev.*13.11.

V.15. Keepeth] that is to ſay, conſtantly, and in a pure conſcience retaineth the gift of faith, by which he is clothed with my righteouſneſſe, and covered with my Spirit.

V.16. Armageddon] the meaning of this word is very doubtfull, peradventure he meanes that God will ſuffer his enemies to aſſemble themſelves to make war againſt him, to the end that it might befall them, as it befell the Canaaneans, who were miraculouſly deſtroyed neer the waters of Megghiddo, Judges 4.15. and 5.19,20. by meanes of which accident peradventure that place was anciently called Armageddon, that is to ſay, the diſcomfiture of Megghiddo. Or this name was newly framed by the Holy Ghoſt, for the ſame correſpondencie.

V.17. Saying] that is to ſay, the final ſentence is given againſt the Beaſt, preſently ſhall follow the execution of it.

V.21. Of a talent] which was the weight of one hundred five and twenty pounds and twelve ounces, ſee upon *Exod.*38.25.

CHAP. XVII.

Verſ.1. [The great whore] ſo is the ſpiritual Babylon and all her ſtate called, not onely for her idolatries and ſuperſtitions, but alſo for her arts and practices with the Kings and Nations of the earth, onely to ſatisfie her unſatiable covetouſneſſe of goods and honours, ſee Iſai 23.15,17. That ſitteth] that is to ſay, as the ancient Babylon was ſituated upon the great river Euphrates, Jer. 51.13. ſo the ſpiritual Babylon hath dominion over many People and Nations, verſe 15.

V.3. Into the Wilderneſſe.] the Italian, into a Wilderneſſe] ſo ſeemes to be meant, the ſtate of the Church, deſolated by the foreſaid damnable Dominion. A Scarlet coloured beaſt] which ſignifies the great City or ſtate, which is the ſeat of that great whore. Of blaſphemy.] that is to ſay, uſurping the titles, which belong onely to God, and to Chriſt ſee 2 *Theſſ.*2.4. Seven heads] ſee *v.*9. & 12.

V.4. Filthineſſe] namely, of the ſpirituall pollutions of Idolatry, and adherence to her ſelfe, to which ſhe induceth the world, ſtupifying it as by Witchcraft, or by a love-drinke, ſuch as ſtrumpets uſe to compound of abominable ingredients.

V.5. Myſtery] it may be, his ſheweth, that the following names ought to be underſtood myſtically, that is to ſay, not in a litterall, but in a figurative and ſpirituall ſence, ſee *Rev.*11.8. or that her whole ſtate is a myſtery of iniquity, 2 Theſſ. 2.7. that is to ſay, A form of religious ſtate, which hath outward ſeemings, clean contrary to her inward ſtate. As Gods myſteries have weake and corporall appearances in their ſignes; but inwardly have their power and being altogether divine, ſpirituall, and heavenly: this contrariwiſe hath a religious outſide, but the inward being and end is altogether wicked and worldly. Babylon] named ſo figuratively, for the oppreſſion of the Church, for its pride, and for its pretence to the univerſall empire over all the world. The mother] that is to ſay, The great miſtreſſe of idolatries, and arts, to captivate and enſnare mens ſpirits into her love.

V.8. Was] for the Angel ſhewed that great City to Saint John in a viſion, no more as a heathen City, but as the head of Apoſtaſie. And yet is] becauſe that the Roman Empire is in a manner revived by this ſecond beaſt, Revel. 13.11,12.

V.9. Here is] that is to ſay, in theſe things it is neceſſary to be enlightned by the Spirit of divine wiſdom, to underſtand them, and to gather the fruit of inſtruction out of the revelation that is given of them. Seven mountains] this particular doth ſufficiently declare of what place he notoriouſly ſpeaks.

V.10. Kings] that is to ſay, Divers forms of government, which may be gathered out of Hiſtories. One is] namely, now at this preſent that I ſpeak unto thee, which was the Monarchieall form of government. And the other] namely, that other form, pointed at Revel. 13,11,12.

V.11. The eighth] the Italian, an eighth King; that is to ſay, an eighth form, in as much that though it be grounded upon the ſeventh, yet it is by reaſon of its new, abſolute, and infinite uſurpation, ſo far different, that it is become, as it were, a new beaſt. And goeth into] that is to ſay, I will in this viſion readily ſhew thee her future deſtruction.

V.12. Ten Kings] he ſeems to mean the Kingdoms which are framed in the weſtern parts out of the ruines of the Roman Empire, whether he take the number of ten for a certain and definite number: or whether he meane it for an indefinite number, according to that which is ſaid, Dan. 7.7,24.

V.13. Theſe have] that is to ſay, all theſe kingdoms ſhall voluntarily ſubmit themſelves to the foreſaid domination.

V.14. Shall

V. 14. Shall make warre] namely, by perſecutions and oppreſſions of the truth, and of the Church of Chriſt, untill the time prefixed for their converſion, verſ. 16, 17. Shall overcome] namely, in the end, the obſtinate by deſtruction, and others by a ſweet ſpirituall ſubjection. And they that] namely, his true Church, which is as it were his armie, by which and with which Chriſt ſpiritually fighteth againſt the powers of the world.

V. 16. Theſe ſhall hate] the Italian, are they that ſhall hate; that is to ſay, Doe alſo ſignifie thoſe ſame Kings, who either through converſion to Chriſt, or for ſome offences received, or for ſome other reaſons, ſhall turn againſt the whore, and ſhall deſtroy her. And ſhall eat] a figurative terme taken from wilde beaſts which are taken in hunting.

V. 17. And give] that is to ſay, as he had for a time ſuffered them to ſubmit themſelves to the beaſt, ſo when the terme of the accompliſhment of Gods counſels, and of the prophecies ſhall be come, he ſhall ſtir them up to war againſt it.

V. 18. That great] namely, the ſtate and empire that hath its ſeat there: becauſe otherwiſe the city is the beaſt, and the woman is the ſtate, verſ. 3.

CHAP. XVIII.

Verſ. 2. Saying] ſee upon Rev. 14. 8.

V. 9. The kings] whether we muſt take them to be ſome other Kings beſide the ten, Revel. 17. 16. or ſome of thoſe ſame ten.

V. 12. Thine] the Italian, all kinde of cedar; the Greek word ſignifieth, a wilde kinde of cedar, very ſweet, and which doth not rot, and hath a grained and curled root, of which anciently they made works of great value.

V. 13. Souls of men] that is to ſay, Perſons which ſeem to be added beſides ſlaves, becauſe that anciently they made merchandize of perſons, not onely for ſlavery, but alſo for pleaſures or abominable delights.

V. 14. The fruits] that is to ſay, the delights of the earths yeelding, which thou diddſt ſeek after, with ſo much care and delight.

V. 22. Of a milſtone] for in ancient times they commonly uſed hand-mils, which did make a great noiſe in the cities.

V. 23. Of a candle] a great number of which were lighted at night-feaſts and merry meetings. For thy merchants] for thou haſt made uſe of Kings and Princes to doe thy buſineſſe, and to ſeek thy profit, and haſt bewitched the nations with falſe perſwaſions and ſeducements.

V. 24. In her] that is to ſay, ſhe hath been found guilty of it, becauſe that all the counſels, inſtructions, and inducements to perſecutions, have proceeded from her. Prophets] that is to ſay, faithfull Doctors of the Church. That were ſlain] namely, for the pure profeſſion of the faith, and for witneſſing the truth of the Goſpel.

CHAP. XIX.

Verſ. 1. Alleluia] an Hebrew word, frequent in the Pſalms, which together with many more, hath paſſed to be uſed in other Languages in the ſervice of God, and ſignifieth, Praiſe the Lord, ſee Pſal. 104. 35.

V. 8. Was granted] to ſhew that the ſanctification of the Church, which is all its ornament, Pſal. 45. 13. and 93. 5. is a meer gift of Chriſt her bridegroom, Epheſ. 5. 26, 27. Rev. 3. 18.

V. 10. At his feet] the Italian addeth, before him at his feet; namely, before the Angel which uttered this voyce. For the teſtimony] that is to ſay, To me, who am but a created Angel and Miniſter of Chriſt, doth not belong the honour of theſe Propheticke Revelations, but to Chriſt alone, who is true God, who hath witneſſed, that is to ſay, revealed theſe ſecrets and counſels of his Fathers, and who by his Spirit inſpireth the light and certain knowledge thereof into his ſervants, ſee Pſal. 2. 7. 1 Pet. 1. 11. Revel. 1. 1. 2. 5. and 22. 6.

V. 11. He that] namely, Chriſt.

V. 12. A name] thus is his Godhead ſignified, incomprehenſible to any creature, Judges 13. 18. Matth. 11. 27. Or the dignity of head of the Church, which no man knoweth, that is to ſay, Poſſeſſeth not beſides himſelfe, and is incommunicable to any other, Phil. 2. 9.

V. 13. In blood] for a ſigne as well of his victories over his enemies, as of his perfect righteouſneſſe and redemption, acquired by the merit, and in vertue of his death and paſſion.

V. 14. The armies] that is to ſay, the Angels.

V. 15. Treadeth] the Italian, ſhall tread; that is to ſay, Shall execute Gods vengeances upon his enemies, gathered together as it were in a wine-preſſe.

V. 17. Unto the ſupper of the great God] the Italian, unto Gods great banquet; that is to ſay, Unto the great ſlaughter which he will make.

CHAP. XX.

Verſ. 4. And they] the Italian, perſons; namely, the glorified Saints. Iudgement] namely, power to judge the world, as Chriſts aſſeſſors and aſſiſtants, who is the ſupreme judge, ſee upon 1 Cor. 6. 2, 3. That were] that had in any manner ſuffered martyrdom. In all this Propheeie it is better and more ſure to expect and ſtay for the explication by the event, then to give it without any certain ground.

V. 9. The camp] namely, the Church militant in the world, by a figure taken from the children of Israel, which encamped in the wildernesse.

V. 11. Him that] namely, Jesus Christ, everlasting King of his Church, and supreame judge of the world. From whose face] that is to say, at the appearing of whose new Kingdom, all this forme and state of the world was changed in an instant, and vanished away.

V. 12. The books] termes taken from the publike judgements here amongst men, wherein are produced all the writings of the processe, informations, depositions of witnesses, &c. to shew that all actions, even the most secret ones, shall then be rehearsed and made manifest, 1 Cor. 4. 5. Another book] which represents the everlasting election to life and glory in Christ.

V. 13. And hell] namely, the places under ground where the bodies are laid after they are dead.

V. 14. Death] that is to say, There was no more neither death nor sepulchre for Gods Elect, the command of death over them was quite annihilated, and remained upon the damned, in whom death and the grave were changed into everlasting imprisonment and torments of hell.

CHAP. XXI.

Vers. 1. Were passed] that is to say, Were changed in forme and state, see upon Rom. 8. 21.

V. 2. Holy city] that is to say, The Church in glory.

V. 3. The tabernacle] that is to say, God shall be present with them for ever, a terme taken from the Tabernacle where the Arke was, and the other signes of Gods presence in the midst of the people of Israel.

V. 6. It is done] that is to say, the end of the world is come, all Gods words are accomplished.

V. 8. Fearfull] that is to say, cowardly in their spirituall combats, who through carnall fear shall not dare to make profession of my truth, or shall deny it. Sorcerers] or poisoners.

V. 10. In the Spirit] namely, in extasie and vision, not corporally.

V. 11. Her light] that is to say, her sunne which enlightneth her.

V. 12. Angels] namely, of grace, and peace: contrary to the Cherubin, set at the entrance of earthly paradice with a Sword to drive Adam out of it, Gen. 3. 24.

V. 16. The length and] a figure of the perfect and everlasting stability of the Church in Heaven, the cube or solid square, being the most stable and equal figure of all.

V. 17. An hundred and forty and foure] namely, in thicknesse. That is of] that is, according to the proportion of the resemblance of the body, in which Angels ordinarily appeared, which was questionles bigger and higher then that of ordinary men.

V. 22. No Temple] the meaning is, that in stead of eternall signes of Gods presence which were ancientely in the Temple. God shall manifest himself face to face, to his elect in Christ, and they shall be all gathered in him, to serve him for ever.

V. 23. The Lamb] thus it is shewed, that in the heavenly glory also, Christ shall be the onely means of all the communication that the elect shall have in the glory and light of God.

V. 24. Shall walke] figurative terms, taken from the Prophets speaking of the Church here in the world: to signifie the perfect glory, happinesse, and fulnesse, which shall be in the heavenly life. Or the everlasting glory is represented, not onely in regard of the whole body of the Church, when it shall be gathered into it, but also in regard of beleevers in this world who aspire unto it, as to the end of their race, and harbour of their Sea-voyage: whither all spirituall vertues, wherewith they are endowed as true Kings in spirit, are carried, to be there made perfect, and to beautifie that Temple of God, and to that the following verse seemes to have a relation.

V. 25. For there shall be] the meaning is, I doe not adde, nor by night, as Isa. 60. 11. Speaking of the Church in this world, because indeed there shall be neither night nor vicissitude.

CHAP. XXII.

Vers. 2. In the middest] this is spoken as by a relation to the earthly Paradice, in the midst of which stood the tree of life, Gen. 2. 9. Either side of the River] the Italian, the River which ranne on each side; that is to say, which went about this divine Garden on two sides. The Tree] all these things are spoken by figure, for as man lives by the fruites of the Earth, the Fruits are brought forth by the Plants, the Plants subsist by the watering. So in Heaven the Church shall enjoy everlasting life, by the perfect communion, and conjunction which it shall have with Christ, figured by the Tree of life, in whom all the fathers love is spread forth, as a lively spring. Which bare] this is also said, onely to shew the eternall lastingnesse, and the abundance of this fruit of life. The leaves] this is taken out of Ezech. 47. 12. and may be referred to the perpetuall application of Christs righteousnesse and innocencie, which is, as it were, his faire and alwaies fresh verdure, by which the wound and disease of the soule, which is sinne, is healed, by remission and absolution, Mal. 4. 2. finally by this meanes signified, that in Christ we have all things necessary for salvation, comcomprehended in two parts, which are the furnishing with all good things, and the freeing from all evill.

V. 3. Curse] that is to say, no evill thing, person, nor action. Or anathema, that is to say, curse or destruction.

V. 4. His name] that is to say, his image shall be perfectly imprinted in them, and that which at this time lieth hidden in the secret of their heart, where the said name is imprinted, Revel. 2. 17. shall then be fully manifested, 1 John. 3. 2.

V. 5 No night] neither of proper and naturall darkenesse, nor of any figurative darkenesse figured by afflictions, ignorance, confusion, &c. No candle] as if it were night. Now the Candle or light of the soules in this world is Gods word, Psalm. 119. 105. 2 Pet. 1. 19. the use and preaching whereof shall then cease, 1 Cor. 13. 8.

V. 6. Of the holy Prophets] the Italian, of the Prophets spirits] that is to say, the author and director of all the Prophets inspirations.

V. 7. Behold] a created Angell speakes here, as it appeares by the following verses, yet this is spoken in Christ, the everlasting Gods person.

V. 10. Seale not] that is to say, doe not hide them from the Church; publish them, that they may be meditated upon by all beleevers, for their necessity, because the accomplishment of these things will begin to be very shortly: and it is fitting they should be forewarned in time, against all chances, see Isa. 8. 16. Dan. 12. 4.

V. 11. Let him be] that is to say, in these latter daies, those that shall remaine hardened in their sins, shall by Gods judgement be abandoned to the divel, and their own wicked lusts, and be deprived of all safeguard, light, and guide of the holy Ghost, see Ezech. 3. 27. & 20. 39. Dan. 12. 10. Amos 4. 4. Let him be righteous] the Italian, Let him be justified; that is to say, let him increase, and be confirmed in faith more and more, whereby his sinnes may alwaies be forgiven him, and he may have a continuall and confirmed feeling of it; and may more and more abound in fruits of grace, and in all manner of good workes.

V. 14. May have right] that is to say, they may be partakers of Gods everlasting goods, as his children, and so may enter into the everlasting Country and inheritance.

V. 15. Dogges] namely, uncleane, prophane, and abominable persons. Sorcerers] or poysoners.

V. 16. Morning-Star] I am he that bring the light of knowledge and of Gods grace into the World, after the night of ignorance and sin. And the great day of glory, after the darkenesse of the state of this lower world.

V. 17. The Spirit] namely, the holy Ghost which breeds these sighes, and holy desires in the hearts of beleevers; and generally, in all the Church, which is Christs bride, who also of her own free will answereth his motions, See Rom. 8. 23, 26. 2 Cor. 5. 2, 4.

V. 18. I testifie], the Italian, I professe; some discourses of S. Johns making up the close, not onely of this booke, but also, as it is likely, of the whole body of the bookes of the new testament, see Deut. 4. 2. & 12. 32. Prov. 30 6.

V. 19. Out of the Booke] other texts or copies have it, out of the tree of life.

V. 20. He which] namely, Christ, the onely revealer of these mysteries. Amen] S. Johns answer.

V. 21. With you all] other copies have it, with all the Saints.
